In this context, let us consider the story of our Prophet Musa (Moses), when he said to his Lord: '"O my Lord! Show (Thyself) to me, so that I might behold Thee!" (Allah) said, "Never can you see Me. However, behold this mountain: if it remains firm in its place, then – only then – will you see Me." And as soon as his Lord revealed His glory to the mountain, He caused it to crumble to dust; and Musa (Moses) fell down in a swoon' (al-A'raf: 143). Firstly, consider Allah's statement: '...Never can you see Me...' (al-A'raf: 143). Allah did not say, 'Never will I be seen.' In other words, Allah was telling Prophet Musa, 'You will never see Me, O Musa, while you are in a state that does not enable you to have such a vision.' However, Allah revealed Himself to the mountain, and this revelation implies vision. Hence, the phenomenon here lies in the beholder and the extent of his preparedness to perceive Allah.

Prophet Muhammad is like Prophet Musa in this respect except that when he ascended into the heavens, he assumed an angelic nature which enabled him to ascend and enter these sublime realms. This angelic nature covered his human nature and overcame it, Allah Glorified is He then said:

إِنْ هِيَ إِلَّآ أَسْمَآءٌ سَمَّيْتُمُوهَآ أَنتُمْ وَءَابَآؤُكُم مَّآ أَنزَلَ ٱللَّهُ بِهَا مِن سُلْطَٰنٍ ۚ إِن يَتَّبِعُونَ
إِلَّا ٱلظَّنَّ وَمَا تَهْوَى ٱلْأَنفُسُ ۖ وَلَقَدْ جَآءَهُم مِّن رَّبِّهِمُ ٱلْهُدَىٰٓ ﴿٢٣﴾

These are nothing but names you have invented yourselves, you and your forefathers. God has sent no authority for them. These people merely follow guess-work and the whims of their souls, even though guidance has come to them from their Lord [23] (The Quran, an-Najm: 23)

The discourse remains focused on the idols of al-Lat, al-'Uzza and Manat, with Allah Glorified is He stating that these idols are naught: '...but empty names which you have invented – you and your forefathers – (and) for which Allah has not revealed any warrant' (an-Najm: 23). They fabricated these idols by their own hands. Now, it is well known that a name is coined in order to refer to the thing that is named. However, the names which they gave to these idols were references to null and invalid forces. They have claimed that they are deities, but they were only stones which do no harm and produce no benefit.

Allah said: ‘...which you have invented – you and your forefathers...’ (an-Najm: 23). This is due to the fact that they inherited these idols from their ancestors. The polytheists themselves said in that respect: ‘Behold, we found our forefathers agreed on what to believe – and, verily, it is but in their footsteps that we follow!’ (az-Zukhruf: 23) Hence, they acknowledged that it was the path of their forefathers, and confirmed that they were pursuing their pre-established course.

Subsequently, Allah stated the falsity of their beliefs: ‘…for which Allah has not revealed any warrant’ (an-Najm: 23). These beliefs arose from themselves without any proof or evidence and were not from Allah Glorified is He. Indeed, neither they nor their forefathers were fit to be religious legislators. In fact, religious ordinances and tenets of faith are not to be derived from men, but are only to be received from Allah Glorified is He. These disbelievers did not follow the guidance of Allah, but instead: ‘Indeed, they (who worship them) follow (inn yatibi’una) nothing but surmise (azh-zhann),’ (an-Najm: 23). The Arabic phrase inn yatibi’una contains the negating particle inn. The use of this particle gives rise to the meaning, ‘They do not follow but their guesses and their own wishful thinking.’ They do not follow fundamental truths or adhere to reality. The Arabic word azh-zhann (surmise) is one of the six levels of the truthfulness of a statement which we have previously clarified. These six levels state that a scholastic statement or utterance can be either a statement of knowledge (‘ilm), a statement of ignorance (jahl), an unthinking imitation (taqleed), a doubt (shakk), a hypothesis (zhann) or a deluded statement (wahm).

Firstly, if a scholastic axiom reports a definitive reality and establishes the proof of that reality, then it constitutes a statement of knowledge (al-‘ilm). The second type is a statement that definitively defends a perception without providing a proof for it. Then, this statement would only be considered an imitation (al-taqleed). Thirdly, if the scholastic assertion is not founded upon reality, but is asserted with a definitive manner, then it is ignorance (al-jahl). Fourthly, in the event that the scholastic imputation is not asserted with certainty meaning that there is an equal probability of the event occurring or not occurring, then it is doubt (as-shakk). The fifth form of utterance is a hypothesis or an assumption (azh-zhann) which is when an event is likely. Finally, if the statement is highly improbable, then it is a self-deceiving delusion (al-wahm).

It is possible to base some of our actions upon an assumption (azh-zhann) in ordinary affairs. Thus, for example, if we wished to travel to Alexandria, and I said to my companion, 'This first route is easy and it is provided with the necessities of travelling,' he might respond, 'I believe (azhunnu) that the second route is better because it is newly constructed.' In that situation, it would be permissible for me to leave aside the certainty with which I regard the first route, and instead, take the second route based on an assumption. This is because if our choice is mistaken, the resulting harm will be minimal.

On the other hand, in the matters of religion and fundamental beliefs, it is necessary to adhere to certainty and not to assumption. Allah Glorified is He informed us that these polytheists followed hypothetical assumptions in their matters of worship. For instance, they said, 'Verily, Allah has an elevated majesty and glorious grandeur, and so, we cannot worship Him directly. We need to worship other (earthly) deities that can bring us closer to Him and that can intercede for us with Him.'

Therefore, Allah's words: 'Indeed, they (who worship them) follow nothing but surmise' (an-Najm: 23) refer to the false religious convictions of these polytheists. On the other hand, the phrase which follows this: '…and their own wishful thinking (tahwa al-anfus)' (an-Najm: 23) means that they follow the passionate inclinations of their souls in their behaviours and actions. The Arabic word tahwa is the verb derived from the word al-hawa (desire or wishes). Al-hawa is formed of the blameworthy and unprincipled yearnings and longings of desire.

In the final passage of this verse, Allah said: '…although, righteous guidance has hitherto, indeed, (la-qad) reached them from their Lord' (an-Najm: 23). The Arabic word la-qad ('hitherto, indeed') consists of the particle la which is used for lexical confirmation, followed by the particle qad which strongly confirms the verb following it. Hereby, Allah confirmed a reality which is that the guidance of Allah Glorified is He has indeed reached these polytheists and that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him properly conveyed it to them. Yet, in spite of this, they turned aside from this certain truth, and followed the mere suppositions and presumptions they had inherited and imitated.

If they had followed their assumptions and passionate desires before the prescribed path of their Lord was conveyed to them, they would have had an excuse. However, as they have done this after guidance has come to them from Allah Glorified is He they have no excuse or defence, Then, Allah said:

أَمۡ لِلۡإِنسَٰنِ مَا تَمَنَّىٰ (٢٤) فَلِلَّهِ ٱلۡأٓخِرَةُ وَٱلۡأُولَىٰ (٢٥)

Is man to have everything he wishes for [24] when the present life and the life to come belong only to God? [25]
(The Quran, an-Najm: 24 - 25)

After deviating from Allah's guidance and following their spurious assumptions, did they imagine that they can proceed in this world on the basis of their unprincipled inclinations and desires? Did they think that man can have whatever he wants, even if his longings are contrary to the ordained path of his Lord? The reality is that mankind will not attain their unchecked desires in this world because the principals of religion and faith are not obtained through desires. Indeed, Allah's decrees do not follow mankind's whims.

The Arabic verb tamanna (wished) is derived from the word at-tamanny, which is when a person seeks something that is impossible to attain. This word only signifies the great desire and love towards a particular aspiration, and that the aspiration will never be accomplished. A poet once said:

'If only my young years would return one day,

So I can inform them of what my old age has done.'

The polytheists may wishfully desire a particular outcome, but their wishes will be in vain. They wished that they could have whatever they wanted without restrictions, and this was a futile desire and will never be realized. This is because man does not have any control over his own circumstances, nor does he have control over all the causative factors that can lead to his wishes. Nay, indeed, he has a Lord who decrees all the destinies and deeds.

There are numerous verses in which Allah illustrated the vain desire of these people. Among their vain wishes was their statement: 'We worship them (the idols) for no other reason than that they bring us nearer to Allah' (az-Zumar: 3). Another example of a vain desire was uttered by the owner of the garden in the chapter of al-Kahf. This disbeliever said: '…But even if (the Day of Judgment should come, and) I am (resurrected and) brought before my Lord, I will surely find something even better than this (garden) as (my last) resort!' (al-Kahf: 36) In another verse, a man was mentioned to have said: '…but if (it should come, and) I should indeed be brought back unto my Lord, then, behold, the ultimate good awaits me with Him!' (Fussilat: 50) In this manner, these disbelievers only had vain wishes that did not respect any limit. Thus, Allah said: 'Man is never weary of asking for the good (things of life); and if evil fortune touches him, he abandons all hope, giving himself up to despair' (Fussilat: 49).

Likewise, these vain desires included the utterances of Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira. The Quran described Al-Walid in the verses in which Allah said: 'And have you (Muhammad) seen the man who denied the truth of Our messages and said, "I will surely be given wealth and children"? Has he (Al-Walid), perchance, attained to a realm which is beyond the reach of a created being's perception? – or has he concluded a covenant with (Allah) the Most Gracious?' (Maryam: 77-78) Indeed, Al-Walid did not reach the knowledge of the unseen realms, nor has he had a covenant with Allah regarding these wishes. Subsequently, Allah Glorified is He refuted his wishes, and said: 'Nay! We shall record what he said, and We shall greatly lengthen his suffering (in the hereafter), and divest him of all that he is (now) speaking of: for (on the Day of Judgment), he will appear before Us in a lonely state' (Maryam: 79 - 80).

Thus, man will not have what he vainly desires, and how could he have his desires when the entire matter belongs to Allah Glorified is He alone, from beginning to the end. Allah said: 'Rather, to Allah belongs the Hereafter and the first (life)' (an-Najm: 25).

This verse employed an abbreviated lexical mode of expression in which the main clause, '…belongs to Allah,' preceded the opening clause, 'The Hereafter and the first (life).' This lexical mode highlights that the Hereafter and the first life belong to Allah alone. Here, Allah placed the reference to the Hereafter first because the polytheists said that their idols were their intercessors with Allah Glorified is He. Therefore, Allah announced that the Hereafter belongs to Him alone, and that the polytheists will not derive any benefit from their idols because their assumptions were futile and groundless. The phrase: '…and the first (life)' (an-Najm: 25) refers to the fact that they have not even achieved their enjoyments in this life by themselves.

It is also said that the Hereafter is mentioned before the present life in this verse, despite the fact that it is contrary to the normal order because the Hereafter is the object of contention between the person who believes in it and the one who denies it. It is the concept that the disbelievers have a doubt in and therefore, Allah mentioned it before the first life to reaffirm that it is the truth. Indeed, its truth is more certain than the first life they are now living, Then, Allah said:

وَكَم مِّن مَّلَكٖ فِي ٱلسَّمَٰوَٰتِ لَا تُغۡنِي شَفَٰعَتُهُمۡ شَيۡـًٔا
إِلَّا مِنۢ بَعۡدِ أَن يَأۡذَنَ ٱللَّهُ لِمَن يَشَآءُ وَيَرۡضَىٰٓ ﴿٢٦﴾

There are many angels in heaven whose intercession will be of no use until God gives permission to those He will, whose words He will accept [26] (The Quran, an-Najm: 26)

The polytheists believed that the idols would intercede for them with Allah Glorified is He as they said: 'We worship them (the idols) for no other reason than that they bring us nearer to Allah' (az-Zumar: 3). Allah Glorified is He refuted this concept with a statement that illustrated the futility and groundlessness of their convictions. How could they expect that the idols can intercede for them, when even the angels of divine proximity and the honoured servants in Allah's presence do not possess the power of intercession except by His permission?

Allah said: 'And (how) many (kam) an angel?' (an-Najm: 26) This means that there is a multitude of angels, as the particle kam is an explicative rather than an interrogative particle. It refers to the great number of these angels since it is asking about a number which has no limit.

The verse continued talking about these numerous angels: '...their intercession will not avail at all except (only) after Allah has permitted (them) to whom He wills and approves' (an-Najm: 26). Consequently, there are two conditions for the acceptance of the intercession of the angels. The first condition is that it can only happen if Allah Glorified is He gives the permission for the angels to intercede. The second condition is if Allah Glorified is He is well pleased with the one for whom the angels are interceding. Indeed, Allah will be pleased with the adherents of pure monotheism (at-tawheed). Therefore, this refers to the dignity of the intercessor and the dignity of the one interceded for.

In the verse of al-Kursi, Allah said: ‘Who is there that could intercede with Him, unless it be by His leave?’ (al-Baqara: 255) The angels are honoured servants who do not speak without His leave and they only execute his commands. Allah has said about them: ‘…they do not disobey Allah in whatever He has commanded them, but (always) do what they are bidden to do’ (at-Tahrim: 6). Hence, if this is the conditional state of the angels with respect to the acceptance of their intercession, then what is one to think of the intercession of the null futile idols?

We can observe in the Quranic wording of this verse that the words: ‘...many (kam) an angel (malaak),’ (an-Najm: 26) was mentioned in the singular form. On the other hand, the intercessions were attributed to many angels when Allah said: ‘...their intercessions will not avail at all,’ (an-Najm: 26). Allah did not say, ‘…his intercession’ because the particle kam is explicative and indicates a great quantity, and when it is conjoined with the singular form ‘angel’, it still renders the plural meaning. The Arabic phrase wa-kam min malaak (...and (how) many an angel) signifies a multitude of angels, and it is fitting that Allah then said: ‘…their intercessions’ employing the plural form. Then, Allah said:

إِنَّ ٱلَّذِينَ لَا يُؤۡمِنُونَ بِٱلۡأٓخِرَةِ لَيُسَمُّونَ ٱلۡمَلَٰٓئِكَةَ تَسۡمِيَةَ ٱلۡأُنثَىٰ ﴿٢٧﴾ وَمَا لَهُم بِهِۦ
مِنۡ عِلۡمٍۖ إِن يَتَّبِعُونَ إِلَّا ٱلظَّنَّۖ وَإِنَّ ٱلظَّنَّ لَا يُغۡنِي مِنَ ٱلۡحَقِّ شَيۡـٔٗا ﴿٢٨﴾

Those who deny the life to come give the angels female names [27] They have no knowledge to base this on: they merely follow guesswork. Guesswork is of no value against the Truth [28] (The Quran, an-Najm: 27 - 28)

Allah exposed the false convictions that the polytheists expressed in their statement: ‘We worship them (the idols) for no other reason than that they bring us nearer to Allah’ (az-Zumar: 3). The polytheists considered that the angels would intercede for them with Allah Glorified is He. However, their concept was fragile and frail because they did not really believe in the Hereafter. Therefore, their speech of an intercession in the Hereafter was only composed of empty statements.

Allah said: ‘Behold, those who do not believe in the Hereafter,’ (an-Najm: 27) and this is a reference to the disbelievers. The verse continued that they: ‘…regard the angels as female beings’ (an-Najm: 27) which means that they claimed that the angels were the daughters of Allah Glorified is He. Then Allah Glorified is He stated that their statement had no basis in knowledge: ‘…but they have no knowledge thereof,’ (an-Najm: 28). Allah said in another passage: ‘I did not make them witnesses of the creation of the heavens and the earth, nor of the creation of their own selves; and neither do I (have any need to) take as My helpers those (beings) that lead (men) astray’ (al-Kahf: 51).

Hence, they had no knowledge regarding the creation of the angels, and, thus, they were liars in their claim. The problem is that they followed their baseless suppositions in this matter, as they only considered the angels to be females because the Arabic word mala-‘ika (angels) is lexically feminine. In the Arabic language, the lexical femininity of a name is not an indication that the being carrying the name is feminine, but these disbelievers did not have any connection with veritable reality.

The truth regarding this issue is what Allah Glorified is He informed us since He is their Creator Who has the absolute knowledge of their nature. Thus, Allah said: ‘Indeed, conjecture (azh-zhann) will never take the place of the Truth,’ (an-Najm: 28). Supposition or assumption (azh-zhann) can never take the place of definitive manifest knowledge, Then, Allah said:

مِّنَ ٱلۡعِلۡمِۚ إِنَّ رَبَّكَ هُوَ أَعۡلَمُ بِمَن ضَلَّ عَن سَبِيلِهِۦ وَهُوَ أَعۡلَمُ بِمَنِ ٱهۡتَدَىٰ ﴿٣٠﴾

So [Prophet] ignore those who turn away from Our revelation, who want only the life of this world [29] Their knowledge does not go beyond that. Your Lord knows best who strays from His path and who follows guidance [30]
(The Quran, an-Najm: 29 - 30)

After Allah made the position of His adversaries clear to His Prophet, and that they did not have any desire for the truth, but instead, followed their vain assumptions, Allah told him: ‘O Muhammad, relieve yourself of such people, for there is nothing to be gained from them.’ Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was earnestly keen on the guidance of his people. He used to push himself to great lengths for the sake of summoning them to the truth, far beyond what is bearable for human beings. For this reason, Allah addressed Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him with the following words: ‘But wouldst thou, perhaps, torment thyself to death with grief over them if they are not willing to believe in this message?’ (al-Kahf: 6) In addition, He said to him: ‘…thou art not bound to do more than deliver the message (entrusted to you)’ (ash-Shura: 48).

We have clarified that Allah Glorified is He did not want the disbelievers to approach obedience as empty shells without obedient hearts. Rather, he wanted their hearts to approach Him voluntarily and of their own free choosing. Therefore, Allah said to His Prophet: ‘Avoid (a’rid), therefore, those who turn away from all remembrance of Us’ (an-Najm: 29). In this passage, the word a’rid was used to mean ‘avoid’. The word is derived from the same semantic root as the verbs ʿarada (presented or showed), and the word ʿaarid (a presenter or shower, such as those who present their merchandise in markets). However, in this verse, a hamza (glottal stop) was added to these roots, and this hamza is known as hamzat al-izala (cessation). In other words, when this hamza is added to the semantic verb ‘arada (presented), it transforms it into a’rada (avoided) which has the opposite meaning of the word ‘arada (presented).

Therefore, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him presented (’arada) the guidance and the ordained path of Truth to his people. He explained the objectives and advantages of this path. However, they only renounced his guidance. They showed insults and opposition to him and avoided his way. This situation remained until his Lord commanded him to avoid them (a’rid) and pay no heed to those who reject his way. Allah ordered him: ‘Avoid, therefore,’ (an-Najm: 29). Just as they have turned away from you, then you must turn away from them. They have avoided you, O Muhammad, so you must shun them.

This lexical principal of hamzat al-izala which transforms a verb into its opposite meaning can also be found in other words. For instance, the verb a'jama is used to refer to a book that is provided with diacritical points (uʿjima al-kitab)', as these points remove the book's obscurity. Another example of this usage is the word mu'jam (dictionary) that eliminates the ambiguities of words or expressions. This is because a mu'jam clarifies the meanings of the words of the language, deciphers them and renders them intelligible. However, if we remove the hamza from the word a'jama, it becomes 'ajama (ciphered) which is the opposite of a'jama (deciphered).

Likewise, aʿrada means the cessation presentation (al-ʿard). Hence, the passage: 'Avoid, therefore, those who turn away from all remembrance of Us' (an-Najm: 29) indicated that it was the disbelievers who began by shunning the remembrance of Allah Glorified is He. In other words, they averted themselves from the Quran and from its ordained path because it restricted their indulgent freedoms and lustful desires.

The ordained path entails prescriptions and proscriptions, and they had no desire for such obligations. They desired an unbridled pursuit of their passionate inclinations, where they can enjoy their pleasures without any oversight. If these disbelievers had given serious consideration to the ordained path of Allah Glorified is He they would have recognized that it was in their interest. This is because, for example, when religion forbids you from stealing as an individual it also forbids all people from stealing from you. It does restrain your hand, but at the same it also restrains millions of hands from stealing you.

Therefore, before looking at the hardships of religious ordinances, you should look at its beneficial gifts. You may recall the youthful companion who came to Prophet Muhammad may the peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him and said to him, 'O Messenger of Allah. Give me the legal permission to fornicate.' Can you imagine the reaction of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him towards this bizarre request? He did not drive him away, but rather brought him closer to himself, and smiled in his face and told him: 'O kinsman of the Arabs. Would you accept it if your sister did it (fornicated)?' Thereupon, the man said, 'No, O Messenger of Allah, may I be your ransom.' Then, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him asked: 'Would you like this for your mother? Would you like this for your daughter?' The narrator of this Hadith said, '(The Prophet continued asking him) until he mentioned the paternal aunt and the maternal aunt, with the man saying, ‘No, O Messenger of Allah, may I be your ransom.’ Then, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said to him: ‘It is the same for other people, O kinsman of the Arabs. They too would not like this for their sisters, or their mothers, or their daughters.’ The young man subsequently said, ‘So I departed from the presence of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and there was nothing more detestable to me than fornication, and I have never thought of committing anything (of that sort) except that I recalled the honour of my sister, my mother and my daughter.’’(1)

For this reason, Allah said of the righteous and pious people at the beginning of the chapter of al-Baqara: ‘It is they who are upon the guidance (which comes) from their Lord; and it is they, who shall attain to a happy state’ (al-Baqara: 5). Thus, religious ordinances and the ordained path are not an encumbrance upon you, but rather, carry and deliver you towards your objective. The cited verse refers to the righteous people as being ‘upon the guidance’ (ʿala al-huda), with the preposition ʿala suggesting mastery and superiority over (al-istiʿlaʾ). Hence, it is the ordained path that carries you, and it helps you and renders you happy.

Now, we can return to our verse in the chapter of an-Najm in which Allah said regarding the disbelievers: ‘…and (those who) care for no more than the life of this world’ (an-Najm: 29). This signifies that the life of this world constitutes their ultimate aim, and they act only for its sake. The disbelievers have surely confirmed their disbelief by saying: ‘There is nothing beyond our life in this world. We die as we come to life, and nothing but time destroys us’ (al-Jathiya: 24). Hence, the Hereafter is of no account to them. Therefore, Allah deemed their opinion to be foolish by saying: ‘which, to them, is the only thing worth knowing’ (an-Najm: 30). This is the ultimate extent of the knowledge they had acquired, and they stopped at that limit of knowledge.

(1) This Hadith is narrated by Imam Ahmad in his Musnad (21185), by At-Tabarani in Al-Muʿjam Al-Kabir (7077), and is found in Musnad ash-shamiyin (1036, 1494) as well as in Shuʿab Al-Iman by Al-Bayhaqi (5181) as related by Abu Umama . In its full version, it is narrated that The Messenger of Allah prayed for the youth: {O my Allah, forgive him his transgression and purify his heart, and safeguard his sexual organ.} And afterwards, the young man never so much as glanced at anything.

It is bewildering that they have closed their ears and deafened their hearing towards the guidance, and that they did not adopt the knowledge that Allah Glorified is He revealed to them. ‘Behold, your Lord is fully aware as to who has strayed from His path, and fully aware is He as to who follows His guidance’ (an-Najm: 30).

Let us first examine the conciseness of expression in the Arabic phrase huwa aʿlamu, ‘(He) is fully aware’. In this phrase, knowledge and awareness were limited to Allah Glorified is He alone. This because the issue of guidance and straying from the right path is primarily related to the world of the unseen and no one is acquainted with this world except Allah, the One Who knows all secrets and what is even more concealed than secrets. Moreover, every person claims to be rightly guided and that others are misguided. For this reason, Allah Glorified is He reserved this knowledge exclusively for Himself.

It is noteworthy to say that Allah said: ‘Behold, your Lord is fully aware as to who has strayed from His path, and fully aware is He as to who follows His guidance,’ (an-Najm: 30) after He had said to His Prophet: ‘Avoid, therefore, those who turn away from all remembrance of Us’ (an-Najm: 29). There is a correspondence between these two verses, as Allah’s knowledge of their reaction to His message preceded their existence and their turning away from this message.

Therefore, Allah told Prophet Muhammad may the peace and the blessings of Allah be upon him to unburden his soul: ‘…thou art not bound to do more than deliver the message (entrusted to thee)’ (ash-Shura: 48). Moreover, Allah informed Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him of those who will be guided and those who will remain lost in misguidance. In this respect, consider that Abu Lahab, Abu Sufyan, ʿAmr ibn Al-‘As and Khalid ibn Al-Walid were all aligned in a single trench against Islam, but it was Allah’s will that Abu Sufyan, Khalid and ʿAmr become believers. On the other hand, Abu Lahab continued in his idolatry, even after the following verses were revealed concerning him: ‘Doomed are the hands of Abu Lahab, and doomed is he! What will his wealth avail him, and all that he has gained? (In the life to come) he shall have to endure a fire fiercely glowing’ (al-Masad: 1-3). Then, Allah said:

وَلِلَّهِ مَا فِي ٱلسَّمَٰوَٰتِ وَمَا فِي ٱلْأَرْضِ لِيَجْزِيَ ٱلَّذِينَ أَسَٰٓـُٔواْ
بِمَا عَمِلُواْ وَيَجْزِيَ ٱلَّذِينَ أَحْسَنُواْ بِٱلْحُسْنَى ﴿٣١﴾

Everything in the heavens and earth belongs to God.
He will repay those who do evil according to their deeds, and reward, with what is best, those who do good [31]
(The Quran, an-Najm: 31)

Here, again, is a concise expression that placed the predicate of a nominal clause before its nominal clause signifying that everything belongs to Allah Glorified is He alone. In another passage Allah said: ‘To Allah alone is the dominion over the heavens and the earth’ (ash-Shura: 49). Now, the heavens and the earth are wondrous in themselves, and that which is in them is even more marvellous. ‘Indeed, to Allah belongs all that is in the heavens and all that is in the earth’ (an-Najm: 31). Likewise, He said: ‘And to Allah (alone) is the knowledge of the hidden reality of the heavens and the earth’ (an-Nahl: 77).

There are three realms of Allah’s dominion. He holds absolute command over the heavens and the earth. He supremely reigns over the contents that are in the heavens and the earth, as each of them has wondrous and amazing contents of their own. Finally, he is the sole master of what is even more marvellous, which is the unseen realm that is hidden from us in the dominions of the heavens and the earth.

This means that mankind should not abstain from working towards more discoveries and inventions, as the universe will continue to overflow with marvellous signs and wonders, some of which they are familiar with and some of which they have no knowledge of. The heavens and the earth contain provisions which have no limit and cannot be finished as long as the heavens and the earth abide. Then, when the marvels and secrets run out with the termination of this world, there will arise wonders and secrets of the Hereafter.

Then, Allah made it clear that this dominion over the heavens and the earth is the reason for the presence of recompense in the Hereafter. This is because the dominion is the dominion of Allah Glorified is He and the creation is Allah’s creation. Indeed, the messengers are Allah’s messengers, and the ordained path is the ordained path of Allah. In front of you, O man, is the vast universe and all that it comprises of wondrous cosmic signs showing the power and capability of the Creator. Therefore, you should seek to find the proofs and signs of the Creator throughout His creation.

Then Allah sent to you His messengers, revealed His Books, established the laws and clarified that which is permissible and that which is forbidden. He defined the limits and made the reward clear. It is absolutely necessary that the dominion of the heavens and the earth be concluded with requital. Indeed, the recompense must comprise the same nature as the deeds that were done in this world. Therefore, Allah said: '…and so He will reward those who do evil in accordance with what they did, and will reward those who do good with ultimate good' (an-Najm: 31).

We have previously said that there are three kinds of messages (ayat). These include the cosmic signs which indicate the omnipotence of Allah Glorified is He. They also include the miraculous signs which illustrate the truthfulness of the messenger in his conveyance from Allah Glorified is He and finally, include the verses of a binding judicial nature which the Noble Quran encompasses. Hence, whoever does not give proper consideration to these verses, and does not receive them in an adequate manner, has done wrong and will be punished for their transgression.

On the other hand, whoever receives them with care and excellence, will be rewarded for this excellence. It is as if their worldly obedience was a greeting or a salutation to the One Who ordained these religious obligations, and Allah Glorified is He will return the greeting in a superior form: '…and will reward those who do good with ultimate good' (an-Najm: 31). In other words, they will be rewarded with a reward that is better than their actions. Thus, if Allah had ordered us to return any good salutation in this world with a superior salutation, we should know that Allah will reward our good actions with a greater good in the Hereafter.

Consider the fluency and the precision of the expression that is found in this verse. Allah did not say that He will punish those who have done evil with an evil punishment, but instead said that the punishment will be: '...in accordance with what they did,' (an-Najm: 31). He will not confront them with an 'evil' action, but rather, He will place before them the deeds which they have done themselves. This is an illustration of the justice of Allah Glorified is He that is referred to in the following verse: '…for it is not Allah who does them wrong, but it is they who are wronging themselves' (Al-'Imran: 117).

Furthermore, in our verse in the chapter of an-Najm, Allah mentioned the reward of the evil deeds before mentioning the reward of the doers of good, in order that the recompense of the ultimate good (al-husna) be the last thing that we hear. Subsequently, the verses expanded and provided detailed descriptions concerning those who have done good, including the aspects of charity and righteousness found in their deeds, Then, Allah said:

ٱلَّذِينَ يَجْتَنِبُونَ كَبَٰٓئِرَ ٱلْإِثْمِ وَٱلْفَوَٰحِشَ إِلَّا ٱللَّمَمَ ۚ إِنَّ رَبَّكَ وَٰسِعُ ٱلْمَغْفِرَةِ ۚ
هُوَ أَعْلَمُ بِكُمْ إِذْ أَنشَأَكُم مِّنَ ٱلْأَرْضِ وَإِذْ أَنتُمْ أَجِنَّةٌ فِى بُطُونِ
أُمَّهَٰتِكُمْ ۖ فَلَا تُزَكُّوٓا۟ أَنفُسَكُمْ ۖ هُوَ أَعْلَمُ بِمَنِ ٱتَّقَىٰٓ ﴿٣٢﴾

As for those who avoid grave sins and foul acts, though they may commit small sins, your Lord is ample in forgiveness.
He has been aware of you from the time He produced you from the earth and from your hiding places in your mothers' wombs, so do not assert your own goodness: He knows best who is mindful of Him [32] (The Quran, an-Najm: 32)

One of the attributes of those that do the good is that they: '…avoid the (truly) grave sins and immoralities' (an-Najm: 32). This is to say, that they entirely avoid these major transgressions (al-kaba᾽ir) of sins, and do not approach this forbidden area. However, they may still fall in occasional unfortunate slips (al-lamam) which are minor sins. It is as if Allah Glorified is He with His Mercy guaranteed the forgiveness of the minor offenses by deleting them and providing an eraser which removes them. This eraser is the five obligatory prayers, on the condition that we avoid the major sins.

Hence, we find that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said in a Hadith: 'The five daily obligatory prayers, and one Friday congregational prayer to the next Friday congregational prayer, and one Ramadan to the next Ramadan, are an expiation (kaffara) for what lies between them, if the major sins are avoided.'(1) So, whoever does these obligatory good deeds, and pursues this prescribed path, will have the ultimate good (al-husna), and will be considered among the doers of good.

Therefore, the sinful offenses and lewd acts are the major sins that Allah Glorified is He threatened with dire consequences. The Arabic word al-fawahish (immoralities) comprises the major sins that are excessively obscene or abominable. Allah Glorified is He has laid down a prescribed punishment and a penalty for these sins.

Then, there are the occasional unfortunate slips (al-lamam) which Allah Glorified is He will forgive. These are the miniscule insignificant sins which do not give rise to serious harm. However, there is a condition for these sins to be forgiven, which is that a person should not recklessly indulge upon them, or be excessive in doing them, in order that they do not become part of a sinful habit.

So, if Allah Glorified is He deals with you in this manner, then you should show sufficient bashfulness towards Him and refrain from being emboldened in disobeying Him, even in the domain of minor sins. This is because when a minor offence is added to another minor offence and is committed repeatedly and regularly over time with wilfulness, it becomes a major sin. Moreover, the thinking people should consider the Greatness of Allah. He is the One they are disobeying when they are committing these minor sins. Hence, they are ordered to restrain themselves.

We have said that the Arabic word al-kaba᾽ir refers to the grave sins. This word is the plural of kabeera which is a sin concerning which Allah Glorified is He gave a stern warning of chastisement in the Hereafter, or are the crimes for which He has prescribed a penalty in this world. These sins pertain to the rights of the servants, for Allah Glorified is He has given precedence to the rights of servants over His own rights and has established just punishments for them in this world. Do you not see that Allah Glorified is He has made the payment of debt a greater priority than the performance of pilgrimage? Moreover, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him did not pray at the funeral of one of the Companions because he was in debt, and urged the other companions to first settle the debts of the deceased companion.

(1) This Hadith is narrated by Al-Bayhaqi in his Sunnan Al-kubra and also in Shu῾ab Al-Iman (3466) as related by Abu Hurayra. It was also narrated by Muslim in his Sahih (344, 342) with a slightly different wording.

It is even said that: 'Whoever performs pilgrimage without having behaved in an obscene manner, or having acted sinfully, will be delivered from his sins like the day his mother gave birth to him.'(1) It is also said that this Hadith pertains to the due rights of Allah Glorified is He as well. However, the due rights of servants will remain upheld until they are justly settled, or until an atoning punishment is carried out. This provides a deterrent factor and prevents people from recklessly transgressing against the inviolable belongings of others.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him taught us this lesson in his supplication: 'O Allah. Whatever I have done against your rights, and then grant me forgiveness for it, and whatever I have done against the rights of your servants, and then relieve me of its burden.' He was only asking for forgiveness from the servants' rights only if he became unable to fulfil their requirements himself.

Consider a thief who has wronged his own soul and wishes to repent after persisting in his crimes. In order to repent, he must exert every effort to restore the stolen possessions to their owners. Then, if he is still unable to do this, he must calculate the sum total of all that he has robbed from the people, and give it away in charity with the intention that the reward for this action be attributed to its rightful owners. If Allah Glorified is He acknowledges the sincerity of his repentance, He will forgive these transgressed rights, as a mercy unto this repentant sinner.

(1) This Hadith is related by Ahmad in his Musnad (6839) with the wording: "Whoever performs pilgrimage without having behaved in an obscene manner, or having acted sinfully, will revert to the form he had on the day his mother gave birth to him." It is related by Al-Bayhaqi in his Shuʿab (3933, 3934, 3935), by Ibn Hibban in his Sahih (3764) and by Ibn Khuzayma in his Sahih (3214) as related by Abu Hurayra with the wording: "Whoever performs pilgrimage, without having behaved obscenely, or having acted sinfully, will revert to the state when his mother gave birth to him." None of these Hadiths contains the phrase, "...from his sins."

Let us take note that the verse conjoined the word al-fawahish (‘shameful deeds’) with the word kabaʾir al-ithm (‘grave sins’). This is because both of these groups are types of grave sins. However, shameful deeds add the attribute of obscenity and ignominy to that of a major sin. Hence, they constitute more serious and more severe offences than major sins, because they are abominable and abhorrent.

Scholars have discussed the topic of major sins (al-kabaʾir) and have established a link between them and the bodily extremity or organ which commits them. ʿAmr ibn ʿUbayd(1) was a pious scholar who used to avoid that which other scholars and poets of his day were indulged in, regarding their visits to kings and princes in order to receive their gifts. He continued this avoidance, until a poet in the ʿAbbasid era said of him:

Except for ʿAmr ibn ʿUbayd’

ʿAmr Ibn ʿUbayd examined the issue of major sins (al-kabaʾir) and wished to ask the most knowledgeable man of his time with respect to the Quran and the transmitted practice of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him regarding these sins. Ultimately, he found no one more knowledgeable than Ja’far As-Sadiq(2), who was the son of Muhammad Al-Baqir*,* who was in turn the son of Zayn

Al-ʿAbideen, the son of Al-Husayn*,* the son of ‘Ali ʿibn Abu Taleb and Fatima

Az-Zahraʾ may Allah be pleased with them all.

(1) ʿAmr ibn ʿUbayd At-Taymy (Abu ʿUthman Al-Basri) was the most famous scholar among the Muʿtazilites of his time, and he was their mufti. He was also one of the famous ascetics. He was born in 80 AH and died in 144 AH at the age of 64 years. His grandfather was among the captives of Persia, and his father was a policeman for Al-Hajjaj ibn Yusuf in Basra. He died in the vicinity of Mecca. There are some scholars who regarded him as a falsifier and a disbeliever.

(2) He is Abu ʿAbdullah Al-Hashimi Al-Qurashi, one of the most honorable of the generations after the Prophetic age who held an exceptionally elevated status in religious knowledge. He was born in 80 AH and died in 148 AH at the age of 68. Among his students were the two Imams Abu Hanifa and Malik. His place of birth and death was in Medina. (Summarized from Al-Aʿlam of Az-Zirikli 2/126)

Ja’far As-Sadiq was well versed in the verses of the Quran, the absorption of its secrets and the investigation of its treasures. He used to research its meanings and bring forth proofs based upon them. He once said: ‘I am astonished by the one who fears anything without occupying himself with the remembrance of the verse: ‘Allah is enough for us; and how excellent a guardian is He!’ (Al-‘Imran: 173) Indeed, I have surely seen that Allah Glorified is He said after it: ‘…and (they) returned with Allah’s blessings and bounty, without having been touched by evil’ (Al-‘Imran: 174). He went on to say, ‘and I am astonished by the one who is plunged into anxiety without occupying himself with the remembrance of the verse: ‘There is no deity except You (Allah)! Limitless are You in Your glory! Verily, I have done wrong (La illaha illa anta Subhanak, Inny kontu mina azhzhalimeen)’ (al-Anbiya’: 87). Indeed, I have seen that Allah said after it: ‘And so We responded unto him and delivered him from (his) distress: for thus do We deliver all who have faith’ (al-Anbiya’: 88).

Furthermore, Ja’far As- Sadiq said, ‘And I am astonished by the one who is the object of insidious plotting without occupying himself with the remembrance of the verse: ‘…But (as for me,) I commit myself unto Allah: for, verily, Allah sees all that is in (the hearts of) His servants,’ (Ghafir: 44). Indeed, I have seen that Allah said after it: ‘And Allah protected him from the evil of their scheming,’ (Ghafir: 45). And I am astonished by the one who desires this world without occupying himself with the remembrance of the verse: ‘…Whatever Allah wills (shall come to pass, for) there is no power except with Allah’ (al-Kahf: 39). Indeed, I have seen that Allah said after it: ‘Yet, it may well be that my Lord will give me something better than your garden’ (al-Kahf: 40).

Thus, Ja’far (1) may Allah be pleased with him established this therapeutic prescription and derived it from the Book of Allah. This prescription encompasses everything that can happen to the servant in terms of their different circumstances. So, ʿAmr ibn ʿUbayd went to ask Ja’far about the major sins (al-kabaʾir) inquiring about each grave sin according to the physical organ which commits it.

(1) The story of Jaʿfar As-Sadiq with ‘Amr ibn ‘Ubayd and his talk about cardinal sins

Ja'far replied: 'The heart is required not to associate any partners with Allah, not to despair from the mercy (rawh) of Allah, and not to feel secure from the encompassing plots (makr) of Allah.' Then, he brought evidence from the Book of Allah for each one of these concepts. With respect to the issue of associating partners with Allah, Ja'far cited the verse in which Allah said: 'Verily, Allah, does not forgive the ascribing of divinity to aught beside Him, and He forgives any lesser sin unto whomever He wills' (an-Nisa': 48). Regarding the sin of despairing from the mercy of Allah, Ja'far cited the verse: 'O you servants of Mine who have transgressed against your own selves! Despair not of Allah's mercy' (az-Zumar: 53)

One of the major sins of the tongue is the offering of false testimony. Allah said: 'And (know that the true servants of Allah are only) those who never bear witness to what is false, and, whenever they pass by (people engaged in) frivolity, pass on with dignity' (al-Furqan: 72). Other grave sins of the tongue include slandering chaste believing women behind their backs, and swearing an ominous oath (al-yameen al-ghamus) which means making a solemn oath regarding something which has passed and intentionally falsifying reality. Additionally, sorcery is among the major sins of the tongue.

As for the major sins of the stomach, these are related to drinking wine, consuming the wealth of the orphans, and eating from the money resulting from usury. We seek the refuge of Allah from such sins. With respect to the sexual organs, their grave sins are fornication or adultery. Regarding the hands, their major sins consist of stealing and murder, while the sins of the legs involve running away after engaging in the combat of battle. The sinfulness of each of these grave transgressions was clearly stated in the Book of Allah.

These major sins also include abandoning the observance of the prescribed prayers. This sin is very grave, as many parts of the body are involved in it. Neglecting prayers is a major sin because it was imposed as an obligation, as we have said, directly by Allah Glorified is He to His Messenger, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Thus, these prayers should never be waived by a Muslim under any circumstances. Therefore, it is one of the pillars of Islam, and also, a pillar of the Muslim himself because it is obligatory upon him and cannot be omitted.

As for the minor infractions (al-lamam), these are the transgressions that are lesser than the major sins (al-kabaʾir). They are called as-saghaʾir (the lesser sins), and include looking (annazhar) at what is forbidden. It is for this reason that it is said: ‘You are given the first glance, but you are not permitted the second one.’(1) This is because the first glance came upon you unexpectedly, and you necessarily need that first glance to recognize the person’s identity.

As for the second glance, it comprises the intention of continuing to stare, and this, in turn, draws us into looking at what is forbidden. Hence, the person who prolongs the first glance under the excuse that the first glance was permitted should beware. Indeed, Allah is the Overseer of sight and is the One Who is aware of the treachery of the eye and that which is concealed in the heart. In reality, you are not actually entitled for the first glance, yet you are excused in taking it since it spontaneously occurred to you without your intention.

Other minor sins include giving someone a light blow which does no physical harm, finding fault with some attribute of someone else, or with one of their features or mannerisms, and other things of this nature. It is for this reason that Allah refers to them as al-lamam. The records of such misdemeanours will be quickly forgiven by asking Allah for His forgiveness and the observance of daily acts of devotion.

Therefore, following this passage, Allah said: ‘…behold, your Lord is vast in forgiveness’ (an-Najm: 32). Yes, indeed, Allah’s forgiveness is vast and frequent. Indeed, He created man and is aware of the weak spots in him. When He imposed certain obligations upon him, He did not constrict him or place severe hardships upon him. Rather, Allah imposed obligations upon him to the extent of his capabilities, and did not make him responsible for them except after the attainment of maturity. Hence, as a child, he remains free to romp around in the universe without any binding religious obligations for more than ten years.

Then, once he has been made responsible for the injunctions, the negative consequences of committing minor sins are erased, and the woeful punishments of grave sins is made clear to him so that he does not approach them. This is a mercy from Allah Glorified is He for his servant. Allah said in another chapter: '…and He pardons a great deal (of sins)' (al-Ma'ida: 15). Allah's forgiveness is abounding and forbearing. His mercy takes precedence over his wrath, and his pardon takes precedence over his punishment.

(1) Burayra ibn Al-Hasib Al-Aslami narrated that Prophet Muhammad said to ʿAli: “O ʿAli, verily, you are given the first glance, but not the second one.” This Hadith is narrated by Abu Dawud in his Sunnan (1837), by At-Tirmidhi in his Sunnan (2701), and by Ahmad in his Musnad (21896, 21913, and 21943).

Then, in a man's life comes the great repentance, as Allah said: '…And so, when he attains full maturity and reaches forty years, he (that is righteous) prays, 'O my Lord! Inspire me so that I may forever be grateful for those blessings of You with which You have graced me and my parents, and that I may do what is right (in a manner) that will meet with Your goodly acceptance; and grant me righteousness in my offspring (as well). Verily, unto You have I turned in repentance: for, verily, I am of those who have surrendered themselves unto You!'' (al-Ahqaf: 15)

Therefore, the one who disobeys his Lord after the age of forty is a spoiled person. This is because they have attained the age where they can no longer be excused for having the audacity to disobey Allah Glorified is He. On the other hand, when a Muslim attains an advanced elderly age in Islam, Allah Glorified is He may choose not to punish him since he had devoted himself to Islam in his younger years.

Regarding His saying: '…He is fully aware of you when He brings you into being out of dust, and when you are still hidden in your mothers' wombs…' (an-Najm: 32), the initial creation is known by no one save Allah, a fact which is proved by His saying: 'I did not make them witnesses of the creation of the heavens and the earth, nor of the creation of their own selves…' (al-Kahf: 51).

His saying '…He brings you into being out of dust…' (an-Najm: 32) means that He initially created you from the clay of the earth which is a reference to the creation of Adam peace be upon him. Inasmuch as we are created of the earth, it is thus considered our origin and mother, which is why we, the sons, should be attached to their mother to which will be their final return.

Subsequently, He mentions another phase of the phases of creation: '…and when you are still hidden in your mothers' wombs…' (an-Najm: 32). For while Adam was created out of earth's clay, yet his offspring arose from coupling which results in the creation of the foetuses in the wombs of mothers.

Allah says: '…do not, then, consider yourselves pure…' (an-Najm: 32) The Arabic tazkiyat an-nafs means 'self-praise' and 'deeming purity'. There follows His saying: '…[For] He knows best as to who is conscious of Him.' (an-Najm: 32); this is to say that Allah the Almighty is Most Aware of the subtle, hidden and what is apparent. He is the Most Knowledgeable of you. He knows what you conceal and what you appear. Thus, there is no room for deeming yourself a praiseworthy or a superior person.

Even in the case of praising others and eulogising them, we have learned to say: 'We do not evaluate one's belief; it is Allah Who does so.' This is because He the Almighty is the One Who praises and purifies, and He is the fully Aware of those possessed by obedience, and true fearing of Him Glorified is He.

أَفَرَءَيْتَ ٱلَّذِى تَوَلَّىٰ ﴿٣٣﴾ وَأَعْطَىٰ قَلِيلًا وَأَكْدَىٰٓ ﴿٣٤﴾ أَعِندَهُۥ عِلْمُ ٱلْغَيْبِ فَهُوَ يَرَىٰٓ ﴿٣٥﴾
أَمْ لَمْ يُنَبَّأْ بِمَا فِى صُحُفِ مُوسَىٰ ﴿٣٦﴾ وَإِبْرَٰهِيمَ ٱلَّذِى وَفَّىٰٓ ﴿٣٧﴾

[Prophet], consider that man who turned away [33] he only gave a little and then he stopped [34] Does he have knowledge of the Unseen? Can he see [the Hereafter]? [35] Has he not been told what was written in the Scriptures of Moses [36] and of Abraham, who fulfilled his duty [37]
(The Quran, an-Najm: 33 - 37)

It is said(1) that these verses were revealed regarding Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira. At the early period of Islam, he argued with Muslims concerning their beliefs, turned away from it and from the Quran. His heart, later on, began to soften and he was attracted by what Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said to him. He gave a small assurance of protection to the cause of the Message and felt reassured by this.

(1) Concerning the cause of revelation of these verses, As-Suddi, Al-Kalbi and Al-Musayyab ibn Sharik narrated that Ibn ʿAbbas, Allah be pleased with him, said: They were revealed concerning ʿUthman ibn ʿAffan Allah be pleased with him. He used to disperse wealth and give in charity, so one day his milk brother ʿAbdullah ibn Abu Sarh said to him: 'What is this that you are doing? Soon you will have nothing left.' ʿUthman replied: 'I have surely accumulated many sins and made many mistakes, and verily I seek the good pleasure of Allah the Almighty with what I do, and I hope for his pardon.' Thereupon ʿAbdullah said to him: 'Give me your camel with its saddle and I will assume responsibility for all of your sins.' So he gave him what he requested and called people to witness upon what had been agreed. Thereafter, he refrained from some of what he formerly used to give in charity. It was then that Allah the Almighty revealed: 'Have you, then, ever considered him who turns away [from remembering Us, and cares for no more than the life of this world], [33] and gives so little [of himself for the good of his soul], and so grudgingly? [34]' (an-Najm: 33-34) Then ʿUthman returned to giving even more and better than previously. See Al-Wahidi An-Naysaburi, Asbab An-Nuzul, p. 227.

Thereafter, he recalled his high position among his people and feared that he would be accused of having become a monotheistic gnostic after being a follower of the religion of his fathers and forefathers. So he retreated and reverted back to his former beliefs. It is said that a man came to him and warned about believing in Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him telling him: ‘If you are afraid of punishment, then I will assume charge of it in your place in exchange for you giving me such-and-such.’ Then he gave him what he asked and reverted to disbelief and refrained from giving anything more in charity.

It is also said that these verses were revealed concerning An-Nadaru ibn Al-Harith(2). A man came to him and told him: ‘Most surely, Allah's punishment is severe, but I will take over its burden from you, so give me five young camels. However, he subsequently found this offer too generous, and so the man withheld this gift from him. It has also been said that these verses were revealed with regard to Safwan ibn Umayya.

This is the meaning of: ‘[Prophet], consider that man who turned away…’ (an-Najm: 33). This means that this man had shunned you and gone his own way. The next verse continues: ‘he only gave a little and then he stopped’ (an-Najm: 34), that is, of gifts or assurance of protection. With respect to the

(1) See Al-Wahidi, Asbab An-Nuzul, p. 228. This is the opinion of Mujahid and Ibn Zayd; he opines that they were revealed regarding Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira. He had followed Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him in his religion and was reviled by one of the polytheists who said to him: ‘Why have you abandoned the religion of the elders, and decried them as being misguided, asserting that they are in hellfire?’ He answered: ‘I was afraid of the punishment of Allah the Almighty.’ Then the one who had reviled him gave him something of that which he had safeguarded for him, and then became niggardly and withheld further gifts. Thereupon, Allah the Almighty revealed this verse.

(2) See Az-Zirikli, Al-‘Alam, 8/33. This is the opinion of Ad-Dahhak who opines that An-Nadaru ibn Al-Harith gave five young she-camels to a poor man of the emigrants in order that he renounce his religion, and further guaranteed him that he would take charge from him the burden of his reversion to disbelief. He was the bearer of the flag of the polytheists at the Battle of Badr and was killed in it in the year 2 A.H.

Arabic phrase wa-akda, (stopped), it means that He withhold his giving out of stinginess. One says: ‘So-and-so dug a well-pit and it turned out successfully for him.’ In other words, he got what he was anticipating from it, while another says: ‘So-and-so dug a well-pit but it was begrudging.’ This is to say, that he did not gain anything, or that he came across a large stone which hindered him from reaching his objective. The stone in this case is called a kudya. In a related sense, we have the expression: ‘An insurmountable obstacle (aqaba ka᾽da)’. In other words, it prevents you from attaining your goal.

Allah says: 'Does he have knowledge of the Unseen? Can he see [the Hereafter]?' (an-Najm: 35) It means: ‘Did he look into the world of the unseen and gain cognizance of the truth? Or did he come to know that this man will fulfil his promise of taking charge of the burden for him?’ The next two verses read: ‘Has he not been told what was written in the Scriptures of Moses [36] and of Abraham, who fulfilled his duty [37]’ (an-Najm: 36-37). In other words: ‘Is this opponent unaware of the Message of truth which came in the Scriptures of Musa (Moses) and Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon them?’

Yet, what is meant by with what came in the scripture of Musa and Ibrahim peace be upon them? The Quran gives us a detailed explanation saying:

وَأَنَّ سَعْيَهُۥ سَوْفَ يُرَىٰ ﴿٤٠﴾ ثُمَّ يُجْزَىٰهُ ٱلْجَزَآءَ ٱلْأَوْفَىٰ ﴿٤١﴾

That no soul shall bear the burden of another [38] that man will only have what he has worked towards [39] that his labour will be seen [40] and that in the end he will be repaid in full for it [41] (The Quran, an-Najm: 38 - 41)

This is what is related in the Scriptures of Musa and Ibrahim peace be upon them: ‘That no soul shall bear the burden of another.’ (an-Najm: 38) No soul shall assume the burden of the sin of another soul. Therefore, do not think that someone can carry your burden, and that the punishment will befall him instead of you, for the reckoning in the Hereafter is based upon equity and justice.

Moreover: ‘That man will only have what he has worked towards…’ (an-Najm: 39) A man only has his deeds recorded for him: if they are good, then it will be good with him; if they are evil, then it will be bad for him. This eliminates the hope of deriving benefit from someone else's deeds, as He the Almighty said: '[On the Day of Judgment,] every human being will be held in pledge for whatever [evil] he has wrought' (al-Muddaththir: 38). Thus, you do not benefit except from your own deeds and your own striving, so apply yourself with assiduity.

At the end of the chapter of al-A'la, He the Almighty says: 'Verily, [all] this has indeed been [said] in the earlier revelations [18] the revelations of Ibrahim and Musa. [19]' (al-A'la: 18-19) Yet, inasmuch as the context here is relating to a discussion regarding the fulfilment of a promise of someone who said to him: 'I will relieve you of the burden of your sins', He the Almighty mentions the attribute of fidelity possessed by Ibrahim peace be upon him saying: '…and of Ibrahim, who fulfilled his duty.' (an-Najm: 37)

For this reason, He the Almighty says with respect to Abraham peace be upon him: 'And [remember this:] when his Lord tried Ibrahim by [His] commandments and the latter fulfilled them…' (al-Baqara: 124). Yes, indeed, Ibrahim peace be upon him carried out that which Allah commanded him to do in the most literal way, and he succeeded in the examination with excellent grade, and with the rank of honour. This is evident in the story of the Ka'ba construction, and in the story of the sacrifice of his son Ishmael peace be upon them. Then, when he had fulfilled what he was commanded to do, Allah said to him: '…Behold, I shall make you a leader of men…' (al-Baqara: 124). Thus, the reward was in accord with the fulfilment and the sincerity of execution.

Certain orientalists have scrutinised this verse: 'That no soul shall bear the burden of another' (an-Najm: 38) saying: 'How can we reconcile it with His the Almighty saying: 'Hence, on Resurrection Day they shall bear the full weight of their own burdens, as well as some of the burdens of those ignorant ones whom they have led astray: oh, how evil the load with which they shall be burdened!' (an-Nahl: 25) So which of these two is more correct? To this we respond: 'Both of them are correct since each one of them has a specific meaning. The first speaks of sin and evil which man commits of his own accord. Thus, he bears the punishment for this, and no one can relieve him of it. But as for the second verse, it speaks about man who misguides others. He himself is misguided and his misguidance extends to others. Therefore, he bears his own burden and the burden of the one whom he has misguided without true knowledge.'

Scholars have differed in their opinions about His saying: 'man will only have what he has worked towards.' (an-Najm: 39) Some of them have said that man has nothing except what he sends before himself of good deeds, and that no one can benefit from the deeds of anyone else. Others have said that man can indeed benefit from the deeds of another. In our history and in the transmitted practice of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him we find that which supports this view. On our part, we give preference to the second opinion. This is because striving refers to an unrestricted endeavour in view of a specific goal. Now, this endeavour may have an evil end, such as the one who strives for corruption and injustice on the earth. It may be towards a laudable end, such as the one who strives for the betterment of the universe and its probity.

Striving differs according to the capacity of the one who is striving, and the extent his faith in the precepts of his religion and his homeland is. Hence, you have one person who strives for himself and gives no thought except to his own interest. But there is another person who strives for his family, another who strives for his country, and a third who strives to help the entire world. In this regard, a poet once said:

In accordance with the capacity of those of firm resolve comes the accomplishment of challenging endeavours
And in accordance with the capacity of those of magnanimity arise deeds of noble generosity.

Hence, it is said: 'Unto men belong loci (awtan) which vary according to the differences of their zealous ambitions.' Thus, for one man, his locus is himself; for another man, his locus is his family. For a third, his locus is his homeland; for a fourth, his locus is the entire world. This latter pertains to the philosophy of faith that urges the believer to go beyond his own benefit, extending to all people even the disbelievers among them.

With this philosophy and with this ideal, a man will be useful to others. The proofs of this opinion are numerous. Was Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him not sent to the whole world? Are the Mercy and Grace of Allah not shown to both believer and unbeliever like? Did Allah not say to him peace and blessings be upon him: ‘And [thus, O Prophet,] We have sent thee as [an evidence of Our] grace towards all the worlds’ (al-Anbiya’: 107)?

A manifestation of His Mercy unto those who stand awaiting judgment in the Hereafter is that He intervenes on their behalf by expediting the final reckoning for them. This is because they find themselves in a situation in which they yearn for departure, even if it be to hellfire. Furthermore, the intercession of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him includes interceding for those monotheists who committed sins and who have entered the fire. Is this not benefitting from the deeds of someone else?

Moreover, does Islam not command us to pray for the dead? If prayer for the dead were of no benefit to the deceased, this would be frivolous. Evidence of this is found in the fact that we petition Allah on his behalf in this prayer, and this is a benefit. But the counter opinion argues: ‘But do we pray over every deceased person? We pray over a deceased Muslim. Hence, the benefit comes from his being a Muslim, and his Islam is what avails him.’

To this, we say: ‘Take into consideration another proof which is clear in His the Almighty saying: ‘And as for those who have attained to faith and whose offspring will have followed them in faith, We shall unite them with their offspring; and We shall not let aught of their deeds go to waste…’ (at-Tur: 21). Does, therefore, offspring not derive benefit from the uprightness of their parents?’ But they retort: ‘They are availed by their uprightness because they have borne the burden of this uprightness in this world, and therefore Allah compensates them for what they have been deprived of in the Hereafter.’ This is to say that the righteous man who is intent upon eating and drinking only what is lawful undoubtedly oppresses his children. This is in contrast to the one who romps about through the length and breadth of this world without any concern for the issue of what is lawful and what is forbidden. This latter man’s children will be in a better condition in terms of food, drink, and clothing, and so forth. But the man who is pious and upright, his children will receive blessings of the Hereafter as compensation for what they have endured in this world.

In addition, it is related(1) about Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him that he once passed by a man who was praying alone. So, he said: 'Is there no man who will offer charity to this one?' In other words, is there no man to pray with him in order for him to receive the reward of praying in congregation? Is this not benefitting from the deeds of someone else?

When Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him refrained from praying over a deceased person who was in debt(2), his abstaining was for the benefit of the deceased. The deceased actually derived benefit from this abstention: Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him refrained from praying over him because he wanted to urge people to settle their debts: 'Whoever obtains people’s money with the desire to pay it back, Allah will settle the debt for him...'(3) It seems that this deceased person died, while he owed a debt which he was unable of repaying. Therefore, he peace and blessings be upon him wished to provoke the sentiments towards goodness in the souls of the Companions so that they would take the initiative of repaying the debt of their comrade. When he peace and blessings be upon him said: 'Go ahead and pray over your Companion', Abu Qatada stood up and said: ‘I will repay his debt for him, O Messenger of Allah.’ Thereupon, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him led the funeral prayer over him(4). Is this not deriving benefit from the deeds of others?

(2) Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him used to be brought a deceased man who was in debt, so he would ask: 'Did he leave behind anything to settle his debt?' If it were said that he left enough behind to repay it, he would pray over him. But if not, he would say: 'Go ahead and pray over your comrade.' But after Allah had granted him conquests, he said: 'I am more duty-bound for the believers than they are for themselves. Hence, whoever dies while he owes a debt, it is my responsibility to repay it, and whoever leaves behind wealth or property, these are for his heirs.' This Hadith was narrated by Muslim in his Sahih, no. (3040).

(3) This Hadith is narrated by Al-Bukhari in his Sahih no. (2212) and by Ahmad in his Musnad no. (8378, 9039) as related by Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him.

(4) It is related by Salama ibn Al-Akwaʿ Allah be pleased with him who said: 'We were sitting in the presence of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him when there came a funeral procession, and people asked him to pray over it. Thereupon he asked: 'Did =

In order for us to settle this dispute and solve this controversy, we say: If we carefully examine the verse: ‘That man will only have what he has worked towards.’ (an-Najm: 39) We will find that it supports our opinion. Here, the initial preposition li of the Arabic phrase li-l-insan, translated as ‘accounted unto man’, is, as stated by grammarians, to indicate possession or control. This is such as when you say: ‘Zayd has nothing belonging to him in my possession except for ten. This is the actual truth.’

Hence, Allah the Almighty mentioned justice, but did not mention magnanimity or gracious favour. Now, when you yourself go into a restaurant, for example, in order to eat lunch, as you are on the point of leaving, you ask the waiter: ‘How much is the bill?’ He then says: ‘Such-and-such amount.’ Whereupon you tell him: ‘Here, take this and keep the change for yourself.’ This is what transpires between people in affairs of this insignificant world. Therefore, how would you imagine things to be in affairs of religion and ordained law? If this is your own generous giving, then how would it be with Allah’s Generous Giving?

With respect to His saying: ‘That his labor will be seen.’ (an-Najm: 40), which literally means ‘his striving will be seen,’ this striving is not neglected just like that without comment or consequences. Nay, indeed, it will be monitored and perceived, as He the Almighty says: ‘And say [unto them, O Prophet]: “Act! And Allah will behold your deeds, and [so will] His Apostle, and the believers…’ (at-Tawba: 105).

In the verse under study, the Arabic word sawfa, translated as ‘in time... will’, denotes the future. Hence, your striving does dissolve into nothing; rather, your deeds in this world will be perceived by Allah and Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and the believers. In other words, in the Hereafter, where you shall receive a suitable recompense, not a reward based upon simple justice, but rather, a reward based on overflowing magnanimity.

= he leave any debt unpaid?' They said, ‘No.’ Then he asked: 'Then did he leave anything of an estate?' They said, ‘No.’ So he prayed over him. Then a second funeral procession came, and people said, ‘O Messenger of Allah, lead the funeral prayer for it.’ He asked: 'Did he leave any debt unpaid?' It was said, ‘Yes.’ Then he asked: 'Did he leave behind any estate?' They said, ‘Three Dinars.’ So, he presided over the funeral prayer. Then a third funeral procession came, and the people asked him to pray over it. He then asked: 'Did he leave behind any estate?' They said, ‘No.’ Then, he asked: 'Did he leave behind any unpaid debt?' They replied, ‘Three Dinars.’ Thereupon, he said pray over your comrade’s funeral.' At this point, Abu Qatada said, ‘Pray over him, O Messenger of Allah, and I will repay his debt.’ So, then, he prayed over him.' ---This Hadith is narrated by Al-Bukhari in his Sahih, no. (2127, 2131); Abu Dawud narrated a similar Hadith in his Sunnan, no. (2902) and so did At-Tirmidhi in his Sunnan, no. (989).

In this context, consider the verse: ‘and that in the end he will be repaid in full for it’ (an-Najm: 41). Here, He did not say: ‘the most equitable requital’, but rather, requital with augmentation, gracious generosity, and incentives. As for the saying of Allah: ‘...repaid in full for it’ (an-Najm: 41), the Arabic word al-awfa, translated as ‘in full’, is in the superlative form which indicates supplemental augmentation. He the Almighty then says:

وَأَنَّ إِلَىٰ رَبِّكَ ٱلْمُنتَهَىٰ ﴿٤٢﴾

‘That the final goal is your Lord’[42]

Unto your Lord is the return, and unto your Lord is the proceeding and ultimate end. The verse is phrased concisely through placing the predicate of the nominal clause before the clause itself, meaning literally: ‘unto your Lord is the ultimate end –or utmost limit’. Unto your Lord alone, apart from anyone or anything else, do all things eventually end up in the Hereafter? Thus, this world is not the final course, and it is not the final goal. This reason confirms this matter before the ordained law. For, if this world were the ultimate goal and the final end, then good fortune would belong to those who pursue their lustful desires and to those who commit injustice and transgressions. This is because, in such circumstances, they would have actualised that which they wanted in this world, and would have enjoyed life in it to its fullest extent, thereby having attained the pleasures of this world. For this they would not be punished or called to account.

Hence, reason says: ‘Nay, there must be a day for reckoning and requital, as justice requires this.’ If only people grasped this verse with certainty and understood this significance, their affairs would be set in order, and a person would think carefully a thousand and one times before he set about disobeying Allah or doing wrong to his fellow men. Moreover, he would take account of this ultimate end (al-muntaha) unto which he will inevitably terminate.’

This verse also indicates that while the servant is created by his Lord with free will—to believe or disbelieve, to obey or disobey—, there is nevertheless another domain comprised of coercion in which he has no freedom of choice.

To wit, do you have a choice in your being wealthy or impoverished; healthy or sick, or in the matter of your living or dying?

Thus, to whatever degree you are free and possessed of self-determination, you cannot dispense with your Lord, and you have no refuge other than Him. Therefore, do not rebel against Him through disobedience because your ultimate end is unto Him in the Hereafter for settling of accounts. In addition, your ultimate recourse in the affairs of your worldly life is also unto Him alone, for you are in the grasp of His All-Powerful decree and cannot evade it.

In the light of this, can the one who rebel against the ordained path of Allah rebel against sickness if it afflicts him? Can he fend off the angel of death if his time of death comes? Thus, you have your ultimate end in this world before the ultimate end of the Hereafter.

Subsequently, Allah the Almighty says(1):

وَأَنَّهُۥ هُوَ أَضْحَكَ وَأَبْكَىٰ ﴿٤٣﴾ وَأَنَّهُۥ هُوَ أَمَاتَ وَأَحْيَا ﴿٤٤﴾
وَأَنَّهُۥ خَلَقَ ٱلزَّوْجَيْنِ ٱلذَّكَرَ وَٱلْأُنثَىٰ ﴿٤٥﴾ مِن نُّطْفَةٍ إِذَا تُمْنَىٰ ﴿٤٦﴾

That it is He who makes people laugh and weep; [43] that it is He who gives death and life; [44] that He Himself created the two sexes, male and female, [45] from an ejected drop of sperm [46] (The Quran, an-Najm: 43 - 46)

Concerning His saying: 'That it is He who makes people laugh and weep' (an-Najm: 43), it signifies that He created laughter and weeping in you, causing you be happy and sad. Hence, for example, when you watch a comic work, you laugh. It is the comedy which provoked laughter in you. However, it did not bring forth in you the inborn disposition to laughter. For this reason, in light of what this activity comprises of uncertainty regarding shared association, Allah the Almighty affirms His Singular, Unique role in the act. Hence, none but Him intervenes with it. This verse opens with the Arabic emphatic phrase wa-anna-hu huwa, translated as 'and that it is He who…', in which the attached relative pronoun hu is reaffirmed by the second relative pronoun huwa which is unattached, thus it is He alone Who makes you laugh. In other words, He created in you this natural disposition, and provides you with the aptitude for it.

(1) See Al-Wahidi An-Naysaburi, Asbab An-Nuzul p. 227; he cites a Hadith related by ʿAʾisha Allah be pleased with him who said: 'Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him once passed by a group of people who were laughing, and so he told them: 'If you knew what I know, you would weep much and laugh little.' Thereupon, Gabriel peace be upon him revealed unto him His saying: '...and that it is He alone Who causes [you] to laugh and to weep.' (an-Najm: 43) So he returned unto them and said: 'I did not take forty paces, but that Gabriel peace be upon him came to me and said, 'Go back to those people and tell them that Allah the Almighty says: '...and that it is He alone Who causes [you] to laugh and to weep.' (an-Najm: 43)

Consequently, we find that sentiments and emotions and innate phenomenon in mankind are of a unified nature in all languages, and among all peoples with all their differences. There does not exist, for example, an Arab laugh or an English or German one. There is not a Russian manner of weeping or a Japanese one.

In these aspects, people are alike. Even in terms of gestures, we find that they are unanimous in spite of the differences of languages. Everyone comprehends them because they are the basis of mutual understanding between human beings even before the existence of languages. Gestures constitute the global language.

Similarly, with regard to His saying: '...that it is He who gives death and life' (an-Najm: 44), the attached relative pronoun inna-hu reconfirms the unattached pronoun huwa. This is because the matter of giving life and causing death comprises a kind of shared association. Thus, some may think that the physician, for example, is the one who causes the sick person to die or to live, or one may think that the murderer is the one who kills the slain person.

Thus, Allah the Almighty claims exclusivity for Himself in these matters which pertain to Him alone apart from anyone but Him. Hence, He says: 'that it is He who gives death and life' (an-Najm: 44). The reality is that when the slain is killed, it is not the murderer who causes him to die; rather, it is his pre-ordained time of death that has come, coinciding with this blow and, so he dies. He dies because he was predestined to die at that moment, even if the killer had not smitten him.

For this reason, He the Almighty says in another verse: ‘He who has created death as well as life…’ (al-Mulk: 2) Hence, Allah created death and life by Himself, and no one else has anything to do with either of them. Thus, a poet once said:

Whoever does not die by the sword dies in another manner
The causes are numerous and diverse, but death is one.

It is also said: ‘In the case of death without causes, death itself is the cause.’ That is to say, a person died because he was destined to die.

There follows His saying: ‘That He Himself created the two sexes, male and female’ (an-Najm: 45). It is noteworthy here that He the Almighty did not say: wa anna-hu huwa, as in the previous verses where He repeats the relative pronoun to reaffirm that it is Him alone. This is because the phenomenon in question does not call for this emphasis, since the matter of all of creation is rendered unto Allah. No one has ever claimed it for himself, and there is no possible ambiguity of partnership with respect to creation. Concerning the meaning of the Arabic word az-zawjayn, translated as ‘the two exes’, it refers to the two genders of male and female. The word az-zawj signifies an individual along with another one of his kind, as occurs in His saying: ‘…eight pairs [of livestock], from among sheep one pair...’ (al-An‘am: 143).

The following verse reads: ‘From an ejected drop of sperm’ (an-Najm: 46); this is a reference to the fact that the basis of creation is a dribble of semen (nutfa) which is a drop of sperm. Concerning His saying, ‘…an ejected drop of sperm.’ (an-Najm: 46), it refers to the sperm which is ejaculated into the womb of the woman and from which the foetus is created by the Power of Allah.

This verse solves a controversy for us which has long been the object of dispute among scholars. There are those who believe that the woman is the one who is responsible for determining the gender of offspring, male or female. However, when we read: ‘That He Himself created the two sexes, male and female, [45] from an ejected drop of sperm [46]’ (an-Najm: 45-46), we know with certainty that the man himself is the one who is responsible for this matter. This is because the word an-nutfa refers to the sperm of the man which he ejects into the womb of his wife. Hence, the wife looks like the ground which grows what is planted in it.

Furthermore, we say that the Arab woman has arrived at this truth by means of her nature and innate disposition. Thus, a woman whose husband married another because she only gave birth to daughters said:

What is wrong with Abu Hamza that he does not come unto us
He remains in the dwelling which is next to ours
Angry that we do not bear sons for us
By Allah, this is not in our hands
We are like the earth with respect to its sower
We give them the like of which we have received.

Hence, the Arab woman by means of her primordial nature has come to the same conclusion which scientists have arrived at recently. It is necessary to differentiate between an-nutfa and al-mani: the former is the fluid in which the seminal organisms live; whereas the latter refers to the microorganism or sperm itself which results in a child.

May Allah have mercy on Al-ʿAqqad (1) who once said: ‘Verily, half a tailor’s thimble contains the offspring of the whole world, and it is possible to fill half a tailor’s thimble with a single ejaculation of man.’ Exalted be Allah!

Allah the Almighty then says:

وَأَنَّ عَلَيْهِ ٱلنَّشْأَةَ ٱلْأُخْرَىٰ ﴿٤٧﴾ وَأَنَّهُۥ هُوَ أَغْنَىٰ وَأَقْنَىٰ ﴿٤٨﴾ وَأَنَّهُۥ هُوَ رَبُّ ٱلشِّعْرَىٰ ﴿٤٩﴾

That He will undertake the second Creation [47] that it is He who gives wealth and possessions [48] that He is the Lord of Sirius [49] (The Quran, an-Najm: 47 - 49)

In other words, He the Almighty says: ‘do not think that this world is itself the ultimate end of the journey because the One Who brought you all forth in this world is fully-capable of bringing you back in a second creation on the

(1) His full name is ʿAbbas Mahmud Al-ʿAqqad. He was born in June 28, 1889 CE in Aswan and completed primary school in the year 1903 CE. He was an avid reader in a wide range of fields, and served in clerical positions in a number of provinces. Then he directed himself towards work in journalism, in particular with the newspaper Sahifat Ad-Dustur. He engaged in literary disputes with Zaki Mubarak, Ar-Rafiʿi, and Bint Ash-Shatiʾ. He died in the year 1964 CE at the age of 76 years.

Day of Resurrection. As He the Almighty says in another verse: "Could We, then, be [thought of as being] worn out by the first creation? Nay – but some people are [still] lost in doubt about [the possibility of] a new creation!" (Qaf: 15)'

The new creation will be in the Hereafter when Allah revives the dead, for the One Who created at the beginning from nothing is all the more fully capable of restoration from the remnants of the first creation. Therefore, He the Almighty says: 'Well do We know how the earth consumes their bodies, for with Us is a record unfailing.' (Qaf: 4)

There follows the verse: 'That it is He Who gives wealth and possessions.' (an-Najm: 48) Here, let us take note of the specification and affirmation expressed by the repetition of the unattached relative pronoun huwa after the attached relative pronoun inna-hu. This indicates to us that the question of sustenance, wealth, and poverty belongs to Allah alone, with no one else having anything to do with it. It is He the Almighty alone Who channels means of sustenance, and renders this person wealthy and that one impoverished.

Hence, as for the doubt of the possibility of someone sharing in this question with Allah, this verse occurs in this manner of expression. Just consider the verse which comes before it: 'That He will undertake the second Creation' (an-Najm: 47); it is phrased in the same way without the supplementary relative pronoun of huwa. This is because the issue of the second creation bears no ambiguity of there being a possible partner in actualising it.

With respect to the Arabic word aghna 'free from want', it signifies that He relieves you of need, O you servant, by means of that which He has granted you possession over apart from what is owned by others. Thus, the Arabic word al-ghina refers to everything which spares you from dependency upon people in terms of wealth, strength and such things. As for the Arabic word aqna 'causes to possess', it means that He has satisfied you and gratified you by means of what you possess, regardless of how little it is.

There are many people whose means of sustenance are constrained, yet you find them content with what Allah endowed them with, indeed happy with it. It may be that they are in a better state than the wealthy people. Hence, this wealth is a gift, and this contentment is also a gift. Contentment and satisfaction are tantamount to wealth and plenitude of life. In this vein it is said(1): 'Contentment is a treasure which never runs out.' On the other hand, the treasure of money and possession may well run out. Hence, true wealth and self-sufficiency, then, are relating to the soul and not to the material things. It has also been said that the Arabic word aqna, translated as ‘causes to possess’, is related to property (qinya) which is to say: that which a person acquires of possessions, furnishings and the like.

Concerning the next verse: 'that He is the Lord of Sirius' (an-Najm: 49), the final word ash-shiʿra(2) is one of the celestial bodies. It is said that it is one of the massive stars inasmuch as it is compounded of a million suns like our sun, and that if it were to come near to the earth, the earth would burn up. It is as if this gigantic star supplied heat to the sun, which in turn provides us with heat. Thus, we do not take from it directly as with an electrical current.

If we were to acquire power for our homes from high voltage transformers, the appliances and light bulbs in the house would burn up. This is because the weak is not able to receive directly from the strong; indeed, it is necessary to utilise a regulator or transformer. And such is the sun with respect to ash-shiʿra.

Allah the Almighty then says:

وَأَنَّهُۥٓ أَهۡلَكَ عَادًا ٱلۡأُولَىٰ ﴿٥٠﴾ وَثَمُودَاْ فَمَآ أَبۡقَىٰ ﴿٥١﴾
وَقَوۡمَ نُوحٖ مِّن قَبۡلُۖ إِنَّهُمۡ كَانُواْ هُمۡ أَظۡلَمَ وَأَطۡغَىٰ ﴿٥٢﴾

That it was He who destroyed, in their entirety, ancient 'Ad [50] and Thamud [51] and before them the people of Noah who were even more unjust and insolent [52]
(The Quran, an-Najm: 50 - 52)

It is well known that ʿAd are the people of Prophet Hud peace be upon him and that Allah annihilated them with a tempestuous, raging wind when they gave the lie to their Prophet. The Arabic phrase ʿAd al-ula ‘the ancient [tribes of] ʿAd’, signifies that besides this earlier or initial people, there was also a subsequent or second people called ʿAd. It is said that when this wind came down upon them, it wiped out those of them who existed at this locality where the punishment was unleashed upon them. In addition, there were among them scattered groups who gathered and sought refuge in a safe place. These then went to Mecca and they constituted the latter people of ʿAd.

(1) See As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur (2/232); Al-Bayhaqi attributes it to Jabir ibn ʿAbdullah Allah be pleased with him although there are some questions regarding the soundness of the chain of narrations.

(2) Ash-shiʿra is the name of two stars; one of them is the Northern Sirius which is the brightest star of the Lesser Dog Constellation, located eleven million light years away from the earth. There is also a Southern Sirius in the Greater Dog Constellation which is closer to the earth than the Northern Sirius; it is eight light years away from the earth. This information is taken from Al-Mawsuʿat Al-Falakiya, p. 229, published by Al-Hayʾat Al- Misriyat Al-ʿAmma li-l-Kitab.

There follows the verse: ‘and Thamud’ (an-Najm: 51). Thus, just as He annihilated ʿAd, He annihilated Thamud by means of a tremendous cry. The saying of Allah: ‘and Thamud’ (an-Najm: 51) means that not one of them survived. Similarly, with respect to the initial passage of the following verse: ‘And before them the people of Noah who were even more unjust and insolent’ (an-Najm: 52), it clearly indicated that Allah destroyed them. Subsequently, He distinguishes them from those mentioned previously with two attributes: ‘who were even more unjust and insolent’ (an-Najm: 52). Hence, wrongdoing and arrogant tyranny were prevailing among ʿAd and Thamud; however, the people of Nuh peace be upon him were even more excessive in their wrongdoing, and even more oppressively haughty. As evidence of this, it suffices to recall that their Prophet remained among them for nine hundred and fifty years, and only a few of them followed him in faith.

Allah the Almighty then says:

وَٱلۡمُؤۡتَفِكَةَ أَهۡوَىٰ ﴿٥٣﴾ فَغَشَّىٰهَا مَا غَشَّىٰ ﴿٥٤﴾

That it was He who brought down the ruined cities [53] and enveloped them in the punishment He ordained for them? [54] (The Quran, an-Najm: 53 - 54)

The Arabic word al-muʾtafika ‘the ruined cities’ is conjoined to ʿAd, Thamud and the people of Nuh. It refers to the townships of the people of Lut peace be upon him which were called al-muʾtafika because Allah the Almighty reversed (kafaʾa) them head over heels causing their elevated portions to become their lowest portions. It is for this reason that we use the word ifk meaning calumny or slander, to refer to a lie since it turns truths upside down. In this same sense, we have the incident of slander (hadithat al-ifk) in which our Mother ʿAʾisha Allah be pleased with her has been falsely and wrongly accused of fornication.

With regard to the Arabic word ahwa ‘He thrust into perdition’, this means that these townships tumbled down (hawat) and collapsed. This is because the angels raised them up to the clouds of the sky and then flipped them over upon all who were in them. There follows the verse: ‘and enveloped them in the punishment He ordained for them’ (an-Najm: 54) signifying that He descended upon them, encompassed them or covered them. The verse comprises the phrase ma ghashsha, loosely translated as ‘forever’, in which the particle ma is expressive of wonderment and incredulity, indicating great quantity which exceeds description. In other words, they were overcome by a terrifyingly amazing phenomenon and a horrifying spectre. Indeed, this is true because Allah the Almighty combined against the people of Lut peace be upon him various kinds of punishment at the same time, or sequentially one after the other. In this respect, He said: ‘And so, when Our judgment came to pass…’ (Hud: 82), that is to say, regarding your annihilation, ‘…We turned those [sinful towns] upside down, and rained down upon them stone-hard blows of chastisement pre-ordained, one upon another, [82] marked out in thy Sustainer’s sight [for the punishment of such as are lost in sin]. And these [blows of Allah-willed doom] are never far from evildoers! [83]’ (Hud: 82-83) The Arabic word musawwama in the last verse, translated as ‘marked out’ means labelled, with each stone bearing the name of the one it was meant for, and not striking anyone but him. These are like the stones which He rained down upon the companions of the elephant: ‘Thus, He let loose upon them great swarms of flying creatures [3] which smote them with stone-hard blows of chastisement pre-ordained [4]’ (al-Fil: 3-4).

Allah the Almighty then says:

فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكَ تَتَمَارَىٰ ٥٥

Which then of your Lord’s blessings do you deny? [55] (The Quran, an-Najm: 55)

Allah the Almighty comforts His Messenger peace and blessings be upon him and reassures Him of Allah’s backing and support for him and for the conveyance of the Message. The time-honoured practice of Allah with respect to His Messages is that the matter ends in the triumph of the truth, with the proofs still visible and tangible of the annihilation of those who denied the truth. Thus, He the Almighty said: ‘and, verily, [to this day] you pass by the remnants of their dwellings at morning-time [137] and by night. Will you not, then, use your reason? [138]’ (an-Najm: 137-138) Their ruins are still extant and you see them by day and at night.

Returning to the verse under study, He the Almighty says to His Prophet peace and blessings be upon him: ‘Which then of your Lord’s blessings do you deny?' (an-Najm: 55) In other words: with respect to which favour of your Lord, O Muhammad, do you remain in doubt? The Arabic word al-miraʾ, derived from the same semantic root as the final verb of the verse, means doubt or dispute. It is as if He the Almighty is telling him: ‘Rest assured, for Allah will fulfil His favour unto you.’

A similar expression is found in the chapter of ar-Rahman: ‘Which, then, of your Sustainer’s powers can you disavow?’ (ar-Rahman: 13) Here the discourse is directed towards men and Jinn. When Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him recited it, he said: 'I have already recited the chapter of ar-Rahman to your brothers from among the Jinn, and they were better in their affirmative response than you. When they heard ‘Which, then, of your Sustainer’s powers can you disavow?’ (ar-Rahman: 13) they immediately replied, ‘O, our Lord, of your gracious favours we do not deny a single one, for unto you all grateful praise is due.’'(1).

Hence, it is legitimate to react with emotions when we hear the Quran with what is appropriate to the situation. When there is mention of thankful praise (al-hamd), we give thankful praise to Allah; when mention is made of exaltation, we say ‘Exalted be Allah (subhana Allah)’; when mention of paradise is made, we supplicate Allah to bless us with it; and when mention of hellfire is made, we seek refuge in Allah from it, and so forth.

(1) See Al-Bayhaqi, Dalaʾil An-Nubuwwa no. (532) as related by Jabir ibn ʿAbdullah Allah be pleased with him; it was also narrated by At-Tirmidhi in his Sunnan no. (3291). It is cited by As-Suyuti in Ad-Durr Al-Manthur who attributes it to Al-Bazzar, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Mundhir, Ad-Daraqutni, Ibn Mardawayh, and Al-Khatib with a sound chain of narration as related by Ibn ʿUmar Allah be pleased with him.

There is a difference between silent wonderment suppressed in the soul, and voiced wonderment expressed openly. Moreover, when you give expression to your interaction with the Quran in words, the power of this affects the one who hears you.

With regard to the opening phrase of the verse under study, fa-bi-ayyi-alaʾ, translated interpretively as, ‘which, then, of...powers’, the word ayyi (which) is indicative of copiousness or varied multiplicity. As for the Arabic word alaʾ, translated as ‘powers’, this signifies gracious favours and is the plural of alan, that is to say blessing. Concerning the final verb of the verse, tatamara ‘can you disavow’, it is derived from the same semantic root as al-miraʾ which refers to dispute. This latter occurs between two parties with each of them striving to establish definitive evidence against the other. In linguistic usage the word al-miraʾ is taken to mean two things. The first is related to the twisting (marw) of a cord or rope, this is to say, braiding it in order to strengthen it, with the number of threads braided depending upon the intended function of the cord or rope. Another meaning derives from milking a she-camel (yamri an-naqa); in other words, to draw milk from it and bring forth everything it its udder.

Hence, it means that you wrangle in order to strengthen your argument, or you wrangle (tujadil; a word related to jadala which can also signify twisting or plaiting a rope) in order to draw out everything that is contained in the cartridge of the opponent.

هَٰذَا نَذِيرٌ مِّنَ ٱلنُّذُرِ ٱلْأُولَىٰٓ ﴿٥٦﴾ أَزِفَتِ ٱلْءَازِفَةُ ﴿٥٧﴾ لَيْسَ لَهَا مِن دُونِ ٱللَّهِ كَاشِفَةٌ ﴿٥٨﴾

This is a warning just like the warnings sent in former times [56]
The imminent Hour draws near [57] and only God can disclose it [58] (The Quran, an-Najm: 56 - 58)

Concerning the initial word of the first verse above, it consists of the demonstrative pronoun hadha, not translated here but meaning ‘this’, it refers to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and his Message. This is followed by the Arabic word an-Nadheer, translated as ‘warning’ but also meaning ‘warner’, is the one who warns people and cautions them of evil before its time of occurrence. In the passage: ‘…a warning just like the warnings sent in former times.' (an-Najm: 56), the phrase an-nudhur al-ula, signifies those who passed away before Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him of the procession of previous messengers. The tremendous stature of the Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him with regard to his function of solemn harbinger lies in his being the final warner and the culminating seal of all messengers.

There follows His utterance: 'The imminent Hour draws near' (an-Najm: 57). In other words, the Final Hour is approaching. Thus, it is as if he peace and blessings be upon him appeared on the cusp of the Final Hour since immediately after the verse speaking of him as a warner He followed it with: 'The imminent Hour draws near' (an-Najm: 57). It is for this reason that a Noble Hadith states: 'I was sent as an Envoy, with me and the Final Hour being like these two' and he held up his index finger and middle finger.'(1) Thus, His mission is counted among the signs of the impending Final Hour.

His Lord has addressed him with His utterance: '[But] how could you tell anything about it' (an-Nazi'at: 43), which is to say: about the Final Hour and its signs? But in as much as its time has drawn near and come close, you better take heed, for this is the last of the messages. Therefore, attach yourself to it and adhere to this culminating Messenger and final warner after whom there will be no warner for you to gain salvation through.

We grasp from the connotation of the Arabic verb azifat translated as 'draws ever nearer' that the Final Hour is approaching, and that the Final Hour itself which is striving towards you, seeking you with urgent steps, hastening towards you. Not long after this, in al-Qamar chapter, He will state: 'The Last Hour draws near…' (al-Qamar: 1).

The next verse under study reads: 'and only Allah can disclose it' (an-Najm: 58). In other words, when the horrors of the Last Hour arise, there will be no one except Allah capable of dispelling or controlling it. In the accidents of this world and the mishaps of life, there may be someone who can relieve you of calamity or protect you from evil. However, in the Hereafter, that is the place of truly momentous happenings, where no one has the power to hinder them. How could anyone repel it, for this is the day of the mighty overwhelming disaster which universally affects everyone—how could someone shield you, while he cannot even defend himself against it?

(1) See Al-Bukhari, his Sahih, no. (4889); see also Muslim, Sahih, no. (5244) as related by Sahl ibn Sa'd As-Sa'idi Allah be pleased with him.

Therefore, prepare yourselves for this situation, and acquire for yourselves protective force from Allah, for it is He alone, without any partner, is the All-Capable of protecting you on this day. There is nothing strange about this impending event which draws ever nearer and the approaching of the Final Hour given the fact that in the actual reality of life some of its minor signs, about which Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him has prophesied to us, have already appeared. Among these is the existence of women in Muslim society bedecked, naked, bent over, tilting their heads like the slumping backs of hybrid camels.(1)

Other signs of the Last Hour include his statement 'When authority is entrusted to those not worthy of it, then expect the Final Hour.'(2) Similarly, there is His utterance: '[When you witness] the self-satisfaction of every opinion-holder with his own opinion.'(3) Also: '...if you witness barefoot, naked sheep-herders constructing towering buildings.'(4) These are in addition to other prophetic sayings regarding the signs of the Final Hour which we have witnessed in actuality. Why, then, should there be such astonishment with respect to this matter?

This was narrated by At-Tabarani in Al-Muʿjam Al-Kabir (18033), by Al-Bayhaqi in Shuʿab Al-Iman, no. (9397), and by Ibn Hibban in his Sahih, no. (386).*

Allah the Almighty says:

أَفَمِنْ هَٰذَا ٱلْحَدِيثِ تَعْجَبُونَ ﴿٥٩﴾ وَتَضْحَكُونَ وَلَا تَبْكُونَ ﴿٦٠﴾
وَأَنتُمْ سَٰمِدُونَ ﴿٦١﴾ فَٱسْجُدُوا۟ لِلَّهِ وَٱعْبُدُوا۟ ﴿٦٢﴾

Do you [people] marvel at this? [59] Why do you laugh instead of weeping? [60] Why do you pay no heed? [61] Bow down before God and worship [62] (The Quran, an-Najm: 59 - 62)

The interrogative particle at the beginning of the first verse is to express amazement, for they were bewildered by '…marvel at this…' (an-Najm: 59). This is to say, by the Quran, which, in turn, expresses bewilderment at them. It says to them: 'Are you astonished and perplexed at the Quran? It would be more fitting for you to be bewildered and amazed at your own state, and what you are engrossed in of distracting pastimes, heedlessness, and aversion to the truth. This will cause you to miss an opportunity, and will deprive you of abundant benefit.'

This same notion is contained in the verse: 'Why do you laugh instead of weeping?' (an-Najm: 60) You laugh out of scorn and mockery, but it would have been more fitting for you to weep over yourselves and over that which has passed you by of goodly benefit. The next verse continues: 'Why do you pay no heed?' (an-Najm: 61), in other words, engaged in idle distractions and heedlessly negligent.

This is the state of those whose hearts have grown hard, and whom Satan and the sensual soul have vanquished. Besides their aversion to the truth, you see them deriding those who follow it sincerely and laughing contemptuously at them. As He the Almighty says in depicting this situation: 'Behold, those who have abandoned themselves to sin…' (al-Mutaffifin: 29), whom he has called criminal sinners (al-muijrimun), '…are wont to laugh at such as have attained to faith; [29] and whenever they pass by them, they wink at one another [derisively]; [30] and whenever they return to people of their own kind, they return full of jests; [31] and whenever they see those [who believe,] they say, "Behold, these [people] have indeed gone astray!" [32] And, withal, they have no call to watch over [the beliefs of] others. [33]' (al-Mutaffifin: 29-33).

Yes indeed; this is the state of the adherents of vain falsehood who invert truths in this world. But this world is not the ultimate goal, and not the termination of the course of existence, for there is another day in which those who do wrong are separated from those who are wronged. As it is said: 'In Allah's presence are assembled all antagonists.'

Allah reassures the adherents of faith saying: 'But on the Day [of Judgment]' (al-Mutaffifin: 34), that is, on the Day of Reckoning, '…they who had attained to faith will [be able to] laugh at the [erstwhile] deniers of the truth' (al-Mutaffifin: 34) and the one who laughs last, laughs much'[for, resting in paradise] on couches, they will look on [and say to themselves]: [35] "Are these deniers of the truth being [thus] requited for [aught but] what they were wont to do?" [36]' (al-Mutaffifin: 35-36) At this juncture, we will say: 'Yes, O Lord, you have requited them with what they deserved.'

The chapter then ends with His utterance: 'Bow down before Allah and worship' (an-Najm: 62) Him. We note here, firstly, the concise manner of expression of Quranic wording which leaves space for acquired acumen. The obvious meaning is: 'Then prostrates yourselves to Allah and worship Allah since He alone merits worship without any partners ascribed with Him. Thus, the matter of worship is directed towards none save Him even if the one worshipped the Almighty is not specifically referred to.

When Allah the Almighty orders them to prostrate, submit and obey, it is as if he were saying to them: 'You had all the more reason to weep, to show humility and to beseech in supplication, you should have clung steadfastly to this truth which came to you, so that it might assist you, for it is the rope of salvation which you cannot encounter with derisive ridicule.

Here it is noteworthy that at the end of the chapter comes the command to prostrate: 'Bow down before Allah and worship' (an-Najm: 62) Him. It is as if Allah is reaching out in compassion to his servants, even to the disbelievers, telling them: 'O My servants, you are My handiwork and My dependents, so come forth to My domain. Stop arguing and bickering, and submit to me through prostration and worship, for I wish only the best for you.' Is there any craftsman who wishes ill to his handiwork? For this reason in a Qudsi Hadith, we find: 'O Son of Adam, I am full of love for you, hence, by my due right over you, be full of love for me.'(1)

Unto Allah belongs the most sublime parable; Can you imagine if there were a rich man whom Allah had given plentiful means, and he had a son who was dissolute and so he called after him saying: ‘O my son, come and take advantage of my wealth, since you are the more entitled to it’? In a similar manner, Allah the Almighty calls to those who are outside the bounds of his ordained path: ‘Come hither, copious good awaits you.’

Now, while the command found in: ‘Bow down before Allah and worship’ Him (an-Najm: 62) is meant for the disbelievers, yet it is also directed at the believers: ‘Prostrate in gratitude to Allah who has guided you to faith and has saved you from disbelief.’

He says that this saying is mentioned in certain scriptures revealed to the prophets. It is also mentioned by Isma'il Haqqi in his Tafsir and attributed it to Ka'b Al-Ahbar from the Torah.*

al-Qamar

In the Name of God, the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of al-Qamar(1) (The Moon):

اقْتَرَبَتِ ٱلسَّاعَةُ وَٱنشَقَّ ٱلْقَمَرُ ﴿١﴾

The Hour draws near; the moon is split in two [1] (The Quran, al-Qamar: 1)

'The Hour' is one of the names of the Day of Resurrection, which is known as the Hour, the Reality, the Cry, the Event, the Calamity, and other names besides this. All of these names convey a sense of fear and alarm.

We can observe how the ending of the chapter of an-Najm correlates to the beginning of the chapter of al-Qamar, for He said there: 'The Hour draws near; the moon is split in two' (al-Qamar: 1), and He says here: 'The Hour draws near…' (al-Qamar: 1). As we said, the very arrival of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was one of the signs of the Last Hour, for we know that the Hour will only rise upon the most evil of men, when no one remains who says, 'Allah, Allah.'(2)

As for those who have lain in their graves from the time of Prophet Adam peace be upon him and all who will die before the Last Hour, we said that time is stopped for them because time is a locus for events, and therefore those who experience no events experience no time. Therefore, Allah says of them: '…On the Day when they behold it…' (al-Hujurat: 46), i.e. the Resurrection,

(1) The chapter of al-Qamar is number 54 in the written order of the Quran. The majority consider it to have been revealed in the Meccan period. It was revealed between the chapters of at-Tariq and Sad, and was thus the 37th chapter to be revealed.

(2) See Muslim, Sahih, no. (3550), on the authority of 'Abdullah ibn 'Amr ibn Al-'As Allah be pleased with him.

'[it will seem to them] as if they had tarried [in this world] no longer than one evening or [one night, ending with] its morn.' (an-Nazi'at: 46) Allah caused the man who argued with Ibrahim peace be upon him about his Lord to die for one hundred years and then raised him to life, whereupon he said: '…I have remained thus a day, or part of a day…' (al-Baqara: 259).

The People of the Cave said the same after having been asleep for three hundred and nine years because this is as long as a person usually spends asleep. The time spent in the isthmus-world of the grave will be the same, and it will be as though they just fell asleep for a while, and then woke up.

Now Allah the Almighty is the Owner of time, and He is The Withholder and The Out spreader: He withholds from whom He wills and outspreads for whom He wills.

The meaning of 'The Hour draws near' is that it is close to you on a personal level, so do not wait for the minor signs of it to come, and then the major signs, saying, 'There is still a lot of time between us and the Resurrection'; for this is not how the Resurrection should be envisaged.

For a man's resurrection comes when he dies, and not after thousands of millions of years, as Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: 'When a person dies, his resurrection has come.'(1) Indeed this is true, for he moves on from the realm of this worldly life to the realm of the Hereafter, and his worldly works all come to an end. Allah kept the time of death unknown to us all so that we would remember it at all times.

He says: 'The Hour draws near; the moon is split in two' (al-Qamar: 1). The splitting of the moon was a cosmological sign affirmed by The Quran and the Sunna, and it is related that the moon split for Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him so that the cave of Hira' could be seen between the two halves;(2) and this sign was witnessed by all those at the time who were able to see it, and they witnessed it just like that.

We do not say that the whole world saw it, for the purpose of cosmological miracles is to support the messengers, and prove that they are truly sent by Allah.

(1) Narrated by Ad-Daylimi on the authority of Anas Allah be pleased with him; there is some doubt as to whether it is a Hadith or a saying of one of the early Muslims

(2) Narrated by Al-Bukhari, no. (3579) on the authority of Anas Allah be pleased with him

It was not necessary that everyone alive at the time saw this sign – and how could this be, when even now with the amazing progress of science and the abundant means of communication, we hear about solar or lunar eclipses at certain times, and the television channels show them, yet despite the advanced reports only a few people are able to see them? The moon is a phenomenon of night at a time when most people are sleeping.

Moreover, the cosmological signs and miracles given to the messengers are not intended to be eternal miracles, but rather, each miracle is meant only for those who witness it, to strengthen their faith if they are already believers, or to bring them to faith in Allah if they are disbelievers.

Therefore, they say that a miracle is like a matchstick: it can only be lit once and this is the case with all the miracles of the messengers. Had The Quran not told us of the staff of Musa peace be upon him we would not know anything about it.

These cosmological signs break the laws of nature the moment they occur, and then things go back to how they were. The moon split, for instance, and its natural state was altered, and then it returned to its previous state after it had been seen by the disbelievers of Mecca who gave the lie to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him – not all the disbelievers, but only some of them, for those of them who saw the miracle were enough to affirm it.

They say that the meaning of ‘The Hour draws near’ is that the hour of every man’s death, and his appointed time, is near to him, ‘and the moon is split on two’ meaning that he will split away from his life and leave it behind. As long as Allah said ‘draws near’, this means that it truly has drawn near, and you do not need to look into this fact any further.

Allah the Almighty also said: ‘Allah’s judgment is [bound to] come: do not, therefore, call for its speedy advent…’ (an-Nahl: 1). He said that it was ‘come’ in the past tense, as though it has already happened – but then how could He then say ‘do not, therefore, call for its speedy advent’? The scholars say that it is because Allah is The One Who said ‘come’, and no one can object to Him or prevent Him from bringing His words into fruition.

The same is the case when He says ‘The Hour draws near’, for it has truly drawn near, whether it means the Last Hour of every person which comes at the moment of his death, which is near, or it means the Last Hour at the end of time, which is also near, for the splitting of the moon and the coming of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him were among its heralds.

It is narrated that the disbelievers said to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him ‘If you were telling the truth, bring forth a sign now that could prove that you are truthful.’ They were al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira, Abu Jahl ibn Hisham, Al-'As ibn Wa'il, Al-'As ibn Rabi'a, Al-Aswad ibn 'Abd Yaghuth, Al-Aswad ibn 'Abd Al-Muttalib, Rabi'a ibn Al-Aswad and An-Nadr ibn Al-Harith.

All of those men and others witnessed this event-taking place. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him called upon and beseeched his Lord and the moon split into two halves, one half above the mountain of Abu Qabis and the other half above Qaynuqa' so that the cave of Hira' was visible between them. When the disbelievers saw that, they called it sorcery, while the people of intelligence said, 'We shall ask the people travelling in the desert far from this place.' On asking them, some were positive about it and others said that they did not see it. 'Ali peace be upon him observed that the splitting of the moon was a night sign, so some people saw it, whilst others, indeed most, did not.

On examining the verses that are concerned with the Last Hour and the signs that shall herald it, we read: ‘When the sun is covered. And when the stars darken’ (at-Takwir: 1-2). We read many other verses that depict for us how these beings will meet destruction. However, Allah says nothing about the moon except: ‘So when the sight becomes dazed. And the moon becomes dark.’ (al-Qiyama: 7-8) The darkening of the moon is lesser and lighter than the shrouding of the sun.

We understand from this that the worldly event of the moon's splitting will be counted for it in the Hereafter and thereby the moon will not endure what will happen to the other celestial bodies. Therefore Allah Glorified is He says: ‘And the trumpet shall be blown, so all those that are in the heavens and all those that are in the earth shall swoon, except such as Allah please.’ (az-Zumar: 68) This implies that certain beings will be spared.

Similarly, when the Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him depicted the events of the Resurrection, he said, ‘When I shall awake, I shall find my brother Musa (Moses) holding on to the frame of the Throne.' This means that Musa will not swoon as others. That is why the Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was amazed at this.(1)

Prophet Muhammad clarified that Musa peace be upon him already swooned in this world when he was on the mount as Allah says: ‘but when his Lord manifested His glory to the mountain He made it crumble and Musa fell down in a swoon.’ (al-A‘raf: 143) Allah Glorified is He would not cause His Prophet Musa to swoon twice. Since he already swooned in this world, he will be saved from swooning in the Hereafter. And that is the exception meant by the verse: ‘except such as Allah please.’ (az-Zumar: 68)

The same is the case of the moon, i.e. the splitting was real and a cosmological sign which changed the moon from its natural and usual state; and thereby the moon will not be subject to the same destruction which other celestial bodies face in the Hereafter.

وَإِن يَرَوْا۟ ءَايَةً يُعْرِضُوا۟ وَيَقُولُوا۟ سِحْرٌ مُّسْتَمِرٌّ ٢

Whenever the disbelievers see a sign, they turn away and say, ‘Same old sorcery!’ [2] (The Quran, al-Qamar: 2)

The word aya (sign) here means an amazing and incredible thing of huge impact, the like of which people have never seen. It means a cosmological sign as is the case when He says, ‘…and He has made the sun and the moon subservient…’ (az-Zumar: 5), and when He says: ‘And amongst His signs are the night and the day…’ (Fussilat: 37).

Although these signs are clear proof of Allah’s Power and the obligation to have faith in Him and believe His Messenger, Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him), they reacted to them by turning aside and ignoring them: ‘whenever the disbelievers see a sign, they turn away…’ (al-Qamar: 2). They turned away from the sign which they suggested and demanded from the Messenger of Allah, Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him even when it came to them as plain as dawn. This shows how they were too haughty to accept the truth and how they stubbornly resisted the Messenger of Allah, Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him despite the clarity of the sign. Their intense stubbornness and hatred of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him blinded them to the truth.

(1) Narrated by Al-Bukhari and Muslim

It is enough here for us to mention(1) the stance taken by his uncle Abu Lahab who had been happy to see two of his sons marry two of Muhammad's daughters. Yet, when Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him began his call and enmity broke out between him and his uncle, Abu Lahab could not bear to see his sons married to Muhammad's daughters and made them divorce them.

This in itself did not anger the Messenger of Allah, Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him but what angered him was that one of these two sons(2) passed him by and then spat towards him. The Messenger peace and blessings be upon him supplicated against him, 'May one of Allah's hounds devour you!'(3)

When Abu Lahab heard that the Messenger of Allah, Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him had supplicated against his son with these words, he became fearful because in the depths of his soul he knew that his nephew was on the truth. When it was time for his son to set out with the trade caravan, Abu Lahab told his son's companions not to leave him alone by saying, 'When you make camp, put my son in the middle of you, for I fear for him because of what Muhammad has invoked against him.' Indeed, one night during the journey a lion came to him and ate him before their eyes.

(1) This is the story of Abu Lahab and his two sons with the Prophet and the latter's accursing the son of Abu Lahab.

(2) His name may have been Lahab, 'Utba or 'Utayba, according to Al-Bayhaqi Dala'il An-Nubuwwa, Vol. 2, p. 338.

(3) Al-Bayhaqi narrated in Dala'il An-Nubuwwa 623 that after the sons of Abu Lahab divorced the daughters of the Messenger of Allah, Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him one of the sons 'Utayba came to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and said, 'I disbelieve in your religion, and I have forsaken your daughter. You love me not, nor do I love you.' He then rushed at the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him and tore his shirt. The Messenger of Allah, Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him then said, 'Behold, I implore Allah to unleash His hounds upon you!' 'Urwa ibn Al-Zubayr said that a lion came to them that night and then went again, so they slept, and then the lion came back and pounced upon them, seizing 'Utayba's head in its jaws and crushing it.

What is strange here is that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘One of Allah’s hounds’, but it was a lion. They explain that this is because when a hound is ascribed to Allah, it must surely be a lion. So, this was another sign which came to this very same stubborn opponent and which was not far from him; yet, he did not believe and his heart did not soften to the call of the truth which came to him from his nephew.

Out of His Mercy to this community, Allah Glorified is He did not destroy those of them who denied His Message, nor did He wipe them out as He did with the communities who came before them. The people of 'Isa (Jesus) peace be upon him asked him to supplicate to Allah and so he said, ‘Lord, send down to us a feast from heaven so that we can have a festival—the first and last of us…’ (al-Ma‘ida: 114). This was a tangible sign which they suggested, and Allah the Almighty responded to them thus: ‘I will send it down to you, but anyone who disbelieves after this will be punished with a punishment that I will not inflict on anyone else in the world.’ (al-Ma‘ida: 115)

Likewise, the people of Saleh (Shelah) peace be upon him hamstrung the she-camel, and Allah Glorified is He says of them: ‘and then they hamstrung the camel. They defied their Lord's commandment and said, "Saleh (Shelah), bring down the punishment you threaten, if you really are a messenger!" An earthquake seized them; by the next morning they were lying dead in their homes.’ (al-A‘raf: 77-78)

As for the community of Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him the True Lord the Most High did not treat them in this way; rather, He said: ‘But Allah would not send them punishment while you [Prophet] are in their midst, nor would He punish them if they sought forgiveness.’ (al-Anfal: 33)

His Words, ‘Whenever the disbelievers see a sign, they turn away…’ (al-Qamar: 2), mean that they saw it with their own eyes in reality, so how could they deny it? Scholars say that they did so due to their stubbornness and persistent denial because they thought that Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him wanted to gain something for himself through his call such as fame and power amongst his people, as well as to exalt himself on earth.

This is why, when they sent their delegation to Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him they said, ‘O, Muhammad, if you want dominion, we shall make you our king, and if you want wealth, we shall gather wealth for you until you are the richest one of us', and so on. So, he said to his uncle his famous words, 'By Allah, uncle, were they to put the sun in my right hand and the moon in my left, that I leave this affair, I would not leave it, until Allah makes it ascendant or I die before that.'(1) They did not stop at merely turning away and denying, but they went as far as reviling and insulting.

They '…turn away and say, "An ever-recurring delusion!"' (al-Qamar: 2) This accusation was ever levelled at the messengers peace be upon them and the deniers ever resorted to it throughout history. After these people witnessed the splitting of the moon, their sick natures refused to acknowledge the truth, and so they levelled accusations at it instead. What did they say? They said, 'An ever-recurring delusion!' (al-Qamar: 2); what this means is a constant(2) one, as though Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him were bringing them a series of acts of sorcery, one after another. As we said previously, this is a false and base accusation, for which the only rebuttal needed is that if Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him were a sorcerer, why did he not bewitch you as well as he bewitched those who believe in him?

It is obvious that sorcery is only a trick of the eyes, and is not real as Allah Glorified is He says, '…and they did, casting a spell on people's eyes…' (al-A'raf: 116), and He says: '…through their sorcery, their ropes and staffs seemed to him to be moving.' (Ta Ha: 66) Concerning the signs which Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him brought, they were real, and they all had proofs which those people knew and recognised.

وَكَذَّبُوا۟ وَٱتَّبَعُوٓا۟ أَهْوَآءَهُمْ ۚ وَكُلُّ أَمْرٍ مُّسْتَقِرٌّ ﴿٣﴾

They reject the truth and follow their own desires — everything is recorded [3] (The Quran, al-Qamar: 3)

The meaning of kadhdhabu ('they reject the truth') is that they denied the clear signs; al-kadhib means one speaking words which contradict reality, and it is blameworthy according to all. These people denied the truth through stubbornness and deference to their desires: '…and follow their own desires…' (al-Qamar: 3).

(1) Narrated by Al-Bayahqi in Dala'il An-Nubuwwa 495, Ibn Kathir in As-Sira Vol. 1, p. 474, and As-Suhayli in Ar-Rawd Al-Anf Vol. 2, p. 6

(2) Ibn Al-Jawzi narrates three possible meanings of 'ever-recurring' mustamirr in this verse: The first is 'passing', as in 'impermanent' from marra, 'to pass'; the second is 'powerful' from Al-marra, meaning 'power'; and the third is 'constant'.

Desires, then, incite them to deny to the truth in order to obtain what they desired. Desires never call one to goodness, but they call one only to evil and destruction as Allah Glorified is He says: '…those who follow their own low desires, those whose ways are unbridled.' (al-Kahf: 28) Also, the True Lord the Most High says of them: '…These people merely follow guesswork and the whims of their souls…' (an-Najm: 23). The desire of the soul controls them and governs their actions.

Allah Glorified is He says: '…everything is recorded.' (al-Qamar: 3) Everything, whether it be disbelief or faith, obedience or disobedience, always comes to a goal which is set and known unto Allah the Almighty. Allah the Exalted knows all things from pre-eternity. Before any event occurs, He knows it, and the inscribing angels have recorded it.

When the True Lord the Most High ordained the disbelief of a disbeliever, He did not force him to disbelieve but gave him the choice; however, due to His pre-eternal knowledge, He wrote down what he would do. This is part of His Magnificence and the absolute encompassment of His Knowledge over all that was, all that is and all that is not.

We spoke of this matter before when discussing His Words: 'May the hands of Abu Lahab be ruined! May he be ruined too! Neither his wealth nor his gains will help him. He will burn in the Flaming Fire and so will his wife, the firewood-carrier, with a palm-fibre rope around her neck.' (al-Masad: 1-5)

These verses were revealed and recited for Abu Lahab to hear, and he was still in the life of this world and the realm of free will(1); he could have denied these verses by claiming to have entered Islam, even falsely. Yet, he did not do so, for he could not even do this; Allah's decree came to pass both for him and for his wife. Why is this? The reason is due to Allah's Decree that cannot be resisted by anyone, and no one can amend what He ordains.

(1) Abu Lahab lived another 15 years after these ayat (verses) were revealed.

This is the meaning of '…everything is recorded.' (al-Qamar: 3) Indeed, everything must do so because it is firmly set in Allah's Knowledge. Do not trouble yourself, then, Muhammad, and do not wear yourself out by preaching to these people. All you have to do is convey the message; as for faith and disbelief, it is already known to Allah the Almighty that this one will believe and take a place in paradise, whilst that one will disbelieve and take a place in hell.

Thus, the desire of these deniers would not ever change from this set position because it was a truth and a reality inscribed in the Preserved Tablet in the Mother of all Books, which no one can change.

Allah Glorified is He says:

وَلَقَدْ جَآءَهُم مِّنَ ٱلْأَنۢبَآءِ مَا فِيهِ مُزْدَجَرٌ ﴿٤﴾
حِكْمَةٌۢ بَٰلِغَةٌۖ فَمَا تُغْنِ ٱلنُّذُرُ ﴿٥﴾

Although warning tales that should have restrained them have come down to them [4] far-reaching wisdom — but these warnings do not help [5] (The Quran, al-Qamar: 4 - 5)

These verses speak about the deniers from amongst the disbelievers of Mecca and how Allah the Exalted gave them tidings of the nations who came before them and how they brought destruction and death down upon themselves by lying about their messengers peace be upon them. Indeed, the remnants of these nations still existed so that they could see them when they passed by them: 'You [people] pass by their ruins morning and night. Will you not take heed?' (as-Saffat: 137-138) He also says: 'And surely it is on a road that still abides.' (al-Hijr: 76) This means that these remains still existed on roads which were still travelled and known to them, which they often traversed. Muqim (still abides), and also yuqim mean to confirm signs.

The word Al-anba' (narratives) (al-Qamar: 4) literally means news. Its singular is naba' which is an important piece of news that should inspire one to take admonition and to pay heed to its lessons. These narratives included what they had been told about concerning the Ad, Thamud, the people of Lot, the Ahqaf, and so on.

The meaning of '…wherein is prevention…' (al-Qamar: 4) is that they were given admonitions and lessons in the stories of such nations who had come before them and had denied so that Allah the Almighty destroyed them; this should have restrained them from falling into the very same denial and rejection of the call to the truth. 'Far-reaching wisdom' (al-Qamar: 5) means to put things in their proper places, and 'far-reaching' means that which reaches its ultimate goal so that nothing could be wiser than it, for wisdom differs according to the minds which bring it.

So, people are described with the level of wisdom which is appropriate to their minds, and the True Lord possesses the ultimate wisdom. This is akin to what we said about the attributes of being a creator: man may be described by this attribute when he invents something which did not exist before; he is then a creator, and Allah Glorified is He is the best of creators.

If you like, read what He says about the story of how adoption was prohibited, which concerned the relationship between the Messenger of Allah, Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and Zayd ibn Haritha Allah be pleased with him when Allah Glorified is He says: 'Name your adopted sons after their real fathers; this is more equitable in the sight of Allah…' (al-Ahzab: 5).

When Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him adopted Zayd, this was equitable and just, but Allah's verdict was even more equitable and just. What our master, the Messenger of Allah, Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him did was equitable in human terms, and it was an honour for the one who preferred him to his own father and family; however, what Allah the Exalted decreed that people should be named after their real fathers was even more equitable. This is because it gives the true father his right since he was the direct means of life and existence for the child; furthermore, by valuing the father, we value the Lord, Creator and Originator of all.

Therefore, the True Lord the Most High made a link between worshipping Him and treating parents well by saying more than once: 'Worship Allah; join nothing with Him. Be good to your parents…' (an-Nisa': 36); He also says: 'Your Lord has commanded that you should worship none but Him and that you be kind to your parents…' (al-Isra': 23). Therefore, to dishonour parents is a grave sin,⁽¹⁾ and it is a sin which spreads throughout the entire body as we explained before.

Concerning His Words '…but these warnings do not help.' (al-Qamar: 5), they say that nudhur (warnings) in this verse means the messengers who warned and alerted them of the punishment and consequence of denying; this would make nudhur in this verse the plural of nadheer, which means 'warner'. This indicates that they did not benefit from these warnings, and the calls of the messengers did not affect them.

Then, the True Lord the Most High says:

فَتَوَلَّ عَنْهُمْ يَوْمَ يَدْعُ ٱلدَّاعِ إِلَىٰ شَىْءٍ نُّكُرٍ ۝٦

So [Prophet] turn away from them. On the Day the Summoner will summon them to a horrific event [6]
(The Quran, al-Qamar: 6)

The commandment in this verse is being issued to our master the Messenger of Allah, Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him: '…turn thou away from them…' (al-Qamar: 6). Turn from them and bid them farewell as He says elsewhere: 'So, [O, Prophet] ignore those who turn away from Our revelation, who want only the life of this world.' (an-Najm: 29) This means they will never believe.

His Words '…On the Day the Summoner will summon them to something that the mind cannot conceive' (al-Qamar: 6) allude to the second blowing of

(1) 'Abdullah ibn 'Umar Allah be pleased with him narrated that a Bedouin came to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and said, 'O, Messenger of Allah, what are the grave sins?' He said, 'To associate partners with Allah.' He said, 'Then what?' He (Prophet Muhammad) peace and blessings be upon him said, 'To dishonour one's parents.' He said, 'Then what?' He (Prophet Muhammad) peace and blessings be upon him said, 'The disastrous oath.' He said, 'What is the disastrous oath?' He said, 'It is to swear falsely to obtain the property of a Muslim.' Narrated by Al-Bukhari 6409... Ahmad 7609 narrated on the authority of 'Abdullah ibn 'Amr Allah be pleased with him that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'The gravest of the grave sins is to dishonour one's parents.' He was asked what this means, and answered, 'A man curses a man, so the latter curses the former's father, and he curses his mother, so he curses his mother (in return).'

the trumpet whereupon all mankind will rise for the Lord of the worlds, and the meaning of ‘something that the mind cannot conceive’ is something unknown to the people, something whose horror and awfulness is beyond their ken so that the soul cannot conceive of it.

We may ask what the connection between ‘turn away from them…’ and ‘…On the Day the Summoner will summon’ (al-Qamar: 6) is. Scholars say that this means for the Prophet to turn away from them now and not to say anything to them about this Day; others say it means for the Prophet to turn away from them and not to intercede for them on that Day.

Then, the True Lord the Most High says:

خُشَّعًا أَبْصَٰرُهُمْ يَخْرُجُونَ مِنَ ٱلْأَجْدَاثِ كَأَنَّهُمْ جَرَادٌ مُّنتَشِرٌ ٧
مُّهْطِعِينَ إِلَى ٱلدَّاعِ ۖ يَقُولُ ٱلْكَٰفِرُونَ هَٰذَا يَوْمٌ عَسِرٌ ٨

Eyes downcast, they will come out of their graves like swarming locusts [7] rushing towards the Summoner.
The disbelievers will cry, ‘This is a stern day!’ [8]
(The Quran, al-Qamar: 7-8)

These verses are connected to what the Almighty says before: ‘…On the Day the Summoner will summon them to something that the mind cannot conceive’ (al-Qamar: 6); on that Day, these deniers will have ‘eyes downcast’ (al-Qamar: 7).

Allah the Exalted describes in this verse what their state will be on the Day when the Summoner will summon them, and they will come forth, ‘…come out of their graves…’ (al-Qamar: 7), in a state of humility and abasement; their eyes will be cast downwards looking to the ground, none of them having the power to look upwards.

So, the movement of the eyes in order to see has significance and reactions, and the movement of the eyes is connected to the state of its owner. The people of truth will have eyes which are strong and bold, whilst the people of falsehood will have eyes which are abased and humiliated. This is why we criticise the people of falsehood when they are proud of their falsehood, and we say, ‘So-and-so said such-and-such with eyes like daggers’; indeed, this is said because the liar contradicted the nature of the situation in which he finds himself.

His Words '…like swarming locusts' (al-Qamar: 7) mean that when they come forth from their graves, they will come forth scattered like locusts; this describes their multitudes and how they will disperse here and there. Imagine if we were to examine any settled place and consider how many will have been buried there, generation after generation from the time of Adam peace be upon him until the Day of Resurrection; how many graves will there be?

Notice that the verb yakhrujun (come out) (al-Qamar: 7) is in the active voice; He did not say yukhrajun (brought out) in the passive voice. This means that they will come out of the graves as though they are doing so out of their own volition, all at once, after the second trumpet blast awakens them by Allah's Leave, and they will rise and come forth.

His Word muhti'in (rushing towards the Summoner) (al-Qamar: 8) means rushing swiftly; for in such a situation, who could be slow or tardy? The muhti' is the one who stretches his neck forward as he walks so he goes faster. Reflect on the state of these people in the life of this world and how they were governed by arrogance, haughtiness and stubbornness which took them far away from the straight path; yet, now they come forth humiliated and abased, rushing to the destination to which they had always denied, like a criminal being taken to his punishment.

Because of this, He then says: '…The disbelievers will cry, "This is a stern day!"' (al-Qamar: 8) He specifies that it will solely be disbelievers who will say this, and indeed, it will be a sorely calamitous day, for there will be no way to avoid it or escape it, along with there being no way to be protected from it or succoured against it. How could they have any escape or succour when the deities (gods) they worshipped instead of Allah, thinking they would intercede for them, will enter hell before them?

Allah Glorified is He says about Pharaoh: 'He will be at the forefront of his people on the Day of Resurrection, leading them down towards the Fire. What a foul drinking place to be led to!' (Hud: 98) This will cause them to despair and lose all hope.

The discourse now moves away from the Quraysh, and Allah tells them about the deniers of another nation, specifically the people of our master Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him. Allah Glorified is He says:

كَذَّبَتۡ قَبۡلَهُمۡ قَوۡمُ نُوحٖ فَكَذَّبُواْ عَبۡدَنَا وَقَالُواْ مَجۡنُونٞ وَٱزۡدُجِرَ ٩

The people of Noah rejected the truth before them: they rejected Our servant, saying, 'He is mad!' Noah was rebuked [9] (The Quran, al-Qamar: 9)

It is as though Allah were saying to the idolaters of Mecca, 'You are not so far from the fate which met other people who denied, for you have not stopped at denying alone but have assaulted the Messenger of Allah, Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in every manner and way; you have assaulted him with words and deeds, openly and plainly, and when this did not avail you, you assaulted him with plots and devious schemes. More than this, you even sought the aid of jinn to assault him, working sorcery upon him.(1) You tried to kill him with poison but could not.(2) Thus, give yourselves a break, for the call of Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him will continue on its way, and nothing will hold it back; therefore, stop trying to impede it, and the people of Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him are not so distant from you.

'The people of Nuh (Noah) rejected the truth before them…' (al-Qamar: 9); thus, take admonition from them. He begins with the people of Nuh (Noah) in this verse because our master Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was sent to all mankind for all times and places, while our master Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him was sent to his own people, and the breadth of his Message was restricted to them alone, and was not for all times and places; then after this his Message was restricted to the people who boarded the Ark. Moreover, our master Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him spent nine hundred and fifty years making his call, so the denial which occurred in his story is plain to see. He tried every way possible to reach them, but they did not believe; thus, Allah the Almighty made them an example and an admonition for the deniers who came after them.

(1) It is narrated that 'A'isha Allah be pleased with her said, 'A man of Banu Zurayq named Labid ibn Al-A'sam worked sorcery on Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him so that he (the Prophet) would imagine he had done something when he actually had not.' Narrated by Al-Bukhari 5321, 3524, 5912 and Muslim 4059

(2) Anas ibn Malik related that a Jewess gave Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him a poisoned sheep, and he ate from it. She was brought forth, and it was said, 'Shall we not kill her?' He said, 'No.' Anas said, 'And ever after I could see the effect of it on the Messenger of Allah's peace and blessings be upon him throat.' Narrated by Al-Bukhari 2424 and Muslim 4060

See how this verse mentions how they denied their prophet twice: ‘The people of Nuh (Noah) rejected the truth before them…’ and ‘…they rejected Our servant…’ (al-Qamar: 9). So, their denial went beyond all denial, and this is why Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him lived longer than any other messenger, for his call lasted longer than any other call.

When Allah Glorified is He says, ‘Our servant’, in this verse, He means our master Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him; it is an honour for him that Allah the Exalted called him ‘Our servant’, which is akin to what Allah says about the ascension of our master Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him: ‘Glory to Him who made His servant travel by night…’ (al-Isra’: 1).

Therefore, sincerity in servitude brings about the gifts of Lordship. We said before that servitude to human beings is demeaning, whilst servitude to Allah is noble and honourable. When a person is servant to another human being, he gives his goodness to his master; however, when a person is a servant to Allah the Almighty he takes the goodness of his Master. It is thus a kind of ‘servitude of sovereignty’.

They did not stop at merely denying Allah’s prophet Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him but they went as far as assaulting him: ‘…saying, "He is mad!"’ (al-Qamar: 9) They accused him of being mad, which, as we said, is a foolish and easily rebutted accusation; furthermore, if it were to prove anything at all, it would only prove the stupidity and intellectual bankruptcy of such people.

Wa izdujir (was rebuked) (al-Qamar: 9) appears in the verse; it means that they rebuked him and prevented him from completing his call and delivering his message.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

فَدَعَا رَبَّهُۥٓ أَنِّي مَغۡلُوبٞ فَٱنتَصِرۡ (١٠) فَفَتَحۡنَآ أَبۡوَٰبَ ٱلسَّمَآءِ بِمَآءٖ مُّنۡهَمِرٖ (١١) وَفَجَّرۡنَا
ٱلۡأَرۡضَ عُيُونٗا فَٱلۡتَقَى ٱلۡمَآءُ عَلَىٰٓ أَمۡرٖ قَدۡ قُدِرَ (١٢) وَحَمَلۡنَٰهُ عَلَىٰ ذَاتِ أَلۡوَٰحٖ وَدُسُرٖ (١٣)
تَجۡرِي بِأَعۡيُنِنَا جَزَآءٗ لِّمَن كَانَ كُفِرَ (١٤)

And so he called upon his Lord, 'I am defeated: help me!' [10] So We opened the gates of the sky with torrential water [11] burst the earth with gushing springs: the waters met for a preordained purpose [12] We carried him along on a vessel of planks and nails [13] that floated under Our watchful eye, a reward for the one who had been rejected [14]
(The Quran, al-Qamar: 10 - 14)

After all this patience on the part of our master Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him only a few of the people believed in him, which caused him to feel despair that they would never be guided: 'and so he called upon his Lord, "I am defeated. Help me!"' (al-Qamar: 10) What this means is for Allah to succour him against them because he does not have the power to face them alone. To 'come to someone's succour' means to claim the right for him which he cannot claim for himself. This is why Allah Glorified is He says that disbelievers '…have no one to help them' (ar-Rum: 29); they cannot succour themselves, nor find anyone else to succour them.

When Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him made this supplication, Allah Glorified is He responded: 'So, We opened the gates of the sky'; this refers to the clouds: '…with torrential water' (al-Qamar: 11). Thus, the heavy fall of rain 'burst the earth with gushing springs…' so that many springs of water gushed forth from the ground, and so 'the waters met', the water of the sky from above and the water of the ground from below '…for a preordained purpose' (al-Qamar: 12). Therefore, it was something which Allah the Almighty had decreed and ordained, which was namely the destruction of these deniers and the survival of the believers. This was pre-ordained, which means before time began.

Elsewhere in the Quran the details of this story are given. Before water fell upon them from, the sky and springs gushed forth from the earth, Nuh's (Noah's) Lord commanded him to build the Ark: 'Build the Ark under Our [watchful] eyes and with Our inspiration…' (Hud: 37); thus, it was the first ship ever to be built on earth, and people knew nothing about this. So, Allah the Most High taught him how to build it.

It is said that Allah the Almighty gave him the first clue as to how to build it by showing him the trunks of trees floating on the surface of the water and not sinking; this has its own law pertaining to size and volume. When Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him saw this phenomenon, he was inspired to gather the trunks and bind them together with rope. Then, he was inspired with the concept of nails.

In this verse, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘We carried him along on a vessel of planks and nails’ (al-Qamar: 13); this refers to the Ark. The word dusur means nails which hold planks of wood together. Once he had built the Ark, ‘…We opened the gates of the sky with torrential water.’ (al-Qamar: 11)

His Words ‘floated under Our watchful eye…’ (al-Qamar: 14) mean that the Ark floated on the surface of the water ‘under Our watchful eye’, namely by Allah's power and under His care, His protection and His observance. This is akin to what Allah the Exalted says to our master Musa (Moses) peace be upon him: ‘…planned that you should be reared under My watchful eye.’ (Ta Ha: 39) Were it not for Allah’s protective care, the Ark would not have settled above those billows.

His Words ‘…a reward for the one who had been rejected’ (al-Qamar: 14) mean that the Ark, the destruction of the disbelievers and the survival of the believers were all a reward for Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him whose people had disbelieved in him and denied him. He is the one who was rejected, or was disbelieved, and his reward and that of those who believed with him was that Allah the Exalted saved him and those who believed in him.

This could also mean ‘a recompense for those who disbelieved,’(1) which means how they were punished by drowning.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

(1) Al-Qurṭubi states in his exegesis Vol. 9, p. 6533 that some early Muslims read the verse in this way with kafar ‘who rejected’ rather than kufir ‘who had been rejected’.

وَلَقَد تَّرَكۡنَٰهَآ ءَايَةٗ فَهَلۡ مِن مُّدَّكِرٖ ﴿١٥﴾ فَكَيۡفَ كَانَ عَذَابِي وَنُذُرِ ﴿١٦﴾

We have left this as a sign: will anyone take heed? [15] How [terrible] was My punishment and [the fulfilment of] My warnings! [16] (The Quran, al-Qamar: 15 - 16)

These words pertain to the Ark: 'We have left this as a sign…' (al-Qamar: 15); what this means is that it is a lesson and an admonition to the people who came after Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him? Scholars say that this may mean that Allah left it as a story which would be read in a preserved Book until the Day of Resurrection, namely the Quran; furthermore, the Quran would continue to tell the story to people as the ages pass so that they might take admonition from it.

It may also mean that Allah Glorified is He caused the Ark itself to remain a sign in the place where it berthed after the waters subsided, namely Mount Judi,(1) about which Allah Glorified is He says: '…The Ark settled on Mount Judi…' (Hud: 44). It is said that this mountain is in Turkey, and I think you have probably read articles about this which affirm that there are some signs in this region; this might be an indication from Allah the Almighty of this incredible sign by which He saved the believers and drowned the disbelievers. Since it is a sign which must be pondered and reflected on, Allah Glorified is He says: '…Will anyone take heed?' (al-Qamar: 15) This means who is willing to reflect on it, ponder it, and take admonition from it?

The discourse then returns to address our master Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him directly: 'How [terrible] was My punishment and [the fulfillment of] My warnings!' (al-Qamar: 16) This is a rhetorical use of a question to affirm a reality; the True Lord asks His Messenger, Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him: 'How [terrible] was My punishment and [the fulfillment of] My warnings!' (al-Qamar: 16); this indicates that there is a connection between the inflicting of suffering and warning.

(1) In southeastern Turkey near the borders with Iraq and Syria there are many indications that this is the right mountain, for the town and villages in the area are named after Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him; the nearest town to the north of the mountain is called 'The Town of the Eighty', which is the number of people who survived the flood with Nuh (Noah).

Allah the Almighty did not wrong them, nor take them to task without their being aware. Rather, He sent a warning to them—and what a warning—after a call which lasted nine hundred and fifty years, during which Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him warned them of the coming chastisement. It is as they say, ‘The one who is being warned has no excuse.’ When someone warns you, he removes your excuse, and you have no excuse after that.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

We have made it easy to learn lessons from the Quran: will anyone take heed? [17]
(The Quran, al-Qamar: 17)

The letter lam (la) in the word la-qad is used in Arabic for emphasis, and qad is used for establishing. The True Lord wants to emphasise this fact, which is that the Quran has been made easy: ‘We have made it easy to learn lessons from the Quran…’ (al-Qamar: 17). We have made it easy to read and recite; We have made it easy to listen to and We have made it easy to understand, to appreciate and enjoy and to which to react.

The Quran is the only book which you love more the more you repeat it, and it is one which you understand more, along with experience and discover more of its secrets. Its wonders never cease, and its gifts are never exhausted because they are the overflowing graces of the Speaker of this Quran.

Therefore, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said about the Quran, ‘Its wonder never ceases, and it does not grow stale after much repetition.’(1) This is because when you speak, you give your words as much meaning as your ability allows you to and as far as your literary and cerebral power allows you to; likewise, if the speaker is the True Lord, His gifts never cease. As long as what you have is ephemeral, whilst what Allah the Almighty has is everlasting, the Quran will remain fresh and keep on giving its abundant gifts to you until the Day of Resurrection.

(1) Narrated by At-Tirmidhi 2831 as part of a longer Hadith

Moreover, Allah's Speech is one of His Attributes, and the Attribute of the Perfect One is itself perfect. Therefore, He says about the Quran: 'which falsehood cannot touch from any angle, a Revelation sent down from the Wise One, Worthy of All Praise.' (Fussilat: 42) A poet said about the Quran:

All things are explained therein,

And every reciter of it takes from it as his mind allows.

For example, when you reflect upon Quranic explanations through the ages, you will find that it is incredible. Were explanations confined to any one person, the Messenger of Allah, Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to whom the Quran was revealed, would have been the only one fit to give explanation of it; however, he left this task to others.

Had Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him given explanations about the Quran, no one else would have been able to add anything to his, but he left it to the coming generations so that each generation could take from it according to its perception, its development, its inventions and discoveries, as well as the secrets it uncovered, as Allah Glorified is He says: 'We shall show them Our signs in every region of the earth and in themselves, until it becomes clear to them that this is the Truth…' (Fussilat: 53).

Had the Quran given all it had to give to the generation of the companions, for example, all the subsequent generations would not have anything else to take from it, but Allah the Exalted wants to keep on giving His gifts until the Day of Resurrection.

So, He says: 'We shall show them…' (Fussilat: 53); each generation reads these words in the future tense like this, regardless of how much they have taken from the Quran because they are taking from a spring which never stops flowing.

One aspect of this making the Quran easy to read is that both Arabs and non-Arabs can read the Quran; when you are in Al-Haram (the Holy Mosque) in Mecca, you are amazed to see many non-Arabs reciting the Quran, though they know not even a single sentence of Arabic; yet, they recite the Quran in Arabic with a proper Arab accent. Indeed, they make mistakes in it and find it difficult to read, but they would not go through all that hardship if they did not find sweetness in the experience.

Also, young children read it, and even memorise it at the age of seven; yet, if you were to give them any man-made book, they would not be able to memorise it.

All this is part of the meaning of His Words: ‘We have made it easy to learn lessons from the Quran…’ (al-Qamar: 17). Were it not for this Divinely decreed ease, the child whose mind is not yet fully developed would not be able to memorise it; yet, he memorises it even though he does not know what it means or understands its decrees.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him taught us that the Quran is not counted by sentences but is counted by letters, each letter having a secret and a gift to offer, and indeed even an angel assigned to it.(1) So, when you love to read the Quran, you love the angels of the True Lord; and when you need them, they come to you and aid you.

Test yourself with the Quran: when you read it with a longing and hope and then forget a letter or a word, when you repeat the foregoing part in your mind, it quickly comes to you because it loves you just as you love it. Is it like the servant who loves his master so that when he calls him, he rushes to him? You all know the Hadith, ‘…do not say that "alif-lam-mim" is a letter. Nay, "alif" is a letter, "lam" is a letter and "mim" is a letter.’(2)

Therefore, we have seen wonders during Noble Quran competitions held for children and youths and how they test seven hundred competitors in a limited amount of time. To do this, they employ artful questions by which you can test the competitor’s memorisation of the entire Quran with a single question. For example, one could say to him, ‘This is a reminder. Let whoever wishes take the way to his Lord’ (al-Muzzammil: 19), and ask him to read on. If he has really memorised everything, this boy will say, ‘From where should I read?’ This is because this sentence appears in more than one place.

(1) As narrated by At-Tirmidhi 2835 and Al-Bayhaqi in Shu‘ab Al-Iman 1928, on the authority of Ibn Mas‘ud.

(2) Ibn Mas‘ud Allah be pleased with him narrated that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘Whosoever reads a letter from the Book of Allah earns a good deed thereby, and good deeds are rewarded tenfold. I do not say that "alif-lam-mim" is a letter. Nay, "alif" is a letter, and "lam" is a letter, and "mim" is a letter.’ Narrated by At-Tirmidhi 2835 and Al-Bayhaqi in Shu‘ab Al-Iman 1928

There is a question which they framed as a verse of poetry:

How many times does the plural of nas appear in Allah's Book?

Qad, yawma nad'u, akhriju, wa anasi. (Arabic)

(What they are asking is how many times the word unas or anasi—both are plurals of nas, meaning people—occur in the Quran. The question is in the first line of the poem, and the answer is in the second):

These words refer to key words in the verses wherein this word is found, as follows:

'...Qad 'alima kullu unasin mashrabahum...' ('…and every people knew its watering place…') (al-Baqara: 60).

'Yawma nad'u kulla unasin bi imamihim...' ('The day when We will call every people with their record…') (al-Isra': 71).

Akhrijuhm min qaryatikum innahum unasun yatatahharun' ['…Turn them out of your town. Surely, they are a people who seek to purify (themselves).'] (al-A'raf: 82)

Akhriju al lutin mun qaryatikum innahum unasun yatatahharun' ['…Turn out Lut's (Lot's) followers from your town. Surely, they are a people who would keep pure!'] (an-Naml: 56).

Wanusqihi mimma khalaqna an'aman wa anasiyya kathiran' ('…and give it for drink, out of what We have created, to cattle and many people.') (al-Furqan: 49)

So, the second line of the poetry gives the answer to the question in the first line. Why is this? The reason is that it has been made easy: 'We have made it easy to learn lessons from the Quran…' (al-Qamar: 17).

He then says: '…Will anyone take heed?' (al-Qamar: 17) Since We have made this Quran easy for remembrance, will anyone take lessons and admonition from it, along with taking admonition from the signs it contains?

For whom the Quran has been made easy? Allah the Exalted has made the Quran easy for those who believe in the speaker of the Quran and who believe in Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to whom it was revealed. For there are those who hear the Quran and then ignore it and turn away, along with those who hear the Quran and mock it; the Quran has spoken about such people: ‘And there are those of them who seek to listen to you, until when they go forth from you, they say to those who have been given the knowledge, "What was it that he said just now?"…’ (Muhammad: 16) They say this by way of mocking and disparaging the Quran.

Allah Glorified is He also says: ‘…Say: It is to those who believe a guidance and a healing, and [as for] those who do not believe, there is a heaviness in their ears and it is obscure to them…’ (Fussilat: 44). The Quran is one, as we have said, but those who receive it vary.

This is why when Al-Walid calmed himself and wanted eagerly to listen, he received the Words of Allah in the best way, inclined towards it, and was moved by it. The Quran affected him when he was yet a disbeliever, and he said, ‘By Allah, I have heard a speech that is not sorcery, nor poetry, nor soothsaying. By Allah, the highest part of it is fruitful, and the lowest part of it is plentiful, and it is above all, and below nothing!’(1)

Reflect on the first impact the Quran had on this man’s soul, whilst he was yet a disbeliever and how he expressed it in this beautiful way, ‘The highest part of it is fruitful, and the lowest part of it is plentiful.’ He was comparing the Quran to a tree which is fruitful above and green and verdant from below; trees generally have their fruit at the top at a time when their lowest parts are covered with dry leaves which fall. As for the Quran, it is all good, and every single letter of it has gifts to give.

Then, the True Lord the Most High says:

(1) Narrated by Ibn Kathir in his Sira Vol. 1, p. 499, Ash-Shami in Subul Al-Huda wa Al-Irshad Vol. 9, p. 408, Al-Hakim 3831 and Al-Bayhaqi in Dala’il Al-Nubuwwa 505 and Shu‘ab Al-Iman 126, on the authority of Ibn ‘Abbas Allah be pleased with him.

كَذَّبَتْ عَادٌ فَكَيْفَ كَانَ عَذَابِي وَنُذُرِ ﴿١٨﴾ إِنَّا أَرْسَلْنَا عَلَيْهِمْ رِيحًا صَرْصَرًا فِي يَوْمِ نَحْسٍ
مُّسْتَمِرٍّ ﴿١٩﴾ تَنزِعُ ٱلنَّاسَ كَأَنَّهُمْ أَعْجَازُ نَخْلٍ مُّنقَعِرٍ ﴿٢٠﴾ فَكَيْفَ كَانَ عَذَابِي وَنُذُرِ ﴿٢١﴾

The people of 'Ad also rejected the truth. How [terrible] was My punishment and [the fulfilment of] My warnings! [18] We released a howling wind against them on a day of terrible disaster [19] it swept people away like uprooted palm trunks [20] How [terrible] was My punishment and [the fulfilment of] My warnings [21] (The Quran, al-Qamar: 18 - 21)

The Quran now lists, for those who deny the Messenger of Allah, Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and opposed his call, the people who denied their own messengers throughout history. It has already spoken to them about the people of Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him and what became of them, and now it speaks to them about the people of ‘Ad, and what Allah the Almighty did with them when they denied their Messenger Hud (Eber) peace be upon him.

The people of 'Ad were the ones who dwelled in the southern sand dunes, and they had a great civilisation of which Allah Glorified is He says: ‘Have you [O, Prophet] considered how your Lord dealt with [the people] of 'Ad, of Iram, [the city] of lofty pillars, whose like has never been made in any land, and the Thamud, who hewed into the rocks in the valley’ (al-Fajr: 6-8). Their civilisation was mightier than that of Pharaonic Egypt which astonished the whole world; despite the scientific advances of the modern world, they have still not discovered all the secrets of this civilisation, and the pyramids remain a wonder whose secrets are still unknown.

The civilisation of 'Ad was greater still, but now it is buried below the sand because it is a desert environment wherein there are many sandstorms and the passage of time has caused sand to cover it. In this regard, they say that the sands of the dunes could bury an entire caravan if a storm blew over it. For this reason, we could only find the remains of this nation which Allah the Almighty destroyed under many layers of earth.

He speaks about the people of 'Ad, just as He speaks about the people of Nuh (Noah): ‘…How [terrible] was My punishment and [the fulfilment of] My warnings!’ (al-Qamar: 18) The suffering did not come to them by surprise, and their Lord did not take them to task while unaware; rather, He sent warnings to them by means of their prophet Hud (Eber) peace be upon him but they did not benefit from this, and the one who has been warned has no excuse.

Allah the Exalted then explains how He destroyed them: ‘We released a howling wind against them on a day of terrible disaster.’ (al-Qamar: 19) Sarsar (storm-wind) is a wind of intense cold, accompanied by an alarming cry which terrified them.

In another verse, this sound is called a Sayha (blast) (Hud: 94), and a blast is accompanied either by a fierce destructive wind or a blazing burning fire. On ‘…a day of terrible disaster’ (al-Qamar: 19) is a day of destruction that was mustamirr which means both ‘terrible’ and continuous; it means that it continued to assail them for the time which Allah had decreed, until it utterly destroyed them. The meaning of ‘It swept people away…’ (al-Qamar: 20) is that this fierce wind plucked them from their places, picked them up and flung them, scattering their belongings.

Allah Glorified is He says: ‘…like uprooted palm trunks.’ (al-Qamar: 20) You know what happens to the trunk of a palm tree when you cut off its upper part and uproot it from the ground. It is as though the wind was so strong it uprooted them from the ground, dragged them from their houses, and flung them as though they were uprooted palm-trunks. He then repeats: ‘How [terrible] was My punishment and [the fulfillment of] My warnings!’ (al-Qamar: 21) He repeats it to repeat the admonition and also because the suffering inflicted upon those people was varied, taking each of them to task with the kind of punishment and requital which Allah the Almighty willed. This is the absoluteness of Allah’s Power when it deals with punishment; Allah the Exalted has absolute Power to give blessings and also absolute Power to deal out retribution. He says: ‘And We punished each one of them for their sins: some We struck with a violent storm, some were overcome by a sudden blast, some We made the earth swallow, and some We drowned. It was not Allah Who wronged them; they wronged themselves.’ (al-’Ankabut: 40)

The discourse then repeats once more. Allah Glorified is He says:

وَلَقَدۡ يَسَّرۡنَا ٱلۡقُرۡءَانَ لِلذِّكۡرِ فَهَلۡ مِن مُّدَّكِرٖ ٢٢

We have made it easy to learn lessons from the Quran:
will anyone take heed? [22] (The Quran, al-Qamar: 22)

This is in order to emphasise the fact that Allah has made the Quran easy; '…Will anyone take heed?' (al-Qamar: 22) It is as though He is seeking out one person to take admonition, 'O, mankind is there no one who will take the signs of the Quran to heart and reflect upon them?'

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

كَذَّبَتۡ ثَمُودُ بِٱلنُّذُرِ ٢٣ فَقَالُوٓاْ أَبَشَرٗا مِّنَّا وَٰحِدٗا نَّتَّبِعُهُۥٓ إِنَّآ إِذٗا لَّفِي ضَلَٰلٖ وَسُعُرٍ ٢٤
أَءُلۡقِيَ ٱلذِّكۡرُ عَلَيۡهِ مِنۢ بَيۡنِنَا بَلۡ هُوَ كَذَّابٌ أَشِرٞ ٢٥ سَيَعۡلَمُونَ غَدٗا مَّنِ ٱلۡكَذَّابُ ٱلۡأَشِرُ ٢٦

The people of Thamud also rejected the warnings [23] they said,
'What? A man? Why should we follow a lone man from amongst ourselves? That would be misguided; quite insane! [24]
Would a message be given to him alone out of all of us? No, he is an insolent liar!' [25] Tomorrow they will know who is the insolent liar [26] (The Quran, al-Qamar: 23 - 26)

The True Lord tells us here about the people of our master Saleh (Shelah) peace be upon him who were called Thamud and dwelled in Mada'in Saleh near Medina. He says: 'The people of Thamud also rejected the warnings.' (al-Qamar: 23) The word nudhur is the plural of nadheer, which literally means 'warner', namely a messenger. Allah Glorified is He says to His Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him: 'You [O, Muhammad] are not but a warner.' (Fatir: 23)

The word nudhur is in the plural for this verse because the one who denies one messenger has essentially denied all messengers since they have a common goal and a common way, the essence of which is the worship of Allah Glorified is He alone with no partner.

Read this: 'Allah took a pledge from the prophets by saying, "If, after I have bestowed Scripture and wisdom upon you, a messenger comes confirming what you have been given, you must believe in him and support him. Do you affirm this and accept My pledge as binding upon you?"…’’ (Al-‘Imran: 81) The duty of a messenger is to counsel his people that when a new messenger comes to them with a way akin to the way he has brought them, they must follow him believe in him and aid him.

The usual thing is that people are loyal to their messenger, for he teaches them: ‘The goal is one and the way is one, and if anyone comes to you and has these attributes, then follow him and do not oppose him, for we are all enlightened by the same lamp.’

Allah Glorified is He then tells us the Words by which these people denied: ‘They said, "What? A man? Why should we follow a lone man from amongst ourselves? ..."’ (al-Qamar: 24) This is akin to what the Quraysh said, ‘and they said, "Why was this Quran not sent down to a distinguished man, from either of the two cities?"’ (az-Zukhruf: 31)

Thamud found it far-fetched that they should follow a single man amongst them, namely our master Saleh (Shelah) peace be upon him when he was merely a human being. They objected to his being human and his being just one man. So, what do you want? They wanted a group of people all sharing in the delivery of this message so that all of them would be equal.

The reality is that the prophet does not bring anything of his own invention, nor of anyone else’s invention; he brings forth Revelation from Allah the Exalted. Doubting a messenger or prophet because he is human is rebutted by Allah’s Words: ‘Indeed, if We had sent an angel as messenger, We would still have sent him in the form of a man, so increasing their confusion.’ (al-An‘am: 9) Furthermore, an angel cannot be a role model for human beings.

They then said, ‘Most surely we shall in that case’, which means if they followed one man, they would ‘…be in sure error and distress!’ (al-Qamar: 24) Su‘ur means madness, and it also means sa’ir (the flames) of hell.

Their Words ‘Would a message be given to him alone out of all of us? ...’ (al-Qamar: 25) are a question by which they intended to express incredulity and denial of this. ‘How could the reminder have been given to him, and the Message been revealed to him from amongst all of us?’ By saying this, they were declaring that they deemed themselves to be equal to Allah’s prophet, Saleh (Shelah) peace be upon him; yet, prophethood is not a matter of equality because Allah the Exalted elects whomever He wills from amongst His servants: '…But Allah knows best where to place His Messages…' (al-An'am: 124). He also says: 'Allah chooses messengers from amongst the angels and from amongst men. Allah is All-Hearing, All-Seeing.' (al-Hajj: 75)

They then took their denial to another level and made a bold accusation of lying: '…"No, he is an insolent liar!"' (al-Qamar: 25) A liar is someone who speaks untruths, and this was a false accusation, for our master Saleh (Shelah) peace be upon him never told them anything untrue.

Ashir (insolent) means' very arrogant and haughty', or a person who is not content with his situation and is unhappy with what he has; he wishes to usurp authority over others and make himself the leader of his people so that everyone follows him.

So, Allah Glorified is He rebuts them by saying: 'Tomorrow they will know who is the insolent liar' (al-Qamar: 26); this means on the Day of Resurrection and Requital. The word 'Tomorrow' is used to refer to the near future, namely the day which comes after the present day, but in this verse, Allah the Almighty calls the Resurrection 'Tomorrow'. Why is this? It is because it is indeed near to us, for there is nothing between you and it but your own death. Therefore, He says about it: 'The imminent Hour draws near.' (an-Najm: 57) He also says: 'Ever closer to people draws their reckoning, while they turn away, heedless.' (al-Anbiya': 1) In this chapter we are discussing, He says: 'The Hour draws near…' (al-Qamar: 1).

Allah Glorified is He says: '…who is the insolent liar' (al-Qamar: 26)? This was a warning to them, along with being a casting back of their own accusation upon them, 'No, you are the boastful liars, for you hate and envy Saleh (Shelah) because of how his Lord has chosen him for prophethood from amongst you. Yet, this is Allah's Grace which He gives to whomever He wills, and so you ought to have believed in him, not opposed him.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

إِنَّا مُرۡسِلُواْ ٱلنَّاقَةِ فِتۡنَةٗ لَّهُمۡ فَٱرۡتَقِبۡهُمۡ وَٱصۡطَبِرۡ ﴿٢٧﴾ وَنَبِّئۡهُمۡ أَنَّ ٱلۡمَآءَ قِسۡمَةُۢ بَيۡنَهُمۡۖ كُلُّ
شِرۡبٖ مُّحۡتَضَرٞ ﴿٢٨﴾ فَنَادَوۡاْ صَاحِبَهُمۡ فَتَعَاطَىٰ فَعَقَرَ ﴿٢٩﴾ فَكَيۡفَ كَانَ عَذَابِي وَنُذُرِ ﴿٣٠﴾
إِنَّآ أَرۡسَلۡنَا عَلَيۡهِمۡ صَيۡحَةٗ وَٰحِدَةٗ فَكَانُواْ كَهَشِيمِ ٱلۡمُحۡتَظِرِ ﴿٣١﴾

For We shall send them a she-camel to test them: so watch them [Salih] and be patient. [27] Tell them the water is to be shared between them: each one should drink in turn.' [28] But they called their companion, who took a sword and hamstrung the camel. [29] How [terrible] was My punishment and [the fulfilment of] My warnings! [30] We released a single mighty blast against them and they ended up like a fence-maker's dry sticks[31] (The Quran, al-Qamar: 27 - 31)

The she-camel that was brought forth by our master Saleh (Shelah) was a sign, a plainly visible sign which they themselves had suggested when they said to their prophet, 'Bring forth for us a she-camel out of this rock.'(1) Indeed, the she-camel did miraculously come forth from the rock.

So, Allah Glorified is He says: 'For We shall send them a she-camel to test them…' (al-Qamar: 27). This means that the she-camel is a trial and a test for them: Will they believe in Allah the Most High or disbelieve? 'So [O, Saleh (Shelah)] watch them' (al-Qamar: 27) means that Saleh (Shelah) should watch what their reaction will be '…and be patient.' (al-Qamar: 27) Prophet Saleh (Shelah) peace be upon him should be patient in the face of their stubbornness and in the face of their assaults and their denials; he must not expect his call to them to yield fruit immediately.

Allah Glorified is He says: 'Tell them the water is to be shared between them…' (al-Qamar: 28). As long as the she-camel was a miracle, it has a special position regarding its food and drink, and Allah made it clear to them that they were to divide the water they drank between them and the she-camel.

He says: '…each one should drink in turn.' (al-Qamar: 28) They each had their open apportioned share of drink which came in turns; they would drink on their day and not go near the water on the she-camel's day; however, on the day when they did not drink, the she-camel would give them enough of its milk to suffice any need for water on that day.

(1) Narrated by Ibn Kathir in his Tafsir (al-A'raf: 73)

In the chapter of al-A'raf, this verse speaks about what the she-camel ate: 'To the people of Thamud We sent their brother Saleh (Shelah). He said, "My people, serve Allah. You have no deity other than He. A clear sign has come to you now from your Lord. This is Allah's she-camel—a sign for you—so let her graze in Allah's land and do not harm her in any way, or you will be struck by a painful torment."' (al-A'raf: 73)

However, they did not understand this warning: '…and do not harm her in any way…' (al-A'raf: 73); they did not believe in this sign, so they began inclining towards the notion of slaying the she-camel, resolving upon doing so. A foolish and wicked man amongst them, a 'thug' as they say, volunteered to do it; they call him 'the ruddy-faced man of Thamud', and scholars tell us his name was Qaydar ibn Salif.

The proof that he was one of the most foolish and wretched of people is that when he wanted to hobble the she-camel, he had nothing to do it with, so he snatched a sword from one of the others and hobbled it with it. They were responsible for this deed since not only did they agree together to do it, but they also cooperated in doing it.

When they did this, they brought upon themselves this chastisement: 'We released a single mighty blast against them ...' (al-Qamar: 31). A blast is a terrifying and destructive sound; scholars say that Jibril (Gabriel) peace be upon him shouted out, and this was enough to utterly destroy them.(1)

Allah Glorified is He says: '…and they ended up like a fence-maker's dry sticks.' (al-Qamar: 31) The True Lord the Most High compares them to hasheem, which means dried up twigs that the wind blows here and there. 'Al-muhtadhir', (fence-maker) is a farmer who makes a pen for his sheep out of these twigs. So, when this blast struck them, it overtook them exactly like the manner of a Mighty, Powerful One, making them like dry sticks.

Then, Allah Glorified is He repeats the verse:

(1) Narrated by At-Tabari in his Tafsir

وَلَقَدْ يَسَّرْنَا ٱلْقُرْءَانَ لِلذِّكْرِ فَهَلْ مِن مُّدَّكِرٍ (٣٢)

We have made it easy to learn lessons from the Quran:
will anyone take heed? [32] (The Quran, al-Qamar: 32)

Observe that the discourse keeps repeating this verse and mentioning the Quran after each mention of a community that denied the truth. This is because the Quran is the final Revelation which encompasses all those which came before it as Allah Glorified is He says: ‘We sent to you [O, Muhammad] the Scripture with the truth, confirming the Scriptures that came before it and with final authority over them…’ (al-Ma‘ida: 48).

Then, the True Lord the Most High says:

كَذَّبَتْ قَوْمُ لُوطٍۭ بِٱلنُّذُرِ (٣٣) إِنَّآ أَرْسَلْنَا عَلَيْهِمْ حَاصِبًا إِلَّآ ءَالَ لُوطٍ ۖ نَّجَّيْنَٰهُم بِسَحَرٍ (٣٤)
نِّعْمَةً مِّنْ عِندِنَا ۚ كَذَٰلِكَ نَجْزِى مَن شَكَرَ (٣٥)

The people of Lot rejected the warnings. [33] We released a stone- bearing wind against them, all except the family of Lot. We saved them before dawn [34] as a favour from Us:
this is how We reward the thankful [35]
(The Quran, al-Qamar: 33 - 35)

After beginning their discourse on the communities who denied the messengers with the people of Nuh (Noah), 'Ad and then Thamud, the verses now move on to their brethren, the people of Lut (Lot). What all these communities have in common is that they denied Allah’s messengers peace be upon them. Thus, we find that the Quranic discourse says of each of these communities that they denied Al-nudhur (the warnings) (al-Qamar: 33).

We said before that the word nudhur literally means ‘messengers’, for the one who denies one messenger has essentially denied all messengers, for they all share a common purpose and a common way.

The verses now take us directly to a scene of chastisement and requital: ‘We released a stone-bearing wind against them…’ (al-Qamar: 34). Al-hasib is a strong wind which blew upon them and pelted them with little pebbles by means of which Allah the Almighty rained down destruction upon them.

Allah Glorified is He only saved the family of Lut (Lot) before dawn. No one was spared from this suffering but the kinsfolk of Lut (Lot) and those who believed in him. They were saved at the break of dawn, and to be absolutely precise, the final part of the night, right before dawn. Allah the Exalted saved them as a blessing from Him, and that is how He rewards the thankful.

Then Allah Glorified is He says:

أَعْيُنَهُمْ فَذُوقُوا۟ عَذَابِى وَنُذُرِ ﴿٣٧﴾ وَلَقَدْ صَبَّحَهُم بُكْرَةً عَذَابٌ مُّسْتَقِرٌّ ﴿٣٨﴾
فَذُوقُوا۟ عَذَابِى وَنُذُرِ ﴿٣٩﴾ وَلَقَدْ يَسَّرْنَا ٱلْقُرْءَانَ لِلذِّكْرِ فَهَلْ مِن مُّدَّكِرٍ ﴿٤٠﴾

He warned them of Our onslaught, but they dismissed the warning [36] they even demanded his guests from him – so We sealed their eyes –'Taste My [terrible] punishment and [the fulfilment of] My warnings!' [37] and early in the morning a punishment seized them that still remains [38] "'Taste My [terrible] punishment and [the fulfilment of] My warnings!' [39] We have made it easy to learn lessons from the Quran: will anyone take heed? [40] (The Quran, al-Qamar: 36 - 40)

Lut (Lot) peace be upon him warned his people of Allah's onslaught and chastisement. He warned them of how sternly Allah takes those who disbelieved in the messengers. Other verses give further details of this story and show how Lut (Lot) engaged in debates with his people. Allah Glorified is He says: 'He said, "O, my people! These are my daughters. They are purer for you, so guard against [the punishment of] Allah and do not disgrace me with regard to my guests. Is there not amongst you one right-minded man?"' (Hud: 78)

However, they denied him peace be upon him and stubbornly cast doubt on these warnings. When he warned them of Allah's punishing Might, they stubbornly cast doubt on it; that is, they doubted it, denied and rejected it and then persisted in the wickedness in which they had been indulging. In addition, they even demanded that he give up his guests (to them).

The Arabic word for guest (dayf) refers to both the singular and the plural as is the case here. This is because whether one, two, or three guests come to you, you do not differentiate between one guest, and another but must treat them all the same as though they are one guest. Thus, the Quranic discourse refers to them using the singular form on more than one occasion. Allah says: 'And inform them of the guests of Ibrahim (Abraham).' (al-Hijr: 51) He also says: 'has there come to you information about the honored guests of Ibrahim (Abraham)?' (adh-Dhariyat: 24) Yet, Ibrahim (Abraham) did not have only one guest, but several. They demanded his guests from him and asked him to leave them so that they could do to them the abhorrent things they were accustomed to; they, namely the people of Lut (Lot), saw that they were the most exceedingly beautiful people they had ever seen which is why they thought that they could sodomise them. They did not know that those guests were not human beings but angels. Thus, Heaven intervened immediately to protect Lut (Lot) and preserve his dignity.

Thus, Allah the Almighty sealed their eyes and blinded them which mean that He took away their sight. Other scholars say that He the Almighty completely wiped their eyes from their faces so that it looked as though they had never had eyes to begin with.

As a result, we observe that all the stories of the communities before Lut's (Lot’s) were followed by the words 'How [terrible] was My punishment and [the fulfillment of] My warnings ' (al-Qamar: 30). Yet as far as the people of Lut (Lot) were concerned, Allah Glorified is He says: 'Taste My [terrible] punishment and [the fulfilment of] My warnings.' (al-Qamar: 37) In other words, they taste the suffering which they deserve. The word ‘taste’ in this verse imparts irony and mockery towards them because of the enormity of their sin and the vileness of their deed.

Thereafter, Allah Glorified is He says: 'And early in the morning a punishment seized them, and it still remains.' (al-Qamar: 37) The suffering befell them in the early morning as Allah says: 'But when it shall descend in their court, evil shall then be the morning of the warned ones.' (as-Saffat: 177) There is a special wisdom behind the way the suffering befell the deniers from the people of Lut (Lot) by morning. The reason for this is that early morning is a time when people are usually still asleep or just rising from sleep, so when suffering befalls them at this time, they are surprised and cannot flee what is befalling them which is more severe on them.

Once again comes the mention of the Quran as Allah says: 'We have made it easy to learn lessons from the Quran. Will anyone take heed?' (al-Qamar: 17) This is because there is a lesson to learn in the story of each of these deniers, so after each story, Allah Glorified is He repeats: ‘Will anyone take heed?’ That is, is there anyone to reflect and take admonition from such people?

Then Allah Glorified is He says:

وَلَقَدْ جَآءَ ءَالَ فِرْعَوْنَ ٱلنُّذُرُ ﴿٤١﴾ كَذَّبُوا۟ بِـَٔايَـٰتِنَا كُلِّهَا فَأَخَذْنَـٰهُمْ أَخْذَ عَزِيزٍ مُّقْتَدِرٍ ﴿٤٢﴾

The people of Pharaoh also received warnings [41]
They rejected all Our signs so We seized them with all
Our might and power[42] (The Quran, al-Qamar: 41 - 42)

Allah speaks to us here about another group of deniers, namely the people of Pharaoh, who denied and rejected Prophet Musa (Moses) peace be upon him and to the clear signs he brought forth and which numbered nine in all, i.e. the staff, the hand, etc.

Thus, the consequence of this was that Allah took them with all His Might and Power. ‘To take’ means ‘to grasp firmly’, and the action of taking is determined by the power of the taker. When the taker is Allah, it is the Most Powerful, which is why He the Almighty mentions two of His Divine Attributes in this context, namely the Almighty and the All-Powerful. The Almighty is the One Who overcomes all and cannot be overcome, and The Powerful is the One Who possesses absolute power which is never exhausted.

We said before that the mission of Musa (Moses) concerning Pharaoh was to save the children of Israel from his clutches and from the suffering which the people of Pharaoh afflicted upon them as Allah says: 'therefore send the children of Israel with us and do not torment them.' (Ta Ha: 47) This was the essential mission and then Musa's (Moses') preaching to Pharaoh was only part of this mission; he began to call him to Allah and to explain to him matters of doctrine and religion.

The reason for the enmity which existed between Pharaoh and the children of Israel was that when the Hyksos entered Egypt, the children of Israel aided them and helped them to defeat the Pharaohs; the children of Israel staying at that time in Egypt were all of the descendants of Prophet Yusuf (Joseph). When the Pharaohs defeated the Hyksos and drove them out of Egypt, they paid the children of Israel back with mistreatment and cruel torment; so, Allah the Exalted sent Musa (Moses) peace be upon him not to preach to Pharaoh and his people, but to free the children of Israel from this torment.

You all know the story of how Prophet Musa (Moses) left Egypt with the children of Israel and how Pharaoh followed them with his armies and how the sea divided and Musa (Moses) and the children of Israel were saved by a clear miracle: when Musa (Moses) struck the sea with his staff, it divided and became like two great mountains. Scholars say that when they were saved from both Pharaoh and drowning, they passed by people who were keeping vigil before idols. Thus, the children of Israel said, 'O, Musa (Moses)! Make for us a god as they have [their] gods.' (al-A'raf: 138) The exegetes say that they asked this of Musa (Moses) when their feet were still wet from crossing the sea. Thus, they denied the miracle of the signs at a time when it was all the more proper and fitting that they believe in Allah Who have rescued them and saved them from suffering.

Then Allah Glorified is He says:

سَيُهْزَمُ ٱلْجَمْعُ وَيُوَلُّونَ ٱلدُّبُرَ ﴿٤٥﴾ بَلِ ٱلسَّاعَةُ مَوْعِدُهُمْ وَٱلسَّاعَةُ أَدْهَىٰ وَأَمَرُّ ﴿٤٦﴾

'Are your disbelievers any better than these? Were you given an exemption in the Scripture?' [43] Do they perhaps say, 'We are a great army and we shall be victorious'? [44]
Their forces will be routed and they will turn tail and flee. [45]
But the Hour is their appointed time –the Hour is more severe and bitter [46] (The Quran, al-Qamar: 43 - 46)

After telling us the stories of the communities of old who denied and rejected the messengers, starting with the people of Nuh (Noah), passing by the people of 'Ad, then the people of Thamud, the people of Lut (Lot) and ending with the people of Pharaoh, the Quran now returns to the disbelievers of Mecca who denied and rejected Prophet Muhammad, who opposed him and who stood in the way of his mission. It comes back to mention their story with Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him after it shed light on the punishments that afflicted the previous peoples who denied the Messages of their messengers.

Allah the Exalted asks whether the disbelievers of Mecca are better than other deniers upon whom Allah's Retribution and Chastisement were unleashed, or have the disbelievers of Mecca been given an exemption in the ancient books that they would not be punished! Has Allah given you a Promise that He would not chastise you?! Do you perhaps say, 'We are a great army, and we shall be victorious?' Thus, you were deluded by your large numbers and your collective agreement on falsehood.

Therefore, the Quran was revealed to debate with the disbelievers of Mecca with the aim of convincing them. It let them choose from three possibilities: Are they better than the deniers of the Truth who came before you and were destroyed by Allah? Or have they been given immunity in the Scriptures of old or promised that Allah would not chastise them? Or were their numbers so great that they could not be overcome? All the three possibilities are rejected, for they were not better than those who preceded them, nor did they have any immunity from chastisement because Allah has given immunity to no one, nor allowed anyone to deny and reject His Messengers.

Furthermore, concerning the third possibility, He the Almighty says: 'Their forces will be routed and they will turn tail and flee.' (al-Qamar: 45) This means that these hosts, of which you, O, disbelievers of Mecca, are so proud, shall be routed.

This verse was revealed at the time when the disbelievers' oppression of the Muslims was exceptionally severe. Muslims were a minority and could not defend themselves. Therefore, when ‘Umar Allah be pleased with him heard this verse he said: 'What forces are these that will be routed when we are unable even to defend ourselves and protect our lives?' However, when the Battle of Badr took place and the forces of disbelief were indeed routed, he said, 'Indeed, Allah spoke the truth.'

Therefore, when you see the Quran declare things in the future tense, you should know that they are definitely true and that they will inevitably occur because the Quran has recorded them and preserved them. Usually, one is keen to record things that others owe him, not what he owes others.

It is the Quran that clearly mentions that the hosts of the disbelievers would be routed, thus events would never ever contradict this Divine Decree; this is proven by the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And most surely Our host alone shall be the victorious ones.' (as-Saffat: 173) As long as people are a true host that fight for the Cause of Allah, succour is assured for them. Yet, if they fail to live up to the conditions of being Allah's Hosts, succour will not be theirs; Muslim's defeat in the Battle of Uhud when they disobeyed Prophet Muhammad is a case in point.

Moreover, Allah the Almighty says that they will turn tail and flee. They will flee and be routed. This is the punishment that will afflict them in this world, but the punishment of the Hour is more severe and bitter. The Resurrection will be the time for recompense and punishment. The Last Hour will be most calamitous and most bitter. It will be more painful and bitter than what they suffer in this world because the calamity of this world has an end, and its wounds can be healed, whilst the calamity of the Hereafter is the greatest calamity, which neither ends nor heals.

Before the beginning of the Battle of Badr, it is amazing that our prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him stood on the battlefield and pointed with his staff saying, 'This is where so-and-so will die, and this is where so-and-so will die.' He was referring to the chieftains of the Quraysh.(1) Indeed they were all slain in the very places where Prophet Muhammad had indicated. Look at this trust in Allah's Succour for His Messenger Muhammad; he peace and blessings be upon him made these declarations and was not worried that the events of the battle would prove him wrong, despite the fact that battles are always to-and-fro melees, and no one could ever predict what will happen with this much detail. Yet, this was the declaration of him who spoke not from caprice.

Allah Glorified is He subsequently says:

(1) Narrated by Al-Bukhari, Abu Dawud, An-Nasa'i and Ahmad

إِنَّ ٱلۡمُجۡرِمِينَ فِي ضَلَٰلٖ وَسُعُرٖ (٤٧) يَوۡمَ يُسۡحَبُونَ فِي
ٱلنَّارِ عَلَىٰ وُجُوهِهِمۡ ذُوقُواْ مَسَّ سَقَرَ (٤٨)

Truly the wicked are misguided and quite insane [47] on the Day when they are dragged on their faces in Hell. 'Feel the touch of Hell' [48] (The Quran, al-Qamar: 47 - 48)

Indeed, the deniers of the Truth are misguided for they have recognised the truth yet refused to follow it. They are quite insane on the Day of Judgment. The Arabic word for insane has two meanings. It either means a blazing fire or else a kind of madness. However, the following verse suggests that the meaning here may actually be blazing fire.

On the Day of Resurrection, these wicked people will be dragged on their faces into Hellfire. The face is the noblest part of a person, and therefore, he tries to protect it and keep it from harm. It is the part through which man's identity is known and the most dignified part of him. For example, when a car comes past you and splashes you with water, you spontaneously raise your hands to protect your face without even thinking about it. Thus, the most degrading and humiliating of things will be the on the Day when the disbelievers are dragged on their faces into hell. The word 'taste' mocks at and humiliates them. Furthermore, Allah the Most High mentions only 'the touch' because the mere touch of it is enough to inflict suffering and degradation upon them. The word saqar is one of the names of hell; some say it is the name of a valley in hell.

Then Allah Glorified is He says:

إِنَّا كُلَّ شَيۡءٍ خَلَقۡنَٰهُ بِقَدَرٖ (٤٩) وَمَآ أَمۡرُنَآ إِلَّا وَٰحِدَةٞ كَلَمۡحِۭ بِٱلۡبَصَرِ (٥٠)

We have created all things in due measure [49] when We ordain something it happens at once, in the blink of an eye [50] (The Quran, al-Qamar: 49 - 50)

The antecedent of the pronoun 'We' is Allah Glorified is He. Everything in the universe, great, or small, from the atom to the galaxy, is created in due and precise measure and proportion set by Allah Who has the All-Power to do all that He wills and decrees. He is the only deity who has no partner. There is no other power which could change His Measure or Decree.

Therefore, concerning the testimony of faith 'there is no deity but Allah', we previously stated that Allah the Almighty testified to Himself even before creation did so; He the Most High says: 'Allah bears witness that there is no god but He…' (Al-'Imran: 18).

Were this testimony not utterly true, He the Almighty would not be able to bring a thing into being by saying, 'Be!' since if He had a partner, this partner would say to the thing, 'Do not be!' So, all creation belongs solely to Allah, and all the command belongs solely to Him. Thus, He says about the earth, which is one of His created beings: 'And obeys its Lord and it must.' (al-Inshiqaq: 2) The earth hears and listens to receive the command.

Consider the story of Musa's (Moses') mother, when Allah Glorified is He said to her: '…then when you fear for him, cast him into the river and do not fear nor grieve; surely We will bring him back to you and make him one of the messengers.' (al-Qasas: 7)

Allah Glorified is He reassured Musa's (Moses') mother and gave her this promise that her son would survive and would be one of Allah's messengers. The reason for this is that the sea belongs to Allah and thus would obey His Command to protect the boy and to bear him to the place it was supposed to. Thus, Allah Glorified is He testified for Himself that there is no god but He and ordained His Decree in His Universe, the Decree of One Who knows that there is no god but He and that no one can defy His command. Since He has stated it, reality never contradicts it.

Therefore, we said that the first evidence proving faith in Allah is that He Himself declared that He alone is the Creator and that no one else made a counterclaim; He the Almighty says: 'Say: If there were with Him gods as they say, then certainly they would have been able to seek a way to the Lord of power.' (al-Isra': 42)

When Allah ordains something, it happens at once, in the blink of an eye. This means that He does not have to repeat the commandment, for His commands always come to fruition immediately. He expresses this in another verse by saying: 'Our Word for a thing when We intend it is only that We say to it, "Be", and it is.' (an-Nahl: 40) Thus, a single word of two letters, 'Be', is immediately obeyed. The word 'and' here expresses order and consequence.

Furthermore, Allah says: 'He said, "Even so, your Lord says: 'It is easy to Me.''' (Maryam: 21) He also says: 'And this is not difficult for Allah.' (Ibrahim: 20)

Reflect here on the swiftness of the response; the Divine Order takes place in a blink of an eye meaning ‘a quick unfocussed glance’. Allah Glorified is He is likening the swiftness of the response to the swiftest and the most instantaneous thing known to man, namely the twinkling of an eye. All things are the created beings of Allah. They know their Creator and respond to His commands without delay because it is their nature to respond and obey. Allah Glorified is He says: 'Surely, We offered the trust to the heavens and the earth and the mountains, but they refused to be unfaithful to it and feared from it, and man has turned unfaithful to it; surely, he is unjust, ignorant.' (al-Ahzab: 72)

He Glorified is He subsequently says:

وَكُلُّ شَيْءٍ فَعَلُوهُ فِي ٱلزُّبُرِ ﴿٥٢﴾ وَكُلُّ صَغِيرٍ وَكَبِيرٍ مُّسْتَطَرٌ ﴿٥٣﴾

We have destroyed the likes of you in the past. Will anyone take heed? [51] Everything they do is noted in their records; [52] every action, great or small, is recorded [53] (The Quran, al-Qamar: 51 - 53)

Allah the Almighty addresses the disbelievers of Mecca by saying that He had destroyed people like them in the past. He the Most High destroyed those who followed the same way of resistance, opposition, denial, and rejection of the messengers throughout the ages. Therefore, will anyone from amongst you, O, disbelievers of Mecca, take heed? Who will take admonition and reflect on the lessons of history and the Way of Allah with His Messages?

Everything the deniers of the Truth did is recorded in the books to be evidence against those who committed such deeds. Allah the Almighty says: 'He utters not a word but there is by him a watcher at hand.' (Qaf: 18) If we are now able to watch events with images and sound in every detail, why should we find it hard to imagine that Allah could have the power to do so? The mind which beholds the scientific and technological advances in the field of sound and image recording will certainly arrive to faith in the angelic scribes who record all of man's deeds. Every action, great or small, is recorded and written in the Preserved Tablet.

Then Allah Glorified is He says:

إِنَّ ٱلْمُتَّقِينَ فِى جَنَّٰتٍ وَنَهَرٍ ﴿٥٤﴾ فِى مَقْعَدِ صِدْقٍ عِندَ مَلِيكٍ مُّقْتَدِرٍۭ ﴿٥٥﴾

The righteous will live securely among Gardens and rivers [54] secure in the presence of an all-powerful Sovereign [55] (The Quran, al-Qamar: 54 - 55)

This is the conclusion of the matter and the ultimate goal to which we must strive. It is to achieve righteousness which will lead us to Gardens and rivers. Allah does not say a garden and a river; rather, He says gardens and rivers.

Allah prepares for them, namely believers, a secure seat. A seat is where one sits, for a person may sit in a place which is rightfully his, meaning a place which is good and of which he is worthy, whilst another may sit in a seat of evil which is not rightfully his and of which he is not worthy. A believer who truly achieves righteousness is worthy to sit in this place which receives him gladly. Therefore, when we look into the word 'secure seat' in the Quran, we find that it is something for which the faithful should hope and pray. Read this: 'and say: "My Lord! Make me enter a goodly entering, cause me to go forth a goodly going forth and grant me from near You power to assist [me]."' (al-Isra': 80)

If you want to begin any action, call upon Allah and ask Him to enter, or begin, it in a correct and beneficial manner, that is, to enter a goodly entering by having Allah aiding you to do it so that you do it properly and sincerely and in a way pleasing to Him the Almighty and His Messenger. Likewise, when you finish doing something, call upon Allah to bring you out of it in a manner which is true and sincere and to complete it for you with the same truth as that with which you began it.

Elsewhere, Allah Glorified is He says: 'And ordain for me a goodly mention among posterity.' (ash-Shu'ara': 84) The word 'goodly mention' in this verse symbolises remembrance and praise. Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him was asking Allah to make the praise directed towards him true and not false. He wanted to be worthy of praise and not to be praised falsely or hypocritically. He was saying, 'Make them praise me for what is true, not what is false. Furthermore, O, Allah, make their praise be for the goodness I truly have, which will be passed down to later generations.'

Thus, those who are eager for good at their entrance, their exit and in their praise as well as truth in their lives will come by means of it by obtaining truth in the Hereafter. It is a secure seat of honour in the presence of the All-Powerful Sovereign. By Allah, were this seat to be only in the presence of a king of this world, it would be a great honour and ennoblement. So, what do you think about a seat in the presence of Allah, the Sovereign? This is the One Who rules over all kings and all that they rule.

O, Allah, help us to attain this goal, inspire all our hearts sound belief and aid our bodies to act in proper accordance with it, by adhering to the Sunnah of Prophet Muhammad so that he may take us all by the hand and lead us in his company to a seat of truth in the presence of a Sovereign Who determines all things! Amen. The word ‘Sovereign’ is one of the Names of Allah that refers to His Absolute Power and Might.

One of the rhetorical features of the Quran is that it brings together opposing concepts because opposites highlight each other's beauty. Thus, after concluding this chapter with the Lofty Name ‘Sovereign’, Allah begins the next chapter ar-Rahman, by saying: 'He is the Lord of Mercy.' (ar-Rahman: 1) Thus, the Sovereign Who determines all things is also the Most Merciful.

ar-Rahman

In the Name of God,[1] the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of ar-Rahman (The Merciful). Allah Glorified is He says:

ٱلرَّحۡمَٰنُ ١

It is the Lord of Mercy [1]
(The Quran, ar-Rahman: 1)

The Most Merciful is one of Allah's Most Beautiful Names; it is derived from the Attribute of Mercy which means to give favours even if the recipient does not deserve them. Therefore, we have been taught to say before beginning any action, 'In the Name of Allah, the Most Merciful, and the Dispenser of Mercy.' If you have been sinful, you might be ashamed to begin your action with the Name of the One you have disobeyed. Nevertheless, Allah orders you to say it, for He is the Most Merciful.

The attribute is an intensive noun derived from ‘mercy’, and its hyperbole form has two aspects: intensiveness of the attribute itself, thus meaning ‘vast mercy’ and intensiveness in the number of mercies for those to whom this mercy is shown, meaning that no one mercy can take the place of any other. This is the meaning of Allah being the Lord of Mercy. He is the One Whose Mercy enfolds believer and disbeliever alike. He does not withhold from either of them if they utilise the means at their disposal as He the Almighty

(1) The Islamic conception of 'Allah' is not the same as the Christian and Jewish conception of 'God'. However, the word 'Allah' does not refer to a tribal god or God of only Muslims, it refers to the Creator of the whole world, the One God (who has no son). We prefer, however, to use 'Allah' rather than 'God' as it has a unique character: it cannot be used to refer to any false gods and does not have any derivatives like goddess, gods, etc. It is a unique word used solely to describe the One God of this universe.

says: 'Whoever desires the gain of the Hereafter, We will give him more of that gain, and whoever desires the gain of this world, We give him of it, and in the Hereafter he has no portion.' (ash-Shura: 20) It is as though sinners and disbelievers are given blessings in this world because of the manifestation of the attribute of Mercy.

Thus, Allah Glorified is He is the Most Merciful in this world and the Giver of Mercy in the Hereafter. This is why they say 'the Most Merciful of this world, the Giver of Mercy of the Hereafter'. This is because His Mercy in the Hereafter is only given to a believer, while a disbeliever will have no share of it.

Then Allah Glorified is He says:

عَلَّمَ ٱلْقُرْءَانَ ﴿٢﴾ خَلَقَ ٱلْإِنسَٰنَ ﴿٣﴾ عَلَّمَهُ ٱلْبَيَانَ ﴿٤﴾

Who taught the Quran [2] He created man [3] and taught him to communicate[4] (The Quran, ar-Rahman: 2 - 4)

Allah Glorified is He revealed the Quran to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him by the intermediation of Jibril (Gabriel) peace be upon him; He the Almighty says: 'The Lord of Mighty Power has taught him, The Lord of Strength; so he attained completion.' (an-Najm: 5-6) He also says about him: 'The processor of strength, having an honourable place with the Lord of the Dominion.' (at-Takwir: 20)

Thus, the knowledge of Prophet Muhammad was imparted from Heaven and not from the earth. Knowledge is something that could only bring absolute good to man in his conduct. When knowledge comes from earth, it is a mixture of good and evil. This is why we said before that illiteracy is usually a weakness and a flaw; yet, it was an honour for Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him because it meant that He did not take his knowledge from any human being but learnt all he knew from Heaven.

It is the wisdom of Allah that the community of Muhammad be an unlettered nation of nomads who had no civilisation and were not known to be advanced in science or any other of life's fields. Thus, when Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was sent from amongst them, he established a new civilisation for them and gave them the power to smash the civilisations of Persia and Byzantium at the same time. This means that their power came from this religion which came from Heaven and took its teachings from the Lord of all humanity, not from any human being.

It is curious that Allah Glorified is He speaks of 'Ilm (knowledge) first before speaking of creation. He did this in order to teach us the importance of knowledge and establishing guidance and principles before we begin to act. Before creating man, Allah the Almighty established guidance for his life. This is akin to how a manufacturer makes an 'instruction booklet' for his product, explaining how to make sure it works properly. We see that machines break down and stop working if they are not used in accordance with the instructions given for their use; likewise, human beings only go wrong when they contravene the guidance of their Lord.

Thus, this means that the establishment of guidance came before the creation of man so that when man came into existence, he found the guidance which told him: 'Do this and do not do that; this is lawful and that is unlawful, and this is good and that is evil.'

One of the meanings of the mercy included in the Quran is that the merciful person/object takes care of the person/object to whom the mercy is shown in a way which preserves its constituents and keeps them safe and unblemished. Allah says: 'And We reveal of the Quran that which is a healing and a mercy to believers.' (al-Isra': 82) Scholars say this means a cure for a disease that comes from heedlessness. Thus, we should take into account that mercy prevents the affliction of a disease from the very beginning.

Concerning the circumstances behind the revelation of these verses, they say that the disbelievers of Mecca accused Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him of learning the Quran from a non-Arab man. They said, as the Quran tells: 'And certainly We know that they say, "Only a mortal teaches him."' (an-Nahl: 103) However, Allah answered them logically: 'The tongue of him whom they reproach is barbarous, and this is clear Arabic tongue.' (an-Nahl: 103) How could a non-Arab, without knowledge of Arabic, have come up with this eloquent Quran? Rather, the Quran came from on high and was sent down from Heaven; it did not come from earth.

Let us consider another meaning of mercy which we find in Words of Allah: 'Say: Call upon Allah or call upon, the Beneficent Allah.' (al-Isra': 110) Allah the Exalted appends the Attribute of Mercy in this verse to the Attribute of Divinity. This is because divinity implies responsibility which can be difficult for the soul, so it was fitting to mention the Attribute of Mercy after it. It is as though Allah were saying to you: 'Do not worry, for the One Who has issued responsibility to you is the Most Merciful Whose Mercy enfolds all and Whose Most Mercifulness encompasses believer and disbeliever alike.'

Concerning the beginning of creation, Allah Glorified is He says: '…Who created the heavens and the earth and what is between them in six periods, and He is firmly established on the throne of authority, the Merciful Allah, so ask respecting it one aware.' (al-Furqan: 59) Allah Glorified is He after creating all creation established Himself upon His Throne meaning that He had control and command over all things. He thereby mentions the Attribute of Mercy by way of saying to us that His Power is not that of tyranny and despotism, but it is a Merciful Power.

It is even when speaking about the Hereafter and all the terrors it involves, He speaks of His Mercy: 'There is no one in the heavens and the earth but will come to the Merciful Allah as a servant.' (Maryam: 93) Allah is Ever Compassionate with His created beings, thus He gives them cause to hope for His Affection and His Love for them.

He the Most High mentions the Attribute of Mercy in the very first independent verse. The reason for this is when such Attribute is generally mentioned, nothing comes to one's mind but Allah. It combines all these concepts and flows through in every Divine Command.

Concerning the precedence of the matter of knowledge over that of creation, scholars have spoken about means and ends and which of them precedes the other. It is usually the case that the end comes after the means. For example, if you want to go to Alexandria, you use a mode of transport and follow the road which leads you there; that means that by using this means, you arrive at your destination which is Alexandria. A poet expressed this concept by saying:

Ah, who will show me my destination before I leave?

How could they, when destinations always come after journeys*?*

Indeed, people cannot know ends before they come to be. However, the Lord of mankind knows them in advance and from pre-eternity. He, therefore, informs you of the end. Thus, it is possible for ends to precede means. On the other hand, we say that you only followed the road to Alexandria because you already had it in mind; thus, the end existed before the means.

Furthermore, we can synthesise these two opinions by saying that when the end comes first, it is a plan because you define the desired end before you set out to use the means; however, when the means comes first, it is reality and implementation. Means takes us to the desired end. Thus, the means coming after the end represents prior planning, whereas the end coming after the means represents utilisation. In other words, the end comes before the means as motive, but when it comes after the means, it is an actual reality.

The ultimate purpose and end of the Quran is to impart doctrines, laws, ethics, and stories. Man’s heart is the place of the doctrines, and their essence is to believe in One God without any partner of any kind. This faith has two essential sides, which are fear and hope. If you are in a state of goodness, safety and security, do not doubt that Allah might change this, and if you are in a state of severe difficulty and anguish, do not despair of the Mercy of Allah. When a heart is imbibed with this sound doctrine, it pumps it through the rest of the body, and therefore, the whole body acts in accordance with the heart's belief.

When you follow the laws, commands and ethics of the Quran, you find that the Mercy of the Most Merciful flows through the whole body. Where moral responsibility is concerned, the primary part of the body is the tongue and then comes the ear because it is the tongue that conveys and the ear that receives. When the Message is first conveyed from Allah, it must be accompanied by sincerity and trustworthiness because it is a Divine One.

Therefore we said, by way of praising Prophet Muhammad: ‘Peace and blessings be upon you, O, Messenger of Allah. You are ear of goodness which received the final Message from Heaven and the tongue of sincerity which conveyed Allah's Will to creation!' Allah prepared His Messenger Muhammad for this task and endowed him with the necessary qualities of reception and conveying. Before he was sent forth, his people attested to this. As we know, there were those who believed in Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him before seeing any miracle to support his claim; they believed in him because of what they already knew of his moral character and nature.

Therefore, when Allah the Exalted spoke to his people about him, He said: 'Muhammad is the Messenger of Allah.' (al-Fath: 29) This is as though He the Almighty were saying, 'Muhammad, whom you know, to whose character you have attested and upon whose sincerity and trustworthiness you are all agreed, is the Messenger of Allah to you.' It is as though the word 'Muhammad' and his very name offer a proof for his being the Messenger of Allah.

Moreover, the Quranic guidance is the instruction booklet that rectifies the motions of human life; it gives instructions for the protection of the tongue, commanding you to remember Allah and speak the truth and forbidding you from speaking falsehoods and vain words; it gives instructions for the protection of the ear, commanding you to listen to what is good for you and beneficial for your life and forbidding you from paying heed to what is false.

Allah Glorified is He says: 'And when you see those who enter into false discourses about Our communications, withdraw from them.' (al-An'am: 68). He also says: 'And indeed He has revealed to you in the Book that when you hear Allah's communications disbelieved in and mocked at, do not sit with them until they enter into some other discourse; surely then you would be like them; surely Allah will gather together the hypocrites and the disbelievers in Hell.' (an-Nisa': 140)

Thus, you find that the Quranic guidance protects your whole body for you by making clear to you what is lawful and what is unlawful and by the goodness it enjoins upon you and the evil from which it forbids you. Furthermore, when you reflect upon these commandments and prohibitions, you find that they are all manifestations of Allah's Mercy and that His Most Mercifulness is flowing through them all. If the motions of life are based on Allah's Guidance, security and ease will prevail, and the rights of all will be preserved, but if they are based on anything other than this guidance, then rights will be squandered, corruption will spread and honours will be violated.

Out of His Mercy, Allah forbade lying and false testimony because it wrest people's rights from them and gives those rights to others. Just reflect on the corruption which sweeps through society because of the violation of rights. Bearing false witness, cheating, stealing, usurping, embezzling, bribery, forgery, nepotism and other such things are forbidden by the Law, which is why the Quran calls them 'devouring the wealth of others wrongfully’ as Allah says: 'O you who believe! Do not devour your property amongst yourselves falsely.' (an-Nisa’: 29) Is this not a Mercy of Allah upon us? Indeed, it is for we are mercifully spared from each other's injustice.

Thus, we say that the manifestation of 'The Most Merciful' flows through all the laws and teachings of the Divine Guidance. Even when He commands us to apply lawful retribution and decrees that murderers be executed, there is even mercy in this execution since it protects the murderer, the victim, and all society. When the prospective murderer knows that he will be executed if he does it, he will be less likely to go through with it.

Since Allah the Almighty created Adam peace be upon him and made him dwell in the Garden and gave him the test of obeying His command, all religious responsibilities spring from this Divine Mercy. As long as Adam obeyed the command, he remained in the Garden and enjoyed it; however, when he disobeyed it, he failed, his nakedness was exposed and his condition became wretched. From this experience, we learnt what the attitude of Satan is towards man. In other words, we must learn a lesson from what our father Adam experienced so that we are wary of contravening Allah's Guidance.

Read: 'Then his Lord chose him, so He turned to him and guided [him]. He said: "Get forth you two therefrom, all [of you], one of you [is] enemy to another. So there will surely come to you guidance from Me, then whoever follows My guidance, he shall not go astray nor be unhappy. And whoever turns away from My reminder, his shall be a straitened life, and We will raise him on the day of resurrection, blind. He shall say, 'My Lord! Why have You raised me blind, and I was a seeing one indeed?' He will say, 'Even so, Our communications came to you, but you neglected them. Thus, you shall be forsaken this day.''' (Ta Ha: 123-126)

Therefore, all responsibility is a manifestation of the Divine Mercy. Even when you contravene His Guidance, your Lord does not forsake you, and this Mercy does not leave you, for He has established the possibility of repentance for you and opened the door for you to return to Him by saying: 'Surely, Allah does not forgive that anything should be associated with Him and forgives what is besides that to whomsoever He pleases.' (an-Nisa': 48) The very establishment of repentance itself manifests mercy.

Next, Allah Glorified is He says: 'And taught him to communicate.' (ar-Rahman: 4) To understand this verse, we refer to the verse 'who taught the Quran' (ar-Rahman: 2) where Allah Glorified is He did not explicitly state to whom He taught it. Thus, it means that He prepared the Quran and qualified it to be taught and then when He created man, He the Almighty taught him how to communicate. This means that He taught man, His vicegerent on earth.

‘To communicate’ means to be able to express what it is in your mind in a clear and plain way which the hearer understands. This means that we must have something in common which we all understand, namely language, and this is what Allah imparted unto Adam. Allah Glorified is He says: 'And He taught Adam all the names.' (al-Baqara: 31) Allah did as such so he peace be upon him could use them to express what was in his mind. The meaning of 'the names' is the individual name for every single thing. So, Adam is the source of all languages.

We said before that if we were to follow the chain of language back to its origin, we would come back to Adam peace be upon him. The child learns from his father who learned from his father, and so on until we come back to Adam. So, who taught Adam? His Lord taught him. Someone might say, 'Allah taught Adam the names of the things that existed in his environment, so he learnt the names of the sky, the earth, the sun, the moon, certain people and certain animals and so on; however, what about the names that were made after his time?'

We say in response that the imparting of the names to him means more than we understand from the concept of teaching alone. What it means is that He imparted unto him the tools of speech, to enable him to express the new names which he would see and to use what he was taught to discover new things which he had not known before. Television, for example, did not have a name before it was invented, but once it came along, they agreed on a name for it. This answers the claim of those who say that language must be taken as it is in a fixed way. No, we say, this is not the case for those new words which come into being.

Then Allah Glorified is He says:

ٱلشَّمْسُ وَٱلْقَمَرُ بِحُسْبَانٍ ﴿٥﴾ وَٱلنَّجْمُ وَٱلشَّجَرُ يَسْجُدَانِ ﴿٦﴾

The sun and the moon follow their calculated courses [5]
the plants and the trees submit to His designs [6]
(The Quran, ar-Rahman: 5 - 6)

The sun and the moon are two of the signs of Allah the Almighty. They follow their calculated courses that are precisely fixed. It is akin to what we say of a well-made clock, 'It never misses a beat', meaning that it is extremely precise.

Allah Glorified is He says elsewhere describing this precision: 'Neither is it allowable to the sun that it should overtake the moon, nor can the night outstrip the day; all float on in a sphere.' (Ya Sin: 40) Since Allah created the sun and moon, they have followed their courses without any deviation, and because they are so precise, Allah has made them measures and indicators of the passage of time. If the watch on your wrist did not run precisely, it would not be useful for telling the time.

The sun indicates for us the passage of day and night, while the moon indicates for us the passage of the months. The sun does this by rising and setting, whilst the moon by the stages it passes through during the month, starting from a crescent and then growing until it becomes full in the middle of the month after which it shrinks until it is as it was at its very beginning. Allah Glorified is He says: 'He it is Who made the sun a shining brightness and the moon a light and ordained for it mansions that you might know the computation of years and the reckoning. Allah did not create it but with truth; He makes the signs manifest for a people who have knowledge.' (Yunus: 5)

The sun has its own light and heat; the moon reflects the light of the sun and does not produce heat. We may observe that the lunar month is shorter than the solar one because of the different motions of each; the sun has a different position every day. This is why the temples of Pharaohs have 365 apertures, so that the sun enters a different one of them every day. By means of this, they were able to allow the sun to shine on Ramses' face on any given day of the year.

Out of His Wisdom, Allah has connected our daily worship and prayers to the sun and connected our monthly and annual acts of worship to the moon. If Ramadan was connected to the motion of the sun, for example, it would always fall at the same time of year. If it fell in June, for example, it would always be in June, and if it fell in January, it would always be in January. But its connection to the motion of the moon means that it falls in every part of the year, and all of us, at some point, have fasted Ramadan in summer and in winter. The same is the case for the pilgrimage.

You know that the difference between the solar and the lunar year is eleven days; this makes the responsibilities of worship easier and allows them to be fulfilled without ever breaking down, for the sun and the moon are two great cosmic signs which do not ever need to be maintained by human hands. They do their jobs by the Power of Allah and have done so since He created them.

Allah the Almighty says that plants and trees submit to His Designs. The Arabic word for plants can mean the stars of the sky, a meaning which is clear in the verse: 'And landmarks, and by the stars they find the right way.' (an-Nahl: 16) It can also mean herbage and plants which have no stalk.

Thus, these two verses bring together two different kinds of the signs of the universe: the sun and the moon are signs of the heavens, whilst herbage and trees are signs of the earth; the word ‘plants’ combines them. The sun and the moon are together because they are of one kind and so are the herbs and the trees: one of the heavens, the other of earth.

They all submit to the Will of the Creator. In many other verses, Allah Glorified is He makes it clear that these inanimate objects and plants prostrate before Him and glorify Him in the way that suits them. Allah Glorified is He says: 'Do you not see that Allah is He Whom obeys whoever is in the heavens and whoever is in the earth, along with the sun, the moon and the stars, and the mountains and the trees, and the animals and many of the people; many there are against whom chastisement has become necessary. Whomsoever Allah abases, there is none who can make him honorable; surely, Allah does what He pleases.' (al-Hajj: 18)

This is why we hear biologists saying that plants draw their nourishment from the ground by means of capillaries; yes, it is utterly true that plants have capillaries which are miraculously created. They also have life and power. If you take a basin of water and put some of these capillaries in it, they will suck up all the water. As for the way plants draw their nourishment, it is something else, for they take what they need from the soil and are able to distinguish between the soil's different constituents. Observe how sugarcane absorbs the sweetness from the soil, whilst pepper absorbs what is spicy.

Read the verse: 'And in the earth there are tracts side by side and gardens of grapes and corn and palm trees having one root and [others] having distinct roots. They are watered with one water, and We make some of them excel others in fruit; most surely, there are signs in this for a people who understand.' (ar-Ra'd: 4) Therefore, it is not a question of the capillaries, but it is one of the signs of Allah 'Who creates, then makes complete, and Who makes [things] according to a measure, then guides [them to their goal]' (al-A'la: 2-3).

Then Allah Glorified is He says:

وَٱلسَّمَآءَ رَفَعَهَا وَوَضَعَ ٱلۡمِيزَانَ ٧ أَلَّا تَطۡغَوۡاْ فِي ٱلۡمِيزَانِ ٨
وَأَقِيمُواْ ٱلۡوَزۡنَ بِٱلۡقِسۡطِ وَلَا تُخۡسِرُواْ ٱلۡمِيزَانَ ٩

He has raised up the sky. He has set the balance [7] so that you may not exceed in the balance [8] weigh with justice and do not fall short in the balance [9]
(The Quran, ar-Rahman: 7 – 9)

The word 'sky' in this verse follows the plants and the trees in the previous verses. Allah raised the sky up, and you see it above you without any support. He has set the balance. He revealed the foundations of justice and truth; the measure is the tool which determines what is true and what is false. He then commands us to not exceed in the balance, which means do not fail to meet the required measure. Do not exceed the line between truth and falsehood. Thus, these verses are telling us about a cosmological order which is founded on truth and a precise measure which has no exceptions or violations.

Justice governs the motions of the sun and the moon, just as it governs the motions of man. Allah Glorified is He says: 'Neither is it allowable to the sun that it should overtake the moon, nor can the night outstrip the day; all float on in a sphere.' (Ya Sin: 40) Thus, nothing transgresses against anything else, and so must man be.

Allah Glorified is He orders us to not exceed in the balance because when the celestial bodies remain firm upon the nature in which they were created and the role Allah wanted them to play, their motions run smoothly and they fulfil their purpose in existence. We have never seen any conflict between these bodies. Likewise, if man wants the motions of his life to run smoothly, he has to direct them according to this measure that Allah established for them.

After forbidding any transgression against the measure, He then commands us to weigh according to the justice with that which everyone is given their rights, as He says elsewhere: 'And weigh [things] with a right balance.' (ash-Shu'ara': 182) ‘To weigh something with equity’ means to perform it in the most perfect way. Since measure is the criterion, it must be precise and adhere to the law which Allah wants for it, namely justice. He then emphasises this by ordering us to not fall short in the balance. Scholars say that this means ‘do not decrease the measure’. However, there are several different ways to decrease the measure. The one who cheats you by disguising rancid fruit as fresh and selling it to you thereby decreases the measure; and the one who rigs his scales thereby decreases the measure. Allah the Exalted wants to preserve His creatures' rights for them, and this is a manifestation of the Mercy of Allah.

He Glorified is He subsequently says:

وَٱلۡحَبُّ ذُو ٱلۡعَصۡفِ وَٱلرَّيۡحَانُ (١٢) فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ (١٣)

He set down the Earth for His creatures [10] with its fruits, its palm trees with sheathed clusters [11] its husked grain, its fragrant plants [12] which, then, of your Lord’s blessings do you both deny? [13] (The Quran, ar-Rahman: 10 - 13)

Allah Glorified is He says about the skies that He raised them up, and He says about the earth that He set it down which means He made it low and spread out. He the Almighty says: 'the earth for you an expanse' (Ta Ha: 53). So, it is spread out like a bed. Elsewhere He Glorified is He called it a 'resting-place' (an-Naba': 6), which bears mankind just as a crib bears a baby. Thus, the earth was laid down for man to dwell upon it.

The word 'created beings' refers to human beings and some have said that it actually includes all those things which have a spirit, which would mean that animals are also included since they consume the fruits of the earth and live upon it. They also say that the jinn are included.

We may also observe that this verse speaks of the earth in general terms; it does not say which part of the earth is meant for whom. This means that it is comprehensive: the earth in this verse refers to the whole earth, in other words, every place on it. Likewise, 'created beings' means all living beings, whatever their identity is. So, Allah's earth, in every place, is for Allah's servants, in every place.

We can also understand this from Allah's Words: 'Behold, those whom the angels gather in death while they are still sinning against themselves, [the angels] will ask, "What was wrong with you?" They will answer, "We were too weak on earth." [The angels] will say, "Was, then, Allah's earth not wide enough for you to forsake the domain of evil?" For such, then, the goal is Hell and how evil a journey's end!' (at-Tawba: 97)

Thus, Allah's earth is for everyone; if you find it hard to live in a given place, and then go somewhere else where it is easier. This on its own would be enough to solve the problems of the world today if they were to implement it; however, what has happened is that they have cut-off the means of this natural unity which the Creator wanted for mankind, and they have set up their own borders and barriers.

It is extraordinary how we see them squabbling over metres of land at their borders when they live in thousands of kilometres of Allah's earth. If you look at a map and observe the borders between nations now, are they composed of straight lines? No, they are bent and crooked and intertwined. Therefore, this is how Allah the Almighty wanted it to be: the whole earth is meant for all living beings.

We now witness lands which are almost exploding with overpopulation but have scarce resources, while on the contrary, there are other lands which are empty of people but filled with resources which are neglected and have no one to extract them. Is this the just measure upon which the affairs of man are supposed to be based? No, by Allah, this is injustice and a transgression of the measure.

Just look at the man-made borders, the walls, the airports, the doors and the stern laws that govern them, along with the visas and conditions for entry. It sometimes takes months and months to prepare all the paperwork and visas to enter certain countries.

When these boundaries were made, this led to disputes between nations, and nationalist divisions, along with the hoarding of wealth and resources by such nations who possessed them; as a result, wars and conflicts broke out as you can see for yourselves.

The verses then list a number of Allah’s Favours on earth: 'with its fruits…' (ar-Rahman: 11); this refers to the fruits on the earth. The Arabic word for fruit is fakiha, related to the word tafakkaha, which means ‘to amuse oneself’; this is because fruit is a luxury which is extraneous to the basic elements of food. Fruit is mentioned here before wheat, barley or any other grain.

Allah Glorified is He says: '…its palm trees with sheathed clusters' (ar-Rahman: 11). The word kumm means the sheath that covers the fruit before it ripens, and in this verse, the plural akmam means 'sheathed clusters'. 'Its husked grain…' (ar-Rahman: 12) means wheat, barley, corn and other stables. As for His saying, '…its fragrant plants…' (ar-Rahman: 12), it refers to the husk which covers the grain; the fact that it is mentioned calls our attention to its nutritional importance. Scientists have discovered that the husk of wheat has many important medicinal values(1) and that wheat grains only fulfil their purpose when they are with their husks.

Furthermore, scientists have warned against eating high-grade flour in which the grain has been separated from the husk; people who eat too much high-grade flour are forced in their old age to eat bread made of bran or coarse flour. This is why whole-wheat bread is more expensive than white bread.

(1) The thin husk of wheat contains six vitamins, from B1 to B6 as well as several others. It also contains a phosphorous substance which is good for the brain and the nerves, as well as iron, which is good for the blood. It also contains calcium, which strengthens the bones, silicone, which strengthens the hair, iodine, which aids the thyroid gland, and so on.

Therefore, we understand from '…its husked grain and its fragrant plants…' (ar-Rahman: 12) that the grain should be taken just as it is when it comes out of the ground on its stalk, for this is how it is supposed to be. The word 'asf (stalk) also occurs when Allah speaks of the people of the Elephant: 'And [He] caused them to become like a field of grain ('asf) that has been eaten down to stubble.' (al-Fil: 5) In other words, this is like chewed stalks and the remnants of food.

As for the word rayhan (fragrant plants), scholars say that this means either the kernel of a grain or a sweet-smelling plant which is known by this name. 'Which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny?' (ar-Rahman: 13) These words are addressed to the 'sin-laden two', namely jinns and mankind, to whom He will later address thus: 'We shall attend to you two huge armies [of jinn and mankind]' (ar-Rahman: 31). In the verse being discussed, Allah the Almighty addresses them with this question: these are the favours of Allah and His boons, so which of these favours will you deny, O, men and jinns?

One of the rhetorical features of the Noble Quran is that when Allah the Exalted wants to affirm and emphasise something, He presents it not as a statement but as a question as though He were saying to them, 'You say it.' Thus, when you look for an answer to the question, you will inevitably say, 'Not one of Your Favours, Lord, do we deny.'

Now you only use this rhetorical question if you are certain that the answer will prove your point. For example, if someone denies that you have done him any favours, you might say to him, 'Did I not do such-and-such for you?'

The word ala' means blessings; it is the plural of al. This verse 'Which then of your Lord's blessings do you both deny?' is repeated many times in this chapter, and there is a special purpose and wisdom to this, just as the similar repetition in the previous chapter of 'Hence, indeed, We made this Quran easy to bear in mind: who, then, is willing to take it to heart?' (al-Qamar: 17) and 'For how severe is the suffering which I inflict when My warnings are disregarded' (al-Qamar: 21). Such repetitions have wisdom, and they add something new, for otherwise, they would be meaningless additions, and there is none of that in the Quran.

So, the repetition of the Words 'Which then, of your Lord’s blessings do you both deny?' (ar-Rahman: 13) serves to make each favour independent; with each favour, these words are repeated, and this question is asked for every individual favour.

This verse is repeated thirty-one times in the chapter of ar-Rahman. It is as though Allah the Almighty wants to emphasise for us how His Most Mercifulness flows through this chapter, so He mentions it after each favour: ‘Can you disavow this?' 'Can you disavow this?’

Thus, how could we disavow, when we live in the midst of this favour night and day? Therefore, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him taught us that when we read this verse, we should say, ‘Not one of Your favours, Lord, do we deny!’

Likewise, it is narrated that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘I recited the chapter of ar-Rahman to your brethren amongst the jinns, and they responded to it better than you did. Every time I read 'Which then of your Lord’s blessings do you both deny?' (ar-Rahman: 13), they said, ‘Not one of Your favours, Lord, do we deny! Praise be to You!’(1)

This means that when we listen to the Quran, we must react to it and reflect on its meaning, not simply let it pass through our ears as we do when we listen to human speech. we have seen those of strong faith who are near to Allah doing just this: when the Name of Allah is mentioned, they say ‘Glory be to Allah’, or ‘Truly Majestic is He’; and when the name of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is mentioned, they say ‘Allah bless him and grant him peace’; and when paradise is mentioned, they ask for it; and when hell is mentioned, they seek refuge with Allah from it. This is how the believer should react to Allah’s Word. Do we do as they do?

I once heard the Quran being recited at a wake. The master was reciting verses in which the suffering of the hellfire was described, and one from the audience was saying to him, ‘How wonderful, master, keep going, May Allah increase you!’

(1) See At-Tirmidhi and Al-Bayhaqi

خَلَقَ ٱلْإِنسَٰنَ مِن صَلْصَٰلٍ كَٱلْفَخَّارِ ﴿١٤﴾ وَخَلَقَ ٱلْجَآنَّ
مِن مَّارِجٍ مِّن نَّارٍ ﴿١٥﴾ فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿١٦﴾

He created mankind out of dried clay, like pottery [14] the jinn out of smokeless fire [15] which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny? [16] (The Quran, ar-Rahman: 14 - 16)

Sounding clay (salsal) means clay which has dried out and hardened, and this is one of the stages through which man passed during the first creation of Adam peace be upon him. Allah the Almighty told us that man was created from water, clay, soil and transmuted dark sludge; thus, he passed through all these stages until he became sounding clay, like pottery.

So, these are all stages of the same thing. Water and soil combined make clay, and if clay is left, it ferments and decays, along with its scent changing so that it becomes transmuted sludge. Then, it dries and becomes sounding clay.

Therefore, no particular one of these stages was the beginning of creation; rather, all of them combined constituted the beginning of creation. Allah the Exalted tells us: 'I did not make them witnesses of the creation of the heavens and the earth, nor of the creation of their own selves…' (al-Kahf: 51). So, we do not know how we were created except for such things which Allah has told us of the matter, and therefore, He follows these Words by saying: '…and neither do I [have any need to] take as My helpers [beings] that lead [men] astray.' (al-Kahf: 51) Those who lead others astray are ones who describe the creation in terms other than that which Allah has told us of such as the one who came along(1) and told us that the origin of man was an ape which then evolved into man. The Quran anticipated this and spoke of what would come in the future, and it warned us not to trust these lies and fabrications against Allah.

Thus, when Allah the Almighty speaks to us about a matter of the unseen which the mind has difficulty comprehending, He clarifies it for us by using something visible which is comparable to it. Indeed, we did not witness the first creation, and it is a matter of the unseen, but we have seen its opposite, which is death, and we have witnessed this plainly. Death brings an end to life, and usually destruction is the mirror image of building: that which is built first is destroyed last, and that which is built last is destroyed first.

Thus, creation began with water, soil and clay, then transmuted sludge and then sounding clay like pottery. Then after that, Allah blew something of His Spirit into it so that life quickened within it. As for death, it begins with the exit of the spirit, and then the body dries out so it becomes as sounding clay; then, its scent changes so it smells like transmuted sludge; then, all the water evaporates, and there is nothing left but materials which degrade into soil. So from the death which we witness, we can take evidence of the unseen matter of 'He created mankind out of dried clay, like pottery.' (ar-Rahman: 14)

He then says: 'the jinns out of smokeless fire' (ar-Rahman: 15). The word marij means a clear flame unadulterated by any smoke. The nature of fire is subtler than that of clay since fire is quick moving and penetrating, unlike clay which does not penetrate in this way. For example, if you have an apple and you are in one room, can the person in the room next door feel the presence of the apple? However, fire is different because it penetrates through the wall so that the person on the other side can feel its heat. This is where the jinns get their power. They have the power to penetrate through things and are not impeded by anything material. This means that they were created from the translucency of fire, whilst we were created from the solidness of clay; this is why they can see us, but we cannot see them. Allah Glorified is He says: 'Which then of your Lord's blessings do you both deny?' (ar-Rahman: 13)

رَبُّ ٱلْمَشْرِقَيْنِ وَرَبُّ ٱلْمَغْرِبَيْنِ ﴿١٧﴾ فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿١٨﴾

He is Lord of the two risings and Lord of the two settings [17] Which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny? [18]
(The Quran, ar-Rahman: 17-18)

Allah the Almighty mentions in this verse the points of sunrise and sunset in the context of His favours, which means that there must be many favours contained within them. When we examine these two words mashriq meaning 'east' or 'point of sunrise', and maghrib meaning 'west' or 'point of sunset', in the Quran, we find that they are sometimes given as singulars and sometimes as duals. He says: 'The Lord of the east and the west [is He]…' (al-Muzzammil: 9). Yet, in another verse, He says: '[He is] the Lord of the two farthest points of sunrise, and the Lord of the two farthest points of sunset. Which, then, of your Lord's favours can you disavow?' (ar-Rahman: 17-18) Likewise, He says: 'But nay! I call to witness [Our being] the Lord of all the points of sunrise and sunset…' (al-Ma'arij: 40).

The reason for this plurality is that there are several locations; in one place there is a point of rising and a point of setting for the sun, but when the sun sets for you, it rises for someone else. Thus, there is a sunset with every sunrise and a sunrise with every sunset.

So there are two points of sunrise and two points of sunset, and the revolving motion of the earth gives us a sunrise and a sunset at every moment so that here are multiple sunrises and sunsets. Allah Glorified is He says: 'Which then of your Lord's blessings do you both deny?' (ar-Rahman: 18)

Allah Glorified is He says:

مَرَجَ ٱلۡبَحۡرَيۡنِ يَلۡتَقِيَانِ ﴿١٩﴾ بَيۡنَهُمَا بَرۡزَخٞ لَّا يَبۡغِيَانِ ﴿٢٠﴾ فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿٢١﴾

He released the two bodies of [fresh and salt] water. They meet [19] yet there is a barrier between them they do not cross [20] which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny? [21] (The Quran, ar-Rahman: 19 - 21)

'He released' means that He has brought together 'the two bodies of [fresh salt] water', or in other words, the fresh and the salty, '…meet' (ar-Rahman: 19); what this means is that they exist side by side or follow one another. 'Yet, there is a barrier' means that a boundary prevents them from mixing: '…barrier between them they do not cross' (ar-Rahman: 20); neither of them can infringe upon the other. This is one of the signs of creation. Fresh water comes into contact with salt water without either diffusing into the other. This is why when you to go a place like 'Areesh, you find the finest kinds of palm trees growing on the beach. If these trees were nourished by salt water, they would not be so fine, but Allah has ordained it to be this way.

Read: 'Are you not aware that it is Allah Who sends down water from the skies, and then causes it to travel through the earth in the shape of springs?'

(az-Zumar: 21) He the Almighty says: 'We send down water from the skies in accordance with a measure [set by Us], and then We cause it to lodge in the earth, but, behold, We are most certainly able to withdraw this [blessing]' (al-Mu'minun: 18).

Allah's Power preserves fresh water so that it does not mix with salty water. This is why you find that fresh water is found higher up than salty water. If you go to Dumyat, you will find that the fresh water of the Nile extends for some distance out into the salt water, without the salt water intruding into the fresh. Allah Glorified is He says: 'which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny?' (ar-Rahman: 21)

Allah Glorified is He says:

يَخۡرُجُ مِنۡهُمَا ٱللُّؤۡلُؤُ وَٱلۡمَرۡجَانُ ﴿٢٢﴾ فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿٢٣﴾

Pearls come forth from them: large ones, and small, brilliant ones [22] Which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny? [23]

The meaning of 'Pearls come forth from them: …' (ar-Rahman: 22) is out of the two waters, fresh and salty. Yet, pearls (great and small alike) only come out of salt water. We can understand this if we consider the story (1) of the court doorman who went to propose marriage to Saniyya bint Mahdiyya. They asked him, 'What is your job?' He said, 'I am the court doorman.' 'And how much do your earn,' they asked. 'Well,' he said, 'the judge and I are paid one hundred pounds.'

So, His Words 'Pearls come forth from them: …' (ar-Rahman: 22) mean from the sum of them together(2); now, scientists say that pearls (both great and small) are only found in those areas of the sea into which fresh water flows.(3) 'Which then of your Lord's blessings do you both deny?' (ar-Rahman: 23).

(1) The story of the court's secretary who went to ask Saniyya bint Mahdiyya's hand in marriage

(2) Al-Qurtubi confirms this in his Tafsir.

(3) Even some of the scholars of old stated this, including Al-Qurtubi in his Tasfir.

وَلَهُ ٱلْجَوَارِ ٱلْمُنشَـَٔاتُ فِى ٱلْبَحْرِ كَٱلْأَعْلَـٰمِ ﴿٢٤﴾ فَبِأَىِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿٢٥﴾

His are the moving ships that float, high as mountains, on the sea [24] Which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny? [25] (The Quran, ar-Rahman: 24 - 25)

'His', meaning Allah's, 'are the moving ships', the ships which sail on the surface of the water. These are ships 'that float', for they are made for sailing on the sea (or produced by the sea) 'high as mountains through the seas' (ar-Rahman: 24); this means they are like great and prominent mountains, or huge palaces. 'Which then of your Lord's blessings do you both deny?' (ar-Rahman: 25)

It is amazing that our master Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him informed us of this, despite the fact that he never made a seagoing voyage and was not familiar with these kinds of ships. The ships that existed at the time of our master Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him were small and flat with only one tier; multi-tiered ships were not invented until the eighteenth century CE. Therefore, this verse is a miracle and a sign of prophethood, along with being proof of the truth of what the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him conveyed to us from Allah.

He the Almighty then says:

كُلُّ مَنْ عَلَيْهَا فَانٍ ﴿٢٦﴾ وَيَبْقَىٰ وَجْهُ رَبِّكَ ذُو ٱلْجَلَـٰلِ وَٱلْإِكْرَامِ ﴿٢٧﴾
فَبِأَىِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿٢٨﴾

Everyone on earth perishes; [26] all that remains is the Face of your Lord, full of majesty, bestowing honour [27] Which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny? [28] (The Quran, ar-Rahman: 26 - 28)

His Words 'Everyone on earth…' (ar-Rahman: 26) mean everyone who is upon the earth. The earth is not specifically mentioned in this verse, but scholars say that a pronoun can refer to something which has been recently stated or to something which is intuitively obvious as is this case. Allah says: '…perishes' (ar-Rahman: 26); this means that one is bound to die.

All' …that remains is…' after everything has passed away '…the face of your Lord (wajh)' (ar-Rahman: 27); the word wajh literally means 'face', but it can also express the self or being because for all mankind the face is what identifies the person, as no two people are exactly alike; thus, the face represents the self.

Therefore, 'the face of your Lord' means His Being. This issue serves as a rebuttal to those who say that no figurative interpretation of the Quran is allowed, for if so, then what can you say about this verse? (1)

The meaning of 'full of Majesty' is the Possessor of magnificence and absolute self-sufficiency; as for 'and glory' (ar-Rahman: 27), this means the Possessor of absolute munificence and bounty. 'Which then of your Lord’s blessings do you both deny?' (ar-Rahman: 28)

Allah says:

يَسْـَٔلُهُۥ مَن فِى ٱلسَّمَـٰوَٰتِ وَٱلْأَرْضِ ۚ كُلَّ يَوْمٍ هُوَ فِى شَأْنٍ ﴿٢٩﴾ فَبِأَىِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿٣٠﴾

Everyone in heaven and earth entreats Him; every day He is at work [29] Which, then, of your Lord’s blessings do you both deny? [30] (The Quran, ar-Rahman: 29 - 30)

The phrase:'…every day He' means that Allah the Almighty '…is at work.' (ar-Rahman: 29) The word ‘day’ means the period of time which includes all moments, both of daylight and night hours. Thus, the meaning of 'every day' in this verse is that in every moment, He manifests Himself in a new way. Every time something happens, in it is manifested a decree which He ordained in pre-eternity.

The Caliph Al-Ma’mun was asked about this, the questioner saying, ‘What does your Lord do now when the pen (of destiny) has long since dried? Furthermore, why, then, does He say: '…every day He is at work' (ar-Rahman: 29)?’ He replied, ‘He does not begin things anew but brings them into the open. He raises some people and lowers others.’(2)

We have explained how all decrees of fate were ordained in pre-eternity and that they are preserved in the Preserved Tablet; all that happens now is the manifestation of this decree in reality. 'Which, then, of your Lord’s blessings do you both deny?' (ar-Rahman: 30)

(1) What the sheikh means is that if we do not understand wajh to be 'Face' here, and we take it literally to mean ‘face’, this would mean that Allah the Almighty is made up of parts which will all pass away except for His face. Thus, scholars say that wajh here must mean 'Face'.

(2) It is narrated that when Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was asked about this verse, He said, 'He forgives sin, relieves distress and raises some people and lowers others.'

Allah says:

سَنَفۡرُغُ لَكُمۡ أَيُّهَ ٱلثَّقَلَانِ ﴿٣١﴾ فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿٣٢﴾

We shall attend to you two huge armies [of jinn and mankind] [31] Which, then, of your Lord’s blessings do you both deny? [32] (The Quran, ar-Rahman: 31-32)

These words are framed as a warning, and what do you think about a warning from Allah Himself? Who could dare disregard it? Yet, Allah’s Most-Mercifulness is still present here because He is warning us in advance of this so that we can prepare for it: 'We shall attend you to…' (ar-Rahman: 31). It is like when you say to your enemy, ‘Tomorrow I am coming for you’; what you mean is ‘Prepare yourself for it.’ Allah the Almighty is saying: ‘We shall take you to task, reckoning you and requiting you, after first giving you some time. You shall not evade Us.’

The '…two huge armies' (ar-Rahman: 31) are the ‘sin-laden two’, the jinns and mankind; they are called thaqalan (‘the two laden ones’ or ‘the two heavy ones’) because they have settled firmly on earth.(1) 'Which, then, of your Lord’s blessings do you both deny?' (ar-Rahman: 32)

He the Almighty then says:

فَٱنفُذُواْۚ لَا تَنفُذُونَ إِلَّا بِسُلۡطَٰنٖ ﴿٣٣﴾ فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿٣٤﴾

Jinn and mankind, if you can pass beyond the regions of heaven and earth, then do so: you will not pass without Our authority [33] Which, then, of your Lord’s blessings do you both deny? [34] (The Quran, ar-Rahman: 33 - 34)

This call is being made to all of jinns and mankind, who were addressed in the previous verse with the words '…you two huge armies' (ar-Rahman: 31).

(1) Ibn Al-Jawzi, Zad Al-Masir

Furthermore, He challenges them all: '…if you can pass beyond the regions of heaven and earth, then do so…' (ar-Rahman: 33). This means that jinns and mankind cannot do such a thing: '…You will not pass without Our Authority' (ar-Rahman: 33); this means that it is a sanction from Allah, for if He were to give this power to any of His created beings, they would be able to do it.

Therefore, some people understand that when man travelled to the moon, this constituted ‘passing beyond the regions of the heavens and the earth’, understanding '…You will not pass without Our Authority' (ar-Rahman: 33) to mean the sanction of science which allowed them to do so.

The fact of the matter is that man’s landing on the moon was not a ‘passing beyond’ because the moon is but a region of the earth, like a suburb of a city. When we reflect upon the distances between planets, we will easily understand this.

Scientists have ascertained that we are eight light minutes from the sun and 2.5 million light years from the Andromeda Galaxy. One light second is three hundred thousand kilometres. So, what about the rest of the stars in the universe? As for the moon, it is only a suburb of the earth.

Now the exemption implied by '…You will not pass without Our authority' (ar-Rahman: 33) affirms that our master Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was truthful in what he informed us about the Night Ascension and Journey, for otherwise, they would have said, ‘How can this be? It is beyond human power.’ It can only be done with a sanction from Allah; if Allah wants someone to pass beyond, he will pass beyond by Allah’s Power.

He the Almighty mentions the jinns before mankind in this verse because they are subtler and quicker moving than we are. In the story of our master Sulaiman (Solomon) peace be upon him we saw that when he wanted to be brought the throne of Balqis, he said to his aides: '…Which of you can bring me her throne?…' (an-Naml: 28) No human being responded because he wanted it to be brought before him quickly: '…she and her followers come unto me in willing surrender to Allah?' (an-Naml: 38) They were on their way to him at the time.

No human being could do this so quickly; however, as for the jinns, one of them said, '…I shall bring it to you before you rise from your council-seat…'

(an-Naml: 39). This was a bold jinni, not an ordinary one, which means that some of the jinns are energetic and skilled, whilst others amongst them do not have this ability.

Furthermore, this offer from the bold jinn would still have taken some time, for Sulaiman (Solomon) peace be upon him was not due to rise from his council-seat for several hours. So, another jinn who was even more skilled than the first and possessed knowledge of scripture said, '…[Nay,] as for me, I shall bring it to you before the twinkling of an eye ceases! ...' (an-Naml: 40) The twinkling of an eye takes no time at all.

Likewise, since jinns have this level of skill in motion, Allah the Almighty mentions them first here because He is issuing a challenge.

Moreover, this challenge pertained to the heavens (samawat), the plural of (sama') 'heaven' or 'sky'. Man has been able to reach as far as the moon, and jinns are able to ascend to listen; yet, all this takes place in the sky of this earth. Thus, has man or have jinns been able to penetrate the other heavens?

These are the heavens which our master Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him ascended through in the company of our master Jibril (Gabriel) peace be upon him until he came to their end at the Lote-Tree of the Uttermost End. So '…You will not pass without Our Authority' (ar-Rahman: 33) does not mean the sanction of science, but it means the sanction of Allah's Power. Otherwise, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him passed through places wherein there is no air to breathe—and how can science do this?

Allah the Almighty then says:

فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿٣٦﴾

A flash of fire and smoke will be released upon you and no one will come to your aid [35] Which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny? [36] (The Quran, ar-Rahman: 35 - 36)

These words are addressed to jinns and mankind: if you want to pass beyond the regions of the heavens and the earth without any sanction from

Allah, 'A flash of fire and smoke will be released upon you, and no one will come to your aid' (ar-Rahman: 35); this means that both jinns and mankind have boundaries of motion beyond which they cannot venture. The meaning of 'a flash of fire' is a pure flame of fire with no smoke, and this kind of fire is extremely hot.

And 'brass' in this verse means melted, or molten, brass, which is an instrument of torture; '…and no one will come to your aid' (ar-Rahman: 35), which means you will not be able to pass by, and you will find no one to defend you from this torment.

Allah Glorified is He says:

فَإِذَا ٱنشَقَّتِ ٱلسَّمَآءُ فَكَانَتْ وَرْدَةً كَٱلدِّهَانِ ﴿٣٧﴾
فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿٣٨﴾ فَيَوْمَئِذٍ لَّا يُسْـَٔلُ عَن ذَنۢبِهِۦٓ إِنسٌ وَلَا جَآنٌّ ﴿٣٩﴾
فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿٤٠﴾

When the sky is torn apart and turns crimson, like red hide [37] Which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny? [38] On that Day neither mankind nor jinn will be asked about their sins [39] Which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny? [40] (The Quran, ar-Rahman: 37 - 40)

We may observe in this verse that the word used for 'when' is idha, which is used in Arabic to introduce a conditional clause: 'When the sky is torn apart…' (ar-Rahman: 37). The main clause is 'On that Day neither mankind nor jinns will be asked about their sins.' (ar-Rahman: 39) So between the conditional clause and the main clause there is a separation because in each of them there is a sign and a wonder, and each of them are amongst Allah's favours; thus, each of them is mentioned in a separate verse and followed by 'Which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny?' (ar-Rahman: 38)

The renting asunder of the sky is one of the signs of the Resurrection and the Day of Reckoning, the Day when all shall be asked about what they have done. Because of this, some orientalists objected to this verse and said that it contradicts what Allah says elsewhere: '"And halt them [there]!" [And then,] behold, they shall be asked, "How is it that [now] you cannot succour one another?" Nay, but on that Day they would willingly surrender [to Allah].' (as-Saffat: 24-26)

The reason they think there is a contradiction in this verse is that they do not have a proper understanding and mastery of the language. The word su'al (question) in Arabic has two aspects: the pupil asks the teacher to learn the truth from him, and the teacher asks the pupil to make sure he knows the truth. Therefore, His Words '"And halt them [there]!" [And then,] behold, they shall be asked' (as-Saffat: 24) refer to how they will be questioned so that they themselves will admit the truth.

Likewise, the meaning of '…neither mankind nor jinns will be asked about their sins' (ar-Rahman: 39) is that Allah will not need to hear their words or their confession since He will have recorded all their actions, and His angels will have written their deeds, so He will have no need to ask them about it.

Allah Glorified is He then says:

فَبِأَىِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ (٤٢)

The guilty will be known by their mark and will be seized by their foreheads and their feet [41] Which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny? [42]
(The Quran, ar-Rahman: 41-42)

This describes one of the moments of the Day of Resurrection when the angels of chastisement will know those who were lost in sin by marks which identify them. Those lost in sin will be known '…by their mark…' (ar-Rahman: 41) meaning by their blackened faces, and the angels will seize them by their forelocks, namely the hair at the front of their heads, and by their feet, and then cast them into hell—we seek refuge in Allah! This seizure will be a humiliation and a debasement, in addition to the suffering because the forelock is a place of human pride and dignity.

Allah Glorified is He says:

هَٰذِهِۦ جَهَنَّمُ ٱلَّتِى يُكَذِّبُ بِهَا ٱلْمُجْرِمُونَ ﴿٤٣﴾
يَطُوفُونَ بَيْنَهَا وَبَيْنَ حَمِيمٍ ءَانٍ ﴿٤٤﴾ فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿٤٥﴾

This is the Hell the guilty deny [43] but they will go round between its flames and scalding water. [44] Which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny? [45]
(The Quran, ar-Rahman: 43 - 45)

Allah the Almighty will chide them, rebuke them, and increase their woe, for the angels will say to them: 'This is Hell…' (ar-Rahman: 43); in other words, it means 'The place you now see, and whose heat you now feel, is the very place you used to belie in the life of the world. So taste its heat now!'

Observe that the imperfect verb is used in this verse, expressing a continuous action: '…the guilty deny' (ar-Rahman: 43). What this means is that they call it a lie here in this world, but on that Day, they will suffer therein and experience its heat directly.

So, He evoked their denial in this world, as though they have taken in with them to the Resurrection, and this is all the more bitter for them, along with being a sterner rebuke for them.

He then says: 'between its [Hell]…scalding water'; this refers to boiling hot water which is so hot it scalds their insides as they drink it. Allah the Exalted then says: '…but they will go round between its flames and scalding water' (ar-Rahman: 44). As the heat of hell increases, they will look for water to lessen it, so they will be taken to boiling water, of which they will drink their fill in the hope that it will lessen the burning of hell, yet it will make them even hotter: 'Out of the frying pan into the fire' as the saying goes.

Yet, we see that the Quran still follows this by saying: 'Which then of your Lord's blessings do you both deny?' (ar-Rahman: 45) This description of the suffering of hell is counted amongst Allah's favours and His blessings upon us since it inspires us to flee from this fate and to avoid the things which lead to it.

Allah the Almighty then describes the contrasting state:

فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿٤٩﴾ فِيهِمَا عَيْنَانِ تَجْرِيَانِ ﴿٥٠﴾ فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿٥١﴾
فِيهِمَا مِن كُلِّ فَٰكِهَةٍ زَوْجَانِ ﴿٥٢﴾ فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿٥٣﴾

For those who fear [the time when they will] stand before their Lord there are two gardens. [46] Which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny? [47] With shading branches. [48] Which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny? [49] With a pair of flowing springs. [50] Which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny? [51] With every kind of fruit in pairs. [52] Which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny? [53] (The Quran, ar-Rahman: 46 - 53)

What this means is that those who fear Allah's Attributes of Majesty and fear His reckoning along with His chastisement—what is their reward? They shall have '…two gardens' (ar-Rahman: 46), not only one garden. The orientalists have also objected to this by saying: 'Is it one garden, or two?' Now, scholars say it is two gardens in this verse because Allah is speaking about mankind and jinns, and jinns will have their own garden.

Others understand it differently, saying that it means the paradise of a believer which Allah has prepared for him in the Hereafter and then the paradise of a disbeliever which was prepared for him by Allah in case he believed; however, since he did not believe, a believer inherited it from him, as we have explained already. Thus, a believer will have two gardens.

Furthermore, our master Shaqiq Al-Balkhi,(1)(2) a great gnostic, said something of interest about this verse. He had a pupil named Hatim(3) who was nicknamed Al-Asamm, 'the Deaf One', and the story of how he got this nickname is itself a story which shows us the fine conduct of those who fear their Lord's presence.

(1) A Sufi of the 9th century CE

(2) The story of Shaqiq Al-Balkhi with his disciple Hatim Al-Asamm

(3) The story of Hatim Al-Asamm, the deaf one, and the reason behind calling him so

They say that a woman came to him to ask him for something, but as she was about to speak she broke wind and was sorely embarrassed. However, Hatim said, ‘Raise your voice, I did not hear you’, pretending to be deaf to put her at ease. From then on, they called him ‘the Deaf One’.

So, Al-Balhki asked his pupil Hatim Al-Asamm, ‘How long have you been with me, Hatim?’ ‘Thirty-three years,’ he answered. He asked, ‘And what have you gained from me in all this time?’ He said, ‘Several things. ‘Indeed we belong to Allah, and to Him we shall return!’ he said. ‘In all this time, you have only gained a few things?’ Hatim replied, ‘It is as I have said.’ ‘Then what are these things?’ asked Al-Balkhi. Hatim replied, ‘I have come to love paradise because I have seen that people amongst whom I live are all consumed by spite and malice toward one another, so I have come to hate those traits. When I heard Allah say: "…We shall have removed whatever unworthy thoughts or feelings may have been [lingering] in their bosoms…" (al-A‘raf: 43), I yearned for the paradise wherein there is no malice.’ ‘Well done,’ said Al-Balkhi. ‘And what is the second?’ Hatim replied, ‘I have learned that the path which leads to it is fear of Allah: "For those who fear [the time when they will] stand before their Lord, there are two gardens" (ar-Rahman: 46). Thus, I feared my Lord’s Presence and rid my soul of its caprice, so that it became easy for me to obey Him.’ [He was alluding to Allah’s Words: 'But unto him who shall have stood in fear of his Lord's Presence and held back his inner self from base desires, Paradise will truly be the goal!' (an-Nazi‘at: 40-41)]

‘Well done, Hatim,' said Al-Balkhi. ‘And what is the third?’ Hatim replied, ‘I examined mankind and found that every one of them has a beloved whom he loves and accompanies, but however great his love may be, it ends when he enters the grave. So, I loved to have a companion who does not leave me even in my grave, and I found no such companion but my own deeds.’ Well done, Hatim,’ said Al-Balkhi. ‘What is the fourth?’ Hatim replied, ‘I saw that everyone loves something and looks after it, and yet, it may be stolen by a thief or snatched away by the whim of fate. Therefore, I dedicated all my deeds to Allah so that my Lord could look after them for me.’ ‘What is the fifth?’ he asked. Hatim replied, ‘I learnt that people make enemies of one another, envy one another, and hate one another. Thus, when I searched for the reason for this, I found that it is that some have abundant provisions, and others have scanty provisions. When I read Allah's Words "…It is We Who distribute their means of livelihood amongst them in the life of this world…" (az-Zukhruf: 32), my heart was at peace, and I cast from me all malice, rancour and envy.

'What is the sixth?' he asked. Hatim replied, 'I saw the enmity that exists amongst people, and then read: "Behold, Satan is a foe unto you: so treat him as a foe…" (Fatir: 6). So, I left all enmity towards my fellow man and directed all my enmity towards Satan.' 'And what is the last, O, Hatim?' he asked. Hatim replied, 'I found that people put their trust in things such as wealth, property, business and manufacture, yet these things will eventually leave their owners, so I put my trust in the Living One Who neither dies nor leaves.'

Furthermore, His Words 'With shading branches' (ar-Rahman: 48) mean that the two gardens contain many branches (afnan, plural of fanan); they are filled with many branches which intertwine, so that they cover and shade those who walk amid them.

'With a pair of flowing springs' (ar-Rahman: 50) refers to fresh water. Allah Glorified is He says: 'With every kind of fruit in pairs' (ar-Rahman: 52). Scholars say that this means there will be two kinds, one of which you will recognise and the other of which you will not. If this is how it will be with fruits, which are luxuries, then what do you imagine it will be with necessities?

Allah the Almighty then says:

تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿٥٥﴾ فِيهِنَّ قَٰصِرَٰتُ ٱلطَّرْفِ لَمْ يَطْمِثْهُنَّ إِنسٌ قَبْلَهُمْ وَلَا جَآنٌّ ﴿٥٦﴾ فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ
رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿٥٧﴾ كَأَنَّهُنَّ ٱلْيَاقُوتُ وَٱلْمَرْجَانُ ﴿٥٨﴾ فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿٥٩﴾

They will sit on couches upholstered with brocade, the fruit of both gardens within easy reach. [54] Which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny? [55] There will be maidens restraining their glances, untouched beforehand by man or jinn. [56] Which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny? [57] Like rubies and brilliant pearls. [58] Which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny? [59] (The Quran, ar-Rahman: 54 - 59)

The verses continue to list the different kinds of favours which will be manifested in paradise; one of these is that you will see the dwellers of paradise 'sit on couches upholstered with brocade…' (ar-Rahman: 54), which means rich silk. Allah Glorified is He says: '…the fruit of both gardens within easy reach' (ar-Rahman: 54). The word Jana here means fruit which is ripe and ready to be picked, and 'within easy reach' means that this fruit will be close at hand without anything to prevent you from taking it, and nor anything between you and it. It will be close at hand wherever you are and whatever position you are in: you will take it when you are standing, when you are sitting and when you are lying down on this silken couch of yours.

There will be more than this, for you will only need to think of something and you will find it before you(1) without your having to move a muscle or make any effort to get it: 'In that [Paradise] they shall have whatever they may desire, but there is yet more with Us.' (Qaf: 35).

He then tells us of another of paradise’s favours, that which is 'There will be maidens restraining their glances…' (ar-Rahman: 56). This means that there will be beautiful women whose eyes will look only upon their spouses, and not stray anywhere else.

Allah Glorified is He says: '…untouched beforehand by man or jinn' (ar-Rahman: 56). That is, they have never before been wed, and no one has taken their virginity, neither human nor jinn. This further means that they are preserved exclusively for the dwellers of paradise. Allah the Almighty says, 'Like…' which means as beautiful as '…rubies and brilliant pearls' (ar-Rahman: 58).

One might ask how all this favour can be attained. The next verses give the answer:

Shall the reward of good be anything but good? [60]
Which, then, of your Lord’s blessings do you both deny? [61]
(The Quran, ar-Rahman: 60 - 61)

Actions are rewarded like-for-like; when a believer does good, Allah does good to him, for He has mercy on him for such things wherein he has fallen short—for action alone is not enough to reach this goal.

(1) See Ibn Abu Ad-Dunya and As-Suyuti: Ibn Mas‘ud Allah be pleased with him narrated that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘You will behold the birds of paradise and desire one, and it will fall roasted into your hands.'

وَمِن دُونِهِمَا جَنَّتَانِ (٦٢) فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ (٦٣)

There are two other gardens below these two. [62] Which, then, of your Lord’s blessings do you both deny? [63] Both of deepest green. [64] Which, then, of your Lord’s blessings do you both deny? [65] (The Quran, ar-Rahman: 62 - 65)

What this means is that alongside the two gardens mentioned earlier, and lower than them in rank, there are two other gardens. This is because paradise is a place of levels and ranks, according to people’s deeds and their level of sincerity to Allah. These levels will be explained in the chapter of al-Waqi‘a. The previously mentioned two gardens, with all these blessings, is the level of those who are nearest to Allah and besides them and lower than them are two other gardens, for ‘the companions of the right’.

The meaning of 'Both of deepest green' (ar-Rahman: 64) is that these two gardens will be a deep green colour which is almost black; this colour is only found in fertile lands which are well irrigated with fresh water.

Therefore after describing the gardens as being of the deepest green, He then says:

فِيهِمَا عَيْنَانِ نَضَّاخَتَانِ (٦٦) فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ (٦٧)
فِيهِمَا فَٰكِهَةٌ وَنَخْلٌ وَرُمَّانٌ (٦٨) فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ (٦٩)

With a pair of gushing springs. [66] Which, then, of your Lord’s blessings do you both deny? [67] With fruits – date palms and pomegranate trees. [68] Which, then, of your Lord’s blessings do you both deny? [69] (The Quran, ar-Rahman: 66 - 69)

This means that in these two gardens will be two springs gushing forth with water, and fresh water is the source of growth and verdure in plants. He then mentions that another of this level’s favours is that 'With fruits—date palms and pomegranate trees' (ar-Rahman: 68). Of a higher level, He says: 'With every kind of fruit in pairs' (ar-Rahman: 52).

حُورٞ مَّقۡصُورَٰتٞ فِي ٱلۡخِيَامِ ﴿٧٢﴾ فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿٧٣﴾
لَمۡ يَطۡمِثۡهُنَّ إِنسٞ قَبۡلَهُمۡ وَلَا جَآنّٞ ﴿٧٤﴾ فَبِأَيِّ ءَالَآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَذِّبَانِ ﴿٧٥﴾

There are good-natured, beautiful maidens. [70] Which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny? [71] Dark-eyed, sheltered in pavilions. [72] Which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny? [73] Untouched beforehand by man or jinn. [74] Which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny? [75] (The Quran, ar-Rahman: 70 - 75)

This is also a description of the maidens of paradise; they are 'most excellent', which scholars say refers to their character and comportment, and they are beautiful in face and appearance. They are hur or 'Dark-eyed' (ar-Rahman: 72). The related word hawr describes an intense whiteness and blackness of the eyes, for which a woman is praised; '…sheltered in pavilions…' (ar-Rahman: 72) means that they keep to their houses, neither acting immodestly nor going out to work.

Allah the Almighty then says:

They will all sit on green cushions and fine carpets. [76] Which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny? [77] (The Quran, ar-Rahman: 76 - 77)

The word rafraf (cushions) means a pillow which is leaned upon or a rug upon which is sat. The word for 'carpets' in this verse is 'abqari which means an especially beautiful carpet, yet in ordinary Arabic usage, it means 'genius'. The word comes from a valley in Arabic called 'Abqar which Arabs used to believe was haunted by jinns, so when someone said something brilliant, they would call him 'abqari, meaning that he went to the valley of 'Abqar and learnt it from jinns there. Thus, it came to be that they would call anything of outstanding and seemingly super-human craftsmanship 'abqari.

Allah the Almighty then ends the chapter by praising Himself by saying:

تَبَٰرَكَ ٱسۡمُ رَبِّكَ ذِى ٱلۡجَلَٰلِ وَٱلۡإِكۡرَامِ ﴿٧٨﴾

Blessed is the name of your Lord, full of majesty, bestowing honour [78]

The word tabarak 'Blessed' is derived from baraka which means ‘blessing’, so He affirms the blessing of the Name itself—even the Name is hallowed.

The word tabarak is a verb in the perfect madi (past tense), and no other derivation of this word exists, such as the imperfect or the active participle. The meaning of it is the following: Allah’s goodness is immense and ever increasing, and this goodness is magnificent and free of any flaw.

Allah the Almighty says elsewhere: 'Blessed is He Who from on high, step by step, has bestowed upon His servant the standard by which to discern the true from the false…' (al-Furqan: 1). Also, He says: 'Blessed be He in whose hand all dominion rests…' (al-Mulk: 1). Thus, the attribute is ascribed to the Named and to His Essence.

As for here, He says: 'Blessed be your Lord’s name…' (ar-Rahman: 78) which affirms the attribute for His Name. Therefore, how can the Name be magnified and of immense goodness, when these attributes seem to belong more properly to the Named?

Scholars say that when names are given, they are given with optimism for the named. For example, we might call a child Dhakiy (clever) hoping that he will turn out to be clever or Sa‘id (happy) hoping that he will turn out to be happy, and so on.

After this, the reality of the person named might turn out to be the opposite of his name; we call him Amin (honest), and he ends up being a traitor. Thus, blessed indeed is the name whose attribute conforms to that of the named, so that we call him Sa‘id, and he ends up being happy.

In such a case, the name is imbibed with the blessing of the named such that it agrees with it and does not contradict it. Therefore, He the Almighty says, 'Blessed is the name of your Lord…' (ar-Rahman: 78), for His is the Name which has the best claim over this blessing.

Allah Glorified is He is: '…full of Majesty, bestowing honour' (ar-Rahman: 78). He is the possessor of Magnificence, the possessor of awe and dread and the possessor of Power, Might, and Dominance. We said before that Allah has Attributes of Majesty, such as those we have just mentioned, and He also has Attributes of Beauty, such as Mercy, Kindness, Forgiveness, Clemency, and so on.

So, when Allah the Almighty manifests His Attributes of Majesty for you to behold, you see that which strikes fear and awe into you; likewise, when He manifests His Attributes of Beauty for you to behold, you see that which gives you peace, happiness, and joy.

Therefore, when someone said to us, ‘I find that my state in Medina is different to that in Mecca’, we replied to him, ‘That is so because Allah manifests Himself in Mecca with His Attributes of Majesty and manifests Himself with His Attributes of Beauty in Medina.’

Furthermore, just as He is 'full of Majesty', He is at the same time 'full of Glory', showering mankind with His Grace, Favour and Goodness.

al-Waqi'a

In the Name of God,[1] the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of al-Waqi‘a [2] (The Final Day):

When that which is coming arrives [1] no one will be able to deny it has come [2]
(The Quran, al-Waqi‘a: 1-2)

The verb waqa‘a (to come to pass) literally means ‘to fall from above’ in such a way that nothing can prevent it from falling, and we say it was gravity that made it fall. The root letters *w-q-‘*also relate to the concept of weighty and awe-inspiring matters. For example, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘Now, [as for the deaf and blind of heart] when the word [of truth] stands revealed (waqa‘a) against them, We shall bring forth unto them out of the earth a creature which will tell them…’ (an-Naml: 82). He says: ‘Whereupon the truth was established (waqa‘a), and vain was proved all that they had been doing.’ (al-A‘raf: 118) Likewise, He says: ‘Said [Hud (Eber)]: “You are already beset (waqa‘a) by loathsome evil and by your Lord’s condemnation…”’ (al-A‘raf: 71).

(1) The Islamic conception of 'Allah' is not the same as the Christian and Jewish conception of 'God'. However, the word 'Allah' does not refer to a tribal god or God of only Muslims, it refers to the Creator of the whole world, the One God (who has no son). We prefer, however, to use 'Allah' rather than 'God' as it has a unique character: it cannot be used to refer to any false gods and does not have any derivatives like goddess, gods, etc. It is a unique word used solely to describe the One God of this universe.

(2) It is chapter 56 in the written order of the Quran, containing 96 verses, revealed in Mecca according to Al-Hasan, ‘Ikrima, Jabir and ‘Ata’; Ibn ‘Abbas and Qatada who said it was all revealed in Mecca save for one verse, no. 82, which was revealed in Medina. It was revealed between the chapters of Ta Ha and ash-Shu‘ara’. (Tafsir Al-Qurtubi)

Therefore, the verb waqa'a suggests something inevitable and bound to occur by the command of Allah Who ordained and set it to occur in this way, just as you set the alarm clock to wake you for the dawn prayer; when it rings at dawn and rouses you, this is not the favour or greatness of the alarm clock, but it is of the one who set it to go off at that time. Likewise, when the truth is established and comes to pass, the greatness belongs to Him Who established it.

Thus, the words 'come to pass' indicate that the thing was inevitable and cannot be put off; so He the Almighty says: 'When that which is coming arrives' (al-Waqi'a: 1); referring to the Resurrection that is certain to come to pass and was ordained as such before time began so that it is as though it has already come to pass, for the one speaking these words is Allah the Almighty Whose command cannot be rebutted.

He gave it this name in pre-eternity, and then says of it: 'no one will be able to deny it has come' (al-Waqi'a: 2). This is because they were belying it and denying that there is any life after death, so Allah the Almighty speaks of the Resurrection as though it has already come to pass: 'no one will be able to deny it has come' (al-Waqi'a: 2); it is as though it is already here.

So, He called it 'no one will be able to deny it has come' in pre-eternity and set a precise time for it known only to Him, and then said, 'This thing which must come to pass, of which We have told you, has indeed already come to pass, and it might have been possible to deny it before it happened, but now that it has happened there can be no denial.'

Therefore, Al-Waqi'a is one of the names of the Resurrection. It has many other names which illustrate for us an aspect of this terrible and portentous Day. Reflect on these names: it is The Disaster, The Reality, The Sudden Calamity, The Clamour, and That Which Must Come to Pass. Each of these names has a lesson, and this Day combines all of these meanings in their different aspects, all at the same time.

Also, by looking into the occurrences of the root w-q-' in the Quran, we find that it usually means something terrifying except when Allah Glorified is He says: 'And he who forsakes the domain of evil for the sake of Allah shall find on earth many a lonely road as well as life abundant. If anyone leaves his home, fleeing from evil unto Allah and His Prophet, and then death overtakes him, his reward is ready (waqa‘a) with Allah…’ (an-Nisa’: 100).

This means that his reward falls to Allah. To understand the Words ‘his reward is ready (waqa‘a) with Allah’, we must read again Allah’s Words: ‘Now, [as for the deaf and blind of heart] when the word [of truth] stands revealed (waqa‘a) against them…’ (an-Naml: 82).

The word waqa‘a in this verse means ‘to fall’, but not like the falling which we know; it means to go unto Allah. Why does Allah use the word waqa‘a here to mean ‘to fall’? He the Almighty does it to alert us to something important which is that the reward is more eager to go to the servant than the servant is to get the reward. If a servant dies, the reward rushes to him and is kept for him with Allah, and the reward knows exactly to whom it is meant to go.

Thus, the meaning of ‘no one will be able to deny it has come’ (al-Waqi‘a: 2) is that when it comes to pass, no one will be able to belie it. It is like the Words: ‘Be constant in [your] prayer from (li) the time when the sun has passed its zenith…’ (al-Isra’: 78); the preposition li in this verse means ‘when’, namely when the sun has passed its zenith.

Allah the Almighty then says

خَافِضَةٌ رَّافِعَةٌ ﴿٣﴾ إِذَا رُجَّتِ ٱلْأَرْضُ رَجًّا ﴿٤﴾
وَبُسَّتِ ٱلْجِبَالُ بَسًّا ﴿٥﴾ فَكَانَتْ هَبَآءً مُّنۢبَثًّا ﴿٦﴾

Bringing low and raising high [3] When the earth is shaken violently [4] and the mountains are ground to powder [5] and turn to scattered dust [6] (The Quran, al-Waqi‘a: 3 - 6)

What this means is that it abases some people and exalts others; it debases disbelievers who belied it and did not act with it in mind. Allah says: ‘But as for those who are bent on denying the truth, their [good] deeds are like a mirage in the desert, which the thirsty supposes to be water—until, when he approaches it, he finds that it was nothing. Instead, he finds [that] Allah [has always been present] with him and [that] He will pay him his account in full, for Allah is swift in reckoning!’ (an-Nur: 39)

It exalts those who believed in it, worked with it in mind, and awaited it and hoped for the best reward from it; so, it raises them through the levels of the gardens paradise. Allah the Exalted says: '…whereas those who have attained to faith stand in awe of it and know it to be the truth…' (al-Kahf: 42). Thus, the Resurrection will lower disbeliever down through the levels of hell and raise believers up through the levels of paradise.

'When the earth is shaken violently (rujjat)' (al-Waqi'a: 4). This earth, made firm by solid mountains, will shake and tremble. From this, we may understand that Allah the Almighty created the earth in a moving state and then made it firm with mountains; for had it already been firm, it would not need the mountains. Therefore, these verses affirm that the earth moves and revolves.

The word rajj means to shake from its position and shake it violently, just as a peg is pulled from the ground; you do not pull it out from the ground all at once, but you move it back and forth to uproot it and weaken the ground's grip on it, so it is easier to pull out. In the same way, the earth will be violently shaken and disturbed.

Elsewhere in the Quran, Allah the Almighty describes this as an earthquake: 'When the earth is shaken with its [final] earthquake' (az-Zalzala: 1); also, He says: '...verily, the earthquake of the Hour (of Judgment) is a terrible thing.' (al-Hajj: 1) Since this shaking will be violent and strong, He emphasises its violence by repeating the root word (this is called the maf'ul mutlaq in Arabic or 'absolute or cognate object' that expresses the manner of the action) by saying: 'When the earth is shaken violently' (al-Waqi'a: 4), this means a strong and violent shaking. Can you imagine how this will be like when it will be Allah Who does it?

Allah Glorified is He then says: 'and the mountains are ground to powder (bussat).' (al-Waqi'a: 5) This will be the result of the violent shaking which will break these hard immovable mountains into pieces, making them seem like ground flour, as the rural dish that we call bisia (a mixture of roasted, ground grains). The verbal form bussat means to be crumbled and grounded into powder.

Allah Glorified is He says: 'and turn to scattered dust' (al-Waqi'a: 6). What this means is that it will be like dust too small to be seen with the naked eye unless a beam of sunlight shines directly on it because of its minuteness.

In another verse, the Quran expresses this meaning in another way: 'And the mountains will be like wool, fluffed up.' (al-Qari`a: 5) What this means is that mountains will become like carded wool. When the threads of wool are separated, they become like scattered dust.

So, the Resurrection will begin with the destruction of this entire universe. All the fixed constituents of the universe around you will come to an end; the sky will split and crack, the stars will fall and disperse, the mountains will crumble, and then it will be time for you to stand and be judged.

Allah Glorified is He says:

وَكُنتُمۡ أَزۡوَٰجٗا ثَلَٰثَةٗ ﴿٧﴾ فَأَصۡحَٰبُ ٱلۡمَيۡمَنَةِ مَآ أَصۡحَٰبُ ٱلۡمَيۡمَنَةِ ﴿٨﴾
وَأَصۡحَٰبُ ٱلۡمَشۡـَٔمَةِ مَآ أَصۡحَٰبُ ٱلۡمَشۡـَٔمَةِ ﴿٩﴾ وَٱلسَّٰبِقُونَ ٱلسَّٰبِقُونَ ﴿١٠﴾
أُوْلَٰٓئِكَ ٱلۡمُقَرَّبُونَ ﴿١١﴾ فِي جَنَّٰتِ ٱلنَّعِيمِ ﴿١٢﴾

Then you will be sorted into three classes. [7] Those on the Right — what people they are! [8] Those on the Left — what people they are! [9] And those in front — ahead indeed! [10] For these will be the ones brought nearest to God [11] in Gardens of Bliss [12] (The Quran, al-Waqi'a: 7 - 12)

That is, mankind at this juncture will be divided into three categories: the first are those on the right side (ashab al-maymana or the companions of the right), who elsewhere are called ashab al-yamin (which means the same thing). They are those who will receive their books of deeds in their right hands. The statement '…who will be those on the Right Hand? (al-Waqi'a: 8) magnifies and exalts this status. This linguistic structure resembles His saying elsewhere: '…and there covered them from the sea that which covered them' (Ta Ha: 78). (In both cases, the word ma implies a sense of special importance to what follows it.)

The right side symbolises goodness; therefore, the right hand is used for good and virtuous actions. The Islamic Law urges us to use the right hand and prefer the right side. However, the left side is not denied the favour of the right, for when you cut your fingernails, for example, the right hand cuts the left-hand nails precisely and safely, while the left hand cuts the right-hand nails haphazardly and imprecisely.

This teaches us a lesson in life, which is that we can benefit from those who are better than us, so we must not hate them or envy them because they compensate for what we ourselves lack, their goodness benefits us and they make up for our own shortcomings.

Owing to this, the Islamic Law encourages us to seek knowledge, to teach it to people and to spread virtue throughout society; it also encourages us to enjoin it upon others and to forbid indecent and immoral acts, for the good of others will affect you, as will their evil; therefore, if all people adhere to Allah's Law, they would be at peace and behave peacefully with one another.

Also, the True Lord the Exalted has told us that those on the right side will be proud of their records of deeds when they receive them in their right hands, and they will boast of them by saying: '"Here, read my record! Indeed, I was certain that I would be meeting my account." So, he will be in a pleasant life—in a lofty Paradise.' (al-Haqqa: 19-22) These are the ones whom the Resurrection exalts.

The second group are those on the left side—we seek Allah's refuge from this— who shall receive their records of deeds in their left hands: 'and those on the Left Hand; who will be those on the Left Hand?' (al-Waqi'a: 9) The right side is associated with good omens and goodness, while the left side is associated with bad omens and evil.

The Quran tells us what they will say when they receive their books of deeds in their left hands: 'Oh, I wish I had not been given my record and had not known what my account is. I wish my death had been the decisive one. My wealth has not availed me. Gone from me is my authority.' (al-Haqqa: 25-29)

Then, a command will be issued concerning them: 'Seize him and shackle him. Then into Hellfire drive him. Then into a chain whose length is seventy cubits insert him.' (al-Haqqa: 30-32)

The third and final of the three groups is 'And those foremost will be foremost.' (al-Waqi'a: 10) He repeats the word 'foremost' to honour them. Now though these people are mentioned last, they are the best and the highest ranked of all three groups, which is made clear by what He the Most High says about them next: 'These will be those nearest' (al-Waqi'a: 11). This means that they will be close to the Throne. So, if you wanted to list them in order with the highest first, you would say the foremost, then those of the right side, then those of the left side.

Thus, these are the three ranks to which people will be assigned in the Hereafter, depending on what their deeds are like in this world. The foremost will be those who have begun their lives with good deeds in their youths, and then have continued in this way until their deaths so that they will be foremost to enter paradise. Then those of the right side, or the companions of the right, will be those who have started their lives with evil deeds in their youths, but then their self-reproaching souls corrected them so they repented and changed their ways and have continued to do good deeds until their death. Then, the people of the left side, or the companions of the left, will be those who have done nothing but evil, from their youth until their death.

Now, paradise is Allah's Gift, and therein will be placed both the foremost and those of the right side except that the foremost will have a place which is higher and nearer to (Allah's) Throne: 'These will be those nearest' (al-Waqi'a: 11). Where will they be? They will be in the Gardens of Bliss. We can infer this from what Allah says in the chapter of az-Zumar: 'and those who kept their duty to their Lord will be led to Paradise in groups, till, when they reach it, and its gates will be opened [before their arrival for their reception], and its keepers will say: "Peace be upon you! You have done well, so enter here to abide eternally therein."' (az-Zumar: 73) After this, He says: 'And you will see the angels surrounding the Throne (of Allah) from all round…' (az-Zumar: 75). Therefore, 'closeness' in this context means closeness to the Throne.

The 'foremost' in this verse means those who vie with others to outstrip them, and the competition here is for goodness, which is something that the Islamic Law encourages. Therefore, the True Lord commands us to vie and compete for good causes: 'And hasten to forgiveness from your Lord and a garden as wide as the heavens and earth, prepared for the righteous.' (Al-'Imran: 133) He also says: 'Race to forgiveness from your Lord and a Garden whose width is like the width of the heavens and earth…' (al-Hadid: 21).

This is a competition of faith and righteous deeds, and it is open to all who want to be foremost and at the same time love for others what they love for themselves. It is a competition free of all rancour and selfishness.

A believer vies with others, and the issue is clear in his mind. Prizes await those who are foremost, and they come from a source which is inexhaustible. It is amazing how a believer strives eagerly to do good deeds in his life and might even strive eagerly for his death because of his longing for the paradise whose signs he has seen, while he lies in the final moments of his life.

So, when people in the countryside say, 'His funeral bier bore him very swiftly', some people deny this and say it is delusion. However, it is indeed true that some good people seem to be sped to the grave by their biers, and by looking at their lives, we see that they were good people and that they are rushing because of their eagerness to receive their rewards. Those who are directly involved in the burial preparations of the deceased know that dead people are marked by certain signs that their ending was good or bad—we seek Allah's refuge from bad ending.

Allah Glorified is He says:

ثُلَّةٌ مِّنَ ٱلۡأَوَّلِينَ (١٣) وَقَلِيلٌ مِّنَ ٱلۡأٓخِرِينَ (١٤)
عَلَىٰ سُرُرٖ مَّوۡضُونَةٖ (١٥) مُّتَّكِـِٔينَ عَلَيۡهَا مُتَقَٰبِلِينَ (١٦)

Many from the past [13] and a few from later generations. [14] On couches of well-woven cloth [15] they will sit facing each other [16]
(The Quran, al-Waqi'a: 13 - 16)

These words are connected with the previous context. The foremost, who are close to Allah, are 'a multitude', the majority of which are composed of 'the first generations.' (al-Waqi'a: 13) These are those people who were first and foremost to embrace Islam, namely the Companions Allah be pleased with them.

So, there were many of the foremost who were close to Allah in the generation of the companions. 'And a few of those [foremost] will be from the later time [generations]' (al-Waqi'a: 14); this means that a minority of them will be from the later generations. Only a few in our generation and those preceding it, at such later times, could be described as being of the foremost who are close to Allah the Exalted.

We often hear arguments where one person says, 'So-and-so is a good man who does so much good that he is like the Companions', and the other responds, 'No, none of us could be like the Companions, and no matter what we do our actions will never reach their level.'

However, the Quran settles this issue for us. The foremost who are close to Allah are present in the Islamic worldwide community; the first of them are those who lived at the time of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and those who followed them, and also even in our time, but there were more of them in the first generations and less of them in the later ones.

The reason there are less now is either because there are more people in general, so that the foremost among them seem to be less, or because wickedness and corruption have become so widespread in these times. Yet, they do exist. A poet said:

The One Who made the truth bitter
Will never leave a generation bereft of people of truth;
And perhaps passion has killed many of its men –
Perished be passion! How many has it killed!

Likewise, His Words '[They will be] on thrones woven with gold and precious stones' (al-Waqi'a: 15) mean that their reward will be to dwell in paradise 'on thrones woven with gold and precious stones'; this is referring to exquisitely and finely embroidered and interlaced with threads of gold. And 'reclining thereon…' (al-Waqi'a: 16) means that they will be upon these thrones. A reclined position indicates tranquility, repose, and comfort. As well'…face to face' (al-Waqi'a: 16) means that they will be positioned face to face, not back to back; this position indicates companionship and comfort when faces filled with joy and cheerfulness are turned to one another. This position will always be possible to them; even when they move, they will not turn their backs to one another.

Allah Glorified is He says:

يَطُوفُ عَلَيْهِمْ وِلْدَٰنٌ مُّخَلَّدُونَ ﴿١٧﴾ بِأَكْوَابٍ وَأَبَارِيقَ وَكَأْسٍ مِّن مَّعِينٍ ﴿١٨﴾
لَّا يُصَدَّعُونَ عَنْهَا وَلَا يُنزِفُونَ ﴿١٩﴾

Everlasting youths will go round among them [17] with glasses, flagons, and cups of a pure drink [18] that causes no headache or intoxication [19]
(The Quran, al-Waqi'a: 17-19)

One of the delights of paradise which they will enjoy is that 'they will be served by immortal boys' (al-Waqi'a: 17); what this means is that they will be waited upon and served glasses of drink by youths, namely young boys with beautiful faces; to behold a beautiful face is itself a blessing. Furthermore, these youths will remain as they are, without growing older.

This is the general state of all the dwellers of paradise; they remain the same age, namely the age of youth and vigour, and never suffer decrepitude or old age. This is why the women there are described as 'loving [their husbands only], equal in age' (al-Waqi'a: 37); this means that they are all of the same age.

Allah Glorified is He says: 'with vessels, pitchers and a cup [of wine] from a flowing spring.' (al-Waqi'a: 18) This means that these immortal youths will wait upon them with goblets, ewers and '…a cup [of wine] from a flowing spring,' (al-Waqi'a: 18) which means filled with fresh water or wine that flows from springs, for these are all drinking vessels.

The difference is that a kub (goblet) means a vessel with no handle or spout; a vessel with both a handle and a spout is called an ibriq (ewer). As for a ka's (cup), it specifically means a drinking vessel containing liquid. (This means an empty cup in Classical Arabic would not be called ka's, but only a full cup would have this name.)

Furthermore, when they partake of these blessings, '…they will get neither any aching of the head…' (al-Waqi'a: 19). Since Allah says '…and a cup [of wine] from a flowing spring' (al-Waqi'a: 18), then these words must be referring to the drinking of wine. Yet, this wine must be different to the wine of this world, for He says '…wherefrom they will get neither any aching of the head…' (al-Waqi'a: 19); what this means is that they will not be affected as one who drinks wine in this world is affected, and they will not get headaches.

The phrase'…nor any intoxication' (al-Waqi'a: 19) means that the wine will not impair their mental faculties as the wine of this world does. Thus, the wine of the Hereafter will be a pure pleasure, free of all ills and defects. The first thing the wine of this world does to the one who drinks it is to cause him a headache, and then make him feel sick. This is the meaning of '…nor any intoxication' (al-Waqi'a: 19). The wine of the Hereafter gives pleasure without making the drinker feel these bad sensations. It is a pure pleasure and joy without anything to cloud it.

It is strange that many people drink wine because they have a worry which they want to get rid of, so they cloud their minds with alcohol in order not to think about their worry. Yet, this only makes things more complicated; it does not solve problems. Concealing a worry does not remove it. An intelligent person faces his problems and looks for a way to remove his worries through thought, reflection, and seeking practical solutions.

When the Quran describes the wine (of the Hereafter), it says that it is '…delightful to those who drink it…' (Muhammad: 15). Allah the Almighty took something to which people had a connection, which they loved and enjoyed, and made it one of the delights of paradise; however, He purified it from all the defects of worldly wine by saying: '…wherefrom they will get neither any aching of the head nor any intoxication.' (al-Waqi'a: 19)

Allah Glorified is He says:

وَفَٰكِهَةٖ مِّمَّا يَتَخَيَّرُونَ (٢٠) وَلَحۡمِ طَيۡرٖ مِّمَّا يَشۡتَهُونَ (٢١) وَحُورٌ عِينٞ (٢٢)
كَأَمۡثَٰلِ ٱللُّؤۡلُوِٕ ٱلۡمَكۡنُونِ (٢٣) جَزَآءَۢ بِمَا كَانُواْ يَعۡمَلُونَ (٢٤)

[there will be] any fruit they choose [20] the meat of any bird they like [21] and beautiful companions [22] like hidden pearls [23] a reward for what they used to do [24]
(The Quran, al-Waqi'a: 20 - 24)

Another one of the delights of paradise will be that they will find before them fruit '…that they may choose' (al-Waqi'a: 20) and of the kind they love; they will choose from many different kinds in order to know the difference between one and the other. The fact that they have a choice implies that much will be offered to them. The phrase'and the flesh of fowls that they desire,' (al-Waqi'a: 21) means of the kind which they prefer and love. Thus they will be given food, drink, and fruit – so what human pleasure found in this world remains? They say it is the pleasure of women, and therefore, He then says: 'and [there will be] houris [fair females] with wide, lovely eyes [as wives for the pious]' (al-Waqi'a: 22); thus, all forms of pleasure will be included.

The word hur (fair female) is the plural of hawra', derived from hawar which is an attribute of beauty in women describing eyes, which is intense whiteness of the white part of the eye along with intense blackness of the pupils; so, they are strikingly black and strikingly white and wide as well. An ancient Arab poet praised this kind of beauty by saying:

The eyes wherein there is hawar
  Have slain us and never again revived us;
They can overcome even a wise man and render him powerless,
  Though they be the weakest of Allah's human creations!

He then describes these beautiful-eyed companions by saying: 'like unto preserved pearls.' (al-Waqi'a: 23) A pearl is beautiful in itself, with its resplendence and its attractiveness, and yet, it is also 'preserved' which means protected and secured so that it cannot be sullied by dust that would lessen its beauty and resplendence. From 'like unto preserved pearls' (al-Waqi'a: 23), we understand that the beautiful-eyed companions are not like the women of this world in the pleasure they give, for the feelings you experience with them are loftier and more refined than what occurs with the women of this world.

Then, pleasure is elevated until it reaches the highest of levels, wherein there is neither food, nor drink, nor women, and where nothing suffices but the pleasure of beholding Allah the Exalted Himself.

All this is 'a reward for what they used to do.' (al-Waqi'a: 24) This is due to their good deeds, so they attain this reward. This does not mean that the deeds 'pay' for the reward, for it is mentioned in a Noble Hadith that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'None of you shall enter paradise by his deeds.’ The Companions said, ‘Not even you, O, Messenger of Allah?’ He said, ‘Not even I, unless Allah showers me with His Mercy.’(1)

Allah Glorified is He says:

لَا يَسۡمَعُونَ فِيهَا لَغۡوٗا وَلَا تَأۡثِيمًا ﴿٢٥﴾ إِلَّا قِيلٗا سَلَٰمٗا سَلَٰمٗا ﴿٢٦﴾

They will hear no idle or sinful talk there [25]
only clean and wholesome speech [26]
(The Quran, al-Waqi‘a: 25 - 26)

This means that in paradise ‘no evil vain talk will they hear…’ (al-Waqi‘a: 25). The Arabic word laghw means empty, useless talk or false speech. ‘…nor any sinful speech’ (al-Waqi‘a: 25) means they will not lead one another into sinful speech because they will do no sin there at all. The words ‘but only the saying of “Peace, peace”’ (al-Waqi‘a: 26) mean that they will hear nothing there other than the word ‘peace’. This means that they will give greetings of peace to one another, or the angels will greet them; beyond this, it means that the True Lord Glorified is He Himself will greet them as He says in the chapter of Ya Sin: ‘[It will be said to them]: “Peace”, a word from a Merciful Lord.’ (Ya Sin: 58)

وَأَصۡحَٰبُ ٱلۡيَمِينِ مَآ أَصۡحَٰبُ ٱلۡيَمِينِ ﴿٢٧﴾ فِي سِدۡرٖ مَّخۡضُودٖ ﴿٢٨﴾
﴿٣٢﴾ لَّا مَقۡطُوعَةٖ وَلَا مَمۡنُوعَةٖ ﴿٣٣﴾ وَفُرُشٖ مَّرۡفُوعَةٍ ﴿٣٤﴾

Those on the Right, what people they are! [27] They will dwell amid thornless lote-trees [28] and clustered acacia [29] with spreading shade [30] constantly flowing water [31] abundant fruits [32] unfailing, unforbidden [33] with incomparable companions [34] (The Quran, al-Waqi‘a: 27 - 34)

The previous verses have already told us about three groups: those of the right side, those on the left side and the foremost; the reward of the foremost is then made clear, and how most of them are of the early generations and only a few are of the later generations. Now, the verses turn to the reward of those of the right side.

(1) Narrated by Muslim in his Sahih (5037) on the authority of Abu Hurayra

We can observe here that their reward in paradise will be a lower degree than that of the foremost who are close to Allah. It is as though the Quran is now giving the details of these three groups, after first mentioning them in general terms.

Allah says: ‘And those on the Right Hand; who will be those on the Right Hand? (ma ashabu l-yamini)’ (al-Waqi‘a: 27). He repeats their name after the exclamatory maa (maa l-ta`ajjub, or the maa of wonder); this magnifies and honours these people. It is akin to using maa to express your wonder or amazement by saying, ‘I gave him what (maa) I gave him.’ It is also like Allah’s Words: ‘And He revealed to His Servant what (maa) He revealed.’ (an-Najm: 10) This means that He revealed to him something tremendous which can hardly be described or encompassed by words.

Allah Glorified is He says: ‘amongst thornless lote-trees’ (al-Waqi‘a: 28); the word sidr is the plural of sidra and means ‘lote-trees’. This tree has a great distinction, which is that Sidrat-Al-Muntaha (the Lote-Tree of the Uttermost End) is of this type of tree although, of course, it is not like the lote-trees known to us.

In description of its fruit, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said they were as big as hajar jugs (a huge jug known to the Arabs). (1) When the fruit of the lote-tree is ripe and the tree is planted in good soil and a good environment, it is delicious and sweet. You eat one after another and do not want to stop.

What tempers this delight is that the lote-tree has thorns that hurt you whenever you want to pick its fruit. Precious trees often have thorns to protect their fruit, just as roses and date palms do, to protect them from mice and insects.

As for paradise, we said that all the blessings therein are free of all imperfections and anything which might sully their purity. The lote-trees of paradise are ‘thornless’ (makhdud), which means that their thorns have been removed. Allah the Almighty has removed from them all that which is harmful and preserved in them all that which is delightful and pleasurable. Paradise does not contain any blights or pests for which the trees might require protective thorns.

(1) Narrated by Abu Nu’aym in Hilyat Al-Awliya’

The phrase'and banana trees layered [with fruit]' (al-Waqi'a: 29) means banana trees whose fruits are arranged in compact piles, one on top of the other, as bunches of bananas are, with the bananas lined up in an orderly way.

And 'in shade long-extended' (al-Waqi'a: 30) means that the shade is extended at all times and does not decline. As you know, the sun is what causes shade to move and depart, but in paradise, there will be no sun so that the shade that these trees provide will be constant.

Allah Glorified is He says: 'by water flowing constantly' (al-Waqi'a: 31) and then 'and fruit in plenty, whose season is not limited, and their supply will not be cut off.' (al-Waqi'a: 32-33) By Allah, once the delights of food, drink, and fruit have been met, what other human enjoyments remain?

The enjoyment of women remains, and so the Quranic discourse then speaks of it with this subtle phrase, alluding to it by saying: 'and on couches (furush), raised high.' (al-Waqi'a: 34). Now, the word furush literally means beds and the word in Arabic may be used to allude to a person's spouse. This is a lofty expression of this pleasure, which is based on concealment and privacy, and therefore, He then says:

إِنَّآ أَنشَأۡنَٰهُنَّ إِنشَآءٗ ﴿٣٥﴾ فَجَعَلۡنَٰهُنَّ أَبۡكَارًا ﴿٣٦﴾ عُرُبًا أَتۡرَابٗا ﴿٣٧﴾
لِّأَصۡحَٰبِ ٱلۡيَمِينِ ﴿٣٨﴾ ثُلَّةٞ مِّنَ ٱلۡأَوَّلِينَ ﴿٣٩﴾ وَثُلَّةٞ مِّنَ ٱلۡأٓخِرِينَ ﴿٤٠﴾

We have specially created [35] virginal, [36] loving, of matching age [37] for those on the Right [38] many from the past [39] and many from later generations [40] (The Quran, al-Waqi'a: 35 - 40)

Thus, we understand the word furush to be a euphemism for 'women' because He the Exalted says thereafter: 'Verily, We have created them [maidens] of special creation' (al-Waqi'a: 35); this refers to the houris whom Allah forms and creates anew.

So, do not take the image you have of her in this world and say, ‘She will be with me in the Hereafter as well.’ Indeed, she will be with you, if you go to paradise, but she will have another form which is cleansed and purified from all the imperfections that existed in her in this world, and free of all that you do not like about her.

Also, Allah says: ‘…and purified spouses’ (Al-‘Imran: 15). Once I was talking to a friend about Allah’s Words ‘They and their spouses—in shade, reclining on adorned couches’ (Ya Sin: 56), and he said, ‘Ah! Does this mean that so-and-so will be my wife even in paradise?’ I said, ‘Yes, but after Allah has purified her of everything that you do not like about her in this world.’

‘And made them virgins’ (al-Waqi‘a: 36); that is, they will ever remain as virgins no matter how often they couple so that they will never tire of one another. The phrase ‘loving (their spouses only), equal in age’ (al-Waqi‘a: 37) means they will love their spouses and will be all of the same age so that no one will ever be attracted to anyone but their own spouses.

‘A multitude [of those on the Right Hand] will be from the first generation. And a multitude [of those on the Right Hand] will be from the later times.’ (al-Waqi‘a: 39-40) This means that the rank of ‘the companions of the right’ will include many from past times and many from later times, an equal amount from each. As for the higher level (the foremost), they will consist of many of the first generations and a few from later generations.

Allah then tells us about the other side – may He protect us!

بَارِدٖ وَلَا كَرِيمٍ ﴿٤٤﴾ إِنَّهُمۡ كَانُواْ قَبۡلَ ذَٰلِكَ مُتۡرَفِينَ ﴿٤٥﴾ وَكَانُواْ يُصِرُّونَ عَلَى ٱلۡحِنثِ ٱلۡعَظِيمِ
﴿٤٦﴾ وَكَانُواْ يَقُولُونَ أَئِذَا مِتۡنَا وَكُنَّا تُرَابٗا وَعِظَٰمًا أَءِنَّا لَمَبۡعُوثُونَ ﴿٤٧﴾ أَوَءَابَآؤُنَا
ٱلۡأَوَّلُونَ ﴿٤٨﴾ قُلۡ إِنَّ ٱلۡأَوَّلِينَ وَٱلۡأٓخِرِينَ ﴿٤٩﴾ لَمَجۡمُوعُونَ إِلَىٰ مِيقَٰتِ يَوۡمٖ مَّعۡلُومٖ ﴿٥٠﴾

But those on the Left, what people they are! [41]
They will dwell amid scorching wind and scalding water [42] in the shadow of black smoke [43] neither cool nor refreshing [44]
Before, they overindulged in luxury [45] and persisted in great sin [46] always saying, ‘What? When we are dead and have become dust and bones, shall we then be raised up? [47] And our earliest forefathers too?' [48] Say [Prophet], 'The earliest and latest generations. [49] will all be gathered on a predetermined Day [50] (The Quran, al-Waqi'a: 41 - 50)

Those on the left side (or the companions of the left) are those who will receive their records in their left hands—Allah is our refuge! Allah the Almighty says in this verse '…who will be those on the Left Hand? ...' (al-Waqi'a: 41) to place emphasis and draw attention to their condition and to imply that the torments they will suffer are beyond description.They shall be 'in fierce hot wind and boiling water' (al-Waqi'a: 42) meaning that they are enveloped by scorching winds and scalding water. The Arabic word samum (scorching winds) means extremely hot winds that penetrate through the pores of the skin, whereas hamim (boiling water) means extremely hot water.

Allah the Almighty says: 'And shadow of black smoke.' (al-Waqi'a: 43) which is Yahmum meaning very hot, black smoke; when people see it, they will imagine that it will give them shade, yet in fact a fire within it will burn them. Allah the Exalted and the Glorious further describes this shadow by saying that it is 'neither cool nor good' (al-Waqi'a: 44) because we usually hope for shade to be cool and pleasant, protecting us from the sun's heat, along with being soothing and relaxing for those taking shelter under it. As for the shade of these people (Allah is our refuge!), it will be a shadow of billowing smoke.

The Quran then answers the question as to why Allah does all this with them by saying: 'Verily, before that, they indulged in luxury' (al-Waqi'a: 45) meaning during the life of this world, and so their recompense will be akin to their deeds, just as He says of the foremost: '…as a reward for what they used to do.' (as- Sajda: 17)

Thus, those on the left side will meet this fate because of how they indulgently pursued pleasure in the life of this world. Now, pleasure and comfort are not sins in themselves, but these people kept all the pleasure to themselves and neglected to share it with others and were stingy in sharing it with those who had no pleasure of their own. They did not fulfil Allah's commandments pertaining to the comforts they enjoyed. This is what the word mutraf denotes; it is one who abandons himself to the pursuit of pleasures.

As for those who uphold Allah’s Rights and share the comforts they enjoy with others, they are not termed mutrafeen (people abandoned to the pursuit of pleasure) because by enjoying things, they allow others to attain their essential needs. The one who makes his house nice or buys new furniture is not guilty of recklessly pursuing pleasure because he spends his money for the public good and does a service to the lower strata of society who benefit from this.

Furthermore, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘And were persisting in great sin (al-hinth)’ (al-Waqi‘a: 46). The Arabic word Al-hanth means all misdeeds and acts of disobedience which constitute sin. However, scholars say that here it signifies shirk (associating others with Allah in His Divinity or worship) because it is described as ‘great,’ and shirk is the worst of all sins.

Thus, they combined affluence and pleasure with the worst disobedience towards the Bestower, which is disbelief in Him the Exalted. In the same respect, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘Have you not considered those who exchanged the favour of Allah for disbelief and settled their people [in] the home of ruin?’ (Ibrahim: 28) What is even more heinous still: ‘And they used to say, “When we die and become dust and bones, shall we then indeed be resurrected? And also our forefathers?”’ (al-Waqi‘a: 47-48) They deny the Resurrection because they have done nothing that could be of any avail to them on that Day. Once the Resurrection and the Reckoning would occur, their fate would be grave indeed. Thus they prefer to deny the Resurrection. Otherwise, if the Resurrection were on their minds, they would never have dared sin and would never have fallen into disbelief and shirk.

So, Allah replies to them with words that affirm the truth they deny by saying: ‘Say [O, Muhammad], “[Yes] verily, those of old, and those of later times. All will surely be gathered together for appointed Meeting of a known Day.”’ (al-Waqi‘a: 49-50) He has already affirmed it earlier by saying: ‘And there can be no denying of its befalling.’ (al-Waqi‘a: 2)

Therefore Masruq(1) Allah be pleased with him said, ‘Whosoever desires to have knowledge of the first and the last, the life of this world and the Hereafter and reward and punishment, let him read the chapter of al-Waqi`a.’(2)

(1) Masruq ibn Al-Ajda` ibn Malik Al-Hamadani Al-Wadi`i, Abu Aisyah; he was a well-known trustworthy tabi`i from the people of Yemen.

(2) Narrated by Ibn Abu Shaybah and Al-Qurtubi in his Tafsir

It was also narrated that our master `Uthman Allah be pleased with him heard something about `Abdullah ibn Mas`ud Allah be pleased with him which made him cut off his allowance. When Ibn Mas`ud fell ill, `Uthman went to visit him and said, 'Of what do you complain?' He replied, 'I complain of my sins' — and this is the condition of those who live by Allah and for Allah; he did not say 'I complain of a headache' or 'stomach ache'. He said, 'And for what do you hope?' He replied, 'I hope for my Lord's Mercy.' He said, 'Shall we return to you the allowance you should have had?' He said, 'You withheld it from me when I was well, and now you wish to give it to me as I lie dying?' He said, 'It shall be for your children.' He replied, 'They need it not, for I have taught them the chapter of al-Waqi`a. I heard the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him say, "Whoever reads the chapter of al-Waqi`a (every night) shall never suffer poverty."'[1]

فَشَٰرِبُونَ عَلَيْهِ مِنَ ٱلْحَمِيمِ ﴿٥٤﴾ فَشَٰرِبُونَ شُرْبَ ٱلْهِيمِ ﴿٥٥﴾ هَٰذَا نُزُلُهُمْ يَوْمَ ٱلدِّينِ ﴿٥٦﴾

And you who have gone astray and denied the truth [51] will eat from the bitter tree of Zaqqum [52] filling your bellies with it [53] and drink scalding water [54] lapping it like thirsty camels [55] This will be their welcome on the Day of Judgement [56] (The Quran, al-Waqi'a: 51-56)

After affirming to them that they will indeed be resurrected and gathered on a Day known only to Him, the True Lord the Exalted informs them what their requital will be on that Day. The trees of zaqqum are explained in detail in another place in the Quran when Allah the Almighty says: 'Verily, the tree of Zaqqum will be the food of the sinners. Like boiling oil, it will boil in the bellies, like the boiling of scalding water.' (ad-Dukhan: 43-46) He also says regarding it: 'Verily, it is a tree that springs out of the bottom of Hellfire; the shoots of its fruit-stalks are like the heads of devils.' (as-Saffat: 64-65)

Allah the Almighty wants to show us how ugly this tree is, so He compares it to something frightful which no one has seen, namely the heads of devils so that people will go to great extremes in imagining its vileness. We have already explained that if we held a competition for artists to draw a picture of Satan, each artist would present a different vile image from the ones presented by the others. We could gather up millions of depictions of Satan's vileness, each artist drawing the vileness he imagines. Therefore, the Quran compares the tree of zaqqum, which is unknown to us, with the heads of devils, which are also unknown to us. This is not how comparison usually works: we compare something unknown to something known. As we said before, sometimes obscurity is, in itself, disclosure; this is also the case when it comes to the vagueness of the timing of death and the Last Hour.

(1) Narrated by Al-Bayhaqi in Shu`ab Al-Iman and by Al-Qurtubi in his Tafsir

The statement, 'Then you will fill your bellies therewith' (al-Waqi'a: 53) indicates that they will have no other food with which to fill their bellies. This is another kind of the torments they will have to endure, filling their bellies with it. That is the food, but what about the drink? (Allah is our refuge) 'And drink boiling water (hameem) on top of it. So you will drink (that) like thirsty camels!' (al-Waqi'a: 54-55). Hameem means boiling hot water, at the absolute hottest it can possibly be. Allah Glorified is He says: 'So you will drink [that] like thirsty camels (heem)! (al-Waqi'a: 55); the word heem means a thirsty camel which keeps on drinking without being satiated. So, they will fill their bellies of the zaqqum tree. Then they need to drink to abate its heat, but they will be given boiling water to drink, which they will also drink until their bellies are full. In another verse, He says about this boiling water: '…and are given to drink scalding water that will sever their intestines.' (Muhammad: 15)

After this punishment, the True Lord Glorified is He rebukes them by saying: 'That will be their entertainment (nuzuluhum) on the Day of Recompense!' (al-Waqi'a: 56) In Arabic, the word nuzul signifies an 'accommodation' that is prepared to entertain a guest and the food and drink which are presented to him; so the Almighty says in this verse 'That will be their entertainment…' (al-Waqi'a: 56) by way of deriding them.

Allah Glorified is He says:

نَحْنُ خَلَقْنَٰكُمْ فَلَوْلَا تُصَدِّقُونَ ﴿٥٧﴾ أَفَرَءَيْتُم مَّا تُمْنُونَ ﴿٥٨﴾
ءَأَنتُمْ تَخْلُقُونَهُۥٓ أَمْ نَحْنُ ٱلْخَٰلِقُونَ ﴿٥٩﴾ نَحْنُ قَدَّرْنَا بَيْنَكُمُ ٱلْمَوْتَ وَمَا نَحْنُ
بِمَسْبُوقِينَ ﴿٦٠﴾ عَلَىٰٓ أَن نُّبَدِّلَ أَمْثَٰلَكُمْ وَنُنشِئَكُمْ فِى مَا لَا تَعْلَمُونَ ﴿٦١﴾

It was We who created you: will you not believe? [57]
Consider [the semen] you eject [58] do you create it yourselves or are We the Creator? [59] We ordained death to be among you. Nothing could stop Us [60] if We intended to change you and recreate you in a way unknown to you[61]
(The Quran, al-Waqi‘a: 57 - 61)

The matter of creation is acknowledged solely for Allah, and none but He has laid claim to it. Therefore, He speaks of it in this emphatic way: ‘It is We Who have created you…’ (al-Waqi‘a: 57); He is restricting creation to Himself. ‘…then why do you believe not?’ (al-Waqi‘a: 57) This means ‘Now that I have told you this fact, do not belie it and do not believe those misguiding people who tell you about how the creation process was, for they are liars.’

Allah the Almighty says: ‘I did not make them witness to the creation of the heavens and the earth or to the creation of themselves, and I would not have taken the misguiders as assistants.’ (al-Kahf: 51) We said before that a claim is rightfully proved to the claimant as long as no counter-claim is made, and no one else has ever laid claim to creation, not even disbelievers. We can read in the Quran: ‘And if you ask them who created them, they will surely say, “Allah.” How then are they turned away [from the worship of Allah Who created them]?’ (az-Zukhruf: 87). Allah the Most High says: ‘Say, [O, Muhammad], “If there had been with Him [other] gods, as they say, then they [each] would have sought to the Owner of the Throne a way.”’ (al-Isra’: 42)

‘Then tell Me (about) the human semen that you emit.’ (al-Waqi‘a: 58) This is one of the stages of creation, which began first with clay as we are told by the verses which give the details of creation: ‘Who perfected everything which He created and began the creation of man from clay. Then He made his posterity out of the extract of a liquid disdained.’ (as-Sajda: 7-8) So, the first stage was the creation of Adam Allah be pleased with him from clay, and the latter stage was creating his progeny from a humble fluid. Therefore, you can witness the act of procreation which occurs through the meeting of male and female, so take from it evidence of the truth of the first creation. Therefore, Allah the Exalted says: '…then why do you believe not?' (al-Waqi'a: 57) This refers to the truth of your own existence through procreation. The words 'then why' are meant to exhort and inspire reflection.

Therefore, Allah speaks to us about this stage in this verse: 'Then tell Me [about] the human semen that you emit (tumnun).' (al-Waqi'a: 58) Semen (mani) is the fluid which a man casts into the womb of a woman and from which the foetus is formed.

Elsewhere, He says: 'From a sperm-drop when it is emitted.' (an-Najm: 46) The 'drop' here is the sperm by which the creation takes place, and semen is the fluid in which this sperm lives. The True Lord Glorified is He is saying: 'Have you seen this drop, which is almost invisible—do you create from it a perfectly-formed human being, or is it us Who do so?'

Allah the Almighty says: 'Is it you who create it [i.e. make this semen into a perfect human being], or are We the Creator?' (al-Waqi'a: 59) The rhetorical question in this verse is for affirmation, for there is only one possible answer, which is that creation is Allah's Work alone. If you were the creators, none of you would ever be stricken with the problem of infertility.

He Glorified is He then says: 'We have decreed death to you all, and We are not unable, to transfigure you and create you in [forms] that you know not.' (al-Waqi'a: 61). After speaking about creativity and creation from nothing, the True Lord the Exalted says to us: 'Beware of being deluded by the fact that We created you in the best form, for the One Who gave you the life is well able to take it away.'

In another place, Allah Glorified is He says: '[He] Who has created death and life, that He may test you [and thus show] which of you is best in deed. And He is the All-Mighty, the Oft-Forgiving.' (al-Mulk: 2) He mentions death first so that we face life without delusion: the strong should not be deluded with their strength, nor the rich with their riches. Remember always that you will die. So before we can face life, we must face death.

Allah Glorified is He says: '…and We are not unable to transfigure you…' (al-Waqi'a: 60-61). It is like Allah is saying, 'Nothing can overcome Us, and no one can prevent Us from bringing forth a new creation instead of you.' Allah the Almighty says: 'If He will, He can remove you and bring (in your place) a new creation! And for Allah that is not hard or difficult.' (Ibrahim: 19-20) The reality of life affirms this, for the jinns were created before you. '…and create you in [forms] that you know not.' (al-Waqi'a: 61) This means creating you in a hideous form, after you were in the best of forms.

Allah Glorified is He says:

وَلَقَدۡ عَلِمۡتُمُ ٱلنَّشۡأَةَ ٱلۡأُولَىٰ فَلَوۡلَا تَذَكَّرُونَ ﴿٦٢﴾

You have learned how you were first created:
will you not reflect? [62] (The Quran, al-Waqi'a: 62)

Allah the Almighty says: 'And indeed, you have already known the first form of creation…' (al-Waqi'a: 62). This refers to the first creation, the creation of Adam peace be upon him from clay, the truth of which you can deduce from the second creation which you all witness, that of procreation. Therefore, as long as you know this, '…Why then do you not remember or take heed?' (al-Waqi'a: 62). This means that you must bethink yourselves of Allah's Power and keep it always in your minds. They also say that the 'first form of creation' means 'your first creation in the life of this world'.

Allah Glorified is He says:

أَفَرَءَيۡتُم مَّا تَحۡرُثُونَ ﴿٦٣﴾ ءَأَنتُمۡ تَزۡرَعُونَهُۥٓ أَمۡ نَحۡنُ ٱلزَّٰرِعُونَ ﴿٦٤﴾ لَوۡ نَشَآءُ لَجَعَلۡنَٰهُ
حُطَٰمٗا فَظَلۡتُمۡ تَفَكَّهُونَ ﴿٦٥﴾ إِنَّا لَمُغۡرَمُونَ ﴿٦٦﴾ بَلۡ نَحۡنُ مَحۡرُومُونَ ﴿٦٧﴾

Consider the seeds you sow in the ground [63] is it you who make them grow or We? [64] If We wished, We could turn your harvest into chaff and leave you to wail [65] ['We are burdened with debt [66] we are bereft' [67]
(The Quran, al-Waqi'a: 63 - 67)

After speaking to us of the creation of man, the True Lord Glorified is He now speaks to us of the creation of plants: 'Tell Me! The seed that you sow in the ground' (al-Waqi'a: 63). Soil is the place of crops and their growth because before the farmer sows the seeds, he ploughs the land to turn the soil so that it is penetrated by air and becomes more fertile. Just as Adam peace be upon him the first man, was created from the earth, plants are also created from the earth.

Allah the Exalted asks us, and He knows best, so the question must be rhetorical for affirmation: ‘Is it you that make it grow, or are We the Grower?’ (al-Waqi‘a: 64) Thus, He speaks no more about the ploughed soil but speaks about crops since the purpose of ploughing is to grow crops.

The True Lord makes clear the power He has over this matter, for no one has ever claimed that he causes crops to grow from the earth. It is a matter of creation to which no one has ever laid claim. Furthermore, once a plant has grown and matured, can you then protect it? Allah the Exalted says: ‘Were it Our Will, We verily could crumble it to dry pieces, and you would be regretful [or left in wonderment].’ (al-Waqi‘a: 65). Allah could turn it into chaff and dust blown by the wind, from which you could not benefit in any way. So, He has spoken here about human life and its antithesis, death, and then about plant life and its antithesis, namely its drying up and withering away into chaffs.

For this reason, when Allah the Almighty gives a parable of the life of this world, He says: ‘And present to them the example of the life of this world, [its being] like rain which We send down from the sky, and the vegetation of the earth mingles with it and [then] it becomes dry remnants, scattered by the winds. And Allah is ever, over all things, Perfect in Ability.’ (al-Kahf: 45)

Thus, beware of being deluded by your crops and their beauty and lushness, for in reality it is We (Allah) Who cause them to grow, and We are well able to take them away. Your role in the matter, as a human being, amounts to nothing more than casting the seeds into the earth. You play no further role in the growing of the crop or plant, which is carried out by an overwhelming power that belongs solely to Allah.

For example, we may predict a large harvest of blooming cotton plants, but shortly before it is ready for picking it is afflicted by blight and completely ruined without anyone being able to prevent it. Thus, Allah says thereafter: ‘…and you would be regretful [or left in wonderment]’ (al-Waqi‘a: 65); we are left wondering just what has happened and how the harvest could have been taken away so quickly and saying, 'We are indeed ruined!' (al-Waqi'a: 66). This means that we planted but did not harvest! 'Nay, but we are deprived [of our livelihood]!' This means that we have been deprived of the fruits of our harvest.

Allah Glorified is He says:

أَفَرَءَيۡتُمُ ٱلۡمَآءَ ٱلَّذِى تَشۡرَبُونَ ٦٨ ءَأَنتُمۡ أَنزَلۡتُمُوهُ مِنَ ٱلۡمُزۡنِ أَمۡ نَحۡنُ ٱلۡمُنزِلُونَ ٦٩
لَوۡ نَشَآءُ جَعَلۡنَٰهُ أُجَاجٗا فَلَوۡلَا تَشۡكُرُونَ ٧٠

Consider the water you drink [68] was it you who brought it down from the raincloud or We? [69] If We wanted, We could make it bitter: will you not be thankful? [70]

After speaking about food, He now speaks about water; these are the two essential constituents of life: food and water. We explained before that life's constituents are ranked according to how much they are needed: the first of them is air, then water, then food. You need air at every moment and cannot survive without it, for if even a single breath is denied you, you will die. Therefore, Allah, in His Wisdom, has made air universally available so that no one individual could possess it.

Then, when it comes to water, you can go without it for ten days; and therefore, you usually find that water is free, and people rarely own it. As for food, you could go as long as a month without it. This is because if you are denied food, your body can draw nourishment from the fat stored in it.

We can make an observation here concerning the linguistic style used. When the True Lord the Glorious and Exalted speaks about farming and crops, He says: 'Were it Our Will, We verily could crumble (laja`alnahu) it to dry pieces, and you would be regretful [or left in wonderment]' (al-Waqi'a: 65); the verse has lam al-tawkid, or the lam of emphasis, and it is translated as 'verily'. Yet, when He speaks about water, He says: 'If We willed, We could make it salt [and undrinkable]…' (al-Waqi'a: 70); in this verse, He without the lam of emphasis is not used. Scholars say this is because mankind plays a part in the act of farming since he ploughs, sows, and harvests. Yet, when it comes to water, no human being plays any role in it, for the act of causing rain to fall is solely the province of Allah’s Omnipotence. Who else can cause even a drop of rain to fall? Think about the work and processes required for a chemist to prepare even a single cup of distilled water. Therefore, Allah the Exalted says: ‘is it you who cause it from the rainclouds to come down, or are We the Causer of it to come down?’ (al-Waqi‘a: 69) Man plays no part in the bringing down of rain, not even in a superficial way as is the case with farming, He says: ‘If We willed, We could make it salt [and undrinkable]…’ (al-Waqi‘a: 70); this means that it is salty and useless. Then, His question ‘…why then do you not give thanks [to Allah]?’ (al-Waqi‘a: 70) stresses the importance of giving thanks for these favours which are sent to you, favours that happen without your playing any part in them.

Allah Glorified is He says:

أَفَرَءَيۡتُمُ ٱلنَّارَ ٱلَّتِي تُورُونَ ﴿٧١﴾ ءَأَنتُمۡ أَنشَأۡتُمۡ شَجَرَتَهَآ أَمۡ نَحۡنُ ٱلۡمُنشِـُٔونَ ﴿٧٢﴾
نَحۡنُ جَعَلۡنَٰهَا تَذۡكِرَةٗ وَمَتَٰعٗا لِّلۡمُقۡوِينَ ﴿٧٣﴾ فَسَبِّحۡ بِٱسۡمِ رَبِّكَ ٱلۡعَظِيمِ ﴿٧٤﴾

Consider the fire you kindle [71] is it you who make the wood for it grow or We? [72] We made it a reminder, and useful to those who kindle it [73] so [Prophet] glorify the name of your Lord, the Supreme [74] (The Quran, al-Waqi‘a: 71-74)

The meaning of ‘…the fire which you kindle’ (al-Waqi‘a: 71) is the fire that you light using kindling. The question ‘Is it you who made the tree thereof to grow, or are We the Grower?’ (al-Waqi‘a: 72) implies that the origin of fire is the wood which is taken from these trees. Allah Glorified is He says: ‘We have made it a Reminder…’ (al-Waqi‘a: 73); this is an enduring reminder for all. So, you can see how the True Lord Glorified is He mentions a favour of His and its antithesis: He speaks of man’s creation, and then says: ‘We have decreed death to you all…’ (al-Waqi‘a: 60). He speaks of crops, and then says: ‘Were it Our Will, We verily could crumble it to dry pieces…’ (al-Waqi‘a: 65). He speaks of water, and then says: ‘If We willed, We could make it salt…’ (al-Waqi‘a: 70).

However, when it comes to fire (Allah is our refuge), He does not mention its antithesis, but He says after mentioning it: ‘We have made it a Reminder…’

(al-Waqi'a: 73). He caused it to remain so that it may be a reminder for you: '…and an article of use for travellers.' (al-Waqi'a: 73) This alludes to the man who is travelling abroad and wants to light a fire to give him warmth.

After all these favours, there is nothing left but for us to give thanks to Allah for them, and the first of thanks is to say 'Glory be to Him Who blessed us with all these favours!': 'Then glorify with praises the Name of your Lord, the Most Great.' (al-Waqi'a: 74) This is why we find that the words 'Glory be to Allah' are always uttered after every amazing thing: 'Exalted is He Who took His Servant by night from Al-Masjid Al-Haram [in Mecca] to Al-Masjid Al-Aqsa [in Jerusalem]…' (al-Isra': 1) and 'So glory be to Allah when you enter the night and when you enter the morning.' (ar-Rum: 17)

Scholars say that if, when you receive a blessing, you say: 'Glory be to Allah. This is Allah's Will. There is no power save through Allah', you will not see anything bad in this blessing, and it will not be spoiled because you have ascribed the blessing to its Giver, and so He will take care of it. It is like when a manufacturer sells you a product and gives you a one-year guarantee. Thus, when the True Lord Glorified is He gives you a guarantee, it is open and has no time limit.

Allah Glorified is He says:

فَلَآ أُقۡسِمُ بِمَوَٰقِعِ ٱلنُّجُومِ ٧٥ وَإِنَّهُۥ لَقَسَمٞ لَّوۡ تَعۡلَمُونَ عَظِيمٌ ٧٦
إِنَّهُۥ لَقُرۡءَانٞ كَرِيمٞ ٧٧ فِي كِتَٰبٖ مَّكۡنُونٖ ٧٨
لَّا يَمَسُّهُۥٓ إِلَّا ٱلۡمُطَهَّرُونَ ٧٩ تَنزِيلٞ مِّن رَّبِّ ٱلۡعَٰلَمِينَ ٨٠

I swear by the positions of the stars [75] a mighty oath, if you only knew [76] that this is truly a noble Quran [77] in a protected Record [78] that only the purified can touch [79] sent down from the Lord of all being [80]
(The Quran, al-Waqi'a: 75 - 80)

His Words 'But nay, I swear by…' (al-Waqi'a: 75) are meant to affirm and give emphasis. Allah swears here '…by the mansions of the stars' (al-Waqi'a: 75). Now the orientalists did not understand this and objected to the verse by saying: 'How can He say, 'But nay, I swear,' and then give the main clause of the oath right afterwards, as though He said, ‘I do swear’? To explain this, we say that to say ‘I swear’ means to take an oath. In matters of legal rights, they say that the plaintiff has the burden of proof, and the defendant has to swear to his innocence. If there is no proof to be given, we turn to the oath. So an oath is only sworn to give emphasis and in a situation where there is denial.

When you ask, for example, ‘Is Mohammad in the house?’ the answer is ‘Yes, he is,’ not ‘By Allah the Almighty Mohammad is in the house.’ There is no need for all this because you do not doubt or deny the answer. Yet, if the other person feels that you do not believe him, he will emphasise his claim with an oath, saying, ‘By Allah the Almighty it is true.’

So, it is as though when the True Lord the Exalted and the Glorious says: ‘But nay, I swear by the mansions of the stars’ (al-Waqi‘a: 75), the thing to which He is swearing is so clear that it requires no argument, evidence, emphasis or oath. Furthermore, if I were to swear, I would swear by what I say, not by such-and-such.

If you reflect on this oath, which is preceded by a negative, and on its main clause, you would see that it is something clear that does not need to be affirmed by an oath. Take, for example: ‘Nay, I swear by this city [Mecca]’ (al-Balad: 1). To emphasise something which is plain and requires no oath can actually serve to raise doubts about it, so such things should not be emphasised.

The Arabic for mawaqi` an-nujum literally means ‘the positions of the stars’ and it signifies the paths or courses which they follow; this is one of Allah’s creations, in which there are miracles and mysteries. Moreover, the True Lord the Exalted may swear by any of His creations He wills, and for any reason He wills, for He knows these created beings best.

Elsewhere, He says about stars: ‘and landmarks. And by the stars they are [also] guided.’ (an-Nahl: 16). A star has mysteries when it rises and mysteries when it sets (or falls), of which we know nothing; however, the Lord of the stars knows.

This allusive phrase is enough for us: ‘And verily, that is indeed a great oath, if you but know.’ (al-Waqi‘a: 76) Be alert and well aware because in the stars there are many benefits for you of which you are not aware, and the fact that you are not aware of something does not prevent you from benefitting from it, along with gaining from its motion and activity.

A farmer, for example, knows nothing about how a television works or how a signal is transmitted. Yet, he can switch on the television and benefit from its presentations—if only they were beneficial.

This indicates that if you knew the mysteries and benefits of this, you would certainly find it to be great. We see how those who study the stars and their movements and delve into their mysteries say that there is a connection between the stars and mankind, such that each one of us has a star which resembles him. There are bright stars which symbolise famous people, and then stars which are less bright, and stars whose light has not yet reached us. They say that a person's 'star has waned', meaning that he is no longer important.

Then, jawab al-qasam, or the thing sworn about, comes: 'That [this] is indeed an honourable recital [the Noble Quran].' (al-Waqi'a: 77) This means that this Book which you have before you is noble, and we sense that there is a kind of aptness here since the stars nujum were the object of the oath, and the thing sworn about is munajjam (the Quran came down in stages). So, the heavenly najm (star) is mentioned along with the Quranic najm (coming down in stages).

He describes the Quran as karim (noble) because the person who is karim (in Arabic) is the one who gives what he has without stinginess; likewise, the Quran gives to each generation after the other, an infinite gift and an unceasing flow.

Allah the Almighty says: 'In a Book well-guarded' (al-Waqi'a: 78). This means that it is guarded in the Preserved Tablet, along with being guarded in people's hearts. Owing to its position and lofty rank, it is a must 'which [that Book with Allah] none can touch but the purified' (al-Waqi'a: 79). Those who touch the Quran must be ritually pure of body and also spiritually pure of all deviance and corruption.

The final attribute of the Quran is that it is 'A Revelation [this Quran] from the Lord of the worlds.' (al-Waqi'a: 80) Its revelation is ascribed to the Lord of the worlds Who is generous to believer and disbeliever alike, and the fact that the attribute 'Lord of the worlds' is used here indicates that the Quran is a Book for all the worlds.

It was revealed by the Lord of the worlds Who knows what is best for the worlds and is their Creator and the One Who knows them best. His Quran for them is like a maintenance booklet which protects them and keeps them safe with its instructions and guidance, for the One Who created them is the One Who revealed this guidance.

Therefore, He addressed Adam and Hawwa' (Eve) peace be upon them after they had eaten from the Tree, with the Words: '…but if, as is sure, there comes to you Guidance from Me, so whosoever follows My Guidance will not lose his way nor fall into misery. And whoever turns away from My reminder, his shall be a straitened life, and We will raise him on the Day of Resurrection blind.' (Ta Ha: 123-124)

We said that if a servant follows the guidance of his Lord and Creator, he will never fall into ruin. If you have encountered difficulties in your life, then consider how you have deviated from your Lord's guidance. A pious person once said, 'I see the effects of my sin on my wife and my horse.' Indeed, every time his horse stalled, he would say, 'What have I done?' Allah Glorified is He says: '…Allah does not change the condition of a people [for the worse] unless they change what is in themselves…' (ar-Ra'd: 11).

What tells us that what is meant here by najm is the part-by-part revelation of Quranic verses is that Allah swears by it, i.e. by the Quran: 'That [this] is indeed an honourable recital [the Noble Quran].' (al-Waqi'a: 77) Al-Karim (a generous person) is the one who gives from the good things he has, and this depends on how much generosity he has and how constant it is.

One aspect of the Quran's noble generosity is that it keeps on giving to all aspects of life, both material and spiritual: in agriculture, manufacturing, economics, engineering, language, wisdom, and morality. Another aspect of its generosity is that it does not give everything it has to give all at once because it did not come for one particular time, but it came for all times until the Last Hour.

Had the Quran given all it had to give in one century, every other century would have had to go without receiving anything. We can infer this from the letter sin in Allah's words: 'We will soon show them Our signs' (Fussilat: 53). It is a constant and ever-renewed gift because 'What is with you passes away and what is with Allah is enduring…' (an-Nahl: 96).

The word Al-Karim also means (precious), as when we describe a stone that it is karim (gemstone), which means a stone that is innately precious. Thus, He then says, 'In a Book well-guarded' (al-Waqi'a: 78) because a precious thing must be stored in a safe place that safeguards it.

The Quran is guarded and protected against being touched by any but a pure hand; and in this verse, 'al-mutahharun', or 'the purified' (al-Waqi'a: 79) are the angels. The word mutahhar means those purified by another, not by themselves; that is why He did not say al-mutatahhirun. The scholars who say that it is permissible to touch the written Quran without ritual purity adduce this verse as evidence since the mutatahhir is the one who purifies himself.

This is relevant to the issue of menstruation: (fa'tazilu an-nisa' fi al-mahidi wa la taqrabuhunna hatta yathurna fa idha tathharna fa'tuhunna min haythu amarakumu Allah) '…do not go near them until they have become clean; then when they have cleansed themselves, go in to them as Allah has commanded you…' (al-Baqara: 222). The word yathurna means that their courses have come to an end, whilst tatahharna means that they have bathed. Thus, yathurna comes from another because Allah Glorified is He decrees when menstruation finishes, unlike where bathing is concerned.

As for those who say that ablution is necessary before touching the written Quran, they look at the verse in a general sense, namely that it shows that the written Quran is not like any other book, but must be handled with sanctity. They say that you received it from those who are pure, so do not touch it unless you have purified yourselves.

Allah the Exalted describes the Quran here with three attributes: it is noble, protected in a well-guarded divine writ, and can only be touched by the pure. He is saying to us, 'Take this Book carefully, for it contains a gift which never stops giving, and it came to you safely just as it was sent down from Allah Glorified is He so look after it and do not even let anyone impure touch it.'

Allah the Almighty says: 'A Revelation [this Quran] from the Lord of the worlds' (al-Waqi'a: 80). This summarises and explains all that has just been said. It is a noble Book which only the pure can touch because it is a revelation from the Lord of all being, and ‘the Lord of the worlds’ (al-Waqi‘a: 80) implies sustenance, and the giving of Lordship is to believers and disbelievers, righteous and sinners alike. It is a noble and generous Quran in its gifts, from a generous Lord Who gives unto His sinful servant and does not withhold from him, despite his sin.

Then, the True Lord the Most High says:

أَفَبِهَٰذَا ٱلْحَدِيثِ أَنتُم مُّدْهِنُونَ ﴿٨١﴾ وَتَجْعَلُونَ رِزْقَكُمْ أَنَّكُمْ تُكَذِّبُونَ ﴿٨٢﴾ فَلَوْلَآ إِذَا
بَلَغَتِ ٱلْحُلْقُومَ ﴿٨٣﴾ وَأَنتُمْ حِينَئِذٍ تَنظُرُونَ ﴿٨٤﴾ وَنَحْنُ أَقْرَبُ إِلَيْهِ مِنكُمْ وَلَٰكِن لَّا
تُبْصِرُونَ ﴿٨٥﴾ فَلَوْلَآ إِن كُنتُمْ غَيْرَ مَدِينِينَ ﴿٨٦﴾ تَرْجِعُونَهَآ إِن كُنتُمْ صَٰدِقِينَ ﴿٨٧﴾

How can you scorn this statement? [81] And how, in return for the livelihood you are given, can you deny it? [82] When the soul of a dying man comes up to his throat [83] while you gaze on [84] We are nearer to him than you, though you do not see Us [85] why, if you are not to be judged [86] do you not restore his soul to him, if what you say is true? [87]
(The Quran, al-Waqi‘a: 81 - 87)

The word Hadith, or ‘statement’ (al-Waqi‘a: 81) in this verse refers to the Quran; He says elsewhere: (Allahu anzala ahsana al-Hadithi…’) ‘Allah has sent down the most beautiful of all teachings…’ (az-Zumar: 23); the word Hadith literally means what people say (yatahaddath), and it also means ‘new’. We said before that the Quran gives us something new every day so that its wonders never cease, and it never grows old however much it is repeated.(1)

The word mudhinun, or ‘scorn’ (al-Waqi‘a: 81), is the plural of mudhin, whose origin is what someone does when he used dihan, meaning dahana (to smear something so that it sticks to something else); it also means cajoling, and flattering’. In this verse, it means to doubt and belie, along with scorning this ‘statement’, namely the Noble Quran.

(1) These latter words are from a description of the Quran given by the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him as narrated by At-Tirmidhi (2831) on the authority of ‘Ali ibn Abu Taleb Allah be pleased with him.

The Noble Quran expresses this concept elsewhere by saying: 'When they meet the believers, they say, "We believe," but when they are alone with their evil ones, they say, "We are really with you. We were only mocking."' (al-Baqara: 14) In the chapter of al-Qalam, Allah Glorified is He says: 'they want you to compromise with them, and then they will compromise with you.' (al-Qalam: 9) What this means is that they would like for you to sweet-talk and flatter them.

He says: 'And make [the thanks for] your provision that you deny [the Provider]' (al-Waqi'a: 82). This means that you make your portion and share of the life of this world to belie this Book, and you use the provision which Allah the Almighty sends unto you as a means of belying His guidance, instead of giving thanks to the Provider Who created you out of nothing and gave you sustenance out of nothing.

Indeed, He speaks truly of them when He says: '[Prophet,] do you not see those who, in exchange for Allah's favour, offer only ingratitude and make their people end up in the home of ruin, Hell, where they burn? What an evil place to stay!' (Ibrahim: 28-29).

He then speaks of the fate awaiting the deniers, from which there is no escape: 'Why is it not then that when it (soul) comes up to the throat' (al-Waqi'a: 83)? The subject of the verb 'comes up to the throat' is not mentioned directly here because it is obvious to everyone that it means the spirit; this is akin to His Words: '…until [the sun] was hidden in the veil [of night]' (Sad: 32); this is referring to the sun. Another example is found in His Words: 'If Allah were to punish men according to what they deserve, He would not leave on the back [of the earth] a single living creature…' (Fatir: 45); this means on the surface of the earth, which is obvious. It is true that a pronoun must have a clear antecedent, but if this antecedent is obvious and established, it does not need to be mentioned because it is clear what is meant.

The spirit's 'coming up the throat' is one's deathbed. Remember this moment, O, you who scorn. What will you do? Will you deny when this moment comes, too?

His Words ‘while you gaze on’ (al-Waqi‘a: 84) means that when you look upon a person is in his deathbed and can do nothing for him nor keep death away from him since death belongs solely to Allah, and no one has any say in the matter.

The word falawla, or ‘why, if you’ (al-Waqi‘a: 86) is a particle that indicates encouragement and exhortation, like the words ‘Would you do such-and-such?’ The word hulqum, or ‘…throat…’ (al-Waqi‘a: 83) is the first part of the windpipe which is where the spirit comes out. Scholars said that it does not come from the gullet through which food passes, but it comes from the windpipe through which air passes since air is the most important thing in human life. We spoke about the hierarchy of life’s necessities, namely food, drink, and air, before and said that the most important of them is air, for one cannot go without it at all, and if a single breath is denied you, you will die.

Allah Glorified is He says: ‘We are nearer to him than you, though you do not see Us’ (al-Waqi‘a: 85). This means that at this occasion, when the spirit finally leaves the body without your being able to do anything about it, We are closer to it than you are ‘though you do not see Us’ (al-Waqi‘a: 85).

The Words ‘though you do not see Us’ (al-Waqi‘a: 85) solve many problems for us, for some people understand ‘togetherness with Allah’ in His Words: ‘…Allah is with us…’ (at-Tawba: 40) and ‘for Allah is with those who are mindful of Him…’ (an-Nahl: 128); they take them to mean togetherness of knowledge. Were this true, He would not have said: ‘though you do not see Us’ (al-Waqi‘a: 85).

Thus, it is real togetherness, and if your sight were sharp, you would have been able to see, for there is no reason why this togetherness could not be envisaged impartially. There is an example for this in your own self; your spirit controls all your motions in life, yet do you know in what part of your body it resides?

If you cannot perceive it even though it is inside you, what do you think about the True Lord who controls this whole universe? Togetherness with Allah in His Essence is not like any other essence, and if you cannot perceive some of Allah’s created beings, can you possibly hope to perceive exactly how He the Exalted is with you? Some of Allah’s created beings cannot be perceived, so how could you hope to perceive Him Who created that which cannot be perceived?

Allah the Almighty says: 'Why, if you are not to be judged, do you not restore his soul to him if what you say is true?' (al-Waqi'a: 86-87) This means to go ahead and return the spirit to the body—do you have the power to do so? In fact, you are dependent on Us and in Our grasp; you belong to Us. You do not have the power to return this spirit once We have decreed that it leaves. Thus, you are in the grasp of Divine Omnipotence, even though you were created with free will.

The Words '…if what you say is true' (al-Waqi'a: 87) refer to their claim that there will be no Resurrection or Reckoning.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

فَأَمَّآ إِن كَانَ مِنَ ٱلۡمُقَرَّبِينَ ﴿٨٨﴾ فَرَوۡحٞ وَرَيۡحَانٞ وَجَنَّتُ نَعِيمٖ ﴿٨٩﴾
وَأَمَّآ إِن كَانَ مِنۡ أَصۡحَٰبِ ٱلۡيَمِينِ ﴿٩٠﴾ فَسَلَٰمٞ لَّكَ مِنۡ أَصۡحَٰبِ ٱلۡيَمِينِ ﴿٩١﴾

If that dying person is one of those who will be brought near to God [88] he will have rest, ease, and a Garden of Bliss [89] if he is one of those on the Right [90] [he will hear], 'Peace be on you,' from his companions on the Right [91]
(The Quran, al-Waqi'a: 88 - 91)

At its beginning, the chapter spoke to us about these three groups, and now at its end, the True Lord summarises for us what the fate of each group will be. The first and highest in rank of them are the foremost or those who are drawn near; we said that they are near to Allah Glorified is He and to paradise. They are those who were keen to obey Him and did so consistently, not sullying themselves with sins, and therefore, they attained this rank.

Their reward, then, is rawhun, or 'Rest' (al-Waqi'a: 89), which scholars say means Allah's Mercy and the joy of His favour. The extent of mercy depends on the power of the one who gives it, and if mercy is from Allah the Almighty it has no bounds.

The word rayhan, or 'bounty' (al-Waqi'a: 89), literally means basil, a well-known herb with a pleasant smell. This word also occurs when Allah Glorified is He says: ‘its husked grain, its fragrant plants.’ (ar-Rahman: 12) However, the rayhan of paradise is something else, not at all the same as the one we know in this world.

The Messenger of Allah, Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him made this clear to us, by saying about paradise and its delights, ‘Therein will be bounties which no eye has seen, no ear has heard and no human heart has ever perceived.’(1)

It is obvious that the eye has seen less than the ear has heard because what the eye sees is confined to its power of sight, whilst the ear hears what the eye sees, what it does not see and what others see. The ear is therefore a broader means of reception. Beyond this, paradise contains what the heart has never conceived of and the mind never imagined. The eye sees things that exist, and the ear hears things that exist, but that which the mind has never imagined must be something completely new that we have never encountered and delights which no mind has ever thought of before.

Therefore, we said that when the True Lord the Most High wanted to give us a depiction of the bliss of paradise, He did not describe the bliss itself but gave parables to illustrate it as though it cannot be described with any words we know. Thus, He says: ‘The likeness of Paradise, which the righteous have been promised…’ (ar-Ra‘d: 35).

When you reflect upon the bliss of paradise, you see that it encompasses all human sensations; it contains delights of taste such as food, drink, fruit, water, honey and milk, along with the delights of sight such as seeing Al-hur Al-‘in (beautiful companions) like hidden pearls and the vision of the comely youths, and so on; it also contains the delights of touch, such as silk and brocade of many colours, and delights of hearing: ‘They will hear no idle or sinful talk there, only clean and wholesome speech.’ (al-Waqi‘a: 25-26) It also contains the delights of smell such as rayhan (basil) of which we have just spoken.

He then says: ‘…and a garden of bliss’ (al-Waqi‘a: 89); ‘bliss’ means that which pleases the soul and gives it enjoyment without any annoyance to spoil it. It is a pure bliss because you might consume food and drink in this world and enjoy it, and it might give you pleasure, that is true; however, after a while, you find that it causes you pain or undesirable effects.

(1) Narrated by Al-Bukhari (3005) and Muslim (5050) on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him

Therefore, He says about the food of paradise: ‘…then eat it with enjoyment and with wholesome result.’ (an-Nisa’: 4) It is pleasurable and enjoyable to consume, and it gives you cheer thereafter without causing any annoyance or discomfort.

Allah the Exalted says: ‘And if he is one of those on the Right, then peace to you from those on the right.’ (al-Waqi‘a: 90-91) Those on the right are the second kind of people (of paradise); Allah Glorified is He does not describe the bliss which they will encounter in detail, and He does no more than allude to it; they will be in peace and give greetings of peace to one another, each multitude of them greeting the other: the angels will greet them, or the True Lord Himself will greet them, as He says in the chapter of Ya Sin: ‘”Peace”, a word from the Lord of Mercy.’ (Ya Sin: 58) This greeting of peace from the Merciful Lord involves all blessings.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says

وَأَمَّآ إِن كَانَ مِنَ ٱلْمُكَذِّبِينَ ٱلضَّآلِّينَ ﴿٩٢﴾ فَنُزُلٌ مِّنْ حَمِيمٍ ﴿٩٣﴾ وَتَصْلِيَةُ جَحِيمٍ ﴿٩٤﴾

But if he is one of those who denied the truth and went astray [92] he will be welcomed with scalding water [93] He will burn in Hell [94] (The Quran, al-Waqi‘a: 92 - 94)

These—Allah is our refuge—are the bad people, and their requital shall be in hell; they ‘will be welcomed with scalding water’ (al-Waqi‘a: 93). An-Nuzul is the things by which a guest is shown hospitality; the word nuzul is used in modern Arabic to mean ‘hotel’. These people will have burning despair hameem (scalding water) prepared for them to consume, meaning boiling water of the highest temperature, and they will have hell prepared for them into which they will be cast and whose heat and pain they will suffer: ‘…When their skins have been burnt away, We shall replace them with new ones so that they may continue to feel the pain…’ (an-Nisa’: 56). We said before that this verse is an example of the miraculous nature of the Quran because it is the first one to affirm to the world that the skin is the place where human physical sensation takes place.

This will be the welcome of disbelievers and deniers, whilst the welcome of the believers will be paradise which Allah Glorified is He describes ‘as a welcoming gift from the Most Forgiving, Most Merciful One.’ (Fussilat: 32) An intelligent person may then decide which of these two welcomes he would rather have.

Then, the True Lord the Most High says:

إِنَّ هَٰذَا لَهُوَ حَقُّ ٱلۡيَقِينِ ﴿٩٥﴾ فَسَبِّحۡ بِٱسۡمِ رَبِّكَ ٱلۡعَظِيمِ ﴿٩٦﴾

This is the certain truth [95]
[Prophet], glorify the name of your Lord the Supreme [96] (The Quran, al-Waqi‘a: 95 - 96)

We said that there are three levels of knowledge: ‘ilm al-yaqin (the knowledge of certainty), ‘ayn al-yaqin (the eye of certainty) and haqq al-yaqin (the truth of certainty or certain truth). After speaking of the bliss of paradise and the torment of hell, the True Lord the Most High says: ‘This is the certain truth’ (al-Waqi‘a: 95). This means that when they enter paradise and they experience its delights, and when the people of hell suffer its heat, this will be true certainty, the final stage of knowledge.

The first two of these three levels of knowledge are mentioned in the chapter of at-Takathur (chapter titled ‘Striving for More’): ‘Striving for more distracts you until you go into your graves. No, indeed! You will come to know. No, indeed! In the end you will come to know. No, indeed! If only you knew for certain. You will most definitely see Hellfire; you will see it with the eye of certainty. On that Day, you will be asked about your pleasures.’ (at-Takathur: 1-7)

‘Ilm al-yaqin (the knowledge of certainty) is when a truthful person tells you something; ‘ayn al-yaqin (the eye of certainty) is when you see it for yourself; haqq al-yaqin (the truth of certainty or certain truth) is when you experience it directly.

Here the final stage is spoken of; it will occur on the Day of Resurrection when the dwellers of paradise will directly experience its bliss and the denizens of hell will directly suffer its torments. The requital of the Hereafter is a fair requital, the requital of Him who wrongs no one even the smallest amount. Were it not for this requital, people would not have been able to live in this world.

It is not possible that sinners and bad people who cause misery and woe to society because of their misdeeds could be equal to the believers who please society and benefit them with their virtue, generosity, and righteousness.

It is as though the True Lord Glorified is He is jealously protective of His created beings and angry for their sake, protecting them from falling into ruin; yet, aside from this, the True Lord is free of any need for His created beings; for their obedience does not benefit Him nor their disobedience harm Him. His created beings should receive their reward in the Hereafter by praising Allah the Exalted and glorifying Him because He has given them the blessing of reward in the Hereafter and not neglected them. Even the fire and torment of hell is a favour from Allah Glorified is He. This is why He ends the verses that speak about this matter by saying: 'glorify the name of your Lord the Supreme.' (al-Waqi'a: 96)

So, this glorification is a natural result of what Allah the Almighty has here mentioned, namely the endless bliss of believers and the lasting torment of disbelievers. This should inspire us to glorify Allah. This means to declare that He is free of all imperfections and of any resemblance to His creation, to affirm for Him every Attribute of Majesty, Perfection, and Beauty and to believe that there is nothing like Him.

The True Lord the Most High gives us a sign in our ordinary lives to indicate this: history is filled with tyrants and oppressors like Pharaoh and his kind, and people have gone so far as to make them deities beside Allah the Almighty along with offering them their allegiance and obedience, but no one ever said to them 'Glory be to you!' because this can only be said about Allah the Exalted and no one would dare say it about anyone except Allah.

We said the same about the Divine Name 'Allah' that despite the fact that atheists and disbelievers exist, none of them dare to give themselves this name. The simple reason for this is that they know deep down that Allah Glorified is He is real and that if they were to dare to use this name, He would seize them with a seizure of one Exalted in Might and Perfect in Ability. Therefore, Allah Glorified is He says: '…Do you know of anyone equal to Him?' (Maryam: 65)

This exclusivity is also found in the obligation of fasting; a similar statement to the testimony of 'there is no deity but Allah' could be said to a human being, and we might see hypocrites and sycophants raising their voices and praising an evil tyrant and saying to him, 'There is only you, and no one besides you!' as Pharaoh said: 'You have no other god that I know of except me.' (al-Qasas: 38) History gives many further examples of this.

When it comes to prayer, you might find someone prostrating before his fellow human being and doing obeisance to him, and when it comes to the poor-due, we see those who spend money on parties to honour human beings. Likewise, when it comes to the pilgrimage, there are those who come on a weekly basis to sign the guest book and declare their allegiance and loyalty.

As for fasting, we have never seen anyone worshipping a human being by fasting, and therefore, the Qudsi Hadith says: 'All the deeds the son of Adam does are his, except for fasting. It is Mine, and I reward it personally.'(1)

These three things belong solely to the True Lord the Most High and can only be for Him; this is proof of the absoluteness of Divine Omnipotence and the magnificence of the Supreme Being.

The meaning of His Words 'glorify the name of your Lord the Supreme' (al-Waqi'a: 96) is to glorify the name of Him Whose mightiness cannot be encompassed or comprehended. We say this 'Glory be to my Lord, the Supreme' every time we bow in prayer. The beauty of the Quran's accomplished form can be seen in how the next chapter al-Hadid 'The Iron' begins with the Words 'Everything in the heavens and earth glorifies Allah—He is the Almighty, the Wise.' (al-Hadid: 1) as though the heavens and the earth and all that they contain have responded to the command, 'glorify the name of your Lord the Supreme' (al-Waqi'a: 96), glorifying as they were commanded to When you say subhan Allah (Glory be to Allah), you affirm that He is glorified without stating which of His created beings glorifies Him. It is similar to what we said about the attribute of creation: Allah Glorified is He possesses this attribute, and He was Creator before He created anything; it was by His attribute of creation that He created.

(1) Narrated by Al-Bukhari (1771) and Muslim (1942) on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him

Likewise, He the Almighty was glorified in pre-eternity before there was anyone to glorify Him and merciful before there was anyone to receive His Mercy. So, Allah's Attributes are intrinsically His. When we call someone a poet, we do not say this because he has just composed a poem; rather, he composed the poem because he is a poet, and if he was not a poet in the first place, he would not have composed it.

The word subhan (glory be to) occurs several times in the Quran, followed either by a substantive or by the second person pronoun. It occurs eighteen times before a substantive in eighteen different chapters, first of all in the chapter of Yusuf, '…glory be to Allah. I do not join others with Him.' (Yusuf: 108), and finally in the chapter of al-Qalam, 'they said, "Glory be to Allah, our Lord! Truly, we were doing wrong:' (al-Qalam: 29), about the story of the people of the garden.

It occurs as the first masdar (verbal noun) added to 'kaf of addressing' (ka) in the chapter of al-Baqara 'The Cow': 'qalu subhanaka la 'ilm lana illa ma 'allamtana', 'They said, "May You be glorified! We have knowledge only of what You have taught us…:' (al-Baqara: 32). This form (with kaf of addressing) occurs in nine chapters. The word subhana occurs with ha' al-ghaib (third person ha') in fourteen chapters, the first of which is in the chapter of al-Baqara: 'subhanahu bal lahu ma fi al-samawati wa al-ard kullun lahu qanitun', '…May He be exalted! No! Everything in the heavens and earth belongs to Him, and all surrender with obedience [in worship) to Him.' (al-Baqara: 116) All these occurrences affirm for us that this attribute belonged to Allah the Exalted in pre-eternity, before He created anyone to glorify Him.

Once He had created the heavens and the earth and all that is within them: angels, jinns, men and all other beings; they obeyed the command of their Lord to glorify Him, and still continue to do so. This verb yusabbih (to glorify) is found in the Quran in both past and present perfect tenses to show that it will continue until the Day of Resurrection; it circles throughout the entire universe and will remain as long as the universe remains until the Day of Resurrection.

He says: 'Sabbaha lillahi ma fi as-samawati wa al-ard', 'Everything in the heavens and earth glorifies Allah.' (al-Hadid: 1); Sabbaha literally means (glorified). He also says: 'Yusabbihu lillahi ma fi as-samawati wa ma fi al-ard', 'Everything in the heavens and earth glorifies Allah…' (al-Jumu'a: 1); Yusabbihu means (glorifies) this verb also occurs in the imperative form: 'fasabbih bismi rabbika Al-'Azhim', 'so [Prophet] glorify the name of your Lord, the Supreme.' (al-Waqi'a: 74) This means 'O, mankind, do not break away from this chain of glorification. You must glorify, too.'

For us Arabs, to glorify means to say subhan Allah and every nation has their own way of saying this. Each nation glorifies Allah in their own language; even inanimate objects, plants, and animals glorify Him with their own languages which are known to their Creator. It is not necessary that we ourselves know these languages; if we do not know many human languages, how can we hope to learn the languages of other creatures?

The True Lord the Most High says: 'The seven heavens and the earth and everyone in them glorify Him. There is not a single thing that does not celebrate His praise, though you do not understand their praise…' (al-Isra': 44). This means that they glorify in a literal way with a special language—not that they only glorify indicatively as some people say.

Does Allah Glorified is He not say: '…We made the mountains and the birds celebrate Our praises with Dawud (David). We did all these things' (al-Anbiya': 79)? In the story of our master Sulaiman (Solomon) peace be upon him we saw that ants have a language, hoopoes have a language, and all birds have a language.

The True Lord blessed our master Sulaiman (Solomon) peace be upon him by teaching him this language so that he could understand what these creatures wanted to say to him. Language is based on mutual understanding; humans understand human language, animals understand animal language, plants understand plant language, and inanimate objects understand their own language.

al-Hadid

In the Name of God, the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of al-Hadid (1) (The Iron):

The True Lord the Most High says:

سَبَّحَ لِلَّهِ مَا فِي ٱلسَّمَٰوَٰتِ وَٱلْأَرْضِۖ وَهُوَ ٱلْعَزِيزُ ٱلْحَكِيمُ ١

Everything in the heavens and earth glorifies God(2)—He is the Almighty, the Wise [1] (The Quran, al-Hadid: 1)

This means that everything that exists in the heavens and the earth literally glorifies Allah in its own language which He created for it, not indicatively as some people say(3); the proof of this is that Allah Glorified is He says: '…though you do not understand their praise…' (al-Isra': 44). Therefore, when they say that one of Prophet Muhammad's miracles was that stones glorified Allah while in his hand.(4) We say that it is more accurate to say that the Messenger of Allah, Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him heard the glorification of the stones which were in his hands because stones always glorify Allah, even if they are in the hand of an evil man like Abu Jahl.

(1) It was revealed in Medina according to the consensus of the scholars between the chapter of az-Zalzala and the chapter of Muhammad. It has 29 verses and is chapter 57 in the written order of The Quran.

(2) The Islamic conception of 'Allah' is not the same as the Christian and Jewish conception of 'God'. However, the word 'Allah' does not refer to a tribal god or God of only Muslims, it refers to the Creator of the whole world, the One God (who has no son). We prefer, however, to use 'Allah' rather than 'God' as it has a unique character: it cannot be used to refer to any false gods and does not have any derivatives like goddess, gods, etc. It is a unique word used solely to describe the One God of this universe.

(3) Al-Qurtubi also affirms that it is a literal glorification in his Tafsir, quoting Az-Zajjaj.

(4) Narrated by Abu Na'im in Dala'il An-Nubuwwa

Allah Glorified is He says: '…He is the Almighty, the Wise.' (al-Hadid: 1) Al-'aziz (the Almighty) is He Who overcomes all and cannot be overcome. The word 'aziz also means something precious, rare, and incomparable. The verse combines both meanings. He says elsewhere: '…Who protects, while there is no protection against Him…' (al-Mu'minun: 88).

He is also Al-hakim, or '…the Wise' (al-Hadid: 1); the wise one is he who puts all things in their proper place with wisdom and knowledge. This means that Allah's Mightiness is not governed by tyranny and violence, but is a mightiness governed by wisdom and balance.

Allah Glorified is He says:

لَهُۥ مُلۡكُ ٱلسَّمَٰوَٰتِ وَٱلۡأَرۡضِۖ يُحۡيِۦ وَيُمِيتُۖ وَهُوَ عَلَىٰ كُلِّ شَيۡءٖ قَدِيرٌ ٢

Control of the heavens and earth belongs to Him;
He gives life and death; He has power over all things[2]
(The Quran, al-Hadid: 2)

We said that the Arabic root letter m-l-k form the noun malk as in His statement: 'ma akhlafna maw'idaka bimalkina', '…They said, "We did not break our word to you deliberately…"' (Ta Ha: 87); malk means 'ability and will'. The root letters also form the noun milk which means 'possession'; if you own something, it is your milk. They also form the noun mulk, as in the case here meaning 'dominion'. Mulk means to have ownership over the one who owns: the earth (with that is on it), for example, belongs to mankind; yet, Allah Glorified is He has ultimate possession of all these things and also those who own them.

Now the heavens and earth are the containers of the created beings that dwell within them, and therefore, Allah Glorified is He says elsewhere: 'All that is in the heavens and earth belongs to Him…' (ash-Shura: 4). So, He owns the containers and the contents as well; the heavens contain angels, stars, planets, galaxies and other created beings, whereas the earth contains man, jinn and the protective angels.

Usually, as we have said, contents are more valuable than their containers, and the more valuable something is the more valuable is its container. So, if the heavens and the earth, which are full of great signs and marvels, are so magnificent, then their contents must be more wondrous and magnificent still.

Moreover, this dominion over the heavens and earth encompasses unseen things of which we have no knowledge: 'All that is hidden in the heavens and earth belongs to Allah…' (Hud: 123). These are three stages of Allah's dominion; He has dominion over the heavens and the earth; He has dominion over all that the heavens and the earth contain, and He has dominion over the unseen things of the heavens and the earth.

Every day a new secret of Allah's dominion is discovered in the heavens and the earth, and the verses alert us to this fact by saying: 'Everything in the heavens and on earth, everything between them, everything beneath the soil, belongs to Him.' (Ta Ha: 6)

His Words: '…He gives life and causes death…' (al-Hadid: 2) means that He gives us life and then causes us to die; He brought us to life at first when He created us out of nothing, and then He causes us to die. He then will bring us to life again in the Hereafter.

Giving life and dealing death are solely for Allah the Almighty and no one else participates in them. The Noble Quran tells us the story of the one who argued with Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him about his Lord, claiming that he could give life and deal death. Our master Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him debated with him until he had proven that he had spoken falsely: '[Prophet], have you not thought about the man who disputed with Ibrahim (Abraham) about his Lord because Allah had given him power to rule? When Ibrahim (Abraham) said, "It is my Lord Who gives life and death," he said. "I too give life and death…"' (al-Baqara: 258). When our master Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him felt that the man only wanted to argue, he stopped him from going any further and moved him on to a field where no argument is possible: '…So, Ibrahim (Abraham) said, "Allah brings the sun from the east, so bring it from the west." The disbeliever was dumbfounded…' (al-Baqara: 258).

Allah the Exalted says: '…and He has power over all things.' (al-Hadid: 2) Nothing can prevent Him, and nothing can get in His way. The One Who created out of nothing is all the more able to bring back: ‘So were We incapable of the first creation? No, indeed! Yet they doubt a second creation.’ (Qaf: 15) He also says: ‘He is the One Who originates creation and will do it again—this is even easier for Him. He is above all comparison in the heavens and earth; He is the Almighty, the All Wise.’ (ar-Rum: 27) Where Allah Glorified is He is concerned, there is no concept of ‘easy’ or ‘easier’, but He speaks to us in a way we can understand and goes along with the opponent so that He can provide decisive arguments against him. Allah the Almighty says: ‘…The disbeliever was dumbfounded…’ (al-Baqara: 258). This means that the argument defeated him, and there was nothing more he could say.

The True Lord is the King of kings and has the power to give life and death. He creates from out of nothing and sustains from out of nothing; He is all-sustaining, preserving things as they are. He did not create the universe and then leave it alone; rather, He continues to attend to it with His all-sustaining presence.

Therefore, He says: ‘Indeed, Allah holds the heavens and the earth, lest they cease…’ (Fatir: 41). This is His all-sustaining presence. Allah Glorified is He says: ‘…And if they should cease, no one could hold them [in place] after Him. Indeed, He is Forbearing and Forgiving.’ (Fatir: 41) In the verse under discussion, He says: ‘…and He has power over all things.’ (al-Hadid: 2) This means that His Power is such that He may create whatever He wills; He creates from out of nothing in the beginning, and He creates from things that already exist, and with His all-sustaining Power, He preserves His creation just as He created it.

The third person pronoun huwa (he or him) can only refer to something which has already been mentioned. You say, ‘Zarany zayd fa’akramtuhu’, ‘Zayd visited me, and I treated him well’, where ‘him’ refers to ‘Zayd’. The antecedent is understood from the words that have gone before as we said about the words, ‘hatta tawarat bi al-hijab’, ‘…until [the sun] was hidden in the veil [of night]’ (Sad: 32), which refer to the sun.

Likewise, in this verse, the pronoun could not refer to anyone but the True Lord the Most High whose dominion is shared by none, nor is His Power to create and to give life and death.

He says about His Oneness: ‘Say, “He is Allah the One.”’ (al-Ikhlas: 1) We cannot say that the antecedent of the pronoun ‘He’ in this verse is deferred; rather, its antecedent must have come before it, even if it was not mentioned directly, for it could only be referring to the One Allah Glorified is He Who has no second and Who is One in His Essence and not composed of interdependent parts.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

هُوَ ٱلْأَوَّلُ وَٱلْـَٔاخِرُ وَٱلظَّٰهِرُ وَٱلْبَاطِنُ ۖ وَهُوَ بِكُلِّ شَىْءٍ عَلِيمٌ ٣

He is the First and the Last; the Outer and the Inner; He has knowledge of all things [3] (The Quran, al-Hadid: 3)

Based on the fact that He is the One Who brought all things into existence, then He must be ‘the First’ (al-Hadid: 3) Who existed before all things and ‘the Last’ (al-Hadid: 3) Who will remain after all things have passed into nothingness; this is why we say in praise of Allah Glorified is He ‘O, You, the First, Who came not before a last; O, You, the Last, Who came not after a first!’ Rather, they are both integrated, and the mind can penetrate the matter any further.

His Words: ‘…the Outer and the Inner…’ (al-Hadid: 3) mean that He appears outwardly to us all, yet He is inwardly hidden from us all. He is both Outer and Inner: Outer with His signs and indications in the universe to which none but Him lay claim, and claims are always awarded to their claimants as long as there is no counter-claim: ‘If you [Prophet] ask them who created them they are sure to say, “Allah”, so why are they so deluded?’ (az-Zukhruf: 87) He also says: ‘If you ask them who created the heavens and earth, they are sure to say, “Allah.” Say, “Praise belongs to Allah…”’ (Luqman: 25).

He is the Inner in His Essence: ‘No vision can take Him in, but He takes in all vision. He is the All Subtle, the All Aware.’ (al-An‘am: 103) Human vision can encompass only that which is spatially limited, yet Allah the Exalted is limited by neither space nor time because space and time are both creations of His; thus, when it comes to Allah Glorified is He there is no ‘when’ or ‘where’ because ‘when’ and ‘where’ belong to Him.

The reality of life tells us that human vision can encompass only that which can be seen; there are many abstract and unseen things which cannot be seen by the eye, and yet they exist.

Take justice, for example, by which the balance of truth and falsehood is known; ‘justice is the basis of government’, yet has anyone ever seen it, smelt it or touched it? We know it by its effects when we see the victim of oppression treated fairly and the oppressor punished.

We said the same about the spirit; it certainly exists in your body, but do you know where it is exactly? With this in mind, could we ever hope to know where Allah Glorified is He is when we are but one of His creation and a manifestation of His Power? His Words ‘…He has knowledge of all things.’ (al-Hadid: 3) mean that nothing is beyond His ken; He knows what is inward just as He knows what is outward because He Himself is the Outer and the Inner.

Then, the True Lord the Most High says:

يَعْلَمُ مَا يَلِجُ فِى ٱلْأَرْضِ وَمَا يَخْرُجُ مِنْهَا وَمَا يَنزِلُ مِنَ ٱلسَّمَآءِ وَمَا يَعْرُجُ فِيهَا ۖ
وَهُوَ مَعَكُمْ أَيْنَ مَا كُنتُمْ ۚ وَٱللَّهُ بِمَا تَعْمَلُونَ بَصِيرٌ ﴿٤﴾

It was He who created the heavens and earth in six Days and then established Himself on the throne. He knows what enters the earth and what comes out of it; what descends from the sky and what ascends to it. He is with you wherever you are; He sees all that you do[4] (The Quran, al-Hadid: 4)

He whom all created beings glorify is the One Who created them: ‘It was He Who created the heavens and earth…’ (al-Hadid: 4). This verse speaks about the time the creation covered, namely sittati ayyam (six days); Allah Glorified is He does not need any time to do things but creates things simply by saying ‘Be!’ so that they come to be. However, there is something called the time-span of creation and another thing called the purpose of creation.

We explained this before by giving the example of how a cup of traditional Egyptian yogurt is made. The process takes a few seconds. First, you take the milk and put some yeast in it. That is how long the action takes, but after this it takes several hours for the milk and yeast to react and give us what we want. So, these six days were not the time in which the Creator laboured or worked. They were six days only for us, humans.

The orientalists have objected to this issue and said, 'All the verses speaking of the creation of the heavens and the earth say "…in six days…" (al-Hadid: 4), yet in the chapter of Fussilat, He says: "Say, 'How can you disregard the One Who created the earth in two days? How can you set up other deities as His equals? He is the Lord of all the worlds!' He placed solid mountains on it, blessed it, measured out its varied provisions for all who seek them—all in four Days. Then, He turned to the sky, which was smoke. He said to it and the earth, 'Come into being, willingly or not', and they said, 'We come willingly'— and in two Days He formed seven heavens ..." (Fussilat: 9-12). This seems to total eight days, not six.'

This understanding is a result of their lack of mastery of the language, for what these words actually mean is 'in a total of four days'. The earth was created in two days, and then it was completed by the creation of the firm mountains atop it, and the blessing bestowed on it, and the appointing of its means of subsistence, all of which totalled four days in an hour and to Alexandria in two hours'; the total time here is two hours, not three (Tanta is midway between Cairo and Alexandria).

Concerning His Words, '…and then established Himself on the throne…' (al-Hadid: 4), scholars differ as to what istawa, or 'established' means in this verse. Some of them say it literally means 'established'; Ibn Al-Qayyim (1) said that it means 'settled, rose above and ascended'. However, we say that it cannot mean 'rose above' or 'ascended' since the True Lord is not only above the Throne but is above all things.

The most reasonable interpretation is that since He created all creation and then finished it, 'established' in this verse means that He completed the creation of this universe and everything went well with Him. In our world, we see that kings only sit on their thrones when all the affairs of their kingdom are in order, and no one bothers them or gives them trouble.

(1) 691-751 AH

The word istawa occurs seven times in the Noble Quran and which a poet summarised by saying: Allah's istiwa on the throne is mentioned seven times in His Quran, so count: In the chapter of al-A'raf, then Yunus, then ar-Ra'd, then Ta Ha, Then al-Furqan, then as-Sajda, then al-Hadid—so perceive with certainty!

The verses then continue to mention the signs in His creation: '…He knows what enters the earth and what comes out of it…' (al-Hadid: 4). This means that He knows all that goes into it and all that comes out of it: what goes into the earth is rain which falls from the sky and benefits all created beings; this includes what they do not use flows into springs in the earth, in which fresh water is stored so that people can get it from the depths of the earth in places where there are no rivers. From the earth, there come crops, which are vital for our lives.

Allah Glorified is He says: '…what descends from the sky…' (al-Hadid: 4). Rain comes down from the sky: '…We send it down only according to a well-defined measure.' (al-Hijr: 21) The angels come down from the heavens, as so do the mercies of Allah the Almighty He sends to mankind, and so does the guidance which Allah the Exalted gives unto mankind to direct their activities in life.

'…and what ascends to it…' (al-Hadid: 4) means all that rises into the sky. Sama', or 'sky', is in the singular; the word in this verse is used to mean the entire genus of sky; there are seven skies, and He refers to them all here by using the name of the genus. Ya'ruj, or 'ascends', is originally used with the preposition ila; ya'ruju ilayha literally means 'ascends in it'. In this verse, He says: 'ya'ruju fiha' using the preposition fi (in). Thus, fiha is used here to mean ila (to). The reason for this is that fi implies a sense of intensity. Another example of this usage is found in Allah's Words, '…Their messengers come to them with clear arguments, but they thrust their hands into their mouths and said…' (Ibrahim: 9), which literally says 'fi afwahihim' (in their mouths) rather than ila afwahihim (to their mouths) to impart intensity to their action; it is as though they were saying, 'Bite your tongue or do not move your mouth. I do not want to hear what you have to say.' Another example is '…put their fingers into their ears to keep out the thunderclaps for fear of death…' (al-Baqara: 19).

His Words, '…He is with you wherever you are; He sees all that you do' (al-Hadid: 4), which follows the words concerning the heavens and the earth, is an indication that the True Lord wants to say to us, ‘The heavens and the earth were created in a state of obedience, and they always fulfil their roles without veering away from their created purpose, and they will not be held to account. However, as for you, you indeed shall be held to account because you have free will.’

‘…He is with you wherever you are…’ (al-Hadid: 4); this means that the outward does not veil Him from the inward, and the inward does not veil Him from the outward.

Allah the Almighty says: ‘…He sees all that you do.’ (al-Hadid: 4) He is with you and sees you. If His being with us is through His presence, He would not have then said: ‘He sees all that you do.’ (al-Hadid: 4) Thus, togetherness is by His seeing. He mentions sight, in this verse, to indicate ‘seeing’, and the reality of these kinds of issues cannot be imagined but must simply be accepted, putting in mind that He is Perfect.

As long as Allah the Exalted is with us, and we are and under His sight, we should be aware of this and keep it in mind when we act—why not do so when we keep the presence of other human beings and their being able to see us in mind when we act? These days, people are inventing spying equipment which allow them to know everything that an enemy is planning and doing, capturing it in sound and picture, and by day and by night. Indeed they have done this because they do not have the power to do this intrinsically but must make use of tools, and yet what knowledge do they have compared to Allah’s Knowledge? What eyes do they have compared to Allah’s Eye?

We always say of Allah Glorified is He: ‘When the eye sees, there is no need to ask “where?”’ Every atom of His universe is under His sight, and nothing escapes it. The Qudsi Hadith says: ‘O My slaves! If you believe that I cannot see you, then the fault is in your faith, and if you believe that I can see you, then why have you made Me the least significant of all who look upon you?’(1)

It is as though He is saying to us: ‘Am I less significant to you than My creation since you conceal from them what you do not conceal from Me?’

Allah the Exalted says: ‘They try to hide themselves from people, but they cannot hide from Allah…’ (an-Nisa’: 108).

When the True Lord Glorified is He says, ‘…He knows what enters the earth…’ (al-Hadid: 4), He uses the imperfect tense verb, which indicates the present and future tense because He is speaking to us about reality, for otherwise, Allah’s Knowledge is pre-eternal; He knows all that enters, and all that has ever entered since He created the heavens and the earth.

So, every drop of rain that has been imbibed by the earth since it was created is known to Allah Glorified is He and was indeed recorded in the Preserved Tablet before it was created; furthermore, the fact is that the Pen has dried after having written all that will be until the Day of Resurrection. (1) Therefore, we said that the angels glorify Allah the Almighty more and more as they see reality coming to pass just as it is recorded in the Preserved Tablet.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

لَّهُۥ مُلْكُ ٱلسَّمَٰوَٰتِ وَٱلْأَرْضِ ۚ وَإِلَى ٱللَّهِ تُرْجَعُ ٱلْأُمُورُ ﴿٥﴾
يُولِجُ ٱلَّيْلَ فِى ٱلنَّهَارِ وَيُولِجُ ٱلنَّهَارَ فِى ٱلَّيْلِ ۚ وَهُوَ عَلِيمٌۢ بِذَاتِ ٱلصُّدُورِ ﴿٦﴾

Control of the heavens and earth belongs to Him. Everything is brought back to God [5] He makes night merge into day and day into night. He knows what is in every heart [6] (The Quran, al-Hadid: 5 - 6)

When He says in this verse ‘lahu’, or ‘His…’ (al-Hadid: 5), this could not mean anyone but Allah the Almighty: ‘His is the dominion of the heavens and earth…’ (al-Hadid: 5). This is a claim which the True Lord has made, and no one else has made a counter-claim; so, it must be acknowledged for Him. Allah the Exalted says: ‘…And to Allah are returned [all] matters.’ (al-Hadid: 5) This means that Allah is not only with us in the sense that He sees us and records all that happens with us, and that is all; rather, we will all return to Him in the end so that all the accounts can be reckoned. Allah Glorified is He did not create us for no reason, and He has not left us alone; rather, we shall return to Him—so (O, humans) prepare yourselves for this.

(1) This was stated by Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in a Hadith narrated by Ahmad on the authority of Ibn Abbas Allah be pleased with him.

Allah Glorified is He says: 'He makes night merge into day and day into night…' (al-Hadid: 6). This means that He makes the night enter into the day and makes the day enter the night; each of them takes the place of the other as He says elsewhere: 'It is He Who made the night and day follow each other—so anyone who wishes may be mindful or show gratitude.' (al-Furqan: 62) Each of them follows the other. One of the signs inherent in night and day is that summer has long days and short nights, whilst winter has short days and long nights.

He says: '…He knows what is in every heart.' (al-Hadid: 6); He also says in a previous verse: '…He sees all that you do.' (al-Hadid: 4) This means that His knowledge is not confined only to activities and events; rather, He knows the inner contents of hearts and the secrets of souls and all that we think but do not express by deeds: 'Allah is aware of the most furtive of glances and of all that hearts conceal.' (Ghafir: 19)

This is one of the special characteristics of His Knowledge. His True Greatness does not lie in knowing what He compels us to do but in knowing what we will and will not do after granting us the ability to choose.

For example, imagine if you were to go out with your spouse on an errand and leave your children at home and say to them, 'The food is in the fridge, and everyone can eat what they want.' Then, on the way you were to tell your spouse which children would eat which foods, and then discover upon returning home that your predictions were correct.

The greatness of Allah's Knowledge is that He knows the bare intentions that hearts contain. Since He has knowledge of intentions, He made them the basis for judging actions. Prophet Muhammad said, 'Actions are but intentions...'(1) . Thus, the heart, as it were, governs the conduct of the rest of the body by its convictions. When you spend, for example, He knows what your intention is in doing so, and He accounts you for the intention, not the deed. It is as though the intention guards the action and the outward motion.

(1) Hadith narrated by Al-Bukhari (1) and Muslim (1882) on the authority of 'Umar Allah be pleased with him

So, from ‘…He knows what is in every heart’ (al-Hadid: 6), we understand that what is being spoken about here is the content of the heart, namely the intentions. Therefore, the Noble Hadith says: ‘Verily, in the body there is a morsel of flesh. If it is sound, the whole body is sound, and if it is corrupt, the whole body is corrupt. Verily, it is the heart.’(1) Even when it comes to the Resurrection, He says: ‘The Day when neither wealth nor children can help, when the only one who will be saved is the one who comes before Allah with a sound heart.’ (ash-Shu'ara': 88-89) This means with a pure intention and a pure purpose, free of flaws.

Outwardly, the heart is the organ that pumps blood, the fluid of life to the whole body. If the heart is filled with faith, it will pump this with the blood to the entire body, and this blood will become pure, and so will the whole body with all its parts. They will take only the lawful path, and will do only what conforms to the heart’s faith, doing what they are commanded to do and abstaining from what they are forbidden to do.

فِيهِۖ فَٱلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُواْ مِنكُمۡ وَأَنفَقُواْ لَهُمۡ أَجۡرٞ كَبِيرٞ ٧

Believe in God and His Messenger, and give out of what He has made pass down to you: those of you who believe and give will have a great reward [7] (The Quran, al-Hadid: 7)

There is a strong relation between what is in the heart and ‘Believe in Allah and His Messenger…’ (al-Hadid: 7). Faith is relevant to the heart and resides therein, and when it settles therein, it is called ‘’aqidah’ (creed). The literal meaning of ’aqidah is that which is firmly tied and cannot be untied and something that is confirmed and will not be discussed in the mind. It is settled in the heart and has become a creed because the mind deliberated on it and chose it from all other alternatives.

Do you believe in Allah because of Prophet Muhammad? Or do you believe in Prophet Muhammad because of Allah? ‘Ali Allah be pleased with him said when someone asked him, ‘Did you know about your Lord through Muhammad, or did you know Muhammad through your Lord?’ He answered, ‘I knew my Lord through my Lord, and Muhammad told me what my Lord commands me to do.’

(1) Narrated by Al-Bukhari (50) and Muslim (2996) on the authority of Nu‘man ibn Bashir

After Allah’s Commands to believe in Him and His Messenger, He enjoins something so that the society’s affairs become righteous, spending for the sake of Allah: ‘…give out of what He has made pass down to you…’ (al-Hadid: 7). This verse refers to all that Allah the Almighty has entrusted you with, including money or anything else. This is because man cannot fulfil his purpose in life unless he has all the necessary constituents of life, the first of which is nourishment which results in life activities. There are some members of society who are unable to work and earn their living.

Allah will not leave these people to be lost amidst the powerful and competent people, so He has made spending on them and helping them as part of a believer’s faith. A believer must give the poor the right which Allah has entitled to them and is considered a means of thanking Him for granting him bounties, good health, and well-being which have enabled him to work, earn his living, and spend on himself.

Moreover, when a person who is unable to work finds someone that takes care of him and helps him, he becomes happy and free from worry. He also finds that his Muslim society compensates what he has lost. The bounty comes to him and saves him from begging. Despite his inability to work, he has a high status in this believing society. Allah the Exalted has honoured the poor person by making zakat a condition of a rich man’s faith, while richness is not a condition of a poor man’s faith.

Zakat (obligatory charity) appeases the poor and removes any rancour that may exist in a poor person’s heart against a rich man and makes him content with Allah’s decree. Therefore, the commandment to spend follows the commandment to have faith. Spending in Allah’s sake is a means of preserving life which includes acts of obedience. Therefore, when you provide for the poor, you help him obey Allah the Almighty.

Allah Glorified is He says: ‘…what He has made pass down to you…’ (al-Hadid: 7). This means that you have not brought this sustenance, but Allah has provided you with it and has passed it down to you. In fact, Allah is the Provider because He created the material which you use, the body parts with which you work, the time in which you work, the power, which enables you to work in safety and security and created the mind with which you plan and think.

Thus, you have not brought anything on your own, as Allah the Most High is the source of the wealth which He has entrusted to you. Thus, do not withhold Allah’s wealth from the poor, whom He created and undertook to provide for them.

Allah the Almighty says: ‘…those of you who believe…’ (al-Hadid: 7) in Allah and His Messenger ‘…and give…’ (al-Hadid: 7) of what He has made pass down to them, ‘…will have a great reward’ (al-Hadid: 7). This reward will be great because they will attain the reward for belief in Allah and His Messenger and the reward for spending in His cause and fulfilling the requirements of belief, which is only truly attained by doing righteous deeds and practice. Faith is a speculative and doctrinal matter that cannot do without good deeds. Therefore, faith is always associated with righteous deeds: ‘By time. Indeed, mankind is in loss, except for those who have believed and done righteous deeds and advised each other to truth and advised each other to patience’ (al-’Asr: 1-3).

Moreover, the reward will be great because the reward that Allah gives you is not equal to what you do for His sake, but it is commensurate with the power of the Giver Who rewards good deeds tenfold up to seven hundredfold or more. He Glorified is He says: ‘Allah does not bless usury, and He causes charitable deeds to prosper…’ (al-Baqara: 276). He increases them and makes them prosper for those who do them.

Allah Glorified is He illustrates this for us with an example from our ordinary lives: ‘The parable of those who spend their property in the way of Allah is as the parable of a grain growing seven ears (with) a hundred grains in every ear, and Allah multiplies for whom He pleases, and Allah is Ample-giving, All Knowing.’ (al-Baqara: 261) If paradise which Allah the Exalted created can give a seven hundredfold increase, then what do you think about the Creator of paradise?

Allah Glorified is He says:

وَمَا لَكُمْ لَا تُؤْمِنُونَ بِٱللَّهِ ۙ وَٱلرَّسُولُ يَدْعُوكُمْ لِتُؤْمِنُوا۟
بِرَبِّكُمْ وَقَدْ أَخَذَ مِيثَٰقَكُمْ إِن كُنتُم مُّؤْمِنِينَ ٨

Why should you not believe in God when the Messenger calls you to believe in your Lord, and He has already made a pledge with you, if you have faith? [8]
(The Quran, al-Hadid: 8)

The question in this verse is rhetorical and is intended to express incredulity and rebuke. In other words, it means ‘How could you do this?’ It is strange that they did not believe in Allah while Prophet Muhammad was calling them to believe. Notice He does not say ‘believe in Allah’ but ‘…to believe in your Lord…’ (al-Hadid: 8). Thus, the One in Whom you must believe is your Lord.

The Lord is the Creator, the Guide, the Provider and the Giver Who gives you bounties and created all things for you before He even created you. Your Lord has provided for you after bringing you into existence, has implanted your love in your mother and father’s hearts so that they become happy to bear the difficulties of raising you until you become old enough to look after yourself. Accordingly, does this Lord not deserve that you believe in Him?

Is it not enough that He lets you live in this universe without asking you anything nor charging you of any responsibilities until you reach adulthood and become able to work? The bounties of your Lord have enveloped you before you were even created, and then Allah’s bounties have come to you in the form of moral responsibility.

Therefore, the bounties of your Lord lay the ground for Divine bounties (legal responsibilities) which are also for your own good since you are the one who benefits from them, and Allah does not receive any benefits. Obedience does not benefit Allah the Exalted nor does disobedience harm Him as He created you while possessing the Attributes of Perfection.

Why do you not believe in Him when He has sent a messenger to you to convey His messages and instructions to you? Consider, for example, a worker who works for you in return for a wage, and how he obeys you and does what you ask him to do, and never deviates from your instructions. Yet, you pay only that which meet his needs. What do you think of Allah Who gives you freely and in abundance and blesses you with all these bounties? You should obey him and abide by His commands.

Thus, your disbelief is an astonishing matter: 'Why should you not believe in Allah…' (al-Hadid: 8)? The verse indicates that people's disbelief is unimaginable. In the chapter of al-Baqara, Allah the Almighty says: 'How can you disbelieve in Allah…' (al-Baqara: 28). How could you dare to do so when sound intellect denies and refuses this concept? You must believe Allah especially when a messenger of Allah has come to you to give you evidence and reminders.

Allah the Almighty says: '…and He has already made a pledge with you if you have faith' (al-Hadid: 8). This means that Allah made a pledge with you that you would believe. Thus, faith is an ancient covenant to which you agreed and accepted, so why do you deny it now? Allah the Most High made this pledge with the children of Adam during the phase of the creation of souls without bodies. It is related that Allah made a pledge with them when they were still in his loins: 'And [mention] when your Lord took from the children of Adam—from their loins—their descendants and made them testify of themselves, [saying to them] "Am I not your Lord?" They said, "Yes, we have testified." [This] lest you should say on the day of Resurrection, "Indeed, we were of this unaware." Or [lest] you say, "It was only that our fathers associated [others in worship] with Allah before, and we were but descendants after them. Then would You destroy us for what the falsifiers have done?"' (al-A'raf: 172-173)

Allah the Exalted made this pledge with all children of Adam before they possessed souls which incite evil; once they possessed these souls, this pledge was violated and no longer fulfilled. Since we are all descended from Adam, each one of us has a living cell from him which he took from his father, and his father took it from his father and so on, all the way back to Adam peace be upon him.

Natural disposition for faith, the conscience, and the self-rebuking soul come from this cell. Therefore, when a person commits a sin while heedless of his natural disposition for faith, this sense is quickly awakened so that he reforms his behaviour according to inherent faith.

Then, Allah the Almighty made another pledge with the prophets: 'And [recall, O People of the Scripture] when Allah took the covenant of the prophets, [saying] "Whatever I give you of the Scripture and wisdom and then there comes to you a messenger confirming what is with you, you [must] believe in him and support him." [Allah] said, "Have you acknowledged and taken upon that My commitment?" They said, "We have acknowledged it." He said, "Then bear witness, and I am with you among the witnesses."' (Al-'Imran: 81)

Every messenger was required to tell his community and those who believed in him that another messenger will come after him with certain attributes and that they should not oppose him as his mission is to complete previous messages.

This is what Musa (Moses) and 'Isa (Jesus) peace be upon them said to their people and which the Quran mentioned against the Jews: 'When there came to them a Book from Allah confirming that which was with them—although before they used to pray for victory against those who disbelieved—but [then] when there came to them that which they recognised, they disbelieved in it; so the curse of Allah will be upon the disbelievers.' (al-Baqara: 89)

The Jews in Medina used to implore Allah for assistance to achieve victory over the idolaters by the coming of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. They used to tell them that the time came for a new prophet whom they would follow him and the idolaters will be killed in the way 'Ad and Iram were killed.

However, when Prophet Muhammad came to them, they disbelieved in him and opposed his call because it threatened the temporal power which they enjoyed. Had they accepted that it came from Allah and remembered what their prophet told them about him, then they would not have opposed Prophet Muhammad's call. The status of the disbelievers of Mecca and the idol-worshippers was not as grave as that of the Jews because they were not given any tidings of the coming of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him.

We can deduce that all Divine religions agree upon the same truth and instructions, which are to worship solely Allah, with no associate. The successive religions are only links in a single chain to the effect of submission to Allah Glorified is He as they are parts of the same building, as Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'The similitude of mine and that of the messengers is like that of a person who built a house and he completed it and made it perfect except for the space of a brick. People were surprised at it and said, "Had there been a brick (it would have been complete in all respects)." Allah's Messenger, "I am that place where the brick (completing the building is to be placed), and I am the seal of prophets."'(1)

Thus, '…He has already made a pledge with you…' (al-Hadid: 8) refers to the pledge made with all mankind before they came to life, and the pledge made with the prophets in order for them to tell people that the religion of Allah is based on accord, not discord.

Allah Glorified is He says:

هُوَ ٱلَّذِى يُنَزِّلُ عَلَىٰ عَبْدِهِۦٓ ءَايَٰتٍۭ بَيِّنَٰتٍ لِّيُخْرِجَكُم مِّنَ ٱلظُّلُمَٰتِ
إِلَى ٱلنُّورِ ۚ وَإِنَّ ٱللَّهَ بِكُمْ لَرَءُوفٌ رَّحِيمٌ ﴿٩﴾

It is He who has sent down clear revelations to His Servant, so that He may bring you from the depths of darkness into light; God is truly kind and merciful to you [9]
(The Quran, al-Hadid: 9)

This means that Allah sends down to His Prophet '…clear revelations…' (al-Hadid: 9), which plainly guide towards the Creator. The word ayat has three meanings: cosmological signs like the sun, moon, night and day; miracles and wonders which accompanied the missions of messengers in order to prove to the people that they were truly sent by Allah; and finally the verses of the precise and wise message which convey the guidance and laws which govern life motions and lead people to happiness.

Those are the three meanings of the word ayat, each of which has its own purpose, and Allah the Almighty combines all of them in His saying: '…so that He may bring you from the depths of darkness into light…' (al-Hadid: 9). Light and darkness are opposites; light is the means by which we see things and has its entity. As for darkness, it does not have its own entity, but it has only a negative reality in case of the lack of light.

(1) Related by Al-Bukhari (2271) on the authority of Abu Hurayra

We said that light allows us to see things so that we can walk safely without bumping against anything. However, when we walk in darkness we stumble, crushing the weak and being crushed by the strong. This is true of physical light as well as the abstract light which is the light of Divine teachings and morals which guide us in life: '…there has come to you light and a clear Book from Allah. With it Allah guides him who will follow His pleasure into the ways of safety and brings them out of utter darkness into light by His Will and guides them to the right path.' (al-Ma'ida: 15-16) Thus, it is light upon light.

Allah the Almighty says about disbelievers who turn their backs on and oppose His Guidance: 'Their example is that of one who kindled a fire, but when it illuminated what was around him. Allah took away their light and left them in darkness [so] they could not see.' (al-Baqara: 17)

Thus, the intended meaning is spiritual as it means taking you out of the darkness of disbelief into the light of faith. Allah the Almighty says: '…Allah is truly Kind and Merciful to you.' (al-Hadid: 9) The Arabic word ra'fah means removing a person's pain and suffering and curing his ailment; the word rahma means protecting a person after being afflicted with pain or illness.

This meaning is also indicated by Allah's saying: 'We send down of the Quran that which is healing and mercy for believers, but it does not increase the wrongdoers except in loss…' (al-Isra': 82). The Quran, which includes Allah's Guidance, contains a cure for the ailments of society, rousing it from heedlessness, keeping it away from the paths of corruption and repairing its faults and flaws. Then, mercy protects and guards the society from error so that these ailments do not afflict it again.

Previously, we likened Allah's Guidance to handbook, which if followed; we will never fall into sins. The maker of something knows what is best for it and is keener than anyone else to ensure to its safety.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

وَمَا لَكُمۡ أَلَّا تُنفِقُواْ فِي سَبِيلِ ٱللَّهِ وَلِلَّهِ مِيرَٰثُ ٱلسَّمَٰوَٰتِ وَٱلۡأَرۡضِۚ لَا يَسۡتَوِي مِنكُم
مَّنۡ أَنفَقَ مِن قَبۡلِ ٱلۡفَتۡحِ وَقَٰتَلَۚ أُوْلَٰٓئِكَ أَعۡظَمُ دَرَجَةٗ مِّنَ ٱلَّذِينَ أَنفَقُواْ مِنۢ بَعۡدُ
وَقَٰتَلُواْۚ وَكُلّٗا وَعَدَ ٱللَّهُ ٱلۡحُسۡنَىٰۚ وَٱللَّهُ بِمَا تَعۡمَلُونَ خَبِيرٞ ﴿١٠﴾

Why should you not give for God's cause when God alone will inherit what is in the heavens and earth? Those who gave and fought before the triumph are not like others: they are greater in rank than those who gave and fought afterwards. But God has promised a good reward to all of them: God is fully aware of all that you do [10] (The Quran, al-Hadid: 10)

Allah Glorified is He says about faith: 'Why should you not believe in Allah…' (al-Hadid: 8)? He says in this verse: 'Why should you not give for Allah's Cause…' (al-Hadid: 10)? This means: how could they do this when all possessions truly belong to Allah and are only entrusted to them: '…when Allah alone will inherit what is in the heavens and earth? ...' (al-Hadid: 10) Thus, this is a general principle for wealth and other things: everything belongs to Allah and must return to Him.

Have you ever seen anyone leave this worldly life taking his wealth with him? Allah the Almighty gives you wealth and let you possess it during your lifetime so that you enjoy it. When you die, you will leave it to your heirs. When an intelligent person reflects on his wealth, he finds that he will use some of it, and the rest goes to his heirs. Will he take the money after his death? Is it reasonable to apportion some of it to yourself?

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him taught us this lesson when he said, 'Son of Adam says, "My wealth, my wealth." Do you own of your wealth other than what you eat and consume, and what you wear and wear out, or what you give in sadaqah (charity) (to those who deserve it), and that what you will have in stock for yourself?'

You all know the story of the ram which was given as a gift to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. When he came home at the end of the day, he asked about it. Prophet Muhammad loved the meat of the shoulder, and when 'Aisha Allah be pleased with her answered, 'It is all given away in charity except for the shoulder, which I kept for you, O, Messenger of Allah.' Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him corrected her words and said, 'Nay, all of it remains but the shoulder.'(1)

When some said to 'Ali Allah be pleased with him 'I want to know if I give precedence to the worldly life or the Hereafter?' He replied, 'Only you can answer that. If one person came to give you a gift and another to ask for charity, which one would you greet most kindly and smile at his face? If you would greet the first one most kindly and happily, then you give precedence to this worldly life. If you would greet the second one most kindly, then you give precedence to the Hereafter.'

Allah the Glorified and Exalted wants to encourage us to love spending in His Cause, so the Quran tackles this issue in many verses. This is because spending on others plays a major part in the preservation of life as the life of a poor person cannot be maintained without it. Thus, it is very crucial.

The Quran always reminds us of this fact: '…Allah alone will inherit what is in the heavens and earth…' (al-Hadid: 10). Allah says: '…and We are the inheritors.' (al-Qasas: 58) He also says: 'Surely, We inherit the earth and all those who are on it, and to Us they shall be returned.' (Maryam: 40)

If Allah the Glorified and Exalted is the true Inheritor of wealth, and if you will inevitably leave this world without taking anything just as you entered it, then why are you so stingy to yourself?

Even when it comes to the issue of inheritance and estate division, Allah the Almighty manages this issue and divides the inheritance in His own way, for He is the Inheritor. This is because all wealth belongs to Allah, Who divides it as He wills. Thus, do not interfere in the matter of the division of inheritance: '…you know not which of them are nearest to you in benefit…' (an-Nisa': 11).

Allah says: '…Those who gave and fought before the triumph are not like others…' (al-Hadid: 10). Some scholars said that that this triumph refers to the conquest of Mecca. However, this conquest did not result from the Treaty of Hudaybiyya, but this treaty was the beginning of the conquest.

(1) Related by Ahmad (6/50), At-Tirmidhi (2470) and Abu Na'im (5/23)

Therefore, our Abu Bakr said, ‘Islam never achieved a triumph greater than the Treaty of Hudaybiyya.’(1)

This is because the Quraysh were attacking Prophet Muhammad and opposing his da’wah (calling to Allah); after the Treaty of Hudaybiyya, the Quraysh began to recognise Muhammad and his da’wah (calling to Allah), make pledges and deals with him. This is considered a triumph.

Moreover, the treaty gave Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him the time to spread his da’wah (calling to Allah) in Medina because it relieved him of the burden of the enmity and threat of Quraysh. Thus, we find that after the Treaty of Hudaybiyya, the area occupied by disbelievers began to shrink and the area occupied by believers began to grow.

Allah does not treat those who spent before the triumph and those who spent after it on equal basis because those who spent before the triumph were a weak minority, few in number and provisions and lacking power at a time when all the power and control was in the hands of their enemies. However, after the triumph, the state changed completely, and the believers became powerful with large numbers and provisions and were reassured that matters became stable.

Therefore, those who spent before the conquest are not equal to those who spent after it: ‘…they are greater in rank…’ (al-Hadid: 10). This means that those who gave and fought before the triumph ‘are greater in rank than those who gave and fought afterwards…’ (al-Hadid: 10). However, Allah the Almighty did not wrong those who gave and fought after the triumph, as He says: ‘…But Allah has promised a good reward to all of them…’ (al-Hadid: 10). Allah the Exalted promised to give the two sides’ good reward, so they used to say that good reward from Allah is enough for them: ‘…Allah is fully aware of all that you do.’ (al-Hadid: 10)

(1) Al-Waqidi, Al-Maghazi (vol. 1, p. 610)

مَّن ذَا ٱلَّذِى يُقۡرِضُ ٱللَّهَ قَرۡضًا حَسَنٗا فَيُضَٰعِفَهُۥ لَهُۥ وَلَهُۥٓ أَجۡرٞ كَرِيمٞ ﴿١١﴾

Who will make God a good loan? He will double it for him and reward him generously [11]
(The Quran, al-Hadid: 11)

Allah has made zakat (obligatory charity) obligatory and one of the pillars of Islam in order to look after the poor, along with preserving the life of those who are unable to work. If you reflect on life and the manner in which fortunes and resources are distributed, you will find that the Creator the Glorified and Exalted has provided His created beings with enough sustenance to suffice their needs. The wealth of rich people contains enough sustenance to provide for the poor and let them live happily no less than rich people's happiness.

Accordingly, if matters go on in a different way, you should know that there is something wrong: either the rich person is stingy, or the poor person is a trickster as the Creator Glorified is He directs the affairs of the universe in such a way which lets His servants live in happiness.

You may see, for example, a wealthy man with large estates in Tanta who desires to live in Alexandria, so he goes and acquires properties there. This movement is not meaningless, but it occurs by the Will of God, the Lord of all. This man's wealth has sufficed the needs of the poor people in Tanta, so Allah wants to spread it to a new area in Alexandria. You might perhaps be astonished that he moved to another place although he is rich, but this is managed by the Creator and Provider Who controls everything.

Because of the importance of spending on others and society's need for it, the Lawgiver has not limited the zakat (obligatory charity), but He has given the wealthy the opportunity to give more than what he is obligated to give, going beyond 2.5% to 5 or 10%.

Therefore, the Quran says about zakat: 'And those within whose wealth is a known right for the petitioner and the deprived' (al-Ma'arij: 24-25). Allah says about giving to the poor outside zakat: 'And from their properties was [given] the right of the [needy] petitioner and the deprived.' (adh-Dhariyat: 19) Notice that in this latter verse, the word 'known' is not used.

The ‘known’ spending is zakat (obligatory charity), and the unrestricted one is sadaqah (voluntary charity) which belongs to the category of benevolence as Allah says in the chapter of adh-Dhariyat: ‘Indeed, the righteous will be within gardens and springs, accepting what their Lord has given them. Indeed, they were before that, doers of good. They used to sleep but little of the night. And in the hours before dawn they would ask forgiveness. And from their properties was [given] the right of the [needy] petitioner and the deprived.’ (adh-Dhariyat: 15-19)

The one who wishes to be benevolent and does more than what the Sacred Law obligates will find a reward which is commensurate with his benevolence; he will receive a special reward just as he gave in a special manner.

Therefore, the Quran calls this virtue benevolence and this extra charitable spending as a loan: ‘Who will make Allah a good loan?’ (al-Hadid: 11) The good loan is the one which you give happily and contentedly and should be from lawful wealth and earnings because Allah the Almighty accepts only that which is good: ‘…Indeed, Allah only accepts from the righteous [who fear Him].’ (al-Ma‘ida: 27) This loan must not be given from the worst of the things you possess: ‘…and do not aim at what is bad that you may spend [in alms] of it…’ (al-Baqara: 267). You must also give it in a voluntarily and while loving to do so: ‘And they give food in spite of love for it to the needy, the orphan and the captive.’ (al-Insan: 8)

In addition, you must not proudly remind others of the charity you give them: ‘…and then do not follow up what they have spent with reminders [of it] or [other] injury…’ (al-Baqara: 262). You must give others charity secretly so that you do not embarrass the one who receives it, as Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings of Allah be upon him made clear, ‘…his left hand does not know what his right hand has given.’(1) Moreover, secret charity is far from dissemblance; giving charity ostentatiously benefits the recipient, but the giver is deprived of the reward for giving charity, and his good deed becomes useless to him.

When you give a loan, you protect the needy person, along with sparing him the humility of begging for charity. There are many people who experience hard times after being wealthy and comfortable; such people should be given loans to preserve their dignity as it is said, ‘Have mercy on the lowly man who used to be mighty.’

(1) Related by Al-Bukhari (620) and others on the authority of Abu Hurayra

When you give such a person a loan, you facilitate his circumstances. Afterwards, he may be able to pay it back; if he is not able, you will have two options, as Allah says: ‘And if someone is in hardship, then [let there be] postponement until [a time of] ease. But if you give [from your right as] charity, then it is better for you if you only knew.’ (al-Baqara: 280) You may give him some time until he is able to pay it back, or you cede the loan and consider it to as charity.

Allah Glorified is He has given us different stages of giving charity, the first of which is the zakat (obligatory charity) and spending more than that, which is due, then lending, then refusing to take the loan back and considering it as charity.

As long as Allah is the One Who enjoins charity and says these words, the reality of life could never prove them untrue. A wealthy person must maintain the proper norms required of him, while a needy person must maintain the proper practices of asking others for charity, so that we can all do what Allah wants us to do. However, the situation at the moment is that most rich people are stingy, and most poor people beg with importunity and scheme.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him taught us this lesson when he said, ‘Whoever takes the money of the people with the intention of repaying it, Allah will repay it on his behalf, and whoever takes it in order to spoil it, then Allah will spoil him.’(1) Therefore, when a man died and Prophet Muhammad was asked to lead his funeral prayer, he asked, ‘Does he have any debts?’ When they said that he did, he declined to lead his funeral prayer.(2)

The question that comes to mind is ‘What was his sin when he had died?’ The previous Hadith explains that the debtor who takes a loan with the intention of repaying it will be helped by Allah to repay it. Rather, Allah will repay it for him. The fact that this person died without repaying his debt indicates that he did not really intend to repay it when he took it; otherwise, Allah the Almighty would have repaid it for him and would have helped him.

(2) Related by Abu Dawud (2902), Ahmad (14009) and Ibn Hibban (3129) on the authority of Jabir… The full story is that Abu Qatada Al-Ansari then offered to assume the man’s debt, so Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him prayed for him.

There is another reason for Prophet Muhammad's refusal of leading the funeral prayer for the man which is to encourage people to repay the man's debt for him before his burial, as an act of mercy towards him. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him also did so in order to give the people a lesson and to show the gravity of debt, as it is the people' right that cannot be excused. This is in order for people not to treat debts lightly and take them coercively. Therefore, 'Ali and Qatada Allah be pleased with them offered to settle the dead man's debt.

Furthermore, when Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him refrained from praying the funeral prayer for the man, he did not forbid others from doing so, but he said to them, 'Pray for your companion.'(1) This means that the man had a defect in his faith and in following Prophet Muhammad which prevented him from receiving the great honour of having him lead his funeral prayer. If this man had truly followed the commands of Prophet Muhammad, he would not have died, while owing debts.

Once when we were in San Francisco, we met with an orientalist who was studying Islam. He said, 'I am neither Christian nor Muslim.' The man was inclined to Islam, but he had some doubts and had expressed to the others his desire to meet me and discuss some issues with me.

One of the doubts he had was concerning the issue of charity and lending. He asked me about Allah's saying: 'Who will make Allah a good loan? He will double it for him and reward him generously.' (al-Hadid: 11) This means that He will repay with double the original loan, and since good deeds are rewarded tenfold, this means the repayment will be twenty times the original loan. A Hadith says, 'There is written on the door of paradise: "Charity brings a tenfold reward and a loan brings an eighteen fold reward."'(2) However, this is less than twenty.

Allah the Most High inspired us to reply to him, ‘When you give a dollar in charity, for example, how much does our Lord repay you?’ He said, ‘Ten’ and showed ten fingers. I said, ‘Was your first dollar returned to you?’ He said, ‘No.’ I said, ‘You received nine. When it is doubled, it becomes eighteen. Thus, there is no contradiction between the two texts.

When the following verse was revealed, ‘Who will make Allah a good loan?…’ (al-Hadid: 11), a Jew named Fanhas said,(1) ‘Muhammad’s Lord is poor and needs a loan from us!’ Upon hearing this, Abu Bakr struck him on the face. Prophet Muhammad said to him, ‘Why did you do that?’ He replied, ‘O, Messenger of Allah, the enemy of Allah said a terrible thing. He claimed that Allah is poor, and they are rich. When he said this, I became angry for Allah’s sake and struck him on the face.’ Fanhas denied this by saying, ‘I never said such a thing.’ Then Allah the Almighty revealed a saying refuting what Fanhas said and showing the truthfulness of Abu Bakr Allah be pleased with him: ‘Allah has certainly heard the statement of those [Jews] who said, “Indeed, Allah is poor, while we are rich.” We will record what they said and their killing of the prophets without right and will say, “Taste the punishment of the Burning Fire.”’ (Al-‘Imran: 181)

Allah says: ‘…reward him generously.’ (al-Hadid: 11) After doubling the reward and all good deeds are rewarded tenfold, Allah the Most High also rewards this person generously. The generous reward is an additional bounty, and the fact that He describes the reward as being generous indicates its magnificence. If a gift itself is generous, then what will the giver be like?

Concerning loans, Allah Glorified is He preserves the outcomes of a believer’s labour, appreciates his efforts in life and does not withhold from him what is rightfully his. Therefore, He calls charitable spending on the poor a loan. Although all wealth belongs to Allah, He borrows it from you not for Himself, but from one person to another.

This principle exists in our ordinary life: a father does it with his children, for example. When he gives his children their pocket-money, some of them save it in their moneyboxes, If a father later needs money for an operation for one of the children, he says to the other children, ‘Give me what you have, and I will give it back to you later when I can.’ Thus, he takes a loan from them, even though it is really his money.

(1) This story is related by At-Tabari in his Tafsir.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

يَوۡمَ تَرَى ٱلۡمُؤۡمِنِينَ وَٱلۡمُؤۡمِنَٰتِ يَسۡعَىٰ نُورُهُم بَيۡنَ أَيۡدِيهِمۡ وَبِأَيۡمَٰنِهِم بُشۡرَىٰكُمُ ٱلۡيَوۡمَ
جَنَّٰتٞ تَجۡرِي مِن تَحۡتِهَا ٱلۡأَنۡهَٰرُ خَٰلِدِينَ فِيهَاۚ ذَٰلِكَ هُوَ ٱلۡفَوۡزُ ٱلۡعَظِيمُ ﴿١٢﴾

On the Day when you [Prophet] see the believers, both men and women, with their light streaming out ahead of them and to their right, [they will be told], ‘The good news for you today is that there are Gardens graced with flowing streams where you will stay: that is truly the supreme triumph!’ [12]
(The Quran, al-Hadid: 12)

The verb tara (see) in this verse refers to vision of the eye since it is relevant to something physical which can be seen. When the verb tara is used concerning something which is not physical, it means ‘know’ as in Allah’s saying to Prophet Muhammad: ‘Have you not known [O, Muhammad] how your Lord dealt with the companions of the elephant?’ (al-Fil: 1) This is because Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was born in the year in which the events of the elephant took place, and he did not see them. ‘Alam tara’ (have you not known), which is mentioned in the Arabic text of the verse, indicates that what the Prophet learned from his Lord is more certain than what he might have seen with his eyes.

The following verse tackles one of the events of the Day of Resurrection: ‘On the Day when you [Prophet] see the believers, both men and women, with their light streaming out ahead of them and to their right…’ (al-Hadid: 12). This light of faith and righteous deeds will stream out ahead of them and to their right bearing them to paradise.

‘Their light’ indicates that this light belongs to them. Allah the Almighty says: ‘the good news for you today…’ (al-Hadid: 12). The light will be a glad tiding; when they see it, they will rejoice and know that it will guide them to paradise.

Allah the Exalted says: '…"The good news for you today is that there are Gardens graced with flowing streams where you will stay." This is truly the supreme triumph.' (al-Hadid: 12) It is supreme triumph because it is an eternal triumph which will never end or be disturbed. A person may enjoy gardens, orchards and all kinds of delight in the worldly life, but since these pleasures will not last forever, this spoils his delight. Either this person will leave these pleasures, or they will leave him. However, delight of paradise is eternal and everlasting that will never change.

While believers are watching their light going ahead of them and guiding them, causing them to rejoice, disbelievers and hypocrites will be in darkness which will envelop them and lead them astray. Allah the Exalted will command His angels to cast them into hell (we seek refuge with Allah from it): '[The angels will be ordered], "Gather those who committed wrong, their kinds, and what they used to worship other than Allah, and guide them to the path of Hellfire.' (as-Saffat: 22-23).

This means the angels will lead them to hell and will place them at the beginning of the way to hell. The word 'guide' in this verse is used ironically.

فَٱلْتَمِسُوا۟ نُورًا فَضُرِبَ بَيْنَهُم بِسُورٍ لَّهُۥ بَابٌۢ بَاطِنُهُۥ فِيهِ ٱلرَّحْمَةُ وَظَٰهِرُهُۥ مِن قِبَلِهِ ٱلْعَذَابُ ﴿١٣﴾

On the same Day, the hypocrites, both men and women, will say to the believers, 'Wait for us! Let us have some of your light!' They will be told, 'Go back and look for a light.' A wall with a door will be erected between them: inside it lies mercy, outside lies torment [13] (The Quran, al-Hadid: 13)

'On the same Day…' (al-Hadid: 13) means the Day of Resurrection when believers will see their light spreading before them and to their right sides to bear them to paradise. Allah says that on the same day '…the hypocrites, both men and women, will say to the believers, "Wait for us! Let us have some of your light!" ...' (al-Hadid: 13) However, it will be said to them: '…"Go back and look for a light."...' (al-Hadid: 13)

These believers will tell the hypocrites to go to the worldly life and seek light which could guide them now as the light which believers will follow was sent in the form of the righteous deeds they did in the worldly life when they believed in Allah and obeyed His Messenger. They are now reaping the fruits of their good deeds. The hypocrites need to start a new life of responsibility and action, and the Day of Resurrection will be for requital, not action.

Reflect here on the greatness of the Quran discourse. This dialogue takes place between believers and hypocrites, yet the verb is stated in the passive voice ‘they will be told’, not ‘The believers will tell the hypocrites’. This indicates that the believers will gloat over the misfortune of the hypocrites. The believers do not want to take this stance with the hypocrites as though the voice comes to them from an unknown direction.

Allah the Almighty says: ‘…A wall with a door will be erected between them…’ (al-Hadid: 13). This means that a wall will be erected between the believers and the hypocrites. Accordingly, Allah Glorified is He brings this dialogue to an end and separates the believers from the hypocrites with a wall which has a gate so that they cannot see or hear them. This is because a believer is tenderhearted, and so his Lord protects him from hearing and seeing the suffering which hypocrites will encounter in hell (we seek refuge with Allah). ‘A wall with a door will be erected between them; inside it lies mercy…’ (al-Hadid: 13) on the believers’ side, while ‘…outside lies torment’ (al-Hadid: 13) on the hypocrites’ side.

يُنَادُونَهُمۡ أَلَمۡ نَكُن مَّعَكُمۡۖ قَالُواْ بَلَىٰ وَلَٰكِنَّكُمۡ فَتَنتُمۡ أَنفُسَكُمۡ وَتَرَبَّصۡتُمۡ وَٱرۡتَبۡتُمۡ
وَغَرَّتۡكُمُ ٱلۡأَمَانِيُّ حَتَّىٰ جَآءَ أَمۡرُ ٱللَّهِ وَغَرَّكُم بِٱللَّهِ ٱلۡغَرُورُ ﴿١٤﴾

The hypocrites will call out to the believers, ‘Were we not with you?’ They will reply, ‘Yes. But you allowed yourselves to be tempted, you were hesitant, doubtful, deceived by false hopes until God’s command came – the Deceiver tricked you about God [14] (The Quran, al-Hadid: 14)

The dialogue still continues, and the hypocrites call the believers and say to them: ‘…Were we not with you?’ (al-Hadid: 14) This means that in the worldly life, they prayed as the believers did and stood in the first rows of the prayer. So, why will believers go to paradise, and hypocrites go to hell although their deeds are the same? The believers will respond to the hypocrites: '…Yes…' (al-Hadid: 14). Believers were with hypocrites in the worldly life, and they did the same deeds and even the hypocrites did more deeds. '…But you allowed yourselves to be tempted…' (al-Hadid: 14). The hypocrites did the good deeds with their bodies only but with absent hearts; they did good deeds out of hypocrisy and dissemblance saying things that are not felt by their hearts. Allah the Almighty says: '…but you allowed yourselves to be tempted…' (al-Hadid: 14); this means that they subjected themselves to temptation.

Therefore, a hypocrite is even worse than a disbeliever is and deserves to be in the lowest level of hell. A disbeliever is true to himself and to the people and declares plainly that he is a disbeliever so that we treat him accordingly, and his true state is not ambiguous to us.

On the other hand, a hypocrite seems to be one of the believers, but we do not know his true intentions and inward thoughts. His enmity towards us is hidden, so it is very difficult to deal with him.

Allah the Exalted says: '…You were hesitant…' (al-Hadid: 14). Hypocrites waited for misfortunes and calamities to befall believers, for this religion to collapse and for Prophet Muhammad to die, thinking that his mission would die with him.

In other verses, Allah Glorified is He explains this attitude by saying: 'Say, "Do you await for us except one of the two best things while we await for you that Allah will afflict you with punishment from Himself or at our hands? So wait. Indeed, we, along with you, are waiting."' (at-Tawba: 52)

The verse means that the believers ask the hypocrites, 'What do you think that will happen to us? It will be one of two good things: either victory or martyrdom. As for you, there is nothing awaiting you but torment: either Allah will torment you by our hands, or He will torment you in hell in the Hereafter.'

While they were waiting for Islam to disappear and vanish, it was spreading and growing: 'Have they not seen that We set upon the land, reducing it from its borders? ...' (ar-Ra'd: 41) This means that the area dwelled by disbelievers is shrinking, while the area dwelled by believers is increasing.

The word irtabtum which is mentioned in the Arabic text of the verse, means that hypocrites doubted in the call to faith and in the veracity of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in what he conveyed from Allah. Allah Glorified is He says: '…deceived by false hopes…' (al-Hadid: 14). They were deceived by your vain hopes that this religion would disappear upon the death of Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and that his call would come to an end.

Allah the Almighty says: '…until Allah's command came…' (al-Hadid: 14). This command decrees either their defeat or death. It also means Allah's Command for the Resurrection to begin. He says: '…the Deceiver tricked you about Allah.' (al-Hadid: 14) Satan deceives people and draws them away from Allah; yet in the end, he exposes and disavows them: 'And Satan will say when the matter has been concluded, "Indeed, Allah had promised you the promise of truth. And I promised you, but I betrayed you, but I had no authority over you except that I invited you, and you responded to me. So do not blame me, but blame yourselves…"' (Ibrahim: 22).

ٱلنَّارُ ۖ هِىَ مَوْلَىٰكُمْ ۖ وَبِئْسَ ٱلْمَصِيرُ ﴿١٥﴾

Today no ransom will be accepted from you or from the disbelievers: your home is the Fire – that is where you belong — a miserable destination!' [15]
(The Quran, al-Hadid: 15)

This dispels all their hopes to be saved, for there is no escape from the fate that awaits them, and no ransom will be accepted form any of them if he wishes to ransom himself from Allah's torment. Someone might think that this is true only of the hypocrites who have been subject of discussion because Allah says: 'Indeed, the hypocrites will be in the lowest depths of the Fire, and never will you find for them a helper.' (an-Nisa': 145) Allah the Glorified and Exalted clarifies that this is true of the disbelievers as well: '…or from disbelievers…' (al-Hadid: 15); it needs to be pointed out because open disbelievers are not as bad as hypocrites, Thus, He affirms that no ransom will be accepted from either one of them and that they must face this fate.

Allah the Almighty says: '…Your home is the Fire. That is where you belong—a miserable destination!' (al-Hadid: 15) Their destination is hellfire, where they belong, as a person needs in this situation a protector to help him and give him refuge. Whoever does not have Allah as refuge on this day shall have the hellfire as their refuge instead (we seek refuge with Allah).

Therefore, Allah says in the chapter of an-Nisa': '…never will you find for them a helper.' (an-Nisa': 145) He also says: '…And the wrongdoers have not any protector or helper.' (ash-Shura: 8) Anyone for whom hellfire is his refuge has a wretched refuge indeed, and his fate is evil.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

أَلَمۡ يَأۡنِ لِلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُوٓاْ أَن تَخۡشَعَ قُلُوبُهُمۡ لِذِكۡرِ ٱللَّهِ وَمَا نَزَلَ مِنَ ٱلۡحَقِّ وَلَا يَكُونُواْ كَٱلَّذِينَ
أُوتُواْ ٱلۡكِتَٰبَ مِن قَبۡلُ فَطَالَ عَلَيۡهِمُ ٱلۡأَمَدُ فَقَسَتۡ قُلُوبُهُمۡۖ وَكَثِيرٞ مِّنۡهُمۡ فَٰسِقُونَ ١٦

Is it not time for believers to humble their hearts to the remembrance of God and the Truth that has been revealed, and not to be like those who received the Scripture before them, whose time was extended but whose hearts hardened and many of whom were lawbreakers? [16]
(The Quran, al-Hadid: 16)

The question in this verse is rhetorical, for it is meant to express astonishment and to encourage hastening. The verse means 'Is it not time for their hearts to feel humble?' This implies that they were tardy in submitting their hearts. This is similar to what we may say to an old man who continues to live a sinful life despite his old age: 'Is it not the time for you to repent and turn back to Allah?' This means that his repentance is delayed.

The verse tackles believers whose faith is incomplete, for their good deeds are scant, or they perform them with inattentive hearts and without the humility and piety which Allah expects of them. Allah says: '…to humble their hearts to the remembrance of Allah…' (al-Hadid: 16); this means when Allah is mentioned and the verses of the Quran are recited, a believer should be deeply stirred, especially when hearing the verses which convey warnings, along with threading and tackling hellfire and reckoning.

Allah the Almighty says: '…and the Truth that has been revealed…' (al-Hadid: 16); this refers to the verses of the Quran. Allah the Exalted says:

‘…and not to be like those who received the Scripture before them…’ (al-Hadid: 16); the verse refers to the Jews and Christians ‘…Whose time was extended’ (al-Hadid: 16); it means the time was extended so that they were overcome with heedlessness, and their hearts became too hard to be softened by the remembrance of Allah. Also, Allah says: ‘…many of whom were lawbreakers.’ (al-Hadid: 16) This means that they were disobedient to Allah.

There is a story concerning the meaning of this verse. It was said that Fudayl ibn ‘Ayyad,(1) a great Sufi and `Arif (a Sufi who has reached a high station of worship), was a highwayman when he was a young man. One day, as he was scaling a wall to engage in robbery, he heard a voice reading the verse: ‘Is it not time for believers to humble their hearts to the remembrance of Allah…’ (al-Hadid: 16)? Upon hearing this, he said, ‘Indeed it is time, Lord’ and climbed down. This was the moment when his life changed.(2)

Someone asked Fudayl about this amazing story and how he turned from a highwayman and robber into a righteous person. He said to him, ‘Had you ever done a good deed before Allah guided you to repentance?’ He replied, ‘By Allah, I do not remember any good deeds, except one. Once as I was walking along the road I saw a page from Allah’s Book on the ground, upon which the people were trampling, so I picked it up and kept it. I only had a single dirham with me, so I bought some perfume with it and perfumed the page. Upon doing this, I heard a voice saying, “By Allah, I shall brighten your name as you have brightened mine.”’

Then Allah Glorified is He says:

ٱعْلَمُوٓا۟ أَنَّ ٱللَّهَ يُحْىِ ٱلْأَرْضَ بَعْدَ مَوْتِهَا ۚ قَدْ بَيَّنَّا لَكُمُ ٱلْءَايَٰتِ لَعَلَّكُمْ تَعْقِلُونَ ﴿١٧﴾

Remember that God revives the earth after it dies; We have made Our revelation clear to you so that you may use your reason [17] (The Quran, al-Hadid: 17)

Notice the appropriate juxtaposition between the hardening of hearts and the revival of the earth after its death. Allah the Glorified and Exalted wants to say to us that if our hearts have died and hardened and we have lost the teachings of religion, we should not despair, for the One Who revives the earth after it dies can also revive our dead hearts.

(2) This story was related by Ibn Asl-Shajari in Al-Amali Asl-Shajariyya.

This was a glad tiding to them that they would return to faith in a state better than they had been before. Allah the Exalted says: '…We have made Our signs clear to you so that you may use your reason.' (al-Hadid: 17) One of signs is that Allah revives hearts with His remembrance just as He revives the earth with rain; each of them is a sign which should make us think, reflect, and meditate.

إِنَّ ٱلْمُصَّدِّقِينَ وَٱلْمُصَّدِّقَٰتِ وَأَقْرَضُوا۟ ٱللَّهَ قَرْضًا
حَسَنًا يُضَٰعَفُ لَهُمْ وَلَهُمْ أَجْرٌ كَرِيمٌ ﴿١٨﴾

Charitable men and women who make a good loan to God will have it doubled and have a generous reward [18] (The Quran, al-Hadid: 18)

The verse tackles again the subject of charity and spending in Allah's Cause because of the great effect and importance it has in society. Allah affirms and emphasises these things because spending money charitably after working hard to earn it is difficult to do and requires much effort.

As this subject has been tackled in previous verses, they are reaffirmed in this verse, just as the wonders and signs of the cosmos are constantly reaffirmed in the chapter of ar-Rahman in Allah's saying, 'Which, then, of your Lord's blessings do you both deny?' (ar-Rahman: 13) And that was repeated after each sign.

Likewise, He reaffirms in this verse the importance of charitable spending and emphasises the noble reward which awaits those who give charity. It is a well-known fact that people love money, especially when it has been earned after hard work and effort.

وَنُورُهُمۡۖ وَٱلَّذِينَ كَفَرُواْ وَكَذَّبُواْ بِـَٔايَٰتِنَآ أُوْلَٰٓئِكَ أَصۡحَٰبُ ٱلۡجَحِيمِ ١٩

Those who believe in God and His messengers are the truthful ones who will bear witness before their Lord: they will have their reward and their light. But those who disbelieve and deny Our revelations are the inhabitants of Hell [19] (The Quran, al-Hadid: 19)

Allah says: ‘Those who believe in Allah and His messengers…’ (al-Hadid: 19); He says this because belief in one messenger entails belief in the other messengers since the Divine Message is one. Therefore, belief in all of messengers is an essential pillar of faith.

Then, He describes the believers as siddiqun, the plural of siddiq which means someone who has absolute belief in the Messenger and the Message he conveyed.

Abu Bakr Allah be pleased with him was called As-Siddiq because he believed everything that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said. Allah the Almighty also described Maryam (Mary) Allah be pleased with her with the same description: ‘…his [‘Isa (Jesus)] mother was truthful…’ (al-Ma‘ida: 75); Allah says this about her because she believed her Lord the Glorified and Exalted concerning the miraculous conception she experienced which went against all norms of conception.

Allah the Exalted says: ‘…who will bear witness before their Lord. They will have their reward and their light ...’ (al-Hadid: 19). Allah says in another verse: ‘Never think of those who have been killed in the Cause of Allah as dead. Rather, they are alive with their Lord, receiving provision.’ (Al-‘Imran: 169) They are alive with their Lord because after a martyr is killed you see him shrouded and buried; we consider him as dead, and if you open his grave, you will find him dead.

Thus, they are alive with Allah, and ‘…They will have their reward and their light…’ (al-Hadid: 19); their light also spreads out in front of them and on their right sides, guiding them and showing them their places in paradise.

Then, Allah Glorified is He mentions the opposite party: '…But those who disbelieve and deny Our revelations are the inhabitants of Hell' (al-Hadid: 19). This means that they will dwell in hell and keep suffering from its blaze as though they are in intimacy with it.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

ٱعْلَمُوٓا۟ أَنَّمَا ٱلْحَيَوٰةُ ٱلدُّنْيَا لَعِبٌ وَلَهْوٌ وَزِينَةٌ وَتَفَاخُرٌۢ بَيْنَكُمْ وَتَكَاثُرٌ فِى ٱلْأَمْوَٰلِ وَٱلْأَوْلَٰدِ ۖ
كَمَثَلِ غَيْثٍ أَعْجَبَ ٱلْكُفَّارَ نَبَاتُهُۥ ثُمَّ يَهِيجُ فَتَرَىٰهُ مُصْفَرًّا ثُمَّ يَكُونُ حُطَٰمًا ۖ وَفِى ٱلْءَاخِرَةِ
عَذَابٌ شَدِيدٌ وَمَغْفِرَةٌ مِّنَ ٱللَّهِ وَرِضْوَٰنٌ ۚ وَمَا ٱلْحَيَوٰةُ ٱلدُّنْيَآ إِلَّا مَتَٰعُ ٱلْغُرُورِ ﴿٢٠﴾

Bear in mind that the present life is just a game, a diversion, an attraction, a cause of boasting among you, of rivalry in wealth and children. It is like plants that spring up after the rain: their growth at first delights the sowers, but then you see them wither away, turn yellow, and become stubble. There is terrible punishment in the next life as well as forgiveness and approval from God; the life of this world is only an illusory pleasure [20] (The Quran, al-Hadid: 20)

This verse reveals the reality of this world and exposes its false adornment. Some people seek the pleasure of the worldly life as though it is the ultimate goal when in fact this is not the case. Allah Glorified is He describes the worldly life with several attributes, employing the Arabic rhetorical style of restriction (Al-qasr) using the word Innama (just), which implies that this world is nothing other than what He describes in the verse.

In the Quranic verse, '…a game, a diversion, an attraction' (al-Hadid: 20), the word la'ib (game) signifies a human action with no good purpose, such as dangerous games children play at home for fun. Playing games is only a kind of amusement and a way to pass the time and release their energy. The word la'ib denotes playing before one reaches the age of legal responsibility; once one passes this age, it becomes lahw (diversion) because it distracts one from performing righteous deeds.

The word zeena (attraction) refers to things which are an addition to life's essentials and basic needs. There is a minimum level of food, drink, and clothing, with which hunger can be satiated and nakedness covered. When man is granted the means of subsistence in abundance, he attains to greater comfort in his food, drink, clothing, and mode of transport.

This is clear in the Quranic verse: ‘O Children of Adam! Indeed, We have bestowed upon you from on high [the knowledge of making] garments to cover your nakedness, and as a thing of beauty (Rishan)…’ (al-A‘raf: 26). The word Rishan implies having plentiful luxurious clothes, which do more than merely cover his nakedness.

However luxurious and prosperous one’s life may be, one should not forget that it is only the lower world (dunya), and the Creator is the One Who describes it as such. The world in which we live, being the lower one, indicates that there must be a higher world, which is the Hereafter.

To perceive this world’s lowly nature, it is enough to realise that its delights are flawed and its life span is short. For one, this world extends only to one’s life span, and it does not matter how long everyone else, from the time of Adam peace be upon him until the Day of Resurrection, lives. When a person dies, his reckoning starts.(1)

Therefore, Allah the Almighty gives us a parable of the life of this world by saying: ‘And propound to them the parable of the life of this world: [it is] like the water which We send down from the skies and which is absorbed by the plants of the earth, but [in time] they turn into dry stubble which the winds blow freely about. And it is Allah [alone] Who determines all things.’ (al-Kahf: 45)

Elsewhere in the Quran, Allah the Almighty explains the meaning of zeena (attraction) by saying: ‘Alluring (zuyyina) to man is the enjoyment of worldly desires through women, children, heaped-up treasures of gold and silver, horses of high mark, cattle and land. All this may be enjoyed in the life of this world, but the most beauteous of all goals is with Allah.’ (Al-‘Imran: 14)

In the verse under discussion, the word tafakhur (boasting) means to feel proud and superior to someone else because of something inherently possessed, such as health or beauty, or due to something outside of oneself like wealth, children, fame, or power. The word takathur (rivalry) suggests seeking pride in amassing more and more of the things one possesses, such as children and wealth.

(1) This is the saying of 'Alqama, narrated by At-Tabari in Tahdhib Al-Athar (240) on the authority of Abu Qays.

Then, Allah Glorified is He gives a parable to illustrate the overall picture: '…It is like plants that spring up after the rain; their growth at first delights the sowers (kuffar)…' (al-Hadid: 20). The word kuffar here refers to 'farmers' rather than 'disbelievers', unlike how it is commonly used.

At the end of the chapter of al-Fath, Allah Glorified is He gives a parable of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and his community by saying: '…This is their parable in the Torah as well as their parable in the Gospel: [they are] like a seed that brings forth its shoot, and then He strengthens it, so that it grows stout and [in the end] stands firm upon its stem, delighting the sowers (zurra). [Thus will Allah cause the believers to grow in strength] so that through them He might confound the deniers of the truth (kuffar). [But] unto such of them as may [yet] attain to faith and do righteous deeds, Allah has promised forgiveness and a reward supreme.' (al-Fath: 29) In this verse, the word zurra (sowers) is used to be distinguished from the word kuffar (disbelievers), which also occurs in the verse.

Allah Glorified is He says: '…but then you see them wither away, turn yellow, and become stubble…' (al-Hadid: 20); this means that it blooms and blossoms, and then quickly withers and turns yellow and decays into dust. In the same way, the life of this world allures people with false joy and temporal pleasures, which then come to nothing in the end, leaving behind inevitable consequences.

'…There is terrible punishment in the next life…' (al-Hadid: 20) for those who are deluded by the life of this world and who regard it as a game and a passing delight, as well as a cause for boasting and bragging; '…as well as forgiveness and approval from Allah…' (al-Hadid: 20) is for those who are not deluded by the life of this world and who do not turn away from Allah's Guidance.

The verse then emphasises this concept: '…the life of this world is only an illusory pleasure' (al-Hadid: 20); what this means is a false enjoyment that does not endure. The word ghurur means (illusion), whilst the word gharur alludes to 'Satan' and all other things that delude you, such as wealth and the like, as inferred from the verse: '…let not, then, the life of this world delude you, and let not [your own] deceptive thoughts (gharur) about Allah delude you!' (Fatir: 5)

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

سَابِقُوٓاْ إِلَىٰ مَغۡفِرَةٖ مِّن رَّبِّكُمۡ وَجَنَّةٍ عَرۡضُهَا كَعَرۡضِ ٱلسَّمَآءِ وَٱلۡأَرۡضِ أُعِدَّتۡ لِلَّذِينَ
ءَامَنُواْ بِٱللَّهِ وَرُسُلِهِۦۚ ذَٰلِكَ فَضۡلُ ٱللَّهِ يُؤۡتِيهِ مَن يَشَآءُۚ وَٱللَّهُ ذُو ٱلۡفَضۡلِ ٱلۡعَظِيمِ ٢١

So race for your Lord's forgiveness and a Garden as wide as the heavens and earth, prepared for those who believe in God and His messengers: that is God's bounty, which He bestows on whoever He pleases. God's bounty is infinite [21]
(The Quran, al-Hadid: 21)

After exposing the reality of the worldly life and depicting it as a game, a diversion, an attraction and a cause of boasting and rivalry, Allah Glorified is He then says: 'So, race for your Lord's Forgiveness…' (al-Hadid: 21). It is as if to say, 'Leave this worldly life and its delusions, for it is a useless mirage and instead, vie for what shall be more lasting for you.'

The Quranic verse 'So, race for your Lord's Forgiveness…' (al-Hadid: 21) implies that forgiveness is the goal, the aim and the destination, just as you would say 'I travelled from Cairo to Alexandria.' This goal can only be achieved by vying and striving with the utmost earnestness. Forgiveness is not to be granted to those who are careless or lazy in seeking it. Racing, as mentioned in the verse, refers to competing with one another to perform righteous deeds and acts of obedience and to adhere to Allah's Commands.

Elsewhere in the Quran, Allah the Exalted says: 'and hasten (sari'u) with one another to attain to your Lord's Forgiveness…' (Al-'Imran: 133). Both words sari'u (to hasten) and sabiqu (to race) imply a sense of mutual participation and competition between believers who adhere to Allah's Guidance; each of whom wants to surpass others and hasten to reach the goal which they all share, namely forgiveness: '…for your Lord's Forgiveness…' (al-Hadid: 21).

In another verse, however, Allah the Almighty says about prophets Zakaryya (Zechariah), and Yahya (John) peace be upon them: '…surely, they would hasten with one another in doing good deeds…' (al-Anbiya': 90). The preposition ila (to), which implies reaching an end, is not used in this verse because good deeds are not an end in themselves. They are rather a means to the ultimate goal, which is forgiveness.

Furthermore, the phrase 'good deeds' is used in the plural form in order to accommodate all spiritual ambitions, which each believer hastens to perform to the extent of his ability and readiness. Accordingly, good deeds have different levels: the more you do and hasten earnestly to do them, the higher the level you reach.

Therefore, Allah Glorified is He says: '…in that', i.e. in doing good deeds, 'then, let all such aspire as [are willing to] aspire to things of high account.' (al-Mutaffifin: 26)

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him clarified this concept by saying, 'There should be no envy except in two cases: a man to whom Allah gives wealth and thus allows him to spend it in the cause of the truth and a man to whom Allah gives knowledge, by which he judges amongst the people.'(1)

The word hasad (envy) mentioned in the Hadith, refers to noble rivalry and competition. The stem verb from which the word munafasa (competition) is derived signifies competition in holding one's breath. Once(2) 'Umar Allah be pleased with him said to 'Abbas Allah be pleased with him 'Let us compete (natanafas)' which means 'Let us go underwater and see which of us can hold his breath the longest.'(3) It is obvious that the healthier and copious one's lungs are, the longer he will be able to remain under water. Thus, let us compete in doing good deeds to see which of us shall win and which of us will reach the goal first.

Therefore, it is narrated that Hatim Al-Asamm(4)(5) was asked by his teacher Al-Balkhi(6), 'What have you spent your life doing?' He said, 'Certain things. I learnt that there is never a moment when Allah is not looking at me, so I was ashamed to disobey Him. I learnt that I had provision appointed for me by Allah that would not miss me, so I felt content with it. I learnt that I had a debt which none, but I could pay, so I engaged myself with it. Furthermore, I learnt that my death time hastens to me, so I hasten to meet it.' This is the meaning of 'competition'; he knew his death hastens to him, so he hastened to meet it by doing righteous deeds.(1)

(6) D. 194 A.H.

In the Quranic verse: '…and a Garden as wide as the heavens and earth…' (al-Hadid: 21), Garden is mentioned after forgiveness. This is because Allah Glorified is He first forgives their sins, and then admits them into paradise. As it is known, there is the principle that warding off harm precedes seeking benefit, and as previously stated, detachment precedes beautification.

For instance, if a person throws a stone at you, and another throws an apple at the same time, you will certainly defend yourself against the stone first. This concept is clear in the Quranic verse: '…he who shall be drawn away from the fire and brought into Paradise will indeed have gained a triumph…' (Al-'Imran: 185). Forgiveness is either preceded committing a sin or effacing it, or it conceals a sin from you so that you do not commit it in the first place.

In the verse under discussion, Allah the Exalted gives us a clarifying similitude of paradise because it is unseen and unknown to us. He brings it closer to our comprehension by comparing it to something we know and see, for we can see the sky and the earth and how vast they are.

Describing paradise, Allah says: '…as wide as the heavens and earth…' (al-Hadid: 21). The Arabic letter kaf (as) is employed in the verse to indicate resemblance; its vastness is akin to the vastness of the heavens and the earth. Looking at the heavens and the earth, one finds that they are stretched out without limits. Thus, Allah the Almighty gives the example of the vastest things we are familiar, the sky, and the earth, to depict something which we do not know, namely paradise.

In the Quranic verse, '…and a Garden as wide as the heavens and earth…' (al-Hadid: 21), the 'ard (width) is mentioned instead of length, for it is known that width is always less than length. If paradise's width is as vast as the heavens and the earth, then what do you think its length must be? This is a symbol of its vastness.

(1) Ibn Hamdun, Al-Tadhkira Al-Hamduniyya

Allah Glorified is He says: '…prepared for those who believe in Allah and His messengers…' (al-Hadid: 21). This implies that it has already been prepared to entertain those who believe in Allah and His messengers. It is already in readiness, not in the process of being made. Therefore, when Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him asked Harith ibn Malik Allah be pleased with him 'How are you this morning, Harith?' He answered, 'I awoke this morning as a true believer in Allah.' Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Every claim has a reality (proof). What, then, is the reality of your faith?' He said, 'I have distanced myself from the affairs of this worldly life, so that its gold and its clay are equal to me. It is as if I were looking at the dwellers of paradise enjoying its bliss and the inmates of Hell being tormented therein.' He peace and blessings be upon him said to him, 'You have come to know, so remain firm!'(1)

Hence, the past form of the verb 'prepared' implies that it exists now. Furthermore, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said of his Night Journey and Ascension, 'Paradise was shown to me', namely the 'maquette' of paradise. Before building an apartment block, for example, a model or maquette is designed to map out all its details, even the furnishings. Likewise, Allah Glorified is He has an exalted 'maquette' of paradise.

Therefore, when Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was asked 'What busies your Sustainer now when the pen has dried?' He peace and blessings be upon him replied, 'He brings certain things to light, which He does not begin. He raises some people and lowers others.'(2) The meaning of 'He brings certain things to light' is that He presents them to the world; they already exist in the realm of the unseen, waiting for the command to show themselves.

Allah Glorified is He says: '…This is Allah's Bounty, which He bestows on whomever He pleases. Allah's Bounty is infinite' (al-Hadid: 21). All those who enter paradise are only admitted into it by virtue of His Bounty. The word fadl (bounty) alludes to things which are extraneous to the essentials of life. Therefore, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘Whosoever has an extra (fadl) mount, let him offer it to one who has no mount, and whosoever has surplus (fadl) provisions, let him offer them to one who has no provisions.’(1) This regards the human bounty. As for Divine Bounty, all that exists in the universe, both now and in the Hereafter, are bounties of Allah because they are extraneous to one’s needs. Allah the Almighty does not need His creation, or any of His favours, whether past or future.

(1) Narrated by Ibn Abu Shayba

(2) Al-Bahr Al-Madid

Therefore, He the Most High says: ‘…Allah’s Bounty is infinite’ (al-Hadid: 21); this means possessed of immense bounty beyond one’s need, and the true bounty is that which is granted by Allah.

Thus, Allah Glorified is He is limitless in His great Bounty because He is above any need of His creation or His universe since He existed before anything else did, and He will continue to exist after everything else is gone. This is what is called ‘great Bounty’.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

مَآ أَصَابَ مِن مُّصِيبَةٍ فِي ٱلۡأَرۡضِ وَلَا فِيٓ أَنفُسِكُمۡ إِلَّا فِي كِتَٰبٖ
مِّن قَبۡلِ أَن نَّبۡرَأَهَآۚ إِنَّ ذَٰلِكَ عَلَى ٱللَّهِ يَسِيرٞ ٢٢

No misfortune can happen, either in the earth or in yourselves, that was not set down in writing before We brought it into being – that is easy for God [22]
(The Quran, al-Hadid: 22)

The word musiba (misfortune) denotes something that befalls a person and displeases him or disturbs his peace and security. Thus, the meaning of the designation for the word musiba implies occurrence, in essence, since it cannot be called as such unless it actually occurs. It is said, ‘Death is an arrow which has been let loose against you, and you live as long as it takes to reach you.’ The arrow has already been fired, but when it hits, musiba (misfortune) occurs. It refers to that which will inevitably come to pass.

---

(1) Narrated by Muslim (3257) and others on the authority of Abu Sa’id Al-Khudri

Allah Glorified is He draws our attention to consider the misfortunes which happen ‘in the earth’, such as droughts, famines, fires, floods, earthquakes and the like, as well as those which occur ‘... in yourselves…’ (al-Hadid: 22). Misfortunes of the self are those which befall individual people, such as sickness, death, as well as the loss of family or possessions.

Misfortunes in the earth are collective, whereas that of the self are personal; yet, personal misfortunes may also affect people collectively, striking them with famines and floods. This is because when a person commits sins, a calamity befalls him personally; however, when many people indulge in sin, misfortune befalls them all collectively, just as they all sinned collectively.

Allah Glorified is He says: ‘Now whatever misfortune may befall you [on Judgment Day] will be an outcome of what your own hands have earned, although He pardons much.’ (ash-Shura: 30) This is one of the aspects of Allah’s Mercy shown to His servants. It is further explained in another verse: ‘Now if Allah were to take men [at once] to task for whatever [wrong] they commit [on earth], He would not leave a single living creature upon its surface…’ (Fatir: 45).

Mercy is one of Allah’s Attributes, and of His Names are Ar-Rahman (the Most Merciful) and Ar-Rahim (the Bestower of Mercy). Therefore, He the Most High has appointed for us seasons of Mercy, from one Friday Prayer to the next, from one daily prayer to the next and from one Ramadan to the next; each is an expiation for the sins committed in the intervals between them as long as grave sins are avoided.(1)

Accordingly, Allah Glorified is He wants to grant us mercy and forgiveness and does not intend to make us suffer. Furthermore, calamities do not occur unless people bring them on by their own misdeeds. Elsewhere, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘Corruption has appeared on land and in the sea as an outcome of what men’s hands have earned…’ (ar-Rum: 41).

Consider, for example, how much we suffer today from pollution of water, air and everything else in our lives. This is a natural consequence of people's sinful conduct. Allah Glorified is He brought this entire universe and every atom in it into being in a completely sound and perfect state, and then told us to preserve this state by saying: 'Hence, do not spread corruption on earth after it has been so well ordered…' (al-A'raf: 56).

(1) This is the import of two Hadiths, one narrated by Muslim (342), and the other by Ahmad (8830).

The Quranic verse, '…He would not leave a single living creature upon its surface…' (Fatir: 45) indicates the vastness of Allah's Mercy. Were it not for this Mercy, every living being on the earth would be destroyed because of man's sin. This is further explained in the Qudsi Hadith 'Were it not for babies suckling, old men bowing and animals grazing, I would rain down chastisement upon you.'(1) We are therefore given mercy because of the weak amongst us as Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'By reason of the weak amongst you, you are provided for.'(2)

The Quranic phrase, '…that was not set down in writing…' (al-Hadid: 22) means that it is recorded with Him, predestined and ordained. The difference between what is destined (maqdur) and what is Divinely decreed (maqdi) is that Divinely decreed matters are completely out of one's control, whilst in regard to destined matters one has a free choice, though they are known to Allah in pre-eternity, as well as being recorded beforehand.

For example, the Minister of Agriculture may say, 'We predict that the cotton harvest this year will be such-and-such', but then blight befalls the cotton fields so that the yield is not as predicted by the minister. This is because his prediction is based only on his knowledge of the outward appearance of things, and it has no control over the unseen things. Hence, his prediction could turn out to be wrong.

On the other hand, when Allah the Almighty decrees a matter, it inevitably comes to pass as decreed. The word qadar (predestination), then, signifies what Allah decrees for one wherein he has a free choice, and the result of which is known and recorded by Allah before it occurs.

To make it clearer, consider the example of the teacher who predicts that a specific student will be top of the class in the final exam. His judgement is based on the cleverness and diligence of the student. All the preliminary indications support this judgment, but at the exam time, the student may suffer from nerves or some other ailment, thereby falling short of his teacher's expectations.

(1) Narrated by Al-Bazzar on the authority of Abu Hurayra

(2) Narrated by Al-Bukhari (2681) on the authority of Sa'd ibn Abu Waqqaṣ.

Thus, the result contradicts the teacher's prediction because of a defect in his knowledge, yet Allah Glorified is He has the Attributes of Perfection, and His Knowledge is completely free of defects.

This issue has already been explained when shedding light on the meaning of the verse: 'Doomed are the hands of him of the glowing countenance, and doomed is he! What will his wealth avail him and all that he has gained? [In the life to come] he shall have to endure a fire fiercely glowing, together with his wife, that carrier of evil tales [who bears] around her neck a rope of twisted strands!' (al-Masad: 1-5) Hearing these verses, Abu Lahab could have become a believer, just like his contemporaries 'Umar, Khalid, 'Amr and 'Ikrima all did. However, it was Allah's decree from pre-eternity, and His predestination that was known to Him beforehand that Abu Lahab would never believe and would choose disbelief. Allah the Almighty did not compel him to be a disbeliever, but he left it up to him to choose.

The Quranic phrase, '…before We brought it into being…' (al-Hadid: 22) means 'Before Allah creates it and brings it out into the outward world.' Allah further says: '…This is easy for Allah' (al-Hadid: 22).

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

لِّكَيۡلَا تَأۡسَوۡاْ عَلَىٰ مَا فَاتَكُمۡ وَلَا تَفۡرَحُواْ بِمَآ
ءَاتَىٰكُمۡۗ وَٱللَّهُ لَا يُحِبُّ كُلَّ مُخۡتَالٖ فَخُورٍ ٢٣

So you need not grieve for what you miss or gloat over what you gain [23] (The Quran, al-Hadid: 23)

In this verse, Allah Glorified is He teaches us not to despair and grieve over what we have missed. As long as this was destined and decreed by Allah, it is only fitting that one accepts it contentedly, for grieving will not change reality, nor bring back what was lost. Hence is the saying, which is common in the countryside, 'Only would the foolish cry for what has gone.'

A woman, losing her husband or someone dear to her and excessively grieving for him in mourning attire, should be told that this grief will not bring back what is gone. She is also to be advised not to get used to grief nor come to love it, lest Allah makes it permanent for her. For Allah the Almighty helps His servants to get what they want and what they love, and thus, He seals the heart of a disbeliever so that faith cannot enter and disbelief cannot exit. Satisfaction with Allah's Decree is better for a believer.

The same is true of exultation: '…or gloat over what you gain…' (al-Hadid: 23). This is because one does not know what the final outcome of blessings Allah the Exalted gives him will be; for example, will they bring him good fortune, or not? Will they help him to obey Allah, or open the door to sin? Accordingly, in reality, they are only a test.

Therefore, Allah Glorified is He says: 'Then, when they had forgotten all that they had been told to take to heart, We threw open to them the gates of all things…' (al-An'am: 44). A blessing is not necessarily an indication of Allah's pleasure. Many sinful people, who are too far away from Allah, have comfortable lives, and everything they touch seems to turn to gold. Why is this?

It is because they forget what they are reminded of, and consequently, Allah Glorified is He wants to punish them. How does He punish them? He raises them to the highest status so that when He finally takes them to task, it is all the more painful. As previously stated, if you want to throw someone down, do not throw him off a mat, rather take him to a high place, and the higher you take him, the more painful the fall will be.

Furthermore, scholars of linguistics maintain that the Arabic phrases fataha lahu (to open for him) and fataha 'alayhi (to open to him) are not the same. Hence, Allah Glorified is He says to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him: 'Surely, [O Muhammad] We have laid before you [fatahna lak (literally 'opened for you')] a manifest victory' (al-Fath: 1); this means that it is for Prophet Muhammad's benefit, whereas He says: '…We threw open to them (fatahna 'alayhim) the gates of all things…' (al-An'am: 44); this means against them and to their detriment: '…until—even as they were rejoicing in what they had been granted—We suddenly took them to task…' (al-An'am: 44).

Therefore, do not '…gloat over what you gain…' (al-Hadid: 23) because it might be a test and a trial for you, and those who do not have it may be better off than you are. Allah the Almighty directs us not to grieve or exult in order to protect believers from that which may harm them or threaten their security.

In this regard, psychologists state that one should not let grief or happiness affect him in such a way that causes him to stray from nature and balance, for incidents go by, and one encounters grief and joy throughout his life.

To be affected and influenced by grief or joy causes one to undergo a dramatic change; grief makes one contract, whereas joy makes one expand. Yet, every organ has a particular size and state, and it is not preferable to be contracted or expanded, so one should avoid both and always try to be balanced so that you maintain a state of soundness in both soul and body. Depicting this idea, a poet once said:

Be a man like a tooth, which stays in its place to chew,
And is not affected by sweetness, nor by sourness.

It is blameworthy exultation, which is prohibited in the verse; it means that the joy which causes one to be boastful or deluded makes one proud and arrogant, along with inspiring hubris and conceit. Allah Glorified is He says about this kind of joy: ‘Those [hypocrites] who were left behind rejoiced in their staying away [from war] after [the departure of] Allah’s prophet…’ (at-Tawba: 81).

On the other hand, the praiseworthy exultation is that which causes one to be humble and grateful to Allah, the Bestower of Blessings, for He instructs righteous people to rejoice in their good deeds: ‘In Allah’s grace and mercy let them rejoice; these are better than all they accumulate.’ (Yunus: 58)

Then, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘…Allah does not love the conceited, the boastful’ (al-Hadid: 23); this means those who are always exulting and whose exultation draws them into conceit and boasting.

The upshot of all this is that as long as all things are destined and set down in writing before Allah the Almighty brings them into being, and as long as one has no power to bring back what has gone nor to guarantee what is coming, it is wise to maintain an attitude of contentment, acceptance and balance. It is permissible to rejoice, but only when it does not lead to pride and conceit.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

ٱلَّذِينَ يَبۡخَلُونَ وَيَأۡمُرُونَ ٱلنَّاسَ بِٱلۡبُخۡلِۗ وَمَن يَتَوَلَّ فَإِنَّ ٱللَّهَ هُوَ ٱلۡغَنِيُّ ٱلۡحَمِيدُ ﴿٢٤﴾

God does not love the conceited, the boastful, those who are miserly, and who tell other people to be miserly. If anyone turns away, remember that God is Self-Sufficient and worthy of praise[24] (The Quran, al-Hadid: 24)

This verse takes us to another concept, namely spending in Allah's Cause. Allah Glorified is He wants a believer to share what he has with his fellow believers. Hence, He the Most High divides the command to spend into three stages: first, He commands the rich to spend on the poor, who are forbidden from holding back the rich and dissuading them from giving.

A person might be stingy himself and disinclined towards giving to others. His stinginess may reach such a level that he tries to dissuade others from giving, too. On the other hand, he himself may be poor and have nothing to withhold, so he urges others not to spend in order to keep something for their children. A rural saying goes 'Neither does He have mercy, nor lets others have mercy!'

At the time of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him the hypocrites, persuading others to be stingy, said about Ahl Al-Suffa (the People of the Porch)(1): '…Do not spend anything on those who are with Allah's Prophet, so that they [may be forced to] leave…' (al-Munafiqun: 7).

The Quranic phrase 'Those who are miserly…' (al-Hadid: 24) indicates that these misers were wealthy and had the financial ability to spend for Allah's Cause, but were too stingy to do so. Furthermore, their stinginess went so far that they tried to pass it on to others: '…and who tell others to be miserly…' (al-Hadid: 24). These people are responsible for the sin not only of their own miserliness, but also the miserliness they inspire in others by dissuading them from spending.

Then, a basic truth is established in the verse: '…if anyone turns away…' (al-Hadid: 24), namely from spending, '…remember that Allah is Self-Sufficient and Worthy of Praise.' (al-Hadid: 24) The verse implies that one's stinginess does not affect Allah the Exalted for in reality one is only being stingy towards himself; all wealth belongs to Allah, and all dominion is His, and it is He Who is truly Self-Sufficient, and it is He Who provides for His servants.

(1) Poor people of the Emigrants who used to live in the shade of the mosque in Medina

He only directs people to give away so that all of them bond together and cooperate in the journey of life and in order to put an end to the feelings of rancour and envy the poor may harbour towards the rich. On finding those who give and lend him a helping hand in society, a poor person praises Allah and feels content with His Decree. Similarly, when an orphan finds compassion and sympathy, he trusts those who take just as much as he trusts those who give, and so he lives contentedly.

Hence, giving charity is made obligatory because it helps a believer to uphold his faith and causes people to feel love for Allah's Law and content with His Decree. If those who are financially able act stingy, then a believer knows with certainty that Allah Glorified is He says: 'And there is no living created being on earth but depends for its sustenance on Allah…' (Hud: 6).

A distinction should be made between bukhl (miserliness) and shuhh (covetousness). The word bukhl denotes that a person is stingy to others, but generous to himself; the word shuhh, on the other hand, implies that a person is stingy even with himself, and hence Allah Glorified is He says: '…for such as from their own covetousness are saved; it is they who shall attain to a happy state!' (at-Taghabun: 16)

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He speaking of the succession of Messengers whom He sent says:

لَقَدۡ أَرۡسَلۡنَا رُسُلَنَا بِٱلۡبَيِّنَٰتِ وَأَنزَلۡنَا مَعَهُمُ ٱلۡكِتَٰبَ وَٱلۡمِيزَانَ
لِيَقُومَ ٱلنَّاسُ بِٱلۡقِسۡطِۖ وَأَنزَلۡنَا ٱلۡحَدِيدَ فِيهِ بَأۡسٞ شَدِيدٞ وَمَنَٰفِعُ
لِلنَّاسِ وَلِيَعۡلَمَ ٱللَّهُ مَن يَنصُرُهُۥ وَرُسُلَهُۥ بِٱلۡغَيۡبِۚ إِنَّ ٱللَّهَ قَوِيٌّ عَزِيزٞ ﴿٢٥﴾

We sent Our messengers with clear signs, the Scripture and the Balance, so that people could uphold justice: We also sent iron, with its mighty strength and many uses for mankind, so that God could mark out those who would help Him and His messengers though they cannot see Him. Truly God is powerful, almighty [25] (The Quran, al-Hadid: 25)

As previously explained, the word rasul (messenger) signifies one who receives a revelation, which he must follow himself and convey to his people.

The word nabi (prophet), on the other hand, refers to one who receives a revelation, which he must follow himself, without being required to convey it to others. On this basis, prophets do not have Scriptures or miracles; rather, their miracles belonged ultimately to the messenger whose religion they followed.

Adam peace be upon him was both the first prophet and messenger, but how could it be the case when he sinned by eating from the forbidden tree? It is argued that he sinned before being a prophet. Furthermore, the purpose of his sin was to teach him the vital importance of adhering to Allah's Guidance and that straying away from which exposes his nakedness. Consequently, Adam peace be upon him learnt this lesson and taught it to his subsequent progeny who came after him.

Subsequently, Allah Glorified is He forgave him and elected him as prophet and messenger, as stated in the verse: '…And [thus] did Adam disobey his Sustainer, and thus did he fall into grievous error. Thereafter, [however] his Sustainer elected him [for His grace], accepted his repentance, and bestowed His guidance upon him.' (Ta Ha: 121-122)

Thus, the election occurred after his disobedience, and this marks the beginning of the message and the call, but whom did he call when he was still alone? Scholars deem it as akin to the Quranic verses: 'The Most Merciful has imparted this Quran [unto man]. He has created man.' (ar-Rahman: 1-3)

First, Adam peace be upon him learnt the Guidance for himself, and then when his progeny came along he conveyed the Message to them and taught them morals and ethics. However, as time passed, heedlessness overcame people as their numbers grew, so they needed a new Message to remind them.

The Noble Quran summarises the lesson that Adam peace be upon him learnt from his misdeed by stating: 'He said: "Down with you all from this [state of innocence and be henceforth] enemies unto one another! Nonetheless, there shall most certainly come unto you Guidance from Me, and he who follows My Guidance will not go astray, and neither will he be unhappy. But as for him who shall turn away from remembering Me, his shall be a life of narrow scope, and on the Day of Resurrection We shall raise him up blind."' (Ta Ha: 123-124)

Subsequently, following Allah's Guidance is what preserves man's safety and security and makes him happy in this life and at peace in the Hereafter. As for he who turns away, he will lead a straitened life.

The meaning of the word dank (narrow scope) is not restricted to straitened circumstances and poverty as some people think; it has a rather broader meaning that covers all the aspects of depressed life. Statistics show that the wealthiest nation on earth is Sweden, and yet, it has the highest suicide and insanity rates.

Accordingly, it is not a matter of provision, food, and drink. Many poor people, in spite of having but very little, are thankful to Allah and feel content and happy with what they are given, despite witnessing the prosperous life of the rich.

The word dank does not signify poverty, then, but refers to a psychological and emotional state wherein the heart, not the provision, is constricted. One afflicted with this condition can find no way out of it, and it continues to build up upon him forcing him to eventually end his life in an attempt to find peace. As a poet eloquently puts it:

A burden is not what weighs down the back;
A burden is what the heart must bear.

Adam peace be upon him came with a Message and Guidance, which he taught and conveyed to his progeny. Nonetheless, as the population increased, heedlessness arose, distances grew between communities, and the ailments afflicting each community became numerous, so the need for a plurality of messengers was imperative.

Allah Glorified is He says: 'We sent Our messengers with clear signs…' (al-Hadid: 25). Such clear signs alert mankind to the existence of Allah the Almighty and support messengers sent to guide mankind. These signs can be cosmological, miracles supporting messengers, or verses of the Wise Book which bears Allah's Guidance and Laws to mankind. The word Al-Kitab (the Scripture) alludes to the scriptures revealed from Allah and literally denotes something that is written down.

The word Al-Mizan (the Balance) refers to the balance of truth that weighs, measures, and clarifies things. This balance is not only concerned with material things that can be weighed; it is a scale that weighs all things, both material and spiritual, according to truth. In regard to material matters, Allah the Exalted says: '…And [in all your dealings] give full measure and weight, with equity…' (al-An'am: 152). He the Most High commands us to uphold this measure with all things: '…And whenever you judge between people, to judge with justice…' (an-Nisa': 58). Even in courts today, the balance is used as a symbol of justice and is taken as emblem with two equal scales to represent a just ruling. The balance, which messengers brought, is that which distinguishes truth from falsehood. As long as there are messengers, clear signs and a way of Guidance that benefits mankind and manages their lives, then the motions of life will surely be sound and upright.

Hudhayfa (1) Allah be pleased with him said, 'There was a time when I cared not with whom of you I made a pledge. If he were a Muslim, his religion would keep him faithful to me, and if he were a Jew or Christian, his inspector (the person charged with inspecting people's affairs and dealings) would keep him faithful to me. As for today, I will only make a pledge with so-and-so and so-and-so amongst all of you.'(2)

Consequently, things cannot be sound and upright unless they are governed by this Guidance, without which people cannot find happiness. Should it be obliterated, the balance will be upset, and truth will be exchanged for falsehood.

In our courtrooms today, lawyers play their games; some of whom rely on their rhetorical skill to make arguments seem true although they are false. They ignore the words of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him 'I am but a human being. You bring your disputes to me, and perhaps one of you is more eloquent and convincing in presenting his argument than the other.' (A saying goes 'A slick lie beats a clumsy truth.') 'Should I happen to allot the right of someone to his brother because of his words, I am but giving him a piece of the hellfire. Let him not take it.'(3)

As such, Prophet Muhammad, peace and blessings be upon him, referred the balance to the religion, to the Sacred Law, and to the Book and its clear signs.

(1) A Companion, d. 36 A.H.

(2) Narrated by Al-Bukhari (6016)

(3) Narrated by Al-Bukhari (2278) and Muslim (3232)

Those who cleave to the Book and the clear signs will not mix truth with falsehood, nor will they have but one clear truth. When people differ over the clear signs, falsehood surely arises, and there comes the balance to distinguish between truth and falsehood.

Therefore, Allah Glorified is He then says: '…We sent Our messengers with clear signs, the Scripture and the Balance so that people could uphold justice…' (al-Hadid: 25). Revelation is for legislation and the implementation of laws, and the balance is for heedlessness or sin when they occur, distinguishing truth from falsehood.

As long as people behave with equity and justice, the whole world can feel comfortable. This justice comes either from individual conscience or from the judiciary which judges amongst them. Therefore, it is better in legal affairs, as previously stated, that trials do not last too long because the longer they last, the more the victims are wronged, and the more the guilty are encouraged to continue with their wrongdoing.

As trials get longer, the crime seems less grave and the victim is forgotten, and thereby the retribution is perceived from the murderer's point of view as if he were wronged or as if another crime were committed by executing him. Thus, emotions arise inspiring mercy for the killer, and the balance gets lost.

For this reason, Allah Glorified is He warns us not to take these rights lightly by saying: '…let not compassion with them keep you from [carrying out] this law of Allah…' (an-Nur: 2). Pity on criminals leads to an increase in crime and corruption on earth.

Moreover, Allah the Almighty decrees that legal punishments be carried out publicly: '…and let a group of the believers witness their chastisement.' (an-Nur: 2) In this way, everyone will act equitably after seeing the just verdict being applied at the proper time, inflicting the required deterrent.

If, on the other hand, lawyers go astray and judges take bribes, the nation will be ruined. It is reported that during the reign of the Abbasid Caliph Al-Mahdi (1), a man named Qamih, (2) who was known to be spotlessly honest, was appointed as judge. However, one day, he went to see the caliph and said, ‘Commander of the Faithful, remove me from my post in the judiciary!’ The caliph said, ‘And who else could be as just after you are gone?’ He said, ‘Commander of the faithful, I no longer trust myself to judge. As you trusted me when you appointed me, trust me now when I ask you to remove me. I am either lying or telling the truth. If I am lying, I am not fit to be a judge, and if I am telling the truth, then accept what I say.’ The caliph said to him, ‘Tell me, then, what the reason for this is.’ He said, ‘Two rivals were brought before me, each of them having such convincing arguments that I could not judge between them, and I delayed my verdict out of fear that I would be unjust. One day my servant brought me a plate of dates, and when I asked about the one who sent it, he described the giver to me, and I realised that it was one of these two rivals, so I returned the plate to him. It is well known that I love dates. The next day, the two rivals stood before me, but they were no longer equal in my sight, and I found myself inclining towards the one who sent me the dates, even though I had sent them back to him.’

(2) The judge Qamih with the Abbasi caliph Al-Mahdi

Hence, Allah the Exalted clarifies that He sent His messengers with ‘…the Scripture…’ (al-Hadid: 25) to those who adhere to it and with ‘…the Balance…’ (al-Hadid: 25), which distinguishes truth from falsehood for those who do not adhere to it, ‘…so that people could uphold justice…’ (al-Hadid: 25). If a murderer is executed and the thief’s hand amputated, no one will dare to murder or steal. It is worth noting that Allah Glorified is He does not restrict upholding justice to believers, but He says ‘people’, to encompass all humanity.

The Quranic verse, ‘…We also sent iron with its mighty strength and many uses for mankind…’ (al-Hadid: 25) indicates that just as Allah the Almighty sent down the Scripture and the Balance, He also sent down iron. Although iron is now on earth, it originated from on high. Iron is a symbol of power; those who are not deterred by the Quran, let them be deterred by iron. Therefore, ‘Umar Allah be pleased with him said, ‘Allah removes by authority that which He does not remove by the Quran.’(1) A wise person is to be deterred by clear proofs, whereas an ignorant one can only be deterred by power and force.

(1) Kanz Al-'Ummal, no. 14284.

Allah the Almighty tells Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him that in addition to the Quran, He also gives him iron as well as the sword, which he may use as he sees fit to restrain the disbelievers and sinners who are not deterred by the Scripture. A poet (1) depicts this idea by saying:

Patience and forbearance, followed by a warning;
And if this does not work, then one's firm resolve will.

Another(2) puts it:

There is naught but forbearance or a sharpened blade
Whose edge can stymie the pride of the rebel;
The first is the way to treat the wise,
And the second is how you deal with the ignorant.

The Quranic phrase '…with its mighty strength…' (al-Hadid: 25) indicates that iron is the most powerful tool in life. This is practically proven, for it is from iron that axes, ploughs, and all other powerful tools used for digging and carrying are made. Despite its power, it has '…many uses for mankind…' (al-Hadid: 25) such as using it to make knives, spoons and other utensils.

Iron has another role as well: '…so that Allah could mark out those who would help Him and His messengers though they cannot see Him…' (al-Hadid: 25). This is an allusion to the sword, by which succour is attained; the sword is for those to whom the Scripture and clear signs are of no avail.

In the Quranic verse, '…so that Allah could mark out those who would help Him and His messengers though they cannot see Him…' (al-Hadid: 25), the verb 'yaa'lam' (know), translated in the verse as (mark out) refers to knowledge as manifested in reality, for Allah Glorified is He knows everything from pre-eternity, and nothing is beyond His ken. It is not that Allah seeks to know of such people but that He wants to manifest His knowledge in reality.

Allah Glorified is He says, '…those who would help Him and His messengers…' (al-Hadid: 25) because helping Allah is regarded as equal to

(1) It was Ibrahim ibn Al-'Abbas As-Sawli (d. 243 AH).
(2) It was Abu Tamam At-Taai.

Helping His messengers, and vice versa. Therefore, Allah the Exalted says: ‘Hence, obey Allah, and obey the Messenger…’ (al-Ma‘ida: 92); He also says: ‘Whoever obeys the Messenger, he indeed obeys Allah…’ (an-Nisa’: 80). This is because the rulings given in the preceding verses are intertwined.

There are rulings stated by Allah Glorified is He and others stated by Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him as well as rulings that are specific to Allah and others specific to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Therefore, the command to obey both is repeated, for obedience to Allah is mentioned distinctly from obedience to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. It is clear that the Sunnah explains in detail what the Quran states concisely.

The Quranic phrase ‘…though they cannot see him…’ (al-Hadid: 25) refers to faith in the unseen and to the visible reality of the sword. This is designed to defend an unseen reality, the inevitability of the coming of the Resurrection. Allah Glorified is He Who cannot be seen, emphasises this matter of the unseen. However, when He supports new religions, He does so either by Revelation or by the sword.

Accordingly, when the disbelievers stubbornly held to their disbelief, Allah the Almighty said to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him: ‘Avoid, therefore, those who turn away from all remembrance of Us…’ (an-Najm: 29). The command to ‘avoid’ means to leave them and cease to no further call them with clear signs and firm proofs.

Furthermore, the meaning of ‘helping Allah’ (nusrat Allah) is clear in the verse: ‘…If you help [the Cause of] Allah, He will help you…’ (Muhammad: 7). If you help Allah’s Cause with your power, He will help you with His Power. Thus, one is only required to follow the means to the end, then: ‘…and it was not you who cast [terror into them, O, Prophet] when you did cast it, but it was Allah Who cast it…’ (al-Anfal: 17).

Undoubtedly, Allah the Exalted is well able to wipe all of these disbelievers out in the blink of an eye, so why was war needed? Scholars say that if Allah destroyed them by means of an unseen command, without the military intervention of the Muslims, they would have deemed it as a natural phenomenon. Hence, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘Fight against them! Allah will chastise them by your hands…’ (at-Tawba: 14). When defeat is inflicted upon them by Muslims’ own hands, it is even worse for them.

Ending the verse, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘…Truly, Allah is Powerful, Almighty!’ (al-Hadid: 25) This emphasises that Allah the Most High possesses all Power and Might, lest we understand from the preceding phrase, ‘…so that Allah could mark out those who would help Him and His messengers though they cannot see Him…’ (al-Hadid: 25), that Allah is in need of help from His created beings.

Allah the Almighty possesses overwhelming Power and unconquerable Might. However, He orders you only to help His cause so that you stand by the side of the Imam and for His succour to come about by your own hands, thereby giving you honour and glory. When the enemy is vanquished and conquered, it should be caused by your own hands.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

وَلَقَدۡ أَرۡسَلۡنَا نُوحٗا وَإِبۡرَٰهِيمَ وَجَعَلۡنَا فِي ذُرِّيَّتِهِمَا ٱلنُّبُوَّةَ
وَٱلۡكِتَٰبَۖ فَمِنۡهُم مُّهۡتَدٖۖ وَكَثِيرٞ مِّنۡهُمۡ فَٰسِقُونَ ﴿٢٦﴾

We sent Noah and Abraham, and gave prophethood and scripture to their offspring:
among them there were some who were rightly guided, but many were lawbreakers [26]
(The Quran, al-Hadid: 26)

Allah Glorified is He singles out Prophet Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him by mentioning him since his Message was naturally a universal one—not universal in time and place, but universal in the sense that it was directed at all of those who were borne by the Ark with him. However, Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him is mentioned because he was the Father of the prophets, and he fulfilled Allah’s commandments.

The Quranic phrase ‘…and gave prophet hood and Scripture to their offspring…’ (al-Hadid: 26) indicates that all messengers descended from this origin. When prophet hood and Revelation came to them, and the Message reached them '…amongst them there were some who were rightly guided…' (al-Hadid: 26) such as 'Abdullah ibn Salam who was a Jewish scholar. When the call of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him reached him, he believed in it and said, 'By Allah, I knew Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him when I saw him, just as I know my own son. I even know Muhammad better.'(1)

Allah Glorified is He says: '…but many were lawbreakers.' (al-Hadid: 26) This suggests that the minority of them were on the right way, while the majority were iniquitous. Therefore, when 'Abdullah ibn Salam Allah be pleased with him wanted to announce his conversion to Islam, he went to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and said, 'O, Messenger of Allah, the Jews are liars, and my heart has been filled with Islam, but I fear that if I become Muslim, they will tell lies about me. Ask them about me.'

When his Jewish people came to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him he said to them, 'What say you about Ibn Salam?' They said, 'He is our master and the son of our master, and our rabbi and the son of our rabbi.' Ibn Salam then said, 'Now that they have said this, I declare that there is no deity but Allah and that you are the Messenger of Allah.' Upon hearing this, they said, 'Nay, you are a fool and the son of a fool.' Ibn Salam then said to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him 'Did I not tell you that they are liars?'(2)

Allah Glorified is He says, '…but many were lawbreakers' (al-Hadid: 26), i.e. they were far from obedience.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

(1) Narrated by Al-Baghawi in his Tafsir

(2) Narrated by Al-Bukhari (3645) and Ahmad (11615) on the authority of Anas ibn Malik Allah be pleased with him

ثُمَّ قَفَّيْنَا عَلَىٰٓ ءَاثَٰرِهِم بِرُسُلِنَا وَقَفَّيْنَا بِعِيسَى ٱبْنِ مَرْيَمَ وَءَاتَيْنَٰهُ

ٱبْتَدَعُوهَا مَا كَتَبْنَٰهَا عَلَيْهِمْ إِلَّا ٱبْتِغَآءَ رِضْوَٰنِ ٱللَّهِ فَمَا رَعَوْهَا حَقَّ

We sent other messengers to follow in their footsteps. After those We sent Jesus, son of Mary: We gave him the Gospel and put compassion and mercy into the hearts of his followers. But monasticism was something they invented – We did not ordain it for them – only to seek God's pleasure, and even so, they did not observe it properly. So We gave a reward to those of them who believed, but many of them were lawbreakers[27] (The Quran, al-Hadid: 27)

Allah Glorified is He says: 'We sent other Messengers to follow in their footsteps…' (al-Hadid: 26); this means that Allah caused other prophets to come after them, succeeding one another. Allah says, '…After those We sent 'Isa (Jesus), son of Maryam (Mary)…' (al-Hadid: 27), namely Prophet 'Isa (Jesus), son of Maryam (Mary) peace be upon them was sent after those messengers.

Hence, Prophet Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him and Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him represent one stage, while the messengers who came after Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him represent another stage. Prophet 'Isa (Jesus) peace be upon him the last of the Messengers to come before Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him yet represents another stage. '…We gave him the Gospel…' (al-Hadid: 27) which is the Scripture of Prophet 'Isa (Jesus) peace be upon him.

Describing his followers, Allah Glorified is He says: '…and put compassion and mercy into the hearts of his followers…' (al-Hadid: 27). The word ra'afa (compassion) signifies what removes pain and suffering, and the word rahma (mercy) denotes a further increase of kindness.

In the verse, 'But monasticism was something they invented…' (al-Hadid: 27), the word rahbaniyyah (monasticism) means excessive worshipful devotion. The followers of Prophet 'Isa (Jesus) engaged in this practice, isolating themselves in monasteries and taking vows of celibacy. It is stated in a book written in 1935 called Wadi An-Natrun wa Ruhbanuh (Natron Valley and Its Monks) that monasticism began one hundred and fifty years after Prophet ‘Isa (Jesus) peace be upon him.(1)

The Quranic phrase ‘…something they invented…’ (al-Hadid: 27) implies that they made it up themselves and enjoined it upon themselves: ‘…We did not ordain it for them…’ (al-Hadid: 27); Allah the Exalted did not enjoin it upon them, but they obligated it upon themselves in order to lead ascetic lives and devote themselves solely to worship.

Although such practices are good in themselves, they were not ordained for them because they are in conflict with the nature of ordinary people, whose lives cannot be balanced unless they engage in both sides: the worldly life and the spiritual life. As for celibacy, it conflicts with the process of procreation and populating the world, which Allah the Almighty enjoin upon us.

Although they invented the practice of monasticism ‘…only to seek Allah’s pleasure…’ (al-Hadid: 27), they did not stick to this intention: ‘…and even so, they did not observe it properly…’ (al-Hadid: 27). They did not keep to it and went beyond its limits until they became bad role models.

The one who decides to rise to the level of ihsan (spiritual excellence) must be careful to keep within its bounds and to free his deeds from shortcomings, which otherwise will corrupt his doctrine. Therefore, Allah the Exalted encourages us to perform supererogatory acts of worship to reach this level. He the Most High says in a Qudsi Hadith, ‘My servant draws not near to Me with anything more beloved to me than the duties I have enjoined upon him, and My servant continues to draw near to Me with supererogatory works until I love him. When I love him, I am his hearing wherewith he hears, and his sight wherewith he sees, and his hand wherewith he grasps, and his foot whereupon he walks. Were he to ask of Me I would surely give him, and were he to seek My aid I would surely aid him. I hesitate not about anything I do as I hesitate about taking a believer’s soul. He hates to die, and I hate to offend him.’(2)

(1) ‘Umar Tusun, Wadi Natrun wa Ruhbanuh, p. 22

(2) Narrated by Al-Bukhari (6021) and others on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him

Drawing nearer to Allah the Almighty with supererogatory acts is evidence of love and nearness to Him. Love takes one to the level of nearness, thereby distinguishing him from ordinary people. For instance, one may have many acquaintances, of whom only some are close friends, while others are merely ordinary ones, and each has his own status. In case I fall ill and some of my friends do not come to visit me, I will not blame all of those who did not give me a visit. However, if one of my closest friends does not visit me, then I do blame him for this.

As for blame, I direct it at my beloved ones;
And love is proven true by means of blame.(1)

Likewise, the one who gets to the level of love and closeness to Allah the Most High should never then turn back. Furthermore, it is not befitting that he should break this vow or even fall short of fulfilling it, for if he does, it will be as if he were saying to his Lord Glorified is He 'We tried being near to You, but we did not find You worthy', or 'We tried being near to You, but we did not find it useful, so we turned away.'

If we do not accept it ourselves, then do we think that Allah the Almighty will accept it?

Therefore, I say that you must beware of getting into this level; no one forces you to do so. Before you enjoin it upon yourself, take the time to learn its limits and conditions so that you do not put yourself into difficulty.

So, monasticism is not in itself a bad thing, but it becomes a bad thing when it is not duly observed. For example, remains of bodies of babies were found buried in courtyards of some monasteries; this means that the inhabitants of these monasteries had been committing adultery.

The more a servant draws nearer to his Lord, the more lights Allah flows over him. When it comes to worldly matters, there are things that everyone knows about you, things that are only known to your acquaintances, and things that only known to your nearest family members. Likewise, as you draw nearer to the True Lord the Most High He grants you certain graces of His; otherwise, people would have done only the obligatory things, and no one would bother to do any supererogatory acts.

(1) This is a line of Ahmad Shawqi (d. 1932).

Therefore, you find that people occupy different levels and ranks in which they compete with one another; as one of us rises to a higher rank; another one beats him to a rank even higher. We told the story before about Al-Balkhi (a scholar and an ascetic), whom people once asked, ‘Do you yearn for your Lord?’ ‘No,’ he said, ‘only absent things are yearned for. Has He left me so that I might yearn for Him?’

His Words, ‘…only to seek Allah’s pleasure…’ (al-Hadid: 27) indicate an exception (in Arabic, the phrase is preceded by the word illa which literally means ‘except’) from: ‘…But monasticism was something they invented…’ (al-Hadid: 27); in other words, this means ‘We did not enjoin it upon them lest they would be remiss. We wanted Our goodly acceptance to be preserved for them by means of their fulfilment of their obligations.’ Also, His Words, ‘…and even so, they did not observe it properly…’ (al-Hadid: 27) are an instance of the principle: ‘The good deeds of the pious (abrar) are like sins for those who are nearest (muqarraboon) to Allah.’(1)

Allah Glorified is He says; ‘…So, We gave a reward to those of them who believed…’ (al-Hadid: 27). They took their reward because they had faith, and as soon as the Messenger came, they believed in him; ‘…but many of them were lawbreakers’ (al-Hadid: 27); what this means is that they went outside the bounds of obedience and were mindlessly loyal to their old religion.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

يَـٰٓأَيُّهَا ٱلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُوا۟ ٱتَّقُوا۟ ٱللَّهَ وَءَامِنُوا۟ بِرَسُولِهِۦ يُؤْتِكُمْ كِفْلَيْنِ مِن رَّحْمَتِهِۦ
وَيَجْعَل لَّكُمْ نُورًا تَمْشُونَ بِهِۦ وَيَغْفِرْ لَكُمْ ۚ وَٱللَّهُ غَفُورٌ رَّحِيمٌ ﴿٢٨﴾

Believers, be mindful of God and have faith in His Messenger: He will give you a double share of His mercy; He will provide a light to help you walk; He will forgive you – God is most forgiving, most merciful [28] (The Quran, al-Hadid: 28)

Allah the Almighty says: ‘O, you who have attained to faith!…’ (al-Hadid: 28) He describes them as having faith; then, why does He say to them: ‘…Remain conscious of Allah and believe in His Prophet…’ (al-Hadid: 28)? Scholars say that this means: ‘O, you who have faith in Allah connect your faith in Allah to your faith in His Messenger who conveys His Message. The Messenger whom you followed is followed by another messenger’; they should have showed this fact to other people, so that they did not blindly cling to their old religion.

‘…Remain conscious of Allah and believe…’ (al-Hadid: 28); this is a command for them to maintain God-consciousness which is preceded by a description of having faith and followed by a command to have faith. This is because faith is only beneficial if you obey the commandments in which you have faith.

‘…He will grant you doubly of His Grace…’ (al-Hadid: 28); ‘doubly’ is the translation for the Arabic word kiflayn which means ‘two shares’ or ‘two rewards’ of Allah’s Mercy: one share and reward for faith in ‘Isa (Jesus) peace be upon him and another share and reward for faith in Muhammad peace and blessing be upon him.

So, the meaning of ‘…and believe in His Prophet…’ (al-Hadid: 28) is the new and final prophet, Muhammad peace and blessing be upon him. Allah Glorified is He says: ‘…And [He] will light for you a light wherein you shall walk…’ (al-Hadid: 28); this refers to the light of insight. Allah says: ‘…and will forgive you…’ (al-Hadid: 28) which means that He will forgive you for any misgivings you may have had about believing; Allah Glorified is He says: ‘…for Allah is Much-Forgiving, a Dispenser of Grace.’ (al-Hadid: 28)

لِّئَلَّا يَعۡلَمَ أَهۡلُ ٱلۡكِتَٰبِ أَلَّا يَقۡدِرُونَ عَلَىٰ شَيۡءٖ مِّن فَضۡلِ ٱللَّهِ وَأَنَّ
ٱلۡفَضۡلَ بِيَدِ ٱللَّهِ يُؤۡتِيهِ مَن يَشَآءُۚ وَٱللَّهُ ذُو ٱلۡفَضۡلِ ٱلۡعَظِيمِ ٢٩

The People of the Book should know that they have no power over any of God’s grace and that grace is in the hand of God alone: He gives it to whoever He will. God’s grace is truly immense [29] (The Quran, al-Hadid: 29)

This is lest you might say, ‘We believe in ‘Isa (Jesus) but not in Muhammad’, envying him because of the Divine Message with which Allah blessed him, such as the disbelievers of Mecca said, ‘…Why was not this Quran bestowed from on high on some great man of the two cities?' (az-Zukhruf: 31) to which Allah replied: 'But is it they who distribute thy Lord's Grace? [Nay, as] it is We Who distribute their means of livelihood among them in the life of this world…' (az-Zukhruf: 32).

Then, if they cannot even dispose of the simple matters of this worldly life, can they hope to distribute higher matters? In addition, this bounty is distributed by Allah, and no one can restrict Allah's bounty: '…seeing that all bounty is in Allah's hand…' (al-Hadid: 29); this means that He is alone without having any other partner, and '…He grants it unto whomever He wills…' (al-Hadid: 29). Therefore, the True Lord the Most High says: '…[Nay, as] it is We Who distribute their means of livelihood amongst them in the life of this world and raise some of them by degrees above others…' (az-Zukhruf: 32).

How, then, could you lay exclusive claim to Allah's bounty and envy Muhammad peace and blessing be upon him for the Message Allah has given him? You do not have power over even the affairs of this world, or any control of them, so how can you presume to have control over the affairs of the Hereafter?

Then, the chapter is ended by His holy saying: '…for Allah is limitless in His great bounty.' (al-Hadid: 29) Indeed, Allah's bounty is great, for He created us, sustains us, has undertaken to provide our livelihood, and subdued the whole universe to our service; as well, He gave us a system of guidance to protect us from harm and sent messengers to us to remind us when we became heedless. He opened for us the door of repentance, giving mercy to those who sin, not to mention the other manifold effects of His Mercy towards His created beings.

al-Mujadala

In the Name of God,(1) the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of al-Mujadala (2) :

قَدْ سَمِعَ ٱللَّهُ قَوْلَ ٱلَّتِى تُجَٰدِلُكَ فِى زَوْجِهَا وَتَشْتَكِىٓ إِلَى ٱللَّهِ
وَٱللَّهُ يَسْمَعُ تَحَاوُرَكُمَآ ۚ إِنَّ ٱللَّهَ سَمِيعٌۢ بَصِيرٌ ١

God has heard the words of the woman who disputed with you [Prophet] about her husband and complained to God: God has heard what you both had to say. He is all hearing, all-seeing [1]

This verse was revealed in connection with a female Companion Khawla bint Tha‘laba, when her husband, the Companion Aws ibn As-Samit (3) (the brother of ‘Ubada ibn As-Samit) declared her to be ‘as his mother’s back’ (4). The story was that Aws saw her praying and felt desire for her, and when she finished her prayer, he called her over so he could have his way with her, but she refused because she had not yet finished praying; so, he said to her, ‘You are to me as my mother’s back!’

(1) The Islamic conception of 'Allah' is not the same as the Christian and Jewish conception of 'God'. However, the word 'Allah' does not refer to a tribal god or God of only Muslims, it refers to the Creator of the whole world, the One God (who has no son). We prefer, however, to use 'Allah' rather than 'God' as it has a unique character: it cannot be used to refer to any false gods and does not have any derivatives like goddess, gods, etc. It is a unique word used solely to describe the One God of this universe.

(2) The chapter is no. 58 in the written order of the Quran. It was revealed in Medina according to Ibn ‘Abbas; Al-Baydawi says in his Tafsir that some say that the first ten verses were revealed in Mecca, and the rest in Medina. It has 22 verses in all.

(3) The story of Aws ibn As-Samit and his swearing not to touch his wife

(4) The pagan Arabs would pronounce divorce on their wives by using this expression; Islam forbade this practice and prescribed expiation for those who did it thereafter.

For Arabs, these words were worse than pronouncing divorce since in saying them the husband likens his wife to his mother. When Aws said this, Khawla said, ‘By Allah, you shall not come near me until I have put the matter to the Messenger of Allah.’ She went to Prophet Muhammad and said, ‘O, Messenger of Allah, Aws has declared me akin to his mother’s back! When he married me, I was beautiful, but now I have grown old and have bore him children who will go hungry if I have to raise them alone, and if I give them to his care, he will ruin them!’

This is the meaning of Allah’s Words: '…her who pleads with you concerning her husband and complains unto Allah…’ (al-Mujadala: 1). Whenever she raised the subject, the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him would say, ‘All I can see is that you have become forbidden unto him.’

She was complaining to Muhammad about this so that he would take pity on her, yet he peace and blessings be upon him could not help but to say ‘All I can see is that you have become forbidden unto him’ (1), and he was awaiting and hoping for a decision to be revealed to him from Allah on this unprecedented issue in the Muslim society.

Indeed, Khawla was under Allah’s sight and hearing, and no sooner had she finished presenting her complaint to Prophet Muhammad, than the angel Gabriel came to him with these verses which gave the ruling on this practice, showing mercy not only to Khawla, but to all the Muslims: 'Allah has indeed heard the words of her who pleads with you concerning her husband and complains unto Allah. And Allah does hear what you both have to say. Verily, Allah is All-Hearing, All-Seeing.” (al-Mujadala: 1)

The whole chapter is named after this pleading woman (mujadila) Khawla to honour her and restore her esteem. The chapter was revealed to forbid this vile phrase and to make it clear that it is neither appropriate nor valid.

Your mother is the woman who gave birth to you, and indeed, the greatest favour made to a person is that made their mother to them. Therefore, it is not right that you liken your wife to your mother; the word ‘back’ here evokes an image of a sexual nature, which is not appropriate for a man to say in connection with his mother, for she is forbidden to him, and it is vile to say such a thing about one’s own mother.

(1) This is narrated by At-Tabariin his Tafsir.

Allah the Almighty says: 'Allah has indeed heard the words of her who pleads with you concerning her husband…' (al-Mujadala: 1). In this verse, the word 'indeed' is used , implying affirmation and emphasis, and the word 'words' indicates that He really did hear it, and that 'heard' is not a metaphor for ‘answered’, as we say in our daily interaction: ‘So-and-so has heard you’, meaning that he will meet your request.

We should have the proper norm when dealing with those Attributes of Allah’s which resemble human attributes, and we must understand them in the light of the verse: '…there is nothing like unto Him, and He alone is All-Hearing, All-Seeing.' (ash-Shura: 11). How can we hope to know the reality of Allah’s hearing and sight, when we do not even know the reality of our own senses?

For example, when you are awake, you hear with your ears and see with your eyes; however, when you are asleep, how do you see and how do you hear? When you are asleep, you can see people and colours and distinguish between green and red, and hear sounds; what are the senses that allow you to perceive these things?

So, you have senses which are unseen and unknown to you; then, what do you think of the Absolutely Unseen, whom no eyesight can encompass, though He encompasses all eyesight?

It is narrated that Prophet Muhammad was with ʿAisha when the pleading woman came to see him, and that woman spoke so quietly and secretly to the Messenger of Allah that ‘Aisha could not hear anything even though the woman was near to her; yet Allah heard what the woman said from beyond the seven heavens.(1)

Concerning His Words: '…her who pleads with you concerning her husband…' (al-Mujadala: 1), the verb tujadil (pleads) is from the noun jidal which means argument and debate; the woman was speaking, and Prophet Muhammad replied to her. Thus, she was debating with him concerning what had happened.

(1) Narrated by Al-Bukhari (2406)

As for the complaint, it was put to Allah: '…and complains unto Allah…' (al-Mujadala: 1); this is because it is Allah Who relieved her and sent down a ruling to please her and grant mercy upon her weakness and the weakness of all believing women. Whenever a man wants to leave his wife, he can do so by means of divorce; as for declaring of one's wife to be sexually forbidden to them as their mother (zhihar), it does not befit believers.

'…Verily, Allah is All-Hearing, All-Seeing.' (al-Mujadala: 1); Allah the Almighty hears and sees from pre-eternity; this means before He had yet created the created beings who would do things He would see and say things He would hear. The True Lord the Most High hears all that is said and sees all that is done; hearing is connected with sounds and sight with actions. He is All-Seeing and All-Hearing, and nothing escapes His ken.

ٱلَّذِينَ يُظَٰهِرُونَ مِنكُم مِّن نِّسَآئِهِم مَّا هُنَّ أُمَّهَٰتِهِمْۖ إِنْ أُمَّهَٰتُهُمْ إِلَّا ٱلَّٰٓـِٔي
وَلَدْنَهُمْۚ وَإِنَّهُمْ لَيَقُولُونَ مُنكَرًا مِّنَ ٱلْقَوْلِ وَزُورًاۚ وَإِنَّ ٱللَّهَ لَعَفُوٌّ غَفُورٌ ٢

Even if any of you say to their wives, 'You are to me like my mother's back,' they are not their mothers; their only mothers are those who gave birth to them. What they say is certainly blameworthy and false, but God is pardoning and forgiving [2] (The Quran, al-Mujadala: 2)

The Quranic discourse now addresses those who practise uttering those forbidden words and that wicked comparison by saying to them: 'Beware of these words and make clear the difference between your mothers and your wives. The mother is the one who bore you, and your wife can never be your mother, and it can never be fitting to call her a "mother".' So, put things in their right places: a mother is a mother, and a wife is the wife, and each of them have their boundaries. He, then, makes it clear to them that this declaration of zhihar (saying 'You are as unlawful to me as my mother's back') is counter to reason: 'behold, they but utter a saying that runs counter to reason and is [therefore] false…' (al-Mujadala: 2).

Something ‘counter to reason’ is something that the mind denies and sound sense rejects; a falsehood is a lie and an untruth. It is both counter to reason and false to liken a wife to a mother, or a mother to a wife. Allah Glorified is He has wanted to put an end to this saying so that the Muslims never utter it again, just as He put an end to the practice of adoption in the story of Zayd ibn Haritha which you all know.(1)

The verse ends with the Words: '…But, behold, Allah is indeed an Absolver of Sins, Much-Forgiving.' (al-Mujadala: 2); this means He is forgiving of all that you have done in the past and all the transgressions you may have committed.

After this, He the Most High speaks to us about the ruling pertaining to the practice of zhihar by saying:

ذَٰلِكُمۡ تُوعَظُونَ بِهِۦۚ وَٱللَّهُ بِمَا تَعۡمَلُونَ خَبِيرٞ ﴿٣﴾ فَمَن لَّمۡ يَجِدۡ فَصِيَامُ شَهۡرَيۡنِ
مُتَتَابِعَيۡنِ مِن قَبۡلِ أَن يَتَمَآسَّاۖ فَمَن لَّمۡ يَسۡتَطِعۡ فَإِطۡعَامُ سِتِّينَ مِسۡكِينٗاۚ ذَٰلِكَ لِتُؤۡمِنُواْ
بِٱللَّهِ وَرَسُولِهِۦۚ وَتِلۡكَ حُدُودُ ٱللَّهِۗ وَلِلۡكَٰفِرِينَ عَذَابٌ أَلِيمٌ ﴿٤﴾

Those of you who say such a thing to their wives, then go back on what they have said, must free a slave before the couple may touch one another again — this is what you are commanded to do, and God is fully aware of what you do [3] but anyone who does not have the means should fast continuously for two months before they touch each other, and anyone unable to do this should feed sixty needy people. This is so that you may [truly] have faith in God and His Messenger. These are the bounds set by God: grievous torment awaits those who ignore them [4] (The Quran, al-Mujadala: 3 - 4)

The meaning of '…and thereafter would go back on what they have said…' (al-Mujadala: 3) is that they change their mind about their declaration of zhihar, and want to take back their wives, just as a husband might take back his wife after divorcing her. The penalty for such is '…the freeing of a human being from bondage…' (al-Mujadala: 3); this refers to the manumission of a slave '…before the couple may touch one another again…' (al-Mujadala: 3). The word ‘touch’ in this verse is a metonymy for conjugal relations, or sex.

(1) The Prophet peace and blessing be upon him had adopted him and called him his son, but the Quran instructed him to call him by his father’s name. He died in the year 8 AH.

Allah Glorified is He says: 'However, he who does not have the wherewithal…' (al-Mujadala: 4); this means if he does not have a slave to free, he '…shall fast [instead] for two consecutive months…' (al-Mujadala: 4). This means two months, one after the next without a gap in between them, unless he is forced to stop fasting for a religious excuse, in which case it is not considered to be interrupted.(1)

Furthermore, He says: '…and he who is unable to do it…' (al-Mujadala: 4), namely fast for two consecutive months, he '…shall feed sixty needy ones…' (al-Mujadala: 4). So, Allah made the penalty severe so that it would be a deterrent, and this evil practice would be pulled up by the roots.

Allah the Almighty says: '…Now these are the bounds set by Allah…' (al-Mujadala: 4). Allah’s bounds are His commandments and prohibitions; of His commandments, He says: '…do not, then, transgress them…' (al-Baqara: 229); and of His prohibitions, He says: '…do not, then, offend against them…' (al-Baqara: 187).

A bound (hadd) means a separation between two things; Allah’s bounds separate between the lawful and the unlawful. This allows us to understand His Words: '…those who contend against Allah and His Prophet…' (al-Mujadala: 5); the phrase 'contend against' is the translation for the Arabic verb yuhaddun, which is taken from the noun hadd (bound). Thus, this part of verse refers to those who place their caprice on one side, and Allah’s Commandments on another.

Then, Allah heard the words of the pleading woman and responded to her by revealing a passage of Quran about her situation which would thereafter be recited until the Day of Resurrection; as well, He pronounced a binding ruling on the practice of zhihar and a stern expiation to deter it. Thus, this was not mere hearing. When we rise from bowing in the prayer, we say ‘Allah hears the one who praises Him’, meaning that He hears them and responds to them, for He says: '…If you are grateful [to Me], I shall most certainly give you more and more…' (Ibrahim: 7).

(1) Many scholars, including Ash-Shafi‘i and Malik, say this; others, including Abu Hanifa, say that even if there is a lawful reason for breaking the fast, the two months still must be started anew. (Al-Shawkani, Fath Al-Qadir)

Strangely enough is that scholars disagree as to the identity of the woman who pleaded with Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him; there are four different opinions (1); there is no benefit in finding out her identity and knowing her name because to specify the personality is to restrict the ruling to her, yet Allah wanted this to be a universal rule.

The jurisprudential principle is consideration is given for the general proper meaning of a provision, not for the specificity of the cause. If this ruling was specific to Khawla, it would have applied only to her, yet in fact, it is a universal ruling which applies to all Muslims. This means it is a universal gift, and it does not especially matter which woman it was originally revealed about, for she was only the immediate cause of its revelation.

We also see this principle in the case of the young men of the cave, for example. The Quran does not tell us the time when they lived, nor their place nor their names; rather, the Quran speaks of them in general terms so that the benefit of their story would be general for all times and places. Had Allah the Almighty told us their identities, we would have said that this was a special circumstance for them and not for anyone else. Rather, He wanted them to be mentioned as generic youths, so that they could be role models for all young people who believe in their Lord.

In this way, the story is more influential and is as a good word which gives its fruits, like a good tree, at all times by its Lord’s leave.

If it is necessary to identify a person, the Quran always mentions them by name as is the case in the story of Lady Maryam (Mary) peace be upon her wherein Allah says: 'And [We have propounded yet another parable of

(1) Ibn Al-Jawzi says the four opinions as to her identity: Khawla bint Tha‘laba, Khawla bint Khuwaylid, Khawla bint As-Samit and Khawla bint Ad-Daliu. (Zad Al-Masir)

God-consciousness in the story of] Maryam (Mary), the daughter of ‘Imran…' (at-Tahrim: 12). He mentions her name and the name of her father so that there can be no ambiguity or ignorance. This is because a special circumstance applied to her which would never be repeated for anyone else in the world. The identity is important in this instance because the circumstance was peculiar to her alone.

In the Pre-Islamic era, the act of zhihar was the severest method of separation between a man and his wife, wherein he would say to her, ‘You are unlawful to me as my mother’s back’, for one's mother is the foremost forbidden of all women to a man, for Allah says: 'Forbidden to you are your mothers…' (an-Nisa’: 23). There is nothing viler than a woman who gives birth to a son, and then has intimate relations with that son when he is an adult.

Therefore, it is preferable to avoid having marital relations with a near kin. This has always been the case since man first came into being. However, how did the children of Adam achieve this? Scholars say that, out of Allah's Wisdom, Hawwa’ (Eve) always gave birth to a set of male and female twins, and then the male of one set of twins would marry the female of another set so that there was some kind of distance between spouses at a time when no other option was possible.

Prophet Muhammad has encouraged keeping this distance in marriage; he said, 'Marry from a non-kin woman, so that you may avoid weak offspring'(1); this means to avoid marrying those who are related to you, so that your children are not weak and feeble. Science has now proven this and has proven that marrying close relatives can cause children to contract certain illnesses.

Therefore, we see that many historical heroes were the offspring of marriages between Arabs and non-Arabs since they inherited the characteristics of both races. Poets have spoken about this with one of them saying (2):

A boy who was born not of his father’s cousin,
For the children of kin-marriages are often weak.

---

(1) Ibrahim Al-Harbi narrates this as a saying of ‘Umar, rather than a Hadith.

(2) It was Ziyad Adh-Dhabyani, a pre-Islamic poet (d. 18 before the Hijra).

Another said:

I passed over my cousin, though I loved her,
In fear that my progeny would be weak

So, do not say to your wife, ‘You are unlawful to me as my mother’s back’, for Allah has deemed your mother far above having a conjugal relation with you, and she is indeed furthest in this regard. Therefore, Arabs considered these words to be far severer than the simple words of divorce.

Here, we must reflect on the part of the verse on the expiation for zhihar: '…the freeing of a human being from bondage…' (al-Mujadala: 3). Some say that we no longer have slaves because the law forbids this. However, this is a matter of civil law; if there were a war, it would be possible for us to find captives who could be freed.

So, there is a difference between a matter of Sacred Law and a matter of civil law upon which they have agreed.

In Saudi Arabia, King Faisal(1) wanted to bring an end to slavery once and for all, so he bought all the remaining slaves and freed them.(2) What then happened is that the slaves all went back and knocked on the doors of their former masters, wanting to go back to the lives they had had as slaves. This was because the slaves had been eating from the food of their masters, and the slave-women had been wearing from the clothes of their mistresses, and their male owners might have cohabited with them.

The wisdom of freeing slaves is that the slave was confined and threatened with death after having taken part in a war against Muslims and been captured. He could have been killed, but Allah had mercy upon him, for He shows mercy to all mankind, even disbelievers and He said to you as a Muslim, ‘Do not kill him, for he shall serve you and be a benefit to you.’

It is as though Allah protected the life of a disbeliever by making him a slave. So, do not make a comparison between slavery and freedom but between slavery and death. Slavery is more merciful since it spares a disbeliever’s life.

(1) 1906-1975; reigned 1964-1975
(2) This happened in 1962 when Faisal was Crown Prince.

The Creator Glorified is He spares the life of His created being, which He gave to him, and then after that, He makes it possible for this slavery to be brought to an end.

When Islam came, slavery was already established in society. A man would buy land along with the slaves who lived therein, and there were more than twenty ways of enslaving someone in those days. When Islam came, it reduced these ways so that there was only one way a man might become a slave: by being taken prisoner during a lawful war.

After reducing the ways that slavery could occur, Islam then expanded the ways that it could be ended so that it could be completely abolished. So, Islam did not establish slavery; rather, it established manumission. Look at how many cases there are where Allah the Almighty established the freeing of a slave as the expiation for an offence, doing so for any kind of slave, whether believer or non-believer.

When we examine the Quran, we find that there is only one verse which stipulates that the freed slave must be a believer, namely: 'And it is not conceivable that a believer should slay another believer, unless it be by mistake. And upon him who has slain a believer by mistake there is the duty of freeing a believing soul from bondage and paying an indemnity to the victim’s relations, unless they forgo it by way of charity. Now if the slain, while himself a believer, belonged to a people who are at war with you, [the penance shall be confined to] the freeing of a believing soul from bondage, whereas, if he belonged to a people to whom you are bound by a covenant, [it shall consist of] an indemnity to be paid to his relations…' (an-Nisa’: 92).

Concerning the verse pertaining to oaths and their expiation, Allah Glorified is He says: 'Allah will not take you to task for oaths which you may have uttered without thought, but He will take you to task for oaths which you have sworn in earnest. Thus, the breaking of an oath must be atoned for by feeding ten needy persons with more or less the same food as you are wont to give to your own families, or by clothing them, or by freeing a human being from bondage…' (al-Ma‘ida: 89); He did not say that this slave has to be a believer.

Abu Hanifa commented on this by saying that the fact that Allah the Exalted specifies a believing slave in the former verse and does not in the latter implies that it could even be a disbelieving slave. In many issues, Islam does not make a difference between believers and disbelievers, for it is a universal religion meant to rectify the whole world.

You all remember the story (1) of the shield which the Companion Ta'ma ibn Ubayriq stole and hid at the house of Zayd ibn As-Samin who was a Jew. They accused the Jew of the theft and wanted to acquit the Muslim, and they tried to convince Prophet Muhammad of this so that a Muslim would not be exposed as a thief.(2)

However, the Revelation passed judgment on the matter, and it was revealed to Prophet Muhammad: 'Behold, We have bestowed upon you from on high this Divine Writ, setting forth the truth, so that you may judge between people…' (an-Nisa': 105); this means making no distinction between believers and disbelievers; '…in accordance with what Allah has taught you. Hence, do no contend for those who are false to their trust.' (an-Nisa': 105) What this means is not to defend a traitor, even if he is a Muslim since Divine Justice does not make any distinction between Allah's servants.

Therefore, when the Jew was acquitted and the Muslim convicted without any bias or indulgence, the people rushed to embrace Islam. This is part of the greatness of this religion: it does not protect falsehood or cover up corruption even if it is committed by its own followers.

Notice that the expiations for zhihar are given here in order: first freeing a slave, then fasting, then feeding the poor. This is so that each one can do what is most appropriate for him and also so that the jurists have an opportunity to make this expiation a proper deterrent. There is a story (3) about Mundhir ibn Sa'id(4), an Andalusian jurist which illustrates this.

When the caliph 'Abd Ar-Rahman An-Nasir (5) made a vow and wanted to expiate it, scholars told him to feed ten poor people. When Mundhir ibn Sa'id heard of this ruling, he said, ‘Will it deter the Commander of the Faithful to feed ten poor people, while he already feeds so many every day? Only fasting will deter him.’ He based his judgment in the spirit of the Divine Ruling, not its mere letters.

After making clear the ruling regarding zhihar and its expiation, Allah Glorified is He says: '…Now these…' (al-Mujadala: 4); this means that these laws which have just been mentioned '…are the bounds set by Allah…' (al-Mujadala: 4), namely His commandments and prohibitions, As we said, a bound is a separator between two things; if a bound is between you and Allah, it must be rejected.

Allah Glorified is He says: 'Do they not know that for him who sets himself against Allah and His Prophet there is in store the fire of hell, therein to abide—that most awesome disgrace?' (at-Tawba: 63) A human being is required to not separate himself from his Lord the Almighty. Rather, they should always be connected to Him at all times. He must not place himself on one side and his Lord on another; this is contrary concerning the accompaniment of faith. Your Lord wants you to be with Him, not separate from Him.

This is clear in the verses of the chapter of al-Jumu‘a: 'O, you who have attained to faith! When the call to prayer is sounded on the day of congregation, hasten to the remembrance of Allah and leave all worldly commerce…' (al-Jumu‘a: 9). Then, Allah says after the prayer: “and when the prayer is ended, disperse freely on earth and seek to obtain [something] of Allah’s bounty, but remember Allah often, so that you might attain to a happy state!' (al-Jumu‘a: 10) So you are with Allah in the prayer, and you are with Allah after the prayer; you should be instantly preoccupied by Him.

The True Lord the Most High then says: '…and grievous suffering [in the life to come] awaits all who deny the truth.' (al-Mujadala: 4) This refers to those who do not keep within Allah’s bounds and do not adhere to what He has decreed for His servants; they shall be subjected to the grievous suffering of hellfire; this deed of theirs is called ‘denying the truth’ to express harsh rebuke and severe condemnation to it.

When it comes to those who do not believe and do not adhere to the rulings of this Sacred Law or keep within Allah’s bounds, do not think that they will escape Allah’s reckoning and His punishment, for it will not be as they imagine, and they will undergo grievous suffering in this life and the next.

إِنَّ ٱلَّذِينَ يُحَآدُّونَ ٱللَّهَ وَرَسُولَهُۥ كُبِتُوا۟ كَمَا كُبِتَ ٱلَّذِينَ مِن قَبْلِهِمْ ۚ
وَقَدْ أَنزَلْنَآ ءَايَٰتٍۭ بَيِّنَٰتٍ ۚ وَلِلْكَٰفِرِينَ عَذَابٌ مُّهِينٌ ﴿٥﴾

Those who oppose God and His Messenger will be brought low, like those before them: We have revealed clear messages, and humiliating torment awaits those who ignore them [5] (The Quran, al-Mujadala: 5)

We said that '…contend against Allah…' (al-Mujadala: 5) means ‘place their caprice on one side of the bound (hadd), and Allah’s Commandments on the other side’. The words, '…and His Prophet…' (al-Mujadala: 5) indicate that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him has his own right to legislate because Allah has given him the freedom to do so: '…Hence, accept [willingly] whatever the Prophet gives you and refrain from anything that he withholds from you…' (al-Hashr: 7); this is so because a commandment may come from Allah and from Messenger Muhammad, or it may come solely from Allah or solely from Messenger Muhammad. This is due to commandments coming from Allah in a general way, and then they are detailed by Prophet Muhammad. Therefore, certain verses came to explain this such as Allah’s Words: '…And pay heed unto Allah and pay heed unto the Prophet…' (al-Ma‘ida: 92) and '…pay heed unto Allah and the Prophet…' (Al-‘Imran: 132) and '…and pay heed unto the Prophet…' (at-Taghabun: 12).

These verses allow us to challenge those who claim that the Quran alone must be considered and followed, while the Sunna of Prophet Muhammad is rejected. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him indeed told us that such people would come one day when he said: 'Verily, a man may be told of my words as he sits back on his couch, and he may say, "You and we have the Book of Allah. What we find to be lawful therein we shall call lawful, and what we find to be forbidden therein we shall call forbidden." Yet in fact, what the Messenger of Allah forbids is like what Allah forbids.'(1)

(1) Narrated by At-Tirmidhi (2588), Ibn Majah (12), and Ahmad (16564) on the authority of Al-Miqdam Allah be pleased with him

This is one of the miracles of the Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Now, to respond to these people, we say, 'By Allah, tell us how you pray the afternoon or sunset prayer. How do you know that the afternoon prayer has four cycles and the sunset prayer three? Is this in the Quran? Does the Quran tell you how to do all the rites of the pilgrimage, or how much the poor-due should be?'

Prophet Muhammad also said, 'Pray as you see me pray'(1) and: 'Take your rites from me'(2); this means that Messenger Muhammad was distinguished amongst the messengers in that Allah gave him the right to legislate for his community. Before Muhammad, the messengers' function was only to convey Allah's Laws; as for Prophet Muhammad, he was both conveyer and legislator.

So, believers are ordered to obey Allah when receiving Divine Rulings in general and to obey Prophet Muhammad concerning the particulars of such rulings. If this was not the case, the True Lord the Most High would not have said: 'Whoever pays heed unto the Prophet pays heed unto Allah thereby…' (an-Nisa': 80).

The meaning of '…shall be brought low (kubitu)…' (al-Mujadala: 5) is that they shall be humbled and humiliated or shocked with a sudden calamity which leaves them speechless because of its horror; this is akin to Allah's Words: '…he who was bent on denying the truth remained dumbfounded…' (al-Baqara: 258); this means that he was stunned.

The one who is stunned by a sudden shock finds himself tongue-tied and unable to speak or vent or alleviate his soul. A poet(3) expressed this by saying:

You must make complaint to an honourable man,
Who can advise you, console you, or have pity on you.

When a person beset by calamity finds someone to complain to and the latter listens to him, the complainer feels relieved, and his soul is calmed since he finds someone to lighten his burden and empathise with him. As for these people, they will be brought low in a way that silences them and ties their tongues; thus, Allah will subject them to the utmost humiliation and degradation and show them the most terrible wrath.

(2) Narrated by Al-Bayhaqiin Al-Kubra (5/125) on the authority of Jabir

(3) It was Bashar Al-'Aqili (95-167 A.H.).

Allah Glorified is He says: '…Even as those [evildoers] who lived before them were brought low…' (al-Mujadala: 5); what this means is that they will not be the first ones to be brought low, but the deniers who came before them were also brought low such as the people of ‘Ad, Thamud, Lut (Lot), the people of Pharaoh and others.

The first way in which the disbelieving Arabs who stood in the way of the Islamic message were brought low is that they were defeated before the message of truth, and their unbelief disappeared, whilst Islam spread over the world; Allah Glorified is He says: 'Nay, We have allowed these [sinners]—as [We allowed] their forebears to enjoy the good things of life for a great length of time, but then have they never yet seen how We visit the earth, gradually removing from it all that is upon it? Can they, then, [hope to] be the winners?' (al-Anbiya’: 44)

Every day, the numbers of disbelievers were getting less and less, and their lands shrunk, while the numbers of Muslims grew higher and higher, and their lands broadened. This made Khalid ibn Al-Walid say to ‘Amr ibn Al-‘As, ‘Muhammad has clearly proved himself, ‘Amr. We should believe in him.’(1) This means that Muhammad has the upper hand and things are going his way, and we no longer have the power to resist him.

Allah Glorified is He says: '…After We had bestowed [on them] clear messages from on high…' (al-Mujadala: 5); this means clear signs which the mind can easily believe and sound instinct can easily accept. He says: '…And [so] for those who deny the truth there will be shameful suffering in store.' (al-Mujadala: 5) What this means is that those who belie these signs and refuse to believe in them despite their clarity and conformity to sound natural instinct, shall be subjected to shameful suffering, which will shame and debase them.

(1) Narrated by Al-Hakim (1033)

This is because the truth of Faith in Allah is clear, and no one can rebut it; even these disbelievers do not deny it. The first part of faith is the existence of an All-Powerful Lord who created them and created the world in which they live.

They have even acknowledged that Allah created them: 'And thus it is [with most people]. If you ask them, "Who is it that has created the heavens and the earth?" they will surely answer, "Allah"…' (Luqman: 25); furthermore, He says: 'Now if you ask those [who worship any being other than Allah] as to who it is that has created them, they are sure to answer, "Allah"…' (az-Zukhruf: 87). Could any of them dare to say otherwise? Yet despite this, they belie and disbelieve in the truth and the clear signs of which no one could be ignorant. They should have reflected upon them.

Then, the True Lord the Most High says:

يَوْمَ يَبْعَثُهُمُ ٱللَّهُ جَمِيعًا فَيُنَبِّئُهُم بِمَا عَمِلُوٓا۟ ۚ أَحْصَىٰهُ
ٱللَّهُ وَنَسُوهُ ۚ وَٱللَّهُ عَلَىٰ كُلِّ شَىْءٍ شَهِيدٌ ﴿٦﴾

On the Day when God will raise everyone and make them aware of what they have done. God has taken account of it all, though they may have forgotten: He witnesses everything [6] (The Quran, al-Mujadala: 6)

Allah the Almighty reminds them of the Day of Resurrection and Reckoning when He will reckon them for everything they have done, whether great or small; they may have forgotten it, but He took it into account and recorded it against them, and His recording angels wrote it down. If you were to ask a man of sixty or seventy years, for example, if he remembered all his sins, he would tell you he could not; this is because forgetfulness is part of man's nature so that he does not have too low an opinion of himself. It is as though the human soul appreciates the attributes of perfection intrinsically, and not only relatively.

For example, the cognisance of false testimony is intrinsic, not only relative. How is that so? Suppose that you are guilty of transgression against someone and deriding them, and your friend witnesses it, but when the other person asked your friend to corroborate his story, your friend does you a favour and says, ‘That never happened.’ Indeed, this helps you, and your friend puts himself at risk for your benefit, yet at the same time, he degraded himself before you, and you consider him thereafter to be a liar, even though his testimony helped you. This indicates that disgraceful conduct is recognisably disgraceful, even to those whom it helps.

We have also given this example before. Suppose that there is a band of thieves, and one of them repents. The others call him a ‘rat’ and a ‘traitor’, but suppose that one of these thieves was looking for a husband for his daughter. Would this one choose one of the thieves, or would he choose this ‘rat’ that repented and went straight? He will choose the one who repented and went straight. Even though he himself is a crook, he does not want a crook for his daughter.

This is why we see that the disbelievers of Mecca, who waged war against Muhammad and disbelieved in his message, nevertheless, would trust him to look after their belongings,(1) for they knew that he was ‘the honest, trustworthy one’.

Allah Glorified is He says: '…Allah will have taken [all of] it into account, even though they [themselves] may have forgotten it…' (al-Mujadala: 6); He will have taken it into account because Allah takes all things into account, and they will have forgotten it because they are forgetful by nature. He says: '…for Allah is witness unto everything' (al-Mujadala: 6) because He is the Lord of the heavens and the earth. Therefore, the Sacred Hadith says: 'O, My servants! If you think that I cannot see you, then the fault is in your faith, and if you think that I can see you, then why have you made Me the most trifling of all who see you?'(2)

'…Allah is witness unto everything.' (al-Mujadala: 6) ‘Everything’ implies universality; there is nothing in existence to which Allah is not witness, and faith in One Allah is a ‘thing’, so He the Most High is witness to it.

(1) After the Messenger of God peace and blessings be upon him emigrated to Medina, ‘Ali Allah be pleased with him stayed behind in Mecca for three days to return to the people the things they had entrusted to the Messenger of God. (Subul Al-Huda wa Ar-Rashad, Vol. 3, p. 267)

(2) Related by Ibn Rajab Al-Hanbali as a saying of a wise man

Therefore, He says: 'Allah bears witness that there is no deity save Him…' (Al-'Imran: 18). Before He asks people to bear witness to this, He bears witness to it Himself; likewise, before Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him asked people to bear witness to his prophethood, he bore witness to it himself. It is essential that he bears witness to it and believe in it.

It is related (1) that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'I bear witness that I am the Messenger of Allah.' This was in the story of Jabir ibn 'Abdullah when he owed a debt to a Jew, and it was due, but Jabir was unable to settle it because his date-palm grove had not yielded enough fruit to pay back the loan. Jabir told Prophet Muhammad about this and asked him to speak to the Jew in order to ask him to give him more time to pay him back, but the Jew refused, seeing a chance to humiliate the Muslims.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him then asked Jabir to take him to his orchard. Prophet Muhammad walked about the palms, and then asked Jabir to take him to his hut. Jabir did so, and Prophet Muhammad napped for a while. When he woke, he said, 'Jabir! Harvest and repay!' Jabir picked his date palms and found there was enough to repay the Jew and still leave for him more than he had ever harvested before. When Prophet Muhammad was told of this, he smiled and said, 'I testify that I am the Messenger of Allah.'(2)

Then, Allah says: '…Allah is witness unto everything' (al-Mujadala: 6); He the Most High bears witness to Himself, which testimony is given from Himself to Himself; the angels, as well, bear witness based on direct vision, and those who are endowed with knowledge bear witness based on rational proof: 'Allah bears witness—and [so do] the angels and all who are endowed with knowledge—that there is no deity save Him…' (Al-'Imran: 18).

رَابِعُهُمْ وَلَا خَمْسَةٍ إِلَّا هُوَ سَادِسُهُمْ وَلَآ أَدْنَىٰ مِن ذَٰلِكَ وَلَآ أَكْثَرَ إِلَّا هُوَ مَعَهُمْ أَيْنَ مَا
كَانُوا۟ ۖ ثُمَّ يُنَبِّئُهُم بِمَا عَمِلُوا۟ يَوْمَ ٱلْقِيَٰمَةِ ۚ إِنَّ ٱللَّهَ بِكُلِّ شَىْءٍ عَلِيمٌ ﴿٧﴾

Do you not see [Prophet] that God knows everything in the heavens and earth? There is no secret conversation between three people where He is not the fourth, nor between five where He is not the sixth, nor between less or more than that without Him being with them, wherever they may be. On the Day of Resurrection, He will show them what they have done: God truly has full knowledge of everything [7]

Scholars say that although the Arabic for 'Are you not aware (alam tara)…' (al-Mujadala: 7) literally means ‘did you not see?’; it actually means ‘do you not know’ because He says it about things that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him did not see, such as in the chapter of al-Fil: 'Are you not aware (alam tara) of how the Lord dealt with the Army of the Elephant?' (al-Fil: 1) The Messenger of Allah, Muhammad, did not see this incident, so the meaning of alam tara must be ‘do you not know?’ In fact, the meaning is ‘did you not see?’ because Allah could easily have said alam ta‘lam, ‘do you not know’, had He wanted so. The reason the verb ‘to see’ is used in this verse is to confirm that any information given from Allah to His Messenger is more certain than the vision of his own eyes; if Allah tells him it, it is as though he has seen it with his eyes.

Allah’s Words, ‘Are you not aware that Allah knows all that is in the heavens and all that is on earth…' (al-Mujadala: 7) imply that Allah’s Knowledge encompasses all things, for He says elsewhere: '…for not even an atom’s weight [of whatever there is] on earth or in heaven escapes your Lord’s Knowledge, and neither is there anything smaller than that or larger, but it is recorded in [His] clear decree.' (Yunus: 61)

Allah knows the heavens and earth as containers, and He knows all that they contain. The earth in itself is a marvel of creation and design, and the created beings it contains are more marvellous still; we said before that the content is always more valuable than the container. Allah's Knowledge is not restricted to visible things; rather, Allah Glorified is He also has knowledge of all that we cannot see within the kingdoms of the heavens and the earth: 'And Allah alone comprehends the hidden reality of the heavens and the earth…' (Hud: 123). Another aspect of His comprehensive Knowledge is that '…Never can there be a secret confabulation between three persons without Him being the fourth of them…' (al-Mujadala: 7). Allah the Almighty knows all the created beings in the heavens and the earth. Someone might say, 'He knows them only because they are His creations and His handiwork', then He corrected himself by saying, 'No, He also knows all the new things which are constantly happening in His universe', for He says: '…Never can there be a secret confabulation between three persons without Him being the fourth of them…' (al-Mujadala: 7).

'Secret confabulation' is when people speak to one another about a secret; it is always a matter of something secret which we conceal from others. Therefore, He begins with the number three, which is the smallest number of people who can be involved in secret confabulation.

A Noble Hadith says: 'Let no two people hold secret confabulation, whilst excluding a third person, for to do so hurts him.'(1) The secret conversation of two people makes the third person in their presence feel uneasy. As for the True Lord the Most High He knows everything, and therefore says to them: 'Conduct secret conversations as much as you like. I can see you, and I know what you say. I am the fourth of every three and the sixth of every five people.' Allah says: '…and neither between less than that, or more, without His being with them wherever they may be…' (al-Mujadala: 7); thus, this verse included all chances.

Allah the Exalted says: '…But in the end, on Resurrection Day, He will make them truly understand what they did…' (al-Mujadala: 7); this is because the attendant angels write down their actions, and on the Day of Resurrection, each person will be given his record to read what is in it and be a witness to it:

(1) Narrated by Muslim (4045), Abu Dawud (4211), At-Timridhi (4211), Ibn Majah (2751) and Ahmad (3379), on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud Allah be pleased with him

'Read this your record! Sufficient is your own self today to make out your account!' (*al-Isra': *14)

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

أَلَمْ تَرَ إِلَى ٱلَّذِينَ نُهُوا۟ عَنِ ٱلنَّجْوَىٰ ثُمَّ يَعُودُونَ لِمَا نُهُوا۟ عَنْهُ وَيَتَنَٰجَوْنَ بِٱلْإِثْمِ
وَٱلْعُدْوَٰنِ وَمَعْصِيَتِ ٱلرَّسُولِ وَإِذَا جَآءُوكَ حَيَّوْكَ بِمَا لَمْ يُحَيِّكَ بِهِ ٱللَّهُ وَيَقُولُونَ فِىٓ
أَنفُسِهِمْ لَوْلَا يُعَذِّبُنَا ٱللَّهُ بِمَا نَقُولُ ۚ حَسْبُهُمْ جَهَنَّمُ يَصْلَوْنَهَا ۖ فَبِئْسَ ٱلْمَصِيرُ ﴿٨﴾

Have you not seen how those who have been forbidden to hold secret conversations go back afterwards and hold them, and conspire with one another in what is sinful, hostile, and disobedient to the Messenger? When they come to you they greet you with words God has never used to greet you, and say inwardly, 'Why does God not punish us for what we say?' Hell will be punishment enough for them: they will burn there – an evil destination [8] (The Quran, al-Mujadala: 8)

Those who were forbidden to engage in secret confabulation were a group of Jews and hypocrites; '…and yet [always] revert to that which they have been forbidden…' (al-Mujadala: 8), which is 'secret confabulations'. Allah says: '…and conspire with one another with a view to sinful doings, aggressive conduct, and disobedience to the Prophet…' (al-Mujadala: 8); this implies that secret confabulation itself is not forbidden, but what is forbidden is to conspire with a view to sinful doings, aggressive conduct and disobedience to the Prophet. As for planning secretly to do good things, there is nothing wrong with this such as the one who conceals his charity so that his left hand does not know what his right hand gives.(1)

Allah Glorified is He says: '…Now whenever such [people] approach you [O, Muhammad] they salute you with a greeting which Allah has never countenanced…' (al-Mujadala: 8).

The True Lord the Most High exposes their hypocrisy and tells His Messenger of their evil intentions. The way they greeted Prophet Muhammad was evidence of their hypocrisy; 'they salute you' and '…with a greeting which Allah has never countenanced…' (al-Mujadala: 8) indicates their disobedience as they used a greeting other than Allah's greeting, which is 'peace be upon you' (as-salam 'alaykum). Instead, they were saying to Prophet Muhammad, 'As-sam 'alaykum', which means 'death be upon you'; they used the word sam (death), which sounds like the word salam (peace).

Lady 'Aisha Allah be pleased with her was aware of their intention in doing this, and she replied to them with the same evil greeting by saying: 'Nay, but may death and curses be upon you!'(1) Therefore, Allah will place the hypocrites in the lowest level of hell, for they are even worse than disbelievers are. This is because a disbeliever, as we said, says what is in his heart, whilst the hypocrite acts like a believer when really he is a disbeliever.

The way the hypocrites said 'as-sam 'alaykum' to Prophet Muhammad is similar to how their consorts, the Jews, said hinta in place of hitta when Allah told them: '…say, "Remove You from us the burden of our sins", [whereupon] We shall forgive you your sins…' (al-Baqara: 58); they said hinta which means 'wheat' instead of hitta which means 'remove the burdens of our sins' by way of sarcasm and mockery.

Allah Glorified is He says: '…And they say to themselves, "Why does not Allah chastise us for what we are saying?"…' (al-Mujadala: 8) They said this to themselves inwardly, not publicly. Yet, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him informed them of it. They should have taken admonition from this, reflected on it, and asked themselves, 'Who told Muhammad of this when we said it to ourselves?' This situation should have led them to guidance and faith in Prophet Muhammad.

The meaning of '…Why does Allah not chastise us for what we are saying…' (al-Mujadala: 8) is 'Is Allah not going to punish us?' It is as though they wanted to be punished. However, punishment will not come to them now; '…Hell shall be their allotted portion; they shall [indeed] enter it…' (al-Mujadala: 8) on the Day of Resurrection '…and how vile a journey's end'

(1) The Messenger of God peace and blessing be upon him then told her to calm down and to simply reply, 'And upon you.' Narrated by Al-Bukhari (5565) and Muslim (4027)

(al-Mujadala: 8). How vile shall be their fate and their end. Their ' allotted portion' means it will be enough for them, and 'they shall [indeed] enter it' means that they will be cast into it and feel its heat.

Then, the True Lord the Most High addresses believers and teaches them how secret discourse should be conducted:

يَٰٓأَيُّهَا ٱلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُوٓاْ إِذَا تَنَٰجَيۡتُمۡ فَلَا تَتَنَٰجَوۡاْ بِٱلۡإِثۡمِ وَٱلۡعُدۡوَٰنِ وَمَعۡصِيَتِ
ٱلرَّسُولِ وَتَنَٰجَوۡاْ بِٱلۡبِرِّ وَٱلتَّقۡوَىٰۖ وَٱتَّقُواْ ٱللَّهَ ٱلَّذِيٓ إِلَيۡهِ تُحۡشَرُونَ ٩

[You who believe, when you converse in secret, do not do so in a way that is sinful, hostile, and disobedient to the Messenger, but in a way that is good and mindful [of God].
Be mindful of God, to whom you will all be gathered [9]
(The Quran, al-Mujadala: 9)

In this verse, the True Lord the Most High combines a prohibition of and a warning against the blameworthy kind of secret confabulation, along with enjoining of the praiseworthy kind of secret confabulation. The blameworthy kind of secret confabulation is that which involves sinful doings, aggressive conduct, and disobedience to the Messenger. He says: '…do not conspire with one another with a view to sinful doings, aggressive conduct…' (al-Mujadala: 9). Sin (ithm) means something foul which people are ashamed of, while aggressive conduct ('udwan) means the wickedness of aggression, plotting and evil planning.

As long as they lower their speech and conceal it, something about it must be contrary to sound natural instinct, for if it were purely the truth, they would say it aloud. Secret confabulation indicates that they feel guilt in their minds, their hearts, and every part of their being.

At the same time, the verse enjoins the praiseworthy kind of secret confabulation: '…but hold counsel in the cause of virtue and God-consciousness…' (al-Mujadala: 9). We said before that mentioning opposites side by side serves to clarify their meaning. There is nothing wrong, then, with secret discourse when it is in the cause of virtue and God-consciousness and in the cause of aiding the religion and upholding the dignity of Muslims. Military leaders, for example, hold secret meetings to discuss strategies of war, and it is right for them to make sure no one else knows about it, lest the enemy get wind of their plans.

Allah Glorified is He says: '…and [always] remain conscious of Allah, unto Whom you all shall be gathered.' (al-Mujadala: 9) This means be conscious of Allah by obeying His commandments and avoiding all that He prohibits, for it is Allah Glorified is He '...Whom you all shall be gathered' (al-Mujadala: 9). This implies exclusivity which means that solely to Him will you be gathered and brought forth to be reckoned on the Day of Resurrection.

شَيْـًٔا إِلَّا بِإِذْنِ ٱللَّهِ ۚ وَعَلَى ٱللَّهِ فَلْيَتَوَكَّلِ ٱلْمُؤْمِنُونَ ﴿١٠﴾

[Any other kind of] secret conversation is the work of Satan, designed to cause trouble to the believers, though it cannot harm them in the least unless God permits it. Let the believers put their trust in God [10] (The Quran, al-Mujadala: 10)

This refers to secret confabulations with a view to sinful doings, aggressive conduct and disobedience to the Messenger are essentially from Satan because this has been his role since he pledged a vow to Allah by saying: 'Then [I swear] by Your Might, I shall most certainly beguile them all into grievous error,[all] save such of them as are truly Your servants!' (Sad: 82-83) In addition, he exposed himself when he announced his plan to tempt the sons of Adam by saying: '...I shall most certainly lie in ambush for them all along Your straight way.' (al-A'raf: 16)

Therefore, we said that Satan does not go to bars but goes to mosques in order to spoil the righteousness of obedient people. The intelligent person does not announce his plan to his enemy. This is why people often complain of having forgetfulness when praying, and this is natural since Allah's enemy (Satan) does not simply leave you to obey your Lord.

Our religion permits us, when we encounter these misgivings which distract us from our presence of mind with Allah, to pause our recitation and seek refuge in Allah from them, for when Satan hears you seeking refuge with Allah, he becomes like a thief who lurks around a house: when he finds that you are aware of his presence, he leaves. He is, as the True Lord the Most High calls him, the whispering, sneaky tempter; he whispers misgivings to you, and when you seek refuge with Allah, he sneaks away and flees: 'Hence, if it should happen that a prompting from Satan stirs you up [to blind anger], seek refuge with Allah. Behold, He alone is All-Hearing, All Knowing!' (Fussilat: 36)

The commandment in His Words '...but hold counsel in the cause of virtue and God-consciousness...' (al-Mujadala: 9) gives an opportunity to those who wish to plan to succour Allah's religion, allowing them to hold secret talks so that no one can know the details of their plan, even other Muslims, for a Muslim might be weak and reveal his army's secrets to the enemy.

You know the story(1) of Hatib ibn Abu Balta'a.(2) He was a Companion of the Messenger of Allah, yet he weakened and told Quraysh that Prophet Muhammad was preparing to conquer Mecca, sending them a letter with a woman in the caravan. However, Allah informed His Prophet about what Hatib had done and sent for 'Ali, instructing him to follow a certain road to find the woman in whose braids the letter was hidden. 'Ali went and followed her tracks and brought the letter to Prophet Muhammad. It was from Hatib, so he sent for him and said to him, 'Hatib, what made you do what you did?' Hatib replied, 'O, Messenger of Allah, I am a man of no status, and I want to have influence with Quraysh, for I know that in any case that Allah will give you victory over them.' Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Leave him be, for it may be that Allah has looked upon those who fought at Badr and said, "Do as you please, for I have forgiven you."'(3)

Prophet Muhammad taught us this lesson by saying, 'Make it easier to get things done by employing discretion.'(4) This is allowed as long as it is in the cause of virtue and God-consciousness.

Allah Glorified is He says: '...so that he might cause grief to those who have attained to faith...' (al-Mujadala: 10); he wants to do this, but he cannot: '...yet he cannot harm them in the least, unless it be by Allah's Leave...' (al-Mujadala: 10). This is like a man who may have all the means to do evil; Allah has given him power and money, and he may have a gun and be a good shooter, but when he points the gun at his enemy's heart, he might jerk and miss, or something might get in the way and deflect the bullet.

(1) The story of Hatib ibn Abi Balta'a and his blowing the whistle on Prophet Muhammad to Quraysh

(2) D. 65 A.H.

(3) Narrated by Al-Bukhari (2785) and Muslim (4550)

(4) Narrated by Al-Khara'it in I'tilal Al-Qulub (665)

Thus, he wants to do it, but Allah does not want it to happen; he wills it, but Allah does not will it. Every motion in the universe, whether great or small, from the atom to the galaxy, takes place by Allah's Power and Will. Satan wants evil to befall the believers, but it can never happen unless Allah wills it.

Therefore Allah Glorified is He says: 'and when everything will have been decided, Satan will say, "Behold, Allah promised you something that was bound to come true! I, too, held out [all manner of] promises to you, but I deceived you. Yet, I had no power at all over you, I but called you and you responded unto me..."' (Ibrahim: 22).

We said before that power is either force which compels you to act or an argument which convinces you. Satan does not possess either one of these; all he can do is whisper to you and make a deed seem alluring to you. It is as though he wants to say to them, 'You were willing captives to my suggestions. I only suggested evil things to you, and then you went and did them on your own.'

Moreover, some sinful acts do not involve Satan at all. There are sins which are made alluring by the passionate soul which enjoins evil and by caprice. Therefore, it is an established fact that Satan is chained up in Ramadan, (1) yet we still commit many sins in that month. A poet expressed this by saying:

The devil, the world, the soul, and caprice:
What can I do when they are all my enemies?

Likewise, it is in the case of sorcery; many people own the paraphernalia of sorcery and practise it, but they cannot harm anyone save by Allah's Leave: 'And [they] follow [instead] that which the evil ones used to practise during Sulaiman's (Solomon's) reign, for it was not Sulaiman (Solomon) who denied the truth, but those evil ones denied it by teaching people sorcery and [they follow] that which has come down through the two angels in Babylon, Harut and Marut, although these two never taught it to anyone without first declaring, "We are but a temptation to evil. Do not, then, deny [Allah's] truth!" And they learn from these two how to create discord between a man and his wife, but whereas they can harm none thereby save by Allah's Leave. They acquire knowledge that only harms themselves and does not benefit them although they know, indeed, that he who acquires this [knowledge] shall have no share in the good of the life to come. For vile indeed is that [art] for which they have sold their own selves. Had they but known it!' (al-Baqara: 102)

(1) This was stated by the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him in a Hadith narrated by Al-Bayhaqi (3448) on the authority of Abu-Hurayra Allah be pleased with him.

And on ('ala) Allah, then, "let the believers place their trust…" (al-Mujadala: 10) In the verse, the word 'ala, which literally means 'on' implies that trust in Allah is like a vehicle which leads you to your goal. This word, here and elsewhere in the Quran, is often used to refer to those who are illuminated by Allah's Guidance, and it refutes the claim of those who say that religious responsibilities are difficult for the soul and that this is indicated even by their name takalif which can also mean 'burdens'.

In fact, even the most strenuous of religious responsibilities is easy and within the ability of all; the only ones who find them difficult are those who care more about the short term than the long term. How difficult can religious responsibilities really be when they are compared with the reward that is given for them? Thus, if a Muslim considers the punishment for sin, he will not dare to commit it, and if he considers the reward for obedience, everything he needs to do to attain it will seem easy.

In Allah'...then, let believers place their trust' (al-Mujadala: 10). This is like the expression 'leave it to me'. If you are powerless, then know that Allah has power over everything in the earth and in the heavens. Yet, it is clear that reliance on Allah the Exalted has certain conditions, one of which is that it must be preceded by an effort to utilise the means at one's disposal.

The True Lord addresses believers by saying:

يَفۡسَحِ ٱللَّهُ لَكُمۡۖ وَإِذَا قِيلَ ٱنشُزُواْ فَٱنشُزُواْ يَرۡفَعِ ٱللَّهُ ٱلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُواْ
مِنكُمۡ وَٱلَّذِينَ أُوتُواْ ٱلۡعِلۡمَ دَرَجَٰتٖۚ وَٱللَّهُ بِمَا تَعۡمَلُونَ خَبِيرٞ ﴿١١﴾

You who believe, if you are told to make room for one another in your assemblies, then do so, and God will make room for you, and if you are told to rise up, do so: God will raise up, by many degrees, those of you who believe and those who have been given knowledge: He is fully aware of what you do [11] (The Quran, al-Mujadala: 11)

This verse was revealed when Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him had come to have many companions and people who loved him and wished to keep his company until it got to the point that they were so crowded around him that they could find nowhere to sit. Allah, therefore, commanded them to make room for one another by saying: ‘O, you who have attained to faith! When you are told, "Make room for one another in your collective life", do make room...’ (al-Mujadala: 11). What this means is to spread out and make space for those who have no space: ‘...[And in return] Allah will make room for you [by His Grace]...’ (al-Mujadala: 11). So, you must utilise the means to spread out, and Allah will make the room for you in your gatherings.

When an action is ascribed to Allah the Almighty it is carried out by His Omnipotent Power. You make as much room as you are able, and Allah the Exalted will make as much room for you as He is able. This is akin to the words of the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him 'Allah comes to His servant’s aid as long as the servant comes to his brother’s aid.'(1)

This is clearly a relative agreement; you aid your brother with your limited power and your limited strength, and Allah aids you with His unlimited Power and infinite strength. Who benefits the most from this?

This concept is universal when it comes to making room: make room for your brother, and Allah will make room for you in a way you cannot perceive.

(1) Narrated by Muslim (4867), Abu-Dawud (4295), At-Tirmidhi (1345) and Ibn Majah (221) on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him

This ‘making room’ from Allah the Most High takes the form of blessed increase in space, blessed increase in provision and blessed increase in all things.

We must all act on this direction from Allah and from Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him for otherwise we will be sinful. You all know the story of the debtor who died while still owing debts, and so the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him declined to pray his funeral prayer; but he allowed the Muslims to pray for him by saying, 'Pray for your companion.'(1) What was the sin of this debtor? Why did Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him decline to lead his funeral prayer? They say it is because he disobeyed an instruction of the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him 'Whosoever takes people’s money while intending to repay it, Allah will repay it for him, and whosoever takes it intending to waste it, Allah will lay him to waste.'(2)

The fact that this debtor died while having not repaid his debt shows that he did not intend to repay it, so that he was not aided in doing so. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him wanted to teach his community this lesson; the debtor was denied the honour of having the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him lead his funeral prayer because he disobeyed his commandment, but he was not denied the honour of having Muslims offer his funeral prayer.

This story also shows us how concerned the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him was that the man’s debt be paid so he could be cleansed of it before going to meet his Lord. Therefore, he encouraged companions to donate so that the debt could be paid, and the people were quick to do so. (3)

The True Lord Glorified is He gives us a model of this ‘making room’ in the mother’s womb, which receives the foetus as an infinitesimal speck which then grows, and as it grows, the womb enlarges after having been narrow. The same is the case with Muslim gatherings; Allah the Exalted makes more room for them as long as they make room for each other. If you only move a little from your place, He causes everyone else to make room for you so that a small space can accommodate a large number of people.

(1) Narrated by Al-Bukhari (2133) and Muslim (3040)

(2) Narrated by Al-Bukhari (22) and Ahmad (83) on the authority of Abu-Hurayra Allah be pleased with him

(3) Narrated by Al-Bukhari (2127)

Thus, if you want Allah to make room for you, make room for your brethren. Therefore, the Sacred Law allows, for when a prayer space is very crowded that one may bow and prostrate on his brother's back.

Also, Allah the Exalted says: '…And whenever you are told, "Rise up [for a good deed]", do rise up…' (al-Mujadala: 11); this means that one should get up and stand to make room; '…[And] Allah will exalt by [many] degrees those of you who have attained to faith and [above all] such as have been vouchsafed [true] knowledge…' (al-Mujadala: 11). This means that those who obey these commands and implement them as Allah enjoins them will be exalted many degrees by Him.

Allah Glorified is He says: '…for Allah is fully aware of all that you do.' (al-Mujadala: 11) The True Lord the Most High wants to strengthen the faith of believers and bolster their trust in Allah and in the reward He has in store. Allah the Almighty wants some of us to be martyrs who enter battle with the certitude that what we will find with Him is better than what they are leaving behind. Likewise at the same time, He wants there to be others who bear the message and call the people to it—people who learn the religion, study it and teach it to others.

Islam provides for both these directions and has them run parallel courses: one course for the defence and protection of the religion, while another course for calling to Allah's religion and spreading it. Otherwise, if we all went out to war, who would stay behind to teach the people and give them a sound understanding of their religion?

Therefore He the Most High says: '…From within every group in their midst, some shall refrain from going forth to war and shall devote themselves [instead] to acquiring a deeper knowledge of the faith, and [thus be able to] teach their homecoming brethren so that these [too] might guard themselves against evil.' (at-Tawba: 122)

The True Lord the Most High says:

يَٰٓأَيُّهَا ٱلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُوٓاْ إِذَا نَٰجَيۡتُمُ ٱلرَّسُولَ فَقَدِّمُواْ بَيۡنَ يَدَيۡ نَجۡوَىٰكُمۡ
صَدَقَةٗۚ ذَٰلِكَ خَيۡرٞ لَّكُمۡ وَأَطۡهَرُۚ فَإِن لَّمۡ تَجِدُواْ فَإِنَّ ٱللَّهَ غَفُورٞ رَّحِيمٌ ١٢

You who believe, when you come to speak privately with the Messenger, offer something in charity before your conversation: that is better for you and purer. If you do not have the means, God is most forgiving and merciful [12]

After speaking about the kind of secret discourse which is blameworthy and forbidden, along with the kind which is permitted, the verses now turn to another form of discourse, namely discourse with the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him and there are special norms for this: The first of these is found in Allah’s Words: ‘Do not regard the Prophet’s summons to you [in the same light] as a summons of one of you to another…’ (an-Nur: 63). This means not to call Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him as you call one another; do not say, ‘O, Muhammad!’ Secondly: if we want to speak privately with the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him we should give charity before doing so. Scholars say that there were people who sat with the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him and spoke with him apart from the other attendants, doing so in order to gain a reputation as the Prophet’s secret confidants, with whom he shared things he did not with others.

However, Allah Glorified is He wanted to put an end to this phenomenon. How did He do so? He did so by instituting this charity which was a kind of duty for private discourse with Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. The Prophet peace and blessings be upon him did not take this charity for himself, but it was given to the poor. When this verse was revealed, those who used to go to the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him with this intention were put off from continuing to do so and did not come back.

Thus, the intention of this charity was simply to curb the large number of people who would crowd around Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. It is like a famous doctor who is forced to raise the price of consultations, for no reason other than to reduce the number of patients who come to him.

The meaning of '…offer up something in charity on the occasion of your consultation…' (al-Mujadala: 12) is before the consultation, not during it. This is akin to Allah's Words: 'O, you who have attained to faith! When you are about to pray, wash your face…' (al-Ma'ida: 6). We do not make ablutions as we are about to pray; we do so before we pray.

Those who were too stingy to give charity to the poor were so because money was more important to them than to gain the honour of speaking privately to the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him; thus, Allah Glorified is He exposed what was in their souls with His Words '…Whenever you [intend to] consult the Prophet, offer up something in charity on the occasion of your consultation…' (al-Mujadala: 12).This is because the Messenger of Allah's time was divided among many areas, and he would sit with everyone, and he did not want anyone to monopolise the time he had to talk privately because he did not have enough time for this; indeed, this matter weighed heavily on him, for much was required of him. He devoted time to his Lord, to his family, to certain individuals and to the general public.

Allah the Almighty says, 'This…', namely this charity you give before consultation, '…will be for your own good and more conducive to your [inner] purity…' (al-Mujadala: 12); this means the purity of your hearts. Furthermore, His Words '…Yet, if you are unable to do so, [know that] verily, Allah is Much Forgiving, a Dispenser of Grace' (al-Mujadala: 12) indicate that this was not obligatory.

فَأَقِيمُوا۟ ٱلصَّلَوٰةَ وَءَاتُوا۟ ٱلزَّكَوٰةَ وَأَطِيعُوا۟ ٱللَّهَ وَرَسُولَهُۥ ۚ وَٱللَّهُ خَبِيرٌۢ بِمَا تَعْمَلُونَ ﴿١٣﴾

Were you afraid to give charity before consulting the Prophet? Since you did not give charity, and God has relented towards you, you should [at least] observe your prayers, pay the prescribed alms, and obey God and His Messenger: God is well aware of your actions [13] (The Quran, al-Mujadala: 13)

When they did not give this charity and abstained from it, Allah the Almighty exposed them to His Messenger peace and blessings be upon him by saying: 'Do you, perchance, fear…' (al-Mujadala: 13) meaning: do you fear poverty so that you have not offered charity before your consultations? '…But if you fail to do it…' (al-Mujadala: 13) and do not go to consult the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him it is as though He were saying to them, 'You have relieved Us of yourselves and of your going to the Messenger of Allah.'

Yet 'Ali Allah be pleased with him was an exception to this when the verse was revealed commanding that this charity be given. He later said, 'I did something that no one before or after me did. I had a dinar, so I exchanged it for some dirhams, and every time I wanted to go to see the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him I gave a dirham in charity.'

Therefore, after the verse was revealed, 'Do you, perchance, fear lest [you may be sinning if] you cannot offer up anything in charity on the occasion of your consultation…' (al-Mujadala: 13) and this matter was annulled, 'Ali, Allah be pleased him, continued to give this charity ever after; this is why he said, 'I did something that no one before or after me did.'(1)

Allah the Exalted says: '…And Allah turns unto you in His Mercy…' (al-Mujadala: 13); this means that He excuses you from giving this charity. He also says: '…remain but constant in prayer and render [no more than] the purifying dues, and [thus] pay heed unto Allah and His Prophet…' (al-Mujadala: 13). In other words, it is as He is saying, 'All you have to do is what Allah has made compulsory for you, obeying His commandments and the commandments of His Messenger. That is enough.'

Allah the Exalted says: '…for Allah is fully aware of all that you do.' (al-Mujadala: 13) This means that He knows the inner reality of things, and nothing is beyond His ken. It is as though He were saying to us, 'As long as you are only responsible for doing what is obligatory, then do it thoroughly and sincerely.' This thoroughness and sincerity in worship is like a 'deposit' for the consultation with the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him and a substitute for the charity which Allah has excused you from giving.

Do not forget, then, that Allah, Who gave these responsibilities to you, is fully aware of your deeds. Therefore the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him advised Abu Dharr Allah be pleased with him by saying, '…And be sincere in your deeds, for He Who will judge you sees you well.'(1)

(1) Narrated by Al-Hakim (3753)

Allah Glorified is He says:

أَلَمۡ تَرَ إِلَى ٱلَّذِينَ تَوَلَّوۡاْ قَوۡمًا غَضِبَ ٱللَّهُ عَلَيۡهِم مَّا هُم مِّنكُمۡ
وَلَا مِنۡهُمۡ وَيَحۡلِفُونَ عَلَى ٱلۡكَذِبِ وَهُمۡ يَعۡلَمُونَ ﴿١٤﴾

Have you not seen [Prophet] those who give their loyalty to people with whom God is angry? They are neither with you nor with them, and knowingly swear to lies [14]
(The Quran, al-Mujadala: 14)

This verse speaks of the alliance that existed between the hypocrites and the Jews. He the Most High says: ‘Are you not aware [O, Muhammad] of those who would be friends with people whom Allah has condemned…’ (al-Mujadala: 14); this refers to the hypocrites would be friends with those whom Allah condemned, namely the Jews. This means that they took them as allies and offered them succour.

Allah says: ‘…They are neither of you’; this refers to the believers. He also says: ‘nor of those [who utterly reject the truth]…’ (al-Mujadala: 14); this refers to the Jews. In the chapter of al-Fatiha, Allah the Almighty says: ‘…not of those who have been condemned…’ (al-Fatiha: 7); scholars say this means the Jews.

We explained before that hypocrisy did not emerge in Mecca but did so in Medina, and this was ultimately a good thing which shows the strength of the religion, for people only seek to infiltrate and falsely ally themselves to those who are strong. Islam was weak in Mecca, and no one had any reason to pretend to be Muslim there.

As for Medina, Islam had become strong by that time and had a high place in society, and this is why hypocrisy emerged there. 'Abdullah ibn Ubayy was the forerunner of the hypocrites in the Prophet’s city; this was because before Islam came, they were preparing to crown him as their king. (2)

(1) Related by Al-Haytami in Al-Zawajir (Vol. 1, p. 51)

(2) Narrated by Al-Bayhaqi in Al-Dala’il (1403)

Thus, when the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him came to Medina, 'Abdullah ibn Ubayy lost his social status, and the people left him. Ibn Ubayy did not forget this and eventually started pretending to be Muslim so that he could enjoy Islam's benefits, all the while keeping his disbelief and hypocrisy hidden. His son 'Abdullah, on the other hand, embraced Islam and remained a true Muslim and was sorely grieved at his father's hypocrisy.

It is related that 'Abdullah (the son) went to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and said, 'Messenger of Allah, give me your leftover drinking water so I can give it to my father to drink so that perhaps Allah might cleanse his heart of this hypocrisy by means of it.' He took the leftover water to his father and told him to drink it. He asked what it was, and he told him it was the Prophet's leftover drinking water. His father replied, 'Bring me your mother's urine instead!'(1)

'Abdullah grew angry at this and went to the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him and said, 'O, Messenger of Allah, you and I both know what my father is, and I fear that one of the believers will kill him in his rancour. If this must happen, command me, then and I shall kill him myself so that I feel no resentment towards my father's killer.' The Prophet peace and blessings be upon him said to him, 'Be kind to him.'(2) From that day forth, Ibn Ubayy was always treated well for the sake of his son 'Abdullah.

Thus, the strength of Islam and the strength of the faith emerged in the souls of Muhammad's followers in Medina in a way which was unprecedented. Reflect on how 'Abdullah told the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him he would be willing to kill his own father. Reflect also on the brotherhood that existed among the Emigrants and Helpers, to the point where a Helper would say to an Emigrant, 'I have many wives, so see which one pleases you, and I will divorce her and you can marry her.'

It is common knowledge that a man might happily give away anything he has, except his wife. This kind of generosity was unprecedented in history, and therefore, Allah Glorified is He says of them: ‘And those who, before them, had their abode in this realm and in faith—[those] who love all that come to them in search of refuge and who harbour in their hearts no grudge for whatever the others may have been given; rather, they give them preference over themselves, even though poverty be their own lot…’ (al-Hashr: 9).

(1) Narrated in a slightly different form by 'Abd ibn-Hamid and ibn Al-Mundhir; also related by At-Tabari in his Tafsir

(2) Narrated by As-Suhayli in Ar-Rawd Al-Unuf (Vol. 4, p. 350)

Thus, the friendship that existed between the hypocrites and Jews was problematic for the Muslims since the hypocrites would mix with the Muslims and even perhaps pray in the front row at the mosque, and then go and pass information about them on to the Jews.

This was the danger posed by hypocrisy and the hypocrites. They were more dangerous than the disbelievers of Mecca or the Jews because a disbeliever and Jew were open in their enmity, whilst a hypocrite concealed his enmity. This is why Allah places them in the lowest level of hell. Allah says: ‘…and so they swear to a falsehood while they know [it to be false].’ (al-Mujadala: 14) They know that they are lying, and they know that Allah will reveal to His Messenger peace and blessings be upon him what is in their souls and their minds, and had they any insight, they would realise that the Prophet had a connection to Heaven and would thus believe in him and follow him.

What is incredible is that they swear to their falsehoods in this word and lie to one another, and even in the Hereafter they will swear to falsehoods. Allah the Almighty tells us that they will say: ‘...By Allah, our Lord, we did not [mean to] ascribe divinity to aught beside Him!’ (al-An‘am: 23) Also, He says: ‘and would persist in heinous sinning [hinth, which also means ‘lying’].’ (al-Waqi‘a: 46) So they will even try to lie to Allah in the Hereafter.

Allah tells us what their fate will be:

أَعَدَّ ٱللَّهُ لَهُمۡ عَذَابٗا شَدِيدًاۖ إِنَّهُمۡ سَآءَ مَا كَانُواْ يَعۡمَلُونَ ﴿١٥﴾

God has prepared a severe torment for them: what they do is truly evil [15] (The Quran, al-Mujadala: 15)

Indeed, Allah has prepared for them—the hypocrites—a severe chastisement, more heinous and severe than that of disbelievers: ‘Verily, the hypocrites shall be in the lowest depth of the fire, and you will find none who could succour them.' (an-Nisa': 145)

Allah says: 'Behold, evil'; this means vile '…indeed is what they are wont to do' (al-Mujadala: 15); they pretended to be believers when their hearts harbour disbelief.

Allah Glorified is He says:

ٱتَّخَذُوٓا۟ أَيْمَٰنَهُمْ جُنَّةً فَصَدُّوا۟ عَن سَبِيلِ ٱللَّهِ فَلَهُمْ عَذَابٌ مُّهِينٌ ١٦

They have used their oaths to cover up [their false deeds], and barred others from the path of God. A humiliating torment awaits them [16] (The Quran, al-Mujadala: 16)

The True Lord the Most High wants to expose them and reveal their games. Before, He said that they '...swear to a falsehood while they know [it to be false]' (al-Mujadala: 14); this means that they swear they are not hypocrites. In this verse, He says: 'They have made their oaths (aymaan) a cover...' (al-Mujadala: 16). The word aymaan is the plural of yameen, which means 'oath'. Swearing and oath making are methods of deception in which they are adept and behind which they hide.

Allah Glorified is He says: '...a cover...' (al-Mujadala: 16); junna means a shield; they would use their oaths as shields to hide behind, just as a warrior protects himself with a shield or armour.

The root verb janna means to cover and conceal; it is used to describe how the night covers the land with darkness. Junna when used for a person means 'to go insane'; junayna means a covered garden that gives shade to those who walk in it; the mijann is the shield a soldier carries to protect his breast. A poet (1) said:

My shield (mijann), to protect me from those I feared,
Was three people: two buxom girls and teenage lass!

(1) It was 'Umar Al-Makhzumi (23-93 A.H.).

Therefore, our master 'Ali Allah be pleased with him used the door of the fort of Khaybar as his shield at the Battle of Khaybar; now the shield only protects the front, not the back, and he said of this, 'By Allah, may I not survive if I show them my back!'(1)

This was the state of the hypocrites, for they took their false oaths as a cover to shield them and conceal their disbelief so that they could live amongst the Muslims and take advantage of their benefits and share in their agreements, enjoying their protection over their persons and their possessions. They sought only to deceive the believers when they proclaimed their Islam whilst concealing their disbelief.

However, 'Behold, the hypocrites seek to deceive Allah—the while it is He Who causes them to be deceived [by themselves]...' (an-Nisa': 142). Allah Glorified is He says: '...Thus, have they [always] schemed, but Allah brought their scheming to nought, for Allah is above all schemers.' (al-Anfal: 30) This means 'Though you may benefit from your hypocrisy in the life of this world and make an ephemeral gain from it, you shall find the consequences for it in the Hereafter.'

Allah Glorified is He says: '...and thus, they have turned others away from the Path of Allah...' (al-Mujadala: 16). They turn other's away from the Path of Allah, so they are responsible for the consequent sins of others as well as their own sins: '...hence, shameful suffering awaits them.' (al-Mujadala: 16) The shameful suffering is that which will abuse and humiliate them.

In this way, Allah the Almighty will punish them with all kinds of suffering; sometimes He says 'grievous', sometimes 'mighty', sometimes 'painful' and sometimes 'shameful'. All this will be a just requital for the harm they have inflicted on the call of Islam and the way they have hurt Muslims and infiltrated them hypocritically.

Allah Glorified is He says:

---

(1) This is related by Al-Assami in Samt An-Nujum Al-'Awali (p.821).

لَّن تُغْنِيَ عَنْهُمْ أَمْوَٰلُهُمْ وَلَآ أَوْلَـٰدُهُم مِّنَ ٱللَّهِ شَيْـًٔا ۚ
أُو۟لَـٰٓئِكَ أَصْحَـٰبُ ٱلنَّارِ ۖ هُمْ فِيهَا خَـٰلِدُونَ ﴿١٧﴾

Neither their wealth nor their children will be of any use to them against God – they will be the inhabitants of Hell, where they will remain [17]
(The Quran, al-Mujadala: 17)

This means that neither the worldly possessions which their hypocrisy was meant to preserve, nor their children which their hypocrisy was meant to protect and save, will benefit them or keep from them the manifold punishments which await them.

Allah the Almighty says: '...It is they who are destined (ashab) for the fire...' (al-Mujadala: 17). They and the fire are like companions (ashab) or friends because they have chosen to accompany those things which lead to hell; they love the sins which send them there, and thus, there is a kind of companionship between them and hell theirin 'to abide!' (al-Mujadala: 17); they will remain therein forever, neither leaving it nor having it leave them.

Allah Glorified is He says:

يَوْمَ يَبْعَثُهُمُ ٱللَّهُ جَمِيعًا فَيَحْلِفُونَ لَهُۥ كَمَا يَحْلِفُونَ لَكُمْ ۖ
وَيَحْسَبُونَ أَنَّهُمْ عَلَىٰ شَىْءٍ ۚ أَلَآ إِنَّهُمْ هُمُ ٱلْكَـٰذِبُونَ ﴿١٨﴾

On the Day God raises them all from the dead, they will swear before Him as they swear before you now, thinking that it will help them. What liars they are! [18]
(The Quran, al-Mujadala: 18)

What this means is that their tongues have become so accustomed to lying that they do not know anything else. Just as they used to lie to you in the life of this world and swear to you that they were not hypocrites, so too in the Hereafter they will swear to Allah saying as He the Most High tells us: '...By Allah, our Lord, we did not [mean to] ascribe divinity to aught beside Him!' (al-An'am: 23) This is such an incredible thing; even in the Hereafter and after they have seen with their own eyes the truth they once denied and come to know that Allah is real, they will still lie to Him!

The Words ‘...them all...’ (al-Mujadala: 18) mean that on the Day of Resurrection Allah will bring forth the Jews and hypocrites who made alliances with them; He will bring them all forth together, for they will share the same fate. In the life of this world, they used to be allies with them and aid them, and he who loves a people shall be raised alongside them.(1)

It is as though Allah Glorified is He was consoling His Messenger and setting him at ease by saying to him: ‘On the Day when Allah will raise them all from the dead...’ (al-Mujadala: 18); it is like Allah is saying: ‘O, Muhammad, wait this Day, and you shall see how Allah will requite them as they deserve.’

He then says: ‘...they will swear before Him as they [now] swear before you, thinking that they are on firm ground [in their assumptions]. Oh, verily, it is they who are the [greatest] liars!’ (al-Mujadala: 18) This means that they imagine that they are in the right, yet ‘...Oh, verily, it is they who are the [greatest] liars!’ (al-Mujadala: 18) They think this, but you should be aware that they are, in fact, nothing but liars. The word ‘Oh’ in this verse is meant to alert us to the statement which follows. This means do not let it escape your attention that these people are treacherous liars.

Allah Glorified is He says:

ٱسۡتَحۡوَذَ عَلَيۡهِمُ ٱلشَّيۡطَٰنُ فَأَنسَىٰهُمۡ ذِكۡرَ ٱللَّهِۚ أُوْلَٰٓئِكَ حِزۡبُ
ٱلشَّيۡطَٰنِۚ أَلَآ إِنَّ حِزۡبَ ٱلشَّيۡطَٰنِ هُمُ ٱلۡخَٰسِرُونَ ﴿١٩﴾

Satan has gained control over them and made them forget God. They are on Satan’s side, and Satan’s side will be the losers [19] (The Quran, al-Mujadala: 19)

This means that they did all this and became hypocrites because ‘Satan has gained mastery over them...’ (al-Mujadala: 19); Satan overcame their minds and their thoughts, and thus ‘...caused them to remain oblivious of the remembrance of Allah...’ (al-Mujadala: 19). This is his mission, which he swore to undertake when he said, ‘Then, [I swear] by Your Might, I shall most certainly beguile them all into grievous error. [All] save such of them as are truly Your servants!’

(1) The Prophet peace and blessings be upon him said, 'A man shall be (resurrected) with those he loves.' Narrated by Al-Bukhari (5703) and Muslim (4779)

(Sad: 82-83). He said: '...I shall most certainly lie in ambush for them all along Your straight way.' (al-A'raf: 16) What this means is that he shall lie in wait for them on the road of obedience so that he might ruin it for them. This is why we said he does not go to bars but to mosques in order to spoil the obedience of the obedient. So when a misgiving from Satan comes to you as you pray, all you have to do is say the words Allah taught you: 'Hence, if it should happen that a prompting from Satan stirs you up [to blind anger], seek refuge with Allah...' (Fussilat: 36).

Allah Glorified is He says: '...Such as these…'; this means hypocrites '...are Satan's partisans...' (al-Mujadala: 19). The word 'Oh' comes again to command our full attention: '...Oh, verily, it is they, the partisans of Satan, who will truly be the losers!' (al-Mujadala: 19) The word hizb (partisans) comes from the verb hazaba which means 'to cause concern' such as a thought which occupies you so that you cannot stop thinking about it.

Thus, hizb is a word used for every group that ascribes to one opinion, serves this opinion, and propagates it. Therefore, Allah the Almighty calls believers 'Allah's partisans', and disbelievers and hypocrites 'Satan's partisans'. Furthermore, He passes judgment on Allah's partisans by saying: '...behold, it is they, the partisans of Allah, who shall be victorious' (al-Ma'ida: 56), while saying of Satan's partisans: '...Oh, verily, it is they, the partisans of Satan, who will truly be the losers!' (al-Mujadala: 19)

Allah Glorified is He says:

إِنَّ ٱلَّذِينَ يُحَآدُّونَ ٱللَّهَ وَرَسُولَهُۥٓ أُوْلَٰٓئِكَ فِي ٱلۡأَذَلِّينَ ٢٠
كَتَبَ ٱللَّهُ لَأَغۡلِبَنَّ أَنَا۠ وَرُسُلِيٓۚ إِنَّ ٱللَّهَ قَوِيٌّ عَزِيزٞ ٢١

Those who oppose God and His Messenger will be among the most humiliated [20] God has written, 'I shall most certainly win, I and My messengers.' God is powerful and almighty [21] (The Quran, al-Mujadala: 20 - 21)

We said that '...contend (yuhaddun) against Allah and His Prophet...' (al-Mujadala: 20) means that they put themselves on one side, and Allah and His Messenger peace and blessings be upon him on the other side, separating themselves from Allah. A hadd is a boundary which separates two things for two different claimants.

Allah the Exalted says: '...It is they who [on Judgment Day] shall find themselves among the most abject.' (al-Mujadala: 20) As long as a servant separates himself from his Lord, he will inevitably end up abject and humiliated because a man only attains dignity through his Lord, even if he is a disbeliever, for Allah provides for believer and disbeliever alike because they are all His servants, and He called them all into this life, and therefore undertook to provide for all of them.

You all remember you story(1) of Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him when a guest came to his door one night. He asked him about his religion, and the man said he was a Zoroastrian, so Ibrahim (Abraham) closed the door in his face, and the man went away. Allah the Almighty rebuked His prophet Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him for treating the visitor this way and said to him: 'Ibrahim (Abraham), I allow him to exist in My dominion though he disbelieves in Me, yet you want him to change his religion in return for a single night's hospitality!'

So, our master Ibrahim (Abraham) *peace be upon him*rushed after the man, found him, and then invited him to be his guest. He said to him, 'I came to you, but you turned me away.' Ibrahim (Abraham) said, 'My Lord rebuked me for treating you so.' The man said, 'He rebuked you on my account? What a fine Lord Who rebukes His loved ones on account of His enemies.' He then testified that there is no deity but Allah.

'[For] Allah has thus ordained (kataba): "I shall most certainly prevail, I and My prophets!' Verily, Allah is Powerful, Almighty!' (al-Mujadala: 21) The word kataba 'to ordain' or 'decree' literally means 'to write'; writing implies recording something so that it is preserved. That Allah and His prophets will prevail is a fate which He has decreed and recorded, and so nothing can prevent it or change it. None can come between Allah the Exalted and the fulfilment of His Decrees, or the fruition of His ordainments.

(1) The story of our master Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him and his guest, the fire worshipper

Therefore, He calls the Noble Quran a ‘Book’ (Kitab) because it is inscribed and written down to remain forever, written on pages, and He called it Quran because it is recited yuqra’ and memorised in hearts.

Allah is destined to prevail because He is Powerful in His Essence Glorified is He and His prophets are destined to prevail because He lends to them His Power, Grace, and Might. They are His servants and His emissaries to his created beings, so how could He abandon or forsake them?

Therefore, He the Most High says: ‘For, long ago has Our Word gone forth unto Our servants, the message-bearers, that, verily, they—they indeed—would be succoured and that, verily, Our hosts—they indeed—would [in the end] be victorious!’ (as-Saffat: 171-173) Could it be imagined that Allah would send a messenger with His Message of guidance and the religion which He has approved, and then leave him to be defeated by the forces of falsehood? How could this be when He only sends messengers to establish His Guidance and put an end to the falsehood which has overcome their communities?: ‘They aim to extinguish Allah’s Light with their utterances, but Allah has willed to spread His Light in all its fullness, however hateful this may be to all who deny the truth.’ (as-Saff: 8)

Thus, the victory of truth over falsehood is one of the ways of Allah in His creation. Why is it that it now seems to us that falsehood is triumphing over truth? As we said before, when you see the supporters of truth being defeated by the supporters of falsehood, know that the fault is their own because they have failed to live up to the necessary conditions of being forces of truth which would have guaranteed victory for them.

We saw this principle manifested at the Battle of Uhud when the archers disobeyed the command of their leader, thus ensuring that their enemies would gain the upper hand over them.(1) We also see it manifested in many present-day situations.

The True Lord Glorified is He wants to affirm this fact and ingrain it in the souls of believers, that they become ever more certain that Allah will succour them. Therefore, Allah says: ‘...I shall most certainly prevail...’ (al-Mujadala: 21); He is emphasising this with the words ‘most certainly’, as though He were swearing by it and saying: ‘By My Might and My Majesty, I shall most certainly prevail as shall My prophets.’

(1) Narrated by Al-Bukhari (3737), Abu-Dawud (2288) and Ahmad (17853)

He then adds further affirmation by repeating the pronoun ‘I’ again; He also uses words of emphasis more than once when He says: ‘For, long ago has Our Word gone forth unto Our servants, the message-bearers, that, verily, they—they indeed—would be succoured and that, verily, Our hosts—they indeed—would [in the end] be victorious!’ (as-Saffat: 171-173)

Allah the Almighty says: ‘...Verily, Allah is Powerful, Almighty!’ (al-Mujadala: 21) This is why He will always prevail: He is the All-Powerful Who prevails by means of His intrinsic Power, and He is the Almighty Who cannot be defeated. If He willed it, He would prevail over them directly, along with taking them to task as only the Almighty Determiner can; however, what He wants is you, believer, to have the honour of prevailing over them: ‘Fight against them! Allah will chastise them by your hands, will bring disgrace upon them and will succour you against them, and He will soothe the bosoms of those who believe.’ (at-Tawba: 14) Allah Glorified is He says:

لَّا تَجِدُ قَوْمًا يُؤْمِنُونَ بِٱللَّهِ وَٱلْيَوْمِ ٱلْـَٔاخِرِ يُوَآدُّونَ مَنْ حَآدَّ ٱللَّهَ وَرَسُولَهُۥ وَلَوْ كَانُوٓا۟
ءَابَآءَهُمْ أَوْ أَبْنَآءَهُمْ أَوْ إِخْوَٰنَهُمْ أَوْ عَشِيرَتَهُمْ ۚ أُو۟لَـٰٓئِكَ كَتَبَ فِى قُلُوبِهِمُ ٱلْإِيمَـٰنَ
وَأَيَّدَهُم بِرُوحٍ مِّنْهُ ۖ وَيُدْخِلُهُمْ جَنَّـٰتٍ تَجْرِى مِن تَحْتِهَا ٱلْأَنْهَـٰرُ خَـٰلِدِينَ فِيهَا ۚ رَضِىَ
ٱللَّهُ عَنْهُمْ وَرَضُوا۟ عَنْهُ ۚ أُو۟لَـٰٓئِكَ حِزْبُ ٱللَّهِ ۚ أَلَآ إِنَّ حِزْبَ ٱللَّهِ هُمُ ٱلْمُفْلِحُونَ ﴿٢٢﴾

[Prophet], you will not find people who truly believe in God and the Last Day giving their loyalty to those who oppose God and His Messenger, even though they may be their fathers, sons, brothers, or other relations: these are the people in whose hearts God has inscribed faith, and whom He has strengthened with His spirit. He will let them enter Gardens graced with flowing streams, where they will stay: God is well pleased with them, and they with Him. They are on God’s side, and God’s side will be the one to prosper [22] (The Quran, al-Mujadala: 22)

The word ‘not’ in this verse is a negation, meaning that you will never find any people of faith loving and making alliances with the people of disbelief and hypocrisy who contend against Allah and His Messenger peace and blessings be upon him because these attributes are opposites, which can never meet. The meaning of ‘love’ in this verse is the affection of the heart.

We said that ‘...contends against Allah and His Prophet...’ (al-Mujadala: 22) means to put oneself on one side, and Allah and His Messenger peace and blessings be upon him on the other side, thus denying oneself any connection with Allah and any nearness to Him. This is what disbelievers and hypocrites do.

This is one of those verses which those orientalists who search for ‘mistakes’ in the Quran have objected to. They ask how this verse can stand alongside Allah’s Words: ‘[Revere your parents] yet should they endeavour to make you ascribe divinity, side by side with Me, to something which your mind cannot accept [as divine], obey them not, but [even then] bear them company in this world’s life with kindness...’ (Luqman: 15).

The first one commands us not to love them, and the second commands us to keep their company with kindness.

Now this confusion is a result of their lack of understanding of the meaning of the Quran, along with their unsound knowledge of Arabic. There is a clear difference between love and kind companionship; love is an emotion of the heart and can only exist between a believer and his fellow believer; as for kindness, it means the goodness you offer to all people, believers and disbelievers alike, and the favour you extend to your parents, even if they are disbelievers, since they were the direct cause of your existence in this world, and to respect them is to respect the higher cause of your existence: the True Lord Glorified is He.

Therefore He the Most High says: ‘And worship Allah [alone], and do not ascribe divinity, in any way, to aught beside Him. And do good unto your parents...’ (an-Nisa’: 36). Yet, they do not have any right to your deeper affection or love because the divergence in belief and their decision to contend against Allah denies them this filial love. Relations are not only a matter of blood and kinship, then, but also a matter of religion and faith.

Therefore, this verdict is universal. Examine any relationship, and you will never find people who have faith in Allah and the Last Day, and yet despite this faith, love those who contend against Allah and His Messenger. This does not exist, even if those who contend against Allah and is Messenger are ‘...their fathers, their sons, their brothers or [others of] their kindred...' (al-Mujadala: 22). He lists all the levels of relations in this verse, and 'kindred' ('ashira) means all those who live alongside one aside from the others mentioned here.

Allah the Exalted then describes the people of faith who base their relationships on faith in Allah and never put anyone else before it by saying: '...[As for the true believers] it is they in whose hearts He has inscribed faith...' (al-Mujadala: 22); this means that He has strengthened it in their hearts so that it will not leave them and more besides: '...and whom He has strengthened with inspiration (ruh) from Himself...' (al-Mujadala: 22). This does not mean the primary spirit (ruh) of life; it means that He aids their faith with another spirit of inspiration from Himself and special inspiration of His Light and Grace. An example of this is what He says about His righteous servant: '...on whom We had bestowed Grace from Ourselves and unto whom We had imparted knowledge [issuing] from Ourselves' (al-Kahf: 65); this is in addition to the content of the message. Furthermore, He the Most High says: 'O, you who have attained to faith! If you remain conscious of Allah, He will endow you with a standard by which to discern the true from the false...' (al-Anfal: 29). This means that if you are conscious of Allah by doing what He commands and staying away from what He forbids, as has been conveyed to you by the Quran, He will give you another criterion as well, namely a light from Himself and a special illumination by which you will be able to discern truth from falsehood. These are special graces from Allah to those who have faith, and therefore, the righteous servant said: '...And I did not do [any of] this of my own accord...' (al-Kahf: 82).

Thus, there is a spirit for the material by means of which bodies live; this is the spirit which Allah blew into Adam peace be upon him when he was still in the clay stage, and there is another spirit for moral values and psychic matters, a spirit of inspiration which gives life to the heart. This is the spirit of which Allah says: 'And thus, too, [O, Muhammad] have We revealed unto you a life-giving message (ruh), [coming] at Our behest…' (ash-Shura: 52).

Therefore, orientalists also raise an objection to Allah's Words: 'O, you who have attained to faith! Respond to the call of Allah and the Prophet whenever he calls you unto that which will give you the life…' (al-Anfal: 24). They say, ‘How can He say this to them when they are already alive?’ We answer this by saying that what is meant here is the life of the heart and the life of moral values, and therefore He the Most High says: ‘…Light upon light!’ (an-Nur: 35).

He then tells us how these people will be rewarded: ‘…He will admit [them] into gardens through which running waters flow, therein to abide. Well-pleased is Allah with them, and well-pleased are they with Him…’ (al-Mujadala: 22). He will admit them into these gardens because He is well pleased with all their deeds, and when Allah is well pleased with someone, He showers them with His goodly favour and is never displeased with them thereafter. This goodly favour will be a grace from Allah and an addition to the delights of paradise which they will have already attained.

The Sacred Hadith says that after He admits them into paradise, and they see all the delights therein which are beyond their wildest dreams; the True Lord Glorified is He will speak to them by saying: 'Today I shower you with My goodly favour so that I shall never be displeased with you again.'(1)

His Words ‘…and well-pleased are they with Him…’ (al-Mujadala: 22) mean that they will be pleased with His gifts and graces or that they were always pleased with them and He with them—this is from a perspective which is beyond the confines of time.

The word ‘gardens’, a plural, means that each believer in the Hereafter will have more than one garden; this is further indicated by His Words in the chapter of ar-Rahman: ‘But for those who of their Lord’s Presence stand in fear, two gardens [of paradise are readied].’ (ar-Rahman: 46) They say that there will be multiple gardens because He is addressing a plurality of people, each of which will have one garden, or alternatively because He is addressing the ‘two nations’ of men and jinns, each of which will have their own garden.

Allah the Almighty says: ‘…They are Allah’s partisans…’ (al-Mujadala: 22). Earlier, He said of disbelievers and hypocrites: ‘…Such as these are Satan’s partisans…’ (al-Mujadala: 19); thus, Allah passed judgment on them: ‘…Oh, verily, it is they, the partisans of Satan, who will truly be the losers!’ (al-Mujadala: 19) In this verse, He says of the faithful: ‘…They are Allah’s partisans…’ (al-Mujadala: 22); thus, He passes judgment on them: ‘…Oh, verily, it is they, the partisans of Allah, who shall attain to a happy state!’ (al-Mujadala: 22)

(1) Narrated by Al-Bukhari (6067) and Muslim (5057)

Compare the two partisans and see the difference between the two groups: those shall be the losers, and these shall be the successful. Allah’s partisans are those who chose to have allegiance to His Guidance, coming together in its name, supporting it, carrying its banner, and defending it.

He again uses the word ‘Oh’ in this verse to draw our attention, meaning: ‘Pay attention to this verdict, and do not forget it or become oblivious of it.’: ‘…Oh, verily, it is they, the partisans of Allah, who shall attain to a happy state (muflihun)!’ (al-Mujadala: 22) This word is derived from falah which means literally to farm the earth by ploughing it and readying it for sowing. That falah preserves material life, whilst this falah preserves the bliss of the life to come.

al-Hashr

In the Name of God, the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of al-Hashr (1) :

سَبَّحَ لِلَّهِ مَا فِي ٱلسَّمَٰوَٰتِ وَمَا فِي ٱلْأَرْضِۖ وَهُوَ ٱلْعَزِيزُ ٱلْحَكِيمُ ١

Everything in the heavens and earth glorifies God; He is the Almighty, the Wise [1]
(The Quran, al-Hashr: 1)

First of all, notice the connection between the end of the chapter of al-Mujadila and the chapter of al-Hashr. The last verses of the chapter of al-Mujadila tell us of the partisans of Satan by saying, '…Such as these are Satan's partisans. Oh, verily, it is they, the partisans of Satan, who will truly be the losers' (al-Mujadala: 19) and then of the partisans of Allah by saying: '…They are Allah's partisans. Oh, verily, it is they, the partisans of Allah, who shall attain to a happy state!' (al-Mujadala: 22)

In this verse, the True Lord Glorified is He wanted to give us a practical example of each partisan and a working demonstration of these theoretical principles by telling us what some of Satan's partisans did, and what some of Allah's partisans did.

Allah Glorified is He says: 'All that is in the heavens and all that is on earth extol Allah's limitless Glory…' (al-Hashr: 1) There are similar verses to this one in the Quran. In the chapter of al-Hadid, Allah Glorified is He says: 'All that is in the heavens and on earth extols Allah's limitless Glory…' (al-Hadid: 1); He says this without repeating 'all that is'; the difference between them is that the repetition of ‘all that is’ means that Allah has forces that dwell in the heavens alone, and others that dwell on earth alone. There are also forces of Allah the Almighty that dwell both in the heavens and on earth.

(1) This chapter is number 59 in the written order of the Quran, revealed in Medina.It contains 24 verses and was revealed in between the chapter of al-Bayyina and the chapter of an-Nasr.

Thus, His Words ‘All that is in the heavens and on earth extols Allah’s limitless Glory…’ (al-Hadid: 1) refer to those forces which serve both the heavens and the earth, and when He says: ‘All that is in the heavens and on earth extols Allah’s limitless Glory, for He alone is Almighty, Truly Wise!’ (al-Hashr: 1); this means the angels of the heavens alone and the angels of earth alone.

This means that everything in the universe extols Allah’s Glory. He the Most High says: ‘…and there is not a single thing but extols His limitless Glory and Praise…’ (al-Isra’: 44); this means that everything in the universe extols Allah’s Glory: ‘…but you [O, men] fail to grasp the manner of their glorifying Him!...’ (al-Isra’: 44)

This means that the glorification of all things is real glorification, not merely an allusion to how they are evidences of Allah’s existence, as some exegetes say.(1) Were this true, Allah Glorified is He would not have then said: ‘…but you [O, men] fail to grasp the manner of their glorifying Him!...’ (al-Isra’: 44)

So everything in the universe glorifies Allah with its own language, and we do not understand these languages, for every kind of being has its own special language with which it communicates. Did the ant not say: ‘…"O, you ants! Get into your dwellings, lest Sulaiman (Solomon) and his hosts crush you without [even] being aware [of you]"’ (an-Naml: 18)? Prophet Sulaiman (Solomon) peace be upon him heard this and understood it because of the understanding Allah vouchsafed to him.

The hoopoe said: ‘…I have encompassed [with my knowledge] something that you have never yet encompassed [with yours] for I have come to you from Sheba with a tiding sure!’ (an-Naml: 22) Therefore, it showed a sound understanding of Allah’s Oneness, for it said: ‘Behold, I found there a woman ruling over them, and she has been given [abundance] of all [good] things, and hers is a mighty throne. And I found her and her people adoring the sun instead of Allah, and Satan has made these doings of theirs seem goodly to them, and [thus] has barred them from the path [of Allah] so that they cannot find the right way.' (an-Naml: 23-24)

(1) Az-Zamakhshari was one of those who said this.

Allah Glorified is He says about inanimate objects: '…And We caused the mountains to join Dawud (David) in extolling Our limitless Glory and likewise the birds, for We are able to do [all things].' (al-Anbiya': 79) Thus, it is a real glorification with a spoken language, which can be understood by those to whom Allah vouchsafes this understanding.

By meaning of 'extolling glory' is to ascribe total uniqueness to Allah in His Essence, for His Essence is not like other essences and in His Attributes, for His Attributes are not like the attributes of others, and in His Acts, for His Acts are not like the acts of others.

Furthermore, we must understand all this in the light of '…there is nothing like unto Him…' (ash-Shura: 11) and with the knowledge that He the Exalted alone possesses absolute perfection. If we should read, for example, '…and [He] is established on the throne of His Almightiness…' (al-Hadid: 4), we should not say that He 'sits' or 'settles' as we do; rather, He is established in a way that suits His Majesty Glorified is He.

When you read 'Limitless in His Glory is He Who transported His servant by night from the Inviolable House of Worship [at Mecca] to the Remote House of Worship…' (al-Isra': 1), do not say that this is beyond human power and ability, for Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him did not transport himself by his own human power, but he was taken, and Allah's act is not like the act of mankind, nor is His Power like their power.

The root word s-b-h (from which sabbaha, 'to extol the glory of' comes) occurs in the Quran with its different derivations more than 179 times. Sometimes it occurs as subhan added to the Name of Allah, meaning 'glory be to' and sometimes added to the pronoun as in 'glory be to Him' or 'glory be to You'; sometimes it is given as a verb meaning 'to extol the glory of', whether perfect (sabbah), imperfect (yusabbih) or imperative (sabbih).

Allah Glorified is He says: 'All that is in the heavens and all that is on earth extol (sabbah) Allah's limitless Glory…' (al-Hashr: 1). The perfect tense is used here, referring to the time before Allah created man to extol Him; furthermore, once He created him, he extolled Him. Thus, He says: ‘All that is in the heavens and all that is on earth extol Allah’s limitless Glory…’ (al-Hashr: 1); man extols Allah’s Glory and will continue to do so until the Day of Resurrection.

Allah the Almighty says: ‘…for He alone is Almighty (‘aziz), Truly Wise.’ (al-Hashr: 1) The word ‘aziz literally means something rare and unique as is the case when Allah Glorified is He says: ‘nor is this difficult (‘aziz) for Allah.’ (Fatir: 17) Another of its meanings is one who overcomes all and cannot be overcome.

The ‘truly wise’ one is he who puts all things in their proper places with precision and wisdom. Allah is Wise in His creation, in His Will, in His Decree and in His Measure. Consider the hair on the human body, for example; you will find that some of it is shaven, some trimmed, and some not cut at all, like the hair of the eyebrows and the eyelashes. This is because it was created for a wise purpose, which it cannot fulfil if we cut it. The wisdom behind it is the protection of the eyes from dust, so it is not trimmed or shaved.

Consider as well the temperature of the human body; you will find that its average is 37°C. The body keeps itself at this temperature: whether he lives at the equator or the North Pole; a man stays at this temperature. Thus, there is wisdom in the human body itself: ‘Just as [there are signs thereof] within your own selves. Can you not then see?’ (adh-Dhariyat: 21)

In the same body, you find that one organ (the liver) is 40°C, whilst another is 9°C (the eyes); yet neither one disturbs the temperature of the other: the temperature of the liver does not spread to the eye, for example. This and many other examples like it show the wisdom of the Creator Glorified is He.

The discourse then moves us on to a practical example of Allah’s partisans and Satan’s partisans:

هُوَ ٱلَّذِىٓ أَخْرَجَ ٱلَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا۟ مِنْ أَهْلِ ٱلْكِتَـٰبِ مِن دِيَـٰرِهِمْ لِأَوَّلِ ٱلْحَشْرِ ۚ مَا
ظَنَنتُمْ أَن يَخْرُجُوا۟ ۖ وَظَنُّوٓا۟ أَنَّهُم مَّانِعَتُهُمْ حُصُونُهُم مِّنَ ٱللَّهِ فَأَتَىٰهُمُ
ٱللَّهُ مِنْ حَيْثُ لَمْ يَحْتَسِبُوا۟ ۖ وَقَذَفَ فِى قُلُوبِهِمُ ٱلرُّعْبَ ۚ يُخْرِبُونَ بُيُوتَهُم
بِأَيْدِيهِمْ وَأَيْدِى ٱلْمُؤْمِنِينَ فَٱعْتَبِرُوا۟ يَـٰٓأُو۟لِى ٱلْأَبْصَـٰرِ ﴿٢﴾

It was He who drove those of the People of the Book who broke faith out from their homes at the first gathering of forces — you [believers] never thought they would go, and they themselves thought their fortifications would protect them against God. God came up on them from where they least expected and put panic into their hearts: their homes were destroyed by their own hands, and the hands of the believers. Learn from this, all of you with insight! [2]
(The Quran, al-Hashr: 2)

The pronoun 'He' refers to the True Lord the Most High Whose Glory is extolled by all that is in the heavens and all that is on earth and Who is Almighty and truly Wise. 'He it is Who turned out of their homes, at the time of [their] first gathering [for war] such of the followers of earlier revelation as were bent on denying the truth…' (al-Hashr: 2). This refers to the Jews of Banu Nadir,(1) who lived on the outskirts of Medina until the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him exiled them to Khaybar*;* this was 'the first gathering'.

In this verse, the word li (which usually means 'for') means 'at' when He says: '…at (li) the time of [their] first gathering…' (al-Hashr: 2); this usage is also found in His words 'Be constant in [your] prayer from (li) the time when the sun has passed its zenith…' (al-Isra': 78). The second gathering took place when the Muslims exiled them from Arabia to the Levant during the rule of Caliph 'Umar ibn Al-Khattab Allah be pleased with him.

The meaning of 'gathering' (hashr) in this verse is that they were all gathered in one narrow place; the verb inhashar means to enter a very narrow place where there is not enough room. In other words, the size of the object is greater than the size of the container.

(1) They are a Jewish tribe who lived on the outskirts of Medina. They had a treaty with the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him for four years, but they helped the idolaters of Mecca to invade Medina at the Battle of Uhud, so the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him banished them from the city.

However, why did Allah turn the Jews out of Medina to Khaybar, and then to the Levant? They say it is because they betrayed the covenant they had made with the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him and declared war on him, and even aided the idolaters of Mecca against him. It is strange that originally the enmity existed between the Jews and the disbelievers of Mecca because the Jews were people of the Book and followers of a Divinely revealed religion, whilst the disbelievers of Mecca were idolaters.

Due to this, the Jews used to predict their victory over the disbelievers by saying: ‘The time is nigh for the coming of a new prophet in whom we will believe and with whom we will slay you as ‘Ad and Iram were slain.’(1) Allah Glorified is He says: ‘And whenever there came unto them a [new] revelation from Allah, confirming the truth already in their possession—and [bear in mind that] a foretime they used to pray for victory over those who were bent on denying the truth—whenever there came unto them something which they recognised [as the truth], they would deny it…’ (al-Baqara: 89).

When the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him immigrated to Medina, they took him as their enemy and helped the disbelievers of Mecca fight against him after they had sworn to him they would never take sides against him: ‘We will be neither with you nor against you.’ Yet, they broke this covenant and helped the disbelievers of Mecca; they sent Ka‘b ibn Al-Ashraf to Mecca with forty Jewish knights, where they met with Abu Sufyan and went with him, alongside forty more knights from Mecca, to the Ka’ba, upon whose hangings they swore to join together in fighting Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and his Message.(2)

However, the True Lord the Most High informed His Messenger of what they were plotting against him by saying: ‘He it is Who turned out of their homes, at the time of [their] first gathering [for war], such of the followers of earlier revelation as were bent on denying the truth.' (al-Hashr: 2) Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him exiled them to Khaybar.(1)

What fuelled the enmity between the two sides was that a tribe had a treaty with Banu An-Nadir, and 'Amr ibn Umayya Al-Hadrami killed two men from that tribe, with whom the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him also had a treaty. They wanted to pay the blood money jointly, so the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him went to Banu An-Nadir and asked them for help in paying the blood-money that Al-Hadrami had incurred for killing the two men. Upon this, Ka'b ibn Al-Ashraf (whom we spoke of earlier) said, 'Muhammad has come and stood needy before us!'

They were the ones who said, 'Allah's hand is shackled' (al-Ma'ida: 64) and 'Behold, Allah is poor while we are rich.' (Al-'Imran: 181)

So, they said, 'This is a chance for us to humiliate Muhammad!' Ka'b ibn Al-Ashraf gestured for a group of them to go onto a rooftop and drop a boulder on Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to get rid of him. However, Allah the Almighty told His Messenger what they had plotted, and the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him walked away from them on foot. When he did not come back, they asked about him, and a man said, 'I saw him enter Medina.'(2)

The Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him went to Muhammad ibn Maslama, Ka'b's foster-brother, and told him of Ka'b's plot to assassinate him. He instructed him to go and kill Ka'b with the company of three men whom he trusted. He took three man of the tribe of Banu Al-Harith with him and went to Ka'b's fortress and called for him. There was friendliness between them because they were foster-brothers, so Ka'b answered him. Muhammad said, 'I need a loan from you.' Ka'b replied, 'You know that I do not give loans without collateral.' He said, 'I have it here.'

Thus, Ka'b came down to him, but it was the first night of his wedding celebration, and his bride prevented him from leaving by saying, 'I detect the scent of blood on this voice.' However, he went down anyway, and

Muhammad took hold of him, took him away, and killed him. This enraged Banu An-Nadir, and so they made their pacts with the disbelievers of Mecca against Prophet Muhammad.(1)

Allah Glorified is He says: 'You did not think [O, believers] that they would depart [without resistance]' (al-Hashr: 2). Allah is speaking to the believers: It did not cross your minds that the Jews would leave Medina, for it seemed very unlikely. Why is this so? This is due to the Jews seeming immune and powerful, backed by large numbers and resources; so, how could they possibly banish them given they were a minority?

The believers thought that it was unlikely they would be able to drive them out, but this was only surmise, not certainty, and they still had some hope that the Jews would be driven out. They experienced this in the Battle of Badr, where they were the smaller force, yet defeated, and routed the much larger disbelievers' forces.

Simultaneously, the Jews '… thought that their strongholds would protect them against Allah.' (al-Hashr: 2) They also thought that they had fortresses powerful enough to protect them from defeat against the believers; it was a mere thought not certainty since they too remembered the day of Badr when the Muslims were the victors despite their numerical and material disadvantage.

The cautious thing to do is to act on surmise if it is connected with something good; if you think that something is good, then do it. Allah says: 'But those who were certain that they would meet Allah said, "How many a small company has overcome a large company by permission of Allah."' (al-Baqara: 249) So, when it comes to good things, it is better to act on surmise.

There are many examples of this principle in our ordinary lives. For example, if we want to travel somewhere and someone tells us that a certain road is dangerous or slow and that we should take another road, and then another person says, 'Nonsense, I just travelled by that road yesterday and it was fine.' Whose opinion is best to follow?

We will follow the first opinion because it is the most cautious. We will not lose anything if we follow the road recommended by the first man, whilst the second opinion is not guaranteed, and we might follow the road and find that indeed it is dangerous or slow.

(1) Cf. Ibn Sayyid An-Nas, 'Uyun Al-Athar, Vol.1, p. 393

When the poet Abu Al-‘Ala’ Al-Ma‘arri(1) came to have sound doctrine, he opposed the stargazers and those who deny the Resurrection. He said about this issue:

The stargazer and the doctor each suppose
That the bodies will not be resurrected, but I say:
If you are right, then I lose nothing,
Yet, if I am right, you will be the ones to lose!

We have here two opinions which basically said that the Jews would not be driven out: the Muslims thought that the Jews would not go, and the Jews thought that their fortresses would protect them. Furthermore, when good things come to you where you least expected them, you are all the more joyful; so, the joy of the Muslims when the Jews were driven out was all the greater, as was the woe of the Jews.

His Words ‘protect them against Allah’ (al-Hashr: 2) imply that they believed in Allah and were certain of the glad tidings their scriptures had given them of Muhammad’s coming. Because they rejected his message, they did not say, ‘against the Messenger of Allah’; rather, they said, ‘against Allah’.

He continues: ‘but Allah came upon them in a manner which they had not expected and cast terror into their hearts’ (al-Hashr: 2). Allah the Almighty did not literally come upon them, but it was His chastisement and punishment that came upon them, startling, routing and terrifying them ‘which they had not expected’ (al-Hashr: 2).

Allah Glorified is He says: ‘…and [He] cast terror into their hearts…’ (al-Hashr: 2). The word ‘cast’ means to throw forcefully, and the ‘heart’ is what pumps blood around the body. When Allah the Almighty casts terror and dread into the heart, the heart then pumps it around the rest of the body so that it feels severe dread and panic all over.

(1) 363-449 A.H.

This implies that the object of this ‘casting’ enters into every corner of the container into which it is thrown, just like how, when building, they cover the wall with cement. Why do they do this? They do so because they cast the cement onto the wall forcefully so that it feeds every fissure in the wall.

Allah Glorified is He says: ‘[and thus] they destroyed their homes by their own hands as well as the hands of the believers.’ (al-Hashr: 2) This means that their stronghold homes, which they thought would protect them, were destroyed by their own hands. This may also mean that they did not do so directly, but it was their fault that their homes were destroyed by the Muslims, or it may mean that they really did destroy their own homes so that the Muslims could not benefit from them once they were gone.

There are instances of this in their history when they destroyed houses, cut down trees, and despoiled the land so that they leave rubble behind them. Whenever they left a place, they would destroy it, take with them everything from it and unhinge doors and windows.

Allah the Exalted says: ‘Learn a lesson, then, O, you who are endowed with insight!’ (al-Hashr: 2) To ‘learn a lesson' means to use what has happened in the past to predict what will happen in the future. Do not rush things, for Allah is with you.

Vision is reflection that begins with sight and then moves on to 'insight'; insight can only develop if the sight is strong and the vision is alert, leading to rational conviction on the part of the one who has this insight. Thus, it is the True Lord Glorified is He who causes this insight to develop, by His Grace.

وَلَوْلَآ أَن كَتَبَ ٱللَّهُ عَلَيْهِمُ ٱلْجَلَآءَ لَعَذَّبَهُمْ
فِى ٱلدُّنْيَا ۖ وَلَهُمْ فِى ٱلْـَٔاخِرَةِ عَذَابُ ٱلنَّارِ ﴿٣﴾

If God had not decreed exile for them, He would have tormented them [even more severely] in this world.
In the Hereafter they will have the torment of the Fire [3] (The Quran, al-Hashr: 3)

Allah the Almighty decreed that they and their families leave Medina for Khaybar at first, and then for the region of Dera’a in the Levant. None of them remained in Arabia except Ibn Abu Al-Haqiq and Huyay ibn Akhtab, the father of Safiyya, the mother of the believers.

Allah the Almighty says, '…punished them in [this] world' with death, 'and for them in the Hereafter is the punishment of the Fire.' (al-Hashr: 3) What this means is that, though, they may escape the suffering of this world, they will not escape the suffering of the Hereafter. Therefore, the True Lord the Most High says to His Prophet Muhammad: 'and whether We show you some of what We have promised them or We take you in death, it is to Us they will be returned.' (Ghafir: 77)

ذَٰلِكَ بِأَنَّهُمْ شَآقُّوا۟ ٱللَّهَ وَرَسُولَهُۥ ۖ وَمَن يُشَآقِّ ٱللَّهَ فَإِنَّ ٱللَّهَ شَدِيدُ ٱلْعِقَابِ ﴿٤﴾

Because they set themselves against God and His Messenger: God is stern in punishment towards anyone who sets himself against Him [4]
(The Quran, al-Hashr: 4)

Allah the Almighty says, 'That', namely their banishment, 'because they opposed Allah and His Messenger' (al-Hashr: 4), they cut themselves off from Allah and His Messenger and therefore all of this happened to them. They declared war on Allah and His Messenger and his mission.

Allah Glorified is He says: 'And whoever opposes Allah—then indeed, Allah is severe in penalty.' (al-Hashr: 4) Some say that this sentence is coupled with the previous sentence, but in fact, it is a new sentence. After telling us about the Jews, and what they did, Allah the Exalted and then begins a new sentence, disconnected to what preceded it, affirming both a principle and a fact of nature.

Allah the Almighty says: 'whoever opposes Allah' (al-Hashr: 4); this means that whoever shows enmity to Him and waging war on His Guidance, his fate will be severe retribution from Allah, to Whom he showed enmity instead of drawing near to Him and attaching himself to Him. This is a principle of faith of which one must never lose sight.

Notice here that the verse first says, 'That is because they opposed Allah and His Messenger' (al-Hashr: 4), and then in the other sentence says, 'And whoever opposes Allah' without mentioning His Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. This means that to obey the Messenger is to obey Allah, and that to cut oneself off from Allah is to cut oneself off from the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him at the same time, for Allah says: ‘He who obeys the Messenger has obeyed Allah.’ (an-Nisa’: 80)

One of the unique distinctions Allah gave to His Messenger apart from all other messengers was that the right to legislate for his community by saying: ‘And whatever the Messenger has given you take, and what he has forbidden you refrain from.’ (al-Hashr: 7)

Some want to connect this verse with the matter of the distribution of the spoils after the Battle of Hunayn alone,(1) but the principle of Sacred Law is that laws are based on the general applicability of the words, not the specificity of the circumstance.

The True Lord the Most High says:

مَا قَطَعۡتُم مِّن لِّينَةٍ أَوۡ تَرَكۡتُمُوهَا قَآئِمَةً عَلَىٰٓ
أُصُولِهَا فَبِإِذۡنِ ٱللَّهِ وَلِيُخۡزِيَ ٱلۡفَٰسِقِينَ ٥

Whatever you [believers] may have done to [their] palm trees — cutting them down or leaving them standing on their roots — was done by God’s leave, so that He might disgrace those who defied Him [5] (The Quran, al-Hashr: 5)

After the Jews had done what they did, and the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him had banished them, Allah the Almighty commanded him to cut down some of their date palms, to undermine them and to show the power of Islam. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him therefore commanded the companions to do so, and some of them cut the palms, whilst others left them. The Jews responded to this by saying, ‘O, Muhammad, were you not forbidden from despoiling the earth?’ So, Allah revealed: ‘Whatever you have cut down of [their] palm trees or left standing on their trunks—it was by permission of Allah.’ (al-Hashr: 5) As long as Allah the Exalted commanded that the trees be cut, no one could say, ‘This is despoiling the earth’ because to cut down a few date-palms was more beneficial than harmful. It corrected unsound beliefs, which far outweighs than the harm done by cutting them.

This verse implies equivalence between cutting the palms and leaving them standing because one companion would cut one down and say, ‘I cut this down for you, O, Messenger of Allah’, and another would leave them and say, ‘I left this one for you, O Messenger of Allah!’ This means that it was right that some be cut and others left. Allah Glorified is He says: ‘…and so He would disgrace the defiantly disobedient.’ (al-Hashr: 5) This means to humiliate them and abase them. The defiantly disobedient are those who are beyond the limits of Allah’s Commandments and His Guidance.

The True Lord the Most High says:

وَمَآ أَفَآءَ ٱللَّهُ عَلَىٰ رَسُولِهِۦ مِنْهُمْ فَمَآ أَوْجَفْتُمْ عَلَيْهِ مِنْ خَيْلٍ وَلَا رِكَابٍ
وَلَٰكِنَّ ٱللَّهَ يُسَلِّطُ رُسُلَهُۥ عَلَىٰ مَن يَشَآءُ ۚ وَٱللَّهُ عَلَىٰ كُلِّ شَىْءٍ قَدِيرٌ ﴿٦﴾

You [believers] did not have to spur on your horses or your camels for whatever gains God turned over to His Messenger from them. God gives authority to His messengers over whoever He will: God has power over all things [6] (The Quran, al-Hashr: 6)

The things which believers take from disbelievers by Allah’s consent are of two kinds: fay’ and spoils. Fay’ means what is taken from them without warfare, and spoils means what is taken from them when they are defeated on the battlefield, which are distributed amongst believers in a designated manner.

Allah says about the spoils of war: ‘And know that anything you obtain of war booty—then indeed, for Allah is one fifth of it and for the Messenger and for [his] near relatives and orphans, the needy, and the wayfarer.’ (al-Anfal: 41) The rest is then distributed amongst those who fought in the battle. As for fay’, it is not given to fighters but to Allah, His Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and the poor.

Here, the True Lord the Most High is speaking to us about the fay’ which He allowed the Muslims to take: ‘and what Allah restored [of property] to His Messenger from them…' (al-Hashr: 6); this refers to what you take from disbelievers without any armed struggle.

Allah Glorified is He says: '…you did not spur for it [in an expedition] any horses or camels' (al-Hashr: 6). What this means is that you did not have to rush to it. This evokes the image of a knight who is keen to fight and yearns to die as a martyr.

As for 'or camels' (al-Hashr: 6), what this means is that Allah blessed you by making this provision come right to you lawfully without any fighting and without your having to expend any effort in getting it.

Allah the Almighty says: '…but Allah gives His messengers the power over whom He wills, and Allah is over all things competent.' (al-Hashr: 6) This means that this fay' came to you as a grace from Allah and a gift to His Messenger; it did not come from your own efforts or your own warfare, but Allah gave his hosts mastery over it. This is akin to what He said before: 'and [He] cast terror into their hearts.' (al-Hashr: 2) The meaning of 'His messengers' in this verse is His hosts or His forces.The True Lord the Most High says:

وَٱبْنِ ٱلسَّبِيلِ كَىْ لَا يَكُونَ دُولَةًۢ بَيْنَ ٱلْأَغْنِيَآءِ مِنكُمْ ۚ وَمَآ ءَاتَىٰكُمُ ٱلرَّسُولُ فَخُذُوهُ
وَمَا نَهَىٰكُمْ عَنْهُ فَٱنتَهُوا۟ ۚ وَٱتَّقُوا۟ ٱللَّهَ ۖ إِنَّ ٱللَّهَ شَدِيدُ ٱلْعِقَابِ ﴿٧﴾

Whatever gains God has turned over to His Messenger from the inhabitants of the villages belong to God, the Messenger, kinsfolk, orphans, the needy, the traveller in need – this is so that they do not just circulate among those of you who are rich — so accept whatever the Messenger gives you, and abstain from whatever he forbids you. Be mindful of God: God is severe in punishment [7] (The Quran, al-Hashr: 7)

Allah Glorified is He says: 'It is for Allah and for the Messenger and for [his] near relatives, orphans and the wayfarer.' (al-Hashr: 7) So, this fay' is for Allah and His Messenger peace and blessings be upon him; meaning the treasury of the Muslims and all expenditure in Allah's Cause and for the Messenger to spend from, and then it is for near kin, orphans, the needy and the wayfarers.

No part of the fay' is given to the warriors because it came by way of a treaty without any warfare, so they have no part in it. They only have a share of battle-spoils, which the Muslims take from their defeated enemies in war; the warriors play a part in this, so they have a right to that part of it that Allah has assigned them: ‘And know that anything you obtain of war booty —- then indeed, for Allah is one fifth of it and for the Messenger and for [his] near relatives and the orphans, the needy, and the wayfarer.’ (al-Anfal: 41) Warriors receive four-fifths of the battle spoils, whilst the final fifth is distributed to the same people who receive the divisions of the fay'. He continues: ‘so that it will not be a perpetual distribution amongst the rich from amongst you.’ (al-Hashr: 7) This refers to the money which circulates amongst the rich only without being passed on to the poor and the needy. Therefore, when the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him distributed these possessions, he did not give any of them to the Ansar but only to the poor Emigrants. When he noticed that the Ansar were somewhat put out by this, he said to them, ‘Are you not content that they return home with (the trifles) of this world, whilst you return home with the Messenger of Allah alongside you?’(1)

Moreover, you do not need this wealth; you are so wealthy you are able to share your wealth with your fellow Emigrant brothers. It was about the Ansar that Allah said: ‘give [them] preference over themselves, even though they are in privation.’ (al-Hashr: 9)

Allah Glorified is He says: ‘And whatever the Messenger has given you take, and what he has forbidden you refrain from.’ (al-Hashr: 7) This verse is a rebuttal to those who say that this principle is restricted to this particular situation alone; yet, Allah made it clear to them that this is a general principle because words are interpreted according to the generality of their content, not the specificity of their circumstances.

From this verse, we can deduce that the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him had the right to legislate and that his Lord gave him free rein in that regard. We can also adduce this verse to rebut those who say we need to follow the Quran only without the need for the Sunnah.

The Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘There will soon be a time when a man will recline on his couch and be told of my sayings and will say, "We and you have the Book of Allah, so we shall make lawful what we find it says is lawful and forbid what we find it forbids."’⁽¹⁾

People from time to time emerge who deny the Sunnah of the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him and say, ‘We have the Book of Allah, so we shall make lawful what we find it says is lawful, and forbid what we find it forbids’; they deny the Hadiths of the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him and doubt their authenticity as an excuse not to follow them. Ironically, this stance of theirs is itself an affirmation of the Messenger’s veracity, for he was not unaware of this eventuality, yet he warned us of it so we can be immune against it. Had they not made this claim, we would have said, ‘O, Messenger of Allah, you said there will soon be a time when a man will recline on his couch and be told of my sayings, and will say, "We and you have the Book of Allah", yet how could this be, O, Messenger of Allah, when no one has said such a thing?’

So their foolish words only prove that the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him spoke the truth when he said this. The True Lord the Most High humiliates them by allowing them to say this exact thing so that we can use the words of the Prophet’s enemies as proof of the truth of the Prophet’s words.

Without even knowing it, they affirm that the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him was speaking the truth. This Hadith exposes their stupidity. These fools like the idea of using the Noble Quran against the Hadith; one of them might say to you, ‘Speak to me about the Quran only.’ Glory be to Allah! Do you seek to use the Quran against the Messenger who brought you the Quran when you would not even know the Quran without him?’

We say to those who make such statements: How many rak’as are in the dawn prayer, the midday prayer, the afternoon prayer, the sunset prayer and the evening prayer? He will say that they have two, four, four, three, and four rak’as respectively. Furthermore, if we ask him where he gets this from, he will say, ‘The Sunnah!’

(1) Related by Abu Dawud (3988), At-Tirmidhi (2588), Ibn Majah (12) and Ahmad (16546)

So, you must follow the Sunnah in order to pray, and you cannot understand the practical application of many laws without recourse to the Sunnah. How does he know that the sunset prayer has three rak'as (kneeling rounds)? From the Quran, which he is solely loyal, or from the Sunnah which he denies? How can he worship according to the words of the Messenger of Allah, and then deny these words?

Allah Glorified is He says: 'He who obeys the Messenger has obeyed Allah; but those who turn away - We have not sent you over them as a guardian.' (an-Nisa': 80) To obey the Messenger is to obey Allah, and this is only logical since messengers only pass on what they were told to say.

If the obedience of Allah coincides with the obedience of His Messenger, then we obey them both; if Allah gives a general commandment, such as the command to pay the zakat, and the Messenger peace and blessings be upon him gives the details of this, then we obey Allah in the general command, and we obey the Messenger in the details.

The Quran is not only a book of laws like some previous scriptures, but it is a miraculous scripture. Because of this, Allah included some principles and laws in it and left the rest for the Messenger to explain and clarify in the Blessed Sunnah, giving him the right to legislate with these words: 'And whatever the Messenger has given you take, and what he has forbidden you refrain from.' (al-Hashr: 7) Allah the Almighty gave His Messenger the general freedom to legislate and to give the details of what the True Lord included in the Quran in a general way. This is a unique matter by which the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him is distinguished apart from all other prophets and messengers.

The Prophet's legislation is thus prescribed and permitted by the Quran itself, and therefore, if anyone comes to you with a ruling and says to you, 'Where does it say this in the Quran, for I cannot find it there?', say to him, 'The proof of this ruling in the Quran is Allah's Words: "And whatever the Messenger has given you take and what he has forbidden you refrain from.' (al-Hashr: 7)

When a ruling is given in the Quran in a general sense, and then the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him explains it in detail and applies it in practice, this is the end of the matter. An action is the strongest expression of command, for a spoken command might be theoretical, and some people might seek to interpret it in one way or another, but when the Messenger peace and blessings be upon him actually does it himself, the ruling becomes binding because the one who did is the one who legislated it.

Did the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him implement the punishment of stoning, or did he not? The Messenger of Allah did, and his action is a practical proclamation. An action is not like a spoken proclamation which might be explained away. The Messenger of Allah judged that Ma‘iz and Al-Ghamidiyya be stoned and also a Jewish man and woman who tried to evade their punishment on the grounds that they were married and free.

The action of the Messenger peace and blessings be upon him is the basis of the ruling, and so their argument is proved to be baseless. What remains is the action of the legislator, the Messenger to whom Allah gave free rein to legislate with word, deed, and tacit approval.

The Messenger peace and blessings be upon him is an intrinsic part of the Quranic message. An analogy to explain this from our daily lives is that someone might say, ‘If an employee is absent from his job for fifteen days, the law states that he will be fired.’ Yet, another employee comes with the constitution in his hands and says, ‘I have read the constitution and cannot find this law anywhere in it, so what you are saying about the employee being fired is unconstitutional.’

Yet, we respond to him: What the constitution says about this is that the employment authority is empowered to deal with these matters. So, there is an authority which makes the rules for employment conduct and is empowered to do so by the constitution. Every legal clause pertaining to employment is governed by this delegation of power by the constitution to the relevant authorities or committees that deal with secondary legislation.

Likewise, we pray as the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him prayed despite the fact that the method of prayer and the number of rak’as in each prayer is not mentioned by Islam’s constitution, i.e. the Quran; rather, it came to us through the words and deeds of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and we are commanded to obey him.

Likewise, we give the amount of zakat that the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him specified, and we perform the pilgrimage to the House of Allah in the way the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him did. As for the prayer, the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘Pray as you have seen my pray’(1); and he said about the pilgrimage: ‘Take your rites from me.’(2)

Another example of this is also found in Allah’s Words: ‘Say, "I do not find within that which was revealed to me [anything] forbidden to one who would eat it unless it be a dead animal or blood spilled out or the flesh of swine"’ (al-An‘am: 145).

Now, if dead animal and blood are forbidden, then it would be logical to say that this applies to fish as well and that we cannot eat such organs as the liver and spleen because of the blood they contain. Yet, although the True Lord Glorified is He forbade the dead animal and blood in general, the Messenger of Allah, to whom He gave free rein to legislate said, ‘Two dead animals and two kinds of blood have been made lawful for me: the two dead animals are fish and locusts, and the two kinds of blood are the liver and the spleen.’(3)

This is a case where the Sunnah adds specificity to what the Quran says in general terms. Now if someone says, ‘The Quran forbids dead animals, while fish and locusts are as such, so why do we eat them?’ We answer that fish and locusts are not conventionally considered to be meat; this is why the saying goes ‘When locusts abound, meat is cheaper.’ This indicates that locusts are not really meat.

As for fish, they are not like the dead animals which Allah forbids because the forbidden kind of is all that could be slaughtered so that its blood runs out, whilst fish do not have the same kind of flowing blood; the same is true of locusts.

Thus, the reason they are permitted to eat when found dead is that they do not have the same kind of flowing blood which could be harmful to man if he were to eat it.

(3) Related by Ahmad (5465) and Ibn Majah (3305) on the authority of ‘Abdullah ibn ‘Umar Allah be pleased with him

The same is true of the liver and spleen: they do not really contain blood since blood flows whilst the liver and spleen are solid and coagulated, the remnant of the blood from which they are formed.

Another important example which illustrates the role where Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him explains the rulings of the Quran is the case of the threefold pronouncement of divorce on a woman and how she can then become lawful again for the one who divorced her.

The True Lord the Most High says: 'Divorce is twice.' (al-Baqara: 229) Then: 'And if he has divorced her [for the third time], then she is not lawful to him afterward until [after] she marries a husband other than him. And if the latter husband divorces her [or dies], there is no blame upon the woman and her former husband for returning to each other if they think that they can keep [within] the limits of Allah. These are the limits of Allah, which He makes clear to a people who know.' (al-Baqara: 230)

Some people who wish to free themselves from this religion's laws that might cause them some effort have tried to interpret this verse in a certain way. A man might divorce his wife three times, using up all the chances that the Shari'a has given him so that he cannot remarry this wife unless she first marries someone else and is divorced by him. There are those who say, based on the literal meaning of the aforementioned verse, that since 'marriage' only means a contract, this means that the woman who has been divorced three times can make herself lawful for her ex-husband again by simply making a marriage contract with another man and then dissolving it.

Now had the Sunnah of the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him not intervened, it would have been possible to understand things in this way, and say that a mere contract of marriage with another would allow the wife to return to her former husband; furthermore, had the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him not stipulated a condition for this, namely she must marry another man with a real marriage, not merely a fake one, people would play around with this ruling and conduct these fake marriages that we hear about were it not for this.(1)

(1) The Prophet peace and blessings be upon him said, 'May Allah curse the man who makes a fake marriage (with a woman to allow her to return to the former husband) and the one (the former husband) he does it for.' Related by Abu Dawud (1778) and Ibn Majah (1925)

Therefore, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘Not until you taste his sweetness, and he tastes your sweetness.’(1) This means a real marriage involving conjugal relations. This is extremely hard on the husband, and this was the intention of the legislator to whom Allah gave the right to legislate as a punishment for the man who thinks that pronouncing divorce is a trifling matter.

We may observe here that when the Shari’a is precise or difficult, this is mostly not because Allah wants to make things hard for people, but that He wants to make them fearful of doing certain things. He wants them to stay clear of the pronouncement of divorce and not resort to it unless it is absolutely necessary.

Now, people who say, ‘We have the Book of Allah with us’ and reject the saying of the Messenger of Allah, have they not read the Word of the True Lord Glorified is He in His Book: ‘O, you who have believed, obey Allah and obey the Messenger and those in authority amongst you. And if you disagree over anything, refer it to Allah and the Messenger if you should believe in Allah and the Last Day’ (an-Nisa’: 59)?

Thus, any dispute that occurs must be about an internal matter within the perimeters of obedience to Allah; and it must be referred to an authority which can bring the dispute to an end. The matter must be referred to Allah the Exalted and to the Messenger peace and blessings be upon him; how, then, could anyone dare to try to ruin Islam by rejecting the Sunnah of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and claiming that the lawful and unlawful can be known through the Book of Allah alone? These people should be cautious that they do not become those of whom Allah says: ‘It is but a just recompense for those who make war on Allah and His Messenger.’ (al-Ma‘ida: 33) It is waging war on the Prophet to reject any word, deed, or approval of his by way of denying his Hadiths.

These people also say that there are too many Hadiths of the Messenger of Allah. We say to them that the mission of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him lasted twenty-three years, and everything he said was a Hadith. Every word which left his lips was a blessed Hadith, and were we to count his words alone, it would fill countless volumes—never mind his deeds.

(1) Related by Al-Bukhari (2445) and Muslim (2587)

Every word he heard spoken by another person, and approved of, is also a Hadith, as well as every deed someone did in his presence without his objecting to it. So how many Hadiths of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him must there be? They are the second source of Islamic legislation after the Quran, so how could we dispense with it for the sake of some outside minority opinion, which the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him warned us about?

The True Lord the Most High then says: ‘And fear Allah’ (al-Hashr: 7); this means to be conscious of Allah lest you disobey, for disobedience would nullify your good deeds. Obedience of Allah is no good without obedience of His Messenger: ‘indeed, Allah is severe in penalty’ (al-Hashr: 7).

When we hear Allah say ‘indeed, Allah is severe in penalty’ (al-Hashr: 7), the mind immediately assumes that there is a sin which deserves punishment, and the retribution here is severe because the sin is grave, namely the disobedience of the Messenger of Allah; for Allah commands us to accept everything the Messenger peace and blessings be upon him brings us and refrain from everything that he forbids us.

Allah’s retribution for a sinner will come at a time when no one will have any prestige, wealth, status, or lineage to protect him from Allah; so, if the weaknesses of society tempt you to commit a sin or cooperate in one, you should fear Allah, for His retribution is severe.

However, how does this punishment come to a sinner? It gradually comes to a sinner in his person such as in the form of a painful illness which does not only cause the sinner to spend his money, but also forces him to ask others to help with his treatment or the treatment of someone he loves. The hosts of Allah’s punishment might not wait until the Hereafter, but might come into the sinner’s life gradually without his realising it, and this is the more severe kind of punishment.

We know that punishment only comes to people in proportion to their sins. To say Allah is severe in punishment does not mean that His severest punishment will afflict those who commit minor sins; rather, each person will be requited according to the measure of his sin—yet, no matter how light this punishment is, it is still severe and painful.

Furthermore, if the True Lord the Most High is severe in punishment to those who disobey Him, He is also forgiving and merciful, as He says: ‘Allah is Much Forgiving, a Dispenser of Grace.’ (al-Baqara: 218) This means He is forgiving of the sins you may have committed and then asked your Lord for forgiveness for them, and He is ‘a Dispenser of Grace’ (al-Baqara: 218) to you, not punishing you immediately for your sins because of His compassion for you and His love that you return to Him.

Allah Glorified is He says:

لِلۡفُقَرَآءِ ٱلۡمُهَٰجِرِينَ ٱلَّذِينَ أُخۡرِجُواْ مِن دِيَٰرِهِمۡ وَأَمۡوَٰلِهِمۡ يَبۡتَغُونَ فَضۡلٗا
مِّنَ ٱللَّهِ وَرِضۡوَٰنٗا وَيَنصُرُونَ ٱللَّهَ وَرَسُولَهُۥٓۚ أُوْلَٰٓئِكَ هُمُ ٱلصَّٰدِقُونَ ٨

The poor emigrants who were driven from their homes and possessions, who seek God’s favour and approval, those who help God and His Messenger – these are the ones who are true – [shall have a share] [8] (The Quran, al-Hashr: 8)

Those who most deserve these fay’ are the Emigrants who were driven from their homes, leaving behind all that they owned, ‘seeking’ by their emigration ‘bounty from Allah and [His] pleasure’ (al-Hashr: 8). They seek an increase in worldly provision, for favour is related to the things of this life, whilst pleasure is related to the bliss of the Hereafter.

The True Lord Glorified is He says: ‘And Allah has favored some of you over others in provision.’ (an-Nahl: 71)

They seek Allah’s pleasure in the Hereafter. A sacred Hadith relates that the True Lord the Most High will ask the inhabitants of paradise about their state, and they will say, ‘You have given us more than we deserve’, whereupon He will say, ‘Shall I not give you more?’ They will say, ‘What could be more than this?’ He will further say, ‘Indeed, I will enfold you in My pleasure so that I will never be angry with you again.’(1)

Allah Glorified is He says: ‘…and supporting Allah and His Messenger’ (al-Hashr: 8). This means that by their emigration and their leaving behind their possessions and homes, they seek to aid the cause of Allah’s religion and the call of the Messenger of Allah: ‘those are the truthful.’ (al-Hashr: 8) They are true in their faith, true in their emigration and true in bearing the consequences.

Were it not for this sincerity in faith, it would not have been easy for them to do anything in the cause of the religion, and they would have never left their homes and their possessions.

After the Emigration, the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him looked upon Mus‘ab ibn ‘Umayr*,* who was dressed in a simple leather garment, and said, ‘Look what faith has done to your companion!’⁽¹⁾ Mus‘ab ibn ‘Umayr had been one of the richest men in Mecca, and they called him ‘Quraysh’s spoiled boy.’ People would even pay to have their clothes washed alongside his clothes so that they would imbibe the fragrance of the perfume on them. (2)

Allah Glorified is He says:

وَٱلَّذِينَ تَبَوَّءُو ٱلدَّارَ وَٱلۡإِيمَٰنَ مِن قَبۡلِهِمۡ يُحِبُّونَ مَنۡ هَاجَرَ إِلَيۡهِمۡ وَلَا يَجِدُونَ
فِي صُدُورِهِمۡ حَاجَةٗ مِّمَّآ أُوتُواْ وَيُؤۡثِرُونَ عَلَىٰٓ أَنفُسِهِمۡ وَلَوۡ كَانَ بِهِمۡ
خَصَاصَةٞۚ وَمَن يُوقَ شُحَّ نَفۡسِهِۦ فَأُوْلَٰٓئِكَ هُمُ ٱلۡمُفۡلِحُونَ ٩

Those who were already firmly established in their homes [in Medina], and firmly rooted in faith, show love for those who migrated to them for refuge and harbour no desire in their hearts for what has been given to them. They give them preference over them- selves, even if they too are poor: those who are saved from their own souls’ greed are truly successful [9] (The Quran, al-Hashr: 9)

Allah the Almighty says: ‘And [also for] those who were settled in Medina and [adopted] the faith before them’ (al-Hashr: 9); this means the abode is for the physical body: a man goes there to have relief from the day’s toil and life’s motions, and faith is for the heart. Just as the abode is the place where the body returns, faith is the place where the heart returns in all its affairs for management and regulation in all life’s motions.

(2) Related by Al-Hakim (4892)

Allah the Exalted says: ‘they love those who emigrated to them and find not any want in their breasts of what the emigrants were given.’ (al-Hashr: 9) What this means is that the Ansar are happy about what their brothers from the Emigrants took from the fay’ not harbouring any rancour or envy in their souls on account of it, nor boasting to them about what they gave them. None of them said, ‘So-and-so took this from me.’ All the Emigrants took something from the Ansar except those of them who abstained such as ‘Abd Ar-Rahman ibn ‘Awf, who said to the Helper assigned to be his brother, Ibn Ar-Rabi‘, ‘Keep your wealth and your family to yourself and show me the marketplace.’ Then, he ended up becoming the richest man in Medina.(1) He ended up owning a thousand slaves, and when they asked them about him after he died, one of them said, ‘By Allah, had you come to us when he was sitting with us, you would not have recognised him.’

Despite this, the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him had a vision of him slowing his entrance into paradise, and when he asked him what slowed him down, he answered, ‘They asked me, O, Messenger of Allah, about this and that.’

The Ansar did not stop at this generosity; rather, they went as far as preferring the Emigrants to their own selves. Allah the Almighty says: ‘…give [them] preference over themselves, even though they are in privation…’ (al-Hashr: 9). Generosity is to give some of what you own; preferring another to yourself, however, is to give everything you have and keep nothing back for yourself. The Ansar would prefer their brothers from the Emigrants to their own selves, giving them all that they needed.

‘Privation' is severe poverty; yet, despite the fact that they suffered from this poverty and need, they preferred their brethren to themselves. As we said before, the Ansar gave us such an example of giving that was utterly unprecedented in history.

The verse then asserts this fact: ‘And whoever is protected from the miserliness of his soul—it is those who will be the successful.’ (al-Hashr: 9) The one who attains to a happy state is he whom Allah saves from this blameworthy trait. Some people say that miserliness means stinginess, but actually it is a broader and stronger word than that because stinginess actually arises from it. It signifies something is scant; thus, you will certainly be protective of the little amount that remains so that it does not run out. Miserliness penetrates your very person and all your actions, and we might say that miserliness concerns the heart, whilst stinginess concerns the shell of the body.

سَبَقُونَا بِٱلۡإِيمَٰنِ وَلَا تَجۡعَلۡ فِي قُلُوبِنَا غِلّٗا لِّلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُواْ رَبَّنَآ إِنَّكَ رَءُوفٞ رَّحِيمٌ ١٠

Those who came after them say, ‘Lord, forgive us our sins and the sins of our brothers who believed before us, and leave no malice in our hearts towards those who believe.
Lord, You are truly compassionate and merciful’ [10]
(The Quran, al-Hashr: 10)

Who are those who would come after the Emigrants and Ansar? The Emigrants and Ansar were the generation of the Companions, and those who came after them were the Followers. The generation of the Followers were the best generation after the Companions of the Messenger of Allah, and all those who follow their way share in their superiority. The more closely they adhere to the way, the more they share in the superiority.

One of the supplications of these Followers is that they say, ‘Our Lord, forgive us and our brothers who preceded us in faith.’ (al-Hashr: 10) They pray for them because the fact that they preceded them (and us) in faith is what preserved for them (and us) the faith in which they (and we) rejoice and are proud. Thus, this generation is owed a debt by every Muslim who came after them because they were either martyrs in Allah’s Cause who gave their lives for the sake of this religion or scholars who devoted their lives to the preservation and dissemination of this religion.

He then says, ‘…and put not in our hearts [any] resentment towards those who have believed…’ (al-Hashr: 10), because they attained to a high rank which no other can attain, it is as if they are saying, 'So remove, Lord, any unworthy thoughts from our hearts so that we neither resent nor envy them.'

The word ‘resentment’ means to have ill feelings against someone for attaining what one cannot possibly attain; it is a negative emotion of the soul.

Allah says: ‘Our Lord, indeed, you are Kind and Merciful.’ (al-Hashr: 10) Kindness means to ward off harm and refrain from punishing, and Merciful means to replace punishment with reward. For example, say you have an employee who is lax in his work in a way that deserves a reprimand; you are kind to him by excusing him the reprimand, and then your heart softens further towards him, and you give him a gift.

The discourse now turns once more to a discussion of the hypocrites:

أَلَمۡ تَرَ إِلَى ٱلَّذِينَ نَافَقُواْ يَقُولُونَ لِإِخۡوَٰنِهِمُ ٱلَّذِينَ كَفَرُواْ مِنۡ أَهۡلِ ٱلۡكِتَٰبِ
لَئِنۡ أُخۡرِجۡتُمۡ لَنَخۡرُجَنَّ مَعَكُمۡ وَلَا نُطِيعُ فِيكُمۡ أَحَدًا أَبَدٗا وَإِن قُوتِلۡتُمۡ
لَنَنصُرَنَّكُمۡ وَٱللَّهُ يَشۡهَدُ إِنَّهُمۡ لَكَٰذِبُونَ ﴿١١﴾ لَئِنۡ أُخۡرِجُواْ لَا يَخۡرُجُونَ مَعَهُمۡ وَلَئِن
قُوتِلُواْ لَا يَنصُرُونَهُمۡ وَلَئِن نَّصَرُوهُمۡ لَيُوَلُّنَّ ٱلۡأَدۡبَٰرَ ثُمَّ لَا يُنصَرُونَ ﴿١٢﴾

Have you [Prophet] considered the hypocrites who say to their fellows, the faithless among the People of the Book, ‘If you are driven out, we shall go with you – we would never listen to anyone who sought to harm you – and if you are attacked, we shall certainly come to your aid’? God bears witness that they are in fact liars. [11] If they are driven out, they will never leave with them; if they are attacked, they will never help them. Even if they did come to their aid, they would soon turn tail and flee – in the end they would have no help [12] (The Quran, al-Hashr: 11-12)

In this verse, the True Lord the Most High exposes Jews and hypocrites, reveals their secrets and tells His Messenger of what they said in secret. He says to him: ‘Have you not considered’? (al-Hashr: 11) This implies that when Allah tells His Prophet something, it is surer than the vision of his own eyes. Allah the Almighty says: ‘…those who practise hypocrisy’ (al-Hashr: 11); these people had three leaders: ‘Abdullah ibn Ubayy, ‘Abdullah ibn Al-Akt’a and Rafi ibn Zayd.(1) These people took their chance and said to Banu

(1) As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur

An-Nadir, ‘If Muhammad seeks to exile you, do not leave.’ When the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him ordered them to leave, they said, ‘Give us respite, O, father of Qasim, for death would be easier for us than to do this. Give us ten days to prepare.' Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him gave them this ten-day respite, and when they refused to leave, he besieged them for twenty-one days until they gave up and raised the banner of surrender.

Allah Glorified is He reveals the hypocrisy of these dissemblers by saying: ‘Have you not considered those who practise hypocrisy, saying to their brothers who have disbelieved amongst the People of the Scripture’ (al-Hashr: 11)? He describes them as disbelievers in this verse because although they had begun as followers of a Divine religion, when the one they knew was coming and of whom they had tidings in their scriptures, came to them, they disbelieved in him; thus, He calls them disbelievers.

This is why He says about the people of the Book: ‘they are not [all] the same; amongst the People of the Scripture is a community standing [in obedience], reciting the verses of Allah during periods of the night, and prostrating [in prayer].’ (Al-‘Imran: 113)

One of these was ‘Abdullah ibn Salam, the story of whose conversion to Islam you all know; he is the one who said, ‘By Allah, I knew Muhammad when I saw him as well as I knew my own son. I knew Muhammad even better!’

What do they say to them? The hypocrites said, ‘If you are expelled’ (al-Hashr: 11); what they meant is that if Muhammad exiles you from Medina and its surrounding areas, ‘we will surely leave with you.’ (al-Hashr: 11) They said this to them privately and kept it secret between them.

Allah the Exalted calls them ‘brothers' because they were, indeed, united in enmity against the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him and the call of truth, or He calls them 'brothers' in the sense that they made a pact of allegiance or brothers in the sense of disbelief in this Message.

Allah Glorified is He says: ‘and we will not obey, in regard to you, anyone—ever.’ (al-Hashr: 11) In other words, it is as if they are saying, 'We shall never obey anyone who tells us to fight you.' Allah continues their speech: ‘and if you are fought, we will surely aid you.’ (al-Hashr: 11) Then Allah testifies and proclaims that these words are a lie: ‘But Allah testifies that they are liars.’ (al-Hashr: 11) This is because they are hypocrites, and deceit runs in their blood.

He then exposes their lies and reveals their intentions: ‘If they are expelled, they will not leave with them, and if they are fought, they will not aid them. And [even] if they should aid them, they will surely turn their backs’ (al-Hashr: 12); Allah intends that they will flee the battlefield; ‘then [thereafter] they will not be aided.’ (al-Hashr: 12) Thus, Allah the Exalted spoke the truth about them. This is the way of the hypocrites in every time and place; they lie even to Allah, and then lie about their lying.

The True Lord the Most High says:

لَأَنتُمۡ أَشَدُّ رَهۡبَةٗ فِي صُدُورِهِم مِّنَ ٱللَّهِۚ ذَٰلِكَ بِأَنَّهُمۡ قَوۡمٞ لَّا يَفۡقَهُونَ ﴿١٣﴾

Fear of you [believers] is more intense in their hearts than fear of God because they are people devoid of understanding [13] (The Quran, al-Hashr: 13)

This means that however much they display their pride and seeming strength; they are terrified of the Muslims in their souls and fear them even more than they fear Allah. Allah the Almighty expresses this concept when He says: ‘Fight them; Allah will punish them by your hands and will disgrace them and give you victory over them.’ (at-Tawba: 14)

Had the True Lord the Most High wanted, He would have requited them and taken them to task as only the Almighty Determiner can. In that case, they would have said it was a natural phenomenon. However, the True Lord wanted to humiliate them and punish them by the Muslims’ hands because they were the ones who faced up to them.

Therefore, they fear you more than they fear Allah because they are materialistic people who only believe in material things and things they can see. This is why when you read the Talmud, you find it speaking about material things and contains no mention of the Hereafter.

Allah Glorified is He says, ‘That’, which refers to their fear of the Muslims and their lack of fear of Allah; furthermore, He says: ‘because they are a people who do not understand' (al-Hashr: 13). Indeed, they do not grasp the truth because the Muslims fought against them by Allah's direction only.

Allah Glorified is He says:

لَا يُقَٰتِلُونَكُمۡ جَمِيعًا إِلَّا فِي قُرٗى مُّحَصَّنَةٍ أَوۡ مِن وَرَآءِ جُدُرِۭۚ بَأۡسُهُم بَيۡنَهُمۡ
شَدِيدٞۚ تَحۡسَبُهُمۡ جَمِيعٗا وَقُلُوبُهُمۡ شَتَّىٰۚ ذَٰلِكَ بِأَنَّهُمۡ قَوۡمٞ لَّا يَعۡقِلُونَ ١٤

Even united they would never fight you, except from within fortified strongholds or behind high walls. There is much hostility between them: you think they are united but their hearts are divided because they are people devoid of reason [14]
(The Quran, al-Hashr: 14)

Since they fear the Muslims and are terrified of them, they avoid confronting them in open war in the desert. They do not have the courage to face a Muslim soldier, and therefore, 'They will not fight you all except within fortified cities.' (al-Hashr: 14)

Strongholds are fortified by digging trenches around settlements so that no one can enter them. The trench must be wide, deep and steeply inclined so that a horse cannot jump across it or ride down into it. Also, a settlement can be fortified by building a wall around it that no one can climb; this is the meaning behind 'or from behind walls.' (al-Hashr: 14) They would also fortify their houses by blocking the doors with wooden crossbars, so no one could open them.

Allah the Almighty says: 'Their violence amongst themselves is severe' (al-Hashr: 14); this means that they act as though they love one another when really they hate and despise each other. Allah also says: 'You think they are together, but their hearts are diverse.' (al-Hashr: 14). You are led to think they are united outwardly, but in truth, their hearts are in dispute. This was the case, for example, with Banu Qurayzha and Banu An-Nadir, and it is natural that such people differ and have hearts at odds, for they have no truth to unite them and to bring together their hearts and bodies.

Allah Glorified is He says: 'That is because they are a people who do not reason.' (al-Hashr: 14) This means they do not have the rationality with which to distinguish between truth and falsehood, along with between right and wrong.

The reason, as we said, is the middle stage of the senses; it is what examines things that have been sensed and judges between them; when it is convinced by something, it passes it on to the heart so that it becomes a stable belief. So, what can you expect from people who will not use their reason?

Allah Glorified is He says:

كَمَثَلِ ٱلَّذِينَ مِن قَبۡلِهِمۡ قَرِيبٗاۖ ذَاقُواْ وَبَالَ أَمۡرِهِمۡ وَلَهُمۡ عَذَابٌ أَلِيمٞ ﴿١٥﴾

Like those who went just before them, they have tasted the result of their conduct and a painful punishment awaits them [15] (The Quran, al-Hashr: 15)

The True Lord the Most High compares the state of the Jews with the state of their brothers, the polytheists of Mecca: 'those shortly before them; they tasted the bad consequence of their affair' (al-Hashr: 15); what this refers to is the evil consequences of their polytheism and their opposition to the call of truth. This is an allusion to the events of the Battle of Badr.

'…With [yet more] grievous suffering awaiting them [in the life to come]', this suffering will cause them pain; and the Noble Quran gives several attributes to the suffering of the Hereafter – may Allah save us all from it – each of which has an aspect that suits the state of those who suffer it. One person's suffering will be severe, another's grievous, and another's shameful.

We said before that there are some people who are not hurt by blows, but are hurt by words. Therefore, a man (1) once went to Mu`awiya (2) wanting to show him how powerfully he could bear the persecution of his enemies who hated him. He said, quoting the poet Abu Dhu`ayb Al-Hadhli:

I keep patient before my enemies to show them
That I do not cower before the incidents of time

So, Mu`awiya responded to him with another line from the same poem:

Yet when death sinks its claws into you,
No ransom you offer will do you any good.

كَمَثَلِ ٱلشَّيْطَٰنِ إِذْ قَالَ لِلْإِنسَٰنِ ٱكْفُرْ فَلَمَّا كَفَرَ
قَالَ إِنِّي بَرِيٓءٌ مِّنكَ إِنِّيٓ أَخَافُ ٱللَّهَ رَبَّ ٱلْعَٰلَمِينَ ﴿١٦﴾

Like Satan, who says to man, ‘Do not believe!’
but when man disbelieves, says, ‘I disown you;
I fear God, the Lord of the Worlds’ [16]
(The Quran, al-Hashr: 16)

That is, what the hypocrites did by making a pact with the Jews that they would go out with them if they were sent out, and fight alongside them if they were fought, and then forsaking them, was akin to what Satan did when he deceived the son of Adam and tempted him into danger, and then said to him when he obeyed him and disbelieved: ‘I am not responsible for you’. He got what he wanted from him, and then moved on to find someone else.

So, this is a comparison, and the True Lord gives us comparisons to explain unknown things with known things, such as when He says, ‘The parable of those who spend their possessions for the sake of Allah is that of a grain out of which grow seven ears, in every ear a hundred grains…’ (al-Baqara: 261). The reward of charity is not known, so He explains it to us with something we can see: the plants of the earth, and how the grain is multiplied up to seven hundred times.

‘…Behold, I fear Allah, The Lord of all the worlds!’ Satan fears Allah, the Lord of the worlds because when he was cast out of paradise he said: ‘…Grant me a respite till the Day when all shall be raised from the dead.’ (al-A‘raf: 14)

Satan’s words here ‘…Behold, I fear Allah, The Lord of all the worlds’ mean that all what Satan does is to lead you into sin and then abandon you; for Satan betrays all who follow him. He throws the rope of hope to you, yet when he is needed, he forsakes you and abandons you. This is what Satan does with his allies.

Allah says, ‘And, lo, Satan made all their doings seem goodly to them, and said, “No one can overcome you this day, for, behold, I shall be your protector…”’ (al-Anfal: 48). And elsewhere, Satan says to his followers: ‘…It is not for me to respond to your cries, nor for you to respond to mine…’

(Ibrahim: 22). Satan makes it clear here that he will not come to the aid of any of those who followed him; Satan will save no one from Allah's chastisement. They will call upon him so save them after they had followed him and responded to the evil temptations he presented to them, but he will forsake them and say: '…Behold, Allah promised you something that was bound to come true! I, too, held out [all manner of] promises to you – but I deceived you…' (Ibrahim: 22).

فَكَانَ عَٰقِبَتَهُمَآ أَنَّهُمَا فِى ٱلنَّارِ خَٰلِدَيْنِ فِيهَا ۚ وَذَٰلِكَ جَزَٰٓؤُا۟ ٱلظَّٰلِمِينَ ﴿١٧﴾

Both will end up in the Fire, there to remain.
That is the reward of evildoers [17]
(The Quran, al-Hashr: 17)

That is, this will be the fate of both Satan and those who followed him in disbelieving in Allah, His Messenger and His commandments. The True Lord declares that their fate will be the same: to abide in hell because both rebelled against Allah.

So, those who deny the religion and deny Allah's guidance will be requited with an abode in hell. When something which is opposed to Allah's guidance is presented to you, you must put Allah's guidance above everything else, and know that Satan, who tempts you to contravene Allah's guidance, will enter hell before you and abide therein. You will not be able to bring him out of it, and he will not be able to save you from it.

You do evil to yourself by disbelieving in Allah and belying His Messenger and by rejecting Allah's Commandments; and abiding in hell is the fate of evildoers. Here, the word 'evildoers' means the disbelievers who committed the gravest sin of all, which is to disbelieve in Allah and associate partners with Him. And Allah has said: '…for, behold, such [a false] ascribing of divinity is indeed an awesome wrong!' (Luqman: 13) Associating partners with Allah is considered evil or wrong, as you make something which neither created nor provided a partner to Him who created and provided; and you make human beings associates with Allah in lawgiving; thus, you ban what Allah has allowed, and allow what Allah has banned.

يَٰٓأَيُّهَا ٱلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُواْ ٱتَّقُواْ ٱللَّهَ وَلۡتَنظُرۡ نَفۡسٞ مَّا قَدَّمَتۡ لِغَدٖۖ
وَٱتَّقُواْ ٱللَّهَۚ إِنَّ ٱللَّهَ خَبِيرُۢ بِمَا تَعۡمَلُونَ ١٨ وَلَا تَكُونُواْ كَٱلَّذِينَ
نَسُواْ ٱللَّهَ فَأَنسَىٰهُمۡ أَنفُسَهُمۡۚ أُوْلَٰٓئِكَ هُمُ ٱلۡفَٰسِقُونَ ١٩

You who believe! Be mindful of God, and let every soul consider carefully what it sends ahead for tomorrow; be mindful of God, for God is well aware of everything you do [18] Do not be like those who forget God, so God causes them to forget their own souls: they are the rebellious ones [19]
(The Quran, al-Hashr: 18 - 19)

The call of ‘O you who have attained to faith’ is a divine command to which we must listen and see what Allah wants of us. Just as we took the gifts of lordly sustenance from Him, we must also take the gifts of divine ordain, which are the responsibilities of the Sacred Law: ‘…Remain conscious of Allah; and let every human being look to what he sends ahead for the morrow.…’

After calling them by the attribute of their faith, He then commands them to be conscious of Him. This means that theoretical faith is not enough on its own; rather, it must be backed up by practical faith and adherence to Allah’s Commandments.

‘…And let every human being look to what he sends ahead for the morrow…’ The command here is phrased in an emphatic way, using the Arabic letter Lam; and ‘every human being’ implies universality: every human being is required to look to what he sends ahead for the Day of Resurrection.

He says ‘…for the morrow…’ to indicate its imminence. This means that Allah’s way of guidance which He has chosen for you to adjust the motions of your life and give you happiness in your worldly lives, is not the end of the matter; and those who oppose this way of guidance and stray from it, spreading corruption in land or living off the backs of others, will not come to an end of their affair simply by the ending of their worldly lives. Rather, there will be a ‘morrow’, and there will be a reckoning and requital. So, do not let this fact leave your mind, and let it guide your life’s actions; and beware lest it escape your attention.

Because of the importance of this, He repeats again the command for the Allah-consciousness: '…And [once again]: Remain conscious of Allah.…' So, the reference to looking at one's deeds and observing them comes between two commands for Allah-consciousness; and Allah-consciousness, as we said, is the practical part of faith. It is as though He were saying to you: 'Beware of knowing your final end but not working for it and striving for it'.

And by this way of guidance, people find happiness and man feels safe about his possessions and dignity. We understand from '…and let every human being look…' that every person must observe his faith, and consider what it is that he wants, and what his goal is, and what his destination is. For others, too, have their goals and desires in life.

You only possess your own self; so beware of comparing yourself to others, for each of us has his goals in life, and one might conflate and admix his goal with other things. Look at yourself in isolation, because others will not be asked about you and you will not be asked about them. That is why the word 'human being' (nafs) is given here in the singular form.

When the True Lord Glorified is He says to us, '…and let every human being look to what he sends ahead for the morrow…', He is only calling us to reckon ourselves and consider what we have sent ahead so that we may become aware that there are shortcomings in our conduct or that we have strayed from the straight path.

A man's life is too short for him to squander it and let it slip through his hands without even noticing it. Your Lord created you and left you to enjoy the pleasant things of the life of this world until the age of fifteen, without making you responsible for anything.

He only held you morally responsible once you had become fully formed and fully mentally conscious; and then He made for you a moment of self-reflection at the age of forty, which is the age of full maturity and the age of prophethood: '…And so, when he attains to full maturity and reaches forty years, he [that is righteous] prays: "O my Lord! Inspire me so that I may forever be grateful for those blessings of You with which You has graced me and my parents, and that I may do what is right [in a manner] that will meet with Your goodly acceptance; and grant me righteousness in my offspring [as well]. Verily, unto You have I turned in repentance: for, verily, I am of those who have surrendered themselves unto You!'" (al-Ahqaf: 15)

He then repeats the reward: 'It is [such as] these from whom We shall accept the best that they ever did, and bad deeds We shall overlook: [they will find themselves] among those who are destined for paradise, in fulfilment of the true promise which they were given [in this world].' (al-Ahqaf: 16)

Look, then, at this grace Allah gives to His servants – and could there be any more excuses once the age of forty has been reached? And furthermore, who can guarantee to even reach the age of forty? So, the intelligent person races against time with good deeds, snatching as many of them from the passing days as he can; for he might not even reach the age of forty.

The True Lord Glorified is He speaks of the Hereafter using the word 'morrow' to express how near it is; and indeed, the morrow is even further away than it because it might come to you in the blink of an eye. The Prophet peace and blessings be upon him said: 'Paradise is nearer to you than the strap of your shoe – and so is Hell.'(1)

From the word 'morrow', we understand that in the life of this world you live by material means, whilst tomorrow you will live by the Owner of all means: there will be no sun, no moon, no farmland, no work, and no effort.

Therefore, when The True Lord speaks about the Hereafter, He says, 'And the earth will shine bright with her Lord's light…' (az-Zumar: 69) because the sun will not be there; the only light there will be the light of the Divine Essence.

Allah Glorified is He then says, 'And be not like those who are oblivious of Allah, and whom He therefore causes to be oblivious of [what is good for] their own selves.…' There was a commandment to be conscious of Allah and follow His guidance, and now there is a prohibition against forgetting Allah. This means that when you follow Allah's guidance, you must keep remembering Allah all the time because He is your Lord and your Allah for whom you are working.

(1) Narrated by Al-Bukhari in his Sahih (6007) and others

Notice here that the noble verse does not say ‘Do not be oblivious of Allah’, but says, ‘And be not like those who are oblivious of Allah.…’ It is as though forgetting Allah is not something that those who believe would ever be expected to do.

To forget means to have knowledge of something and then become oblivious of it because of other distractions, or to be so heedless of it that you forget it. This is because the mind contains both the forefront of the consciousness and the margins of the consciousness: a fact enters the forefront of the consciousness, and as long as it remains there you remember it.

If it moves to the margins of the consciousness, however, you forget it and need to be reminded of it so that it returns to the forefront of the consciousness. Otherwise, if everything were to remain in the forefront of the consciousness, you would not be able to notice anything else.

Allah Glorified is He says, ‘Never has Allah endowed any man with two hearts in one body…’ (al-Ahzab: 4). One of the blessings Allah has given you is that you can recall information from the margins of your consciousness to the forefront when you make an effort to remember them.

But how could Allah be known to them, only for them to forget Him? They say that Allah Glorified is He has been known to all mankind since they were in the stage of seeds in the loins of their forefather Adam peace be upon him and since Allah took from them this pledge: ‘And when your Lord took the seeds of the children of Adam from their loins, He made them bear witness against themselves: ‘Am I not your Lord?’ – to which they answered: “Yea, indeed, we do bear witness thereto!…”’ (al-A‘raf: 172) The True Lord addresses this atom in you which you took from your father Adam peace be upon him for He alone can do this; He speaks to atoms just as He speaks to the earth and to the bees.

The True Lord Glorified is He took this pledge from us so that it would be a proof against us if we became heedless of Him or forgot Him: ‘…[Of this We remind you,] lest you say on the Day of Resurrection, “Verily, we were unaware of this.” Or lest you say, “Verily, it was but our forefathers who, in times gone by, began to ascribe divinity to other beings beside Allah; and we were but their late offspring: wilt Thou, then, destroy us for the doings of those inventors of falsehoods?'" (al-A'raf: 172-173)

It is as though He were saying to you: 'Beware of saying this – beware of being afflicted by this obliviousness which causes you to forget the remembrance of Allah, for you have no excuse to do so because He took a pledge from us all, and then sent His successive messengers to continually remind us of this pledge'.

So, when a person becomes oblivious, this atom performs its immunising function and reminds him and turns him back to Allah. They say that this atom is the self-reproaching soul in man; and when it weakens, and does not deter one from sinking into sin, society should deter him instead. And if society offers no deterrent because it is also corrupt, we said that this is when Heaven intervenes by sending a new messenger.

This went on until the message of Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him came, and Allah made his community the best of communities ever brought forth for the good of mankind because it took upon itself the role of the prophets in enjoining what is right and forbidding what is wrong: 'You are indeed the best community that has ever been brought forth for [the good of] mankind: you enjoin the doing of what is right and forbid the doing of what is wrong…' (Al-'Imran: 110). Therefore, Allah made them witnesses over all other communities, '…so that [with your lives] you might bear witness to the truth before all mankind and that the Apostle might bear witness to it before you…' (al-Baqara: 143). By this, this community took on the role of the messengers, and we were given an assurance that our society will never be bereft of the constituents of goodness and those who bear the lights of guidance; and however, much truths may be obscured and images darkened, we will always have an exemplar of goodness and guidance to return people to righteousness.

The meaning of '…and whom He therefore causes to be oblivious of [what is good for] their own selves…' is that because of how they forget Allah, and their worldly possessions and offspring distract them from Allah, heedlessness overcomes them to such an extent that they forget even their own selves meaning that they forget what is good for them. When they deny themselves what is good for them, it is as though they forget their own selves.

When a man separates himself from his Lord and Creator, he lives a straitened life, no matter what comforts and delights of this world he attains. Yet the believer, who is connected to his Lord, leads a happy life even if he does not have enough provisions to last him the day. Therefore, despite their riches and prestige, some people go to a poor man and ask for his prayers because they know that he has something they do not have: he has a connection to his Lord.

If a person knows what his goal is, he will feel that the way towards it is easy, and will be able to reach it. People are only different because they have different goals in life. Identifying one's goal is more difficult than actually attaining it; a poet expressed this by saying :(1)

Who can show me my destination before my journey:

How, when destinations only determined after journeys?

The true goal is that which is followed by no further desires; and were you to follow the chain of all the goals in the world, you would find that they lead to the Hereafter, where there is success, happiness and bliss forever without end.

The True Lord Glorified is He then says, '…[for] it is they, they who are truly depraved (fasiqun)!' The verb fasaqa means for a fruit to break away from its skin when it is ripe. Before the fruit is ripe, it adheres tightly to its skin and cannot be peeled away from it. Then, when the fruit becomes soft, its skin breaks away from it so that you can peel it easily.

This is the fasiq, who strays from Allah's guidance: he breaks away from it easily and is pleased to be rid of it. To break away from Allah's guidance means to cut your connection to His commandments and prohibitions.

This fisq is of two kinds: small and great. This raises a problematic question: does fisq here mean simply to go beyond the limits of obedience to the Messenger? But this is applied to all sinners. That is, the person who does this may be a believer in the guidance, but separate from it partially.

We can say that every sinner is guilty of fisq, in that he believes in the guidance but breaks away from it partially. Yet the fisq which the True Lord is speaking about here is the most extreme form of fisq, namely to break away from faith entirely.

(1) Ibn Ar-Rumy (221-283 A.H.)

لَا يَسۡتَوِيٓ أَصۡحَٰبُ ٱلنَّارِ وَأَصۡحَٰبُ ٱلۡجَنَّةِۚ أَصۡحَٰبُ ٱلۡجَنَّةِ هُمُ ٱلۡفَآئِزُونَ ٢٠

There is no comparison between the inhabitants of the Fire and the inhabitants of Paradise – and the inhabitants of Paradise are the successful ones [20]
(The Quran, al-Hashr: 20)

This is something logical and natural. They are not equal in this human world, so how could they be equal in the sight of Allah, the Just Judge? Far be it that this be the case! To hold them equal is nothing but foolishness: how could the one who lives according to his passions be equal to the one who lives according to the guidance of his Lord and Creator?

In the life of this world, these two represent the Paradise and Hell of the Hereafter. Just as Paradise and Hell and not equal, those destined for them are not equal in this world.

We can find evidence here for the existence of Paradise and Hell in the Hereafter. Were those who sin and despoil the land and harm other people to evade punishment, and were it all to end with their deaths, this would mean that they would be the fortunate ones, whilst the people of faith and righteousness would be the losers; and this is something that no mind can accept.

Some of these people seek to justify their evasion of Allah's guidance by saying, 'Even if there is a punishment and requital, we will burn away in the fire of hell and that will be that'. They forget about the reality of the Hereafter, which is that it is an eternal abode whose bliss will never fade, nor its torment ever end: '…every time their skins are burnt off We shall replace them with new skins so that they may taste suffering [in full]…' (an-Nisa': 56).

I remember that once we spoke about this verse and repeated it to a group of orientalists, and seven of them embraced Islam in a single sitting. This was because they realised that in these words was manifested one of the scientific miracles of the Quran.

The Quran was the first to say that the skin is the source of sensation and the locus of taste; for before this, they used to say that the brain was responsible for sensation.

The words ‘…those who are destined for (ashab) the fire and those who are destined for (ashab) paradise…’ suggest the presence of some kind of companionship (musahaba); it is as though there is a familiarity and friendship between them. The sinners are the companions of hell and the righteous are the companions of paradise, and each of them is familiar with its companions and content with them; indeed, they each yearn for them. Paradise yearns for its denizens and companions, and awaits them; and likewise, hell burns and rages with desire for its denizens and companions.

‘…Those who are destined for paradise – it is they, they [alone] who shall triumph!’ Indeed, they shall triumph by winning paradise and Allah’s favour, and gaining relief from the toils and suffering of the life of this world. Their thoughts will now run their lives; as soon as they think of something, it will appear there before them without any effort.

لَوۡ أَنزَلۡنَا هَٰذَا ٱلۡقُرۡءَانَ عَلَىٰ جَبَلٖ لَّرَأَيۡتَهُۥ خَٰشِعٗا مُّتَصَدِّعٗا مِّنۡ خَشۡيَةِ ٱللَّهِۚ
وَتِلۡكَ ٱلۡأَمۡثَٰلُ نَضۡرِبُهَا لِلنَّاسِ لَعَلَّهُمۡ يَتَفَكَّرُونَ ٢١

If We had sent this Quran down to a mountain, you [Prophet] would have seen it humbled and split apart in its awe of God: We offer people such illustrations so that they may reflect [21] (The Quran, al-Hashr: 21)

Indeed, were this to happen, and were this Quran to be sent down upon a mountain, its state would be ‘…humbling itself, breaking asunder for awe of Allah…’. Despite its firmness and strength, the mountain would humble itself and break asunder, crumbling in fear of Allah. Every atom in it fulfils its purpose and follows its Lord and Creator’s instructions. This would be the case if a mountain were morally responsible, instead of an inanimate object.

So, what would happen if the Quran were sent down upon it? It would crumble just as Mount Sinai (At-Tur) crumbled in the story of Musa (Moses) peace be upon him: ‘And when Musa (Moses) came [to Mount Sinai] at the time set by Us, and his Lord spoke unto him, he said, "O my Lord! Show [Yourself] unto me, so that I might behold you!" Said [Allah], "Never can you see me, however, behold this mountain: if it remains firm in its place, then – only then – will you see Me." And as soon as his Lord revealed His Glory to the mountain, He caused it to crumble to dust; and Musa (Moses) fell down in a swoon…' (al-A'raf: 143).

This means that the mountain broke asunder because of the terror of this event. Of course, mountains are not morally responsible, and they were offered this trust but refused to bear it: 'Verily, We did offer the trust [of reason and volition] to the heavens, and the earth, and the mountains: but they refused to bear it because they were afraid of it…' (al-Ahzab: 72). But their responsibility is to remain as they are stores of nourishment and growth, to give human beings their provisions.

The linguists say that the Arabic word law (which here is translated as 'had', as in 'Had we…') expresses that the second verb did not occur because the first one did not happen. The Quran was not sent down to the mountain; but had it happened, you would really have seen the mountain humbling itself and breaking asunder, crumbling into dust. As for the story of Musa (Moses) peace be upon him what happened was that the mountain remained in one piece but sank into the ground like a peg: 'And were you like the mountain, this would have happened to you too because you are not ready to see Allah nor receive anything directly from Him'.

If you say: 'So how can we see Allah in the Hereafter?' we answer: Allah will make us in another form and a different creation, which will allow this to happen. He will create us in a form which is able to see Him. Do you not see that in this world, you might have poor eyesight so that you have to go to the optician and have an operation that allows you to see well? It is like this. Therefore, He says: 'some faces will on that Day be bright with happiness, looking up to their Lord.' (al-Qiyama: 22-23)

'…And [all] such parables We propound unto men so that they might [learn to] think.' Parables (amthal, singular mathal) are comparisons which make things easier for us to understand, and impart wisdom unto us; and the parable is a vast field in Arabic literature.

A mathal is also a proverb, something that happened in the past and was summed up in a few concise words which people then began to use in all similar situations.

The True Lord Glorified is He uses parables in the Noble Quran on many occasions, to make it easier for us to understand the matters of the unseen of which we have neither knowledge nor experience. Therefore, He gives us parables to illustrate the pinnacle of doctrine, that is the Oneness of Allah; and He gave us the parable of His light; and He gave us parables of the disbelievers.

The True Lord Glorified is He gives us the parable of the mountain here, saying that if the Quran were revealed to it, it would humble itself and break asunder in fear of Allah. Thus, The True Lord expresses a metaphysical concept using physical representations, to make it easier for people to understand and increase its clarity, awe, and power – for you human beings are not stronger than mountains.

Allah Glorified is He then says, '…so that they might [learn to] think'; that is, that they might think with true logic and fear Allah, and keep themselves away from falling into falsehood, and thus protect themselves from Allah's chastisement and wrath.

So, He inspires them to think, having inspired in them the sense of the greatness and the awesomeness of what would happen to the mountain if the Quran were sent down upon it.

'…And [all] such parables We propound unto men, so that they might [learn to] think.' It is a characteristic of the Quran's rhetorical style that it uses parables to explain things; a parable means to connect something unknown with something very well known. When a poet(1) wanted to describe a hunchback to someone who had never seen one, he said:

The veins of his neck are short, and his nape is bent,
As though he thinks someone is about to strike him.
It is as though his neck was once slapped,
And he fears it is going to happen again, so prepares for it.

(1) Ibn Ar-Rumi

هُوَ ٱللَّهُ ٱلَّذِى لَآ إِلَٰهَ إِلَّا هُوَ ۖ عَٰلِمُ ٱلْغَيْبِ وَٱلشَّهَٰدَةِ ۖ هُوَ ٱلرَّحْمَٰنُ ٱلرَّحِيمُ ﴿٢٢﴾

He is God: there is no god other than Him. It is He who knows what is hidden as well as what is in the open,
He is the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy [22]
(The Quran, al-Hashr: 22)

We said that when the third person pronoun ‘He’ is used, the mind immediately thinks of Allah because He is always present and never absent, even if we call him with the third-person pronoun [which in Arabic is called gha`ib, meaning literally ‘absent’]. In another verse, He says, ‘…Say, Allah! – and then leave them to play at their vain talk.’ (al-An‘am: 91) That is, respond to them by saying ‘Allah!’, for this word alone is enough, and indicates that there is no other Allah besides Him.

The Messenger of Allah peace be upon him said: ‘The best thing the prophets before me said was “There is no deity but Allah.”’(1) The fact that the Messenger of Allah said only ‘Allah!’ implies that Allah absolved him of the need to pronounce the negation and affirmation of ‘…save whom there is no deity…’ (al-Hashr: 22). That is, perhaps if I say ‘there is no deity…’, I might die before completing the phrase; so He said: No, your Lord knows that you will say it, so He will not take your spirit before you finish it.

The words ‘He is Allah…’ (al-Hashr: 22). Huwa Allah, the pronoun ‘He’ refers to the (absent) third person because in this created world you do not see the Creator, but only to infer His presence using your mind. So, the one you cannot see, and who appears to be absent from you, is Allah, your Lord and Creator. The same is the case with ‘Say, “He is Allah, The One God”’ (al-Ikhlas: 1): the ‘absent’ third-person pronoun comes first, before being specified by name. This is because a nominal sentence sometimes contains both the reference and its referent.

For example, when He says ‘Muhammad is Allah’s Apostle…’ (al-Fath: 29), ‘Muhammad’ is the name of a person known to them, and the unknown thing that needs to be stated is that he is Allah’s Apostle; so how can you present something unknown as information about something known? The scholars say that it is as though He were saying to them: ‘Muhammad, whom you know, and whose life story you know, and whose trustworthiness you know, is the one I have chosen as an apostle to you.’ It is as though the subject here is the proof of the predicate; Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is himself made the proof of the truth of his message.

(1) Narrated by At-Tirmidhi (3585)

Now ‘Allah’ is the name of The Exalted Being, the Name which indicates His Essence; all His other Names indicate His Attributes, such as ‘The Living, The Sustaining, the All-Powerful, The Giver of Life’ and so on. Therefore, The Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him taught us to begin everything by mentioning Allah’s Name because it is the Name to which all things respond, and by its means your body obeys you and reacts to your will.

Then His words ‘…save whom there is no deity…’ negate the existence of any deity other than Allah, and affirm Godhood for Allah alone without any partner. The first one to testify to this fact, that there is no deity but Allah, is Allah Himself: He testifies it to Himself, and then the angels testify to it, and then those endowed with knowledge: ‘Allah bears witness– and [so do] the angels and all who are endowed with knowledge – that there is no deity save Him…’ (Al-‘Imran: 18). This is a testimony of the Essence for the Essence; and then the angels gave a testimony of witnessing, and then those endowed with knowledge gave a testimony of reasoning, proof and evidence.

As long as Allah made this testimony for Himself, and no one made any objection or counter-claim, the claim must be given to the claimant if no objection can be made: ‘Say, “If there were – as some people assert – [other] deities side by side with Him, surely [even] they would have to strive to find a way unto Him who is enthroned on His Almightiness”’ (al-Isra’: 42). He is ‘…The One who knows all that is beyond the reach of a created being’s perception as well as all that can be witnessed by a creature’s senses or mind…’ (al-Hashr: 22). We said that claims are given to their claimants as long as there is no objection, and thus His words ‘…The One who knows all that is beyond the reach of a created being’s perception, as well as all that can be witnessed by a creature’s senses or mind…’ mean that there has never been any objection to this, and there never will be; for Allah, who knows all that is beyond the reach of a created being's perception, as well as all that can be witnessed by a creature's senses or mind, has informed us of this.

The word ghaib means all that which is beyond the reach of a created being's perception, and this is of two types: first, there is that which can be ascertained by following the preliminary clues which lead to it, such as an algebra exercise which gives you certain information to allow you to deduce the solution; this is beyond your perception now, but you have the preliminary clues which can lead you to it later. This is the case with new inventions like television and radio: they were ghaib (unperceived) for a time, and then became apparent for all to see.

Something might be imperceptible for you but not for someone else: when something is stolen from you, it becomes imperceptible to you, but not to the one who stole it.

As for that which is beyond the reach of a created being's perception and known only to the True Lord Glorified is He and no one else, this is the absolutely imperceptible which only Allah knows, and for which there are no preliminary clues that might allow it to be discovered. Therefore, He says, 'He [alone] knows that which is beyond the reach of a created being's perception, and to none does He disclose aught of the mysteries of His Own unfathomable knowledge, unless it be to an apostle whom He has been pleased to elect [therefor]…' (al-Jinn: 26-27).

As for '…all that can be witnessed by a creature's senses or mind…' (al-Hashr: 22); Al-shahada means all that is visible (mashhud). So, what is special about Allah's Knowledge of visible things, since even human beings have this knowledge? We examined this issue when we were explaining Allah's words 'Verily, He knows all that is said openly, just as He [alone] knows all that you would conceal.' (al-Anbiya': 110) The True Lord Glorified is He invites us to marvel at His Knowledge of what people conceal; but what is special about His Knowledge of what is said openly, when everyone has this knowledge? They say that this means communal loud speech.

We explained this by saying: imagine we are attending a protest rally against someone or other. Indeed, this involves loud speech, and we can hear it; but can you identify which voice belongs to which person? No one can do this but Allah who knows what is said out loud in every time and place. He knows what is said loudly in every moment, in every place in the world – and who can do this but Allah?

'…He, The Most Merciful, The Dispenser of…' What is the relationship between The Most Merciful, The Dispenser of Mercy, and the One who knows all that is beyond the reach of a created being's perception, as well as all that can be witnessed by a creature's senses or mind? The meaning of this is that the One who knows all that is beyond the reach of a created being's perception is the Most Merciful in that He conceals the secrets of every person from the rest of mankind so that the motions of life can proceed safely; it is in His mercy that Allah keeps our secrets and private matters hidden.

Therefore, the noble Sacred Law allows you to poke the eye of the one who spies on you and invades your house without your knowledge. When a man spied on the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him through a hole in the door, he said: 'By Allah, had I seen him I would have poked his eye!'(1)

This is because houses are built for keeping privacy, and Islam preserves the Muslim's privacy in his own home, in his private room and in his bedroom. Therefore, the True Lord commands us to ask permission before entering and to teach this to our young children so that they imbibe this etiquette; and He warned us not to spy and seek out other people's private matters.

The Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him said: 'If someone seeks out the Muslims' private affairs, Allah will seek out his private affairs and expose him in his own home.'(2)

This is because seeking out other people's private matters is one of the worst ways in which society can be corrupted and relations spoiled. You might see a man whose piety and good conduct pleases you, yet if you try to discover his secrets and private matters, you end up becoming displeased with him, and your opinion of his plummets.

(1) At-Tabarani, Al-Awsat (213)

(2) Narrated by Al-Mawsuli (7423)

Concealment is better for the preservation of relations; and it is an evil thing to think badly of those who do the Good and enjoin it. A poet expressed this by saying:

> Act on my knowledge, and depend not on my actions:
> Take the fruit, and leave the wood for the fire!

So Allah is Merciful and Compassionate in His Knowledge of all that is beyond the reach of a created being’s perception. We begin our actions by invoking this, saying: ‘In the Name of Allah, the Most Merciful, and the Dispenser of Mercy’; and by this, we are aided and given grace; and by it, things react for us and bend to our will. You cannot act on your own power, but things only respond to you because Allah bends them to your will. Even if you are a sinner and neglected His guidance, He does not deny you the gifts of the Most Merciful and the Dispenser of Mercy. He does not take you to task for your own foolishness because you are His servant and His creation, and He is your Lord and Creator who called you into this existence.

هُوَ ٱللَّهُ ٱلَّذِى لَآ إِلَٰهَ إِلَّا هُوَ ٱلْمَلِكُ ٱلْقُدُّوسُ ٱلسَّلَٰمُ ٱلْمُؤْمِنُ ٱلْمُهَيْمِنُ
ٱلْعَزِيزُ ٱلْجَبَّارُ ٱلْمُتَكَبِّرُ ۚ سُبْحَٰنَ ٱللَّهِ عَمَّا يُشْرِكُونَ ﴿٢٣﴾

He is God: there is no god other than Him, the Controller, the Holy One, Source of Peace, Granter of Security, Guardian over all, the Almighty, the Compeller, the Truly Great; God is far above anything they consider to be His partner [23] (The Quran, al-Hashr: 23)

The repetition of ‘Allah is He save whom there is no deity…’ serves to emphasise that He alone possesses the attributes which now follow: Allah alone, save whom there is no deity, is The One who knows all that is beyond the reach of a created being’s perception, as well as all that can be witnessed by a creature’s senses or mind, the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy, the Sovereign Supreme, the Holy, the One with whom all salvation rests, the Giver of Faith, the One who determines what is true and false the Almighty the One who subdues wrong and restores right, and the One to whom all greatness belongs.

‘The Sovereign Supreme’ (al-Malik) is one of His Names; the root m-l-k gives us maalik, which means ‘one who owns something’, however small and trifling it may be. Even the one who owns a piece of clothing to wear is called the maalik (owner) of it. It means, therefore, anyone who owns anything. The root also gives us the word malik, (king) which means the one who owns (or has dominion over) the one who owns. The True Lord then is Al-Malik, ‘The Sovereign Supreme’, who owns all things and their owners as well (maalik), for they are His servants and His handiwork. The True Lord Glorified is He describes Himself as being the owner (maalik) of the Day of Resurrection: ‘Owner of the Day of Judgment!’ (al-Fatiha: 4) On that day, He will be the true Owner, since there will be no owner besides Him; for on that day, all possessions will be wrested from their owners, and no one will own anything.

The meaning of ‘The Holy’ (Al-Quddus) is He who is absolutely free of all flaws, and utterly pure and able to purify all things. Therefore, the angels say in glorifying Allah: ‘Glorified, Holy, Lord of the angels and the Spirit!’(1) Our Lord, You are glorified by all creatures, and holy; that is, completely pure of any flaw or defect.

This is one of those words which can only be attributed to Him; that is why we say, by way of calling unto Allah: ‘Glory be to You – and this cannot be said to anyone but You’! And indeed, we find this is true in this world, for there are many people who are obeyed in all they command and prohibit, and praised with all kinds of expressions of laud and honour; yet we have never heard anyone say to another human being, ‘Glory be to you (subhanak)’!

We also said this about the word ‘Allah’. Despite the existence of disbelief and disbelievers and atheists who deny the existence of Allah, we have never heard of anyone naming his son ‘Allah’. Why not? Because no one would dare to do such a thing for they fear lest they be taken to task at once by the Almighty Determiner.

Therefore, Allah Glorified is He says, by way of lauding Himself: ‘…Do you know any whose name is worthy to be mentioned side by side with His?’

(1) As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur (12/717)

(Maryam: 65) Those who ascribe to the concept of divine prevention [1] say: ‘It was Allah Himself who turned them away from doing so’.

To this, we say: even had He not turned them away, they would not have dared to do it. People of this school of thought also say, about the issue of the miraculous nature of the Quran, that Allah turned the Arabs away from coming up with speech that is equal to the Quran, and had Allah not turning them away, they would have done so. This assertion is wide of the mark; in reality, they would still have not been able to come up with the likes of it even if He had not turned them away.

The meaning of ‘…The One with whom all salvation rests…’ (As-Salam) is He who is Peace in His Essence. Salam (peace) comes from salaama (safety and soundness), which means the soundness of the body parts from any kind of mutual conflict: they all exist in harmony with one another.

Therefore, when it was said to Khadija Allah be pleased with her that her Lord greeted her with peace, she replied ‘Allah is Peace’(2), not ‘upon Allah be peace’, because He is Peace itself. That is why the greeting of the Muslims is ‘Peace be upon you’; for when someone comes to you, you do not know whether he means you good or harm. When he says, ‘Peace by upon you’, we feel safe and secure about him, because he has come in peace; so we reply to him, ‘And upon you be peace’; that is, we are also people of peace, and we will show you nothing but peace.

Thus, Allah made it the greeting of the angels in paradise: ‘…Peace be upon you! Well have you done: enter, then, this [paradise], herein to abide’ (az-Zumar: 73). And this greeting rises even higher, for it is the greeting the True Lord will extend to those of His servants who enter paradise: ‘Peace and fulfilment through the word of a Lord who dispenses all grace.’ (Ya Sin: 58)

The word ‘…The Giver of Faith…’ (al-Mu`min) is also one of His Names and Attributes. The root letters a-m-n form the transitive verb aamana (meaning ‘to make safe’), as in Allah’s words: ‘…and made them safe (aamana) from

(1) That is, who say that Allah prevented mankind from opposing the Quran, for otherwise, the Arabs would have been able to oppose it. This was the opinion of the Mu’tazilite sect, though the Sunnis refuted it.

(2) At-Tabarani, Al-Kabir (18559)

danger.' (Quraysh: 4). He also says, '…Why – have We not established for them a sanctuary secure? (amin)…' (al-Qasas: 57), that is, We have made them safe so that nothing can frighten them.

The verb aamana can also be intransitive with the preposition bi, as in: 'They believe in (yu`minun bi) Allah…' (Al-'Imran: 114), where it means 'to believe in'; it can also be used with the particle li, as in: '…But [we know that] you would not believe us…' (Yusuf: 17) in which case it means 'to trust'us or 'to affirm the truth of' us.

So, Al-Mu`min means the One Who keeps His servants safe from what threatens them; or it means 'The Believer', for He is the foremost of those who believe in Him, and as we said, He testifies this to Himself when He says: 'Allah bears witness…that there is no deity save Him…' (Al-'Imran: 18). And if it means 'to affirm the truth', then He affirms the truth of His messengers by giving them miracles.

'…The One who determines what is true and false…' (Al-Muhaymin) means the One Who looks after things and has power over them. Allah says, 'And unto you [O Prophet] have We vouchsafed this divine writ, setting forth the truth, confirming the truth of whatever there still remains of earlier revelations and determining what is true (muhaymin) therein…' (al-Ma'ida: 48). So, the Quran is muhaymin over all the scriptures that came before it, and Allah is Muhaymin over His creatures in that He looks after them and has power over them.

In'The Almighty (Al-`Aziz)' (al-Hashr: 23), the word `aziz means something precious and unique; and the Almighty is He who overcomes all and cannot be overcome. Al-Jabbar is one of the True Lord's Majestic Attributes: it means that He overcomes those who oppose His guidance. A human being can also be jabbar; Allah says, 'And will you [always], whenever you lay hand [on others], lay hand [on them] cruelly, without any restraint (jabbarin)?' (ash-Shu'ara': 130) And He says, '…and you can by no means force (tujbir) them [to believe in it]…' (Qaf: 45). That is, you do not have power over them so that you could force them to believe.

Allah is also Jabbar in the sense that He heals (the verb jabara also means 'to heal'); we say, 'O You who heals those who are injured!' He mends the ailment of the poor by enriching them, and mends the ailments of the ignorant by teaching them, and mends the ailment of the weak by strengthening them.

And the one who sets broken bones is called in Arabic mujabbir: he sets the bones in their proper place and then wraps them with bandages (jabeera).

Yet the attributes of the True Lord are not like those of created beings; for the attributes of the True Lord Glorified is He are intrinsic to Him, whilst the attributes of created beings are given to them and may be taken from them. The attribute of jabarut is evil and unjust in the case of human beings (where it means tyranny), whilst for Allah it involves forbearance, wisdom and justice.

'…The One to whom all greatness belongs…(Al-Mutakabbir)' comes from kibr, which for human beings means 'arrogance' and is blameworthy; yet in the Creator, it means 'greatness', and is praiseworthy. For human beings it is a flaw, whilst for The Creator it is perfection.

Greatness is an intrinsic attribute of Allah, yet an affected attribute of human beings because they are proud of something that has only been given to them and is not intrinsic. Some people are proud of their wealth, or their health, or their fame; yet these are all mere passing delights and fleeting accidents.

Therefore, Allah alone is the One Who can truly lay claim to greatness, and all other claims to greatness are false. Allah is the One to Whom all greatness belongs because He is free of need for His creation; He lacks nothing, and He is the giver of all things. Therefore, it is a great blessing of His upon us that He is the One to Whom all greatness belongs, because His greatness means that He does not wrong us: '…and never does Allah do the least wrong to His creatures.' (Fussilat: 46)

This is an aspect of His Greatness; for wrongdoing means to take what is not yours to increase what you have; and Allah's greatness is utterly beyond this, for He owns everything in reality, and is not in need of anything.

But if the servant acts with tyranny (jabbariyya), does this take him outside the overwhelming power (jabbariyya) of his Creator? No, he remains under the overwhelming power of his Creator from which he cannot escape. How could he? Even though his Creator has given him free will to obey or disobey, to believe or disbelieve, and to act or not act, he is still compelled in other areas and has no free will in them.

This is the overwhelming power of his Creator over him, from which he cannot escape. Therefore, I like the popular saying: ‘If your power allows you to wrong others, remember the power that Allah has over you’.(1)

It is good for mankind that greatness belongs to the Creator alone; for every one of us has an equal share in this greatness. That all greatness belongs to Allah means that no one of us can claim to be greater than any other is because we are all equal before Allah’s greatness. He who knows that all greatness belongs to Allah alone would be ashamed to hold himself greater than any of His creatures.

‘…Utterly remote is Allah, in His Limitless Glory, from anything to which men may ascribe a share in His divinity!’ That is, He is utterly free of all that they associate with Him.

هُوَ ٱللَّهُ ٱلۡخَٰلِقُ ٱلۡبَارِئُ ٱلۡمُصَوِّرُۖ لَهُ ٱلۡأَسۡمَآءُ ٱلۡحُسۡنَىٰۚ يُسَبِّحُ لَهُۥ

The best names belong to Him. Everything in the heavens and earth glorifies Him: He is the Almighty, the Wise [24]
(The Quran, al-Hashr: 24)

Again here He repeats ‘He is Allah…’ for the third time because these verses are a continuing mention of Allah’s Names and Attributes, which include: ‘…the Creator, the Maker, He who shapes all forms and appearances…’ (al-Hashr: 24). These are all listed together because these three concepts are all really successive stages of the same thing.

Allah is the Creator (Al-Khaliq), and to create means to bring into being out of nothing; and He is the Maker (Al-Bari’), i.e. the One who sets this creation in a form that allows it to fulfil the purpose for which it was made, just as you sharpen (bara) a pencil to write with it, or sharpen an arrow so it will hit the target.

(1) This is a saying of the Caliph `Umar ibn `Abd Al-`Aziz.

Things cannot fulfil their purpose unless they have a specific form. An example to illustrate this: a boy goes with his father, a blacksmith, to the workshop, where his father takes a straight length of iron and bends it. The boy finds this strange: why is his father bending something that is straight? So, the father explains to him that he wants to make a hook, and a hook can only do its job if it is bent like this.

Then He is: '…He who shapes all forms and appearances…' (Al-Musawwir), who shapes this creation as He wills, and makes it into a form which has no precedent, He said about man: '[He] has created you, and formed you in accordance with what you are meant to be, and shaped your nature in just proportions' (al-Infitar: 7), and: 'having put you together in whatever form He willed [you to have]' (al-Infitar: 8). This is omnipotent power: first, the power to bring something into being from out of nothing, and bring something into existence which was not there before; and this is preceded by a will that selects this outcome. And after this, He who shapes all forms and appearances comes and gives it its proper form.

Reflect on the miracle of man's creation and forming, and how this omnipotent power is manifested in there being so many people, yet no two who are identical. We see the engineer, for example, who makes a single product like a cup: he makes a mould for it to act as a prototype and a model for all the others. The Creator, on the other hand, has constant ingenuity in His creations so that every person is unique and never identical to any other.

You know now about how every person has unique fingerprints and a unique voice; and every day they are finding out new ways in which every person is unique and distinguished from everyone else. Were it not for these distinctions, people would resemble one another and their identities would be confused, and there would be so much confusion that human life would not be able to function at all without these distinctions. Otherwise, when a crime was committed, how would we tell the perpetrator from everyone else?

'…His [alone] are the attributes of perfection [al-asma' al-husna] (literally 'the names of perfection')…' We said before that the name 'Allah' is the Name of the Glorified Being, the true Name, whilst all His other names are in fact attributes. 'the Creator', 'the Maker' and 'He who shapes all forms and appearances' are attributes of the True Lord, and because of how well known they are, they have gone from being attributes to being names.

The proof that they are attributes is that Allah calls them husna, which is a feminine plural in Arabic (sifa, meaning attribute, is also feminine), whereas ism (name) is masculine and would yield the plural hissan (feminine). So, they are attributes, but they have become so well known of Him, and applied to Him alone, that they have become names for Him. When you say '…the Maker…', you do not mean anyone but Allah. 'He who shapes all forms and appearances' is also only said of Him the Glorified and Exalted.

So, these words are attributes and since they are only attributes to Allah they have become names for Him. An attribute can become so famous that it sticks to the one it is given to so that the mind thinks only of him when it hears it. When we say: 'The Prince of Poets', you think of none but Ahmad Shawqi. (In English, when we say, 'The Bard', you think only of Shakespeare.)

The meaning of '…of perfection…' is that which indicates the Attributes of Absolute Perfection. The name 'Allah' indicates His Being, all things respond when you begin them in the Name of Allah; this is like when the judge begins a hearing by saying 'in the name of the people' since the people are the ones who have given him this duty.

Likewise, when you want to do anything involving power, wisdom, knowledge, or mercy, you say 'O Allah' because this name combines all these attributes, and all the manifestations of these names.

'…All that is in the heavens and on earth extols His Limitless Glory….' We have already observed that the root verb sabbaha, 'to extol the glory of' is used in the Quran in all its tenses: past, present and Imperative. He says here: '…All that is in the heavens and on earth extols (yusabbih, in the present tense) His Limitless Glory…', and elsewhere He says: 'All that is in the heavens and on earth extolled (sabbaha, in the past tense) Allah's Limitless Glory…' (al-Hadid: 1). And He says: 'Extol (sabbih, the imperative) the Limitless Glory of your Lord's name: [the Glory of] the All-Highest.' (al-A'la: 1)

So, Allah is glorified in all times: '…and there is not a single thing but extols His limitless glory and praise: but you [O men] fail to grasp the manner of their glorifying Him…' (*al-Isra': *44). And indeed, He was already glorified before He created anything to glorify Him.

He says here '…extols His Limitless Glory…' using the third person pronoun which refers to Him because the previous few verses have all begun with 'Allah is He…'. So Allah Who has these attributes: the Sovereign Supreme, the Holy, the One with Whom all salvation rests, the Giver of Faith, the One Who determines what is true and false the Almighty the One Who subdues wrong and restores right, and the One to Whom all greatness belongs – He it is whom all that is in the heavens and the earth glorify.

Sometimes He says, 'All that is in the heavens and all that is on Earth…' (*al-Jumu'a: *1); we said that this is because the heavens and the earth are marvels of Allah's creation in themselves: 'Greater indeed than the creation of man is the creation of the heavens and the earth…' (*Ghafir: *57). So the heavens and the earth were glorifying Allah before man was created to glorify Him.

'…For He Alone is Almighty ('Aziz), Truly Wise!' We said that 'Aziz means something rare and unique or a power which overcomes and cannot be overcome; and this vanquishing power is free of any tyranny or despotism because it is tempered by wisdom.

'…He is the Almighty, the Wise.' (*al-Hashr: *24) He is the Wise Who puts everything in its proper place as its purpose requires. Power alone is blameworthy when there is no wisdom to direct it.

al-Mumtahana

In the Name of God, the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of al-Mumtahana (1):

Note

In our verification and compilation of these volumes of the Commentary of Imam Mohammad Mutawalli Ash-Sha`rawi on the Glorious Quran, we have adhered to the standards of academic honesty. This necessitates that we make the following note:

The sheikh Allah have mercy on him passed away when he was near the end of the chapter of al-Mumtahana, but we resolved to complete his reflections on the rest of the chapters of the Glorious Quran, following the same approach he used throughout his commentary. He combined his scholarly reflections with linguistic, literary, and stylistic remarks that all show the miraculous glory of the Quran.

In our completion of his commentary, we sought assistance of the heritage he left, his audio and video recordings and what he completed of his reflection on the Glorious Quran. We made our best efforts to phrase it in an easily comprehensible style for which the sheikh was known Allah rest his soul. We have not strayed even a little from the approach, style, and tone of his reflections, nor have we spared any effort in consulting numerous commentaries on the Quran of exegetes who followed various approaches. Some of them were based on explaining verses of the Quran guided by other verses of it. Some undertook to explain the Quran based on the Sunnah (Hadiths) of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. We also consulted commentaries which dealt with the Quran from a linguistic approach such as that of Al-Baghawi, or an intellectual approach such as the commentaries of Ar-Razi and Al-Alusi.

(1) This is the 60th chapter in the written order of the Glorious Quran. It is comprised of 13 verses and was revealed in Medina between the chapter of al-Bayyina and the chapter of an-Nasr. Thus, it was the fifth chapter of the Quran to be revealed in Medina.

We have done this work hoping for Allah's goodly reward and seeking to make the treasure left by the sheikh complete and perfect, for generations to come to remember it and benefit from it. This work was accomplished under the supervision, and with the assistance of Sheikh Sami Mutawalli Ash-Sha`rawi.

Allah says:

يَٰٓأَيُّهَا ٱلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُواْ لَا تَتَّخِذُواْ عَدُوِّى وَعَدُوَّكُمۡ أَوۡلِيَآءَ تُلۡقُونَ إِلَيۡهِم بِٱلۡمَوَدَّةِ وَقَدۡ
كَفَرُواْ بِمَا جَآءَكُم مِّنَ ٱلۡحَقِّ يُخۡرِجُونَ ٱلرَّسُولَ وَإِيَّاكُمۡ أَن تُؤۡمِنُواْ بِٱللَّهِ رَبِّكُمۡ إِن
كُنتُمۡ خَرَجۡتُمۡ جِهَٰدٗا فِى سَبِيلِى وَٱبۡتِغَآءَ مَرۡضَاتِىۚ تُسِرُّونَ إِلَيۡهِم بِٱلۡمَوَدَّةِ وَأَنَا۠ أَعۡلَمُ
بِمَآ أَخۡفَيۡتُمۡ وَمَآ أَعۡلَنتُمۡۚ وَمَن يَفۡعَلۡهُ مِنكُمۡ فَقَدۡ ضَلَّ سَوَآءَ ٱلسَّبِيلِ ١

You who believe, do not take My enemies and yours as your allies, showing them friendship when they have rejected the truth you have received, and have driven you and the Messenger out simply because you believe in God, your Lord — not if you truly emigrated in order to strive for My cause and seek My good pleasure. You secretly show them friendship — I know all you conceal and all you reveal — but any of you who do this are straying from the right path[1]
(The Quran, al-Mumtahana: 1)

This is a command from Allah to those who believe in Him as the One God, the Creator, and Provider of all. He calls them to adhere to His guidance which His Messenger has delivered to them. In this guidance lies their deliverance and happiness in this life and the next. In the verse is a warning to the believers not to forsake this guidance or turn away from it, for life cannot be set to rights unless governed by the ordinance of the Creator of life and all that is in it. Whoever strays from His path would not prosper unless he returns to it once again. This is the cure of all our ailments and solution of all our problems, for Allah does not change the condition of a people unless they change themselves.

Our obedience to Allah does not add anything to His dominion, nor does He benefit from our compliance with His commands. Allah has forever existed with no beginning and no end, and to Him have the Attributes of Perfection forever belonged. Allah has sent down His religion and made it obligatory for us only for our own good. Every maker would love to see what he has made prosperous. To Allah belongs the Highest Example. He has made humankind and He wants us to prosper; that is why He revealed to us His Straight Path. Based on that, Allah commands His believing servants: '…do not take My enemies and yours as your allies…' (al-Mumtahana: 1). They are enemies, so do not take them as friends, for they can never be friends.

The word `aduw (enemy) is always singular even when used to modify a dual or a plural noun. It can mean one enemy, two enemies, or many enemies. In the following verses, the word is used in the singular form though its referent is a plural noun: 'Ibrahim (Abraham) said, "Those idols you have worshipped, you and your forefathers, are my `aduw (enemies)…"' (ash-Shu'ara': 76-77).

In the verse we are considering, it is noticeable that Allah underlines the disbelievers' enmity towards Him first; He says: '…My enemies…' (al-Mumtahana: 1), then He says, referring to the believers: '…and yours…' (al-Mumtahana: 1). Anyone who is an enemy to Allah must therefore be an enemy to the believers. If you- O believers- make friends or allies out of Allah's enemies, they will work against you, for they reject Allah's guidance, and therefore no good can come out of their friendship. Allah explains to us this meaning in another verse: 'The believers should not make the disbelievers their allies rather than other believers– anyone who does such a thing will isolate himself completely from Allah– except when you need to protect yourselves from them…' (Al-'Imran: 28). The exception in the aforesaid verse means the ruling is not rigid, for it might sometimes be the case that enemies are stronger than the believers, so the believers may pretend to ally with them until they prepare enough power to confront them.(1) This is a specific case, but what we should beware of is taking Allah's enemies truly as allies, and Allah knows fully our intentions; He concludes the aforesaid verse by saying: '…Allah warns you to beware of Him: the Final Return is to Allah.' (Al-'Imran: 28)

Critical as the matter is, Allah explains much about it in several verses of the Quran; He says, 'You who believe, do not take for your intimates such outsiders as spare no effort to ruin you…' (Al-'Imran: 118). Allah wants the believers to prosper, but those outsiders want to destroy the believers' power and make them suffer. The verse goes on to say: '…their hatred is evident from their mouths, but what their hearts conceal is far worse…' (Al-'Imran: 118). Allah has exposed their intentions by saying: 'This is how it is: here you are, you love them, but they do not love you; you believe in all the Scriptures and when they meet you, they say, "We believe", but when they are alone, they bite their fingertips in rage at you…' (Al-'Imran: 119). After this has been made clear, no one has any excuse for taking them as friends and allies.

Allah says in another verse: 'You who believe, do not take as allies those who ridicule your religion and make fun of it– whether people who were given the Scripture before you, or disbelievers…' (al-Ma'ida: 57). Caution against hypocrites is such a crucial issue that a significant portion of the Quran is devoted to dealing with it so that the believers would not fall into their trap.

The translation of the verse says: '…showing them friendship…' (al-Mumtahana: 1), yet the original Arabic text of the verse literally translates: '…offering affection to them…'. This includes passing on to them the secrets of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in order to seek their affection. This implies that letting out secrets is a sign of affection.

(1) This principle is only permissible in cases of extreme necessity where a Muslim fears great harm, like killing, so he may resort to such pretence to protect himself. This is quite different from the hypocrisy employed by Shi'ites who claim to be Muslims. It appeared in the fourth century A.H., and it is a form of deception they always practice to conceal their hatred of Islam.

Allah says afterwards: '…when they have rejected the truth you have received…' (al-Mumtahana: 1). That is, how can you offer them your friendship, whereas they disbelieve in the truth which Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him received from Allah. '…And have driven you and the Messenger out simply because you believe in Allah, you Lord…' (al-Mumtahana: 1). So, they rejected the Message and expelled you, believers, and the Messenger peace and blessings be upon him solely because of your belief in Allah; faith alone is the reason for your expulsion, which is similar to what Allah says in another verse: '…How can you kill a man just for saying, "My Lord is Allah?"…' (Ghafir: 28)

The disbelievers of Mecca could not bear the presence of the believers among them, for their presence would change the order of society and take their power. They knew it is a religion that makes masters and slaves all equal in their rights and dignity as human beings.

Allah goes on to address the believers: '…not if you truly emigrated in order to strive for My cause and seek My good pleasure…' (al-Mumtahana: 1). If this has been truly the case, if your struggle has been truly for My cause, then do not take My enemies as friends. It is a message to the believers: Complete the journey of faith; just as you have been sincere in your immigration for My cause, be sincere to the end and do not take My enemies as friends.

'…You secretly show them friendship…' (al-Mumtahana: 1). That refers to harbouring secret affection for them or secretly passing on to them news about The Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him. '…I know all you conceal and all you reveal…' (al-Mumtahana: 1). Beware of Him Whom no secret of yours can elude.

'…But any of you who do this…' (al-Mumtahana: 1); that is, who take Allah's enemies as allies '…are straying from the right path' (al-Mumtahana: 1). Allying the disbelievers is deviation from the way of Allah. The Arabic word used in the original text of the verse to mean 'the right path' is sawa` which means 'middle'; namely, the middle of the path. The roads of the Arab environment then were either desert tracks or mountain passes. Therefore, Arabs always preferred to travel in the middle of the road so as not to be harmed by avalanches of sand or rocks falling from mountainsides.

Those who did not go down the middle of the road would get lost, because they followed a way which could not lead them to a good end. Thus, the middle of a path was ‘the right path’, for it was the safest part of it and the one most likely to lead one to the destination

إِن يَثۡقَفُوكُمۡ يَكُونُواْ لَكُمۡ أَعۡدَآءٗ وَيَبۡسُطُوٓاْ إِلَيۡكُمۡ أَيۡدِيَهُمۡ
وَأَلۡسِنَتَهُم بِٱلسُّوٓءِ وَوَدُّواْ لَوۡ تَكۡفُرُونَ ٢

If they gain the upper hand over you, they will revert to being your enemies and stretch out their hands and tongues to harm you; it is their dearest wish that you may renounce your faith [2] (The Quran, al-Mumtahana: 2)

Their enmity towards the believers is permanent: if they get any chance, they will exercise that enmity in the meanest way and would use all means to harm the believers.

The expression ‘stretch out one’s hand’ is usually associated with the positive connotation of offering good to others. However, as for the disbelievers, nothing will come your way from them but evil and harm, sometimes with words and other times with deeds. This is a natural result of the hatred and rancour they feel against faith and its adherents.

Moreover, ‘…it is their dearest wish that you may renounce your faith’ (al-Mumtahana: 2). What they conceal is no less rancorous than what they revealed. Much as they harm you openly, they have much bitterness against you in their hearts that they would love you to be disbelievers like them so that you would have no power or advantage over them and they would remain in control

لَن تَنفَعَكُمۡ أَرۡحَامُكُمۡ وَلَآ أَوۡلَٰدُكُمۡۚ يَوۡمَ ٱلۡقِيَٰمَةِ يَفۡصِلُ بَيۡنَكُمۡۚ وَٱللَّهُ بِمَا تَعۡمَلُونَ بَصِيرٞ ٣

Neither your kinsfolk nor your children will be any use to you on the Day of Resurrection: He will separate you out. God sees everything you do [3] (The Quran, al-Mumtahana: 3)

It is of no use to ally with Allah’s enemies for fear of your families, for they will avail you nothing before Allah on the Day of Resurrection: ‘On a

Day when everyone will [want to] flee from his brother, and from his mother and father, and from his spouse and his children: on that Day, to every one of them will his own state be of sufficient concern' ('Abasa: 34-37). Allah also says: '…stand in awe of the Day on which no parent will be of any avail to his child, nor a child will in the least avail his parent…' (Luqman: 33). Do not befriend of Allah's enemies for anyone's sake, for they will not be able to protect you from His punishment. On the Day of Judgement 'He will separate you out' (al-Mumtahana: 3). Some will go to paradise, and some to hell.

It has been narrated that these verses were revealed on occasion of a misdeed Hatib ibn Abu Balta` unintentionally committed. He was a believer and one of those who immigrated to Medina. When he learned that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was preparing to conquer Mecca, he sent a woman with a letter to Mecca, in which he wrote, 'From Hatib ibn Abu Balta` to Quraysh: Muhammad intends to conquer you, so be on your guard.'

Allah revealed this to His Messenger, so he called for `Ali, `Ammar, `Umar, Talha, and Az-Zubayr, who were all skilled knights then. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him told them, 'Seek out a woman travelling. You will find her at Rawdat Khakh, carrying a letter to Quraysh. Bring that letter to me.' When they caught up with her, they asked her about the letter and she denied having it, so they searched her and her belongings and found nothing, and wanted to leave. Still, `Ali said, 'Indeed we have not lied! The Messenger of Allah has not lied! And the Revelation sent by Allah has not lied to the Messenger of Allah!' Then, he drew his sword and said, 'Show me the letter or I will kill you.' Seeing he was serious and decisive, she brought the letter out of her hair, and they returned with it to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him.

The Messenger of Allah sent for Hatib and asked him why he had done that. He said, 'O Messenger of Allah, I am a man of no great family or clan. I have a family in Mecca and I wanted to win some influence with Quraysh so they would protect my family. I knew that would not harm you in any way, for Allah has guaranteed to give you victory.' Prophet Muhammad replied, 'You have spoken the truth.' `Umar said, 'No, Messenger of Allah! Let me strike his neck!' Prophet Muhammad said, 'No, `Umar. You do not know, but it may be that Allah has looked upon the people of Badr and said, "Do as you will, for I have forgiven you."' Hatib was one of the believers who fought along with Prophet Muhammad at the Battle of Badr. (1)

So, family ties and relations should never cause you to act at variance with Allah's ordinance, for you do not know where good lies. Islam is the highest bond over which no other ties should prevail. It even comes before blood ties.

The history of Islam abides in examples that prove this fundamental truth about the Islamic faith. `Ubaidullah ibn 'Abdullah ibn Ubay ibn Salul asked Prophet Muhammad's permission to kill his own father- who was the leader of the hypocrites- rather than have any other Muslim kill him. The son of Abu Bakr As-Siddiq said to his father, 'I saw you at the Battle of Badr, but I avoided you'; that is, he could have killed him, but left him out of mercy. Abu Bakr Allah be pleased with him replied to his son, 'As for me, had I seen you then, I would have killed you!'(2) That was quite natural and plausible. The son of Abu Bakr had to choose between his father and his false religious beliefs, so he chose his father. As for Abu Bakr, he had to choose between his Lord, the True God, and one of his sons. A true believer would not prefer any to his Creator and Lord. The companion Mus`ab ibn `Umayr killed his own brother, `Ubaid ibn `Umayr, in a battle. His other brother was taken captive, so he said to Abu Al-Yusr, his captor, 'Bind your captive well, for his mother is rich, and will pay a great ransom for him.' His brother looked at him and said, 'Is this the advice you give for your brother, O Mus`ab?!' He replied, 'He (Abu Al-Yusr) is my brother, not you!' So the tie of Islam was so firm that it prevailed over every other tie and was the foundation upon which the early Muslims based their actions.

Allah concludes the verse by saying: '…Allah sees everything you do' (al-Mumtahana: 3). Allah watches over you, so beware of that. His Eye never blinks or sleeps. Know that He sees you and witnesses all your deeds.

It was also cited by Abu Dawud in his Sunnan (2652), At-Tirmidhi (2305) and Ahmad in his Musnad (600) on the authority of `Ali ibn Abu Taleb Allah be pleased with him as well as Az-Zubayr and Al-Miqdad.*

However cautiously you try to hide your alliance with His enemies, and whatever ruses you employ, He sees you.

Allah says in the following verse:

قَدْ كَانَتْ لَكُمْ أُسْوَةٌ حَسَنَةٌ فِيٓ إِبْرَٰهِيمَ وَٱلَّذِينَ مَعَهُۥٓ إِذْ قَالُوا۟ لِقَوْمِهِمْ إِنَّا بُرَءَٰٓؤُا۟ مِنكُمْ
وَمِمَّا تَعْبُدُونَ مِن دُونِ ٱللَّهِ كَفَرْنَا بِكُمْ وَبَدَا بَيْنَنَا وَبَيْنَكُمُ ٱلْعَدَٰوَةُ وَٱلْبَغْضَآءُ أَبَدًا حَتَّىٰ
تُؤْمِنُوا۟ بِٱللَّهِ وَحْدَهُۥٓ إِلَّا قَوْلَ إِبْرَٰهِيمَ لِأَبِيهِ لَأَسْتَغْفِرَنَّ لَكَ وَمَآ أَمْلِكُ لَكَ مِنَ ٱللَّهِ مِن
شَىْءٍ ۖ رَّبَّنَا عَلَيْكَ تَوَكَّلْنَا وَإِلَيْكَ أَنَبْنَا وَإِلَيْكَ ٱلْمَصِيرُ ﴿٤﴾

You have a good example in Abraham and his companions, when they said to their people, ‘We disown you and what you worship besides God! We renounce you! Until you believe in God alone, the enmity and hatred that has arisen between us will endure!’ — except when Abraham said to his father, ‘I will pray for forgiveness for you though I cannot protect you from God’ — [they prayed] [4]
(The Quran, al-Mumtahana: 4)

After warning us against taking Allah’s enemies as allies, Allah emphasizes this fundamental aspect about faith by offering an example. He tells us about Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham), the Father of Prophets, for he had a relevant experience during the course of his call to his father and his people: ‘Tell them the story of Ibrahim (Abraham), when he asked his father and his people, “What do you worship?” They said, “We worship idols, and are constantly in attendance on them.” He asked, “Do they hear you when you call? Do they help or harm you?” They replied, “No, but this is what we saw our fathers doing.” Ibrahim (Abraham) said, “Those idols you have worshipped, you and your forefathers, are my enemies; not so the Lord of the Worlds”’ (ash-Shu'ara': 69-77). So, take your father Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him as a role model in this matter. Take him as an example of righteous conduct which you can emulate. He renounced idolatry and idolaters, even though they included his father, i.e. his uncle who had raised him.

After renouncing them and condemning the idolatry they held fast to, Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him and those who believe with him clarified the nature of the relationship between them and the idolaters which was pure enmity: '…the enmity and hatred that has arisen between us will endure…' (al-Mumtahana: 4). There cannot be friendship or alliance, for faith and disbelief can never be united and their adherents must forever be opponents. That enmity and hatred would persist '…until you believe in Allah alone…' (al-Mumtahana: 4). So, the reason for that enmity was that they associated partners with Allah. Had they believed in Him alone, that enmity would have given way to affection and unity

However, there was one exception of that attitude: '…except when Ibrahim (Abraham) said to his father, "I will pray for forgiveness for you..."' (al-Mumtahana: 4). This was an exception; that is: you have a good example in Ibrahim (Abraham) except that he promised to implore Allah's Forgiveness for his uncle, which meant that his heart was still attached to him.

Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham) did not mean to show friendship or affection to an enemy of Allah. In the Quran, there is mention of the discourse that took place between Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him and his uncle. Allah says, 'Ibrahim (Abraham) asked forgiveness for his father because he had made a promise to him, but once he realized that his father was an enemy of Allah, he washed his hands of him. Ibrahim (Abraham) was tender-hearted and forbearing' (at-Tawba: 114). Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham) kept on praying that his uncle be forgiven, as he had promised him until it was made clear to him that he was an enemy of Allah, so he left him and renounced him.

Allah mentions Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham) as a good example for all mankind. He was the Father of Prophets and Allah said about him: 'Verily, Ibrahim (Abraham) was an ummah…' (an-Nahl: 120). The word ummah means nation. Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him was like an entire nation in the sense that in him were all virtues; combined virtues that could only be found in a nation, not a single person. Allah has distributed virtues among His creatures so that each one of us would need the virtues of his fellow humans and people would thus be connected to one another. What was special about Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him was that he possessed all virtues. Therefore, his Lord says about him: 'And of Ibrahim (Abraham), who fulfilled his duty' (an-Najm: 37), and: 'When Ibrahim's (Abraham's) Lord tested him with certain commandments, which he fulfilled…' (al-Baqara: 124).

Back to the verse we are reflecting on, Allah says, '…though I cannot protect you from Allah…' (al-Mumtahana: 4) means I cannot ward off from you any of Allah's punishment; all I can do is pray that you be forgiven. This was Ibrahim's (Abraham's) attitude.

Allah concludes the verse by the supplication: '…[They prayed] 'Lord, we have put our trust in You; we turn to You; You are our final destination.'' (al-Mumtahana: 4) Trusting Allah is an act of worship performed by the heart, not by the body: the body acts, and the heart trusts. Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him and those who believed with him thus prayed to Allah: we have taken the means of deliverance and put our trust in you that you will save us. '…We turn to You…' (al-Mumtahana: 4). This means: We have turned to You in repentance and awakened from what we were doing before. Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham) ceased to pray and supplicate that his uncle be forgiven when he realized he was Allah's enemy. They acknowledged: '…You are our final destination.' (al-Mumtahana: 4) The journey's end is the Hereafter, the place to which we will inevitably all return to meet Allah and receive our recompense.

Allah then says:

رَبَّنَا لَا تَجْعَلْنَا فِتْنَةً لِّلَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا۟ وَٱغْفِرْ لَنَا رَبَّنَآ ۖ إِنَّكَ أَنتَ ٱلْعَزِيزُ ٱلْحَكِيمُ ﴿٥﴾

Lord, do not expose us to mistreatment [at the hands of] the disbelievers. Forgive us, Lord, for You are the Almighty, the All Wise' [5] (The Quran, al-Mumtahana: 5)

This prayer was said by the believers who followed Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham). How can the believer be a 'trial' for the disbelievers? This can be in two cases. One of them is when the believers are defeated in battle by the disbelievers. Hence, the disbelievers would say: Were they believers, they would not have been defeated. Allah would have supported them! Had they a Lord to defend them, they would not have been defeated! That would certainly dissuade the disbelievers from embracing faith, for they see the condition of the believers and their defeat, and that is one case where the believers can be a fitna (trial) to the disbelievers.

The other case when the believers may be a fitna (trial or test) to the disbelievers is when they stop adhering to Allah's guidance, commit sins and spread corruption, so they cause the disbelievers to be averse to Islam and disinclined to embrace it. Unfortunately, such is the case with Muslims now; people are frightened away from Allah's religion instead of being attracted to it. As one of the renowned scholars of Islam said, the later generations of Muslims cannot be reformed except by that which reformed the earlier generations.(1) The believers bear responsibility for this– for how people are turned away from Allah's religion. We need to pray now as did the followers of Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham): 'Our Lord! Do not make us a trial for those who disbelieve...' (al-Mumtahana: 5). Make us among those who obey Your commands in a way that attracts other people to Your religion, and do not make us an excuse for them to reject Your religion, O Allah.

When we disobey Allah, we do not only subject ourselves to His punishment, but we may also repel others from His Straight Path.

Allah says in the following verse:

لَقَدۡ كَانَ لَكُمۡ فِيهِمۡ أُسۡوَةٌ حَسَنَةٞ لِّمَن كَانَ يَرۡجُواْ ٱللَّهَ وَٱلۡيَوۡمَ
ٱلۡأٓخِرَۚ وَمَن يَتَوَلَّ فَإِنَّ ٱللَّهَ هُوَ ٱلۡغَنِيُّ ٱلۡحَمِيدُ ٦

Truly, they are a good example for you [believers] to follow, a good example for those who fear God and the Last Day. If anyone turns away, [remember] God is Self-Sufficing and worthy of all praise [6] (The Quran, al-Mumtahana: 6)

The example of Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him is one to follow for those are mindful of Allah. He never compromised to offer affection or friendship to the enemies of Allah, even if they were of his family. Such is an example to follow for those who hope to be worthy of receiving Allah's reward, who aspire to attain righteousness which leads to the best reward of winning Allah's good pleasure as well as His reward in the Hereafter.

(1) This was said by Imam Malik Allah rest his soul in Sharh Al-`Aqida Al-Tahawiyya (1/9). What reformed the earliest of the Muslim nation was following Allah's Book and the Sunnah of His Messenger.

Allah says: '…who fear Allah and the Last Day…' (al-Mumtahana: 6). That refers to those who fear His requital and hope for His reward. Finally, '…If anyone turns away…' (al-Mumtahana: 6) from taking them as example and following the way of Allah, then '…[Remember] Allah is Self-Sufficient and the Praiseworthy.' (al-Mumtahana: 6)

Allah then says:

عَسَى ٱللَّهُ أَن يَجۡعَلَ بَيۡنَكُمۡ وَبَيۡنَ ٱلَّذِينَ عَادَيۡتُم مِّنۡهُم مَّوَدَّةٗۚ
وَٱللَّهُ قَدِيرٞۚ وَٱللَّهُ غَفُورٞ رَّحِيمٞ ٧

God may still bring about affection between you and your present enemies – God is all powerful, God is most forgiving and merciful [7] (The Quran, al-Mumtahana: 7)

The Arabic word `asa (may still) denotes hope that something is possible or likely to happen. You may tell someone, 'Come to me tomorrow and `asa (I may) help you out with that'. This would give him hope of fruition, yet you may well be prevented from helping him by something out of your hand. Such is a promise giving hope, yet it is expressed by someone who does not have control over all the means and circumstances involved in the matter, so he cannot ensure success. Now, when hope is expressed by Allah, the One Who controls everything, no one, and nothing can prevent it or get in its way.

After forbidding them from showing affection or friendship to the disbelievers, Allah Almighty soothes His believing servants. He knew some of the believers had friends and relations among the disbelievers, and that their thoughts were with their former dear ones who still rejected faith. Allah meant to reassure them: do not grieve because you must be estranged from them, for it may be that Allah would turn that enmity into affection. That was truly the case, for many of those disbelievers embraced faith later and served the religion of Allah.

Some of them were sworn enemies of Islam and leaders of disbelief. They eventually embraced Islam and proved to be firm and true believers. Some of them became leaders of Muslims, such as ‘Amr, Khalid, and `Ikrima. Glory be to Allah! `Ikrima was one of the most fervent opponents of Islam, who stood alone in the trench on the day of the Conquest of Mecca to repel the Muslim army! After all, Allah guided him to faith, and then he struggled to make up for what he had done in his pagan ignorance. In the Battle of Yarmuk, swords and spears cut into his body and filled him with wounds. Before he breathed his last, he turned to Khalid ibn Al-Walid Allah be pleased with him and said, ‘O Khalid, is this a death that pleases Allah and His Messenger?’ Allah be pleased with `Ikrima!

After making that reassurance, Allah further alleviates the concerns of the believers by reminding them of this fundamental truth: ‘…Allah is All-Powerful…’ (al-Mumtahana: 7). Nothing is beyond the Power of Allah. Nothing is outside the realms of submission to Him. He has the Power to do anything, and He is the Almighty. Everything is under His control including the hearts of people. He is the One Who can draw the hearts and minds of these people to you and create affection between you and them, O believers, after you have been enemies.

This is similar to the meaning expressed in the following verse: ‘…And remember the blessings which Allah has bestowed upon you: how, when you were enemies, He brought your hearts together, so that through His blessing you became brethren…’ (Al-‘Imran: 103).

Allah concludes the verse by saying: ‘…Allah is Most Forgiving and Merciful’ (al-Mumtahana: 7). He is their Lord and can forgive them what they did before they were Muslims. He can bestow His favours and blessings on them and on you too, for Allah’s Bounty is immense.

Allah then makes further clarification of the ruling governing the relationship between the believers and the disbelievers:

لَّا يَنْهَىٰكُمُ ٱللَّهُ عَنِ ٱلَّذِينَ لَمْ يُقَٰتِلُوكُمْ فِى ٱلدِّينِ وَلَمْ يُخْرِجُوكُم مِّن دِيَٰرِكُمْ
أَن تَبَرُّوهُمْ وَتُقْسِطُوٓا۟ إِلَيْهِمْ ۚ إِنَّ ٱللَّهَ يُحِبُّ ٱلْمُقْسِطِينَ ﴿٨﴾

And He does not forbid you to deal kindly and justly with anyone who has not fought you for your faith or driven you out of your homes: God loves the just [8]
(The Quran, al-Mumtahana: 8)

It is narrated that the circumstance behind the revelation of this verse was that a group of Muslims had wondered if they could just do good to their families who did not embrace Islam, so Allah revealed the aforesaid verse.

Allah does not forbid the believers from being kind and good to the disbelievers on condition that those disbelievers do not fight them or drive them out of their homes. So long as they do not harm you in any way, you, O believers, are allowed to be kind to them. Allah refers to this meaning in the following verse: ‘If they [your parents] strive to make you associate with Me anything about which you have no knowledge [scriptural proof], then do not obey them. Yet keep their company in this life according to what is right… (Luqman: 15).

We have explained before that the verse we are considering does not contradict Allah’s words: ‘[Prophet], you will not find people who truly believe in Allah and the Last Day giving their loyalty to those who oppose Allah and His Messenger, even though they may be their fathers, sons, brothers or other relations…’ (al-Mujadala: 22). We are forbidden from inclining to the disbelievers with our hearts or showing loyalty or alliance to them. This is different from doing good to them or showing them kindness, provided that they do not fight us on the basis of faith. Doing a good act to someone does not mean you love him, but one may do the good even to someone he dislikes. The verse we are considering says: ‘…to deal kindly…’ (al-Mumtahana: 8). This means: if you are asked to, then be kind to them, but do not be the one to initiate it (not to seem like seeking their affection or alliance).

Not only ‘kindly’ but also ‘…tuqsitu (to deal justly)…’ (al-Mumtahana: 8). So we are asked to deal with them based on justice. The Arabic root qist has derivatives that carry a meaning and its opposite as well. The verb qasata means to wrong or transgress. When the prefix ‘a’ is added, the word becomes aqsata which means to remove injustice, for the prefix denotes ‘remove’ or ‘undo’. Allah says: ‘But al-qasitun (those who go wrong) will be fuel for Hellfire’ (al-Jinn: 15). In this verse, the word denotes wrongdoing. Allah also says, ‘…Allah loves al-muqsitun (those who act equitably)’ (al-Hujurat: 9). Here the word denotes ‘removing injustice’.

Another connotation of tuqsitu (translated in the verse as ‘to deal justly’) is to offer assistance by aqsat which literally means ‘instalments’. This is like offering them regular monthly shares of your wealth, for example. So, the word denotes ‘justice’ and can also mean sparing them the humiliation of begging by offering them what satisfies their needs. Allah says in another verse: ‘and do not chide the one who asks for help’ (ad-Duha: 10). Being unkind to the needy would drive them to object to what Allah has decreed, ‘Why has He made me poor and made them wealthy?!’ This meaning is further explained in the verse: ‘A kind word and forgiveness is better than a charitable deed followed by hurtful [words]…’ (al-Baqara: 263). Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘You cannot share your wealth with everyone, so share with them instead your good character.’(1) You cannot help everyone with money, but it is easier to help them with a kind word and a positive attitude. That is why Allah says here: ‘…to deal kindly and justly…’ (al-Mumtahana: 8). Kindness relieves them of their need, and justice is to spare them the humiliation of begging by helping them even before they ask for help. It has been narrated that once a beggar knocked on a man’s door. The man opened it and gave the beggar what he wanted. The man then went back into his home, crying. His wife asked him, surprised, ‘Why are you crying while you have given him what he needed?!’ He replied, ‘I cry because I left him so long that he needed to beg.’ People who love goodness should be aware of the condition of those around them, whether family relations, neighbours, or acquaintances. They should reach out to those who are in need but are too dignified to beg or even let anyone know that they need help. Go to them and spare them the shame of having to ask others for help. Behind closed doors, poverty hides in the guise of dignity, so seek them out and help them without hurting them.

(1) Cited by Al-Bazzar in his Musnad (8544, 9319, 9651), Abu Ya`la Al-Mawseli in his Musnad (6550) and Ibn Abu Shayba (25842) on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him.

It has been narrated that a group of Arabs were sitting at the Ka`ba discussing who the most generous of all the Arabs was. They had varied views. One said it was Sa`d ibn `Ubada, another chose Abdullah ibn Ja`far, and still another said `Arraba Al-Awsi was the most generous of all. Someone suggested, ‘To find out who the most generous of them is, let us send to each of them a man who will pretend to be a traveller in need, and see what each of them will give him.

The first man went to Abdullah ibn Ja`far Allah be pleased with him and said, ‘O son of the daughter of the Messenger of Allah, I am a lone traveller in need.’ ‘Abdullah was setting out for hunting at that moment, just about to mount his horse when he heard this. He took his foot out of the stirrup and said to the petitioner, ‘Come and put your foot in the stirrup.’ Besides the horse, he gave him a bag containing four thousand dirhams and four garments, in addition to something even more valuable: the sword of `Ali ibn Abu Taleb. 'Abdullah returned home walking.

The second man went to Sa`d ibn `Ubada. He knocked the door of his house and a slave-girl came out and asked what he wanted. He said he wanted to see Ibn `Ubada. She asked him why. ‘I am a lone traveller and have lost all my means.’ She replied, ‘He is sleeping, and I can see to your need without having to wake him. All he possesses is a bag containing seven hundred dinars. Take it, and go to the camel market and get yourself a mount and a servant, and go on your way.’ When Sa`d woke up, the slave-girl told him what had happened. He was pleased with her that he set her free from slavery.

As for the third man, he went to `Arraba Al-Awsi, of whom a poet (1) once said:

If a banner of honour were ever raised,
`Arraba would bear it in his right hand.

`Arraba had aged by then and had lost his eyesight. He had nothing left of his wealth as well. The man found him leaning on two slaves who were taking him to the mosque. He said to him, ‘O `Arraba, I am a lonely wayfarer and have nothing to support myself.' He replied, 'Woe be to `Arraba! The claims of people have left him nothing at all!' He shook himself off the two slaves and said, 'Take these two slaves for your own.' The man said, 'How can I deprive you of your only means of assistance?' `Arraba said, 'If you do not take them, I will set them free.'

---

(1) Ash-Shammakh Adh-Dhibyani (d. 22 AH)

The three men went back to their assembly, and each of them told his tale. They agreed that `Arraba was the most generous of all, for he gave the only thing he had, despite his desperate need for it. (1)

If a generous person has nothing at all to give, he can at least give a kind word, which is counted as charity too. A poet (2) said:

If you cannot give money or a horse,
Then give happiness with kind words.

Allah concludes the verse by saying: '…Allah loves al-muqsitun' (al-Mumtahana: 8). As we have said earlier in our commentary on this word, it has several meanings, one of which is to give shares of your wealth to those in need. The word qist means a 'share'. They give regularly without being asked to. About them Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Al-muqsitun shall be upon pulpits of light on the right side of the Throne (on the Day of Judgement): they are those who are just in their judgements, with their families and whatever is entrusted to them.'(3)

إِنَّمَا يَنْهَىٰكُمُ ٱللَّهُ عَنِ ٱلَّذِينَ قَٰتَلُوكُمْ فِى ٱلدِّينِ وَأَخْرَجُوكُم مِّن دِيَٰرِكُمْ وَظَٰهَرُوا۟
عَلَىٰٓ إِخْرَاجِكُمْ أَن تَوَلَّوْهُمْ ۚ وَمَن يَتَوَلَّهُمْ فَأُو۟لَٰٓئِكَ هُمُ ٱلظَّٰلِمُونَ ﴿٩﴾

But God forbids you to take as allies those who have fought against you for your faith, driven you out of your homes, and helped others to drive you out: any of you who take them as allies will truly be wrongdoers [9] (The Quran, al-Mumtahana: 9)

After speaking about those disbelievers to whom the believers may show kindness, the discourse now turns to the other category of disbelievers, those to whom the believers are forbidden from showing any kindness. As the verse tells, the believers are forbidden to take as allies those who fight against you on account of your religion, who drive you out of your homes or aid others in driving you out. Those of the believers who show affection of offer friendship to these disbelievers are wrongdoers, for they wrong themselves by disobeying Allah's Command, and they wrong the believers by taking their enemies as allies.

(2) That was the Shi`ite, Mohammad Kashif Al-Ghita` (1877-1954 CE)

(3) It was cited by Al-Bazzar (2340) on the authority of 'Abdullah ibn 'Amr ibn Al-`As.

Allah says in the following verse:

يَٰٓأَيُّهَا ٱلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُوٓاْ إِذَا جَآءَكُمُ ٱلْمُؤْمِنَٰتُ مُهَٰجِرَٰتٍ فَٱمْتَحِنُوهُنَّ ٱللَّهُ أَعْلَمُ بِإِيمَٰنِهِنَّ فَإِنْ
عَلِمْتُمُوهُنَّ مُؤْمِنَٰتٍ فَلَا تَرْجِعُوهُنَّ إِلَى ٱلْكُفَّارِ لَا هُنَّ حِلٌّ لَّهُمْ وَلَا هُمْ يَحِلُّونَ لَهُنَّ وَءَاتُوهُم مَّآ
أَنفَقُواْ وَلَا جُنَاحَ عَلَيْكُمْ أَن تَنكِحُوهُنَّ إِذَآ ءَاتَيْتُمُوهُنَّ أُجُورَهُنَّ وَلَا تُمْسِكُواْ بِعِصَمِ ٱلْكَوَافِرِ
وَسْـَٔلُواْ مَآ أَنفَقْتُمْ وَلْيَسْـَٔلُواْ مَآ أَنفَقُواْ ذَٰلِكُمْ حُكْمُ ٱللَّهِ يَحْكُمُ بَيْنَكُمْ وَٱللَّهُ عَلِيمٌ حَكِيمٌ ﴿١٠﴾

You who believe, test the believing women when they come to you as emigrants – God knows best about their faith – and if you are sure of their belief, do not send them back to the disbelievers: they are not lawful wives for them, nor are the disbelievers their lawful husbands. Give the disbelievers whatever bride-gifts they have paid – if you choose to marry them, there is no blame on you once you have paid their bride-gifts – and do not yourselves hold on to marriage ties with disbelieving women. Ask for repayment of the bride-gifts you have paid, and let the disbelievers do the same. This is God's judgement: He judges between you, God is all knowing and wise [10] (The Quran, al-Mumtahana: 10)

One of the terms of the Truce of Hudaybiyya was that if anyone left Quraysh and went to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him as a believer, he should return them to Quraysh, but if any Muslim apostatised and went to Quraysh, Quraysh would not have to return them to Prophet Muhammad. The Messenger of Allah accepted this term for a reason. It was an acknowledgement that the Muslim nation was starting to gain enough regional weight to the extent of concluding treaties that involved give-and-take with the most dominant power in the region then; namely, Quraysh. When Islam became strong enough to confront Quraysh directly, this rule was abolished. The Muslim power was rising high enough to reject any such compromises.

The name of this chapter of the Quran we are considering, al-Mumtahana, means 'Women Tested'. Women came as Muslim emigrants to Medina. They could not be sent back to the disbelievers, but Allah commanded His Prophet to test their faith, and if they proved to be believing women, Muslims were forbidden from returning them to the disbelievers. They were asked if they testified that there is no deity worthy of worship but Allah and Muhammad is the Messenger of Allah. They were asked to swear that they left their homes solely because of their love for Islam and the Messenger of Islam, and not because they hated their husbands there or desired certain husbands in Medina. Once that was found to be the case, the believer was forbidden to return them to the disbelievers.(1)

Allah says, '…Allah knows best about their faith…' (al-Mumtahana: 10). That means the believers were not responsible for what those women truly harboured in their hearts. They only had to test their faith in the above manner, but only Allah knew their inner intentions. As long as a woman said she was a believer, she was treated as one, and she could by no means be sent back to a disbelieving husband, because a believing woman is not a lawful wife for a disbeliever, nor is he lawful for her as a husband.

It is particularly worthy of notice and admiration that the Wise Lawgiver does not ignore the financial rights of the two spouses, even the disbelieving party. Islam deprives a disbelieving man from his wife because she is a Muslim and is no longer lawful for him, yet it ordains that his money must be paid back to him. This shows the exemplary justice of Islam. Husbands would devote money and possessions to their wives, so when a man loses his wife because her new religion, Islam, she must return what he has devoted to her of his money so the husbands would not be harmed by their wives' conversion to Islam. I believe such justice must move the hearts of whoever experiences it in some way. It is a proof that Islam is the true and just religion that is keen on doing wrong to no one, even those who reject it.

(1) Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him tested immigrant women by asking, 'Swear by Allah that you did not leave out of hatred for your husband and nor out of desire to move from one land for another. Swear by Allah that you did not leave in order to seek worldly things and you left only out of love for Allah and His Messenger.' That is cited by At-Tabarani in his Tafsir, on the authority of Ibn `Abbas. This proves that Islam gives women the freedom of worship, and does not simply consider her to be a follower of whatever religion her husband or father follows. Islam does not compel a woman to do what is against her will and choice whether in the community of Muslims or the disbelievers.

Allah then says, '…if you choose to marry them, there is no blame on you once you have paid their bride-gifts…' (al-Mumtahana: 10). Those women who embraced Islam did not turn into 'public property' of Muslim men. Any of those believing woman was lawful only to one man whom she gave her consent to marry. Furthermore, whoever proposes to have her as a wife, must give her the rights Islamic Law prescribes. That ruling was first to preserve the dignity and rights of Muslim women. Besides, it was to protect the hearts of Muslim men from thinking of invading any people, seeking only to claim their women so long as there was no ruling in Islam to regulate the destiny those women were to meet when they become part of the Muslim community.

On the other hand, Allah commands Muslim men: '…and do not yourselves hold on to marriage ties with kawafir…' (al-Mumtahana: 10). The word kawafir (singular: kafira) means women who apostatise from Islam. A Muslim husband of such a woman was not allowed to retain her as his wife and had to divorce her so she would return to the disbelievers in Mecca. He too had the right to ask for a return of the money he had devoted to his wife to marry her.

Just as disbelieving husbands were given the right to ask for what they had paid in relation to their marriage with their formerly disbelieving wives, Muslim men also had the right to ask for what they had paid to their apostate wives: '…Ask for repayment of the bride-gifts you have paid, and let the disbelievers do the same…' (al-Mumtahana: 10). This is the justice of Islam. Rights must be preserved for all people, even the disbelievers.

We have mentioned before the story of the Jew(1) whom Muslims unjustly accused of theft, but Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him removed that injustice. It was on that occasion that these verses were revealed: ‘We have sent down the Scripture to you [Prophet] with the truth so that you can judge between people in accordance with what Allah has shown you. Do not be an advocate for those who betray trust. Ask Allah for forgiveness: He is Most Forgiving and Merciful. Do not argue for those who betray their own souls: Allah does not love anyone given to treachery and sin.’ (an-Nisa’: 105-107)

(1) That was Zayd ibn As-Samin. The story is cited in Al-Kashf Wa Al-Bayan by An-Naysaburi.

After making clear those rulings, Allah says, ‘…This is Allah’s judgement: He judges between you…’ (al-Mumtahana: 10). As long as it is Allah’s judgement, it cannot be disobeyed. His Judgement is just, for ‘…Allah is All Knowing and Wise’ (al-Mumtahana: 10).

وَإِن فَاتَكُمۡ شَيۡءٞ مِّنۡ أَزۡوَٰجِكُمۡ إِلَى ٱلۡكُفَّارِ فَعَاقَبۡتُمۡ فَـَٔاتُواْ ٱلَّذِينَ ذَهَبَتۡ
أَزۡوَٰجُهُم مِّثۡلَ مَآ أَنفَقُواْۚ وَٱتَّقُواْ ٱللَّهَ ٱلَّذِيٓ أَنتُم بِهِۦ مُؤۡمِنُونَ ﴿١١﴾

If any of you have wives who leave you for the disbelievers, and if your community subsequently acquires [gains] from them, then pay those whose wives have deserted them the equivalent of whatever bride-gift they paid. Be mindful of God, in whom you believe [11]
(The Quran, al-Mumtahana: 11)

This verse is related to Muslim men whose disbelieving wives returned to the disbelievers, but did not pay back what they had devoted to them. The way to return the rights of those Muslim men was this: ‘…and if your community subsequently acquires [gains] from them, then pay those whose wives have deserted them the equivalent of whatever bride-gift they paid…’ (al-Mumtahana: 11). That means when the community of Muslims defeat the disbelievers at war and take their riches as battle-spoils, a share of these spoils should be dedicated to reimbursing those Muslim men whose former disbelieving wives denied them their rights.

Allah then says:

يَٰٓأَيُّهَا ٱلنَّبِيُّ إِذَا جَآءَكَ ٱلۡمُؤۡمِنَٰتُ يُبَايِعۡنَكَ عَلَىٰٓ أَن لَّا يُشۡرِكۡنَ بِٱللَّهِ شَيۡـٔٗا وَلَا يَسۡرِقۡنَ وَلَا
يَزۡنِينَ وَلَا يَقۡتُلۡنَ أَوۡلَٰدَهُنَّ وَلَا يَأۡتِينَ بِبُهۡتَٰنٖ يَفۡتَرِينَهُۥ بَيۡنَ أَيۡدِيهِنَّ وَأَرۡجُلِهِنَّ وَلَا
يَعۡصِينَكَ فِي مَعۡرُوفٖ فَبَايِعۡهُنَّ وَٱسۡتَغۡفِرۡ لَهُنَّ ٱللَّهَۚ إِنَّ ٱللَّهَ غَفُورٞ رَّحِيمٞ ١٢

Prophet, when believing women come and pledge to you that they will not ascribe any partner to God, nor steal, nor commit adultery, nor kill their children, nor lie about who has fathered their children, nor disobey you in any righteous thing, then you should accept their pledge of allegiance and pray to God to forgive them: God is most forgiving and merciful [12] (The Quran, al-Mumtahana: 12)

At the Conquest of Mecca, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him sat at as-suffa (a corner of the Mosque of the Prophet where poor Muslim immigrants to Medina stayed as they had no homes). He took pledges of allegiance from the men and shook hands with them. Then came the turn of the women, so how did they pledge allegiance to the Messenger of Allah? He took the men's pledges by shaking hands with them, so did he do the same with the women, since he was the Prophet of Allah and all the women of his community- all Muslim women- are like his daughters? Allah says, 'The Prophet has a higher claim on the believers than [they have on] their own selves, [seeing that he is as a father to them]…' (al-Ahzab: 6).

It has been narrated that Prophet Muhammad never touched the hand of a woman who was not lawful to him.(1) Even when it came to pledges of allegiance, which usually involve handshakes, he did not shake hand with Muslim women. A pledge of allegiance is like a deal; based on it, the believers declared their acceptance and willingness to abide by Allah's covenant. Allah says: 'Allah has purchased the persons and possessions of the believers in return for the Garden– they fight in Allah's way: they kill and are killed– this is a true promise given by Him…' (at-Tawba: 111).

So how did the Muslim women pledge allegiance to Prophet Muhammad? The Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him took a pail of water and placed his blessed hand in it, so that his hand came into contact with the water; then, each woman who wanted to pledge allegiance to the Messenger of Allah came and dipped her hand into the water so that her hand touched the same particles of water as the Messenger of Allah, and this is how the pledge was made. (1)

Reflect on the cautious attitude of Prophet Muhammad despite his status among Muslim women. It is astonishing how some Muslim men and women today shake hands and claiming there is nothing wrong with that. That attitude of the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him is to teach us that indeed there is something, or many things, wrong with it. It is a matter of what is lawful and what is unlawful. If the Sacred Law forbids a man to look at a woman that is unlawful to him, though eye contact is less direct than handshaking, At least it does not involve close contact with the other person. Would it allow a man to touch her, which is a closer and more direct form of contact and has more effect on both parties?

Some say that it is a custom in society. Indeed, it is, but it is an evil custom which is not allowed in Islam– and is it for society to make laws? Legislation and the determination of what is lawful and what is unlawful is only for our Creator to do. It is society that should commit itself to the guidance of Allah. If a woman refused a man's stretched hand to shake hers, if a man refused a woman's stretched hand to shake his, only once, it would not be repeated. This would be enough to end that tradition. (2)

Now, when Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him took the pledge of allegiance from Muslim men, in essence, it was that they would struggle in the cause of Allah to spread His religion. As for the Muslim women, their pledge involved other terms, as the verse we are considering explains: 'Prophet, when believing women come and pledge to you that they will not ascribe any partner to Allah, nor steal, nor commit adultery, nor kill their children, nor lie about who has fathered their children, nor disobey you in any righteous thing, then you should accept their pledge of allegiance…' (al-Mumtahana: 12).

(2) Cited by Ahmad in his Musnad (27051, 27053, 27054) on the authority of Umayma bint Raqiqa

Among the Muslim women who pledged allegiance to Prophet Muhammad was Hind bint `Utba(1), the wife of Abu Sufyan, who had-before she embraced Islam- hired Wahshi (2) to kill Hamza Allah be pleased with him at the Battle of Uhud. She did not only hire his murderer, but cut open his belly after he was killed, took out his liver and bit into it.(3) On the day she became a believer, she was the feistiest of women and made the most comments on the terms of the pledge, and Prophet Muhammad bore with her clemently. When she heard '…nor steal…' (al-Mumtahana: 12), she said, 'O Messenger of Allah, my husband (Abu Sufyan, who was present) is a miserly man, and I used to take his money without his knowledge.' Prophet Muhammad said, 'Are you Hind?' 'Yes', she said, 'Pardon what I did, may Allah pardon you!'(4) Abu Sufyan said to her, 'The money you took from me in the past is yours rightfully.' The Messenger of Allah then said it was allowed for a woman to take enough of her husband's money to suffice her and her children's needs, in case he was miserly and made things hard for her.(5)

When Hind heard '…nor kill their children…' (al-Mumtahana: 12), she said to Prophet Muhammad, 'We raised them as infants, and you killed them when they were grown, and Allah knows you and them best.' She was referring to her son Hanzhala who was killed at the Battle of Badr. All the Messenger of Allah did, while hearing this was smile. (6)

'…nor lie about who has fathered their children…' (al-Mumtahana: 12). The word used in the original text of this sentence is buhtan which is not just a 'lie', but it means something which is so ugly and astounding to anyone who witnesses it. It is something said or done and causes the mind to marvel at its vileness. The same root word is found in this verse: '…The disbeliever was buhita (dumbfounded)…' (al-Baqara: 258). That is, he was bewildered and had nothing to say in response.

(4) This is part of a long story related by Ibn Kathir in his Tafsir

(5) Cited by Muslim (4574)

(6) Ibn Kathir, Al-Bidaya Wa An-Nihaya (7/60)

The expression used in the original text of the verse in this part is literally translated as '…lie about what is between their hands and their feet…' (al-Mumtahana: 12). The phrase 'what is between their hands' refers to the belly, and 'what is between their feet' refers to the private parts. This is an allusion to a woman's claim that her child is her husband's, deliberately lying about it.

Abu Hurayrah Allah be pleased with him narrated that he heard Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him say, when the verses of mula`ana(1) were revealed, 'Any woman who brings to her husband a child who is not born of him thereby forgoes her connection to Allah, and Allah will never admit her into paradise. If any man disowns his own child as he looks at him, Allah will prevent him from seeing Him and will expose him among all people, the earliest of them and latest of them.'(2) Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'A child belongs to the owner of the bed (the husband of his mother) and the fornicator gets nothing but stone (punishment by stoning, or deprivation from his child).'(3) This preserves the dignity of the child so that he would not live in disgrace for the rest of his life. He is the child of the man in whose bed he was born. As for the woman, if there is proof that she was unfaithful, she must be punished as prescribed in the Islamic ruling for fornication.

On hearing '…nor disobey you in any righteous thing…' (al-Mumtahana: 12), Hind said, 'Indeed we have only come to attain the goodness that would come to us by following you, so how can we disobey you when we have come willingly in obedience to you?' Allah tells His Messenger if they accept that pledge: '…then you should accept their pledge of allegiance and pray to Allah to forgive them…' (al-Mumtahana: 12). Allah granted it to the believers that His Messenger implored Allah to forgive their sins, as Allah says in another verse: '…If only [the hypocrites] had come to you [Prophet] when they wronged themselves, and begged Allah's forgiveness, and the Messenger had asked forgiveness for them, they would have found that Allah accepts repentance and is Most Merciful' (an-Nisa': 64).

(1) This refers to the following verses: 'And as for those who accuse their own wives [of adultery], but have no witnesses except themselves, let each of these [accusers] call Allah four times to witness that he is indeed telling the truth, and the fifth time, that Allah's curse be upon him if he is telling a lie. But [as for the wife, all] chastisement shall be averted from her by her calling Allah four times to witness that he is indeed telling a lie, and the fifth [time], that Allah's Wrath be upon her if he is telling the truth' (an-Nur: 6-9).

(3) Cited by Al-Bukhari (2053) and Muslim (3686) on the authority of `Aisha Allah be pleased with her

Allah Glorified is He will grant them His repentance and Mercy only if they approach you, O Muhammad, praying for Allah's forgiveness. After they ask for Allah's forgiveness, you can pray for their forgiveness as well.'

This is a gift from Allah Glorified is He and indeed, no one can benefit you besides Him. Any person who tries to approach Allah's door in any other way, will not be allowed to proceed. The believers who lived with Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him had the opportunity to approach him and acknowledge their sins. They were able to pray for Allah's forgiveness and also asked Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to pray for their forgiveness. Do the believers living after the time of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him have a similar opportunity? The scholars say that, indeed, all the believers have the same opportunity to benefit from Prophet Muhammad's prayers, whether they saw him or not. If someone commits a sin, he should imagine that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is with us. When we send our greetings of peace to Him, he will also greet us in return. So, likewise, acknowledging our sins is similar to what the Companions did when they said to him, 'O Messenger of Allah, we have sinned, so ask Allah to forgive us!'

In this way, we are all equal before Allah's Commandments because Prophet Muhammad's message was conveyed to all mankind. In fact, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him gave all the generations of his community who lived after his time a special status that is not lower than the status of his Companions.

It is related that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said to his Companions: 'When shall I meet my beloved ones?' They said, 'Are we not your beloved ones, O Messenger of Allah?' He said: 'Nay, you are my Companions. My beloved ones are the people who will come after me and who will not have seen me, but will wish to pay the weight of the earth in gold just to see me. The good deed of a single one of them will be equal to fifty deeds.' The Companions asked, 'Will their good deeds be more valuable than fifty of our deeds, or fifty of their deeds?' Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: '(Their good deeds will equal) fifty of your good deeds because you find people who assist you to do good actions, while they will not have people who assist them in doing good actions.'

It was narrated that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said in another Hadith to his Companions: 'If a man in your time leaves only a tenth of his obligations, he shall be in danger of damnation. Indeed, a time shall come when a person doing a tenth of what is required of him shall be saved.'(1)

'Indeed, Allah is a much-forgiving (Ghafoor) Giver of Mercy (Raheem)' (al-Mumtahana: 12). The word Ghafoor is the intensive form of the word Ghafir (forgiving), and therefore indicates the frequency of the forgiveness. Indeed, Allah Glorified is He is 'Forgiving (Ghafir) (of) sin and accepting (of) repentance (Qabil-u-atawba)' (Ghafir: 3). He is described as Ghafir when the forgiveness pertains to one sin, and is described as Ghafoor regarding the forgiveness of multiple sins. He has mandated that, with each Prayer, He will forgive the time since the preceding prayer, and also provided His forgiveness for the times between the consequent Friday prayers and His forgiveness for the year between the months of Ramadan. Therefore, He has made His forgiveness a door that never closes, and any time you ask for His forgiveness, He will grant it to you.

It is in the nature of the servant to sin, and it is in the nature of the Lord to forgive. Therefore, the existence of sinners proves the existence of one of Allah's Attributes of Perfection. It is narrated that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: 'By Allah, if you people did not sin, Allah would have replaced you with people who did sin and then asked His forgiveness, and He will forgive them.’(1)

(1) Narrated by At-Tabarani in As-Saghir (1156) and Abu Na`im (7/316) on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him. However, only Na`im ibn Hammad narrated this Hadith from Sufyan, and therefore, it was considered as a weak Hadith by Ibn Al-Jawzy in Al-`Ilal Al-Mutanahiyah (1425), and he mentioned the opinion of Abu 'Abd Ar-rahman An-Nasa`i, 'This is a Hadith that is munkar, and Na`im ibn Hammad is not a trusted narrator.'

Allah then says:

يَٰٓأَيُّهَا ٱلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُواْ لَا تَتَوَلَّوۡاْ قَوۡمًا غَضِبَ ٱللَّهُ عَلَيۡهِمۡ قَدۡ يَئِسُواْ
مِنَ ٱلۡأٓخِرَةِ كَمَا يَئِسَ ٱلۡكُفَّارُ مِنۡ أَصۡحَٰبِ ٱلۡقُبُورِ ١٣

You who believe, do not take as allies those with whom God is angry: they despair of the life to come as the disbelievers despair of those buried in their graves [13]
(The Quran, al-Mumtahana: 13)

Allah Glorified is He says, ‘O you who have believed,’ (al-Mumtahana: 13) and this is a call that Allah Glorified is He has directed many times in the Quran to every person who believes in Allah as his Lord, and also believes in His guidance, commands and prohibitions. Allah Glorified is He called the believers with the words, ‘O you who have believed’ (al-Mumtahana: 13), and thus, we should know that faith is the pre-requisite of religious responsibility. Certainly, Allah Glorified is He did not issue responsibilities to those who did not believe in Him, and only gave obligations to those who believed in Him.

Directing the laws of religion to the believers is because faith is an indication of adherence and commitment. Therefore, if you adhere to the belief that He is Wise, it follows that you should take the laws of your religion from Him Glorified is He. This religious law is a contract between you and Allah Glorified is He. The condition of the contract is having faith in Him. Then, we are obliged to follow the commandments and prohibitions that He has issued.

Indeed, Allah’s Commandments have the attribute of justice. He did not give us these responsibilities against our will, and His obligations did not violate our free choice. He only gave us these responsibilities after we made the choice to have faith in Him. Indeed, faith in Allah Glorified is He is the foundation of every Islamic commandment. We obey His commands because it is He Whom we believe in, and we should follow His orders whether or not we understand the wisdom. Indeed, it may be that obeying a commandment of Allah Glorified is He without realising its wisdom, is a greater sign of faith than obeying a commandment while knowing the clear wisdom behind it.

(1) Narrated by Muslim (7141) and others on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him

Allah Glorified is He started the chapter of al-Mumtahana with: ‘O you who have believed, do not take My enemies, who are your enemies, for your allies, showing them affection…’ (al-Mumtahana: 1). He ended it with: ‘O you who have believed, be not allies of people with whom Allah has (become angry and) condemned’ (al-Mumtahana: 13). Therefore, the two calls have a common theme and a common prohibition, and the final meaning of the chapter is aligned with its first concept, as if the two meanings complete a circle. This makes it plain to us that the issue these verses are talking about is a very important part of religious responsibility.

To become an ally with a person means to give that person succour (nusra), and succour means that one allying party should support its ally when they need help. How, then, can you befriend Allah’s enemies and your own enemies, and expect them to help and succour you in return, when they are opposed to Allah’s guidance and have corrupted their own scriptures, turning them from guidance into error?

Alliance, succour and aid must only be given to those who agree with you on the ultimate aim. As long as people show animosity to Islam regarding its ultimate aim, which is faith, it is not right for the believer to trust them, be an ally for them, succour them or show them affection.

Therefore Allah Glorified is He says, ‘O you who have believed, do not take the Jews and the Christians for your allies: they are but allies of one another – and whoever of you allies himself with them becomes, verily, one of them; behold, Allah does not guide such evildoers’ (al-Ma‘ida: 51). So: ‘they are but allies of one another’ befriending one another and helping one another against the believers. Therefore, you should not assist them if their aims fight the higher aims of Islam.

They might differ over worldly power. However, they often speak with one voice and help one another when it comes to opposing Islam. Allah Glorified is He says, ‘If they could but overcome you, they would (still) remain your foes, and would stretch forth their hands and tongues against you with evil intent: for they desire that you (too) should deny the truth' (al-Mumtahana: 2). So, they are united in their desire to harm you in any way. They can do that with their hands, or through the use of material force, weapons, and arms. If they cannot do so, then they may harm you through the use of their tongues, by insulting you, your Messenger and your Sacred Law, and by separating the believers from each other and spreading mischief among them, until they get the opportunity to harm you with their hands. So how can you consider such people as allies, when their desire is: '…that you (too) should deny the truth' (al-Mumtahana: 2)? If this is their aim, then you should not forget Allah's words: 'For never will the Jews be pleased with you, nor yet the Christians, unless you follow their own creeds' (al-Baqara: 120). Therefore, Allah Glorified is He says, '…and whoever of you allies himself with them becomes, verily, one of them' (al-Ma'ida: 51).

Indeed, the issue of taking them as allies is the central issue of the chapter of al-Mumtahana. Allah Glorified is He tested the hearts and deeds of the believers with this chapter to determine the strength of their faith in Him. So do not befriend the enemies of Allah Glorified is He who are also your enemies.

Allah Glorified is He emphasised that those who believe in Him should be distinct from all other people. Indeed, there cannot be any alliance between them and Allah's enemies, as Allah says, 'Are you not aware of those who befriended people with whom Allah has become angry and condemned? They are neither of you (O believers) nor of those (who utterly reject the truth): and so they swear to a falsehood while they know (it to be false)' (al-Mujadala: 14).

Those who form alliances with Allah's enemies are hypocrites. They do not belong to you, or to those whom they support, but rather flitter back and forth between the two groups. If you befriend them and bring them into your circle, they will spread mischief among you and sow the seeds of discord and hypocrisy.

Allah Glorified is He says, 'O you who have believed, do not take for your (private) companions people who are not of your kind. They spare no effort to corrupt you and they would love to see you in distress. Vehement hatred has already been declared by their mouths, but what their hearts conceal is yet worse. We have indeed made the signs (thereof) clear unto you, if you would but use your reason.' (Al-'Imran: 118) It is therefore foolish and witless to befriend those who harm you and seek to cause you suffering and pain, and whose hearts conceal a deep hatred for you. Allah has made these verses clear to you and shown you what is in their hearts. So, will you cease befriending them and drawing them close to you, and involving them in your affairs? Protect your faith and your progeny, and do not become involved with the disbelievers in ways that will ruin your religion. Indeed, they will spare no effort in plotting against you and in spoiling your lives.

Allah says, 'Lo! It is you who (are prepared to) love them, but they will not love you' (Al-'Imran: 119). Why, then, do you fool yourselves by befriending them, and continuing to be their allies, when they do not love you? Allah Glorified is He then says, '…Be not friends with people with whom Allah has (become angry and has) condemned' (al-Mumtahana: 13). Who are these people whom Allah Glorified is He has condemned? Allah Glorified is He made their characteristics clear in His Quran, and He revealed these characteristics to the believers so that they will have no excuse or any doubts regarding the identity of those with whom Allah Glorified is He has become angry.

The first of these condemned people are the disbelievers, and this includes the atheists as well as the other kinds of disbelievers. Allah Glorified is He says, 'O you who have believed, do not take the disbelievers (kafirun) for your allies instead of the believers' (an-Nisa': 144).

The word kafirun (disbelievers) is a general term. It includes all those people who do not believe in Allah Glorified is He as well as those who do not believe in Prophet Muhammad, the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him. Allah Glorified is He has reproached the hypocrites for taking the disbelievers as allies instead of Him, and therefore, it is not acceptable for the believers to follow their actions. Instead, they should be aware of the gravity of this sin.

A clear result of this sin is that Allah will send His chastisement upon you in this world, by making you a humiliated follower of other people.

Allah Glorified is He may also punish you in the Hereafter because you separated the believers when you formed alliances with other people who oppose them.

Another group of people condemned by Allah were the Jews and Christians, and Allah also forbade us from forming alliances with them. Allah says, ‘O you who have believed, do not take the Jews and the Christians for your allies’ (al-Ma‘ida: 51).

The condemned people also include those who mock our religion and make a playful jest out of its commandments, as Allah says, ‘O you who have believed, do not take for your friends those who mock your faith and make a jest of it – be they from among those who have been given revelation before your time, or (from among) those who deny the truth (of revelation as such). Indeed, remain conscious of Allah if you are (truly) believers’ (al-Ma‘ida: 57).

To mock something means to insult and deride it. These people consider the verses of the Quran and the messages of our religion as an object of derision and scorn, and pay no heed to the warnings it presents to them. This is the usual way of those who stray from Allah’s guidance. They mock pious people and deride those who follow the straight path of righteousness by belittling their views and actions. So, beware of befriending such people and helping them or cooperating with them, or taking them as allies and showing them affection. Indeed, this alliance will continue to detract from your religiosity as long as the alliance continues.

Therefore Allah Glorified is He says, ‘Whenever you meet those who indulge in (blasphemous) talk about Our messages, turn your backs upon them until they begin to talk of other things; and if Satan should ever cause you to forget, remain not, after recollection, in the company of such evildoing folk’ (al-An‘am: 68). If they speak about Allah’s messages with scorn, sarcasm and derision, then turn away from them, and do not sit with them as long as they are doing this. Otherwise, you will be counted as their accomplice in this derision, your religion will begin to seem unimportant to you and you will come to resemble them. When the idolaters sat with the believers, they used to speak ill of Prophet Muhammad and the Quran by insulting and belittling them. So, Allah Glorified is He commanded the believers not to sit with them until they spoke of something else. Do not befriend or aid any of these people whom Allah Glorified is He has condemned.

Allah Glorified is He often spoke about His condemnation of the Jews in particular because of their manifold sins and transgressions. Allah says, '…and they earned the burden of Allah's condemnation' (al-Baqara: 61). Allah's condemnation became, as it were, specially mentioned for the Jews due to the manifold acts of disobedience they committed. Allah stated the reason for that in: 'this was because they persisted in denying the truth of Allah's messages and in slaying the prophets against all right: all of this was because they rebelled (against Allah) and persisted in transgressing the bounds of what is right' (al-Baqara: 61). That is, they used to show their ingratitude towards Allah's favours and refused to be thankful for them. In addition, they used to formulate lies about Allah's messages and sell them for a worthless price. They did not stop there, but actually went as far as killing the prophets of Allah against all right. Allah Glorified is He drew our attention to an important concept in this verse: 'Be not friends with (these) people (qawm)' (al-Mumtahana: 13). A qawm (a people) is the singular of the word aqwam (peoples). This suggests that Allah is speaking about one group of people in particular. He even mentions these people in the first chapter of His Book: 'Guide us to the straight path: the way of those upon whom You have bestowed Your blessings, not of those people You are angry with, nor of those who go astray' (al-Fatiha: 6-7).

Allah was angry with these people and condemned them because they were aware of His commandments, but they chose to disobey His way by committing all that He had been forbidden for them. Therefore, they deserved His condemnation. They altered and replaced Allah's Commandments because these alterations gave them a temporary power in the life of this world and allowed them to falsely seize the possessions of others.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: 'The Jews were the people who have incited Allah's anger (and condemnation), and the Christians were the people who went astray.'(1)

(1) This Hadith was narrated by `Uday ibn Hatim. He was a Christian who embraced Islam. Imam Ahmad mentioned this Hadith in his Musnad (19381) and At-Tabarani mentioned in Al-Mu`jam Al-Kabir (13691).

It was narrated that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: 'Anger (ghadab) is a firebrand which ignites in the heart. Do you not see how the angry person's veins swell and his eyes redden?'(1) So how could it be said that Allah Glorified is He gets angry (yaghdab)? Indeed, when a person gets angry his veins swell up and his face reddens, and his fury continues until his eyes blaze and his hands move with their sudden inclinations. This is an impulsive state that happens to human beings, and indeed has even happened to Prophet Musa (Moses) peace be upon him who was a messenger of firm resolve. Allah Glorified is He says, 'And when Musa (Moses) returned to his people, full of anger and sorrow, he exclaimed, "Vile is the course which you have followed in my absence! Have you forsaken your Lord's commandment?" And he threw down the tablets (of the Law), and seized his brother's head, dragging him towards himself.' (al-A'raf: 150)

We know that the tablets contained Allah's Message, but yet, despite this, Prophet Musa (Moses) peace be upon him threw them from his hands because of his anger. He then turned to his brother and dragged him by the head. This was an angry reaction to what his people had done because their sin had incurred Allah's anger as well.

Therefore, the state of anger is a reaction of the soul that causes a change in the chemical state of the body. It causes the veins to swell up, a person's face to redden, and his appearance to change. However, since these are all temporary states which accompany a chemical reaction, the anger of Allah does not resemble the state of anger in His creatures. Indeed, Allah is not subject to temporary states and emotions. So, if anger is related to the angry being's ability to punish, then how can we understand Allah's anger? The anger of Allah Glorified is He is the condemnation and the expulsion of the disbelievers from His mercy, and His punishment of the sinners and those who stray from His commandments. Allah's anger is not a chemical reaction, as the state of anger in human beings, for Allah says, '…there is nothing like Him' (ash-Shura: 11).

(1) Narrated by Ahmad (11604), Al-Hakim (8543) and At-Tirmidhi (2350), on the authority of Abu Sa`id Al-Khudari Allah be pleased with him.

For instance, Allah Glorified is He exists, and you exist, but your existence is not like His existence. Allah Glorified is He is alive, and you are alive, but your life is not like His life. In the same manner, your hearing is not like Allah's hearing and your sight is not like His sight. So, even though we believe that you have attributes that resemble Allah's attributes, however, we understand Allah's attributes in the light of the verse in which He said: '…there is nothing like Him' (ash-Shura: 11).

Allah Glorified is He describes those people He has condemned by saying: 'They are indeed bereft of all hope of a life to come – just as those deniers of the truth are bereft of all hope of (ever again seeing) those who are (now) in their graves' (al-Mumtahana: 13). Their sins made the lack of hope for the Hereafter one of their inherent attributes. Then, Allah condemned them and expelled them from His Mercy due to their sins as well as their lack of hope in the Hereafter. Therefore, their lack of hope for the Hereafter was both a result and a cause of their condemnation.

They despaired of having any share in the goodness of the Hereafter, and so, they resorted to altering Allah's scriptures and corrupting them. They killed Allah's prophets, spread corruption in the land, and invented lies about Allah Glorified is He. This was because they felt that the present life of this world was their final abode.

They were untruthful when they said: 'None shall ever enter paradise unless they are a Jew or a Christian' (al-Baqara: 111). They also claimed that the Hereafter belonged to them alone, and were lying about that, too. Allah Glorified is He says, 'Say (to them, O Muhammad,) "if an afterlife with Allah is to be for you alone, to the exclusion of all other people, then you should long for death – if what you say is true!" But never will they long for it because (they are aware) of what their hands have sent ahead in this world: and Allah has full knowledge of evildoers.' (al-Baqara: 94-95) In these verses, Allah Glorified is He says to Prophet Muhammad: 'If they really believed that Allah made the afterlife for them alone and no one else, they would have hoped for death so that they could go on to an eternal bliss. If the abode of the Hereafter was made for them, and they were sure that they would enter paradise alone, what reason would they have for remaining in this worldly life?'

Indeed, they were liars, as Allah Glorified is He used the words: '…if what you say is true.' (al-Baqara: 94) Then, He says, 'But never will they long for it because (they are aware) of what their hands have sent ahead in this world' (al-Baqara: 95). Their sins and acts of disobedience and their defiance of Allah Glorified is He prevented them from ever hoping for death. In reality, they had lost all hope of gaining any share in the reward of the Hereafter.

Allah Glorified is He also describes the Jews who have incurred Allah's anger and condemnation. He says, 'Behold, those who barter away their bond with Allah and their own pledges for a trifling gain – they shall not partake in the blessings of the life to come; and Allah will neither speak to them nor look upon them on the Day of Resurrection, nor will He cleanse them of their sins; and grievous suffering awaits them.' (Al-'Imran: 77) So, their hopes for the Hereafter have all been annulled, and their despair started to resemble the disbelievers' despair of ever again seeing the deceased people in the graves.

The Quran described this despair of the disbelievers when Allah says, 'And he (the disbeliever) gave an argumentative parable to Us, and is oblivious of how he himself was created! (And so) he (the disbeliever) said, "Who could give life to bones that have crumbled to dust?"' (Ya Sin: 78) The books of Prophet Muhammad's biography tell us that Ubay ibn Khalaf Al-Jumahi(1) asked Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him about a dried bone, and said, 'Are you telling us, O Muhammad, that when our bones have crumbled into dust, Allah will bring us back again?' Then he crumbled the bone and scattered the dust in the wind, and said, 'O Muhammad, who shall bring this back to life?' Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him replied: 'Indeed, Allah will cause you to die, and then bring you back to life, and then send you to Hell!'(2)

The disbelievers found the idea of resurrection of the dead from the graves and the concept of life after death far-fetched concepts. They said: 'After we will have become bones and dust (rufat), shall we, forsooth, be raised from the dead in a new act of creation?' (al-Isra': 49)

---

(1) A chieftain of Quraysh

(2) As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur

The word rufat refers to the crumbled pieces and wisps of an object when it is transformed into dust or rubble. These people found it far-fetched that there will be a resurrection after death because they were heedless of the beginning of existence and the beginning of man’s creation. So, the Jews who were condemned by Allah Glorified is He were devoid of hope in the Hereafter, just as the pagan disbelievers were devoid of any hope that the deceased people will ever be resurrected. Therefore, do not befriend such people, nor show them affection so that you do not end up becoming part of either group.

‘O you who have believed, be not friends with people with whom Allah (has become angry and has) condemned! They are indeed bereft of all hope of a life to come’ (al-Mumtahana: 13). This means that they have lost the hope of attaining any reward in the Hereafter or being saved from its torment, ‘...just as those (pagan) disbelievers are bereft of all hope of (ever again seeing) those who are (now) in their graves’ (al-Mumtahana: 13). Similarly, the disbelievers have no hope that the dead will ever come back to life.

We may observe here that the concept mentioned in the end of the chapter is the same as the concept mentioned in its beginning. This concept revolves around the essential importance of renouncing Allah’s enemies and avoiding any alliance with them. At the opening of the chapter, Allah Glorified is He says, ‘O you who have believed, do not take My enemies, who are your enemies, for your allies, showing them affection’ (al-Mumtahana: 1). Allah mentioned these people in the last verse in which He says, ‘…people with whom Allah (has become angry and has) condemned’ (al-Mumtahana: 13). These people are the Jews, as well as other disbelievers.

It is as though the opening verse and the final verse constitute two brackets. The verses between the brackets ordered us to renounce the Jews and the disbelievers, and not to befriend Allah’s enemies in all their different forms. In the first verse, He called them: ‘Allah’s enemies’ (al-Mumtahana: 1), and in the last verse He called them: ‘…people, with whom Allah (has become angry and has) condemned’ (al-Mumtahana: 13). How can a believer befriend the enemies who deserved Allah’s anger and condemnation? Do you seek protection against Allah, when it is: ‘(He) who protects, and there is no protection against Him’ (al-Mu’minun: 88)?

It is more fitting to befriend and aid the people who believe in Allah, His Messenger, and the Resurrection of the dead on the Last Day. Allah Glorified is He says, ‘And (as for) the believers, both men and women – they are close unto one another: they (all) enjoin the doing of what is right and forbid the doing of what is wrong, and are constant in prayer, and render the purifying dues, and pay heed unto Allah and His Apostle. It is they upon whom Allah will bestow His Grace: verily, Allah is Almighty, and All-Wise!’ (at-Tawba: 71) The final words of this verse are in harmony with another verse in the chapter of al-Mumtahana, in which Allah says, ‘…for You (Allah) alone are Almighty, Truly Wise!’ (al-Mumtahana: 5) He also says, ‘…Allah is truly self-sufficient, the One to whom all praise is due’ (al-Mumtahana: 6), and then: ‘…for Allah is All-Powerful, and Allah is Much-Forgiving, a Giver of Grace’ (al-Mumtahana: 7). Then, Allah says, ‘…for Allah is All Knowing and All-Wise’ (al-Mumtahana: 10), and then: ‘…for, behold, Allah is Much-Forgiving, a Giver of Grace’ (al-Mumtahana: 12). These attributes are also in harmony with the first verse of the following chapter as-Saff which began with a glorification of Allah Glorified is He: ‘All that is in the heavens and all that is in the earth praises Allah’s Limitless Glory: for He Alone is Almighty, Truly Wise!’ (as-Saff: 1)

Therefore, you should glorify Allah and declare His absolute transcendence above any flaw, and you should not take His enemies and your enemies as friends instead of Allah Glorified is He. You should not befriend those whom Allah Glorified is He has condemned, for otherwise, this will taint your faith. Praise Allah’s Limitless Glory to remain in harmony with the entire universe around you!

as-Saff

In the Name of God, the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of as-Saff[1] (The row):

Allah Glorified is He starts this chapter by stating:

سَبَّحَ لِلَّهِ مَا فِي ٱلسَّمَٰوَٰتِ وَمَا فِي ٱلۡأَرۡضِۖ وَهُوَ ٱلۡعَزِيزُ ٱلۡحَكِيمُ ١

Everything in the heavens and earth glorifies
God — He is the Almighty, the Wise [1]
(The Quran, as-Saff: 1)

The scholars say that the chapter of as-Saff is one of the musabbihat chapters. The first verse in each of these musabbihat chapters started with derivatives of the Arabic root s-b-h. These words included the derivatives: sabbaha (praised) yusabbihu (praises) and sabbih (praise). Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him referred to these chapters as the musabbihat chapters and he used to recite them before retiring to bed. This is because their initial verses[2] are superior to one thousand verses, as they praise the Limitless

---

[1] as-Saff chapter was revealed in Medina and contains a total of 14 verses. Al-Qurtubi has mentioned that it was revealed in Medina, according to Al-Mawardi. However, relying on the authority of Ibn `Abbas, An-Nahhas suggested that it may have been revealed in Mecca. The chapter is also referred to as Al-Hawariyin and the chapter of `Isa (Jesus). It is the 61st chapter within the arrangement of the Quran. It was revealed after the chapter of at-Taghabun and before the chapter of al-Fath which means that it was revealed before the Treaty of Hudaybiyya.

[2] It was narrated by Imam Ahmad in his Musnad (17200), Abu Dawud in his Sunnan (5059), At-Tirmidhi in his Sunnan (2921), and An-Nasa`i in his Sunnan (7972). In each of the previously mentioned collections, the Hadith was narrated on the authority of Al-`Irbaḍ ibn Sariya Allah be pleased with him.

Glory and Exaltedness of Allah Glorified is He. These verses praised Allah before He brought creation into existence, and praised Him after originating this creation.

Allah Glorified is He states in the chapter of al-Hadid: ‘All that is in the heavens and the earth praised (sabbaha) Allah’s Limitless Glory’ (al-Hadid: 1). He says in the chapter al-Hashr: ‘All that is in the heavens and all that is in the earth praised (Sabbaha) Allah’s Limitless Glory’ (al-Hashr: 1), and in as-Saff: ‘All that is in the heavens and all that is in the earth praises (Sabbaha) Allah’s Limitless Glory: for He alone is Almighty, Truly Wise!’ (as-Saff: 1)

Does this mean that the beings in the heavens and the earth praised Allah’s Limitless Glory in the past, on a single occasion only? Of course not, as indeed, Allah Glorified is He states: ‘All that is in the heavens and all that is in the earth praises (Yusabbih) the Limitless Glory of Allah, the Sovereign Supreme the Exalted’ (al-Jumu‘a: 1). He also states in the chapter of at-Taghabun: ‘All that is in the heavens and all that is in the earth praises (Yusabbih) Allah’s Limitless Glory: His is all the dominion, and to Him all praise is due; and He has the power to will anything’ (at-Taghabun: 1).

Thus, the glorification of Allah is absolutely existent. Everything in existence has praised and will continue to praise Allah Glorified is He. This includes everything that is in the heavens and in the earth, and everyone on them. They all joined in praising Allah Glorified is He except you, O human being! So, glorify Allah, the Most-High!

Firstly, we have to know that absolute Glory innately belongs to Allah Glorified is He before any creation. Then, He created the angels which have, since then, glorified Him without interruption. Then, He created the heavens and the earth, and all that is in them has also glorified Him. Therefore, direct your praises to Allah, O believer in Him. Glorify Him as the rest of creation glorifies Him!

This glorification is the defining characteristic of the entire created order. In a sense, these praises of glorification are the language of creation. We are only able to understand some of these praises, and other praises remain inaccessible to us. Allah Glorified is He has decreed that everything in creation will glorify and praise Him. Allah says, ‘The seven heavens praise His Limitless Glory, and the earth, and all that they contain; and there is not a single thing but extols His Limitless Glory and praise: but you (O men) fail to grasp the manner of their glorification! Verily, He is Forbearing and Much-Forgiving' (al-Isra': 44).

These glorifications are not figurative, but are indeed real, even if we are unable to understand or comprehend their manner. In fact, if Allah Glorified is He granted someone access to this hidden language, he will understand the praises and glorifications of creation just as he hears clearly articulated speech. Indeed, Allah Glorified is He taught Prophet Sulaiman (Solomon) peace be upon him the speech of the birds.

Here, Allah Glorified is He says, 'Everything that (ma) is in the heavens and in the Earth praises Allah's Limitless Glory' (as-Saff: 1). Allah uses the Arabic word ma (a thing that) as a relative pronoun which refers equally to sentient beings and other non-sentient objects. This means that both the living and the non-living things in creation praise and glorify Allah. None of them differs in this regard.

In a different verse, Allah Glorified is He says, 'Are you not aware that everyone who (man) is in the heavens and the earth praises Allah's Limitless Glory?' (an-Nur: 41) In this verse, we observe a subtle difference due to the use of another pronoun, man (who) which is used exclusively to refer to sentient beings. If we view these verses together, we will realise that everything in creation praises Allah Glorified is He. These things include the sentient beings as well as the inanimate objects in creation. Only an obstinate, ungrateful rebel abandons this ritual.

Indeed, the individual constituents of a disbeliever's body have faith in Allah Glorified is He! The organs of his body praise and glorify Allah Glorified is He but these praises do not occur in accordance with the will of the disbeliever. In this, he is literally subjecting the limbs of his body to pain and torment through his sinful and disobedient conduct. The limbs obey his sinful commands, but they do so unwillingly. Then, these same limbs will testify against him on the Day of Judgment! Therefore, even if they are subject to his command in the life of this world, they will break free from his will in the Hereafter.

For instance, the tongue is subjected to the will of its person. If the person wishes, the tongue will recite the testimony of faith, and if the person wishes, the tongue can utter words of disbelief. This is because the volition and the will of the tongue belong to the person's worldly choice. However, on the Day of Judgment, the only expression of will and volition will belong to Allah Glorified is He. Only during sleep can the limbs and the atoms of the sinner's body receive temporary relief from the evil of the person's sinful compulsions in disobeying Allah Glorified is He.

In this verse, Allah Glorified is He states the seven heavens in the plural form, but He mentions the earth in the singular form. He says, 'All that is in the heavens and in the earth praises Allah's Limitless Glory' (as-Saff: 1). However, Allah Glorified is He says in a different verse: '(It is) Allah who has created seven heavens, and (a number) like them of the earth' (at-Talaq: 12). Just as Allah Glorified is He created seven heavens, He created seven earths. So, why did Allah mention the heavens in the plural form while mentioning the earth in the singular form?

In Arabic, the plural word `ardeen (earths) is very difficult to pronounce, and as a result, the singular ard (earth) was given preference. The word as-samawat (heavens), on the other hand, was mentioned in the plural form because it rolls off the tongue with considerable ease.

Where are these seven heavens and seven earths to which the Quran referred? The Quran informed us about the existence of the seven heavens and Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him told us that he ascended through them during the blessed Night Journey and Ascension. He also described what he saw in each of the heavens. The answer to this question is that the positions of the earths and the heavens are relative. The sky of those who dwell in one heaven is the ground of those in the following heaven, while their ground is the sky for the preceding inhabitants.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says, '…He alone is Almighty, Truly Wise' (as-Saff: 1). This means that He is the Almighty One Who is always triumphant! He exerts unlimited power over His dominion. There are no precautionary measures you can take if He decides to exact retribution from you. There is absolutely nothing which can ever pose a threat to him. Glory is to Allah. The grandeur He possesses is eternal and not dependent upon anything else. If you truly desire to obtain the real power which is free from the vicissitudes of other changing creatures, your only recourse is seeking it from the source of true honour, the Unchanging Allah Glorified is He.

The description of Allah's Power after Al-Mumtahana should grab our attention. If you wish to learn the correct way of attaining true strength, then you must alter some of your fundamental ideas about the manner in which it is sought. If you befriend the disbelievers and form alliances with them, you will be asking for the support of a feeble source, as the disbelievers are subjected to the changes of fate.

Indeed, the created beings change daily between moments of fortune and moments of misfortune. Even if the disbelievers are wealthy today, they may not be wealthy permanently. In fact, the process of seeking glory and nobility from another creature who is subjected to the vicissitudes of life will never give you a true standing. Only Allah Glorified is He possesses absolute and unchanging Glory. So, seek your power from Allah Glorified is He and you will attain that which you seek, as: '…all glory belongs to Allah (alone)' (an-Nisa': 139).

In addition to possessing absolute Glory, Allah is also the Most-Wise. Every act which emanates from Him is issued on the basis of wisdom. If Allah Glorified is He commands you to cease taking His enemies as advisors and patrons, His command contains a wise purpose. He intends to honour you as believers, through sparing you the indignity of seeking false glory from others.

Then, Allah Glorified is He said :(1)

(1) The events surrounding the revelation of this verse: Al-Hakim compiled this Hadith in his Mustadrak (2799), based on Sahih Al-Bukhari and Sahih Muslim. It was narrated on the authority of `Abdullah ibn Salam, who said, 'A group of the Prophet's Companions were sitting one day. We said, "If only we had some way of knowing which action was most pleasing to Allah, we would perform it." Allah then revealed: "All that is in the heavens and all that is on earth praised Allah's Limitless Glory: for He alone is Almighty, Truly Wise! O you who have believed, why do you say one thing and do another? Most loathsome is it in the sight of Allah that you say what you do not do!" (as-Saff: 1-3) Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him recited this verse before us.' At-Tabarani included the same narration in his Al-Mu`ajam Al-Kabir (172) and it was narrated by At-Tirmidhi in his Sunnan (3624).

يَٰٓأَيُّهَا ٱلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُواْ لِمَ تَقُولُونَ مَا لَا تَفۡعَلُونَ ﴿٢﴾
كَبُرَ مَقۡتًا عِندَ ٱللَّهِ أَن تَقُولُواْ مَا لَا تَفۡعَلُونَ ﴿٣﴾

You who believe, why do you say things and then do not do them? [2] It is most hateful to God that you say things and then do not do them [3]
(The Quran, as-Saff: 2 - 3)

This verse is addressed to the believers. In the Quran, when Allah Glorified is He summons His servants by the initial statement ‘O you who have believed’ (as-Saff: 2) means: ‘O you who have chosen to believe in Me with your own free will! You believed in Me as your Lord, Who Has all the attributes of knowledge, power, wisdom, and self-subsistence’. With this reminder in mind, you are now ready to listen to the commands of your Lord Glorified is He. Allah Glorified is He is not summoning those who do not possess faith. Indeed, He is only calling on those who have chosen to believe in Him mindfully with their own free choice. Additionally, this statement means that implementing the following commands and abstaining from the following prohibition will contain immense benefit for the believers.

A party of the Prophet’s Companions once asked about the acts of obedience that Allah likes, and Allah revealed that He likes unshakeable faith in Him and military strife in the Way of Allah against the forces of disbelief. When the verses speaking of military struggle were mandated, some of the Companions did not like this mandate as it was a great test for them. Then, Allah Glorified is He revealed this verse: ‘O you who have believed, why do you say (taquloon) things which you do not act upon (taf`aloon)?’ (as-Saff: 2)

In the Arabic language, the words ya`mal (work), yaf`al (act) and yaqool (say), have distinct meanings. The (works) a`maal we perform are the greatest indication of who we are. Indeed, every `amal (work) emanates from the heart and then makes use of all the body parts necessary for its performance. The work of the heart is formulating the intention. The tongue is the organ involved in the work of speech, whereas hearing is the work of the ear and sight is the work of the eye. Therefore, every bodily organ carries out a form of work for which it was created.

In the language of the Arabs, every instance of a bodily organ carrying out its intended purpose is referred to as a work (`amal). The work which is performed by the tongue is known as a qawl (speech), and the work that is performed with any organ other than the tongue is referred to as a fi`l (action). Therefore, al-aqwaal (speeches) and al-af`aal (actions) are both forms of al-a`maal (works).

The activity of the tongue (qawl) is never referred to as an action (fi`l) in the Arabic language because indeed, people speak often, but they rarely hold themselves accountable to what they have said. This explains why Allah Glorified is He says, ‘O you who have believed, why do you say (taquloon) things which you do not act upon (taf'aloon)?’ (as-Saff: 2)

In summary, one could say that speech and action are counterparts, but each represents a different type of work. Hence, Allah Glorified is He says, ‘…why do you say (taquloon) things which you do not act upon (taf`aloon)?’ (as-Saff: 2) He did not say, ‘...why do you say things which you do not work upon (ta`maloon) ’ because speech is a type of work (`amal), but it is not an action (fi`l).

Integrity, or maintaining a consistency between your actions and your speech, is essential for a believer. When actions and speech are not concordant, the integrity of the person is lost. The mention of the truthful people (al-sadiqun) which occurs throughout the Quran refers to the people of integrity.

In the same way, Allah Glorified is He has chided the individual who commands people to observe piety while forgetting to observe it himself. He fails to act in accordance with the counsel he gives others, and does things against which he cautions them. Allah Glorified is He says, ‘Do you bid other people to be pious, while you forget your own selves’ (al-Baqara: 44)?

In essence, the objective of one who enjoins good and forbids evil, and conveys the way prescribed by Allah unto others, is to pull them out of the misguided movements with which they have become familiar. Indeed, rescuing a disbeliever from a misguided movement is a painstaking affair. After first acknowledging his misguidance, the sinner or disbeliever must distance himself from what formed the intimate habits of his life. It is perhaps for these reasons that he becomes a close observer of the person who helped him to recognize his misguidance.

Therefore, the disbeliever watches the person who is trying to guide him very closely. Does he actually practise what he calls me to practise? Does he really abstain from the things which have been prohibited? If he finds that the individual actually practises what he preaches, he will recognize that he is truthful in his outreaching effort. On the other hand, if he notices cognitive dissonance on behalf of the believer, it becomes an excuse for the sinner to return to his former state of disbelief.

Indeed, Islam is comprised of words and deeds. A lapse in consistency between these two entities will destroy the efforts of inviting people to Islam. Allah made the gravity of the matter of integrity clear when He used the words: ‘O you who have believed’ (as-Saff: 2). This means that this integrity is one of the demands of faith. Why is that the case? Indeed, if a person engages in the same sins which he is commanding others to avoid, he will be seen as a fraud impostor. Essentially, there is no available way for a person to call people towards things which he has not adopted himself.

This gives us a greater insight into the Quranic declaration: ‘Verily, in the Apostle of Allah (Prophet Muhammad) you have a good example, for everyone who looks forward (with hope and awe) to Allah and the Last Day, and remembers Allah unceasingly.’ (al-Ahzab: 21)

As a system, Islam does not serve us well unless we implement it. For this reason, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him did not command His companions to carry out an action except after preceding them in performing it. Therefore, the Muslims followed his example in actions as well as in words.

It has been mentioned that when `Umar ibn Al-Khattab Allah be pleased with him became responsible for the believers, he wanted to introduce a new form of legislation into law. So, he gathered his own family members first and said to them, ‘It seems to me that this legislation is beneficial. I swear by Allah, if any of you (my family) disobeys me (by not obeying this new legislation as other people will obey it) I will issue you a speedy and exemplary punishment before the other Muslims.’ In this manner, `Umar ibn Al-Khattab was able to close the door of disharmony and contention. He understood that being accused of nepotism could potentially be a major source of disruption in the community.

The condition of integrity is of a great importance to religious scholars. They must set ideal examples for others. In disciplines other than religious studies, it is enough that specialists be knowledgeable in their respective fields. If an outstanding chemist has an alcohol addiction, people would say that his personal behaviour is irrelevant as they only rely upon his knowledge of chemistry. If he excels in his field, people will still respect him for his specialization and will not be concerned with his conduct. The same thing could be said about geologists or any other group of specialists. Religious scholars are a major exception from this allowance.

If a religious scholar taught you and guided you to live righteously, and then you learned that he drank alcohol or stole possessions from others, would you continue taking guidance from him? Of course you would not because his esteem would fall drastically in your eyes. Regardless of the amount of knowledge he possessed, you would not listen to him nor attend his classes. You would refer to this type of an individual as a cheating imposter. This makes it very clear that a scholar of religious faith must have an exemplary character. He should not be guilty of commanding people to abstain from evil while he, himself, perpetrates it. He should not enjoin people to do good deeds while he, himself, is negligent in their performance. Undoubtedly, people are watching him closely.

Additionally, what good is there in saying that we are Muslims, if our actions are not representative of Islam? The believer is requested to do two things. Firstly, the believer should abstain from committing evil. Secondly, the believer should forbid the perpetuation of evil.

Nevertheless, on the other hand, if someone guides you to do good deeds and cautions you from committing evil deeds, and then, you find that he, himself, engages in them, do not resort to the argument, ‘Straighten yourself out first before advising me’! Even if the adviser is a sinner, try to take his advice all the same. You should not be like the one being scolded in the following couplet of poetry:

To the messenger pay no mind, but to the message take heed,
Reap the fruit of the harvest and leave the wood for the fire.

However, we are also saying to the people advising others that they should follow their own advice first before trying to guide others. This is because a believer should avoid being included among those mentioned in the previous two verses!

Before Islam began to spread through verbal scholarly efforts, it actually spread through the exemplary conduct of righteous Muslims. In fact, one could go so far as to say that the vast majority of people who embraced Islam did so as a result of the exemplary character they observed among Muslims. Take those who were responsible for the spread of Islam in China, for instance, as most of them were traders who attracted people to Islam with their uprightness and moral character.

Allah Glorified is He provided us with an example of this phenomenon in the story of Prophet Shu'aib (Jethro) peace be upon him. He was admonishing his people for tampering with their scales and measures, and for their engagement in other fraudulent practises when conducting business transactions. Allah Glorified is He narrated to us that Prophet Shu`aib said to them: 'I have no desire to do, out of opposition to you, what I am asking you not to do' (Hud: 88). This means that he was only inviting them towards the righteous rules which he personally imposed upon himself because Allah had mandated these rules and prohibited these fraudulent practises.

There is another important point within the two verses we are currently examining. Allah Glorified is He says, 'O you who have believed, why do you say (taquloon) things which you do not act upon (taf`aloon)? Most loathsome is it in the sight of Allah that you say what you do not do' (as-Saff: 2-3). As we said, this verse was revealed after a group of Muslims had gathered to discuss the most beloved action to Allah Glorified is He. When they learned that the most beloved action to Allah Glorified is He was taking up arms in His way, with firmness and composure, this mandate was not liked by some Muslims. Therefore, Allah says, to them: '…why do you say (taquloon) things which you do not act upon (taf`aloon)?' 'You were asking about the action most beloved to Allah Glorified is He. So, why were you unresponsive to the mandate of Allah when it was revealed'? This marks a characteristic of the hypocrites, whom Allah described in the verse in which He says, 'Now those who have believed say, "Would a revelation (allowing us to fight) be revealed?" But now that a revelation clear in and by itself, mentioning war has been revealed, you can see those in whose heart is a disease looking at you, (O Muhammad,) with the look of one about to faint for fear of death' (Muhammad: 20).

This verse compared the hypocrites to people in the last throes of death! The metaphor illustrated the anxiety and fear that a dying person has in these moments. The companions were requesting a chapter which would decisively settle this matter for them, but when such a chapter was revealed and made mention of taking up arms, the hypocrites started fretting fearfully like a person experiencing the pains of death. It may be easy for a hypocrite to attend the congregational prayer in the mosque. In fact, he might even pray in the first row! Yet, if faith demands that he take up arms, it is a different story as he will reveal his true colours.

'Woe to them (the way they have chosen). Indeed, far better for them would be obedience (to Allah's call) and a word that could win (His) approval: for since the matter has been resolved (by His revelation), it would be but for their own good (to remain true to Allah's way)' (Muhammad: 20-21). Indeed, carrying out that which Allah Glorified is He commanded would have been better for them than the hypocrisy they displayed. They will be honoured with the voluntary strife in the Way of Allah Glorified is He and they will be spared from the compulsory death which will come later in their lives without an honorable strife.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says, 'Most (kabura) loathsome it is in the sight of Allah that you say what you do not do!' (as-Saff: 3) This saying is intended to convey the odiousness of such a trait in the sight of Allah Glorified is He.

The Arabic word kabura is used in two meanings. The first meaning is in the reference to a person's age and becomes yakburu in the present tense. The second meaning refers to something becoming enormous, great, or grave and poses a challenge to people. An example of this can be located in the verse in which Allah Glorified is He says, '...dreadful (kaburat) is this saying that comes out of their mouths, (and) nothing but falsehood do they utter' (al-Kahf: 5). The verse clarified that the claim that Allah has offspring is a gravely horrendous claim.

Then again, as we mentioned above, the 'enormousness' conveyed by the term kabura may be used in a different way, as in the following statement of Allah Glorified is He: '…that (monotheism) to which you call them (to embrace) appears difficult (kabura) upon the polytheists' (ash-Shura: 13). This means that the call to true faith and monotheism was a severe challenge to the idolaters and proved very difficult for them.

In the verse we are currently examining, we find the word kabura in the following context: 'Most (kabura) loathsome (maqtan) it is in the sight of Allah that you say what you do not do' (as-Saff: 3). This is intended to convey the heinousness of the lack of integrity. The Arabic word maqt is actually the strongest type of dislike one can express. This lack of integrity between words and actions is absolutely detestable in the sight of Allah Glorified is He.

The following statement of Allah Glorified is He is another example of this usage. Allah says, '...those who would pose arguments against Allah's messages, without having any (revealed) evidence to support them: (have committed a sin) exceedingly loathsome in the sight of Allah and the believers' (Ghafir: 35).

So, remember that saying things that one does not do is a most heinous crime in the sight of Allah Glorified is He.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

إِنَّ ٱللَّهَ يُحِبُّ ٱلَّذِينَ يُقَٰتِلُونَ فِي سَبِيلِهِۦ صَفّٗا كَأَنَّهُم بُنۡيَٰنٞ مَّرۡصُوصٞ ٤

God truly loves those who fight in solid lines for
His cause, like a well-compacted wall [4]
(The Quran, as-Saff: 4)

A solid row (saff) or rank is achieved when a mass of people coalesces and join tightly so that there are no gaps between the soldiers. Solid ranks do not simply refer to throngs of people, but refer to rows made with formation and discipline. Indeed, the Hadith of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him tells us how he was even straightening the rows of his army while staring down the enemy!

As a matter of fact, he once nudged one of his men in the stomach to get him back into formation. The soldier, who loved Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said to him: ‘O Messenger of Allah. That hurt me a little!’ Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him responded, ‘Here is my stomach. You may strike me back if you like.’ The man accepted his offer but then kissed the Prophet instead and said, ‘By Allah, I hope to leave this battle a martyr. Nothing would delight me more than to have my life punctuated by an encounter with you.’(1)

Neat, tightly closed ranks are a sign of discipline, order, and preparation in a fighting force. It demonstrates their capacity to effectuate orders. This is how the angels stand in ranks and wait for the orders of Allah Glorified is He. Each angel is ready to carry the role they have been assigned to perform.

If you analyse the words that occur in the Quran with the Arabic root s-f-f, you will find that the meaning of each relates to ranks. For example, ‘Hence, (O sorcerers of Egypt,) decide upon the scheme which you will pursue, and then come forward in one single body (saff)’ (Ta Ha: 64). This means, ‘Plan among yourselves and then stand together firmly.’ Indeed, the believers should stand together as if they were one fist. Surely, this makes their appearance more awe-inspiring and intimidating to the enemy. It is interesting that this is the same advice the magicians of Pharaoh gave each other when they attempted to stand against Prophet Musa (Moses) peace be upon him.

(1) This Hadith was narrated by Al-Hakim in his Mustadrak (5262) on the authority of Ibn Abu Layla, who said: ‘Usayd ibn Hudayr was a righteous, good-natured man. Once, while Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was arranging the ranks in preparation for battle, he was creating a disruption by talking and entertaining people, so Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him gave him a slight jab in the waist to get him into position. After being struck, he said, “That hurt a bit”, so Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him offered him the chance to even the score by striking him back. He agreed to take the offer, but first pointed out that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was wearing a shirt (which would shield him from the blow) while he was bareback. Once Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him removed his shirt, Usayd embraced and kissed him, and said: ‘O Messenger of Allah. May my mother and father be offered as your ransom!’” Concerning the Hadith, Al-Hakim said, ‘Its chain of narrators is sound but neither Al-Bukhari nor Muslim included it within their collections.’

Even in the Hereafter, the appearance of humanity before Allah Glorified is He on the Day of Judgment will take place in rows! Allah Glorified is He says, ‘And they will be lined up before your Lord’ (al-Kahf: 48). They will be lined up before Allah, as an army is lined up before its commander. He will see all of them as they stand before Him in well-arranged ranks.

The manner in which judgment will be carried out will be similarly well arranged. On that day, no one present will be able to avoid or flee from the orders of Allah Glorified is He. They will be arranged in rows, one after another, but each row will be separate and distinct.

Allah Glorified is He also said concerning the angels in general: ‘And, verily, we too are arranged (before Him in worship)’ (as-Saffat: 165). This refers to their standing in highly disciplined formations waiting to receive their orders. In addition to the ordered formation, the idea of ranks also conveys a sense of harmony. There is no jockeying for position within the ranks. Lastly, ranked formations are a daunting sight for any enemy that stands before the army and it inspires awe within onlookers.

In a Prophetic Hadith narrated on the authority of Al- Bara` ibn `Azib(1), it is narrated that: ‘When Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him arranged the ranks in preparation for a prayer, he would run his hands over our chests and shoulders while saying, ‘Gaps in your ranks will lead to dissension among your hearts’. Indeed, Allah and His angels send blessings upon those who pray in the first rows. Stand shoulder to shoulder and foot to foot while reciting your prayers. Allah likes the perfection of the rows for the prayer just as He likes the perfection of the ranks during battle.’(2) He then recited the following verse: ‘Verily, Allah loves those who fight in His cause in (solid) ranks, as though they were a building firm and compact' (as-Saff: 4). In other words, Allah Glorified is He loves the ranks within the prayer to be closed and compact, and does not like them to be disorderly and sloppy. As we mentioned above, the same rules of formation apply to the ranks during combat.

(1) Al-Bara` ibn `Azib is Al-Bara` ibn `Azib ibn Al-Harith Al-Khazraji (Abu `Umara) was an Ansari. He converted while still a young man and accompanied Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him on 15 military campaigns. The first of them was the Battle of Al-Khandaq. He was appointed Governor of Ar-Ray (in Persia) at the age of twenty-four. Some of the most splendid territories of Western Qazwin were obtained under his command. He lived out the end of his days in Kufa and finally passed away during the time of Mus`ab ibn Az-Zubayr (Al-A`alam 2/46, by Az-Zirikli).

(2) This Hadith was narrated by An-Nisa`i in his Sunnan (811) on the authority of Bara` ibn `Azib.

In both the battle ranks and the prayer lines, closing the ranks facilitates the process of receiving the orders of the commander, keeping composure and poise before the enemy, as well as effectuating commands. Perhaps this explains what happened on the battle of Uhud, when some soldiers in the Muslim army did not follow the orders of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. This proved to be a critical mistake, as after breaking their ranks, the army was exposed to danger and suffered defeat.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him assembled fifty archers and appointed `Abdullah ibn Jubayr(1) as their commander. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said to them: 'Stand here, at these positions, and watch our backs. Whether you see us appearing victorious or appearing to be routed, hold your positions all the same.' However, they did not carry out their orders, as they could not resist the temptations of war spoils. They disobeyed the orders of their commanding officer to hold their positions, and following the order of commanding officers is the basis of all military operations.

They disobeyed the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him; their defeat was inevitable. In retrospect, it was vital that they experience defeat while in the company of the Prophet. Remember, the first battle saw the Muslims victorious. After their initial success, they began to concern themselves with accumulating war booty.

The archers said, 'all the valuables will be claimed by others and nothing will be left for us.' They abandoned their positions and descended to take their share of the spoils. Khalid ibn Al-Walid — who at the time was following the religion of his people—was able to use this to his advantage; he surrounded the Muslim army and the rest is history.

(1) 'Abdullah ibn Jubayr is `Abdullah ibn Jubayr ibn An-Nu`man Al-Ansari. He was present for both `Aqaba and Badr. He was appointed the leader of the archers for the Battle of Uhud and was martyred therein during the year (3 A.H.) (Al-A`lam by Az-Zirikli, 4/76).

The absence of the archers from the post they had been assigned by the Prophet at the base of the mountain provided Khalid with the perfect opportunity to attack the vulnerable, unprotected Muslim army. Perhaps gravest of all, the negligence displayed by the archers almost led to the death of the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him. After the Muslims were left unguarded, the disbelievers of Quraysh unleashed a vicious attack upon them. The companions were made to flee wildly in every direction and the Muslim ranks were disbanded. The army of the idolaters intensified their surge upon the Prophet and even got so close to him that Ibn Qam`a was able to strike the Prophet with a stone and fracture one of his teeth.

The shields of the Prophet were broken and his helmet was smashed into his head so forcefully that it caused blood to flow from his head. During the commotion, the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him attempted to reach the summit of the mountain in order to address his troops, but ended up mounting the shoulders of Talha ibn 'Ubaydullah(1) when he was prevented from doing so.(2) For this reason the most beloved action to Allah that those struggling in His way can perform is standing together as though they were a fortified structure.

The order to stand together in well-organized ranks is not simply for those conducting prayer or fighting in the way of Allah on the battlefield; by no means, it is also for those calling unto the way of Allah. Those channelling their energies to invite others to Islam as well as scholars studying various aspects of the faith should also stand together in unified ranks—not allowing anything to divide them or their efforts.

(1) Talha ibn `Ubaydullah ibn Abu Muhammad among the Companions was known for his bravery. He was born in the year 28 B.H. He was one of the ten Companions who were promised paradise and one of the six consulted about the Caliphate after the death of the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him. Prior to his embracing Islam he was known as one of the most brilliant members of Quraysh and recognized as one of their scholars. He was known as Talha Al-Jood. He was present for the Battle of Uhud, a battle which saw him stand with the Prophet; defending him while sustaining twenty-four wounds. At age sixty-four he was killed (26 A.H.) during the Battle of the Camel as he fought alongside `Aisha Allah be pleased with her. He was buried in Basra.

(2) Cited in Ar-Rahiq Al-Makhtum (1/245): The Prophet peace and blessings be upon him told Talha: 'You have earned the promise.' He was referring to the fact Talha had earned the promise of Paradise.

As a matter of fact, some scholars have opined that the statement of Allah: ‘Consider these [messages] ranged in serried ranks’ (as-Saffat: 1) contains a wide range of meanings; among them, the ranks of propagating and inviting others to Islam, the ranks of defending Islam, and the ranks of protecting the uninhibited right of others to choose Islam.

In other words, this verse can refer to all manner of propagating the Religion of Allah and defending it before its enemies. Propagating the faith is the responsibility of the scholars, and defending the physical integrity of the community is the responsibility of those striving upon the battlefield. Both the aforementioned groups should concert their efforts and work within closed ranks as though they represent fortified structures. The True Lord Glorified is He says: ‘Verily Allah loves [only] those who fight in His cause…’ (as-Saff: 4).

Indeed, in order for fighting to be legitimate in Islam, it must be for the sake of Allah, and not for worldly reasons such as claiming land or wealth. In order for fighting to really be for the sake of Allah its motivation must be Allah alone and unmixed with any desire to exult in power, display arrogance or oppress others. The idea of fighting wars in order to bolster one’s status as a superpower or gain wealth by opening new markets is regarded as morally repugnant in Islam. The goal of a just war is to make the way Allah has prescribed for His servants prevail and giving aid to the Religion of Allah. This sheds light on the following statement of Allah the Exalted: ‘Hence let them fight in Allah’s cause’ (an-Nisa’: 74). To be sure, this highlights the fact that fighting can be carried out for other than the sake of Allah; for instance, those who fight as a result of blind partisanship or in order to demonstrate their bravery and valour.

In fact, this has caused some people to question among themselves: Who is the real martyr? The scholars responded: One who fights in order to see the way of his Lord prevail and is killed is a martyr. In the final analysis, we can say that fighting may be engaged for the sake of Allah or for other selfish and perhaps even devilish ends.

Allah encourages the believers to strive in His cause and expend themselves in effort to make His way prevail. Indeed, once an individual has accepted faith it is not conceivable that he would neglect the responsibility of striving within the ranks of the faithful. As long as his heart finds contentment in faith, is it possible for him to invest his effort into striving with those who are motivated by other than faith?

The statement of Allah '…those who fight in His cause in [solid] ranks, as though they were a building firm and compact' (as-Saff: 4) gives special attention to a particular type of fighting. Human beings fight for different reasons; some are motivated by blind partisanship to particular groups, some by defending their nationalities, and some by other affiliations. From the standpoint of the faith, these various affiliations have no value unless they emanate from the way prescribed by Allah and are placed in the service of making His way prevail.

This is the frame of mind the believer assumes before entering battle, and thus he is removed from the zeal which is produced by the motivation of arrogance, wealth, or prestige. Quite the reverse, you fight when fighting is required. You proceed and engage the circumstances as faith demands, taking assurance in the fact that your only aspiration is to be counted among those who truly fear Allah. When you are fighting with the goal of helping the way of Allah prevail you are in the accompaniment of Allah.

Perhaps it should go without saying that in as much as you are fighting for the sake of Allah, that fighting must be engaged according to the law of Allah. To be sure, Allah has prohibited you from using extreme force and transgressing by killing women, children, or the elderly. Killing any of the above-mentioned categories of non-combatants would be transcending the limits set by Allah. (1)

(1) On the authority of Safwan ibn-`Assal Al-Muradi: 'The Prophet peace and blessings be upon him sent us out as a military detachment and said to us, "Attack in the name of Allah. Do not use excessive force, do not fight dishonourably, do not mutilate the corpses of the dead and do not kill a child."' This Hadith was narrated by Ahmad in his Musnad (18122). Also, in Al-Mu`ajam Al-Wasit (4/268) it is cited on the authority of Ibn `Abbas that the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him when sending forth a military detachment would say: 'Make your approach in the name of Allah, and as soldiers striving in His way. Go forward and fight those who avowedly reject the religion of Allah; however, do not use excessive force or fight dishonourably. Furthermore, you should refrain from mutilating the corpses of the dead, and killing women, children or the elderly.'

Additionally, because those fighting within the ranks are fighting for the sake of Allah, their formation must be as Allah commanded: '…as though they were a building firm and compact.' (as-Saff: 4)

At perhaps a deeper a level, we can say that the verse is demonstrating that faith makes the believers into a fortified structure; one in which all the parts support each other. And while this is true of the believers generally, it is especially true of those fighting in the way of Allah.

The statement of Allah '…a building firm and compact' (as-Saff: 4) is a metaphor which shows its merits upon reflection. A building is described as firm and compact when the bricks which make it up are set well enough to avoid the possibility of ever becoming loose. This means that the other bricks surround it in a way that gives it stability and firmness.

Next, The True Lord Glorified is He says:

وَإِذْ قَالَ مُوسَىٰ لِقَوْمِهِۦ يَٰقَوْمِ لِمَ تُؤْذُونَنِى وَقَد تَّعْلَمُونَ أَنِّى رَسُولُ ٱللَّهِ
إِلَيْكُمْ ۖ فَلَمَّا زَاغُوٓا۟ أَزَاغَ ٱللَّهُ قُلُوبَهُمْ ۚ وَٱللَّهُ لَا يَهْدِى ٱلْقَوْمَ ٱلْفَٰسِقِينَ ﴿٥﴾

Moses said to his people, 'My people, why do you hurt me when you know that I am sent to you by God?' When they went astray, God left their hearts to stray: God does not guide rebellious people [5] (The Quran, as-Saff: 5)

When the True Lord Glorified is He dispatched Musa (Moses) and Harun (Aaron) unto Pharaoh with a verse which demonstrated their truthfulness, their primary objective was delivering the children of Israel and rescuing them from the oppression of Pharaoh. The question of faith, i.e., the misguidance of Pharaoh in matters of faith was of secondary importance. These words of Musa's (Moses's) capture the first priority of the mission: '…let, then, the children of Israel go with us, and cause them not to suffer…' (Ta Ha: 47).

In other words, Musa (Moses) was saying, 'we have come for our children, we have come to rescue them this torment and suffering'. Indeed, he came to Pharaoh with miracles which should have served as proof of his truthfulness. Nevertheless, Musa (Moses) was not spared of the evil of Pharaoh. Pharaoh said of him: '…a spellbinder is he, a liar!' (Ghafir: 24)

Allah say, '[Pharaoh] exclaimed: "Behold, [this] your 'apostle' who [claims that he] has been sent unto you is mad indeed"' (ash-Shu'ara': 27), and '…am I not better than this contemptible man who can hardly make his meaning clear?' (az-Zukhruf: 52)

Naturally, Musa (Moses) peace be upon him was exposed to the evil of Pharaoh; indeed, he had come to challenge his claim to divinity. How was Musa (Moses) subjected to harm by the children of Israel? Was it not Musa (Moses) who had come to rescue them from the oppressive grip of Pharaoh and enslavement?

This explains why Musa (Moses) scolded his people so harshly. The True Lord says, 'Now when Musa (Moses) spoke to his people, [it was this same truth that he had in mind:] "O my people! Why do you cause me grief, the while you know that I am an apostle of Allah sent unto you?"…' (as-Saff: 5)

The scholars have said: in causing Musa (Moses) grief, the children of Israel were causing grief to one who had been sent unto them from Allah Glorified is He! They said to him: '…Make us see Allah face to face…' (an-Nisa': 153). With comments like these they extended their transgression from doubts about the actions of Allah to doubts about His essence. They were so submerged in materialism that they even requested to observe Allah within the physical world! They did not understand the idea of the unseen and hence, their souls were not contented with it.

For this reason, the True Lord Glorified is He addresses Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him thusly: 'The People of the Scripture demand of you [O Prophet] that you cause a revelation to be sent down to them from heaven. And an even greater thing than this did they demand of Musa (Moses) when they said, "Make us see Allah face to face" – whereupon the thunderbolt of punishment overtook them for this wickedness. After that, they took to worshipping the [golden] calf – and this, after all evidence of the truth had come unto them! None the less, We effaced this [sin of theirs], and vouchsafed unto Musa (Moses) a clear proof [of the truth].' (an-Nisa': 153)

Another example of their causing Musa (Moses) grief is when they rejected the provision of manna and quail that Allah had given them; they said: '…indeed, we cannot endure but one kind of food; pray, then to your Lord that He bring forth for us aught of what grows from the earth—of its herbs, its cucumbers, its garlic, its lentils, its onions. Musa (Moses) said, "Would you take a lesser thing in exchange for what is [so much] better? Go into [any] settlement, and then you can have what you are asking for…"' (al-Baqara: 61).

Afterward, their actions were again injurious to Musa (Moses) when they worshipped the calf instead of Allah. This took place right after they had been delivered safely from the sea. Musa (Moses) peace be upon him had taken the elect from among them and had set off to be with his Lord. He left his brother Harun (Aaron) in charge of the children of Israel.

They fashioned the calf out of jewellery they had stolen from Egypt with their own hands. As a matter of fact, much of the jewellery used for making the calf had been pieces that they were entrusted with while in Egypt but failed to return upon their departure. In retrospect, perhaps this is why that jewellery ended up containing bad consequences for them in the long run. Their leader in their madness was referred to as As-Samiri: '…the effigy of a calf, which made a lowing sound; and thereupon they said [to one another], "This is your deity, and the deity of Musa (Moses)—but he has forgotten [his past]!"' (Ta Ha: 88)

The pain this caused Musa (Moses) is indescribable. He had gone to receive the guidance of Allah and His rulings and laws while his people were engaged in idolatrous worship. They were worshipping other than Allah while he, himself, was experiencing untold nearness to the presence of Allah. Lest they forget, Allah had just rescued them from many long years of bondage and oppression at the hands of Pharaoh in Egypt.

This explains the intensity of Musa's (Moses's) anger at his people. Concerning this occasion, The True Lord says, 'Thereupon Musa (Moses) returned to his people full of wrath and sorrow, [and] exclaimed: "O my people! Did your Lord not hold out [many] a goodly promise to you? Did, then, [the fulfilment of] this promise seem to you too long in coming? Or are you, perchance, determined to see your Lord's condemnation fall upon you, and so you broke your promise to me?"' (Ta Ha: 86)

To be sure, Musa (Moses) was deeply pained and saddened at what had taken place among his people. Indeed, he even said to them: 'and when Musa (Moses) said unto his people: "O my people! Verily you have sinned against yourselves by worshipping the calf; turn, then in repentance to your Maker…'" (al-Baqara: 54).

As for the act of atonement that had been specified for them by their prophet and messenger Musa (Moses) peace be upon him it was: '…mortify yourselves; this will be best for you in your Maker's Sight…' (al-Baqara: 54); it has been said they executed some seventy-thousand members of their people.

Furthermore, they annoyed and vexed Musa (Moses) peace be upon him personally when they accused him of murdering his own brother, Harun (Aaron) while they were scaling a mountain and the latter died. They said, 'indeed, Musa (Moses) harboured animosity and rancour toward his brother so he killed him.' Allah ordered the angels to carry the body of Harun (Aaron) and pass through the procession of the children of Israel so that they could see that his body was unscathed. This occasion is what is intended by the statement of Allah the Exalted: '…Allah showed him to be innocent of whatever they alleged…' (al-Ahzab: 69).

In relation to this verse, others(1) have mentioned that they abused Musa (Moses) peace be upon him by claiming that he had some sort of bodily ailment. They only arrived at this silly conclusion due to his extreme modesty. When dressed he would cover his entire body; even when he bathed or relieved himself!

It is bad enough that some of them claimed that he had leprosy, but even worse, some of them went so far as to claim that he had some type of condition which afflicted his genitals. Allah wanted to clear him of these outrageous charges. One day(2) Musa (Moses) peace be upon him came out and laid down his garments in order to bathe. After he finished, he set off to grab his clothes, but found that the stone upon which he had laid them had dashed away! Musa (Moses) promptly scurried after the stone, grabbing his staff, and screaming 'O stone, my clothes!' repeatedly as he ran behind the stone. At last, the chase ended with him running into a party of the children of Israel. When they saw him without clothes they realised he was absolutely free of the condition with which they claimed he was afflicted. This is what has been transmitted from the Prophet, who said, ‘At last, the chase ended with him running into a party of the children of Israel. When they saw him naked they realised that Allah had created him in a beautiful body.’ In this manner, Allah cleared him of the silly accusations his people had made about him. Finally, the stone stood still so Musa (Moses) could take his clothes; he dressed and eventually set off but not before giving the stone a few blows with his staff!

(1) On the authority of Abu-Hurayra

(2) The story of the taking stone and the stealing of the clothes of Musa (Moses) peace be upon him.

The True Lord Glorified is He referred to the fact that Musa (Moses) peace be upon him was not afflicted with leprosy or any other physical ailment in His statement: ‘[and now] put your hand into your bosom: it will come forth [shining] white, without blemish…’ (al-Qasas: 32).

The word (white), as it appears here, means that his hand was shining and without any trace of ailment or skin condition. Bear in mind that Musa (Moses) peace be upon him was of swarthy complexion which made his hand shining forth with white light even more extraordinary. For this reason, Allah added ‘…without blemish…’ (al-Qasas: 32). This was in order to pre-empt their speculation that he might be afflicted with leprosy or something similar. By no means, his hand was miraculously shining with natural light.

Musa (Moses) was subjected to much abuse; when he began to challenge the authorities, Qarun(1) did the unthinkable. He hired a prostitute to publicly accuse Musa (Moses) of sleeping with her. However, Allah decreed that after the people had assembled she came forward and told the truth about Qarun’s plot. Indeed, Allah cleared the name of His Messenger, Musa (Moses) peace be upon him. On this occasion, Qarun persuaded the prostitute to perform this insidious task by giving her a large metal tin filled with gold. His goal was simply to discredit Musa (Moses) peace be upon him so when he appeared before the people and attempted to explain the law of Allah by saying: The one guilty of theft shall have his hand amputated, the one guilty of fornication shall be subjected to the lash, the one guilty of adultery shall be executed by stoning, etc. Qarun challenged him. Qarun screamed out, ‘and what if it is you, O Musa (Moses)? Musa (Moses) responded with integrity, ‘Yes, even if it is me.' This is when the prostitute stood and blurted out: 'He (Musa (Moses) seduced me! Obviously shocked at the utter falsehood of her statement, Musa (Moses) said to the woman, 'By the One Who separated the sea, speak the truth! Just then, the woman trembled and plainly acknowledged—in front of all the on-lookers—Qarun's plan to assassinate Musa's (Moses's) character. Needless to say, the plan Qarun had hatched became exposed and this marked the beginning of a long period of contention between he and Musa (Moses) peace be upon him.(1)

(1) The story of Qarun's spite to Musa (Moses) peace be upon him, and his investigation of a whore to frequent him.

This explains why Allah mentions: '...O my people! Why do you cause me grief, the while you know that I am an apostle of Allah sent unto you?...' (as-Saff: 5)

Musa (Moses) peace be upon him was saying: First, you acknowledge the truth of my prophetic mission. The word qad appears here in order to convey emphasis. In other words, they were absolutely certain that he was a prophet. Imagine a perplexed Musa (Moses) questioning, 'You clearly seem to acknowledge that I am sent unto you by Allah, why then, do you insist on causing me such harm? In and of itself, what you have charged me with is odious, but when looked at through the lens of prophethood and conveying the message of Allah, it is even worse'. Allah the Exalted not only declared him innocent of these baseless charges, but also positively asserted his uprightness by saying: '...for of great honour was he in the sight of Allah.' (al-Ahzab: 69)

The great honour mentioned in the previously cited verse refers to the fact that his requests and supplications will find reception with Allah. Wrongfully charging him with misconduct is something from which one with at least a shred of intelligence would shrink. Being honourable entails respect, dignity, and esteem.

These characteristics aren not gained haphazardly; absolutely not, they are usually preceded by actions which earn them for their possessor. If truth be told, people normally respect individuals who excel them in qualities they esteem.

(1) This was cited in a collection of Hadiths attributed to Ibn `Abbas Allah be pleased with him. Narrated by At-Tabari in his Tafsir (20/116), Ibn Abu Hatim in his Tafsir (9/2006) and by Ibn `Asakir in Tarikh Dimashq (61/97-98)

The source of one's honour among people can be as varied as knowledge, strength, compassion, and concern for the vulnerable, using experience to benefit others, or just simply being helpful.

When the children of Israel looked at Musa (Moses) peace be upon him they did not see a prophet—this despite the fact that he was primarily responsible for delivering them from Pharaoh and his oppression and tyranny. They countenanced the favour of Musa (Moses) by swerving from the truth and surrendering to rebelliousness.

To be sure, the True Lord Glorified is He says, '…and so when they swerved from the right way, Allah let their hearts swerve…' (as-Saff: 5). The verb zaygh (swerve) indicates deviation from a straight course. It is derived from the phrase tazayugh al-asnan which describes teeth which are growing from different positions within the mouth: Some along the gum line, others behind teeth etc. Swerving—as it is used in the last verse—is something which involuntarily occurs within a sick heart. Primordial goodness—with which all people are born—does not naturally incline toward deviation. It is rather the capricious whims; these are the source the heart's deviation. A person might know of the correct position within the law of Allah on a particular matter, but at some point, his undisciplined passions will intervene and he may deviate from the correct way.

Take the children of Israel for instance; they were absolutely positive that Musa (Moses) was a messenger from Allah. Nevertheless, they swerved from that which they knew. The urge to deviate was first found among their hearts. Next, the thoughts became subservient to the hearts' deviation. Then they began to articulate their thoughts. And thus, you observe the source and progression of their deviance.

Indeed, we should observe the manner in which the Quran describes this process when it proclaims: '…and so when they swerved from the right way, Allah let their hearts swerve…' (as-Saff: 5), it is as if Allah is saying, in so much as the original desire to deviate from the right course starts with you, I will facilitate and even further that which you, yourselves, desire.

The True Lord Glorified is He doesn not begin by making a person incline toward something which contravenes His orders. The desire to rebel always begins with the individual and his whims. Once this occurs, Allah leaves the person to his own desires and then furthers the inclination toward deviance.

The phenomenon we are discussing is starkly similar to that being described in the following verse: ‘and whenever a chapter is bestowed from on high, they look at one another [and say, as it were], “is there anyone who can see you?” – and then they turn away. Allah has turned their hearts away [from the truth] – for they are people who will not grasp it.’ (at-Tawba: 127)

This establishes that the deviance began with them: Only after they turned away did Allah make their hearts turn away from faith. Thus, no one can say, ‘it was Allah who made them disincline from faith, so how can they be blamed for turning away?’ Quite the reverse, they turned away of their own choosing because they lacked understanding and comprehension.

For this reason, the believers call upon their Lord while saying: ‘O our Lord! Let not our hearts swerve from the truth after you have guided us…’ (Al-‘Imran: 8). The True Lord Glorified is He has not left the issue of guidance and misguidance without clarification. He has made the characteristics of those who are guided and those who are not, sufficiently clear. What guidance can there be for a man or a woman after they have rejected Allah, deviated from His way, and spread corruption?

Then, the True Lord Glorified is He says, ‘…for Allah does not bestow His guidance upon iniquitous folk.’ (as-Saff: 5) When the True Lord restricts guidance from an individual it does not mean that he is justified in saying, ‘Allah didn not grant me guidance, what can I do?’, in this way he attempts to absolve himself of blame by making Allah wholly responsible for the outcome. On the contrary, we must question the deviant individual: Why did Allah restrict his guidance from you? He only did so because you expressed an inclination toward deviance.

Therefore, we can say that a lack of guidance from Allah is the result of taking the path of misguidance and distancing oneself from the way of Allah. With this as a premise we clearly recognize that the usage of guidance within this verse does not correspond with the general definition of ‘leading someone on the path to good’. Allah leads both believers and disbelievers to the path of good. The way of Allah, which has been clearly detailed for all people demonstrates the path of good and shows men and women the way to it. The concept of guidance these verses endeavour to convey is the special phenomenon that occurs for people who enter the domain of faith and thereafter perform acts of righteousness. This latter form of guidance is what we often refer to as 'facilitated guidance'.

Each individual who treads the path of faith is aided by Allah so that he can remain upon the path. It is inconceivable that we could ever exculpate a group of deviant persons on the grounds that Allah did not grant them guidance. This is absolutely preposterous. Allah Glorified is He has shown all people the path of goodness. However, the onus of their misguidance should be placed squarely upon their own shoulders. They, of their own will and volition, chose to follow the path of disbelief, oppression, and deviance.

Speaking of deviance, perhaps we should mention a precise definition for the term: it is leaving the obedience of Allah and failing to conform to His way. When we analyse the term etymologically we find that its original usage occurs in the saying, 'fasaqat ar-rutabah' which was said to express the idea of a fruit being deeply submerged underneath its peel. Thus, red dates and other fruits grow naturally with peels which, before they ripen, are almost inextricably linked to them. However, when the red date or other fruits ripen and become moist, the peel darkens and the fruit begins to separate from them. As this natural process nears completion it becomes easy to remove the peel off the fruit.

This is exactly the manner in which a deviant is removed from beneath the protective canopy that is the way of Allah. This 'peel', if you will, sloughs off the deviant until he is no longer connected with it. Disconnection from the way of Allah occurs when the servant no longer has a practical relationship with His commandments and prohibitions.

Deviance is at the seat of all moral corruption. To be sure, moral corruption only appears when the way of Allah has been abandoned, on a particular occasion in which case it is to be classified as caprice, or repeatedly in which case it is referred to as obstinacy. Allah Glorified is He does not guide a disbelieving people; nor does He bestow His guidance to a deviant or iniquitous people.

Whoever wants to boldly flaunt his restriction from the guidance of Allah only needs to perform actions of disbelief, deviance, or iniquity. Nonetheless, in all of the abovementioned cases, it will be the individual who chose his own path and thereby made the punishment of Allah his rightful recompense. Perhaps this sheds light on the statement of the disbelievers from among the children of Israel who were restricted from the guidance of Allah when He sealed their hearts. Yet, it was the same scenario: They, themselves, had chosen to follow the path of deviance and disbelief. In other words, they wilfully chose to be misguided!

Afterward, the True Lord Glorified is He says:

وَإِذْ قَالَ عِيسَى ٱبْنُ مَرْيَمَ يَٰبَنِىٓ إِسْرَٰٓءِيلَ إِنِّى رَسُولُ ٱللَّهِ إِلَيْكُم مُّصَدِّقًا
لِّمَا بَيْنَ يَدَىَّ مِنَ ٱلتَّوْرَىٰةِ وَمُبَشِّرًۢا بِرَسُولٍ يَأْتِى مِنۢ بَعْدِى ٱسْمُهُۥٓ أَحْمَدُ ۖ فَلَمَّا
جَآءَهُم بِٱلْبَيِّنَٰتِ قَالُوا۟ هَٰذَا سِحْرٌ مُّبِينٌ ﴿٦﴾

Jesus, son of Mary, said, ‘Children of Israel, I am sent to you by God, confirming the Torah that came before me and bringing good news of a messenger to follow me whose name will be Ahmad.’ Yet when he came to them with clear signs, they said, ‘This is obviously sorcery’ [6] (The Quran, as-Saff: 6)

Most of the personalities of the Quran occur without attention to their lineages. There are, however, two noted exceptions to this general rule: `Isa (Jesus) the son of Maryam (Mary) and Maryam (Mary) the daughter of `Imran. Why is this so; one might ask? Indeed, their story involves a miracle which will not ever be duplicated. This is the reason Allah presents them in the Quran by using their full names; lest a woman dare come along and claim that she, like Maryam (Mary), experienced Immaculate Conception!

The miracle of Maryam (Mary) will never occur again. Indeed, this is the reason Allah mentioned her specifically by name. Conversely, He never details the lineages of Pharaoh, Musa (Moses) or the Sleepers of Ephesus. Similarly, we find no mention as to the exact person of the Two-Horned One, or the man who owned the two gardens. Again, this can be said of the overwhelming majority of personalities which occur throughout the Quran because the focal point of these stories is not personalities.

`Isa (Jesus) peace be upon him was sent exclusively to the children of Israel. Indeed, he addressed them: '…O children of Israel! Behold, I am an apostle of Allah unto you…' (as-Saff: 6), and Allah spoke of him peace be upon him in the following terms: '…an apostle unto the children of Israel…' (Al-'Imran: 49).

`Isa (Jesus) peace be upon him was sent as a messenger to a specific group of people, the children of Israel; his message was not intended for all humanity. This is what differentiates the message of `Isa (Jesus) and his ministry from that of Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him.

In fact, we find a similar construction introducing the message of Hud peace be upon him. Allah says, 'and unto [the tribe of] `Ad [we sent] their brother Hud…' (al-A'raf: 65), and concerning the people of Midyan:(1) 'and unto [the people of] Madyan [We sent] their brother Shu`aib (Jethro)…' (al-A'raf: 85).

The True Lord Glorified is He made the mission and message of every prophet who preceded Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him specific to particular times and places. To put it more succinctly, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was given the distinct honour of being sent to all people. The message that was given to him is relevant to all times and places. The True Lord highlights this distinction with the following statement: 'Say [O Muhammad]: "O mankind! Verily, I am an apostle of Allah to all of you…"' (al-A'raf: 158).

One of the common characteristics of the messengers is that each of them confirms the truth of the messenger which preceded him and heralds the messenger who will come after him. As we stated above, this characteristic is shared among all the messengers with the exception of Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. He confirmed the truth of that which preceded him, but he did not announce the advent of a messenger who would come after him. Indeed, he is the Final Messenger. Focusing our attention on `Isa (Jesus) peace be upon him he confirmed the message of the Torah—which was still the most current revelation at the onset of his prophetic ministry. The phrase '…confirm the truth…' (as-Saff: 6) which occurs within the verse means that the message brought by `Isa (Jesus) peace be upon him was in conformity with the Torah.

(1) Midyan: the name is derived from a tribe and ruling family. It was a city in the north-western region of the Arabian Peninsula. Currently, it is located in the area known as Al-Bada`a in north-western Saudi Arabia, a region whose major city is Tabuk and its major source of commercial activity is trade. Although they are separated by some large hills, it actually faces the Egyptian city of Dahab which is located on the Red Sea.

With the phrase (whatever still remains) `Isa (Jesus) is making a reference to the Torah and highlighting that he was sent to fulfil and uphold it, To be sure, this does give one occasion to question: in so much as the Torah was present, and `Isa (Jesus) the son of Maryam (Mary) came to confirm the message of the Torah as it existed in his time, what was the purpose of his being sent to proclaim a new, distinct message? The answer lies in recognizing that one can introduce new rulings while confirming that which preceded you. The two are not mutually exclusive. In another place, Allah the Exalted says concerning `Isa (Jesus) peace be upon him: 'and [I have come] to confirm the truth of whatever there still remains of the Torah and to make lawful unto you some of the things which [a foretime] were forbidden to you…' (Al-'Imran: 50). As such, his mission is not limited to confirmation. `Isa (Jesus) also came to make some of the things that were prohibited in the Torah lawful unto the children of Israel. Of course, it goes without saying that the core beliefs which define the way of Allah and the rulings which emanate from them do not change or alternate. Likewise, the stories and parables of the people of the past that have been included in the various revelations do not change. Change only occurs in a few rulings.

Revelation occurs in a progression. Nevertheless, there is congruency, harmony, and reinforcement among the various instalments within the progression. None of the messengers ever propagated a message which contradicted that which preceded them or that which came after them. Therefore, `Isa (Jesus) came to confirm what remained of the Torah in his time.

Torah is a Hebrew term which became the name assigned to the book that was revealed to Musa (Moses) peace be upon him. The inclusion of this term in the Quran, a purely Arabic scripture does not mean it is somehow less authentic. The Quran was revealed to Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. This was a common word among the Arabs; when said, its meaning was readily understood.

Within a contemporary context, a good example of the same phenomenon would be our adoption of the word (bank). This has become an Arabic word:

it is written in Arabic script and regularly used by Arabic speakers. The Quran being purely an Arabic scripture means that when Allah addressed the Arabs He did so with words and terms that they understood and were in use among them; even if some of them originated in languages other than Arabic.

Therefore, the effort that some scholars have expended to prove that these words actually have Arabic origins is totally unnecessary. They are often at pains to find original Arabic linguistic patterns to which these words conform and to uncover etymological roots for them.

Thus, we can observe the dual function of `Isa (Jesus) the son of Maryam (Mary): He came to confirm that which was conveyed by Musa (Moses). He also came to herald the advent of a messenger who would come after him. He said to his people: ‘and [this happened, too,] when `Isa (Jesus), the son of Maryam (Mary), said: “O children of Israel! Behold, I am an apostle of Allah unto you, [sent] to confirm the truth of whatever there still remains of the Torah, and to give [you] the glad tiding of an apostle who shall come after me, whose name is Ahmad.” But when he [whose coming `Isa (Jesus) had foretold] came unto them with all evidence of the truth, they said: “This [alleged message of his] is [nothing but] spellbinding eloquence!”’ (as-Saff: 6)

In the Gospel, Prophet Muhammad is referred to by the name Ahmad. (1) In the Quran he is referred to be the name Ahmad only once but referred to by the name Muhammad in four places: Allah the Exalted says, ‘and Muhammad is only an apostle; all the [other] apostles have passed away before him…’ (Al-‘Imran: 144). He also says, ‘[and know, O believers, that] Muhammad is not the father of any one of your men, but is Allah’s apostle and the Seal of all Prophets. And Allah indeed has Full Knowledge of everything.’ (al-Ahzab: 40), and Allah the Exalted says, ‘whereas those who have attained to faith and do righteous deeds, and have come to believe in what has been bestowed from on high on Muhammad – for it is the truth from their Lord – [shall attain to Allah’s Grace:] He will efface their [past] bad deeds, and will set their hearts at rest.’ (Muhammad: 2)

(1) In the Hebrew Torah, in third book of Exodus we find: ‘The land will be filled with the praise of Ahmad. He will seize the nations by their necks with his right hand.’ We have also located older copies; the first printed in London in the year 1848 and another printed in Beirut in 1884. In the older printings, you find that the mention within the Book of Exodus occurs with stark clarity: ‘indeed, the skies will be illumined by the splendour of the Praised One (Muhammad). The earth will be filled with his praise… Your call to reform is echoed by the rivers. Even in the depth of the seas your burning voice is not extinguished. O Muhammad! The mountains were put to pasture after witnessing you.’

Allah the Exalted proclaims: ‘Muhammad is Allah’s apostle; and those who are [truly] with him are firm and unyielding towards all deniers of the truth, [yet] full of mercy towards one another. You can see them bowing down, prostrating themselves [in prayer], seeking favour with Allah and [His] goodly acceptance…’ (al-Fath: 29).

The words Muhammad and Ahmad are derived from the same tri-lateral root h-m-d. All of the words derived from the root involve the concept of praise; however, the words Ahmad and Muhammad have different connotations.

Upon analysis, we find that Muhammad refers to an entity which is praised by others. The word mukarram — which appears on the same linguistic pattern but is derived from the tri-lateral root k-r-m whose derivatives all involves honour—provides an example of the same phenomenon. When we say, ‘so and so is mukarram’ we are saying that he has been honoured by others. The word Ahmad on the other hand, refers to an entity which engages in the act of praising something other than itself.

Additionally, the word Ahmad corresponds with the linguistic pattern af`al which connotes superlative expression. For example, we say, ‘so and so is generous (karim) and so and so is more generous (akram).’ Therefore, we can conclude that the word Ahmad refers to someone who praises abundantly. Looking in further detail, we find that the word hamid, derived from the same root, is used to refer to one whose level of praise is appropriate for that which he is praising.

If you look at the names of the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him referred to by most frequently, Ahmad and Muhammad, you find that both express qualities about him in the superlative. Ahmad is a superlative expression of one who praises, while Muhammad is a superlative expression of one who receives praise.

Allah granted the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him two beautiful qualities: He is praised by Allah and he engages in abundant praise of Allah. This is quintessence of the prophetic personality: He is at once the Chosen and the Elect, and one striving to earn the favour of Allah.

The names Muhammad and Mahmoud highlight the election of the Prophet while Hamid and Ahmad express his striving to be near to Allah. The Prophet peace and blessings be upon him is the embodiment of these two essential qualities; as he said once, 'I am Muhammad. I am Ahmad. I am Al-Muqaffi and Al-Hashir, (1) the Prophet of Repentance, and the Prophet of Mercy.'(2)

The True Lord Glorified is He says, 'and there shall not be one of the People of the Book, but shall believe in him [`Isa (Jesus)] before his death and on the Day of Judgement he shall be a witness against them.' (an-Nisa': 159)

This verse is making it clear that every member of the people of the Book will believe that `Isa (Jesus) peace be upon him as a servant, a messenger and perhaps most important of all, a human being, before he passes away. However, this will not happen until he comes in the flesh and proclaims to them: 'You were mistaken when you rejected my foretelling of the coming of Muhammad, the Seal. Also, you were mistaken when you accused my mother of impropriety. To be sure, evidence of your mistake is contained in the messenger whose coming I foretold: Muhammad, the messenger who has been sent to all mankind. Right here, before you all, I pledge my allegiance to Muhammad by offering prayer behind one of the members of his community'.

The True Lord Glorified is He says, 'those who shall follow the [last] apostle, the unlettered Prophet whom they shall find described in the Torah that is with them, and [later on] in the Gospel…' (al-A'raf: 157).

Notice the detail in the exposition of the Quran. It did not say mention the last apostle whose description is written in their scriptures; on the contrary, it said: '...whom they shall find described in the Torah that is with them, and [later on] in the Gospel...' (al-A'raf: 157). Indeed, the verse affirms that one who reads the Torah or the Gospel can find a detailed depiction of the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him. Both the Torah and the Gospel grant us ample, comprehensive accounts of the last Prophet peace and blessings be upon him.

(1) Al-Muqaffi: some say that the source of this name is the fact that 'the affair' ended with him. That is to say: He is the last of the Prophets. There will be no prophet after him. The name could also refer to his being a follower of the Prophets who came before him. Tahdhib Al-Lugha... This was the opinion offered by Shamr

(2) This Hadith was narrated by Al-Bukhari in his Sahih (3532) and by Muslim in his Sahih (6251). In the Hadith which was narrated on the authority of Jubayr ibn Matam.

If truth be told, the people of the Book had come to Yathrib to witness the fulfilment of prophecy: They wanted to identify and follow this prophet whose arrival had been mentioned in the Torah.

Reflect upon the covenant Allah took from the prophets: '...you must believe in him and succour him...' (Al-'Imran: 81). The messengers conveyed the message to the various communities to which they were sent, and told the people of faith of the coming generation that they would encounter a messenger who would teach them the consummate expression of the way of Allah. This was the fulfilment of the covenant.

Those who truly know the Torah and the Gospel can recognize the descriptions of the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him within them: 'They unto whom We have vouchsafed revelation a foretime know him as they know their own children: but behold, some of them knowingly suppress the truth' (al-Baqara: 146).

Vividly underscoring this point, `Umar ibn Al-Khattab(1) Allah be pleased with him once asked `Abdullah ibn Salam: 'How did you know him, O ibn-Salam?' What `Umar intended to convey by his question was how `Abdullah ibn Salam recognize Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him by the content of his message or by his physical characteristics. Ibn Salam, who we must remember was a Jewish rabbi, responded by saying, 'I knew him as I knew my own son. In fact, I knew him better than I knew my own son! Indeed, regarding my son there is a chance—no matter how slight—that his mother could have deceived me; with Muhammad however, his description occurs in the Torah with such detail as would make it nearly impossible to misidentify him.'(2) As such, the people of the Book know the Prophet: they know the time of the advent of his prophecy, his message, and his physical characteristics with great certainty. Before the arrival of the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him the Jews of Yathrib would say to the idolaters, 'We have been awaiting the arrival of our prophet for quite some time. However, once he arrives, we will believe in him and proceed to vanquish you as the peoples of `Ad and Iram were vanquished.(1)

(1) The story of `Umar ibn Al-Khattab Allah be pleased with him, asking `Abdullah ibn Salam about the mention of Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in the Torah.

(2) Ath Tha`alabi mentioned the following narration from As-Suda As-Saghir who mentioned it on the authority Al-Kalbi who transmitted it from ibn `Abbas. Also, this Hadith was cited by As- Suyuti in Ad-Durr Al-Manthur (2/32)

Nevertheless, when the Prophet arrived in Medina they were the first to disbelieve, oppose him, and dispute the legitimacy of his prophethood. Read the verse of Allah the Exalted: 'and whenever there came unto a [new] revelation from Allah, confirming the truth already in their possession—and [bear in mind that] a foretime they used to pray for victory over those who were bent on denying the truth—: whenever there came unto them something which they recognized [as the truth], they would deny it. And Allah's rejection is the due of all who deny the truth.' (al-Baqara: 89)

Therefore, the advent of Muhammad's prophecy did not come as a surprise to the people of the Book; quite the reverse, they were awaiting his arrival and preparing to believe in him as their scriptures had commanded. Yet, when he arrived they rejected faith and denied the message.

For this reason, the True Lord Glorified is He says, '…But when he [whose coming `Isa (Jesus) had foretold] came unto them with all evidence of the truth, they said: "This [alleged message of his] is [nothing but] spellbinding eloquence!"' (as-Saff: 6)

The pronoun 'he' which occurs in the verse refers to the messenger whose coming was prophesied by `Isa (Jesus) peace be upon him. Of course, this is Ahmad. Thus, one may read the verse, 'But when Ahmad came unto them, and his prophethood became clear to them, they said, "This [alleged message of his] is [nothing but] spellbinding eloquence] is [nothing but] spellbinding eloquence." (as-Saff: 6)

Racked with doubt, these people did not find any reasonable grounds to oppose the Quran. They claimed that he was sorcerer; but then again, does someone under a spell have a will independent of the sorcerer. If he was a sorcerer compelling people to embrace Islam by force of magic, why did he spare you? Why did he fail to cast a spell on you?

(1) In Dala`il An-Nubuwwa (2/76), Al-Bayhaqi cited the following Hadith on the authority of `Asim ibn `Umar ibn Qatada. A similar citation occurs in Ibn-Ishaq's (2/63) work on the Prophetic Biography.

The True Lord Glorified is He primed His Messenger for the contumacy of the haughty and the arrogance of the prideful. He says, ‘But even if We had sent down unto you [O Prophet] a writing on paper, and they had touched it with their own hands – those who are bent on denying the truth would indeed have said, ‘This is clearly nothing but a deception!’ (al-An‘am: 7)

Despite their being able to touch the parchment with their hands, they would still say, ‘…This is clearly nothing but a deception.’ (al-An‘am: 7) The like of this speech would never come from a wise, thinking and reflective person.

Indeed, sorcery can only change the way people see reality. So how can they deem this magic when they are able to touch it with their hands and verify that it is truth! Again, the argument stands: if the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him is such a powerful sorcerer, why did he not cast a spell on them? Why have they proven so difficult to bewitch?

In terms of the portion of the verse which reads ‘…But when he [whose coming `Isa (Jesus) had foretold] came unto them with all evidence of the truth, they said: “this [alleged message of his] is [nothing but] spellbinding eloquence”’ (as-Saff: 6), it could possibly refer to `Isa (Jesus) peace be upon him; he came to them with ‘evidence of the truth’ in the form of the various miracles he performed. ‘Lo! Allah will say, “O `Isa (Jesus), Son of Maryam (Mary)! Remember the blessings which I bestowed upon you and your mother—how I strengthened you with holy inspiration so that you could speak unto men in your cradle, and as a grown man; and how I imparted unto you revelation and wisdom, including the Torah and the Gospel; and how by My leave you did create out of clay, as it were, the likeness of a bird, and then did breathe into it so that it might become, by My leave, a bird and how you did heal the blind and the leper by My leave, and how you did raise the dead by My leave; and how I prevented the children of Israel from harming you when you came unto them with all evidence of truth, and [when] those of them who were bent on denying the truth were saying, ‘This is clearly nothing but deception.’ (al-Ma‘ida: 110)

Allah enabled `Isa (Jesus) to make, out of clay, the shape of a bird, and by the permission of Allah, he was able to bring it to life by breathing into it. Likewise, the True Lord Glorified is He gave him the ability to give sight to the blind and cure the leper by renewing his skin. In fact, Allah even completed the process of giving life to the dead at the hands of `Isa (Jesus).

Nonetheless, they disbelieved in that which was brought by `Isa (Jesus) and considered it no more than sorcery. They were singularly focused on the natural world, and the miracles of `Isa (Jesus) involved defying the laws of nature.

Perhaps this is the reason they found it difficult to grasp the idea that Allah had allowed some members of creation to perform actions which theretofore had only been performed by Allah, Himself. Actions such as reviving the dead, breathing life into the clay figure of a bird, curing the blind, lepers, and others are not natural occurrences. Theses miracles were so impressive that some who were with `Isa (Jesus) erroneously believed he was Allah! Indeed, conjecture never avails the truth of anything!

Afterward, The True Lord says:

وَمَنْ أَظْلَمُ مِمَّنِ ٱفْتَرَىٰ عَلَى ٱللَّهِ ٱلْكَذِبَ وَهُوَ يُدْعَىٰٓ
إِلَى ٱلْإِسْلَـٰمِ ۚ وَٱللَّهُ لَا يَهْدِى ٱلْقَوْمَ ٱلظَّـٰلِمِينَ ٧

Who could be more wrong than someone who invents lies against God when called to submit to Him? God does not guide the wrong-doers [7]
(The Quran, as-Saff: 7)

To answer this rhetorical question, no one is more wicked than someone who invents a lie about Allah. First, such an individual is wronging himself by limiting his concern to the fleeting life of this world and neglecting the Hereafter. Next, he is wronging his community. In fact, he will share in the consequences of the disobedient actions that were committed as a result of the lie he told concerning Allah.

As for the portion of the verse which reads, '…and who could be more wicked…' (as-Saff: 7), it is actually a positive assertion that there is no one more wicked than the one who invents a lie about a message from Allah. In the context of the verse, wickedness consists of misplacing legitimate rights. In scale, wickedness can be grave and egregious; like wickedness in belief, concerning which Allah Glorified is He said, '…for, behold, such [a false] ascribing of divinity is indeed an awesome wrong!' (Luqman: 13) On the other hand, wickedness can be slight and negligible.

The individual who invents a lie about Allah is the most wicked of people. If truth be told, inventing a lie about one of his peers might be regarded as inconsequential; but in this case, who has he invented a lie against? Without doubt, the thing which makes his lie so egregious is that it is about Allah. Put succinctly, it is utter foolishness to invent a lie against Allah. Allah is Omnipotent. He is capable of furnishing proof to combat your lies and refuting you. Furthermore, Allah can completely disable your attempt to concoct this lie! As such, anyone foolhardy enough to even approach this act of wrongdoing is really, only wronging himself.

The word iftira` (inventing a lie) is used to indicate purposefulness. It is quite possible for someone to speak on the basis of what he deems true, while reality happens to be unaligned with his statement.

That is why scholars made a point of developing precise definitions for truth and falsity. They have mentioned: When something that is said is in accordance with reality it is the truth. Conversely, if what is being said is not in accordance with reality it is considered false. Thus, if someone makes a comment—on the basis of their knowledge—which is not supported by reality the statement becomes false. However, it does not necessarily mean the one who issued the statement is a liar.

The statement of Allah, 'and who could be more wicked than one who invents [such] a lie about [a message from] Allah…' (as-Saff: 7) is a clear warning against asserting anything about Allah that has not been revealed to a messenger or within scripture. Inventing a lie about Allah is only a means to harming oneself.

In the final analysis, we have explained that you will not find anyone more wicked than one who conjures up a lie about Allah. However, we have yet to examine how someone invents a lie about Allah. One way a person conjures up a lie about Allah is to falsely claim prophethood. This is a grave lie about Allah; it is not simply an act of deceiving the people as some wrongly believe. A person who falsely claims to have been sent by Allah is engaged in a heinous crime against Him.

This would definitely apply to the false claims to prophethood we have observed throughout history, such as that of Musaylamah Al-Kaddhab, Sajah, Tulayha Al-Asadi, Al-Aswad Al-`Ansi etc.(1) all of these people claimed to be prophets.

One of them even claimed that he was capable of producing something like the Quran, he offered: ‘The grinders and the intensity of their grinding; the kneaders and their kneading; the bakers and the passion of their baking!’ At that rate, it would have been better to start from the beginning of the process! He should have also included: The planters and the intensity of their planting; the harvesters and their harvesting!’ In conclusion, I suppose he could have just said, ‘the food and its being food; the antacids and their not being acidic!

I think it goes without saying that this is just a bunch of poppycock. To be sure, The True Lord revealed His revelatory speech not only in measured, metered tones but also with meanings that contain value as information.

The only purpose their lies serve is misguiding people and barring them from the path of Allah, as is confirmed by the following verse: ‘…and who could be more wicked than he who, without any [real] knowledge, attributes his own lying inventions to Allah, and thus leads people astray? Behold, Allah does not grace [such] evildoing folk with His guidance.' (al-An'am: 144) This means that their expressed reason for conjuring up lies about Allah is to mislead people.

(1) Musaylamah ibn-Habib Al-Hanafi of the tribe of Banu Al-Hanafiya from the region of Al-Yamama... He embraced Islam in the year 9 A.H. Afterward, he returned to Al-Yamama and made his false claim to prophet hood. He claimed that prophet hood was divided among him and Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. At the Battle of Al-Yamama, he finally met his demise at the hands of Wahshi ibn-Harb during the reign of Abu-Bakr. As for Sajah bint Al-Harith ibn-Suwayd, she claimed prophet hood after the death of the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him. She was a woman of Christian faith. There were actually a few people who responded to her claim to prophethood like Malik ibn Nuwayra. Musaylama married her and after the marriage was consummated she received half the produce of his land as a dowry. Tulayha Al-Asadi ibn-Khuwaylid was a commander during the apostasy wars; however, his false claim to prophethood occurred after the death of the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him in the year 11 A.H. He met defeat at the hands of Khalid ibn Al-Walid and subsequently repented and returned to Islam. In the end, he was martyred at the Battle of Nahawand in the year 21 A.H. `Abhala ibn-Ka`b Al-`Ansi from Madhjah. He was given the sobriquet Dhu Al-Khimar. He was a magician and used to show the people many wondrous tricks. When the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him returned from the Farewell Pilgrimage infirm, he began to announce his false claim to prophethood.

If one thinks about it, a liar is only capable of lying to an individual who is 'green'. Does anyone waste their time lying to someone who is aware that they are lying? No one is capable of making someone who knows the truth believe his lie. Indeed, the individual who lies about his peers among women and men is wronging them. However, it is infinitely more wrong to lie about Allah Glorified is He.

There is no action more shameful or despicable than lying about Allah. Indeed, as long as they are concocting lies about their Lord, they are removed from His Mercy.

The True Lord Glorified is He says, 'Musa (Moses) told them: "Woe unto you! Do not invent lies against Allah, lest He afflict you with most grievous suffering: for He who contrives [such] a lie is already undone!"' (Ta Ha: 61) Whoever invents a lie against Allah is defeated from the beginning; his punishment will be immediate. In other words, Allah will issue them a brutal punishment in the life of this world before they are punished in the Hereafter.

For this reason, the True Lord Glorified is He—in His Omniscience—poses the following question, 'But what do they think—they who attribute their own lying inventions to Allah—[what do they think will happen to them] on the Day of Resurrection…' (Yunus: 60). What do they think will become of them on the Day of Reckoning? Do they not know that Allah is far above ever being heedless? On the other hand, if they think the Hereafter does not exist, and that there is not any reckoning, they have indeed erred in their judgment.

If they actually took a moment to reflect upon the exemplary punishment Allah has prepared for them on the Day of Judgment they would restrain from their foolish behaviour. The only plausible explanation for their actions is that they do not really believe in Allah that will take them to account for inventing lies about Him. Allah says, 'it is but they who will not believe in Allah's messages that invent this falsehood; and it is they, they who are lying!' (an-Nahl: 105)

The sincere believer is never described as a liar. Indeed, the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him was once asked, ‘Does a believer steal?’ He responded, ‘Yes.’ ‘Does a believer engage in illicit intercourse?’ He was questioned. ‘Yes,’ he responded. When he was asked, ‘Can a believer be a coward?’, he responded, ‘Yes.’ ‘Can a believer be a miser?’, the next question followed, and again he responded, ‘Yes.’ However, when he was questioned, ‘Can a believer be a liar?’, he responded, ‘No.’(1)

For a believer, truthfulness is an indispensable quality. To be sure, setting aside truthfulness would entail setting aside his faith. In one way or another, all good can be subsumed under the category of truthfulness. Furthermore, a commitment to truthfulness benefits all of creation. Conversely, dishonesty is the source of the world’s corruption. Dishonesty hampers development within many areas within our lives.

Dishonesty is the last characteristic you would expect to find in a believer. Why? Indeed, many have mentioned that dishonesty prevents one from knowing reality because it distorts the truth. As such, a believer never fans the fire of dishonesty. Without doubt, this is inconsistent with his being one who proclaims the oneness and transcendence of Allah. If he is dishonest about less significant things, what should convince me that he is sincere in his commitment to Allah? In this light, dishonesty destroys faith from its foundations; its being an element of the believer’s character is inconceivable.

The Prophet peace and blessings be upon him said: ‘Beware of dishonesty. Indeed, dishonesty leads to indecency, and indecency leads to hellfire. A man will lie habitually until Allah records him as a liar.’(2)

If the previous Prophetic Hadith was addressed to people who spread lies about other men and women, what do you think is the state of someone who lies about Allah? The next question we could pose is: Who are those inventing lies about Allah? As a matter of fact, those who take on the task of judging things (within the law of Allah) to be lawful or unlawful without proper recourse to Allah, can be said to be involved in inventing lies about Allah.

(1) Imam Malik Allah rest his soul narrated this Hadith in his Muwatta` with an interrupted chain (1795) on the authority of Safwan ibn-Salim. This Hadith was narrated by Al-Bayhaqi in Shu`ab Al-Iman (4472) by way of Malik.

(2) Narrated by Imam Ahmad Allah rest his soul in his Musnad (4108), Abu-Dawud in his Sunnan (4991), and Ibn Abu Shayba in his Musannaf (26112) from a Hadith that was narrated on the authority of `Abdullah ibn-Mas`ud.

Allah the Exalted says, ‘hence, do not utter falsehoods by letting your tongues determine [at your own discretion], “This is lawful and that is forbidden”, thus attributing your own lying inventions to Allah: for, behold, they who attribute their own lying inventions to Allah will never attain to a happy state! A brief enjoyment [may be theirs in this world] – but grievous suffering awaits them [in the life to come]!’ (an-Nahl: 116-117)

The right to legislate the lawful and unlawful among His servants is the unique preserve of the True Lord Glorified is He. Beware of declaring something lawful or unlawful on the basis of your own caprice and without Allah’s endorsement. Doing this would properly be considered inventing lies against Allah. The right to determine the lawful and unlawful belongs to Allah alone; no creature of His has any share in the matter.

Determining the lawful and unlawful is an expression of Allah’s unique authority. This explains what happened to `Adi ibn Hatim.(1) He entered upon the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him who, upon finding someone wearing a crucifix, said to the man, ‘Rid yourself of this idol!’(2) The fact that the man immediately removed the crucifix is an expression of his manners with the Prophet. Indeed, the Prophet said to him: ‘Indeed, you have taken your rabbis and monks as lords beside Allah.’ The man responded, ‘We do not worship them.’ The Messenger then proceeded to explain, ‘Do you not obey them in their determinations about the lawful and the unlawful?’ When the man responded in the affirmative, the Prophet said: ‘That is precisely the manner in which you worship them.’(3)

(1) `Adi ibn Hatim ibn `Abdullah At-Ta`i, Abu Wahb, was a leader among the Companions and his generosity and intelligence were well-known among them. Both during the age of Pre-Islamic ignorance and after the dawn of Islam he was leader of the region of Tayy. He converted to Islam in the year 9 A.H. And he witnessed the conquest of Iraq. He was also present at the Battles of the Camel, Siffin and Nahrwan with `Ali Allah be pleased with him. He lived to be more than one hundred years and died in the year 68 A.H. Al-A`lam (4/220), Az-Zirikli

(2) Narrated by At-Tirmidhi in his Sunnan (3095), At-Tabarani in Al-Mu`ajam Al-Kabir (13673) from the Hadith of `Adi ibn Hatim Allah be pleased with him.

(3) Narrated by At-Tabari in his Tafsir (16632)… The Hadith was also cited by Al-Qurtubi in his Tafsir (in which he attributed it to At-Tirmidhi).

Allah the Exalted states: ‘Say, “Have you ever considered all the means of sustenance which Allah has bestowed upon you from on high – and which you thereupon divide into ‘things forbidden’ and ‘things lawful?” Say, “Has Allah given you leave [to do this] – or do you, perchance, attribute your own guesswork to Allah?”’ (Yunus: 59)

In as much as the True Lord Glorified is He causes sustenance to descend from the skies, and clarifies what of it is lawful for consumption and what of it is unlawful, why have you taken it upon yourselves to declare the lawfulness and unlawfulness of different things? In the process, you have made some unlawful things permissible and some lawful things impermissible. Why could you not allow this function to remain the distinct preserve of Allah, The One Who created all things and provides you with sustenance? Does it not stand to reason that He is more knowledgeable than you about where benefit lies?

‘Say, “Has Allah given you leave [to do this]…”’? (Yunus: 59) In other words, has Allah the Exalted consigned to you the matter of clarifying the lawful and the unlawful? ‘…or do you, perchance, attribute your own guesswork to Allah?’ (Yunus: 59) Stated differently, the last portion of the verse reads ‘Or do you intentionally lie about Allah’?

From among those who invent lies about Allah are those concerning whom He has mentioned, ‘Are you not aware of those who consider themselves pure? Nay, but it is Allah who causes whomever He wills to grow in purity; and none shall be wronged by as much as a hair’s breadth. Behold how they attribute their own lying inventions to Allah—than which there is no sin more obvious.’ (an-Nisa’: 49-50)

So, they vainly praise themselves and declare themselves free of faults. Some of them claim that they are the children of Allah and His beloved; however, in reality they are nothing of the sort. Allah the Almighty states their saying: ‘The Jews and the Christians say, “We are the children of Allah and His beloved ones.” Say, “Then why does He punish you for your sins? You are merely human beings, part of His creation”…’ (al-Ma‘ida: 18). Yet, if they, presumably, are His children and beloved ones, so why does He let them suffer for the sins they have committed? In essence, their engaged superciliousness was nothing but vain self-flattery; they gave themselves an undeserved rank. Indeed, it is foolish enough that the man proclaims his own purity in matters that do not require this straightforwardness.

Their absurd lies about Allah are clearly observed in Allah's saying: '…"We are the children of Allah and His beloved ones"…' (al-Ma'ida: 18). Allah also mentions their claim: 'they also say, "No one will enter Paradise unless he is a Jew or a Christian"…' (al-Baqara: 111).

Another clear instance of their falsity is Allah's saying: 'The disbelievers say, "The Lord of Mercy has offspring"' (Maryam: 88). Concerning this, Allah says, 'How terrible is this thing you assert: it almost causes the heavens to be torn apart, the earth to split asunder, the mountains to crumble to pieces, that they attribute offspring to the Lord of Mercy. It does not befit the Lord of Mercy [to have offspring]' (Maryam: 89-92). Their saying was utterly a pure lie about divinity, in addition to being despicable, disgusting, and abominable. Conceivably, Allah is exalted above having a son. Only the one who needs others, desires to have progeny to be remembered and to derive physical strength from them to be supported in his work or profession, whereas, Allah the Exalted possesses incomparable Limitless Power; He is far removed from such considerations.

Another example of inventing lies against Allah is apostasy and returning to disbelief. There can be no doubt that apostasy is tantamount to claiming that Islam (as a belief) and that the Quran (as a scripture revealed from Allah to the Messenger) are false. Apostasy is a clear challenge and grave lie against the truth revealed by Allah the Almighty.

In the story of Shu`aib (Jethro) peace be upon him Allah says, 'His people's arrogant leaders said, "Shu`aib (Jethro), we will expel you and your fellow believers from our town unless you return to our religion"…' (al-A'raf: 88). Shu`aib (Jethro) peace be upon him thus, responded to them: '…He said, "What! Even if we detest it? If we were to return to your religion after Allah has saved us from it, we would be inventing lies about Him"...' (al-A'raf: 88-89).

The disbelievers know that returning to their disbelief would be a clear instance of lying against Allah. Anybody knows the truth but speaks otherwise, thus, his action is definitely considered lying, dishonesty and mendacity.

Furthermore, the believers of Shu`aib (Jethro) peace be upon him acknowledged that their previous creed was malicious; especially after having experienced the sweetness of faith with Shu`aib (Jethro) peace be upon him. Consistent with the stance they had adopted, they rejected the enticements of the disbelievers to persistently lie against Allah.

Indeed, Allah Glorified is He has mentioned this blatant lying against Him in many instances throughout the Quran. However, in this verse, Allah appends this with an additional comment about their actions: 'Who could be more wrong than someone who invents lies against Allah when called to submit to Him?...' (as-Saff: 7) This verse should be examined within the context; it occurs in the chapter of as-Saf, where the most notable prophets (Musa (Moses), `Isa (Jesus) and then Muhammad peace be upon them) are being mentioned. Thus, this verse draws the attention to the people inventing lies against Allah that they are either among the Jewish followers of Musa (Moses) peace be upon him or among the followers of `Isa (Jesus) peace be upon him who were being requested to have faith in Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in order to validate their belief in Allah. Hence, Allah says, '…When called to submit to Him…' (as-Saff: 7). But rather, they responded to the call to Islam and invented lies about Allah, claiming that the Quran is not revealed from Allah, but that it was produced by Muhammad. Such lie was mentioned and refuted in the Quran, as Allah says, 'The disbelievers say, "This can only be a lie he has forged with the help of others"—they themselves have done great wrong and told lies.' (al-Furqan: 4)

If Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him—who is a human being like others—was capable of fabricating this Quran himself, why did they not produce a similar creation? What prevented them from coming with a 'Quran' of their own? Allah says, 'Or do they say, "He has devised it?" Say, "Then produce a chapter like it, and call on anyone you can beside Allah if you are telling the truth."' (Yunus: 38) Additionally, He the Exalted says, 'If they say, "He has invented it himself" say, "Then produce ten invented chapters like it, and call in whoever you can beside Allah, if you are truthful."' (Hud: 13)

Since inventing similar product of the Quran is easy, what prevents them from producing the like; even if it is only a ten-chapter piece of art? As they have lived with Muhammad since his childhood, he has neither composed poetry nor prose, he has not functioned as a public speaker nor does he have a history of embellishing his speech with language arts; as well he has never participated in the annual poetry recitals which were held at the famous marketplace of `Ukaz. Therefore, it should be easier for them, given their background and inherent gifts in these fields, to produce at least a similar piece of art, as they are the people of oratorical brilliance and language arts. Yet, they were not able to fabricate a similar piece of work. Once their lie, that Allah had neither revealed the Quran nor sent Muhammad as a Messenger, had failed, they began to take aim at certain verses of the Quran; they falsely claim that some verses were self-contradictory. Allah says, ‘Will they not think about this Quran? If it had been from anyone other than Allah, they would have found much inconsistency in it’ (an-Nisa’: 82).

Afterwards, Allah says, ‘…Allah does not guide the wrongdoers’ (as-Saff: 7). Indeed, they wronged themselves as they wronged Allah by inventing lies against Him, in addition to misguiding people to be wrongdoers as a result of their lies and attempts to block the path of Allah. Not only did they reject Allah’s Call to faith, but they also lied against Him. Hence, they do not deserve Allah’s guidance which does not refer here to clarify and distinguish between right and wrong. Certainly, Allah has taken it upon Himself to definitely make them clear for everyone. Allah says, ‘We guided him to the right path, whether he was grateful or not’ (al-Insan: 3). He also says, ‘And point out to him the two clear ways [of good and evil]’ (al-Balad: 10). Allah has shown His servants the path of goodness, and also that of evil.

However, Allah Glorified is He has also guided the believers to the path of goodness by facilitating their adherence to it. To put it more succinctly, Allah not only shows them the path of goodness, but He also helps them to meet the criteria of the path. In this regard, Allah says, ‘Allah has increased the guidance of those who follow the right path, and given them their awareness [of Him]’ (Muhammad: 17). Thus, Allah does not guide the dissolute people tending to evil but the obedient committed to justice.

Afterwards, Allah says:

يُرِيدُونَ لِيُطْفِـُٔوا۟ نُورَ ٱللَّهِ بِأَفْوَٰهِهِمْ وَٱللَّهُ مُتِمُّ نُورِهِۦ وَلَوْ كَرِهَ ٱلْكَـٰفِرُونَ ﴿٨﴾

They wish to put His light out with their mouths.
But He will perfect His light, even though the disbelievers hate it [8] (The Quran, as-Saff: 8)

Allah refers to His light and to the disbelievers who thought that they had the power to extinguish it. They either had allowed themselves to forget or were feigning ignorance of the fact that the light of Allah is All Encompassing and Omnipresent.

In the physical realm, it has long been established that the sun is the primary source of natural light. When the daylight breaks and the sunrays penetrate the darkness, people put out their lamps. The same scenario is applied to the light of guidance; when Allah issues the light of guidance, all other lights should be extinguished.

Indeed, Allah's Path is incandescent; it illuminates the way to morals and values. In the presence of Allah's light of guidance, there is no need for other lights of ideas based on whims. However, all the earthly light is derived from Allah's Straight Path, which is perfect for all times and places.

As there is no one capable of extinguishing the shining sunlight, the light of Allah is impervious in the same manner; no one is capable of putting it out!

Nevertheless, extinguishing the light of Allah was nothing short of their ardent desire. The desire is said to be ardent when it blindly fills the heart only to satisfy the whims. The disbelievers were desirous of suppressing the promotion of truth; however, Allah decrees that their twisted ambitions would ultimately be frustrated. The reason was their hope of retaining their shot-caller status as leaders through disempowering the weak. Furthermore, they wanted to suppress the promotion of truth so that their whims are not challenged by Allah's light. Allah says, 'They use their wealth to bar people from the path of Allah, and they will go on doing so. In the end this will be a source of intense regret for them: they will be overcome and herded towards Hell' (al-Anfal: 36).

Not only were these disbelievers guilty of rejecting faith in Allah, but they also spent their money with the intention of impeding Allah's Path. Yet, their desire would remain unfulfilled; they were not allowed to even come close to their goals. Thus, Allah the Exalted entices the disbelievers to expend their resources in suppressing the truth to waste their wealth and to bear the brunt of their woes. In the end, Allah sets His decree over them, no matter how much they spend, or how strenuous efforts they put forth, but they will ultimately be seized and routed. In this concern, Allah Glorified is He says, '[Prophet], say to the disbelievers, "You will be defeated and driven together into Hell, a foul resting place"' (Al-'Imran: 12). Not only will they foolishly waste their resources in a futile attempt to extinguish the light of Allah, but they will also be utterly disappointed, defeated and eye-witnessed Allah's light spreading to achieve perfection. Undoubtedly, this will cause them a great deal of pain and sorrow. Afterwards, in the Hereafter, they will be punished; resurrected, gathered, driven to the place of reckoning and ultimately cast into the hellfire.

As a matter of fact, this is the second instance where Allah mentions those disbelievers seeking to extinguish His Light. He mentions them also in the chapter of at-Tawba: 'They try to extinguish Allah's Light with their mouths, but Allah insists on bringing His Light to its fullness, even if the disbelievers hate it' (at-Tawba: 32). In this verse, Allah mentions another means by which they desire to suppress the propagation of truth with their mouths. Thereby, He means that their attempts, by sending forth their own callers to falsehood, are directed to counter the call of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. The disbelievers of Quraysh expended tremendous efforts to counteract the invitation to Islam by spreading falsehood. They accused the Messenger with many false charges. On one occasion, he was called a magician: '…They say, "He is just a lying sorcerer"' (Sad: 4). On another occasion, he was called an insane: 'They say, "O Receiver of this Quran! You are definitely mad"' (al-Hijr: 6). On a third occasion, he was said to be a poet: 'And said, "Are we to forsake our gods for a mad poet?"' (as-Saffat: 36) They made several unwarranted attempts to assassinate him and tried to distract people from listening to his Message. As a result, Allah responded (within the Quran) and chided them so vigorously, for the lies they had invented. In the end, they could not come up with anything other than alleging that Muhammad is a magician whose Message is to break up families. (1)

(1) It has been narrated by Abu Na`im in Dala`il An-Nubuwwa (178) on the authority of Sa`id ibn Jubair.

Moreover, they said: '…Why was this Quran not sent down to a distinguished man, from either of the two cities?' (az-Zukhruf: 31) In this verse, they were attempting to belittle Prophet Muhammad. They alleged that any person from either the people in Mecca or in Ta`if, was of greater stature and was worthier of having the Quran revealed to him than Muhammad. (1)

Additionally, the Quran itself was also attacked spared, in their vain attempts to extinguish the light of Allah. They tried to impugn the revelation despite their readiness to accept its divine origins, in case that it had been revealed to an elevated person among them. Allah quotes their saying: '…It is just ancient fables, which he has had written down: They are dictated to him morning and evening' (al-Furqan: 5). Allah also says concerning them: 'Whenever Our Revelation is recited to them they say, "We have heard all this before— we could say something like this if we wanted— this is nothing but ancient fables"' (al-Anfal: 31).

An-Nadr ibn Al-Harith, who had gone to Persia and observed fancy books of fables and myths, was among the sceptics of the prophecy of Muhammad at that time. Standing before Quraysh, he proclaimed, 'Here it is! Now, I can tell the same as Muhammad's recital!' However, his work was devoid of guidance and without a clearly defined objective. The fables told by An-Nadr refer to fanciful tales; most important of them are; Arabian Nights, Kalila and Dimna (the Panchatantra) and The Iliad (an ancient Greek epic poem).

As much as they impugned both Messenger Muhammad and the Quran, as they also ridiculed the believers following the guidance. Their attitude was similar to that of the people of Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him as Allah says, 'But the prominent disbelievers among his people said, "We can see that you are nothing but a mortal like ourselves, and it is clear to see that only the vilest among us follow you…"' (Hud: 27).

(1) On the authority of ibn `Abbas Allah be pleased with him, who was asked the following about the verse, '…Why was this Quran not sent down to a distinguished man from either of the two cities?' (az-Zukhruf: 31) What are the two cities? He responded, 'Ta`if and Mecca.' He was also asked, 'Who are the two men?' He responded, `Urwa ibn Mas`ud and another person from among the elite of Quraysh.' This was cited by As-Suyuti in Ad-Durr Al-Manthur (12/200), in which he attributed it to `Abd ibn Hamid, Ibn Al-Mundhir` and Ibn Mardaway

This explains the stance of some of the disbelievers who set a condition to believe, thus attempting to take a moderate stance in relation to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. They said to him, ‘We will come and sit with you (to listen to the Message) on condition that you drive those who are currently sitting with you away. Only when our meeting is adjourned, should they return to their places.’(1)

Indeed, when the adversaries of Islam witnessed the incremental spread of the Message, they redoubled their exerted strenuous efforts to halt its growth. Not only did they abuse the newly converted Muslims, but they also aimed their ploy at Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him himself. They sent a delegation to him, proclaiming, ‘We have come to a compromise; drive away those riff-raff people and do not keep them in your company; but rather make us the focal point of your call.’ Thus, Allah says, ‘Content yourself with those who pray to their Lord morning and evening, seeking His approval…’ (al-Kahf: 28). When this verse was revealed, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: ‘Praise be to Allah Who has put among my people those with whom I have been ordered to stay.’(2)

In fact, the most startling thing said in an attempt to extinguish Allah’s light was their effort to deceive people into believing that they were upon the truth. Allah says: ‘They also said, “Allah, if this really is the truth from You, then rain stones on us from the heavens, or send us some other painful punishment”’ (al-Anfal: 32).

The disbelievers deemed the moral teachings and warnings spread by Messenger Muhammad ridiculous. As such, they brazenly and foolishly requested for Allah’s punishment to rain down stones upon them or otherwise requite them for their actions. They were attempting to challenge the truth and turn people away from it. This proves their utmost level of compounded heedlessness of Allah and their tribal zeal which affected their ability to think clearly. They wished they would have rather died, or been killed by stones raining from the skies than to follow the path of guidance!

(1) This was narrated by At-Tabari in his Tafsir (13255) on the authority of Ibn Mas`ud.

(2) This was cited by As-Suyuti in Ad-Durr Al-Manthur (9/522) in which he attributed it to Abu Ash-Sheikh who narrated it on the authority of Salman Al-Farisi.

Had they use their minds, they would have carefully considered the matter and then concluded, 'if indeed this is the truth, O Lord! Guide us unto it.' Yet, they allowed disbelief, envy and rancour to blind them from the truth with which Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was sent. This demonstrates the extent to which their misguidance had grown. Furthermore, this shows the absurdity and the incoherence of the thoughts of the disbelievers. Had Allah answered their request of His wrath, they would have met their decisive end just as they have requested and then they would have entered the blazing inferno. However, Allah sets His Decree to give them a chance so that those who choose belief will be allowed to believe. Whereas, those who choose disbelief, will bear the burden of the deviance they caused by urging the people to apostate.

Allah says, 'They wish to put His Light out with their mouths. But He will perfect His Light, even though the disbelievers hate it' (as-Saff: 8). It has been asked how the Quran says that Allah will perfect His light, while there are other religions than Islam. In fact, some of these religions have more influence and adherents. It is apparent that those who pose this question have misunderstood Allah's saying: '…He will perfect His Light…' that all people would convert to Islam. However, if this were the case, Allah would not have concluded the verse by saying: '…Even though the disbelievers hate it' (as-Saff: 8), and nor would He have also said: '…Even though the idolaters hate it' (as-Saff: 9).

Therefore, Allah affirms the continued existence of disbelief and polytheism along with Islam. The meaning of Allah spreading His Light in all its fullness is that His Light will spread despite the presence of disbelief and polytheism. Indeed, those who oppose faith will never be able to extinguish the light of Allah, which will continue to glow until it overcomes them by the sheer practice of teachings. Indeed, viable solutions will only come from Islam to certain issues. Allah's Light is a conclusive matter, as explained by the following verse in at-Tawba: '…But Allah insists on bringing His Light to its fullness, even if the disbelievers hate it' (at-Tawba: 32). In another verse, Allah says, '…Today the disbelievers have lost all hope that you will give up your religion. Do not fear them: fear Me. Today I have perfected your religion for you, completed My blessing upon you, and chosen as your religion Islam:

[total devotion to Allah]…' (al-Ma'ida: 3). Definitely, Islam has been completed and people have entered it in crowds. It is by Allah's Light that the Quran has been preserved. No one has attempted to conceal the contents of the Quran, nor has anyone been able to distort the meanings of the Quran. In fact, the Quran has been saved from the distortion that happened to previous scriptures.

The disbelievers had given up any hope of overpowering Islam; contrariwise, its rise to pre-eminence. It can be incontrovertibly asserted that Allah has perfected this religion. Allah says, 'The word of your Lord is complete in its truth and justice. No one can change His words: He is the All Hearing, the All Knowing' (al-An'am: 115) The word 'complete' indicates that Allah's Word has a beginning and an end. However, what is meant by the completion of Allah's word? Does it mean the ultimate promise of Allah that Islam will be victorious because He, Himself, will grant it success? Or is it the promise that Allah made before His message to humanity is completed? Or does it refer to the Quran itself?

It is thought that the word 'complete' refers collectively to all different affairs which have been taking place until the coming of the Final Hour. This means that no one is permitted to 'correct' any of the rulings mentioned in the Quran, for they cover all aspects of life. The rulings needed to ensure upright and dignified lives have been explicated in the Quran.

Allah says, '…Even though the disbelievers hate it' (as-Saff: 8). This refers to those who despise the Path of Allah. Allah stresses this fact in another verse: 'It is because they hate what Allah has sent down that He has caused their deeds to go to waste' (Muhammad: 9). They harboured intense disdain for the Path of Allah because it would pull the 'rug' of unchallenged dominance from beneath them. They knew that it would establish for equality between them and their servants. This is very difficult for them as they were accustomed to prominence, status, and power. Actually, this is the real reason for their intense hatred for the light with which Messenger Muhammad had been sent.

Subsequently, Allah says:

هُوَ ٱلَّذِىٓ أَرْسَلَ رَسُولَهُۥ بِٱلْهُدَىٰ وَدِينِ ٱلْحَقِّ لِيُظْهِرَهُۥ عَلَى ٱلدِّينِ كُلِّهِۦ وَلَوْ كَرِهَ ٱلْمُشْرِكُونَ ﴿٩﴾

It is He who sent His Messenger with guidance and the religion of truth to show that it is above all [other] religions, even though the idolaters hate it [9] (The Quran, as-Saff: 9)

Allah proves that He will spread His Light in all its fullness, in spite of being hateful to those who deny the truth, and in spite of sparing no mental or material efforts to prevent its propagation. The Light of Allah has three aspects; it refers to guidance in the first place. Secondly, it refers to the religion of truth and thirdly, that it is sent upon Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Thus, how can a sacred light comprising of these three aspects be extinguished?

As for the aspect of guidance, they are signs granted by Allah, the Creator, to human beings to find their Right Path. Certainly, if Allah leaves His servants to their own devices in this regard, they would be lost on account of their undisciplined passions. Moreover, it is undoubtedly known that Allah is absolutely free of any need of His creatures; however, human beings, on the other hand, are in need of the guidance, thus they could not control it or rather, they would use it for their benefit.

This is broadly applicable to the world's economic and social systems such as communism and capitalism. As for the individuals who desire to forcibly seize the assets of the wealthy people, they, thereby, fly the flag of Communism, whereas, the individuals who suck the blood of the working class, wave the banner of Capitalism!

On the other hand, guidance is a right ensured to everyone, so it must be devoid of any desires. Furthermore, the individual granting guidance should intimately be acquainted with all future details that may happen. Thus, there is no one but Allah, the Ever-Wise and the Omniscient, Who offers guidance. Therefore, Allah says: '…Say, "Allah's guidance is the only true guidance"…' (al-Baqara: 120). The guidance of Allah leads to a single straight path of Truth; however, the presumably guidance proffered by human beings would emanate from caprice. As such, they offer myriad paths, which, for all their diversity, still lead to a single destination; i.e. misguidance! Allah draws the attention of His creatures to an indubitable fact that if they desire guidance or the Path free from pitfalls leading to the firm goal, they should adhere to Allah’s Path of guidance.

Allah’s Light is the religion of truth, which offers practical guidance for human beings indistinctively. In as much as Islam is the religion of truth, it does not seek to mislead or deceive anyone; but rather, it convinces people with strong mental evidences which will be victorious whether people believe in it or not. However, Allah shows His servants the Path so that they could secure happiness and goodness. The religion of truth comes in accordance with Allah’s drawn Path. The truth, by its very nature, should be firm, unchanging, and eternal.

The Message has been revealed by Allah unto His messengers in truth, Allah is the Truth, and He created the heavens, earth and everything else with truth. He revealed His Book, in its entirety, in truth and has kept His established patterns within creation uninterruptedly in truth. Thus, Allah always supports the truth.

As such, Allah revealed the Quran in truth; it is an expounder of truth and impervious to falsehood. However, there are times when it seems that truth is being obscured and falsehood is gaining the upper hand. Yet, the appearance of corruption only forces people to be more resolute in pursuit of the truth. The spread of corruption and moral dissolution is directly related to the eagerness of human beings to demand the truth. Indeed, falsehood, by its very nature, wears on people until they request its removal and replacement with the truth; to which they subsequently adhere with renewed zeal.

The Quran was revealed with the true knowledge of Allah. Additionally, it explicates matters with indubitable truth related to the angels, the Prophets and their miracles and the ordinances and commands of Allah. The Angel Jibril (Gabriel) peace be upon him was Allah’s chosen carrier to reveal the Quran, the unchanging truth, upon the heart of the chosen Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him.

As for the third aspect of Allah’s Light, He sent Muhammad to demonstrate His Path. In fact, the Messenger, himself, is also a light for mankind. Allah says, ‘He it is who has sent forth His Apostle with [the task of] spreading guidance and the religion of truth…’ (as-Saff: 9). Allah sent His Messenger with the task of refining the human instinct. As Allah has sent His Messenger with faith and moral methodologies, as He has certainly chosen the most faithful person for conveying the Message for humanity.

This makes Islam prevail over all other religions; this does not mean to eradicate Jews, Christians, disbelievers or polytheists. On the contrary, as previously mentioned, the pre-eminence of Islam would prevail through its distinct commandments, the erectness of Allah's Path and the adherence to faith through logical methodology rather than through oppression or obligation. Undoubtedly, Islam will prevail; they will be overtaken by its practical usefulness. They will tend to rely on Islam and Islamic law to solve the problems facing their communities. Indeed, they adopt many laws borrowed from the Islamic teachings. Definitely, all Muslims should overwhelmingly be confident that those disbelievers would discover the truthfulness of Islam its law on one day.

The sheer impracticality of their man-made laws forced the Vatican (1) to authorise Islam-permitted divorce. In their view, this gives preference to man-made laws over their distorted sacred law. However, practical life had only forced them to unintentionally implement the teachings of Islam. Such examples provide an increased appreciation and confidence in practical application of Islamic teachings, which are the only resort to solve the problems facing the disbelievers. Even if they refused to convert to Islam as a religion, but they are forced to adopt it as a life-arranging principle to foster peace and stability in their communities

(1) The Protestant denominations also permitted divorce, but only for reasons they deemed legitimate, such as: Insanity, terminal illness or any other condition which frustrates conjugal relations. Indeed, the cold realities of life forced them to make this transition. They were forced to implement Islamic law. As a matter of fact, even the Orthodox Church, after taking a long time to come to terms with reality, was forced to enact the statute of 1938 which gave Copts the right to seek legal divorces for nine stated reasons. This position differs with the stance taken by the hardliners among them who forbid people from enjoying Allah's Grace and, in a certain sense, compel them to commit adultery.

يَٰٓأَيُّهَا ٱلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُواْ هَلۡ أَدُلُّكُمۡ عَلَىٰ تِجَٰرَةٖ تُنجِيكُم مِّنۡ عَذَابٍ أَلِيمٖ ﴿١٠﴾ تُؤۡمِنُونَ بِٱللَّهِ وَرَسُولِهِۦ
وَتُجَٰهِدُونَ فِي سَبِيلِ ٱللَّهِ بِأَمۡوَٰلِكُمۡ وَأَنفُسِكُمۡۚ ذَٰلِكُمۡ خَيۡرٞ لَّكُمۡ إِن كُنتُمۡ تَعۡلَمُونَ ﴿١١﴾

You who believe, shall I show you a bargain that will save you from painful torment? [10] Have faith in God and His Messenger and struggle for His cause with your possessions and your persons — that is better for you, if only you knew [11]
(The Quran, as-Saff: 10-11)

Allah's saying: 'You who believe…' (as-Saff: 10) refers to the believers who entered the covenant of faith with Allah. The verse calls upon the believers to follow, by their own free will, the Commands of Allah, the Omniscient, the Omnipotent, the Wise, the Self-Sufficient and the Creator. Therefore, the commands are only directed to those believers who have chosen to accept faith willingly by consulting their own consciences. Considering this, there is no way the believer should ever ask about the underlying purpose behind a certain ruling. As long as he has already submitted to Allah, he should accept His commandments and prohibitions without argument as an extension of that belief. For example, Satan firstly, believed in Allah; however, his downfall referred to his insane refusal to Allah's ruling. He insolently asked Allah to explain the reason behind His command, with which he, ultimately, declined to comply.

As for Allah's words, '…Shall I show you…' (as-Saff: 10), after His saying: 'You who believe…' (as-Saff: 10), convey a profound meaning that Allah calls upon the believers to draw their full attention to clarify something for them. Inconceivably, the believers could not refuse Allah's offer to guide them. Allah guides people to the Straight Path leading to the right destination such as the pathfinder who guides people for their way across the desert; surely, to Allah belongs the utmost example of perfection. Of course, when people guide others, they will misdirect and lead them away from the right destination. Yet, Allah only guides people towards their benefits and directs them away from any harm.

When Allah tackles the matter of faith, He uses the analogy of business transactions; i.e. the language of commerce (buying and selling), As Allah says, 'Allah has purchased the persons and possessions of the believers in return for the Garden…' (at-Tawba: 111). In the verse under examination, Allah says, 'You who believe, shall I show you a bargain that will save you from painful torment? Have faith in Allah and His Messenger and struggle for His cause with your possessions and your persons…' (as-Saff: 10-11). It is known that business is the medium of exchange between producers and consumers. The producer target to sell his product and the consumer is in need to buy the product. Profit margins within business vary a lot, depending on how the product is received within the market and whether sales are brisk or stagnate

Allah uses analogies related to business to demonstrate the most expedient path to achieve benefit. Business is the process of buying and selling products among people. Similarly, the believer, who is involved in the transaction with Allah, needs to voluntarily relinquish (sell) some of his personal freedom in exchange for (to buy) Allah's everlasting bliss. Thus, the pious men who are intimately familiar with the favour of Allah say, 'When giving, choose someone who values your generosity'. Certainly, when someone is given a gift, his appreciation will be shown in accordance with his ability to express gratitude. Perhaps he expresses this gratitude with a kind word or some other means. However, how does Allah evaluate things in return? It goes without saying that He will assign tremendous value for the product.

Therefore, the intelligent person looks at the giver of the blessing; such as `Uthman ibn `Affan Allah be pleased with him. When the merchants knew that he had some products that came to him with the intention of purchasing some inventory; they offered him to pay for them. He said, 'Indeed, I have been presented with better offers than what you intend to pay. I gave the items in the cause of Allah.' `Uthman Allah be pleased with him decided to trade with Allah to receive the greatest value for his products. Certainly, as long as Allah is the Purchaser, the product will always be appreciated in value! Hence, the person who ostentatiously performs acts of worship is really the major loser. If he does not perceive the concept of trading with Allah; thus, he does not know anything about business!

Everyone wishes to be engaged in profitable transactions; i.e. to receive more than he pays on making the deal. As Allah says, '…(It is they who) may hope for a trade that will never decline' (Fatir: 29). Before being engaged in the transaction, the person should compare what he gives to what he gains and observe whether the difference is worth the sacrifice. Allah deals with people on the basis of the theory of personal benefits; intelligent trader should seek out the most beneficial transactions that will ultimately prove profitable by giving him more than they take. Sacrificing a small amount of worldly transactions to trade with Allah reaps immeasurable favour and honour from Him. Indeed, it is undeniable that Allah is so generous that the single good deed shall be rewarded up to seven-hundred times! (1)

Going into business with Allah is always profitable, as Allah says, ‘You who believe, shall I show you a bargain that will save you from painful torment?’ (as-Saff: 10) He also says, ‘…(It is they who) may hope for a trade that will never decline’ (Fatir: 29). Definitely, the trader who is engaged in business with Allah should be sagacious and intelligent; he identifies his goals and objectives before he pursues them. The most pervasive malady among people in this world is that they live without having any idea of their ultimate goals. Actually, most of them have a myopic focus on minor worldly objectives, serving as a distraction from achieving more significant goals. Indeed, the life span of people hugely varies; someone may live for fifty years, his counterpart for sixty and a third for merely a single one!

Therefore, people should direct their focus towards the goal to which they are proceeding. Furthermore, what plagues contemporary societies is that people are totally busy by working to support their worldly status. In fact, their worldly acquisitions represent the lowest level of short-term gratification. Undoubtedly, life, no matter how long it lasts, is fleeting, but the pleasures of the Hereafter are eternal. Additionally, the acquisition of the worldly pleasures is directly related to the means available at everyone’s disposal. Conversely, the pleasures of the Hereafter are abundant because they are at the disposal of Allah; He Who brought them into existence and controls them.

(1) *On the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him: The Messenger peace and blessings be upon him said: ‘Every time the son of Adam performs a good deed, its reward is multiplied by ten to seven hundred times as Allah wills.’ Allah says in a Qudsi Hadith: ‘Except for the act of fasting; it is for Me, and I reward it. The servant gives up his carnal desires for My sake. The one who fasts reaps two pleasures: The pleasure he experiences upon breaking his fast and the plea*sure he experiences upon meeting his Lord.’ It is narrated by Ibn Majah in his Sunnan (1638).

Considering this, the failure of the disbelievers to 'trade' with Allah can only be considered a humiliating and devastating loss. As Allah says, 'Lost indeed are those who deny the meeting with their Lord until, when the Hour suddenly arrives, they say, "Alas for us that we disregarded this' (al-An'am: 31). Therefore, 'doing business' with Allah is a means of securing everlasting benefits for the people; the greatest of which has been expressed in Allah's saying: '…That will save you from painful torment' (as-Saff: 10). Allah also says, 'But Allah will deliver those who took heed of Him to their place of safety: no harm will touch them, nor will they grieve' (az-Zumar: 61). Indeed, Allah will save the believers from the despicable torment which awaits the disbelievers. The biggest victory for people is that being saved from the punishment of the blazing inferno. As Allah says, '…Whoever is kept away from the Fire and admitted to the Garden will have triumphed…' (Al-'Imran: 185). It is noticed that Allah does not merely connect the eternal triumph to entering into paradise; but rather to simply being kept away from the hellfire. This is the primary victory to be pulled back from the fire, even if the person is left on the heights with those whom judgment has been suspended. On that Day, simply being able to traverse the Bridge outstretched above the hellfire (1) will represent the major triumph!

As previously mentioned traversing the Bridge safely is a tremendous blessing, whereas, the disbeliever wishes that he could become dust in order to avoid being punished in the hellfire. As the believer traverses the Bridge and views the hellfire beneath, as he feels the blessing because this gives him the chance to witness first-hand what he was saved from: '…Painful torment'

(1) On the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him: The Messenger peace and blessings be upon him said, 'There will be a bridge outstretched between two plains. I will be the first messenger, along with the members of his ummah, are allowed to cross it. On that Day, the only people allowed to speak will be the messengers, and their speech will be: "Allahumma Sallim, Sallim (Oh Allah! Save us, save us!)" Below, in the hellfire, there will be hooks which resemble the thorns of As-Sa`adan (a thorny tree); have you ever seen the thorns of As-Sa`adan?' After they responded that they had in fact seen them, the Messenger continued, "These tenterhooks are like the thorns of As-Sa`adan except for the fact that their size is so immense that none but Allah could even attempt to grasp them."' It is narrated by Al-Bayhaqi in Al-Asma` Wa As-Sifat (2/184), Ibn Al-Mundhir in Kitab Al-Iman (2/418) and Ibn Abu `Asim in As-Sunna (387)

(as-Saff: 10), by virtue of his faith and the overflowing Mercy of Allah, the Most Beneficent, The word torment refers to the physical suffering which is experienced by the living being through the sensation of pain, whereas, death takes life and senses away from the living organism. Death and suffering are two distinct states; suffering, as opposed to death, necessitates that the individual remains alive to experience agony. Allah's saying: '…Painful torment' (as-Saff: 10), draws the attention to the meaning of the verse: 'We shall send those who reject Our revelations to the Fire. When their skins have been burned away, We shall replace them with new ones so that they may continue to feel the pain: Allah is Mighty and Wise' (an-Nisa': 56).

The torment is painful and unbearable because its intensity is derived from the Power of Allah, Who creates pain itself. The punishment of hellfire incomparably and unrestrictedly expresses His Might and Ability. Sometimes, the torment of Allah is described as being great; another time, it is described as being humiliating; and a third time, it is described as being painful. Interestingly enough, the description used is changed according to those being mentioned in connection with it. Each disobedient, evildoer and disbeliever will be punished with the appropriate penalty. Some people might bear the pain of the punishment rather than humiliation; whereas, others might be vice versa. Each person will face the unbearable kind of punishment that cannot be endured. Accordingly, Allah addresses the believers: 'You who believe, shall I show you a bargain that will save you from painful torment?' (as-Saff: 10) Allah desires that the believers be saved from suffering, as He the Exalted says: 'Why should Allah make you suffer torment if you are thankful and believe in Him? Allah always rewards gratitude and He knows everything' (an-Nisa': 147). Thus, if the believers show gratitude to Allah and believe in Him, He will never cause them to suffer His wrath.

After Allah invites the believers to 'trade' with Him, He the Almighty clarifies the elements to be saved from punishment; He says, 'Have faith in Allah and His Messenger and struggle for His cause with your possessions and your persons; that is better for you, if only you knew' (as-Saff: 11). Thus, the first element is that they should believe in Allah Glorified is He and in His Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Indeed, this poses a new question; how someone being summoned by being a believer is further commanded to have faith? In as much as these verses are addressed to the believers generally, the command to have faith should be understood as a command to increase in faith.

Allah addresses the believers by highlighting their relationship with faith; He desires that they receive His address as people of faith and that they would also fulfil His commands as people of faith. There is no lapse or breakage in the chain of faith; Allah ensures its continuation. Indeed, it is of critical importance that the believer is keen on keeping up with this honour. If someone summons another by a virtuous quality and then request him to apply it; thus, it is really being requested to be consistently kept up.

Allah, within these verses, addresses all believers; including the Jewish and Christian communities, represented in as-Saf, by the mention of Musa (Moses) and `Isa (Jesus) peace be upon them. If someone simply believes in Allah, this belief will necessitate that he should follow His commands expressed by the Messenger. Thus, having faith in Allah necessitates believing in His Messenger. In as much as the human being has been given an active intellect, the least he can do is to arrive at the conclusion that there is a Lord behind this universe. However, what are the Commands of the Lord? The people can only gain access to this knowledge by way of the Messenger expressing Allah's revelation. In a certain sense, revelation and the dispatch of the Messenger can be considered the reward of the believers for their good faith.

Therefore, as long as the believer has professed his belief in Allah and in His Messenger, as he would naturally believe in the scripture revealed on the Messenger. These scriptures inform him of a set of invisible creatures who inhabit the world, called angels. In fact, angels are the means by which revelation reaches the Messenger. Despite that, they are invisible, yet the believers have faith in their existence. In essence, faith is to mainly believe in Allah, which necessitates believing in the Messenger and the scripture revealed to him. Furthermore, in as much as the people of the Book—who believe in their respective messengers—are also included in this command to have faith, it should be understood as a command for them to similarly believe in Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and in the Quran revealed to him.

As a general rule, strict compliance to Allah’s Commands simply maintains the strongly entrenched beliefs. In the current verse, the request to have faith is a command to consistently display the defining characteristics of faith day in and day out. In this way, belief becomes deeply rooted in the heart, without being liable to be shaken by the insinuations assailing the mind. These well-established beliefs are referred to as creed, to which the heart is bound.

Allah commands the believers to have firm and unshakable faith that prepares them to be engaged in ‘commerce’ with Allah; namely, striving in the path of Allah with their lives and material resources. As Allah says, ‘Have faith in Allah and His Messenger and struggle for His cause with your possessions and your persons…’ (as-Saff: 11). This verse connects having faith in Allah to jihad (striving in His cause). By striving in the cause of Allah, the believer ensures that faith, to which he has pledged his life, will remain intact until the coming of the Final Hour. The maintenance of the faith entails its widespread propagation. As the believer has resolved to strive in the cause of Allah, he means that he has given preference, within his soul, to faith (over the life of this world and its pleasures) and found goodness in faith which has made him desirous of conveying it to others. Thus, it is not sufficient for him to simply experience the sweetness of faith without sharing this with his contemporaries outside the lands of Islam, who are deprived from it. However, he ardently desires to give opportunity to the whole world to experience faith.

Upon analysis, this represents a profound insight concerning the idea of communal life. Thus, good and evil are communicable; if people are good, the society, being affected, and benefits from goodness and vice versa. Indeed, life, in its entirety, represents the concept of jihad (striving for the sake of Allah). By no means, should the Muslim restrict striving for the cause of Allah to the battlefield. Thus, Allah’s saying: ‘…And struggle for His cause…’ (as-Saff: 11) should be understood as striving for propagating the Message of Allah. Muslims should devote themselves to studying and understanding the Message of Islam to strive for it by tooth and nail; through open discussions, books, pamphlets, etc.

A thoroughgoing implementation of Allah’s saying: ‘…And struggle for His cause…’ (as-Saff: 11) provides the basis for a Muslim community ready to lead the world. The word jihad, as related to the idea of martial engagement, is simply the form of striving in the cause of Allah. People fight for different reasons; they could fight for nationalism or any other affiliation. In the view of Islam, none of those affiliations are of any substantive value unless they emanate from being committed to propagate and make Allah's Message triumphant.

Allah does not legislate jihad so that the Islamic Ummah would forcefully impose its religion on others. However, it has been only legislated to grant the people the right to freely choose whatsoever religion under the mercy of Islam. Therefore, it targeted to remove oppression and impediments blocking the way of the others to freely choose faith.

Yet, we are aware that this is a major area of contention. People often question: If that is what fighting in Islam is all about; what purpose did the various battles that were fought throughout the history of Islam serve? Those wars were for the purpose of opposing and resisting the attempts of others to impose their beliefs on the Muslims. Islam came in order to say to these people: Remove your false constraints from people and allow them to choose the religion best suited for them.

Even when one looks at the jizyah that Muslims levy on non-Muslim minorities living in Muslim lands, it is not simply taxation. Quite the reverse, this institution actually demonstrates the freedom promoted by Islam. Think about it: If the goal of Islam was to compel people to become Muslims, why would there be any tax levied against those who lived amongst the Muslims while electing to maintain their own religious traditions.

Redirecting out attention to an earlier point, in order for military engagement for the cause of Allah to be legitimate in Islam, there must be a clear intention to fight solely for the cause of Allah. This fighting cannot be for the purpose of domination, control or the subjugation of others. Similarly, the fighting cannot be carried out for the purpose of gaining access to the resources of others or securing emerging markets in new lands. As we stated, struggling to make the Word of Allah triumphant is the only legitimate reason for fighting. (1)

(1) On the authority of Abu Musa Al-Ash`ari Allah be pleased with him, who narrated: 'The Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him was once questioned about a man =

Fighting in the way of Allah can be performed by sacrificing one's material resources or life in His path. If truth be told, giving up either represents a grave test; especially for those who have yet to fully realize faith and taste its sweetness. This explains why Allah begins His address, 'O you who believe' (as-Saff: 10) and immediately follows by saying, 'You are to believe in Allah and His Prophet.' (as-Saff: 11)

Next, Allah introduces the substance of the test and its requirements, 'and strive in the cause of Allah with your wealth and your lives.' (as-Saff: 11) Actually, your money does not really belong to you; you are merely a trustee that has been allowed to benefit from the money in his possession. Indeed, the same could even be said of our souls! Our souls are gifts that we have been given by Allah so we have no justifiable reason for being stingy with them in the path of the True Lord Glorified is He!

This explains the following statement of Allah Glorified is He: 'Indeed, Allah has purchased from the believers their lives and their properties [in exchange] for that they will have Paradise. They fight in the cause of Allah, so they kill and are killed. [It is] a true promise [binding] upon Him in the Torah and the Gospel and the Quran. And who is truer to his covenant than Allah? So, rejoice in your transaction which you have contracted. And it is that which is the supreme triumph' (at-Tawba: 111).

The word 'purchased' creates the impression that there is a transaction of some sort taking place, i.e. buying and selling commercial activity. Nonetheless, in essence, in as much as Allah owns everything, He is the buyer and the seller.

When the True Lord Glorified is He says, 'Indeed, Allah has purchased from the believers their lives and their properties' one should understand from this that life goes to waste otherwise and possessions are ill-spent. Indeed, life will inevitably end in death and wealth and possessions are subject to loss. Naturally, upon hearing this—and reflecting upon its meaning—a person should be moved with fear.

= who fights bravely for the sake of tribal zeal or merely for ostentation. He peace and blessings be upon him responded by stating, "The individual who fights for the sake of making the Word of Allah triumphant is in His path."' Narrated by Al-Bukhari in his Sahih (2810, 3127, 7458), and also by Muslim in his Sahih. (5029, 5031)

Nonetheless, as soon as The True Lord Glorified is He says, ‘Indeed, Allah has purchased’, you will recognize that it contains a glad tiding for the believer. He should be overflowing with happiness and delight whose traces can be seen upon his face. Amazingly, the believer experiences this although this implies that his life is going to be taken. True, his life will be taken, but he knows that Allah Glorified is He is going to give him an eternal life in exchange for his temporal life.

Indeed, all the matters of faith follow this pattern; we do not have to countenance them in fear. Quite the reverse, we should countenance them in high spirits and anticipation (of impending good). This explains why the True Lord Glorified is He says ‘Rejoice.’ Besides being pleased, you should also know, with conviction, that, ‘That is best for you, if you should know’. Indeed, faith in Allah and His Messenger peace and blessings be upon him and struggling for His sake with your lives and possessions is more advantageous for you than the temporal world and all that it contains. Put differently, all that you can amass in this life is of no comparison with the reward of those who struggle in the way of Allah.

The word ‘best’—as it is used here—encompasses the good of this world and that of the Hereafter. Allah grants the believers manifold good so that their state remains good perpetually; first in this life then in the Hereafter.

The portion of Allah’s statement, ‘if you should know’ means: If you are absolutely positive about the reward of sacrificing in the way of Allah, you will be guided to proof concerning it. Indeed, this creates the impression that there are introductory steps which precede the acquisition of knowledge. If they do not know (about spiritual affairs), Allah will teach them.

To be sure, someone who strives in the path of Allah sacrificing his material resources and life for His sake is convinced and assured that his striving will be the source of attaining what is superior to what he is giving up.

Afterward, the True Lord says:

يَغۡفِرۡ لَكُمۡ ذُنُوبَكُمۡ وَيُدۡخِلۡكُمۡ جَنَّٰتٖ تَجۡرِي مِن تَحۡتِهَا ٱلۡأَنۡهَٰرُ
وَمَسَٰكِنَ طَيِّبَةٗ فِي جَنَّٰتِ عَدۡنٖۚ ذَٰلِكَ ٱلۡفَوۡزُ ٱلۡعَظِيمُ ١٢

And He will forgive your sins, admit you into Gardens graced with flowing streams, into pleasant dwellings in the Gardens of Eternity. That is the supreme triumph [12] (The Quran, as-Saff: 12)

The first thing a martyr is rewarded with is the forgiveness of his sins. With the first drop of his blood he becomes as though he had never committed any sins.

When someone is killed in the path of Allah, he transitions into a life better than that which he is leaving behind. The martyr is given this distinct honour. This explains why the True Lord Glorified is He at the instant of martyrdom, shows them their destinations. At this point, they make utterances that those near them, while they are in their final moments can hear.

During this critical moment some have mentioned, ‘The winds of paradise are blowing over me.’(1) This statement was issued to make it clear to those in his presence that he was gazing at paradise.

This explains what happened during the Battle o*f Badr,* when one of the Companions heard the Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him speaking of the reward of the martyr while he (the Companion) was chewing some dates he had. He said, ‘O Prophet Muhammad is there anything which stands between me and paradise but being killed for the sake of Allah?’ After the Prophet answered, ‘Yes’, the Companion tossed the rest of the dates he was eating and entered the battle. He responded so decisively because he had total conviction that the reward he would receive as a martyr far excelled that which he was leaving behind.(2)

(1) This statement was related by several Companions of the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him. Al-Kashf Al-Bayan 8/23, An-Naysaburi)

(2) This Hadith was narrated by Muslim in his Sahih (143) in Kitab Al-Jihad in a section entitled, Thawab Al-Janna Li-Shahid. It was also narrated by Al-Bukhari in his Sahih (4046) on the authority of Jabir ibn `Abdullah Allah be pleased with him.

He was absolutely certain that the only thing between him and paradise was being killed for the sake of Allah. At the time, there were some dates in his hand—that he had been eating—in his eagerness to enter battle, he threw them! Indeed, he even saw the time that he would spend chewing the dates as unnecessary procrastination! At that point, the dates were preventing him from attaining his goal. Hence, he decided to toss them aside and rush into battle seeking martyrdom without delay.

Again, faced with a story of such an extraordinary act of faith, we must ask: why? His actions reflected the outcome of a comparison of the pleasures and comforts of this life with those of the Hereafter. If an intelligent person compares the comforts and delights of this world with those of the Hereafter, he or she will always give preference to those of the Hereafter.

The True Lord Glorified is He says, 'And how many a prophet [fought and] with him fought many religious scholars. But they never lost assurance due to what afflicted them in the cause of Allah, nor did they weaken or submit. And Allah loves the steadfast. And their words were not but that they said, "Our Lord, forgive us our sins and the excess [committed] in our affairs and plant firmly our feet and give us victory over the disbelieving people." So, Allah gave them the reward of this world and the good reward of the Hereafter. And Allah loves the doers of good.' (Al-'Imran: 146-148)

All the respective peoples referenced above who fought with their prophets encountered hardship, but they did not weaken or become faint of heart. On the contrary, they persevered and continued to seek the truth so that their sins might be forgiven. Equally impressive was the fact that they recognized the source of their weaknesses and sincerely sought the help of Allah to overcome them. So, what did Allah do with them?

Allah Glorified is He supported them by giving them the reward of this world and that of the Hereafter. Indeed, Allah loves the doers of good. All of this is an expression of conduct that is guided by faith; conduct which protects against defeat and the stratagems of the enemy. This is one of the outcomes of sincere Allah-consciousness. It helps the believers to remain in the accompaniment of Allah. While in Allah's accompaniment the Muslim is impervious to attacks from others, there are none among creation who would dare transgress him—while in this state.

Essentially, the believer willingly sacrifices his life, soul, and material resources for Allah Glorified is He. Put another way, the Muslim is ready to sacrifice everything he loves in this life for the sake of Allah, and the journey to Him. Allah is unfailingly generous to those who seek Him.

The first expression of His generosity is that He forgives them of their sins, relieves them of their burdens, and completely diverts from them the punishment that would have befallen them on account of the sins they had committed.

Allah Glorified is He only forgives them of the sins they have committed in relation to Him. As for the sins, they have committed against others, forgiveness for these sins is contingent upon being forgiven by those whom they have wronged. The True Lord will request that they pardon one another on the Day of Judgment. (1)

The only other thing Allah does not forgive is debt. Abu Qatada narrated that a man said: ‘O Prophet Muhammad, if I killed for the sake of Allah, all of my past misdeeds are forgiven, correct?’ The Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him answered him: ‘Yes, if you are killed for the sake of Allah and you endure it patiently, seeking a reward in the Hereafter, advancing toward the enemy as opposed to fleeing, all of your past misdeeds will be forgiven.’ Then, the Prophet Muhammad said: ‘On second thought, what exactly are you asking?’ ‘If I am killed in the path of Allah’ the man repeated, ‘are all of my past misdeeds forgiven, correct?’ Prophet Muhammad said, ‘Yes, all of your past misdeeds will be forgiven; provided that you patiently endure, seeking a reward in the Hereafter, and are advancing toward the enemy, not retreating. However, there is one exception: You will not be exempted from making good on your debts. I was informed of this by Jibril (Gabriel).’(2)

(1) On the authority of Anas ibn Malik Allah be pleased with him, Al-Matalib Al-`Aliyya, Ibn Hajr 5/46)

(2) This was narrated by Muslim in his Sahih (117) (3/1501). It was also narrated by An-Nisa`i in As-Sunnan Al-Kubra (4365) and by At-Tirmidhi in his Sunnan (1712). The latter said concerning the Hadith, ‘Its text is sound and its chain is rigorously authenticated.’ Ahmad also narrated the Hadith in his Musnad (22638) on the authority of Abu Qatada.

Debts are the rights of those to whom they are due. As a rule, Allah does not force people to relinquish what legitimately belongs to them. As such, the questioner had to be informed of the limitation of the forgiveness of his sins—even as a martyr! Indeed, even if Allah is pleased with someone who is killed in His path, what offense did the creditor commit that would warrant having his right waived?

Allah is Wise and Just. He does not oppress anyone, and He has made consuming wealth by way of corruption and falsehood impermissible—even if it means by way of martyrdom in His path!

Afterward, the True Lord Glorified is He says, ‘and admit you to gardens beneath which rivers flow.’ The True Lord Glorified is He is issuing glad tidings to all those who struggle in His way and particularly those among them who are martyred for His cause. He will admit them into gardens through which running waters flow. You will notice that the word ‘gardens’ appears here in the plural. This is an indication of the abundance and variation that exist among the gardens of paradise. Indeed, each garden is comprised of levels, the variety of which exceed the gardens on earth.

In fact, there are many different gardens of paradise such as Jannat Al-Firdaws, Jannat Al-`Adn, Jannat An-Na`im, Dar Al-Khuld, Dar As-Salam, Jannat Al-Ma`wa and finally `Illiyun, the highest and most exalted of the gardens of paradise. To be sure, `Illiyun has earned this status because of its ultimate form of blessing which is seeing Allah.

Indeed, Allah has prepared for the believers who exert themselves in His path, giving aid to His religion, striving to make His word triumphant, gardens through which running waters flow. This represents the highest achievement. As a point of clarification, when the word garden is used in this context it refers to tree-lined orchards enjoying the choicest of fruits and all that in which the soul finds contentment.

Linguistically, the word jannah refers to something which covers or conceals. It was most likely glossed this way on account of the way it covers those within it behind the dense foliage of its trees.

Someone walking inside a dense garden is not visible to those outside because the trees have concealed him. The same can be said of someone relaxing inside of a garden; they cannot be seen by people outside the garden, and in fact, might be tempted to remain in the garden, removed from people on account of all of the pleasing things within the garden!

In fact, thinking about the garden—and before proceeding we remind ourselves that none of our analogies or similitudes can come close to the indescribable Glory of Allah—it is like a humongous park; its expansiveness extends as far as the eye can see (no matter where you are standing within it).

In terms of looking at the rivers of this world and those of the Hereafter, we find that the rivers of this world are bodies of water that fill clefts within the surface of the earth and are surrounded by banks and shores. Conversely, the rivers of the Hereafter flow across the surface of the garden of paradise without being enclosed by borders.

In the Hereafter, we also find rivers of wine and milk. These rivers are independent and do not mix with the rivers of water. All of this is an expression of the creative power of a Wise and Omnipotent Lord.

The True Lord Glorified is He describes the rivers of paradise: ‘The description of Paradise, which the righteous are promised, wherein are rivers of water unaltered, rivers of milk the taste of which never changes, rivers of wine delicious to those who drink, and rivers of purified honey, in which they will have from all [kinds of] fruits and forgiveness from their Lord.’ (Muhammad: 15)

The reward of those who strive in the way of Allah is not limited to having their sins forgiven or being admitted to a garden underneath which rivers flow. Even more, Allah has prepared for them, ‘goodly dwellings’ (at-Tawba: 72). This means that the garden is not the actually place in which one lives. No, as a matter of fact, one lives in mansions that are located in the garden. This is clearly mentioned in the following statement of the True Lord Glorified is He ‘goodly dwellings in gardens of perpetual residence’ (at-Tawba: 72).

The gardens—being referenced in the verse above—are verdant pastures filled with vegetation. The mansions referred to as goodly dwellings are located on the pastures. Within our lived experience, we have seen villas situated in open fields—and have observed their beauty. So, what do we think about what Allah has prepared in terms of placing sumptuous dwellings (for the believers) in the middle of the verdant gardens?

Allah has placed these luxuriant dwellings in gardens of perpetual bliss. These have termed 'gardens of perpetual bliss' because the beauty and comforts they contain are everlasting. This quality of the Garden of Paradise is highlighted to show how much it differs from the temporal world—in which we currently reside and will eventually fade away.

Your ability to enjoy every comfort and enjoyment that exists in this life can end with a change in your condition, and if it does not end with a change in your condition, it will certainly end with death. The gardens of perpetual bliss, on the other hand, which paradise contain, are everlasting and its dwellers will enjoy its comforts eternally. In short, these gardens will contain everything a soul could ever desire; there is absolutely no need to look outside the garden for anything!

Imagine that you entered one of the most splendid gardens in the world, Hyde Park, for instance. The most you would be able to do is take a casual stroll about the park, enjoying its scenery before finally becoming tired and worn out. Phrased differently, even if you were touring one of the most beautiful parks in the world you would still be forced by your human limitations to take a momentary rest. The Garden of Paradise, on the other hand, is a garden of perpetual bliss; it is all the more delightful because you can enjoy it without pause or ending.

'[Therein are] gardens of perpetual residence which the Most Merciful has promised His servants in the unseen.' (Maryam: 61) The appellation The Most Gracious was chosen by the True Lord Glorified is He here in order to give hope to those who have transgressed against themselves through sin. They should know that their Lord is Gracious and Merciful; if they turn to Him in sincere repentance, He will accept it from them. Allah always fulfils His promise!

To be sure, this is what is being conveyed by the following statement: 'It is that which is the supreme triumph.' (Maryam: 61) As long as the Most Gracious is the One making a promise, its fulfilment can be assured. It will definitely be realized; Allah Glorified is He never reneges on His promise.

'That is the supreme triumph.' When Allah refers to the Last Day as a 'supreme triumph' this is only a reference to what this day will mean for the believers—for them it will indeed be a day of great vindication. Our acceptance of this enables us to patiently preserve in the face of the challenges we encounter—in striving for Allah—and press forward, seeking martyrdom for His sake.

To be sure, Allah has prepared gardens interspersed with rivers for those who believe in Him and fight for His cause, striving to make His word triumphant, and lend their support to the victory of His religion. We have learned that this is the supreme triumph; however, in effort to better understand it we should take a closer look. What exactly is this supreme triumph? It is success and felicity; it is triumph and accomplishment at the highest level imaginable!

Our worldly success is normally accompanied by rewards in which we find delight. In fact, the delight we experience in attaining success pleases us so thoroughly that it seems as though it can last a lifetime. If this is the case, what are we to think about the success which comes in the Hereafter? Indeed, it is an everlasting success which will be enjoyed in a garden decorated by our Lord. Is this not the greatest success?

Moreover, our worldly achievements only represent success in minor matters. The success of the Hereafter, on the other hand, is granted by the True Lord—who is unlimited in His power—and is issued on a scale which reflects His grandeur. If we compared the success of this world with that of the Hereafter, we would discover that success in the Hereafter is unadulterated splendour.

Whatever sacrifice a believer does in order to attain felicity in the Hereafter, he will be awarded that which will fully account for his sacrifice and make up for it. Put differently, the supreme triumph is the highest attainment. It does not restrict anybody from what they desire and it will remain forever. Next, The True Lord Glorified is He says:

وَأُخۡرَىٰ تُحِبُّونَهَاۖ نَصۡرٞ مِّنَ ٱللَّهِ وَفَتۡحٞ قَرِيبٞۗ وَبَشِّرِ ٱلۡمُؤۡمِنِينَ ﴿١٣﴾

And He will give you something else that will really please you: His help and an imminent breakthrough. [Prophet], give the faithful the good news [13] (The Quran, as-Saff: 13)

The True Lord Glorified is He has already made a promise to those who believe in Him and His Messenger peace and blessings be upon him and strive in

His cause with their lives and material resources. Concerning their ‘trading’ with Him, Allah has promised to forgive them of their sins, admit them to gardens with rivers flowing beneath them, and place them in sumptuous mansions. This is the way in which they will live for eternity.

Notice the provisions of the verse we are currently examining. To be sure, it is the outcome of an aspect of the True Lord’s divinity: He is Omniscient; He knows what His servants want and the desires of their hearts. As such, Allah Glorified is He makes them an additional promise to give them other things from which they derive pleasure and contentment—in addition to the rewards that were mentioned in the previous verse.

According to the scholars, the verse means: As a precursor to the reward you will receive in the Hereafter, you will also be rewarded in this life. Of course, Allah knows the inner-workings of the human soul: Men and women like to see the fruit of their labours within their lives. Victory over their enemies and triumph would be the most obvious signs that their efforts to support the religion of Allah had been accepted.

The following statement of Allah Glorified is He provides us with a good example of this divine mercy—out of which Allah considers the feelings and emotions of His servants— ‘Would you not fight a people who broke their oaths and determined to expel the Messenger, and they had begun [the attack upon] you the first time? Do you fear them? But Allah has more right that you should fear Him, if you are [truly] believers. Fight them; Allah will punish them by your hands and will disgrace them and give you victory over them and satisfy the breasts of a believing people. And remove the fury in the believers' hearts. And Allah turns in forgiveness to whom He wills; and Allah is Knowing and Wise.’ (at-Tawba: 13-15)

The victory—in battle—the believers gain, with the help of Allah Glorified is He over the disbelievers brings consolation to their hearts. Lest we forget, the disbelievers had sought to subjugate and transgress them. It is as if the triumph of the believers cures a disease that has been festering in their hearts and removes rancour from them.

Simply stated, rancour and rage are removed from the hearts of the believers. In this sense, the believers fighting the disbelievers not only results in the punishment and debasement of the disbelievers and victory of the believers; even more, it also consoles the believers after having experienced transgression and harm from the disbelievers.

The word ‘another’ in the verse under discussion is referring to another reward—other than that of the Hereafter. This verse refers to an additional compensation the believers will receive for their devotion—besides being admitted to paradise. In other words, this verse is talking about a reward the believers will receive in this life.

This means that Allah Glorified is He is the Facilitator of the believers. However, by no means should you think that the facilitation and help of Allah come on the basis of other than wisdom: Allah’s aid of the believers always contains wisdom.

Customarily, when people think about victory, they think about the acquisition of territory and establishment upon that territory. However, in Islam there is an alternative measure by which victory is judged. Victory is not truly considered victory unless it provides a firm foundation for the subsequent growth of good and prosperity. When good and prosperity have been given fertile soil, the believer has truly succeeded.

The victory comes exclusively from Allah. Allah says, ‘no victory can come from any save Allah, The Almighty, The Truly Wise’ (Al-‘Imran: 126). He also says, ‘no victory can come from any save Allah: verily, Allah is Almighty, Wise!’ (al-Anfal: 10)

You do not attain victory through your numbers, preparation, or weaponry. Rather, the believers are merely instruments that Allah uses in order to place victory where He chooses. Ultimately, the victory comes from Allah Glorified is He alone, and is granted to the individuals who prepare for it.

Allah’s name refers to the fact that He is never overcome while His identification as the Truly Wise implies that He gives victory to those who prepare for it and fulfil the conditions of truly being soldiers of Allah. When entering into battle with an opposing force, the believers can use the outcome of the battle to identify the state of their hearts.

If the battle draws to a close and the believers are victorious, they know that they were truly fighting for the cause of Allah. Conversely, if the conclusion of the battle finds the believers on the losing end, they must look to themselves and their own inadequacies as the source of their defeat. Indeed, Allah speaks of faith as the determining factor of battles. This is what we find in the book He has promised to preserve. He says, 'and that, verily, Our hosts – they indeed – would (in the end) be victorious!' (as-Saffat: 173)

Accordingly, if we fail to attain victory, we must look to ourselves. What condition of truly being a fighting force striving for the sake of Allah were we lacking?

For example, in the Battle of Uhud, when the Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him commanded the archers to hold their positions, and they failed heed his command.(1) In this instance a fundamental condition of being true soldiers fighting for the cause of Allah was unfulfilled; obeying the Prophet Muhammad. What would have happened if the believers would have still been victorious despite the gross disregard of these archers for the orders of the Prophet Muhammad? The believers might not have understood the gravity of obeying the orders of Allah's Messenger.

(1) On the authority of Bara ibn `Azib, who narrated: 'The Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him was marshalling his troops on the day of Uhud. That day, some fifty men were under the direct command of `Abdullah ibn Jubayr, who said to them at the battle's onset: "Wherever you see us, protect our flanks. Hold your positions and do not move until you are given my signal. Even if we appear to be laying waste to the enemy and routing them, hold your positions and do not move until you are given my signal, then you may join in the combat." By Allah, I saw women in frenzy, shaking their bangles and anklets, and raising their garments (but he continued to hold his position). Those in the company of `Abdullah ibn Jubayr said, "The spoils of war, our companions are getting all of the spoils of war! What are we waiting for?" 'Abdullah chided them by saying "Have you forgotten the orders of the Messenger of Allah?" They responded, "By Allah we must get down there and get our share of the spoils!" As they abandoned their positions and neglected their responsibility to defend their comrades, the tide of the battle turned and the believers started suffering some casualties. As this was taking place, The Messenger was calling them from the rear, but only approximately twelve of them remained with the Messenger of Allah. In the aftermath of this critical blunder, seventy believers were killed. On the day of Badr, the Messenger of Allah and his Companions took one hundred and forty disbelievers: Seventy were killed in battle and another seventy were taken as prisoners.' This Hadith was narrated by Al-Bukhari in his Sahih (3039, 3986, 4067).

During the Battle of Hunayn, the believers were sure that they would triumph because they turned out for the battle in tremendous numbers. They were not relying on their faith. As the battle commenced, the believers found themselves on the losing end.(1) This was a critical lesson in faith for them. Accordingly, if you observe unfaith gaining the upper hand on belief, you can be sure that one of the conditions of being a true soldier fighting for the sake of Allah has been left unfulfilled.

The True Lord Glorified is He has not only promised to aid them, He has also promised them an impending victory. Allah Glorified is He says, 'And [you will obtain] another [favour] that you love - victory from Allah and an imminent conquest.' The pinnacle of being given divine aid is being granted victory. To be sure, it entails empowerment. In fact, from an Islamic perspective, victory is termed 'a conquest,' and is always governed by the guidelines of the sacred law. Such guidelines include the prohibition of plunder and the wanton killing of non-combatants, women, elderly people, monks, and hermits in their cloisters. The proscription of environmental degradation and deforestation is also included within these guidelines.

In terms of the specific victory being referenced within the verse we are currently examining, the scholars have offered many opinions. Some maintain that it is a reference to the Conquest of Mecca, while others opine that it prophesies the conquests of the Persian and Byzantine empires. All these explanations are plausible.

(1) On the authority of 'Abdullah ibn Mas`ud who narrated: 'I was with the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him on the day of Hunayn. It was a battle in which many people fled and abandoned the Messenger of Allah but eighty men—comprised of both the Muhajirun (the emigrants) and the Ansar (the helpers)—stood firmly with him. We turned on our heels and fled; however, there were about eighty infantrymen who stood their ground and refused to flee. These were the individuals Allah gave tranquillity.' 'Abdullah ibn Mas`ud continued: 'The Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him was circling the ranks so vigorously that he was thrown from the saddle when his mule turned a sharp corner. I said to him: "Rise O Messenger of Allah, and may Allah elevate you!' After requesting a handful of dirt, which he threw in their faces and which filled their eyes, he asked, "Where are the Ansar and Muhajirun?" After I informed him that they had fled, he told me to call them back. Returning with swords in hand, they were a frightening sight which startled the disbelievers and caused them to flee.' This Hadith was narrated by Ahmad in his Musnad (4336) and by At-Tabarani in Al-Mu`ajam Al-Kabir. (10351).

Here, the word ‘conquest’ is mentioned but no specific event is mentioned in connection with it. As such, we can conclude that this victory could be granted—at any time—to those who believe in Allah and His Messenger; just so long as they strive earnestly for the sake of Allah with their lives and material resources, and fulfil the conditions required for receiving divine aid and being empowered by Allah.

Considering this, we opine that the address contained within the verse we are currently examining is not directed strictly to the Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him as is the case in of the chapter of al-Fath or of the chapter of an-Nasr. Quite the reverse, this verse is addressing the generality of the believers. Listen to the following statement of Allah Glorified is He: ‘O you who have believed, shall I guide you to a transaction that will save you from a painful punishment?’ (as-Saff: 10)

Accordingly, the opinion that some have expressed about the conquest mentioned in the verse before us referring to the later conquests of the Byzantines and the Persians is a sound opinion. Obviously, these represent two conquests that the Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him did not witness. But this is not even limited to these two conquests; the conquests of Egypt or Constantinople might also be included.

Afterward, the True Lord Glorified is He says, ‘and gives good tidings to the believers.’ This is in order that they realize that Allah will never abandon them or leave them without guidance as long as they adhere to His way. Allah commanded the Prophet to give the believers glad tidings. First, Allah promises the believers a victory; this will occur in this life. Then, in the Hereafter He gives them glad tidings of gardens of perpetual bliss in which they will dwell in mansions; living gracefully.

Next, The True Lord Glorified is He says:

يَٰٓأَيُّهَا ٱلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُواْ كُونُوٓاْ أَنصَارَ ٱللَّهِ كَمَا قَالَ عِيسَى ٱبۡنُ مَرۡيَمَ لِلۡحَوَارِيِّـۧنَ مَنۡ
أَنصَارِيٓ إِلَى ٱللَّهِۖ قَالَ ٱلۡحَوَارِيُّونَ نَحۡنُ أَنصَارُ ٱللَّهِۖ فَـَٔامَنَت طَّآئِفَةٞ مِّنۢ بَنِيٓ
إِسۡرَٰٓءِيلَ وَكَفَرَت طَّآئِفَةٞۖ فَأَيَّدۡنَا ٱلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُواْ عَلَىٰ عَدُوِّهِمۡ فَأَصۡبَحُواْ ظَٰهِرِينَ ﴿١٤﴾

You who believe, be God’s helpers. As Jesus, son of Mary, said to the disciples, ‘Who will come with me to help God?’ The disciples said, ‘We shall be God’s helpers.’ Some of the Children of Israel believed and some disbelieved: We supported the believers against their enemy and they were the ones who came out on top [14] (The Quran, as-Saff: 14)

The address, ‘O you who have believed’ occurs three times in this chapter. In the first time, the True Lord Glorified is He addresses the believers by bringing some of their faults to attention. This particular behaviour (of saying one thing and doing another) was characteristic of some members of the believing community. They would speak and they would act, but their actions were not consistent with their speech. When the situation demanded both speech and action they were nowhere to be found.

There were some members of the community who would talk incessantly (about their devotion and commitment) but were never present in the ranks. They were absent from the ranks of inviting others to Islam as well as from the ranks of defending the physical integrity of the community. They also failed to be among the doers of righteous deeds and the devout in worship. Perhaps most lamentably, many of them even failed to be counted among those who restrict their evil to themselves and refrain from harming others. This was the context of Allah’s statement: ‘O you who have believed, why do you say what you do not do? Great is hatred in the sight of Allah that you say what you do not do.’ (as-Saff: 2-3)

As for the second calling, ‘O you who have believed, shall I guide you to a transaction that will save you from a painful punishment?’ (as-Saff: 10) In this, Allah is directing the attention of the believers to another important element of personal conduct: Not simply refraining from vain talk, nonsense, and that which is not corroborated by actions; on the contrary, He demands that their speech contain the most praiseworthy things and that their integrity remain intact by matching their speech with their action. Pursuant with that objective, He points out to them the most desirable course for them to follow in their actions if they are truly among the sincere.

The course of action, 'the trade' with Allah that He points out to them is: '[It is that] you believe in Allah and His Messenger and strive in the cause of Allah with your wealth and your lives.'

Finally, this verse places the believers upon the path that will deliver them to the pinnacle of servanthood to Allah: To be Helpers in the cause of Allah.

To be sure, someone might be prompted to ask: does Allah really need anyone to help Him? When the True Lord Glorified is He speaks of helping the faith, He says, 'O you who have believed, if you support Allah, He will support you and plant firmly your feet.' (Muhammad: 7)

In essence, our 'help' of Allah is expressed in implementing the religion that He has given us; this is the meaning Allah intends. This explains why sometimes the help is mentioned as coming from the believer to his Lord while at other times it is mentioned as coming from the Lord to the servant. It is a reciprocal relationship: by being on Allah's side you ensure that He will be on your side.

Then again, how do we know if we are really being helpers to Allah? We know that we are, in fact, serving as helpers to Allah when the desired outcome accrues as a result of our help. To be sure, when Allah Glorified is He mentions one of the laws which regulate creation, He does not allow reality to contravene that law. If Allah proclaimed a law of creation which was subsequently contravened by reality, it would force us to deem the law false or inapplicable.

Receiving the help of Allah is predicated upon entering the battle with the sincere desire to aid Him. Nevertheless, with what exactly will you aid Him? You aid Him with your desire to see His word actualized and made triumphant. Naturally, if one desires to see the prominence of the word of Allah, this entails undermining the word of the disbelievers until it becomes a thing of absolutely no consequence.

As such, if you fail to help Allah, you have only yourself to blame if you are not granted the help of Allah. And if the help of Allah has been restricted from you, there is no one else that can possibly help you. Allah Glorified is He says, ‘but if He should forsake you, who is there that can aid you after Him?’ (Al-‘Imran: 160)

If you see the believers suffer defeat after entering battle, you must search for the source of their deviation from way of truth. Indeed, as long as you are firm upon the way of Allah, you can be sure that Allah will aid you. This is an indubitable law, established by the Quran, and uncontested.

Allah says, ‘and Allah will most certainly support him who supports His cause.’ (al-Hajj: 40) The True Lord Glorified is He wants us to know that He has placed the keys of paradise in this world. Each of us holds the key to a path which leads to paradise or to the hellfire.

This explains why Allah says, ‘and fulfil your promise unto Me, (whereupon), I shall fulfil my promise unto you.’ (al-Baqara: 40) In another verse, He said: ‘so remember Me, and I shall remember you.’ (al-Baqara: 152)

In a Qudsi Hadith that the Prophet narrates from his Lord, we find the following: ‘If he draws near Me by a hand span, I draw near to him an arm length. If he approaches Me an arm length, I approach him a cubit length. And if he comes to me walking, I go to him with speed!’(1) In this way, the True Lord Glorified is He makes us aware that the key is our own hands. If we begin with His obedience, He will give us from His bounty without measure. In the same way, if we draw near to Allah, He draws near to us. The inverse is also true: If we distance ourselves from Allah, He distances Himself from us. This basic principle corresponds with the natural understanding of faith.

Allah Glorified is He says, ‘be supporters of Allah, as when `Isa (Jesus), the son of Maryam (Mary), asked the disciples, “Who are my supporters for Allah?” `Isa (Jesus), the son of Maryam (Mary) peace be upon them came to know the core principles of the prophetic missions, he said: ‘Verily, Allah is my Lord as well as your Lord: so worship Him (alone): this is a straight way.' (Al-'Imran: 51) This statement warns the followers of `Isa (Jesus) against saying anything about other than that he was a submissive servant of Allah who was ordered to establish prayer and obey Allah.

(1) It was narrated by Al-Bukhari in his Sahih (7405) and by Muslim in his Sahih (7008). The Hadith was transmitted by Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him. The Hadith begins as follows: ‘I am to My servant as he thinks of Me, and I am with him when he remembers Me. If he remembers Me within himself, I remember him to Myself. And if he mentions Me in a gathering, I mention him in a gathering which is superior to his gathering.’

'But when `Isa (Jesus) felt [persistence in] disbelief from them, he asked, "Who are my supporters for [the cause of] Allah?"' (Al-'Imran: 52) The hidden lesson in this is that everyone advancing an idea, practicing a trade, or pursuing a certain goal must be acutely aware of the details involved in his pursuit.

Allah commands the caller unto Him to have this heightened sense of awareness because for every group of people that will find guidance and contentment in his words, there will certainly be another group which is angered by his words. As such, the caller unto Allah must have an acute awareness of the impact of his activity. In other words, he must pay attention to those deeply ensconced characteristics and motivations which affect the receptivity of his message among people.

When `Isa (Jesus), the son of Maryam (Mary) began to go public with the message of truth, he found promoters of indecency, oppression, and spiritual darkness opposed to his teaching; indeed, his was a message which illuminated a clear path to Allah. This resistance toward faith is what the Quran terms as 'disbelief'. Nonetheless, for our purposes here, the bottom line is that `Isa (Jesus) was uncannily aware of what was taking place around him.

To be sure, he realized that he had been sent with a message from Allah to deliver people from moral corruption to moral excellence, and once he sensed their unwillingness to believe, he needed a group of people to come forth and assist him in inviting people to the truth. So, he questioned, 'Who are my supporters for Allah?' Inviting to the path of Allah entails struggle, and struggle entails sacrifice. Moreover, sacrifice is only real when it involves giving up one's life and valuables. As such, whoever finds within himself the desire to aid the cause of Allah must be prepared to work assiduously.

Another interesting insight we glean from the statement of `Isa (Jesus) peace be upon him mentioned in the chapter of Al-`Imran, is that his appeal for help in propagating the message was not directed toward specific individuals. On the contrary, he directed his appeal toward any and all who found within themselves the willingness and ability to bear the standard of Allah's message. In this way, all their sacrifice was voluntary and none of it was forced upon them.

`Isa (Jesus) did not request the help of those who wanted to work propagating the message because it was profitable or lead to positions of public esteem. He did not request this kind of help. He requested the help of the truly determined so that each of them would be prepared to strive to the height of his ability to aid the cause of Allah.

The appeal that `Isa (Jesus) peace be upon him made in Al-`Imran is general. In the chapter of as-Saf, however, the appeal is directed to the 'the disciples' in exclusion to others that were also present at the time of `Isa (Jesus), the son of Maryam (Mary). To be sure, some have opined that the verse which appears in as-Saff clarifies who was being addressed in the verse which appears in Al-`Imran. That is to say: The disciples of `Isa (Jesus) were being addressed in each of the verses. Nonetheless, this begs the question: was it in fact the disciples from whom `Isa (Jesus) detected disbelief despite the fact that we know that they ended up being his most sincere and devoted followers?

The correct view about the statement of `Isa (Jesus), the son of Maryam (Mary), 'Who are my supporters for Allah' which appears in the chapter of Al-`Imran is that it was addressed to everyone. The disciples volunteered to help `Isa (Jesus), and support him in his efforts. 'The disciples said, "We are supporters of Allah.' It almost seems as though he wanted to make sure of their dedication; which does not necessarily mean that he doubted them or that there was someone among them dishonestly claiming sincerity but not truly one of them.

'The disciples said, "We are supporters of Allah."' (as-Saff: 14) They wanted to help the cause of Allah so each of them wholeheartedly dedicated himself to His way. Faith, which in the deepest sense is the heart's being content with something, is the most important element of giving help to the cause of Allah.

Allah demanded that the disciples have faith in Him and His Messenger, `Isa (Jesus). He said: 'And [remember] when I inspired to the disciples, "Believe in Me and in My messenger `Isa (Jesus)." They said, "We have believed, so bear witness that indeed we are Muslims [in submission to Allah].'" (al-Ma'ida: 111)

The meaning of 'inspired' in the previous verse is generic. That is, it simply refers to the process of making someone aware of something previously unknown. As such, the True Lord inspired them to believe in the message of `Isa (Jesus), who was conveying His message. Put differently, Allah inspired the thoughts which occurred to their minds in the same manner He inspired the mother of Moses to throw her newborn into the sea so that it could deliver him safely to the shore.

Accordingly, this does not refer to the inspiration given to the Messenger. The inspiration given to the Messenger contains practical rules and injunctions (concerning how we should live our lives), and is always issued via the medium of Jibril (Gabriel) peace be upon him the archangel and trusted emissary of Allah. The inspiration Allah sent the mother of Musa (Moses) peace be upon him or the Disciples of `Isa (Jesus) peace be upon him conversely, was expressed in allowing the motivation of belief to take root in the heart. After which, the inspired party follows what is in the heart and finds that reality reinforces it.

The revelation and thoughts which were inspired by Allah are what caused them to believe in Allah and His Messenger, `Isa (Jesus). Thus, when they were requested to aid the cause of Allah by being His helpers, they responded by articulating that which had been placed in their hearts; they said: 'We are supporters of Allah.'

When faith was requested of them, they responded accordingly; they said, 'Our Lord, we have believed in what You revealed and have followed the messenger `Isa (Jesus), so register us among the witnesses [to truth].' (Al-'Imran: 53)

The intended belief within this verse is belief in that which `Isa (Jesus) received from Allah and subsequently taught them. The proclamation of the Disciples is a declaration of their faith in what came before `Isa (Jesus) in terms of the fundamentals of belief as well as a declaration of their adherence to what he brought by way of laws and ethics. The people were then separated into two camps: One representing faith and the other representing disbelief. This explains the following statement of Allah: 'And a faction of the children of Israel believed and a faction disbelieved.'

The word faction is a group of people united for a specific purpose and working toward one end. Therefore, some faction from among the children of Israel believed in that which was introduced by `Isa (Jesus), while some disbelieved in his message.

Yet, why did Allah make a point of saying, ‘of the children of Israel’? In addressing this question, we would point to the fact that `Isa (Jesus) was only sent as a messenger to the children of Israel. His message was not intended for all men and women. The main objective of his prophetic mission might have been strengthening their hearts and removing their overwhelming preoccupation with material concerns. In a certain sense, `Isa (Jesus) came to complete the Torah and restore unto it that which the Jewish nation had removed.

Allah Glorified is He mentions here: ‘And [mention] when `Isa (Jesus), the son of Maryam (Mary), said, “O children of Israel, indeed I am the messenger of Allah to you.”’ This statement makes it unequivocally clear that he was only sent to the children of Israel as a reformer and someone sent to guide them to redemption.

The problem with the children of Israel was that they consistently rebelled against the way of the Messengers because it did not conform to their desires. As a matter of fact, there rebelliousness reached such levels that they began to plot and conspire against the Prophets, striving to frustrate their missions; even if this meant killing them.

For this reason, Allah Glorified is He says, ‘and when I restrained the children of Israel from [killing] you when you came to them with clear proofs and those who disbelieved among them said, “This is not but obvious magic.”’ (al-Ma‘ida: 110)

Indeed, just as the Disciples were determined and resolute in their faith in `Isa (Jesus), others were determined and resolute in their disbelief, and their desire to harm him. Thus, Allah restrained the evil of the children of Israel when they desired to harm or even potentially kill `Isa (Jesus). Nonetheless, even after witnessing all of that, there were still some who believed in him and others who did not. Heinously, those who did not believe alleged that he was a magician.

Put succinctly, this group among the children of Israel disbelieved in ‘Isa (Jesus) and vehemently opposed him and went even further in inventing an insidious lie against Maryam (Mary).

Then, Allah says, ‘So We supported those who believed against their enemy, and they became dominant.’ Allah was on the side of His Messenger and those that believed and were prepared to aid His Messenger in his mission. These were the people unto whom the divine aid of Allah was given. Their foes were none other than those who had disbelieved in `Isa (Jesus), the Messenger sent by Allah.

For a time, it appeared that the party of disbelief had been victorious—after the ascension of `Isa (Jesus) into the heavens. This was until the advent of Muhammad’s prophecy. Allah made the message given to Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him a support and reinforcement for those with true faith. This will stand until the coming of the Final Hour. To be sure, Allah has described some members of the people of the Book thusly, that ‘…is because among them are priests and monks and because they are not arrogant. And when they hear what has been revealed to the Messenger, you see their eyes overflowing with tears because of what they have recognized of the truth. They say, “Our Lord, we have believed, so register us among the witnesses.”’ (al-Ma‘ida: 82-83)

Therefore, falsehood, no matter how much it seems to be dominating publicly, it will eventually be overcome by the pure truth. Truth will affect them in the depth of their souls and their eyes will overflow with tears because they recognize it when they hear it.

‘And they became dominant.’ In other words, they shall become victorious. In the end, the truth will always triumph and it will never be overcome. This is clear from the statement of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in which he said, ‘There will always remain a band of believers upon the truth and triumphant. They will not be affected by those who forsake them, and they will persevere in that state until their affair is settled by Allah.’(1)

(1) On the authority of Mu`awiya ibn Abu Sufyan, who said: ‘I heard The Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him say, “There will remain a party from amongst my nation who stand for the cause of Allah. The people that forsake them will not be able to harm them or oppose them. In the end, their affair will be decisively settled by Allah, and will find them victorious.” This Hadith was narrated by Ahmad in his Musnad (16974)

the chapter of

al-Jumu'a

In the Name of God, the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of al-Jumu'a (1):

يُسَبِّحُ لِلَّهِ مَا فِي ٱلسَّمَٰوَٰتِ وَمَا فِي ٱلْأَرْضِ ٱلْمَلِكِ ٱلْقُدُّوسِ ٱلْعَزِيزِ ٱلْحَكِيمِ ﴿١﴾

Everything in the heavens and earth glorifies God, the Controller, the Holy One, the Almighty, the Wise [1]
(The Quran, al-Jumu'a: 1)

If one were to examine the expressions of glorification in the Noble Quran, one would find that glorification is established for Allah Glorified is He before He created those who glorify Him, such as in His statement 'Exalted is He who took His Servant.' (al-Isra': 1) Then, after Allah had created the creation: 'Whatever is in the heavens and whatever is on the earth exalts Allah.' (al-Hashr: 1)

The creation still glorifies Him in the present: 'Whatever is in the heavens and whatever is on the earth is exalting Allah, the Sovereign, the Pure the Exalted in Might, the Wise.’ Therefore, glorifying Allah has always been and shall remain until the Hour is established. This is why the True Lord Glorified is He commands Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him along with his ummah, to continue glorifying Him: ‘Exalt the name of your Lord, the Most-High.’ (al-A‘la: 1)

(1) Al-Jumu`a is the 62nd chapter in the order of the Noble Quran and it consists of eleven verses. It was revealed in Medina. As-Suyuti said in Ad-Durr Al-Manthur (8/151): 'Ibn Ad-Daris, An-Nahas, Ibn Mardawayh have all related, along with Al-Bayhaqi in Ad-Dala`il, that Ibn `Abbas said: 'The chapter of al-Jumu`a was sent down in Medina. It was sent down after the chapter of at-Tahrim and before at-Taghabun. The verse that mentions the Friday Prayer was sent down after its ruling, i.e. the verse that mentions Al-Jumu`a was sent down in Medina even though the Friday Prayer was made obligatory in Mecca. This is supported by what Ibn Majah has narrated from `Abd Ar-Rahman ibn Ka`b ibn Malik that As`ad ibn Zarara was the first person to lead the Friday Prayer before the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him arrived from Mecca. Al-Itqan fi `Ulum Al-Quran 1/108)

The command to remember Allah came after the command to glorify Him, as if He is telling you whenever you remember Him: ‘He is transcendent in His Essence, His attributes and His actions, and it is for your benefit, throughout life, that Allah has no equal, no parallel, no peer and no rival because everyone will be under His justice.’ Thus, Allah is transcendent for your benefit. Allah is transcendent and sanctified above being compared to anything in creation. His Name is exalted; His essence is exalted and so are His attributes and actions. Limitless is He in His Glory above any attribute that men may ascribe to Him that does not befit His Essence.

Tasbih (Glorification) and taqdis (sanctification) were established for Allah before the act of creation. Allah was glorified before He brought into existence those who would glorify Him, just as He was the Creator before He brought the creation into existence. He possessed the attribute of creating before He created anything.

Likewise, we say in the countryside: ‘A person who does not have a guardian should seek one’ because the existence of someone greater and bigger than everything and everyone protects you from anyone being overbearing towards you. Therefore, Allah’s Sublimity and Grandeur are some of His Greatest Blessings on you.

Thus, when you glorify Him and declare Him transcendent, be thankful to Allah because He is Transcendent. Be thankful to Allah that He has no partner and that all of mankind are equal before Him. Be thankful to Allah that His Word and Command are powerful over all. Be thankful to Allah that He has never taken a wife or a son, and there is no kinship between Him and anyone from among His creation.

The True Lord the Exalted has made your remembrance of Him and your glorification of Him for your benefit, and it is from His Countless Blessings that the heavens and the earth and all that they contain glorify Allah, declare Him transcendent, and sanctify Him Glorified is He. This glorification by the creation necessitates that they be submissive to Him and obedient to His Commands, not rebelling against His commands.

Therefore, the human should feel assured that the entire universe glorifies Allah and is submissive to Him because if that were not the case humanity would not be able to live on earth. Thus, Allah the Most High has decreed, on the basis of Him being glorified by all creatures, that all of them be harnessed to the service of mankind.

Allah the Exalted says, 'See you not (O mankind) that Allah has subjected for you whatsoever is in the heavens and whatsoever is in the earth…' (Luqman: 20). He also says, 'See you not that Allah sends down water (rain) from the sky, and then the earth becomes green? Verily, Allah is the Most Kind and Courteous, Well-Acquainted with all things. To Him belongs all that is in the heavens and all that is on the earth. And verily, Allah He is Rich (Free of all wants), Worthy of all praise. See you not that Allah has subjected to you (mankind) all that is on the earth, and the ships that sail through the sea by His Command? He withholds the heaven from falling on the earth except by His Leave. Verily, Allah is, for mankind, full of Kindness, Most Merciful.' (al-Hajj: 63-65)

The True Lord the Exalted is transcendent above every imperfection and is glorified because He is characterized by all the attributes of grace and beauty; He is '…the Malik (the King, the Owner of everything), the Holy, the All-Mighty, the All-Wise.' (al-Jumu'a: 1).

In the witr (odd-numbered) prayer, the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him would recite the chapters of al-`Ala, al-Kafirun and al-Ikhlas; and after finishing the prayer with taslim (salutation of peace ending the prayer), he would say three times: 'Subhan Al-Malik Al-Quddus' (Glory be to the King, the Holy), and he would raise his voice when doing so. (1)

(1) Narrated by Imam Ahmad in his Musnad (15390) and An-Nasa`i in his Sunnan (1698) based on the Hadith of `Abd Ar-Rahman ibn Abza. It was also narrated by Al-Bayhaqi in his Sunnan (5057) and Ad-Daraqutni (1679) based on the Hadith of Ibn Abza from `Ubay ibn Ka`b.

Allah the Glorious and Exalted is the Malik (the King, the Owner). If every human being is the owner of what he possesses, the owner of his clothes, or the owner of the morsel of food that he eats, or the owner of the house that he sleeps in, then the Malik is the True Owner Who owns all things and owns every owner.

Every person has some property, but there is a difference when a human being owns something that he is unable to keep. Allah has given some of us control over the affairs of other people, as there is an owner of food or clothes; but not every owner is truly an owner. The true owner is the one who owns any owner, and this is the standard way of the universe.

In the Hereafter there is One Owner, the Owner of the Day of Judgment. Allah the Exalted says, '…His will be the dominion on the Day when the trumpet will be blown; All Knower of the unseen and the seen. He is the All-Wise, Well-Aware (of all things).' (al-An'am: 73) Has dominion belonged to any but Allah on any day ever?

In the realm of means, our Lord the Exalted has given each one of us some dominion. He has given some people dominion over us such they becoming kings, but in the Hereafter, there is none of this. Therefore, He the Most High says, '…To whom belongs [all] sovereignty this Day? To Allah, the One, the Prevailing…' (Ghafir: 16).

In the life of this world, for example, you may be able to employ me and give me a wage. Or you may be able to cook for me and give me food, or you may be able to sew some clothes for me. However, in the Hereafter no one will have the means to do anything for anyone because in the life of this world we live according to the means that Allah has granted us, and in the Hereafter, we will live according to the Original Causer alone without any means.

That is why we say to every king: 'Indeed, this dominion is not intrinsically yours because if this dominion were intrinsically yours, no one would ever be able to strip you of it. Allah the Glorious and Exalted says, 'Say, 'O Allah, Owner of Sovereignty …' (Al-'Imran: 26).

Therefore, no one intrinsically possesses sovereignty or dominion except Allah. Allah has the dominion of the heavens and the earth; therefore, unless Allah has willed, nothing and no one will harm you, nor will anyone or anything passes you by.

As for the True Lord's Name Al-Quddus (the Holy), it means that He is the Pure, as sanctification means to honour Allah as Holy and far above all vicissitudes. Because You, My Lord, are Holy and Pure, it is not befitting that anything should be ascribed to You except that which is Pure, nor is it befitting that anything should come from those whom You have created with Your Own Hands except that which is pure.

It is said: 'Allah is Sanctified', i.e. transcendent because Allah's Essence is not like human essence. He the Glorious and Exalted has attributes that are transcendent above being like your attributes. He the Glorious and Exalted has actions, but His actions are sanctified, purified, and transcendent above being like your actions.

His Life is also transcendent. His Essence is not like your essence. His Attributes are not like your attributes. You have power, but it is limited. He has Absolute Power. He hears and the human beings hear, but the hearing of human beings is limited while His Hearing is unlimited. Therefore, Allah's Attributes are sanctified, in other words, His Attributes are pure, perfect and far above any imperfection.

The angels said: '…while we declare Your praise and sanctify You…' (al-Baqara: 30). Tasbih (glorification) means to declare Allah transcendent above that which does not befit Him being transcendent. Taqdis (sanctification) means purification, and it is taken from the word quds which is the bucket that people would use with which to purify themselves That is why we say: 'Subbuh Quddus' (Glorified and Holy). 'Glorified' means that He is transcendent above everything that does not befit His Majesty, and 'Holy' means pure.

The term tasbih (glorification) means to sanctify Allah and declare Him transcendent in His Essence, His Attributes, and His Actions. This means that no essence is like His Essence: '…there is nothing like unto Him…' (ash-Shura: 11), whether in His Person, Attributes or Actions. Therefore, do not say that Allah's Hearing is like your hearing, or that His Seeing is like your seeing, or that His Actions are like your actions.

The meaning is: we glorify You and we sanctify You in a way that befits Your firmly established divinity, and thus we do not add anything from ourselves. Glorification causes the one glorifying to feel pleasure within himself, and obedience causes the obedient person to feel pleasure within himself, just as Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: 'The comfort of my eyes is made in prayer'(1), and whenever anything distressed him, he would pray.(2)

The True Lord's Name Al-`Aziz, (the Almighty) in His words: '…the King, the Holy the Almighty the Wise!' (al-Jumu'a: 1) means the One Whose Power is never overcome and no one dare to argue with Him. No one can enter into a dispute with Allah. Allah's creation only enters into arguments and struggles with one another.

However, no one would dare enter into a dispute with Allah because He is Almighty and can never be vanquished. Know that Allah always prevails in whatever is His Will, and even though His Will dominates, He is All-Wise in implementing it.

The True Lord the Most High gives us a glimpse of the meaning of His Might along with His Wisdom in His statement: 'Surely! Those who disbelieved in Our Ayat (signs, proofs or revelations), We (Allah) shall burn them in Fire. As often as their skins are roasted through, We shall change them for other skins that they may taste the punishment. Truly, Allah is All-Mighty, the All-Wise.' (an-Nisa': 56)

Allah's Attribute of Al-`Aziz, (the Almighty) is the One Who is never overpowered and you will never be able to protect yourself against Him vanquishing you. A disbeliever might say: 'We enjoyed ourselves with a sin committed once for five minutes, and another time for two hours, so how would it harm me for my skin to burn and that would be the end of the matter?'

We would respond to him: 'No. Indeed, the One punishing you is never overcome. He will make the punishment permanent for you by replacing your skin with another skin. He the Exalted is also Wise, so the issue is not a matter of arbitrary power that He is using. No. He is using His Power justly.

(1) Narrated by Ahmad ibn Hanbal in his Musnad (12315, 13079, 14069) from the Hadith of Anas ibn Malik Allah be pleased with him. It was also found in the Musnad of Abu Ya`la Al-Mawsuli (3482, 3530).

(2) Narrated by Ahmad in his Musnad (23347) from Hudhayfa Allah be pleased with him... It was also narrated by Abu Dawud in his Sunnan (1319), Al-Bayhaqi in his Sunnan (3181, 3182) and Abu Na`im in Ma`rifat As-Sahabah (4216, 4217).

The True Lord is described as being Almighty and also an Avenger of Evil. He the Most High pardons past sins, but if someone returns and violates Allah's prohibitions in a certain field, the True Lord will punish him, and He will not accept any sacrificial offerings, or feeding of the poor, or fasting from him because by repeating a sin, one is persisting in it. That is why Allah takes revenge from him, and He is the Almighty Who is never vanquished.

The True Lord the Exalted has spoken to us about the planning of the celestial bodies in His saying: 'The sun and the moon [move] by precise calculation' (ar-Rahman: 5), '…and the sun runs on its fixed course for a term (appointed). That is the Decree of the All-Mighty, the All Knowing.' (Ya Sin: 38) The word 'the Almighty' indicates dominance and subdual, and thus no one can prevail over Him.

These celestial bodies that you see are stronger than you are, and your hand cannot grasp them. They carry out a function for you without you being close to them. You do not approach the sun to adjust it, as you would do with a watch that has been made by a human like you.

The sun has a strength that Allah, its Creator, has placed in it. There is nothing whatsoever in Allah's handiwork or creation that can challenge or resist Him. This is the planning of the Almighty, the All Knowing. He, the Majestic, gives us reliable means of calculating things, as He the Most High is the One Who Created them with wise planning that is never overcome. He is Almighty and has absolute, limitless knowledge of everything.

Know that '…verily, your Lord, He is the All-Strong, the All-Mighty.' (Hud: 66) The True Lord is Omnipotent; He seizes every disbeliever and no one overcomes Him and absolutely nothing incapacitates Him. The One Who is absolutely the Almighty is Allah, but we might say about someone that he is the mighty one among his people, i.e. their leader. We say that the One Who is absolutely rich beyond any needs or wants is Allah, but we also say that so-and-so is rich and so-and-so is poor.

Allah's Names are names of His Essence or they are names of His Attributes and Actions. If the name has no opposite, it is a name of essence, such as Al-`Aziz (the Almighty). On the other hand, if it is a name of an attribute or an action, such as The Exalter, it must have an opposite, which in this case is the Al-Abaser.

If He were only able to exalt and were not able to humiliate, He would not be God. If He could only harm and could not benefit anyone, it would not be possible for Him to be God. If He were only able to give and had no power to withhold, it would not be possible for Him to be God.

Each of these attributes has an opposite whose effect manifests itself in other than Allah. So, He, for example, is Almighty in His Nature; He exalts some and humbles others.

Allah Glorified is He is the Almighty, the Most Merciful. Allah is Almighty; He overpowers and is never overpowered. An example of this is His statement '…it is He Who feeds and is not fed…' (al-An'am: 14), and His statement 'Say, "In Whose Hand is the sovereignty of everything? And He protects (all), while against Whom there is no protector."' (al-Mu'minun: 88)

Despite His Might, He is full of Mercy; so, He is Merciful when He overcomes and dominates because He is the Lord of the entire creation. He shows mercy to people when they repent, and He accepts them when they turn back to Him.

It is stated in the Noble Hadith: 'Allah is more joyous at the repentance of His slave when he repents than one of you are when he is on his riding beast in some barren land, and it escapes from him while carrying his food and drink, and he despairs of it and decides to recline under the shade of a tree. After having despaired of ever finding his riding beast, he suddenly finds it in front of him and he grabs it by the halter. He then says out of extreme joy: 'O Allah, You are my slave and I am your Lord.' He makes this mistake due to his extreme joy. (1)

Although Allah is Mighty, He is Compassionate towards His slaves. He opens the door of repentance to whoever repents, so no one should think that there is any tyranny in the attribute 'the Almighty' because He the Exalted is also The Bestower of Mercy.

(1) Narrated by Imam Muslim in his Sahih (7136) from the Hadith of Anas ibn Malik, and Al-Bukhari also narrated it in his Sahih (6309) from the Hadith of Anas.

It is part of the sublimity of the Quranic style that it brings these two attributes together The Almighty and the Most Merciful. It is as if He is teaching us an Islamic principle according to which Islam nurtures its followers, and indeed it is proportion and moderation. Let not a single attribute, quality, disposition, or character dominates you, and always adhere to the middle course because every disposition in the human has a function.

Reflect on the Allah's statement regarding the attributes of the believers: '…humble toward the believers, powerful against the disbelievers…' (al-Ma'ida: 54). Thus, a Muslim is not moulded upon humility or pride. Rather, it is the situation that makes him humble or proud, and so the believer is described as being modest and humble towards believers and proud towards disbelievers.

Thus, the might of the Almighty towards an arrogant person is a mercy for the person who is treated arrogantly, and thus both His Might and His Mercy are in your favour. This is not all, because He is also All Knowing. He could be Almighty and Invincible, but devoid of knowledge. Therefore, the True Lord the Exalted is Almighty and All Knowing, and He puts might in its proper place and humility in its proper place.

His Might and Domination are sovereign and ascendant, but despite that the True Lord follows their mention with the attribute of mercy in order to bring forth balance in the believer's soul between the attributes of dominance and sovereignty and the attribute of mercy.

If you want true might and glory, seek them from the One Whose Might never changes. He is the True Lord Glorified is He: '…to Allah belongs all honour, power, and glory.' (an-Nisa': 139) This statement contains a direction for the one seeking might and glory; so, let everyone who is seeking might and glory do so by having faith in Allah. He is the One Who grants might and Whose might never changes.

'…To Allah belongs all honour, power and glory.' (an-Nisa': 139) The word 'all' indicates that there are different kinds of might: the might of wealth, the might of authority, the might of dignity. So, if someone wants to know and comprehend might, the True Lord the Exalted possesses it all.

Therefore, when the True Lord says, '…to Allah belongs all honour, power and glory' (an-Nisa': 139), the meaning is: 'O human, if you want might that is orderly and superior to all might, go to Allah because it is He Who has made us honourable and powerful for we are His creation'.

The True Lord Glorified is He says, '…honour, power, and glory belong to Allah, His Messenger (Muhammad), and to the believers, but the hypocrites know not…' (al-Munafiqun: 8). Might and glory inherently belong to Allah, and you cannot surpass them. Yet He the Most High has willed for the might and glory of His Messenger and the believers to emanate from His Might and Glory.

'…To Allah belongs all honour, power and glory' (an-Nisa': 139) means that all types of power and glory belong to Allah the Exalted. If might lies in wisdom, He is the Wise. If might lies in seizing matters, He is the Almighty. If might lies in forbearance, He is the Forbearing. And if might lies in anger and retributory vengeance, He is the Lord of Retribution, the All-Compeller.

As for the True Lord's Name Al-Hakim (the Wise), it indicates that the Creator governs all created beings so that they do not live without guidance and knowledge.

Wisdom in fiqh (Islamic jurisprudence) means that an objective is set for every undertaking so that all actions are harmonious with one another, and the universe is governed according to the truth, which no falsehood can approach from before or from behind it.

The Wise and the All Knowing is the One Who lays down a framework and limits for every created being, and wisdom signifies that everything carries out what is required from it with proficiency. Wisdom in fiqh means to derive a sound ruling, while wisdom in poetry means to balance the words according to their poetical patterns. Wisdom in medicine means to know the diagnosis of the illness and the medication that will treat it. Wisdom in architecture means to design a hospital in accordance with the needs of the patients, doctors, medical appliances and equipment, medical storage facilities and so forth, or in designing a house that is comfortable for its occupants. And the wisdom in building a house, for example, is different from the wisdom in building a palace or a workplace.

If the Almighty is the One Who is not overcome due to His Omnipotence, and no one dare question Him, then indeed the Wise is the One from Whom nothing comes except what is profoundly wise.

The word hikma (wisdom) derives from the word hakama which is placed in a horse's mouth and we call it a bridle. As we know, it is comprised of a piece of leather that is positioned in the horse's mouth and it contains a piece of iron. So, if the horse inclines away from the direction that you want, it is easy to pull it back to the right direction.

Indeed, the presence of the bridle means the presence of something that governs it, and thus it does not deviate to the right or to the left. As long as Allah has testified that there is no god but He, and the angels and those endowed with knowledge have also testified, and after these testimonies the matter has been concluded that there is no god but He and that He is the Almighty, the Wise, then every way provided by Him must be submitted to and obeyed.

As long as the person has believed in Allah Who is the Capable, the Wise, the Creator, the Sustainer, the Holy, then he should listen to his Lord with regards to what will rectify his life. He the Exalted is Wise and He puts everything wisely in its exact place, so no one should look at the outward gifts of something now and be heedless of the harms that may ensue.

Thus, Allah is the Wise the Almighty. He does not receive commands from any of His creatures. He is not hastened by the impatience of the creatures. He is the Wise Who does not leave anything to no avail, as He is The Planner of every matter such that it matches what is correct. That is why contradictory matters cannot come from the One Wise Lord, but rather, contradiction is the result of someone differing with someone else, or lack of wisdom regarding a certain matter.

Then the True Lord Glorified is He says:

هُوَ ٱلَّذِى بَعَثَ فِى ٱلْأُمِّيِّـۧنَ رَسُولًا مِّنْهُمْ يَتْلُوا۟ عَلَيْهِمْ ءَايَـٰتِهِۦ وَيُزَكِّيهِمْ
وَيُعَلِّمُهُمُ ٱلْكِتَـٰبَ وَٱلْحِكْمَةَ وَإِن كَانُوا۟ مِن قَبْلُ لَفِى ضَلَـٰلٍ مُّبِينٍ ﴿٢﴾

It is He who raised a messenger, among the people who had no Scripture, to recite His revelations to them, to make them grow spiritually and teach them the Scripture and wisdom – before that they were clearly astray [2]
(The Quran, al-Jumu'a: 2)

Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was sent to unlettered people. He came into an unlettered community that did not have any cultural refinement, and the Quran was sent down to address an unlettered community. It came on the tongue of the unlettered Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him among people who were ignorant about highly complex scientific matters, philosophies, cultures and civilisations.

Accordingly, Allah the Exalted did not send the Quran down to someone who was well versed in Hellenistic, Greek or Ancient Egyptian philosophy. Rather, He sent it down to an unlettered prophet who did not read or write, among an unlettered people. This has a profound wisdom for him because the meaning of ummi (unlettered) is that he did not acquire knowledge from human beings. Instead, he remained as on the time his mother gave birth to him, and his refinement and knowledge came from the heavens.

Concerning Allah's statement 'He it is Who sent among the unlettered ones a Messenger (Muhammad) from among themselves, reciting to them His verses, purifying them, and teaching them the Book and wisdom. And verily, they had been before in manifest error. (al-Jumu'a: 2) Qatadah ibn Di`amah As-Sadusi(1) said: 'This Arab tribe was illiterate. There was no book that they would read, so Allah sent Muhammad among them as a mercy and a guide, to give them guidance through him.'

(1) He was one of the tabi`un (followers). His surname was Abu Al-Khattab Al-Basri. He was a trustworthy scholar and was blind. He died in Wasit when he was fifty-six or fifty-seven years old, seven years after the death of Al-Hasan Al-Basri. He related Hadiths from Anas ibn Malik. He was the sheikh of Shu`bah, Abu `Awanah and others. He was a reliable authority in Hadith. `Ajili, Ath-Thaqat

If the True Lord the Exalted has described Himself as being: '…the Malik (the King, the Owner of everything), the Holy, the All-Mighty, the All-Wise' (al-Jumu'a: 1), and that everything in the heavens and the earth glorifies Him and declares Him transcendent, here He is giving us the foundations of these magnificent attributes and names. He is the Owner of everything in this world, everything in the heavens and the earth, everything in the Hereafter, such as the Judgment, paradise, the fire the scales. He is the Holy, the Transcendent, the Pure from all defects and imperfections. He is the Almighty and can never be overpowered or subdued. And He is the Wise; He places all matters in their proper place, and He does not use His Might tyrannically or oppressively.

Indeed, Allah Glorified is He manifests all these attributes to His creatures, so He warns them, admonishes them, gives them glad tidings and sends messengers to mankind with His Books to guide them to the path of the truth.

One of His Blessings is that 'He it is Who sent among the unlettered ones a Messenger (Muhammad) from among themselves…' (al-Jumu'a: 2). He and no one else; for indeed there is no lord besides Him and no god other than Him Who sends prophets and messengers throughout the ages and epochs. Throughout these successive heavenly messages no one has claimed prophethood or messenger ship from another god besides Allah.

Even those who allege that they are messengers, when in fact they are not, say that they are messengers or prophets of Allah. Allah the Exalted is the One Who sends and commissions messengers because He is the Creator and no one else. He the Most High is the One responsible for His creation, namely all those whom He has created, by providing for them and sustaining their lives on earth, and also by sending messengers and prophets and Books that guide them to the values and manners in the life of this world, and Allah rewards them with paradise in the Hereafter – if they are truly believers.

We notice that the True Lord the Exalted uses the Arabic verb ba`atha, rather than the verb arsala in His saying: '…He it is Who sent (ba`atha) among the unlettered ones a Messenger…' (al-Jumu'a: 2). The meaning of arsala is to send someone to people who could be from among them or not, and the same goes for ba`atha ila (send to). But in this context Allah says, 'ba`atha fihim ('…sent among…'), and the meaning of (ba`atha fihim) includes bringing back to life. Here it signifies bringing back to life the religion of Ibrahim (Abraham) and Ismail (Ishmael) peace be upon them which had been among the Arabs since ancient times.It is known that this land did not contain any vegetation and was not inhabited by people, and Allah favoured this land by bringing Prophet Ismail (Ishmael), the son of Ibrahim (Abraham), there, totally alone and isolated along with his mother, Hajar. Ibrahim (Abraham) left her, by Allah's Command, in this desolate place, far from any source of water, which was why people had not populated it or lived there.

People did not live there until after the well of zam-zam had gushed out under the feet of Ismail (Ishmael), and Ibrahim (Abraham) and Ismail (Ishmael) had raised the foundations of the Sacred House and purified it for those who would stay there for worship, and those who would bow down and prostrate themselves in prayer, as was Allah's Command for both.

The True Lord the Exalted says, 'and [mention] when We made the House a place of return for the people and [a place of] security. And take, [O believers], from the standing place of Ibrahim a place of prayer, And We charged Ibrahim (Abraham) and Ismail (Ishmael), [saying], "Purify My House for those who are circumambulating it and those who are staying [there] for worship and those who bow and prostrate [in prayer]."' (al-Baqara: 125)

Therefore, the beginning of residing in this place was based on Allah's Oneness and establishing His House and raising its foundations so that it would be prominent for mankind, and so that it would be secure such that people could reach it quickly, seek refuge in it and live around it.

The rites of the pilgrimage to Allah's House that had survived, such as the circumambulation and running between the mountains of As-Safa and Al-Marwa, were proof of the original religion of Ibrahim (Abraham) in this place; but over the lengthy passage of time the Arabs brought in the worship of idols at the hands of `Amr ibn Luhay (1), even to the extent that idols were placed inside Allah's House.

(1) His name was Khuza`ah `Amr ibn Luhay ibn Qam`ah ibn Khindif. Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said regarding him: 'I saw `Amr ibn Luhay dragging his intestines in the Fire.' He also said: 'Because he was the first man to change the religion of Ismail (Ishmael). He set up idols and started the custom of releasing animals for the sake of false deities.'

Therefore, the sending of the Messenger of Allah is called a ba`tha because He revived the religion of Ibrahim (Abraham) and Ismail (Ishmael) peace be upon them cleansed the House of idols and made it purely for Allah alone.

That is why Allah says, 'He it is Who sent among (ba`atha) the unlettered ones…' (al-Jumu'a: 2). The unlettered people are those who do not know of any divine book. The True Lord Glorified is He called the Arabs who were contemporary to the Messenger of Allah unlettered, which signify they did not have any sources of knowledge.

This attribute of being unlettered, in the Messenger of Allah and his community, is a testimony of superiority because it is a community that has not taken its knowledge through reading about the civilizations of previous nations. Rather, they have taken it from Allah because the utmost that lettered people can achieve in their knowledge is to share knowledge with one another.

However, knowledge has come to the community of Muhammad peace and blessings upon him from Allah, and they ruled the life of this world for more than a thousand years. Thus, this illiteracy is an honour for them so that no one can say: 'They are people who made a civilizational leap from a civilized nation'. This illiteracy was remarkable because what has come out of this community such as its legislations has caused the other nations to stand before it in astonishment and appreciation, right up until this age of ours.

Allah Glorified is He sent among these unlettered people someone who was unlettered like them: 'He it is Who sent among the unlettered ones a Messenger (Muhammad) from among themselves…' (al-Jumu'a: 2).

The True Lord the Exalted says about him: 'neither did you (O Muhammad) read any book before it (this Quran), nor did you write any book (whatsoever) with your right hand. In that case, indeed, the followers of falsehood might have doubted.' (al-'Ankabut: 48) Thus, you did not recite or write any books before the Quran, and there is a difference between reciting and writing. You recite because you have memorised something, and memorising is the result of hearing. As for writing, this is something else.

If the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him had had some portion of reading and writing, then they would have had an excuse, and there would have been uncertainty calling for doubt in the matter. For this reason, his Lord the Most High described him as being: '…Those who follow the Messenger, the unlettered Prophet…' (al-A'raf: 157).

Beware of thinking that being unlettered is some sort of shortcoming in the Messenger of Allah; for indeed, if it is a shortcoming in others, it is an honour in him. This is because the meaning of being unlettered is that one maintains his original disposition, as pure and natural as the day his mother gave birth to him, and has not learned anything from anyone.

Likewise, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him did not learn from the creation. Rather, he learned from the Creator, and thus his rank is above that of the rest of creation. This was the supplication of Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him as he said: 'Our Lord, send among them a Messenger of their own, who shall recite to them Your verses and instruct them in the Book (this Quran) and wisdom, and sanctify them. Verily! You are the All-Mighty, the All-Wise.' (al-Baqara: 129)

Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him supplicated to Allah the Exalted to complete His blessings upon his progeny and to increase His Mercy towards His slaves by sending a messenger to them who would convey to them the law of the heavens so that there would not be a period of darkness on earth in which sin, corruption and disbelief would prevail and people fall into worshipping idols, as was the case before Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him.

The meaning of 'Our Lord, send among them a Messenger of their own, who shall recite to them Your verses…' (al-Baqara: 129) is to convey to them the verses of the Noble Quran. Then he supplicated: '…and instruct them in the Book (this Quran) and wisdom…' (al-Baqara: 129). You must know that there is a difference between reciting and instructing or teaching. Reciting is for reading the Quran, while teaching is to know its meanings, how they are to be practically applied, and to know where they have come from.

If the Book is the Noble Quran, then the wisdom constitutes the Hadith of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him which the True Lord the Exalted referred to when addressing the wives of Prophet Muhammad: 'And remember what is recited in your houses of the verses of Allah and wisdom…' (al-Ahzab: 34). In another verse, the True Lord the Most High says: 'Just as We have sent among you a Messenger from yourselves reciting to you Our verses and purifying you and teaching you the Book and wisdom and teaching you that which you did not know.' (al-Baqara: 151)

The function of reciting Allah's verses is to grow in purity that is purification, as Allah's verses cleanse the souls and the hearts from the defilement that may cling to them. So, they purify them from the worship of idols and from burying baby girls alive, and from intoxicants, games of chance, gambling, and usury. The meaning of purification also means to clear away harm, so it is as though he has brought benefit to them and removed harm from them.

When he purifies them, and causes them to grow in purity, He is only leading them to the path of goodness and the perfection of belief. This is by teaching them the Book and wisdom. The Book, in absolute terms, refers to the Noble Quran, and wisdom is to put things in their proper place. The Book gives you the commandments; it commands you to do something or it forbids you from something, so it goes between doing and forbearing.

Wisdom means to do the action that will bring about goodness for you and protect you from evil, and it is taken from the word hakama, or the piece of iron that is placed in a horse's mouth in order to control its movement while moving and standing still, and thus every movement carries out its purpose.

Allah's statement '…and teaching you the Book and wisdom and teaching you that which you did not know' (al-Baqara: 151) refers to you being an unlettered community. So, if the life of this world dazzles you with its civilizations and its achievements, you will dazzle them with the rays of faith that will make you superior to them because everything that comes to you from the heavens is superior to all the civilizations of the earth.

When we look at the objectives behind sending Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him we find that they are mentioned in the noble verse: 'He it is Who sent among the unlettered ones a Messenger (Muhammad) from among themselves…' (al-Jumu'a: 2). Thus, the first of these objectives is the recitation of Allah's verses. He the Exalted and the Glorious says: '…reciting to them His verses…' (al-Jumu'a: 2). The act of reciting is not restricted to just the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him. Rather, it is also stated relative to Allah the Exalted.

Allah the Exalted says, ‘These are the verses of Allah, We recite them to you (O Muhammad) in truth, and surely, you are one of the messengers (of Allah).’ (al-Baqara: 252) He also says, ‘These are the verses of Allah. We recite them to you, (O Muhammad), in truth; and Allah wants no injustice to the worlds.’ (Al-‘Imran: 108) And He says, ‘These are the verses of Allah, which We recite to you (O Muhammad) with truth. Then in which speech after Allah and His verses will they believe?’ (al-Jathiya: 6) Allah’s recitation of His verses to His Messenger Muhammad confirms him as one of the honourable messengers who have been sent to mankind with Allah’s verses and Words. It indicates the extent of Allah’s Concern for humanity to be guided to the path of the Truth, for Allah wills no injustice to His creatures.

He the Most High conveys His Messages and His Words to them by way of His messengers so that there can be no excuse for them on the Day of Resurrection that Allah’s Words have not reached them. No indeed, because He recites them to His Messengers so that they can convey them to mankind in truth, as He conveyed them to them. ‘…Then in which speech after Allah and His verses will they believe?’ (al-Jathiya: 6)

The True Lord, due to His Absolute Justice and Mercy towards His servants, send His messengers to them with Books and Scriptures, and He does not punish anyone unless His warnings and glad tidings have reached him. He the Glorious and Exalted says: ‘And never will your Lord destroy the towns (populations) until He sends to their mother town a Messenger reciting to them Our verses. And never would We destroy the towns unless the people thereof are wrongdoers.’ (al-Qasas: 59)

The meaning of ‘…mother town (fi ummiha)…’ (al-Qasas: 59) is the Mother of Towns, namely Mecca the Ennobled. This is how Mecca the Ennobled is like a mother and an origin of all towns. Mecca the Ennobled is called Umm Al-Qurah because all the towns visit it. The word qaryah (town) can only apply to a place that contains all the essentials of life that are adequate enough to accommodate the guests who happen to visit it. If the town is large and abundant provision comes to it from all directions, as if it were a source, we call it Umm Al-Qura.

The True Lord the Exalted does not punish anyone until after sending a messenger to them who conveys His commandments to them; what to do and what not to do. The True Lord says: '…And We never punish until We have sent a Messenger (to give warning).' (al-Isra': 15)

Allah the Glorious and Exalted only commands His Messenger Muhammad to recite the Quran, saying: 'And recite, [O Muhammad], what has been revealed to you of the Book of your Lord…' (al-Kahf: 27). He also says in another verse: 'Recite, [O Muhammad], what has been revealed to you of the Book and establish prayer…' (al-'Ankabut: 45). So, recite the Quran, O Muhammad, and persist in reciting it, even if people deny it. And perhaps Allah will bring forth from these people a progeny whose hearts will be purified in order to receive what the heavens have sent and thus believe in what these people have rejected, and the command to recite is for the continuation of the miracle.

So, read and do not become weak and do not despair, as the Quran is solace for your soul. And since your people have denied you, return to Me by listening to My Book, which I have sent down to you as a miracle to support you, and wait for the coming of people who will hear Allah's Speech from you. It shall come across pure hearts from among them and thus they shall believe in it.

This is the distinguishing factor of your miracle, O Muhammad; that you can repeat it at any time and you can recite it as you wish, and whoever has heard it can recite it after you and it continues to be repeated until the Day of Resurrection.

The issue is not that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him recites the Quranic verses merely so that people can be amazed by them. No, because The Messenger has a mission of faith that directs anyone who hears the Quran towards the One Who has created this beautiful, splendid universe that contains wondrous signs.

After that, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him gives us the way that is suited to the beauty of the universe. So, the Messenger moves the believers towards the way that causes mankind to grow in purity.

Regarding the True Lord's statement: '…purifying them…' (al-Jumu'a: 2), you know that the expression yuzakkihim (causing them to grow in purity) derives from zakat, and the first meanings of zakat are purification, cleansing and growth, and, similarly, the verses that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him has brought have only come to cause them to grow in purity.

Is this purification for the benefit of the one purifying or the one being purified? Indeed, it is for the benefit of the one being purified. Cleansing and growth are for your benefit. Thus, cleansing is for our benefit, purification is for our benefit, and growth is for our benefit.

Causing to grow in purity (tazkiyah) is purification, cleansing, and growth. It causes the human himself, in his own self, to grow in purity. Instead of lying, his tongue is purified of lying. Instead of extending his gaze towards the impermissible, his gaze is purified from looking at the impermissible. Instead of secretly extending his hand and stealing, he does not do it.

The True Lord the Most High wants the purity of individual humans as well as their progeny, and to make a noble and virtuous vessel for that purity that is not tarnished by flaws and blemishes, so the heavenly law came to cause them to grow in purity in everything. The movements of their sense and bodily organs are purified so that every movement is directed towards fulfilling that which is sought from it by the One Who created it.

The Creator has made it clear: ‘O eye, your boundaries are such and such. O tongue, your boundaries are such and such. O hand, your boundaries are such and such. O leg, your boundaries are such and such. O heart, your boundaries are such and such’. This is how we see that the divine law has come to cause you to grow in purity; that is, it purifies you, cleanses you, and makes you grow in all aspects of life.

Causing to grow in purity must be associated with teaching the Book and the wisdom, so here are three matters: reciting the Quran, causing to grow in purity, and then teaching the Book, that is, teaching them what the Book contains and instructing them and warning them.

The Messenger peace and blessings be upon him does not just teach them the book, but he also teaches them the wisdom, and it is the Hadith of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Allah the Exalted says, ‘And remember what is recited in your houses of the verses of Allah and wisdom…’ (al-Ahzab: 34).

Allah's verses are the verses of the Noble Quran, and the wisdom is the Hadith and Sunnah of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him.

Wisdom requires that you know which path to be guided to and to travel along, and the True Lord the Exalted says, 'He grants wisdom to whom He pleases, and he, to whom wisdom is granted, is indeed granted abundant good…' (al-Baqara: 269).

Wisdom means to put things in their proper, beneficial place, so it is as if the True Lord the Exalted is saying: 'Everything that I have commanded you to is the essence of wisdom because I want to safeguard your life in this world and safeguard the bliss of the Hereafter for you'. Thus, if the believing slave does what Allah has commanded him, this is putting things in their proper place, and it is adhering to wisdom.

These unlettered people, to whom Allah sent a Messenger from among them to recite His verses, and whom Allah causes to grow in purity and He teaches them the Book and the wisdom, they: '…had been before in manifest error (dalal).' (al-Jumu'a: 2)

What is dalal (deviation, error)? They say that so-and-so lost his way which means that he walked somewhere that did not lead him to his destination, or it led him to the opposite of his destination. So, being lost in the life of this world and in material matters may mean that you do not reach your desired destination, but what does it mean when related to values and moral issues?

It means that it does not take you to your desired destination, which is paradise and nothing else, but it takes you to the opposite, which is the fire. This is what it means to be most obviously lost in error. It is clear, manifest error, and it is obviously wrong to the one who is lost in it.

Thus, being manifestly lost in error is to be completely absent from the truth, and it is obvious; that is, encompassing in such a manner that there is no way to break out of it. It is also intentional error and misguidance which is when someone knows the path of truth but chooses falsehood. And there is also unintentional error such as when someone walks along an unknown path, hoping to get to his destination, and he gets lost.

Ja`far ibn Abu Taleb(1) Allah be pleased with him described the stance of the Arabs before the mission of the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him and that was in his speech in front of the Negus, the King of Abyssinia, at the time of the emigration to Abyssinia.

He said: ‘O king, we were a people in a state of ignorance, worshipping idols and eating the flesh of dead animals. We committed all sorts of abominations. We cut off ties of kinship, and we wronged our neighbours. The strong among us exploited the weak. We remained in this state until Allah sent to us a messenger; one of our own people whose lineage, truthfulness, trustworthiness and integrity was well known to us. He called us to worship Allah the Almighty alone, and to renounce the stones and the idols which we and our ancestors would worship besides Him. He has commanded us to pray, to give in obligatory charity (zakat) and to fast. We have affirmed him, believed in him and followed him according to what he has brought from Allah alone, associating nothing with Him. We declare impermissible what He has declared impermissible for us, and we declare permissible what he has declared permissible for us.’(2)

This is a description of the state of misguidance which the Arabs were in before the sending of the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him and how his mission affected them morally, in terms of growing in purity and purification.

(1) Ja`far ibn Abu Taleb ibn `Abd Al-Muttalib ibn Hashim, one of the Companions. He was called Ja`far At-Tayyar (the Flyer). He was the brother of `Ali ibn Abu Taleb and he was ten years older than `Ali. He became Muslim before the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him entered Dar Al-Arqam. He emigrated to Abyssinia in the second emigration. In the Battle of Mu`tah he carried the banner and his right hand was cut off, followed by his left, until he died as a martyr. It was said: ‘Indeed Allah compensated him for his hands by giving him wings in Paradise.’ He died in the year 8 A.H. Az-Zirkili, Al-`Alam, vol. 2, p. 125

(2) Narrated by Ibn Athir in his book Al-Kamil (1/266) in the chapter on the Quraysh sending a delegation to the Negus to demand the deportation of emigrants (back to Mecca) in which Quraysh sent `Amr ibn Al-`As and `Abdullah ibn Abu Umayyah to ask the Negus to return the Muslims who had emigrated to Abyssinia. One of the things they said (against the Muslims) was that the Muslims had brought a newly invented religion that ‘we do not know, and you do not know.’ The Negus then asked them: ‘What is this religion that has caused separation among your people, and you have not adopted my religion or the religion of anyone else?’

Then the True Lord Glorified is He says:

وَءَاخَرِينَ مِنْهُمْ لَمَّا يَلْحَقُوا۟ بِهِمْ ۚ وَهُوَ ٱلْعَزِيزُ ٱلْحَكِيمُ ﴿٣﴾

To them and others yet to join them. He is the Almighty, the Wise [3] (The Quran, al-Jumu'a: 3)

Although the True Lord Glorified is He has said in the previous verse: 'He it is Who sent among the unlettered ones a Messenger (Muhammad) from among themselves, reciting to them His verses…' (al-Jumu'a: 2) regarding the people of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and the state of the Arabs, yet the message of Muhammad is not just for the Arabs, but rather for all of creation.

The message of Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was for both the Arabs and the non-Arabs, the people of the Book and other than the people of the Book. That is why Allah Glorified is He says, 'And [to] others of them who have not yet joined them. And He (Allah) is the All-Mighty, the All-Wise.' (al-Jumu'a: 3)

Regarding this point, there is the Hadith of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him which has been related to us by Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him in which he said: 'We were sitting with the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him when the chapter of al-Jumu'a was revealed to him, and when he recited: "And [to] others of them who have not yet joined them…" (al-Jumu'a: 3), a man said: "Who are these other people, O Messenger of Allah?"' Abu Hurayra said: 'The Prophet peace and blessings be upon him made no reply until the man repeated his question once or twice or three times. At that time, Salman Al-Farisi was with us, so the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him put his hand on Salman and said, 'If faith were at the Pleiades (star cluster), men from among these people (Salman's folk) would attain it.'(1)

The Pleiades is a star cluster that people used to guide them on their travels in the deserts and barren lands such that an Arab would say: 'Place the

(1) Narrated by Al-Bukhari in his Sahih (4897) and Muslim in his Sahih (6662) from the Hadith of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him. It was also narrated by Ahmad in his Musnad (9396).

Pleiades on your right', or the Pole Star, or Canopus, or whatever else.' In this regard, the True Lord the Exalted says, 'and landmarks and by the stars (during the night), they (mankind) guide themselves.' (an-Nahl: 16)

So, if faith was at the Pleiades, or suspended on the Pleiades, it would be reached and attained by men from among these people, i.e. the descendants of the Persians or the non-Arabs in general, and this is because of their lofty ambition and determination to adhere to the truth.

Salman Al-Farisi(1) had an immense role in giving victory to Islam in the Battle of the Trench, and while the Hadith does not mean Salman personally, the meaning of 'men from among these people' is the descendants coming after Salman and others like him Allah be pleased with them all.

The True Lord the Exalted did not deprive the non-Arabs from this merit. Indeed, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said to Salman the Persian: 'Salman is from us, O Household (of the Prophet).'(2) He did not say: 'You are one of the Arabs.' Rather, he attributed him to his own household.

In other words, he attributed him to the legacy of prophethood which entails complete application of the way that this legacy necessitates; as this legacy is not inherited by blood relations but rather by applying the doctrine in letter and spirit.

Many of them strove in search of the Truth, and they included Salman the Persian, who saw Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in Medina. He saw many signs on him that showed his truth and he wanted to see a physical sign on him that would identify him as the Prophet of the end of time, and thus he saw the Seal of prophethood on the shoulder of the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him.

(1) Salman Al-Farasi: His origin was from the Magians of Isfahan. He lived a long life and he read the books of the Persians, the Romans and the Jews. He was heading for the land of the Arabs when he was met by a caravan from the Banu Kalb tribe. They employed him and then enslaved him and sold him. Muslims helped him to buy his freedom from his owner, and then he became Muslim. He was the one who suggested digging the trench. He died in the year 36 A.H. Az-Zirkili, Al-`Alam, vol. 3, p. 311

(2) Narrated by Al-Hakim in his Mustadrak (6541) and At-Tabarani in Al-Mu`jam Al-Kabir (6040).

Al-Haythami said in Majma` Az-Zawa`id (vol. 6, p. 189) (10137): 'At-Tabarani rnarrated it. Its chain of narration includes Kathir ibn `Abdullah Al-Muzani who has been declared weak by the majority (of Hadith scholars). However, At-Tirmidhi classed the Hadith transmitted by him as good (hasan); the rest of the narrators in the chain are reliable.'

Therefore, when Salman the Persian Allah be pleased with him learned that there was a new Prophet in Mecca, he went to, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and started contemplating and scrutinizing him. He found two signs on him that had been mentioned in the previous heavenly books, and they were that he peace and blessings be upon him would accept gifts but not accept charity.

Salman then started looking here and there in the hope of finding a third sign. By the perspicacity of prophethood that Allah had placed within him, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him discerned what he was aiming at, and he said: 'Perhaps you are looking for this,' and he showed him the Seal of prophethood, which was the third sign.(1)

Those whom Allah referred to as 'And [to] others of them who have not yet joined them…' (al-Jumu'a: 3), also include Suhayb Ar-Rumi(2) Allah be pleased with him nicknamed Abu Yahya. He was in Mecca and he had come of age and wanted to emigrate, so the disbelievers said to him: 'You came to Mecca as a pauper and we took you in. Now you are a possessor of great wealth, and you want to emigrate with all your wealth!' He responded to them: 'What would you say if I leave you my wealth, would you then leave me alone?' They said: 'Yes.' He said: 'Will you ensure that I have a riding beast and expenses so that I can go to Medina?' They said: 'You can have that.'(3)

(1) Narrated by Al-Hakim in his Mustadrak (6544), which is part of a long Hadith from Salman Al-Farisi.

(2) Suhayb Ar-Rumi: His name was Suhayb ibn Sinan ibn Malik, from Banu Namir ibn Qasit. He was born twenty-three years before the Hijra. He was a Companion and one of the best archers among the Arabs. He was one of the first to embrace Islam. Suhayb was born in Mosul, and then the Romans invaded their area and took Suhayb prisoner. Thus, he grew up among them and spoke inarticulately. He became Muslim, lived in Mecca, and engaged in trade. He died in Medina in the year 38 A.H. Az-Zirikli, Al-`Alam, vol. 3, p. 310

(3) Narrated by Adh-Dhahabi in Siyar A`lam An-Nubala' (vol. 2, p. 23), Ibn Al-Jawzi in Safat As-Safwa (vol. 1, p. 170) and Ibn Sa`d in At-Tabaqat (vol. 3, p. 193).

And thus, by doing so, he purchased his own self and used his wealth to safeguard his faith. When he had arrived in Medina, he was met by Abu Bakr and `Umar and they said to him: ‘A profitable sale, O Abu Yahya.’ He said: ‘And may Allah make all your trade profitable.’ Abu Bakr and `Umar Allah be pleased with them said to him: ‘Indeed, the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him told us that Jibril (Gabriel) peace be upon him had informed him of your story.’(1)

It was related that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said to him: ‘A profitable sale, O Abu Yahya.’

Accordingly, the call of Islam is universal and not specific to the Arabs, and for this reason Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him wrote letters to Persia and Byzantium and other nations, calling them to Allah the Exalted and to follow the message he was sent with.(2)

Islam is a worldwide call for every time and every place. The Islamic call continued to spread among certain tribes and clans until the capital of disbelief surrendered, and Mecca became Allah’s Sacred House as Allah had willed. Then the entire Arabian Peninsula submitted to Allah’s Way and Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him sent letters to the kings and emperors, and they all contained the statement: ‘Become Muslim, and you will be safe.’(3)

---

(1) Narrated by As-Sa`di in his Tafsir (vol. 1, p. 182) based on the statement of Ibn `Abbas and Anas that `Umar ibn Al-Khattab met him close to the outskirts of Medina, Al-Harra’, and they said to him: ‘The sale has been successful’, so he said: ‘And you too. May Allah never allow your trade to fail. What do you mean?’ Thus, they informed him that Allah has sent down this verse regarding him: ‘And of mankind is he who would sell himself, seeking the Pleasure of Allah…’ (al-Baqara: 207).

(2) The Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him sent these letters to the kings early in the year 4 A.H., along with a delegate, to call them to Allah, and he used a silver seal upon which was engraved ‘Muhammad, The Messenger of Allah’ to mark his letters.

(3) The text of letters sent by Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was: ‘In the Name of Allah, The All-Merciful, The Ever-Merciful. From Muhammad, the slave and Messenger of Allah, to Heraclius, the ruler of Byzantium, peace be upon those who follow guidance. To proceed; I am inviting you with the call of Islam. Become Muslim and you will be safe. Become Muslim and Allah will grant you a two-fold reward. But if you turn away, you will bear the sin of (misguiding) your subjects.=

These letters prove that the invitation of Islam was extended to all of mankind. This is in fulfilment to Allah's Words to His Messenger, that he is 'a Messenger for all of mankind'.

Allah the Exalted says, 'And We have not sent you (O Muhammad) except as a giver of glad tidings and a warner to all mankind...' (Saba': 28). Hence, in compliance thereto, the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him sent letters to the contemporary rulers of the time, bearing invitations to enter Islam. Then Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him handed down this task to those who would come after him. He peace and blessings be upon him invited the Arabian Peninsula to come under the banner of 'There is no god but Allah, and Muhammad is the Messenger of Allah' after they had been numerous tribes.

This is how the diverse tribes became one community, after Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him had gathered them together as one doctrinal unit under the banner and flag of Islam. Regarding this unlettered nation, the True Lord says, 'He it is Who sent among the unlettered ones a Messenger (Muhammad) from among themselves…' (al-Jumu'a: 2).

After his departure to the Most High, the Companions of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessing be upon him spread forth with the final message throughout the entire world. Within half a century, Islam came to have two wings: a wing in the east and a wing in the west.

Islam defeated the two greatest empires of the time, and they were the Persian Empire and its civilization, and the Byzantium Empire. These lands adopted Islam as a way of life.

This happened after Islam had waged war against the two empires at the same time, and the people entered Islam to ascertain his miracle, which they had experienced in the character of those who had heard the Quran and

= 'O people of the Scripture (Jews and Christians): Come to a word that is just between us and you, that we worship none but Allah, and that we associate no partners with Him, and that none of us shall take others as lords besides Allah. Then, if they turn away, say: "Bear witness that we are Muslims." (Al-'Imran: 64).' Narrated by Muslim in his Sahih (4707) and Al-Bukhari in his Sahih (4553) carried its Message. Then they discovered the justice of the Quran in administering life’s activities.

This is how they discovered that the miracle of Islam is mental and that His Messenger peace and blessings be upon him is the Final Messenger who has not come to them with a material miracle. If the Quran was a linguistic miracle for the people whom it was sent down to, for those who do not know the language of the Quran, its Glory lies in the justice and values that originate from it.

People rushed towards Islam through the force of encouragement on behalf of the believers in it and the force of attraction that non-believers felt when they saw that there was no difference between a leader and the least of men under its banner, and when they experienced its justice and equality between human beings.

Islam has not only been a miracle for its own people but also for the entire world, and the True Lord’s statement is always ascertained: ‘We (Allah) will show them Our Signs in the universe, and in their own selves, until it becomes manifest to them that this (the Quran) is the truth.’ (Fussilat: 53)

We find a great thinker from the contemporary west declaring his Islam, even though he has never read the Quran. Rather, he only looked at the principles that Islam has established and how they contain solutions for that which successive civilizations and legal scholars have been incapable of in every country on earth.

In the field of science, the Germans studied the process of sensory perception and how the human feels pain. Why is it that when someone touches something soft, he is pleased, but feels the opposite when he touches something rough?

The Germans continued studying this for years in order to know the location of sensation in the human body; is it in the brain or somewhere else? This continued until they concluded that for every person, sensation is anchored in the skin, and that it is spread out in cells directly under the skin. The proof is that when we inject a needle into someone, they only feel pain at the point of entry, and no more. This caught the attention of one of the scientists, and he said: 'The Quran spoke about this issue when it said: 'Surely! Those who disbelieved in Our ayat (verses, signs, revelations) We shall burn them in Fire. As often as their skins are roasted through, We shall change them for other skins that they may taste the punishment.' (an-Nisa': 56)

Another contemporary example can be found in criminology. A young Muslim from Sohag travelled to Germany to do his doctorate in law, and he found them looking at the issue of 'abuse of rights.'(1), and they considered it one of the most important legal achievements of the twentieth century. This young man explained that Islam had preceded them in dealing with this matter, and had laid down an appropriate ruling regarding it fourteen centuries ago. He related to them how a man had come to the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him saying: 'So-and-so has date palms in the courtyard of my house, and he enters my house every hour under the pretence of taking care of these date palms, sometimes on the pretext of pollinating them, other times on the pretext of gathering their fruits, and still other times on the pretext of making sure of them such that they have become his foremost concern.

The man complained to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him that he and his household were harmed by this man's intrusion into their private life, so he peace and blessings be upon him summoned the owner of the date palms and said to him: 'You have three choices: either you give him the date palms – and that would be the peak of generosity – or you sell them to him, or we cut them down.'(2)

(1) In Islamic Law, it means: 'Using a right to achieve a benefit that is not intended by the Islamic Law, or to inflict harm on others by abusing the legislative objective and intent of the Lawgiver behind the enactment of such a right.' This is a pure, Islamic principle that is stated in the Quran and the Sunnah, and numerous juristic principles have stemmed from it in order to prevent the abuse of rights, including the intent of harm, such as when a husband takes back his wife with the intention of harming her, and not out of desire for her. The same goes for someone who uses his right of hibah (gift), but not out of desire to do so, but rather to harm his inheritors and creditors. It also applies to someone who intends an unlawful purpose such as someone who marries a woman – and this is his right – but with the intention of divorcing her so that her first husband, who had divorced her irrevocably, can remarry her. Al-Fiqh Al-Islami Wa Adilatuhu – Dr. Wahba Az-Zuhayli

(2) Samurah ibn Jundub narrated that he had a row of palm-trees in the garden of an Ansari man. The man had his family with him. Samurah used to visit his palm trees,=

This is how the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him laid down the principles of dealing with what is called ‘abuse of rights.’ That is why the Quran is a miracle the impact of which influences the faith of non-Arabs and leads to their embracing Islam due to the beneficial effects of its implementation not because they are Arabs or have read the Quran. Therefore, the True Lord the Most High says, ‘And [to] others of them who have not yet joined them…’ (al-Jumu‘a: 3).

The scholars have said that the people being referred to are the non-Arabs, while others have said that it means anyone who entered Islam after the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him whoever they may be, until the Day of Resurrection. Even At-Tabari(1) said: ‘The more correct of the two statements, in my opinion, is the one saying that this means everyone who joins the Muslim Companions of the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him from any race, without specifying any specific type. Thus, everyone who joins them will be counted among the later and succeeding generations, and not the early Muslim generation to whom the Messenger of Allah recited Allah’s verses.’(2)

This verse is one of the miracles of the Quran because it informs us that Islam will spread and its expansion will not stop at the borders of the Arabs. Rather, it will comprise everyone, and the terrain of Islam will expand east

= and the man was harmed and distressed by that. So, he asked him (Samurah) to sell them to him, but he refused. He then asked him to take something else in exchange, but he refused. So, he came to the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him and mentioned it to him. The Prophet peace and blessings be upon him asked him to sell them to him, but he refused. He asked him to take something else in exchange, but he refused. He then said, ‘Give them to him and you can have such and such,’ mentioning something with which he tried to please him, but he still refused. He then said, ‘You are a nuisance.’ The Messenger of Allah peace and blessing be upon him then said to the Ansari man, ‘Go and uproot his palm-trees.’ Narrated by Abu Dawud in his Sunnan (3638)

(1) *At-Tabari: His name was Muhammad ibn Jarir ibn Yazid At-Tabari, surnamed Abu Ja`far, a historian, mufassir (Quranic commentator) and imam. He was born in Amol, Tabaristan, in the year 224 A.H., settled in Baghdad, and died in the 310 A.H., at the age of 86. He refused to be a judge and resolve grievances. He wrote Akhbar Ar-Rusul Al-Wal-Muluk and Jami` Al-Bayan fi Tafsir Al-Quran. He is a reliable historian. He had a brown complexion, large eyes, and a slim build, and he was eloquent. and west. Therefore, Allah's statement: 'And [to] others of them who have not yet joined them…' (al-Jumu'a: 3) means the believers who have not come yet, but they will come.

This is similar to Allah's saying: 'Rather, they have denied that which they encompass not in knowledge and whose interpretation has not yet come to them…' (Yunus: 39). That is, they did not comprehend the aims of the Quran and as soon as they heard of his Message, they suddenly accused him of lying. We seek refuge in Allah. These are the people who denied the message before its meanings and interpretations had come clear to them. Likewise, 'and [to] others of them' (al-Jumu'a: 3), that is, from those who become believers and Muslims 'who have not yet joined them…' (al-Jumu'a: 3); that is, they have not yet come, but they will come.

One of the tools of negation in Arabic is the particle lam such as us saying 'so-and-so has not (lam) come.' We also say: 'So and so has not (lamma) come'. The negation in the first example is definitive and not connected to the present tense, as if this person did not come yesterday. However, using the particle lamma for negation means that the act of joining is negated until the time of speaking but would happen after that because that particle indicates both negation and the expectation of occurrence. Similarly, Allah Glorified is He says about the Bedouin: 'the dwellers of the desert say: "We believe." Say, "You do not believe but say, we submit; and faith has not yet entered into your hearts."' (al-Hujurat: 14) They have not attained to faith at the time of speaking, but when they heard Allah's saying on them, they praised Him the Almighty because the verse denotes that faith will enter their hearts.

Likewise, Allah Glorified is He states: 'Do you think that you will enter the garden while Allah has not yet known those who strive hard from among you, and [He has not] known the patient.' (Al-'Imran: 142) When the believers heard that verse, they said that they were confident that Allah would know of them their striving and patience, thus, we know that lamma denotes that the thing that is negated is expected to occur.

Allah Glorified is He concludes the verse saying that He is the Almighty, the All-Wise. These two Attributes are appropriate to be mentioned here because Might is about dominance and the verse is telling us about Islam being victorious and prevailed over all other religions as well as the expansion of its terrain and dominance. This all fits saying that Allah is Almighty Allah Glorified is He says: ‘Most surely, We help Our Messengers, and those who believe, in this world’s life and on the day when the witnesses shall stand.’ (Ghafir: 51) He, despite His Might, Dominance, Power, and giving victory to those who believe in Him, is also the All-Wise. Wisdom means to put something in its proper place so that it can carry out its function, so He makes everything in accordance with wisdom.

Then Allah Glorified is He says:

ذَٰلِكَ فَضۡلُ ٱللَّهِ يُؤۡتِيهِ مَن يَشَآءُۚ وَٱللَّهُ ذُو ٱلۡفَضۡلِ ٱلۡعَظِيمِ ٤

Such is God’s favour that He grants it to whoever He will;
God’s favour is immense [4] (The Quran, al-Jumu‘a: 4)

The Arabic word for ‘such’ is comprised of a demonstrative pronoun; the letter lam that indicates distance and a kaf for addressing someone. The demonstrative pronoun here refers to what has been mentioned in the previous verse concerning sending unto the unlettered people an apostle from among themselves. It refers to the prophethood of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him as a favour that Allah has generously bestowed upon Muhammad himself, and then upon his ummah.

A favour is something extra than your necessary needs as Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him says: ‘He who has a spare riding beast should give it to him who has no riding beast; and he who has surplus equipment should give it to who has no equipment. We thought that none of us had a right in surplus property.’(1) Favour is what is extra to man’s needs. However, the favour of Allah is everything in the universe now and in the Hereafter, as He the Almighty needs nothing at all from His creation. Allah has no need for His creation or any blessing that has come or is yet to come.

The favour referred to here is the prophethood of Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Thus, the disbelievers objected that the Quran being sent down to Muhammad and thus said: 'And they say: "Why was not this Quran revealed to a man of importance in the two towns?"' (az-Zukhruf: 31) That is why Allah Glorified is He responded to them saying: 'Will they distribute the Mercy of your Lord? We distribute among them their livelihood in the life of this world, and We have exalted some of them above others in degrees, that some of them may take others in subjection; and the mercy of your Lord is better than what they amass.' (az-Zukhruf: 32)

(1) Narrated by Abu Dawud, Ibn Hibban and Abu Ya`la

Although, the disbelievers acknowledged the greatness of the Quran, they tried to find faults with it, but they did not find any, even though they were masters of eloquence and rhetoric. Therefore, the matter that was stuck in their throats was that the Quran being sent down to Messenger Muhammad. Thus, it was a matter of envy. That is why Allah says, 'Or do they envy the people for what Allah has given them of His Grace?' (an-Nisa': 54)

The word 'people' in the previous verse refers to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. In Arabic, this word can refer to one person who possesses numerous characteristics and thereby Allah Glorified is He describes Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him with it to inform that he is better than all mankind. Another example of this matter is the man who went to the believers to inform them that the idol-worshippers were preparing to fight them. Allah revealed concerning him saying: 'Those to whom the people said: "Surely men have gathered against you, therefore fear them."' (Al-'Imran: 173) Despite he was one man; Allah described him with the word 'people', as if by alerting the Muslims he was gathering all the attributes of goodness that people possess.

They envy Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him because Allah Glorified is He chose and selected him for the Message. They envy him because the Quran was sent down to him. Envy only arises from a malevolent heart that rebels against the distribution of Allah's Favours amongst His slaves. To envy someone is to wish that he loses the blessing bestowed upon him. This means that you hate seeing someone else having a blessing. One does not do that except that he is rebelling against the One Who gives all blessings.

Indeed, they envied Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him for taking this favour and blessing. Even the Jews and the people of the Book envied him for being a prophet and forgot that Allah had given prophethood to Ibrahim (Abraham), Dawud (David), Sulaiman (Solomon) and Yusuf (Joseph) peace be upon them before him. Therefore, why do they feel jealous when Allah wants to honour Ibrahim's (Abraham's) second branch, that is, that of Ismail (Ishmael) peace be upon him?

Allah had already honoured the first branch through Ishaq (Isaac) peace be upon him from whom came Ya`qub (Jacob) peace be upon him from whom came Yusuf (Joseph) and the rest of the prophets and messengers of the children of Israel including Musa (Moses), Harun (Aaron), Dawud (David) and Sulaiman (Solomon) peace be upon them. All of them were honoured. However, when Allah honours Ibrahim's (Abraham's) second branch, which is the progeny of Ismail (Ishmael) peace be upon him and sends a messenger from amongst them, they are upset and adopt a position of hatred. They forgot that it is not for anyone to choose the Messenger because he is only selected by Allah.

Allah Glorified is He did not make it up to the hands of the idol-worshippers or anyone else to distribute and plan affairs. Rather, He is the One Who distributes His Gifts amongst humanity so that every individual relies on others for things that he himself is incapable of and others rely on him for things that they are incapable of.

The issue of prophethood is one of Divine Selection and it is greater and exalted above all stations in the life of this world. Allah Glorified is He expressed this in His statement: 'and the Mercy of your Lord.' (az-Zukhruf: 32) Mercy is a Divine Gift.

If Allah has distributed their provision in the least of matters, which is their livelihood, how can they want to administer freely when it comes to the greatest of matters? They must have tact with Allah because He did not require them to choose to whom His Mercy and Message should be sent down. Rather, He is the One Who chooses, as the Message is a Mercy from Him with which He favours whomever He wills from His slaves.

Allah Glorified is He says, 'Allah best knows where He places His Message.' (al- An'am: 124) The Message only comes in order to spread goodness for everybody. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him came to spread his goodness among others and he himself does not obtain any reward from people for conveying it. Before his death, he commanded his family not to receive zakat and what he left was charity for people. This means that he did not benefit from it in the life of this world as he is only trustworthy with the Message. In addition, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him did not want to take any of the delights of the life of this world so that his family could inherit it after him, and this also shows how Allah wanted his goodness to be for all of mankind.

The Message is a responsibility and the reward for prophethood is not in this worldly life. Rather, the greatest reward is in the Hereafter. Thus, no one should ask why Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him specifically was sent. Indeed, this is the planning of Allah Who says, 'Is it a wonder to the people that We revealed to a man from among themselves?' (Yunus: 2) How can they deem it strange that We brought a Messenger to them from among themselves? It is not a strange matter because it is actually logical and natural. That is why Allah gives His Favour to whomever He wills, as He says, 'Surely grace is in the Hand of Allah, He gives it to whom He pleases; and Allah is Ample-Giving, All Knowing.' (Al-'Imran: 73)

As long as grace is in Allah's Hands, then you, who are plotting against Muslims, will never be able to mislead people away from their religion, Messenger and Quran. When Allah gives His Favour to those who believe, then no one will take it from them except He Glorified is He. Thus, when He Glorified is He says, 'Say, "Are you better knowing or Allah?"' (al-Baqara: 140), there is only one response because they will never be able to say that they know more than Allah. Allah undoubtedly knows more, which is an undeniable fact.

The one whom Allah selected to carry His Message to mankind is only being selected for a mission that is difficult. He selects him so that his selection can spread amongst people. It is as if Allah specifically selected him for the sake of mankind and their benefit, whether this selection is for a place or a person or a time so that his selection would spread among those who were selected over.

Selection being made by Allah Glorified is He frees the person selected from anything that could possibly happen from his counterpart. Allah Glorified is He wants him to be a model from which only goodness comes. The perfect example of this is Allah choosing His Messenger Muhammad from the beginning and making him only have good conduct from the beginning. This was up until He gave us The Messenger, the exemplar of faith, over twenty-three years, which was the period of the Message of Muhammad. Allah Glorified is He knows best about whom He chooses. The will to select and choose is only consummated according to the specifications of Allah as He says, ‘Allah best knows where He places His message.’ (al-An‘am: 124)

In addition, the favour of Allah of sending Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him has affected all the creation including the Arabs and the non-Arabs, as he, is a mercy to all of creation. Allah Glorified is He says, ‘And We have not sent you but as a mercy to the worlds…’ (al-Anbiya’: 107). He Glorified is He showed them mercy through Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and gave them the favour of being the addressees with this final Message. The Mercy of Allah is not confined to the Arabs only. Rather, it is a general mercy for all of creation which is a great rank.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘Indeed Allah has sent me as a mercy to all of creation.’(1) He, was sent to be happy and to make those with him happy; his people and all of mankind should not to be wretched. The peak of the Mercy of Allah and His Favour upon the creation is clear in the fact that He sent Muhammad as the Final Messenger. He will not be emended by another messenger after him. That is why his final Message comprises all matters of life, those which are contemporary to you and those which will fit those after you, until the Day of Resurrection.

Allah Glorified is He concludes the verse saying that His Favour is great. This means that He is the Most Generous. Someone may have some favour but retains it because he will need it in the future. True favour is that which is with Allah. That is why Allah is the Possessor of immense favour because He does not need anything from His creation or His universe. This is because He the Almighty existed before all creatures came into existence and will exist after the end of life.

When favour is described as being immense, it means that there is favour that is less than immense, just as there is a favour that is greater than it in distinction. We know that disparity exists amongst humanity. This person has been favoured in terms of food, clothes, drink, or place of residence. This means that there are numerous kinds of favours, but they are not described as immense because immense favour is only from Allah since every favour from other than Him will be attributed to Him Glorified is He.

(1) Narrated by At-Tabarani, Ahmad and At-Tayalasi

Allah is the source of all favours. This is the most sublime favour. We also find that the one who has favour over someone else inevitably seeks to attain something beyond this favour such as perfection of one's essence, being praised, or seeking comfort for his soul. The one who has been favoured only wants something which is either abundance of wealth, or praise, or laudation or comfort for his soul from the painful sights that he sees. This is a proof that one suffers from some kind of deficiency which is why he wants to perfect it. If Allah is the possessor of favour, does He have any deficiency in perfection?! No, He does not.

Therefore, this is the immense favour which He grants to His slaves as a favour from Him, without desire for perfection or praise. Also, every favour from other than Allah contains showing off, but Allah's Favour is not like that, nor does it contain humiliation for anyone because life itself, all of it, is a gift from Him.

If you were to trace every aspect of your existence in life, every aspect of your remaining alive and every aspect of your blessings, you would eventually arrive at Allah. If you were to interlink everything in your life, so you would find that Allah is the source of all favours and bounties. Allah Glorified is He says, '…so were it not for the Grace of Allah and His Mercy on you, you would certainly have been among the losers.' (al-Baqara: 64)

Among the favours of Allah bestowed to the ummah of Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is His statement 'It is made lawful to you to go into your wives on the night of the fast; they are an apparel for you and you are an apparel for them; Allah knew that you acted unfaithfully to yourselves, so He has turned to you [mercifully] and removed from you [this burden]; so now be in contact with them and seek what Allah has ordained for you.' (al-Baqara: 187)

This is because Allah knows that man does not have the strength to constantly refrain from desires. You used to deprive yourselves and then Allah sent down this concession for you and here you can experience Allah’s Favour towards you. From Allah’s Favour towards you is that He respects your work, to the extent that He attributes it to you; lending money to your fellow Muslim is a case in point; He the Almighty says, ‘Who is it that will offer of Allah a goodly gift, so He will multiply it to him manifold, and Allah straitens and amplifies, and you shall be returned to Him.’ (al-Baqara: 245) Thus, Allah made the goodly gift for Himself. It is from Allah’s Favour towards man that when He asks man for some of his wealth, He asks for it as a loan meaning that He will return it afterwards with manifold increase.

It is from Allah’s Favour that He turns evil deeds into good deeds, and that He Himself has made the Way of Guidance for all of mankind so that no man has to follow another man’s personal desires or caprice. Allah Glorified is He does not have any personal desires. Further, it is from Allah’s Favour that He hides what people conceal from each other; He the Almighty says, ‘Nor is Allah going to make you acquainted with the unseen.’ (Al-‘Imran: 179) This is because everyone might be agitated and a period of time could come in which he is weak in something, and thus if there were people around him who knew his secrets, they could take advantage of what they know of his weakness.

Beware of thinking that your action is what gives you reward. Rather, it is Allah’s Favour that gives you reward. Allah Glorified is He says, ‘Say: In the Grace of Allah and in His Mercy- in that they should rejoice.’ (Yunus: 58) It is favour that makes the believers’ hearts rejoice.

Then Allah Glorified is He says:

مَثَلُ ٱلَّذِينَ حُمِّلُوا۟ ٱلتَّوْرَىٰةَ ثُمَّ لَمْ يَحْمِلُوهَا كَمَثَلِ ٱلْحِمَارِ يَحْمِلُ أَسْفَارًۢا ۚ بِئْسَ
مَثَلُ ٱلْقَوْمِ ٱلَّذِينَ كَذَّبُوا۟ بِـَٔايَـٰتِ ٱللَّهِ ۚ وَٱللَّهُ لَا يَهْدِى ٱلْقَوْمَ ٱلظَّـٰلِمِينَ ٥

Those who have been charged to obey the Torah, but do not do so, are like asses carrying books: how base such people are who disobey God’s revelations! God does not guide people who do wrong [5] (The Quran, al-Jumu‘a: 5)

Allah Glorified is He gives us an example of those who were graced with the burden of the Torah (the Jews). There is a category of people who carried the Torah, yet they did not know anything about it; they were graced with the burden of the Torah, but they did not view it as a Divine Way of Guidance, and thus they were like donkeys. A donkey is not worthy of blame because it does not understand the load of books that it is carrying on its back because it is not its task to understand and comprehend what is in the load of books. Rather, its task is merely to carry them and transport them from one place to another without understanding what they contain or acting in accordance with the content.

It is as if Allah Glorified is He warns us not to be like donkeys which are only good enough in carrying items. Rather, I want you to act upon the Way of Guidance and to benefit from the legislation that these donkeys carry upon their backs. He says: 'O Yahya (John)! Take hold of the Book with strength...' (Maryam: 12). Prophet Yahya (John) peace be upon him is one of the prophets of the children of Israel. The Book here refers to the Torah that contains Allah's Way which will regulate their daily activities for them. Allah orders him to take it with strength, that is, with sincerity in preserving it and keenness to act in accordance with it.

Thus, the heavenly knowledge and the divine way that came to you in the Torah are not just for you to know but also to act in accordance with it. Allah graced them with the burden of the Torah, yet they did not carry it, nor did they act in accordance with it. They were graced with the burden of the Torah and they carried it in the sense of knowing it and preserving it in their books and in their hearts, but they did not carry it in the sense of giving it its full right and acting in accordance with it.

As for the word 'Torah', some scholars, when turning their attention to some term, try to find its Arabic origin and try to find a pattern for it from amongst the patterns of Arabic and give it one of the qualities of the Arabic language. However, I say to them that they have looked at these terms as if they are Arabic terms, but Torah is a Hebrew term and injil is either a Syriac or a Greek word. Those words became proper nouns to refer to those books and they came into our language.

Do not think that just because the Quran came down in Arabic that all its terms are Arabic. No, it is not. It is true that the Quran is Arabic and it is also true that it has been revealed while these words were circulating on the tongues of Arabs; and when they were uttered, their meanings were understood.

An example of this in our modern age is that we have inserted the word ‘bank’ into our common language; we normally use it in our speech to the extent that it has become an Arabic word because it circulates on the tongues of the Arabs. The meaning of the Quran being Arabic is that when Allah addressed the Arabs with it, He addressed them with terms that they understood and that circulated on their tongues even if they are not Arabic in origin.

The Torah is the Book of the Jews. Musa (Moses) peace be upon him along with the leaders of his people went to the place defined for them by Allah, to receive the Way and the Torah; and when Musa (Moses) returned with the Torah and the Tablets, they found the instructions therein hard for them, which why they said that they would not apply this legal responsibility and decided not to adhere to it or accept it. The legal responsibility is from Allah Who has burdened them with it, yet they were unable to carry it out, even though He the Almighty does not burden any human being more than he can bear. The Jews had the Torah with them and despite that, they did not follow their Book.

An example of them not following what came in their Book and trying to get away from Allah’s Command to follow the Torah is that they came across a command or a ruling they would ask Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to judge therein. That is why Allah says, ‘And how do they make you a judge and they have the Torah wherein is Allah’s Judgment?’ (al-Ma‘ida: 43)

Allah Glorified is He makes it clear: ‘How is it that they come to you, asking for a ruling and they have the Torah and they do not believe that you, O Muhammad, are a Messenger from Allah? How can they feel pleased to give a ruling when they do not believe in you? There must be a benefit in that which contradicts what is in the Torah, otherwise, they would have implemented the ruling that they have in their Book. They only came to you, O Prophet Muhammad out of desire that you give them a ruling that is somewhat easier, mistakenly thinking that you would allow them to consume ill-gotten property or that he would listen to lies’.

It is an amazing issue that must be understood because they have the Torah which contains Allah’s Injunctions and if they were to ask you for a ruling regarding a matter that is not in the Torah, then that would be acceptable. However, they are asking you for a ruling regarding a matter that is in their Book, the Torah and this means that they were desiring to cheat and not to adhere to what Allah has sent down to them in the Torah. Allah entrusted the Torah with the early men of Allah and the rabbis, i.e. He asked them to preserve it and this command was one of legal responsibility. A matter of legal responsibility is liable to be obeyed and liable to be disobeyed. Further, Allah entrusted them with the Torah and the Gospel. However, 'They neglected a portion of what they were reminded of...' (al-Ma'ida: 14). The matter of the Divine Way became forgotten and was not much on their minds, because if it constantly came to mind and was always in the depths of one's emotions, it would top their thoughts. However, forgetfulness comes when the matter is far from one's mind.

Allah Glorified is He asked them to preserve the Divine Way, but they, apart from the Prophets, did not do so. Every matter of legal responsibility is within the sphere of choice and that is why we find that the rabbis and the early men of Allah had forgotten; even what they did not forget, they concealed it. The first stage of not preserving was that they forgot; the second stage was that they concealed what they did not forget. The third stage was yet that they distorted what they did not conceal, even with their own tongues.

If only they had restricted themselves to just those phases, but instead, they brought things forward and claimed that it was from Allah, while it was actually not. Allah says, 'Woe, then, to those who write the book with their hands and then say, "This is from Allah."' (al-Baqara: 79) Therefore, the preservation on their behalf was not fulfilled and this is why Allah did not call for the preservation of the Quran to be by way of legal responsibility because He had tested humanity before and because He wanted the Quran to be a permanent miracle. For this reason, Allah Glorified is He did not entrust the creation with preserving it. Rather, He took it upon Himself to preserve it: 'Surely, We have revealed the Reminder and We will most surely be its guardian.' (al-Hijr: 9)

Allah Glorified is He gives us an example so that it is easier for us to understand something that is abstract; He gives us the example of something that is tangible, that is, we can see and touch with our own hands. The carrying of the Torah does not actually mean carrying it in a literal sense. Otherwise, every Jew would have had to carry the Book of the Torah in his hand or some other way. Rather, the meaning is carrying it in an abstract sense, i.e. acting in accordance with its teachings and following Allah's Way of Guidance. They were asked to adhere to the Torah and its rulings but they did not adhere to it. Instead, they tried to get away from its rulings on the pretext that they were difficult. They did not adhere until after Mount Sinai had been raised over their heads; Allah Glorified is He relates this to us when He says: 'And when We shook the mountain over them as if it were a covering overhead, and they thought that it was going to fall down upon them: Take hold of what We have given you with firmness, and be mindful of what is in it so that you may guard [against evil]' (al-A'raf: 171).

That verse orders them to hold fast to what has come to them in the Book with seriousness and diligence in terms of actions and values; it prohibits them from taking on legal responsibility with negligence. Man usually holds fast, with all his strength to that which benefits him and that is why it is the nature of Allah's Ways that they be adopted with strength and certainty so that you can be given much good with strength and certainty. When you adopt Allah's Divine Way with strength, then you have placed your trust in Him, and your heart has been opened so that you want to take more.

They did not respond to Allah's Command even after He had raised the mountain over their heads, although they only submitted to material signs. That is why He Glorified is He raised the mountain over them because either they would hold fast to what Allah had given them with strength, thus implemented what was sought from them, or the mountain would collapse on them. Even the Quran censured them for how they carried out His Command to sacrifice a cow. Allah says, 'And when Musa (Moses) said to his people: Surely Allah commands you that you should sacrifice a cow; they said, "Do you ridicule us?"' (al-Baqara: 67)

Thus, Allah gave them the command first to test the strength of their faith and the extent to which they carry out legal responsibility without hesitation or deliberateness. However, instead of doing that, they took to haggling and slowness. If a man were to be endowed with the lowest of intellect and then he was asked to slaughter a cow, would this need clarification? If they had slaughtered a cow, any cow, then everything would have been completed without any trouble, so as long as Allah has asked them to slaughter a cow, then all they have to do was to carry out the slaughtering.

However, look at the stupidity, even in the question. They willed to do anything to nullify their legal responsibility. They were commanded to carry out an act of legal responsibility, but they were not pleased with carrying it out because it did not agree with their caprice.

For them, the teachings of Allah and His Divine way are nothing but a load of books as He the Almighty says, 'And they do not assign to Allah the attributes due to Him when they say: Allah has not revealed anything to a mortal. Say, "Who revealed the Book which Musa (Moses) brought, a light and guidance to men, which you make into scattered writings which you show while you conceal much?"' (al-An'am: 91)

The book referred to here is the Book that Allah sent down to Musa (Moses) peace be upon him which is the Torah. They made it in scattered writings, i.e. detached sheets of paper from which they manifest what they wanted and concealed what they did not want. Their distortion to the legal ruling of stoning to death is a case in point.

Two of the Jews of Khaybar, a man and a woman, committed adultery. They were both noble Jews, which is why the people did not want to bring out Allah's Ruling from the Torah which was stoning to death. So, they resorted to a trick which was to go to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. The mere fact of them going to him, gives us an idea about them. They wanted a mitigated ruling other than stoning. They wanted to save these two adulterers from the ruling of stoning because they were from the noble Jews of Khaybar, so they, along with their rabbis went to him.

When they entered upon Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him he told them: 'Which of you is the most knowledgeable of the Torah?' They pointed to `Abdullah ibn Suraya who was with them; they gave him the Torah and told him to: 'Read'. So, the man sat and began reading. When he came across the verse regarding stoning, he put his hand over it to hide it and kept reading. `Abdullah ibn Salam was present at that moment, so he said: 'O Messenger of Allah, did you not see that he covered the verse with his hand and kept on reading?’ Ibn Salam moved the man’s hand and read himself and it was the verse regarding stoning.

When Allah Glorified is He gives us an example of a donkey or a dog, this is not to degrade donkeys or dogs. When Allah Glorified is He makes an example of those who were graced with the burden of the Torah but did not carry it and did not adhere to it, not in terms of Allah’s legal responsibilities or His Way which is something evil; this is not to mean to degrade donkeys.

Likewise, Allah Glorified is He says, ‘And recite to them the narrative of him to whom We give Our communications, but he withdraws himself from them, so Satan overtakes him, so he is of those who go astray. And if We had pleased, We would certainly have exalted him thereby; but he clung to the earth and followed his low desire so his parable is as the parable of the dog; if you attack him he lolls out his tongue; and if you leave him alone he lolls out his tongue; this is the parable of the people who reject Our communications; therefore relate the narrative that they may reflect. Evil is the likeness of the people who reject Our communications and are unjust to their own souls.’ (al-A‘raf: 175-177)

When a dog approaches you, you chase it away and scold it; otherwise it pants with its tongue lolling. If you leave the dog alone without chasing it away or scolding it, it will also pant with its tongue lolling because its nature is that it always pants with its tongue lolling. This is something exclusive to dogs since they always breathe quickly with their tongues sticking out. Animals do not do anything like this unless they are hungry or tired or attacking, while it is only dogs that do it when they are hungry and full, thirsty and not thirsty, scolded or not scolded, because they always pant with their tongues lolling.

But why does Allah liken this person to a panting dog with its tongue lolling? It is because he discards Allah’s signs; notice that this person resembles those who were graced with the burden of carrying Allah’s Book yet did not carry it, nor did they carry out what they had to therein because the one who is portrayed in this way will be seen as permanently despised, due to the fact that he is following his caprice and being controlled by his desires.

Once his desires have been satisfied, it is asked; will he do the same thing tomorrow? His desires are in control all the time and that is why he lives in continuous apprehension because he fears that blessings will escape him or he himself will escape those blessings. His state thus becomes like that of a panting dog, panting whether it is safe or not safe, hungry or not hungry and thirsty or not thirsty.

Just as Allah Glorified is He says about those who were graced with the Torah and then did not do according to it that they are those who disobey Allah's revelations, He also said the same about he who withdraws himself from Allah's communications.

Those who have denied Allah's communications are the disbelievers, the idol-worshippers, and those who reject Islam and try to fight against the religion. Allah has determined for us the final outcome of all these people. Those who have denied Allah's communications are either those who have denied the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him in terms of the signs that prove his veracity and he is the one who conveys from Allah and these people have fallen under the category of disbelief, or they are those who have denied the signs of the way and thus they have not used the way according to its foundations and they have deviated from the straight path and the correct path. Therefore, they have denied Allah's signs and they have denied the Last Day and they have not acted in accordance with the way of faith and so have recompense and punishment from Allah Glorified is He who sent down this way, but they turned away from it and denied it.

Regarding those who denied the signs, it is either because they do not believe in a deity, or they believe in a deity but do not believe in a Messenger, or they believe in a deity and a Messenger, but they do not believe in what has been sent down to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him.

At the end, Allah Glorified is He says that He does not guide people who do wrong. Those who have been banished from Allah's Guidance in assisting them towards faith are the evildoing folk. He has withheld his guidance from three kinds of people; disbelievers, oppressors and the iniquitous.

However, has He withheld his guidance from the beginning, or is it they who have committed error that has made them unworthy of Allah's guidance? They are the ones who rejected the burden of Allah's trust with regards to the Book that was sent down to them and they refused to adhere to Allah's way and what their prophets had brought to them from Allah. They were like a donkey carrying loads of books and not understanding anything of what they contain and this is how the hearts of these people have become locked from understanding that to which Allah is demanding them to adhere. Therefore, they did not deserve Allah's guidance, His enabling success, His assisting them towards faith, and perfected faith in Allah and His Message, holding fast to the Book that was sent down to them with all their strength as well as with perfect devotion.

Allah Glorified is He thereby concludes the verse saying that He does not guide them towards any proof or evidence because their patron is Satan. We know that oppression means to take someone's right and give it to someone else and the highest degree of oppression is to associate partners with Allah. It is the most immense oppression and the cause of them not being guided is their oppression.

Thus, it is their oppression that denies them guidance and Allah Glorified is He has left it to the slave to choose guidance or to choose misguidance and whatever the slave does and chooses is not done under compulsion from Allah because if He had not created all of us with the ability to choose, man would not be able to go against what Allah wants. However, he created man with the ability to choose and whenever you choose guidance or misguidance, this is what Allah has granted you and He has made it clear that those who do evil and are iniquitous are worthy of being assisted by Allah in their misguidance, just as much as He assists those who choose guidance because they are worthy of being assisted by Allah in their guidance.

Thus, the lack of goodness begins on their part and therefore they proceeded in their disbelief and Allah did not guide them. They proceeded in their oppression and thus Allah did not guide them. They preceded in iniquity and thus Allah did not guide them.

Then Allah Glorified is He says:

قُلْ يَٰٓأَيُّهَا ٱلَّذِينَ هَادُوٓا۟ إِن زَعَمْتُمْ أَنَّكُمْ أَوْلِيَآءُ
لِلَّهِ مِن دُونِ ٱلنَّاسِ فَتَمَنَّوُا۟ ٱلْمَوْتَ إِن كُنتُمْ صَٰدِقِينَ ﴿٦﴾

Say [Prophet], 'You who follow the Jewish faith, if you truly claim that out of all people you alone are friends of God, then you should be hoping for death' [6]
(The Quran, al-Jumu'a: 6)

The vocative is one kind of speaking style and the rhetoricians divide speech into 'Information' which means that you inform of something by way of speech and it can be true or false and 'bringing about' which is to request something by way of speech and it can not be true or false. The vocative is from bringing about because you want to bring about something for your part. When you say, 'O Muhammad', you want him to turn towards you. Therefore, the vocative is requesting that someone turn towards you.

There is a great variation of vocative forms in the Noble Quran. They include the vocative from Allah to fifteen categories of people, inanimate objects, and other things. They include the vocative from the messengers to their peoples, the vocative of the nations and peoples to their messengers, the vocative between angels, and several other examples of the vocative. The most frequent vocative in the Noble Quran is from Allah to the believers, as the vocative 'O you who believe!' which is found in more than eighty verses. It addresses those who believe in Allah and His Messenger peace and blessings be upon him. Thus, all the vocatives for them come and request legal responsibilities and they address everyone who believes in the way.

Allah addresses and calls on the believers directly without addressing Muhammad to say something. There is no verse in which the believers are being addressed that begins with 'Say.' For example, Allah says: 'O you who believe! Seek assistance through patience and prayer; surely Allah is with the patient.' (al-Baqara: 153) He also says, 'O you who believe! If you obey a party from among those who have been given the Book, they will turn you back as unbelievers after you have believed.' (Al-'Imran: 100) Another verse reads: 'O you who believe! Do not take the Jews and the Christians for friends; they are friends of each other; and whoever amongst you takes them for a friend, then surely he is one of them; surely Allah does not guide the unjust people.' (al-Ma'ida: 51) There are several other examples. It is a direct vocative from Allah to the believers. However, when Allah Glorified is He addresses those who follow the Jewish faith, he says: 'Say, "O you who are Jews, if you claim that you are allies of Allah excluding the [other] people, then wish for death, if you should be truthful."' (al-Jumu'a: 6)

This is the only vocative which contains this form for those who follow the Jewish faith and despite that it begins with the order to say O Muhammad. This gives us a gleaning that Allah is angry with them and that He is distancing them from being those who are near to Allah, as opposed to being Allah's children or His beloveds. When you are angry with someone after you had been close to them and you had been good to them and generous to them and you had stood at their side through their hardships and saved them from their enemy, but they denied and were ungrateful for everything, you would not talk to them and when you did talk to them, you would put a barrier between you and them and speak to them through an intermediary.

Allah Glorified is He has generously bestowed bounties upon the Jews and given them several blessings. He says, 'O children of Israel! call to mind My favour which I bestowed on you and be faithful to [your] covenant with Me, I will fulfil [My] covenant with you; and of Me, Me alone, should you be afraid.' (al-Baqara: 40) He also says, 'O children of Israel! Indeed, We delivered you from your enemy, and We made a covenant with you on the blessed side of the mountain, and We sent to you the manna and the quails. Eat of the good things We have given you for sustenance, and be not inordinate with respect to them, lest My Wrath should be due to you, and to whomsoever My wrath is due be shall perish indeed.' (Ta Ha: 80-81)

However, the children of Israel did not respect Allah's right regarding that with which He had blessed them. Instead, they invented lies about Allah and killed their prophets. When Allah Glorified is He calls those followers of Musa (Moses) peace be upon him who were given the name hadu because they said that they have returned to Allah. So hadu are the Jews. The verb had means to return and hudna ilayka means that we returned to Allah as Musa (Moses), on behalf of himself, his brother, and the people who worshipped the calf and then repented.

Their repentance was a difficult event for the children of Israel. Allah says, 'And when Musa (Moses) said to his people: O my people! you have surely been unjust to yourselves by taking the calf [for a god], therefore turn to your Creator [penitently], so kill your people, that is best for you with your Creator: so He turned to you [mercifully], for surely He is the Oft-Returning [to mercy], the Merciful.' (al-Baqara: 54) They worshipped other than Allah and what was worse was that they worshipped a calf that was made for them by As-Samiri with the gold that they had taken with them from Egypt after the people of Egypt had entrusted them with it.

When Allah sent down the ruling that they should kill themselves as atonement for their associating partners with Allah, the children of Israel stood in rows and He said to them: 'Those who did not worship the calf shall kill those who did worship it.' However, when they stood for the execution, some of them found themselves facing their cousins and brothers and other relatives, so Allah had mercy on them by sending a fog to cover them so that it would not be difficult for them to carry out the killing and it was said that they killed seventy thousands of themselves.

Allah ordered them to kill themselves because these selves, with their desires and disobedience, made them rebel against the way. Indeed, the legislation here to kill is expiation for their sins because those who worshipped the calf took it as a deity besides Allah and then presented themselves in order to be killed so that they could acknowledge that what they had worshipped was a false deity. With this they return their selves, which rebelled against Allah's way to correct worship and this is the most difficult kind of expiation, which is to kill one's self in order to affirm one's faith that there is no deity but Allah, showing remorse for what one has done and declaring as such. It is as if killing here was an honest testimony of returning to faith.

That is why they said they have turned in repentance and become proof that they fell into the greatest idolatry which necessitated that they kill one another. The Arabic name for the Jews has become proof of the crime that was erased by them killing themselves, but still, they did not desist from killing the prophets and being insolent towards them, and indeed, being insolent towards Allah.

An example of their insolence towards Allah is that they said what Allah narrates: ‘Allah has certainly heard the saying of those who said, “Surely Allah is poor and we are rich.” I will record what they say, and their killing the prophets unjustly, and I will say, “Taste the chastisement of burning.”’ (Al-‘Imran: 181)

The Prophetic Biography relates to us that Abu Bakr As-Siddiq Allah be pleased with him entered the Beth Midrash and found many of the Jews gathering around a man called Finhas, who was one of their scholars and rabbis and he had a rabbi with him called Ashya`. Abu Bakr said: ‘Woe to you, O Finhas, fear Allah and become Muslim, for by Allah, you know that Muhammad is the Messenger of Allah from Allah and he has brought the truth from Him which you have written with you in the Torah and the Evangel.’ Finhas replied: ‘By Allah, O Abu Bakr, we are not poor or in need of Allah, but rather, He is poor and in need of us. We do not humiliate ourselves before Him the way He humiliates Himself before us. Indeed, we are rich and independent of Him and if He were rich and independent of us, He would not ask us for loans, as your companion claims. He forbids you from usury and gives it to us and if He were rich and independent, He would not give us usury.’ Abu Bakr became angry and struck him on the face with a severe blow and then he said: ‘By The One in Whose Hand is my soul, if it were not for the treaty between us and you I would smite your neck, O enemy of Allah, so lie to us as much as you are able to, if indeed you are telling the truth.’ Finhas then went to the Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and said: ‘O Muhammad, look at what your Companion has done to me.’ So, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: ‘What made you do this, O Abu Bakr?’ He said: ‘O Messenger of Allah, indeed the enemy of Allah said immense blasphemy. He claimed that Allah was poor and needy and that they were rich and independent. When he had said that, I became angry for Allah, so I struck him on the face.’ Finhas denied it and said ‘I did not say that.’ Thus, Allah revealed that verse.

Despite this, they claimed and alleged that they were Allah’s children and His beloved sons; Allah Glorified is He says, ‘…and the Jews and the Christians say, “We are the sons of Allah and His beloved ones.”’ (al-Ma‘ida: 18) Yet, Allah Glorified is He nullifies their false claim by saying: 'Say, "Why does He then chastise you for your faults? Nay, you are mortals from among those whom He has created, He forgives whom He pleases and chastises whom He pleases."' (al-Ma'ida: 18) If you are truly Allah's children and His beloveds, you would have been saved from the punishment for the sins that you have committed, or the truth is that you are human beings of His creating and if He wills He will forgive you and if He wills He will punish you.

Thus, they imagine that regardless of the sins that they commit, Allah will never punish them on the Day of Resurrection, but Allah's Justice rejects this. How can he punish human beings for their sins and then not punish the Jews for the sins they have committed? All of this is just delusion and fabrication and they even claimed that the fire would only touch them for no more than a few days. They also claimed that Allah: 'and they say, "None shall enter the garden [or paradise] except he who is a Jew or a Christian."' (al-Baqara: 111)

The Jews said that only they would enter paradise and the Christians said the same thing, so each group has its own monopoly over paradise. Allah Glorified is He responded to these claims by saying: 'These are their vain desires.' (al-Baqara: 111) Wishful beliefs are those hopes that you attach to yourself and these hopes do not have any connection to reality such that you can realise these hopes. Wishful beliefs are just foolish aspirations because they will never be realised.

Thus, it is as if Allah is reminding them of what they repented of before and tells them to not persist in their false claims and allegations. Before, when you committed an error, you repented and turned back to Us, so why are you deriving pleasure from fabricating?

Here they are making another claim, so Allah Glorified is He says to them: '…if you claim that you are allies of Allah excluding the [other] people, then wish for death, if you should be truthful."'' (al-Jumu'a: 6)

Those who are friends of Allah are close to him that Allah assists the believing slaves and thus Allah is the assistance of those who believe, i.e. He assists them and gives them strength. Those who are close to Allah are also those who give victory to Allah's cause and Allah gives victory to them. The word wali means the one who assists and sometimes it means the one who is assisted because if you are Allah's wali and Allah is your wali, then Allah Glorified is He assists you and you are assisted. The word wali means one who is close to you and when you need something this is the first person to whom you go to seek refuge and help and no one else. If someone needs help, this person helps him and his goodness is abundant towards the one he has befriended. He is the one who is close, who helps, who assists, and who is a friend. Thus, if you were that close to Allah, as you say and He is your friend, He helps you and He gives you abundantly from His favour and his goodness, regardless of the sins that you commit and the fire will only touch you for a number of days and only those who follow the Jewish faith will enter paradise, then why do you not long for death?

Allah Glorified is He is asking them this and He knows with absolute knowledge that they will never long for death because they are as He says about them in another verse: 'Say, "If the future abode with Allah is specially for you to the exclusion of the people, then invoke death if you are truthful."' (al-Baqara: 94) Thus, if the Hereafter is for them alone and no one else will share it with them, then they must long for death in order to go towards eternal blessings, for as long as they have the Hereafter and as long as they are certain that they alone will enter paradise, then what is making them remain in the life of this world? Do they not long for death in order to enter paradise?

The Messenger of Allah said to them, 'If you are truthful in what you are saying, then say, "O Allah, cause us to die!" For by the One in Whose hand is my soul, not a single man from amongst you would say it without choking on his saliva and dying on the spot.' They refuse to do it and they hated what he had said to them, so He sent down: 'And they will never invoke it on account of what their hands have sent before' (al-Baqara: 95). Indeed they will never desire it and Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said when the verse had come down: 'By Allah, they will never long for it.' This is because their claim that they are Allah's friends to the exclusion of the rest of mankind is a false claim, as they are not actually certain that they will enter paradise. Rather, their final destination could be the fire. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said to them, 'If the Jews were to desire death, they would die, and they would see their places in the fire.' Indeed it is the greatest loss that they find themselves from the people of the fire and at that time their affair will be revealed and that they made claims that have no foundation and are rather based on their own delusion, as well as their claims that they are Allah's chosen people.

They are not telling the truth and they will never desire death because of the sins and disobedience that they dared to commit before Allah and they know very well that they will be taken to account for them. That is why Allah says that they will never long for it because of what their hands have sent ahead in this world. Further, Allah has full Knowledge of evildoers. The proof that they will never desire death is that they cling to life more eagerly than any other people do. Allah says, 'And you will most certainly find them the greediest of men for life.' (al-Baqara: 96)

Their eagerness for life is even greater than that of those who associate partners with Allah, as the one who associates partners with Allah is eager for life because he believes that the life of this world is the ultimate objective and the Jews are more eager for life than those who associate partners with Allah because they fear death due to the evil of their previous actions. That is why whenever they lived long lives they thought that they were far from the torment of the Hereafter. Life does not make them come face to face with punishment and that is why they are happy with it, but why are they more eager for life than those who associate partners with Allah?

Indeed, the one who associates partners with Allah has no Hereafter and thus this world is his entire concern and his entire life and that is why he desires a long life, at any cost and in any form. This is because he believes that after this there is nothing and he does not know that after this there is punishment and the Jews are more eager for life than those who associate partners with Allah. Therefore, Allah Glorified is He describes them by saying: '…every one of them loves that he should be granted a life of a thousand years.' (al-Baqara: 96) They would love to live for a thousand years or more and they think that having a long life or one of them reaching a thousand years would save them from the punishment.

However, Allah the Almighty dashes their hope regarding this issue by saying: '…although the grant of long life could not save him from suffering [in the hereafter]…' (al-Baqara: 96). So, would living thousand years, or even more than that, not save him from the punishment? No. Longevity will not change the outcome.

As long as death is the final destination, then the one who lives a few years and the one who lives thousands of years are the same, and he will never escape the punishment. Greediness is to pin one's hopes on something, be it beneficial or harmful. It is a kind of clinging that requires one to exert effort.

Allah the Almighty has given us an actual example of the Jews' love to life to the extent that they refused to support Musa (Moses) peace be upon him or to give victory to Allah and His Religion. Musa (Moses) said to his people: 'O my people! Enter the holy land which Allah has promised you; but do not turn back [on your faith], for then you will be lost! They answered: "O Musa (Moses)! Behold, ferocious people dwell in that land, and we will surely not enter it unless they depart therefrom; but if they depart therefrom, then, behold, we will enter it."' (al-Ma'ida: 21-22) However, they replied: '… "O Musa (Moses)! Behold, never shall we enter that [land] so long as those others are in it. Go forth, then, you and your Lord, and fight, both of you! We, behold, shall remain here!"' (al-Ma'ida: 24) They said to Musa (Moses) peace be upon him: 'Leave us alone. We will never enter this land as long as these Amalekites are in it. If you are determined to enter this land, then go with your Lord and fight. We will be sitting here, waiting for you.'(1)

This is how fear and eagerness for their lives led them to make fun of Musa (Moses) and his Lord. They always disobeyed their Prophet, Musa (Moses) peace be upon him and indeed all their prophets; they even killed some of them. Out of their disobedience to those who came after Musa (Moses) peace be upon him Allah the Almighty says about them: 'Are you not aware of those elders of the children of Israel, after the time of Musa (Moses), how they said unto a prophet of theirs, 'Raise up a king for us [and] we shall fight in Allah's cause." He said, "Would you, perchance, refrain from fighting if fighting is ordained for you?" They answered: "And why should we not fight in Allah's Cause when we and our children have been driven from our homelands?" Yet, when fighting was ordained for them, they did turn back, save for a few of them; but Allah had full Knowledge of the evildoers.' (al-Baqara: 246) They fear death, even if it is to defend their children and homes. They claim adherence to Allah's way such that they said to a prophet of theirs: 'Raise up a king for us [and] we will fight in Allah's Cause…' (al-Baqara: 246).

(1) For further information on the Amalekites: http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Amalek

But upon carrying out, '…they did turn back, save for a few of them…' (al-Baqara: 246), and even when Allah sent them Saul as a king to fight Goliath, the Tyrant, they rejected it. Allah the Almighty says, 'And their prophet said unto those elders: "Behold, now Allah has raised up Saul to be your king." They said: "How can he have dominion over us when we have a better claim to dominion than he, and he has not [even] been endowed with abundant wealth?"' (al-Baqara: 247)

They are always interested in the life of this world. Their standard of judging is always based on materialism. As wealth and riches are the basis, and likewise their racism surpasses their reliance on might and authority; they said: '…and he has not [even] been endowed with abundant wealth' (al-Baqara: 247).

But, Allah shows that their standard of judging is wrong. Rather, the standard of judging is that he is selected by Allah Who knows best who benefits from that and who gets harm. In addition, Allah the Almighty chose him with knowledge and wisdom. Consequently, He is showing us good reasons for authorising Saul. '[The prophet] replied: "Behold, Allah has exalted him above you, and endowed him abundantly with knowledge and bodily perfection…"' (al-Baqara: 247). This is because he came for a task that requires him to be strong for war and fighting (endowed with bodily perfection) and to be knowledgeable, learned and wise in order to lead the nation with knowledge and wisdom (endowed him abundantly with knowledge).

But because they do not observe except the life of this world, many of them rebelled against Saul. He tested their obedience to him, and they failed. Allah the Almighty tells us: 'And when Saul set out with his forces, he said: "Behold, Allah will now try you by a river: he who shall drink of it will not belong to me, whereas he who shall refrain from tasting it – he, indeed, will belong to me; but forgiven shall be he who shall scoop up but single handful."…' (al-Baqara: 249)

The challenge was in preventing them from what they were inclining towards because when they saw what they loved and desired, they rushed towards it and forgot about Allah's command. Whoever is described like this cannot be trusted to be in Allah's Army.

As for those who see the water and restrain themselves from it, they are patient and in control of themselves. They will be in Allah's army because they prefer what Allah had sought to what their stomachs desired. They are worthy because they have been tested.

In the beginning, before this, they turned away from fighting, except for a few of them, and here an even fewer number restrained themselves from drinking, and these are the sieves of selection, or the filters of the challenge.

Allah the Almighty then says:

وَلَا يَتَمَنَّوْنَهُۥٓ أَبَدًۢا بِمَا قَدَّمَتْ أَيْدِيهِمْ ۚ وَٱللَّهُ عَلِيمٌۢ بِٱلظَّٰلِمِينَ ٧

But because of what they have stored up for themselves with their own hands they would never hope for death — God knows the wrongdoers very well [7] (The Quran, al-Jumu'a: 7)

The Quran has challenged them to wish death, and they have never wished it and they never will. Logic says that as long as the Hereafter is exclusive for them and Allah has challenged them to wish death if they are indeed truthful, then they should wish it in order to move on to eternal blessings.

However, Allah the Almighty decreed beforehand that this would never happen from their part. Why? It is because they are liars and they know that they are liars, and that is why they flee from death and do not desire it.

However, why did Allah the Almighty declare that: 'they would never hope for death' (al-Jumu'a: 7)? Allah clarified the matter by saying: 'But because of what they have stored up for themselves with their own hands' (al-Jumu'a: 7).

It means that their evil deeds make them afraid of death. As for the person who has righteous actions, he is pleased with death. That is why we hear that when so-and-so died, he had a charming face because he was righteous. At the time of death, a person knows for sure that he is dead.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: 'Whoever loves to meet Allah, Allah loves to meet him, and whoever hates to meet Allah, Allah hates to meet him.' `Aisha – or some of his wives- then said: 'Indeed we hate death.' He said: 'That is not what I mean. Rather, when death comes to the believer, he is given the glad tidings of Allah's Pleasure and His Munificence, and thus there is nothing more beloved to him than that, which is in front of him, and so he loves to meet Allah and Allah loves to meet him. When death approaches the disbeliever, he is given news of Allah's punishment and torment. Thus, there is nothing more hated to him than his situation at that moment, so he hates to meet Allah and Allah hates to meet him.'(1)

Thus, those who are rightly guided are those who have adhered to the path that leads to the objective which, for them, is to be inundated with prayers and mercy from their Lord. Allah the Almighty says about these people: 'It is they upon whom their Lord's blessings and grace are bestowed, and it is they, they who are on the right path!' (al-Baqara: 157)

These people love to meet Allah and Allah loves to meet them because they preferred to do goodness in the life of this world, and that is why you find the signs of glad tidings on their faces the moment death comes to them.

As for those who submitted to the worldly life and oppressed themselves by rebelling against Allah's way, like these Jews whose historical record is replete – ever since there was a Jewish people – their record is replete with disobeying Allah and bluffing their way out of Allah's Commands.

You find these people hating to meet Allah because the misdeeds they have done in the life of this world, and thus they fear meeting Allah, to the extent that they wish that there would not be any resurrection or reckoning.

(1) See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, no. (6507); Ibn Athir, Jami` Al-Usul Fi Ahadith Ar-Rusul, no. (7367) attributed it to Al-Bukhari, Muslim, At-Tirmidhi and An-Nasa`i. In some of them the text says only: 'Whoever loves to meet Allah, Allah loves to meet him, and whoever hates to meet Allah, Allah hates to meet him'- without adding the saying of `Aisha Allah be pleased with her.

When man is sick, he hopes to get better and that death is away from him. However, at the agony of death, he becomes sure that he is dying and his whole life flashes before his eyes. If his actions were righteous, his face lights up and he rejoices, because he will be blessed in the Hereafter with eternal blessings; it is at this moment – when the spirit is leaving the body – that man knows his final destination, either in paradise or in the fire.

He is received by either the angels of mercy or the angels of torment. The one who obeyed Allah is delighted because he will meet the angels of mercy. The one who disobeyed the Almighty, and did that which angered Him, his deeds will flash before his eyes. He will find a record of evil while he is moving towards Allah, so there is no opportunity to repent or change his actions.

When he sees his final destination in the fire, his face contracts and, then, passes away, while in that moment. Then it is said: 'So-and-so died and his face was black and contracted'. Therefore, the one who does evil in the life of this world never longs for death; unlike the one of righteous actions, he is delighted to meet Allah.

Someone might ask: How can Allah demand that they long for death when Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him forbade longing for death: 'None of you should long for death or call for it before its time unless he is certain of his actions.'?(1)

We say: 'Indeed the forbidden type is the longing of despair and protesting against one's afflictions, meaning that someone longs for death because they cannot bear the afflictions that Allah has decreed upon them…or that they desire it in order to protest against what Allah has decreed upon them in life. This is the longing for death that is forbidden.

As for the person who has righteous actions, it is recommended for him to yearn to Allah's meeting. Read Allah's, statement at the end of the chapter of Yusuf: 'O my Lord! You have indeed bestowed upon me something of power, and have imparted unto me some knowledge of the inner meaning of happenings. Originator of the heavens and the earth! You are near unto me in this world and in the life to come…' (Yusuf: 101). Then He says: '…let me die as one who has surrendered himself unto You, and make me one with the righteous!' (Yusuf: 101)

(1) See Ahmad, Musnad, no. (8592) from the narration of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him.

The statement of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him means not to long for death because you are unhappy with what Allah has decreed for you. In other words, it means that you should be patient with what Allah has decreed. There is a noble Hadith that instructs us not to long for death when life becomes difficult, but rather to say: 'O Allah, cause me to live as long as life is good for me, and cause me to die when death is good for me.'(1)

We have said that longing for death is forbidden if one is objecting to what Allah has decreed and rebelling against what Allah the Almighty has willed, as if you hate life and living when it becomes hard for you, and thus you long for death. As for longing for death because you know that you will go on to something better, this is another matter.

The one who disobeys Allah and rebels against His command does not long for death because of what his hands have done. Does that mean that all disobedience comes from just the hands? Indeed, there is the disobedience of the eyes, the disobedience of the tongue, the disobedience of the feet, the disobedience the heart etc.

Therefore, why did Allah the Almighty say, 'But because of what they have stored up for themselves with their own hands' (al-Jumu'a: 7)? Allah says this because outward actions are usually done by the hands, as it is the limb with which we perform most actions. Based on this, His saying: 'But because of what they have stored up for themselves with their own hands…' indicates that they have stored up with their own hands referring to that which has been done by any limb.

Sins, indeed, are either statements or actions of the body, or deeds of the heart, such as malice, for example, or hypocrisy, and so forth. Most of these activities are done with the hands.

(1) See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, no. (6351); Muslim, Sahih, no. (6990) from the Hadith of Anas ibn Malik Allah be pleased with him said that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: 'None of you should long for death because of some harm that has befallen him. If he cannot avoid longing for death, let him say: "O Allah, cause me to live as long as life is good for me, and cause me to die when death is good for me."'

But what have the Jews committed? Because of what their hands have wrought, will they never desire death because they fear their eternal punishment? One of their sins is the worshipping of the calf. Allah the Almighty says, ‘And in his absence the people of Musa (Moses) took to worshipping the effigy of a calf [made] of their ornaments, which gave forth a lowing sound. Did they not see that it could neither speak unto them nor guide them in any way? [And yet] they took to worshipping it, for they were evildoers’ (al-A‘raf: 148).

They deceived the people of Egypt and took their jewellery as a loan on grounds that they would return it afterwards. Then their exodus came and they took the jewellery with them. The people of Pharaoh were drowned and the jewellery remained with the people of Musa (Moses), and then As-Samiri made the calf out of the gold from this jewellery. He made it from gold as if he wanted to get it distinguished from other false gods that are made from stones. He tried to make it a precious god, so he made it with stolen jewellery.

They took to worshipping the calf after Allah had completed His Sublime Favour to them, which is that He saved them from Pharaoh and his armies, and indeed he drowned Pharaoh and his armies and his entourage.

After Allah the Almighty had caused the children of Israel to cross the sea, they passed by some people worshipping idols, whereupon they asked Musa (Moses) peace be upon him: ‘…set up for us a deity even as they have gods…’ (al-A‘raf: 138).

They said this while they were still inundated in Allah’s Blessings of saving them from their enemy and appointing them as vicegerents in the earth; and despite that, by merely coming onto dry land and seeing a group of people worshipping an idol, they asked Musa (Moses) to make an idol for them to worship. That is why Allah the Almighty threatened them by saying: ‘[And to Harun (Aaron) he said:] “Verily, as for those who have taken to worshipping the [golden] calf – their Lord’s Condemnation will overtake them…”’ (al-A‘raf: 152), ‘…and ignominy [will be their lot] in the life of this world!’ For thus do We requite all who invent [such] falsehood.’ (al-A‘raf: 152)

Their Lord’s condemnation as well as ignominy and shame have overtaken them in the life of this world when Allah commanded them to kill themselves as a true proof for their repentance. Allah the Almighty says, ‘…and when Musa

(Moses) said unto his people: "O my people! Verily, you have sinned against yourselves by worshipping the calf; turn, then, in repentance to your Maker and mortify yourselves; this will be the best for you in your Maker's Sight." And thereupon He accepted your repentance: for, behold, He alone is the Acceptor of Repentance, the Dispenser of Grace.' (al-Baqara: 54) This is a dangerous violation of Allah's way. It is the peak of violation of the due right of worshipping Allah Alone.

Another crime that their hands wrought is that they asked to see Allah, face to face, as they did not truly believe. They only believe in tangible matters that are visible to them. Allah the Almighty says, 'And [remember] when you said, "O Musa (Moses), indeed we shall not believe thee until we see Allah face to face!" – whereupon the thunderbolt of punishment overtook you before your very eyes. But We raised you again after you had been as dead so that you might have cause to be grateful' (al-Baqara: 55-56).

After Allah had accepted the repentance of Musa's (Moses's) people who worshipped the calf, they returned once again to their stubbornness and materialism. They wanted a material god, a god that they could see, but Allah, due to His Sublimity, is unseen and not encompassed by human vision.

They asked to see Him face to face, clearly so that they could perceive Him with their senses. The thunderbolt of punishment overtook them before their very eyes because of this audacity of theirs. When you see something with your eyes, it is demarcated for you within limits, and this is not possible with regards to Allah the Almighty.

Their hands wrought four other crimes that they committed and continue to commit. Allah the Almighty says, 'And so, [We punished them] for the breaking of their pledge, and their refusal to acknowledge Allah's messages, and their slaying of prophets against all right, and their boast, "Our hearts are already full of knowledge" – nay, but Allah has sealed their hearts in result of their denial of the truth, and [now] they believe in but few things.' (an-Nisa': 155)

They still continue to commit these four crimes and engage in them, and that is why Allah the Almighty mentioned the noun and not the verb in the following verses: '…their breaking of their pledge…' (an-Nisa': 155), '…their refusal…' (an-Nisa': 155), '…their slaying of prophets…' (an-Nisa': 155) and '…their boast, Our hearts are already full of knowledge…' (an-Nisa': 155). The noun indicates permanence and continuation, unlike the verb which expresses a time and is limited in its form.

Thus, they continue to break their covenants and pledges. They continue to disbelieve in Allah's verses whether they were sent down in the Torah giving glad tidings of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him or the verses of the Noble Quran, which they were asked to have faith in, and they refused. They have gone far in their audacity towards Allah as they even killed His prophets.

Another thing they wrought with their hands is that they write the Book with their own hands and then claimed that it is from Allah; Allah the Almighty says, 'Woe, then, unto those who write down, with their own hands, [something which they claim to be] divine writ, and then say, "This is from Allah", in order to acquire a trifling gain thereby; woe, then, unto them for what their hands have written, and woe unto them for all that they may have gained!' (al-Baqara: 79)

Here, Allah the Almighty shows the extent to which these people deliberately commit sins. It is as if it does not suffice them, for example, to tell someone else to write. Rather, due to their great concern for forging and corrupting Allah's Speech, they did it with their own hands in order to make sure that the matter was done exactly as they wanted it.

Thus, the matter is not a temporary whim or something accidental. Rather, it is done with wilfulness and premeditation, and that is why they deserved Allah's Punishment. The noble verse began with His statement 'Woe, then, unto those who write down, with their own hands, [something which they claim to be] divine writ…' (al-Baqara: 79), and is followed then by His statement '…woe, then, unto them for what their hands have written, and woe unto them for all that they may have gained!' (al-Baqara: 79)

Thus, upon writing, they have woe and punishment; upon concluding the sale, they have woe and punishment and that which they gain is woe and punishment. Allah says, '…[for] it is they who have taken error in exchange for guidance; and neither has their bargain brought them gain, nor have they found guidance [elsewhere]' (al-Baqara: 16). An example of their exchanging guidance for error is 'Behold, those who barter away their bond with Allah and their own pledges for a trifling gain…' (Al-'Imran: 77).

The circumstances(1) in which this verse was sent down is that during a time of drought a group of people entered upon Ka`b ibn Al-Ashraf (2), the Jew, and they asked him for provision, so he said to them: 'Do you know that this man is Prophet Muhammad?' They said: 'Yes.' He said: 'Indeed I intended to feed you and clothe you, but Allah has denied you much goodness.' Then they asked: 'Why has Allah denied us much goodness?' The answer came to them: 'You have declared your faith in Muhammad.' When they had found themselves in this situation, they said to Ka`b ibn Al-Ashraf: 'Leave us for a while because doubt might have overcome us. In that time, we will make up our mind.' After the period of time had passed, they came to prefer food and clothing to faith, and they said to Ka`b ibn Al-Ashraf: 'We read in our Book that we have with us and we made a mistake. Muhammad is not a Messenger, so Ka`b gave them food and clothing. (3)

(1) The story of the group of people who forfeited their faith in return for some food from Ka`b ibn Al-Ashraf

(2) Ka`b ibn Al-Ashraf: a man from Nabahan from the tribe of Tay`, and his mother was from Banu Nadir. His agnomen was Abu Na`ila. His father was killed in the Pre-Islamic Period and then he moved to Medina and allied himself with the Jews of Banu An-Nadir. He married `Uqayla bint Abu Al-Haqiq and she gave birth to Ka`b.

(3) See Al-Wahidi An-Naysaburi, Asbab An-Nuzul, (1/106), from the statement of Al-Kalbi: 'Due to scarcity of foodstuff, some poor Jewish scholars went to seek help from Ka`b ibn Al-Ashraf in Medina. Ka`b asked them: 'Is there anything in your Book which indicates that this man is Allah's Messenger?' They said: 'Yes! Do you not find the same?' He said: 'No, I do not!' They said: 'Well, we bear witness that he is Allah's slave and Messenger.' Ka`b said: 'Allah has deprived you of much good, you came to me and I really wanted to be good to you and to clothe your dependents. But Allah has deprived you and deprived your dependents.' They said: 'We are not sure about him. Give us some respite until we meet him.' They went and wrote down a description which was different from that of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him after which they met Prophet Muhammad, and spoke with him and asked him some questions. They went back to Ka`b and said: 'We had thought that he was Allah's Messenger, but when we met him we realized that he does not fit the description that we had and found that his description is different.' They got out the new description which they had written down and showed it to Ka`b. Ka`b was very happy with them. He fed them and spent on them, and because of this Allah the Almighty revealed this verse.'

So, do you think that it is possible for people like them to wish death? Allah says about them: ‘Then, for having broken their solemn pledge, We rejected them and caused their hearts to harden – [so that now] they distort the meaning of the [revealed] words, taking them out of their context; and they have forgotten much of what they had been told to bear in mind; and from all but a few of them thou wilt always experience treachery…’ (al-Ma‘ida: 13).

In another verse, Allah the Almighty says, ‘Among those of the Jewish faith there are some who distort the meaning of the [revealed] words, taking them out of their context and saying [as it were,] “We have heard, but we disobey”, and “Hear without hearkening”, and, “Hearken thou unto us, [O Muhammad]” – thus making a play with their tongues, and implying that the [true] Faith is false…’ (an-Nisa’: 46). Also, Allah the Almighty says, ‘…so as to make you think that [what they say] is from the Bible, the while it is not from the Bible; and who say, “This is from Allah”, the while it is not from Allah: and thus, do they tell a lie about Allah, being well aware [that it is a lie].’ (Al-‘Imran: 78)

They twisted some of the meanings that had been derived from the words in order to deceive the believers that these incorrect meanings are actually correct. Indeed, they claim that the way sent down from the heavens contains what it does not contain actually.

That is why Allah the Almighty says, ‘…so as to make you think that [what they say] is from the Bible, the while it is not from the Bible…’ (Al-‘Imran: 78). Indeed, when they distorted the Bible with their tongues, they twisted it out of a desire to deceive and swindle you into thinking that it is from the Book that was sent down from Allah to His Messenger.

It did not suffice them to distort their Book, insert verses into it and conceal its contents; rather, they proceeded to dissuade the believers away from Islam and the Quran; they even wanted to cause Muslims to have doubt concerning the Way. That is why they resorted to tricks, which Allah the Almighty mentioned in His statement” ‘And some of the followers of earlier revelation say [to one another]: “Declare your belief in what has been revealed unto those who believe [in Muhammad] at the beginning of the day, and deny the truth of what came later, so that they might go back [on their faith]”’ (Al-‘Imran: 72).

This is mixing truth with falsehood and deceiving the believers, and some of the Jews, from the people of the Book, tried to deceive the believers by declaring their faith at the beginning of the day and then declaring their conversion back at the end of it. The objective, of course, was to spread doubt and confusion amongst the souls of the believers with regards to this religion.

Some of the members of Quraysh or Arabs could say: 'The people of the Book tested this new religion and they were the people who have knowledge of the ways of the heavens, and they did not find that it conformed to the ways of the heavens.'

When the people of Quraysh asked them about this religion: 'Are we more guided or Muhammad?', the Jews said: 'No, you are upon guidance.' Commenting on this incident, Allah the Almighty says, 'Are you not aware of those who, having been granted their share of the divine writ, [now] believe in baseless mysteries and in the powers of evil, and maintain that those who are bent on denying the truth are more surely guided than those who have attained to faith?' (an-Nisa': 51)

Ka`b ibn Al-Ashraf(1) asked Abu Sufyan: 'What has Muhammad done to you?' He replied: 'He has left the religion of his ancestors, cut off his ties of kinship and fled to Medina, while we are not like that. We give water to the pilgrims, we receive our guests hospitably, we set prisoners free, we keep our ties of kinship, and we make pilgrimage to the House and circumambulate around it.' Abu Sufyan magnified the deeds of Quraysh, so those who had been given the Book, due to their enmity towards Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said to Abu Sufyan and his people: 'You are more guided than Muhammad.'(2)

That is why Allah the Almighty said about them: 'It is they whom Allah has cursed: and he whom Allah rejects shall find none to succour him.' (an-Nisa': 52) That is their reward for dissuading them from His Path and preferring the disbelieving idol-worshippers to the one of whom their Books had given glad tidings. Indeed they lied, as how can those who associate partners with Allah and worship idols be more guided than Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him? How will Allah the Almighty receive these people on the Day of Resurrection? With what face will they stand before Allah? That is why it is impossible for them to long for death or love to meet Allah, as they are infused with loving to disobey Allah and rebelling against His commands. Thus, they cannot imagine themselves dying and being reckoned for what their hands have wrought, that is, what they have done and what they have gained; they cannot leave off their evil which is their worldly nature.

(1) The story of the pact between Ka`b ibn Al-Ashraf and Abu Sufyan

(2) See Al-Qurtubi, Tafsir, (5/249).

That is why they oppressed themselves before they oppressed those whom they led astray. Allah the Almighty says, '…Allah knows the wrongdoers very well' (al-Jumu'a: 7). Allah has full knowledge of their oppression and their disobedience. This oppression and disobedience is what makes them fear death and not long for it.

Then Allah the Almighty says:

قُلْ إِنَّ ٱلْمَوْتَ ٱلَّذِى تَفِرُّونَ مِنْهُ فَإِنَّهُۥ مُلَٰقِيكُمْ ۖ ثُمَّ تُرَدُّونَ
إِلَىٰ عَٰلِمِ ٱلْغَيْبِ وَٱلشَّهَٰدَةِ فَيُنَبِّئُكُم بِمَا كُنتُمْ تَعْمَلُونَ ﴿٨﴾

So say, 'The death you run away from will come to meet you and you will be returned to the One who knows the unseen as well as the seen: He will tell you everything you have done' [8] (The Quran, al-Jumu'a: 8)

Allah the Almighty orders His Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to say this to the people of the Book who think that they will never die, or that they will remain forever on earth or that they are able to flee from death. Allah the Almighty says to him: 'So say…', and Allah the Almighty does not want to address them directly due to the magnitude of what they have fabricated regarding Him the Almighty and how much Allah has favoured them with throughout their history. Thus, due to His Anger with their deeds and actions, He instructed His Prophet peace and blessings be upon him to address them.

In the past, they were entrusted with Allah's Revelation and Books and they were asked to preserve them, but they broke their pledges and their covenants with Allah, so the legacy of prophethood transferred from them to other people, and revelation was transferred to Muhammad*peace and blessings be upon him*.

Indeed, they came to be addressed by Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and Allah sends to them what He wants via him peace and blessings be upon him 'So say…' (al-Jumu'a: 8).

Indeed, they want to flee from death because they have not done anything good that could be stored away for them on the Day they will meet Allah, the Day that will inevitably come; they have forgotten that death has been decreed for all people, and that the life of this world is a stage between parentheses.

The first parenthesis is that Allah creates us and brings us into existence and the journey of life lasts until the second parenthesis, which extinguishes our humanity and ends our lives, i.e. death. In other words, we are on the journey of life by the Will of Allah and we will go back to Him. Therefore, the procedure of the life of this world truly starts with Allah and ends in death. No one controls life or death except Allah. If someone owned this, he would prevent someone from dying. Death is the violation of life. Allah the Almighty has concealed the time, place and cause of death as well as one's life span from us. He has not concealed it in order to veil it, but rather to make us expect it at any moment.

This is a sweeping notification of death such that it makes people rush towards righteous action and reward because in the life of this world there is no life span that is certain; no child can ascertain how long it will live, no youth can ascertain how long he will live and no middle-aged person can ascertain how long he will live. That is why each and every one of us must rush towards good deeds, so that death does not catch us by surprise and come to us in a state of disobedience.

Those who adhere to the way are reassured about meeting their Lord and they are reassured about His Reward. Those who do not believe in the Hereafter take life from Allah and spend it in that which is of no benefit. Then, after that, they find nothing but the reckoning and the fire.

The blessings that you currently enjoy will eventually come to an end, you leave them when you die or they will leave and abandon you. You will leave the life of this world carrying only your deeds to your grave. Everything will come to an end while your sins will remain for you to carry into the Hereafter.

Upon facing death and ending life, man becomes coerced and can no longer choose. He cannot do anything for himself and he cannot say that he does not want to die now. His humanity has ended and his control over himself has ended, such that his limbs will testify against him.

Allah the Almighty emphasises the matter of meeting death here by using the Arabic particle inna. Allah the Almighty uses it twice in the same verse by saying: ‘So say, “The death you run away from will come to meet you…”’ (al-Jumu‘a: 8). No one thinks that he will escape death and the meeting of Allah the Almighty because Allah the Almighty says, ‘…Wherever you may be, Allah will gather you all unto Himself…’ (al-Baqara: 148). This indicates that there is no place in which you can hide from Allah’s Knowledge. Allah the Almighty informs us that we cannot flee from His Knowledge or His Decree or His punishment, and that the only path that is open to us is to flee to Him. There is no refuge from Allah except with Him, and that is why neither the disbelievers nor the disobedient think that they will escape from Allah.

A person could be afflicted by death at any moment, and thus no one is able to take precautions against death in terms of time or place. Here, Allah the Almighty says, ‘Wherever you may be, death will overtake you – even though you be in towers raised high…’ (an-Nisa’: 78). The human intellect that thinks that it is possible to take precautions against death must be made well aware that this cannot happen. The existence of the individual, whatever the circumstance is, cannot avoid or prevent death.

Death has been created with a secret that is extremely precise, and which suits only the precision of the Maker. It is subtle; it comes to man and seizes him at a moment and in a place that are not known to him. Allah the Almighty says, ‘Wherever you may be, death will overtake you…’ (an-Nisa’: 78). His Words: ‘…overtake you…’ (an-Nisa’: 78) indicate that when the spirit creeps within man, death and the spirit are released at the same time until the former overtakes the latter at the time decreed by Allah.

The Arabic word yudrik (overtake) makes it clear to us that death chases the spirit until it overtakes it and snatches it, as he peace and blessings be upon him said about the righteous tradition of death chasing life: 'Until it overtakes it, life runs, and each one of you will be overtaken.' That is why the people of gnosis say: 'Death is an arrow that has been fired at you, and your life span is only measured by how long it takes to reach you'. Death chases the life of man and runs behind his spirit until it overtakes it, as if it is an arrow that has been fired and your life span is only according to how long it takes to reach you.(1) Death is real, no doubt about it.

The proof for this is that Allah the Almighty used the term 'fleeing (tafirruna)', as they are fleeing from death. They are running and death is running behind them. They are fleeing in order not to meet death and out of fear that it will overtake them and catch them.

But Allah dashes their hopes regarding this. He frustrates their hopes and wishes that they will be able to flee from death and escape from it. Allah the Almighty says it, '…will come to meet you' (al-Jumu'a: 8).

With its unique style, the Quran is distinguished in how it expresses an event and illustrates it in a way that is tangible and can be witnessed with one's eyes; people fleeing from something, and this thing is pursuing them until it overtakes them. Allah Glorified is He says, '…will come to meet (yudrikkum) you…' (an-Nisa': 78). However, here He gives us another gleaning: '…will come to meet you and you…' (al-Jumu'a: 8). The word mulaqi (meet you) contains the meaning of meeting face to face, which is not the same as (yudrikkum) which means to chase and catch up with.

The meaning of idrak and darak is made clear to us in Allah's statement 'and as soon as the two hosts came in sight of one another, the followers of Musa (Moses) exclaimed: "Behold, we shall certainly be overtaken [and defeated]"' (ash-Shu'ara': 61).The situation was that the sea was in front of them and Pharaoh's armies were behind them. There was nowhere to flee or escape to, but Allah the Almighty reassured them and reassured Musa (Moses) peace be upon him when He said: 'And, indeed, [a time came when] We thus inspired Musa (Moses): "Go forth with My servants by night, and strike out for them a dry path through the sea; [and] fear not of being overtaken, and dread not [the sea]."' (Ta Ha: 77)

(1) See Ath-Tha`labi, Al-`Ijaz Wal Al-`Ijaz; he mentions the statement of `Abdullah ibn Al-Mu`tazz: (Death is an arrow that has been fired at you and your life span depends on how long it takes to reach you.)

The statement: '…fear not of being overtaken…' (Ta Ha: 77) means do not be scared of Pharaoh catching up with you. When Prophet Musa (Moses) peace be upon him wanted to take the children of Israel from Pharaoh and leave with them, before he had arrived with them at the sea, he let them know that the people of Pharaoh were coming with their armies. The people of Pharaoh were behind them and the sea was in front of them. Musa's (Moses's) people said, having faith in the means: '…Behold, we shall certainly be overtaken [and defeated]!' (ash-Shu'ara': 61) So what did Musa (Moses) say? He did not say what his people said, but rather, he looked to the Original Cause the Most High. He said to those around him: '…Nay indeed! My Lord is with me, [and] He will guide me!' (ash-Shu'ara': 62) Musa (Moses) being sent by Allah is a sign that Allah will never forsake him because He wants to fulfil the blessing of guidance at his hands, and Musa (Moses) was filled with certainty and confidence.

If death will overtake man, then at the same time, it will meet him, and man will come face to face with that from which he was fleeing. Death is man's final outcome, as well as his antecedent. It precedes you and it waits for you for the moment that Allah has decreed for it, and in the place that Allah will decide for it. This gives the expression yudrikkum the sense of 'encompassing'. Indeed, death will come after you, but all of a sudden, it will appear in front of you, i.e. you do not know where it will come from, whether from behind you or in front of you.

Meeting death is not an easy matter, especially for those who have spent their lives disobeying Allah because the disobedient, as well as the disbelievers who did not believe in death, or that it was possible to flee from it, will have the realities shown to them when the agonies of death approach them, and they will see what we do not see, as is mentioned in His the Almighty statement: '…and sharp is thy sight today!' (Qaf: 22)

At that time man wishes to go back to the life of this world and he is still in the agonies of death, why? It is because he has seen the reality that he was denying and disavowing and which he did not want to face. He has seen with his own eyes what he was fleeing from and now he is meeting it.

Those who witness someone's state as they go through the agonies of death see indications from them that they are seeking things that we do not, and everyone is according to their state and their conclusion.

Allah the Almighty says, 'Why, then, when [the last breath] comes up to the throat [of a dying man], the while you are [helplessly] looking on and while We are closer to him than you, although you see [Us] not, why, then, if [you think that] you are not truly dependent [on Us], can you not cause that [ebbing life] to return – if what you claim is true?' (al-Waqi'a: 83-87)

When death approaches someone, they see its severity with their own eyes and they see the angels of mercy or the angels of torment, according to their actions. They know for certain that they are undoubtedly leaving the life of this world and the opportunity to do righteous actions or have faith has gone.

When they see what was veiled from them in the life of this world, at the moment their deeds flash before their eyes, and if they see a recording of their life that is pleasant and illuminating, they smile and their face lights up and they are taken in that state. As for those who filled their lives with evil and disobedience, their faces turn black and contract and they are taken in that state. This is what we call the conclusion of one's deeds (khatima), for the moment of dying contains the certainty of death, and it is just like the moment an exam starts. You find the failing student turning pale, trembling, or twitching, while the diligent student is smiling, and his face lit up.

During the agonies of death, the mind is emptied of everything but the record of one's deeds, as that is what remains in the seat of one's feelings. At that moment, the dying person does not find any other thought in the seat of his feelings that contradicts or competes with the matter of the Hereafter.

Then Allah the Almighty says about the spirit leaving the disbeliever and the hypocrite: '…and [to cause] their souls to depart while they are [still] denying the truth.' (at-Tawba: 55) The moment of death is difficult and arduous for the disbeliever and the hypocrite. They leave their wealth and their children, their nice homes and towers that they built, and they head towards torment.

The towers that they have built will never protect them from death befalling them, as it is not prevented by anything, whatever it may be. There is no defence against it. We notice that the thoughts of the Jews from the people of the Book are directed towards establishing fortresses, towers, and walls, thinking that they will protect them from Allah’s torment befalling them.

Allah the Almighty says about them: ‘He it is who turned out of their homes, at the time of [their] first gathering [for war], such of the followers of earlier revelation as were bent on denying the truth. You did not think [O believers] that they would depart [without resistance] – just as they thought that their strongholds would protect them against Allah…’ (al-Hashr: 2).

In Medina, they had fortresses and citadels, like the fortress of Khaybar. They were from the people of fortresses and the people of agriculture, and they live off of usury. They were heedless of the fact that if they were all sheltered in their fortresses and towers that were surrounded by other towers, like a fortified fortress, that sometimes their construction would be completed and it would be as if they were points surrounding a small circle surrounded by larger circle. This is how you find that the fortress is a point surrounded by several fortresses, and death overtakes human beings even if they are in a tower surrounded by towers, as Allah the Almighty has absolute power in executing the matter of death.

Then Allah the Almighty says, ‘…and you will be returned to the One who knows the unseen as well as the seen: He will tell you everything you have done.’ (al-Jumu‘a: 8) To be brought back to Allah the Almighty is to return to Him the Almighty by being restored to life on the Day of Resurrection.

The word ‘…return…’ indicates that they were with Him initially, and after that, they will be returned. They are from Him the Almighty because He brought them into existence. They will be brought back to Him to be reckoned, rewarded, and punished. Allah the Almighty says, ‘…and all will be brought back unto Allah, their true Lord Supreme…’ (Yunus: 30). The words ‘…be returned to…’ do not indicate that they were with the opposite and then they came to Him. Rather, it indicates that they were with Him initially and then they went to the opposite. Then they are brought back to Him a second time.

This is like Allah's statement about Musa (Moses) peace be upon him: 'And thus We restored him to his mother…' (al-Qasas: 13). This indicates that Musa (Moses) was with his mother and then he was separated from her. Then he was restored to her.

No one thinks that he will escape returning to Allah and being restored on the Day of Resurrection. Allah the Almighty settles this matter by saying: '…and you shall behold the earth void and bare: for [on that Day] We will [resurrect the dead and] gather them all together, leaving out none of them.' (al-Kahf: 47) It means that We will gather them for the Day of Reckoning because they have left the life of this world in stages, starting with Adam peace be upon him and death harvests the spirits and the day has come in which these people are gathered.

Allah says: '…leaving out none of them.' (al-Kahf: 47) In other words, We will not leave any of them, even if they were claiming that they were Allah's children and His beloveds. Everyone will be brought before Allah.

The root of the word nughadir (leaving out) leads to the meaning of leaving because the word ghadr means a breach of faith, or treachery. There is also the word ghadir which is a small stream of water because when the rain falls onto the ground, it flows and leaves behind a little bit of water in its tracks.

If the rain leaves something behind in the streams, then Allah – and He has the highest similitude –will not leave behind anyone such that they will not be brought before him. No one, not even an atom from one's body, will get away from standing before Allah in order to be reckoned. They will be brought back to: '…to the One who knows the unseen as well as the seen…' (al-Jumu'a: 8). This is a precise expression because as long as Allah the Almighty is the Knower of the Unseen, then it is prima facie that He knows that which is witnessed. Allah the Almighty Knows what is hidden by the veil of the past and that of the future, and everything that is absent from man. He knows what man witnesses. His knowledge is not restricted to the unseen, while leaving that which is witnessed outside His knowledge. No. Rather, He knows the unseen and He knows that which is witnessed.

What is meant by al-ghayb (the unseen) is the absolute unseen, meaning that which is absent from you and others. We are witnessed by those who have attended this gathering of ours. We are only unseen to those who are absent from it. This also includes electricity, gravity and other discoveries made by humanity. These things were unseen to those who came before us, even though they existed. When we had arrived at their preliminaries, they appeared to us and became witnessed.

That is why Allah the Almighty says, '…whereas they cannot attain to aught of His Knowledge save that which He wills [them to attain]…' (al-Baqara: 255). Therefore, what is known to others and unseen to you is not unseen. Likewise, what is unseen to you but has preliminaries that lead to it is also not unseen. Rather, the unseen is the absolute unseen that is absent from you and others.

Because Allah the Almighty is the Knower of the Unseen and that which is witnessed, nothing of the actions or statements of mankind are absent from His knowledge. Allah the Almighty knows what is even more hidden than this. Allah the Almighty says, 'And if you say anything aloud, [He hears it –] since, behold, He knows [even] the secret [thoughts of man] as well as all that is yet more hidden [within him].' (Ta Ha: 7)

For Allah, saying something aloud is like keeping it secret, for just as He knows what is stated aloud He knows what is secret. Indeed, He knows what is more hidden than secret. A secret means that you single out someone and tell him something that you do not want to spread amongst people, and you whisper in his ear that you trust him with what you have said. You feel at ease when you tell your secret to someone you can confide in and trust not to disseminate.

But there is something that is more hidden than a secret because if a secret has left your mouth and entered the ear of the one listening to you, then there is another secret that you have kept and not uttered to anyone. That is why Allah the Almighty says, 'And [know, O men, that] whether you keep your beliefs secret or state them openly, He has full knowledge indeed of all that is in [your] hearts.' (al-Mulk: 13)

Allah the Almighty has full Knowledge of the hearts' hidden contents before they become speech, but some Gnostics say: 'In Allah's Knowledge, there is that which is more hidden than the most hidden'. What is it? They say: 'Indeed, Allah the Almighty knows what will be in the soul before it actually is'. Therefore, we have that which is stated aloud, that which is secret, that which is more hidden than secret and that which is more hidden than the most hidden; Allah knows all of this. When mankind is brought back to the Knower of the Unseen and that which is witnessed, Allah will inform them of everything that they did. Allah the Almighty says: '…He will tell you everything you have done.' (al-Jumu'a: 8)

Allah the Almighty did not say that He would inform them of what they were doing or making in terms of actions, but rather what they were doing in an absolute sense, as actions are restricted to that which is done with the hands and legs, and the same goes for making. The word ya`malun comprises everything that man does, even if it is with his tongue, and a statement that the tongue utters is a deed (`amal) and not an action (fi`l).

That is why Allah the Almighty says, 'on the Day when their own tongues and hands and feet will bear witness against them by [recalling] all that they did!' (an-Nur: 24) He puts tongues together with hands and feet regarding what they used to do. There is also Allah's statement: 'till, when they come close to it, their hearing and their sight and their [very] skins will bear witness against them, speaking of what they were doing [on earth]' (Fussilat: 20).

The deeds of hearing and seeing are not like the deeds of hands and feet, but Allah the Almighty gathered them altogether in. Thus, the ears heard what Allah had forbidden and the eyes looked at what Allah had forbidden, and these are not actions but rather deeds, meaning that they did not do an affirmative action in response to something. Someone who has heard something, maybe he heard something evil, but he did not harm anyone else because of what he heard, and this is a deed.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him defines for us the most intelligent of mankind and the most precise of them in terms of knowing the reality of the life of this world. The intelligent person therein is the one who knows and is certain that the life of this world is nothing but a crossing point to the life of the Hereafter. The true life is what Allah the Almighty has described by saying: '…whereas, behold, the life in the hereafter is indeed the only [true] life: if they but knew this!' (al-'Ankabut: 64)

He peace and blessings be upon him said: 'The intelligent person is the one who takes his soul account and works from what comes after death, while the feeble-minded person is the one who follows his soul's caprice and hopes for the best from Allah.'[1] The intelligent person is the one who takes himself to account and works for what comes after death because death is the barrier between us and the life of the Hereafter. It is inevitable that death will meet us, as every soul is bound to taste death.

No one deceives himself into thinking that he will be able to flee from his destined outcome, otherwise he would have become feeble-minded and have deficiencies in his intellect. Thus, you would find him following his soul's whims and hoping for the best from Allah. How then, can you hope for the best from Allah when you have not worked for what comes after death with deeds that would rank you amongst the honoured ones? Instead, you have ranked yourself amongst the despicable who will be tormented because of what your hands have wrought and because you have not done acts of goodness and increased in acts of righteousness.

Allah the Almighty then says:

يَٰٓأَيُّهَا ٱلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُوٓاْ إِذَا نُودِيَ لِلصَّلَوٰةِ مِن يَوۡمِ ٱلۡجُمُعَةِ فَٱسۡعَوۡاْ
إِلَىٰ ذِكۡرِ ٱللَّهِ وَذَرُواْ ٱلۡبَيۡعَۚ ذَٰلِكُمۡ خَيۡرٞ لَّكُمۡ إِن كُنتُمۡ تَعۡلَمُونَ ٩

Believers! When the call to prayer is made on the day of congregation, hurry towards the reminder of God and leave off your trading — that is better for you, if only you knew[9]
(The Quran, al-Jumu'a: 9)

Allah the Almighty wants his slaves to gather together once every week because you can pray your obligatory prayers in your factory or your farm, or in any other place. However, on Friday you must gather together with others; why? It is because it is possible that you are humbling yourself before Allah, between you and Him, bowing, prostrating, and weeping before Him.

But Allah the Almighty wants this matter to be before people so that you can see everyone who has leadership and rank prostrating and humbling himself before Allah along with you. On the Pilgrimage, you can see everyone who has rank and leadership carrying out the rites, just like you, and you say to yourself or to this person: 'We have been made equal in terms of servitude, as no one is raised over anyone else and no one humbles himself to anyone else. Rather, we are all Allah's slaves and we humble ourselves before Him alone'.

There are two days in the week that have been mentioned in the Quran by name, and they are Friday and Saturday, while there are seven days in the week and five have not been mentioned in the Quran by name. They are Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday.

Friday is the festival of the Muslims, on which it has been legislated for them to gather together in the mosques and perform the Friday Prayer. We notice that Friday (al-jumu`a) has not derived its name from numbers, as all the days of the week are attributed to numbers apart from Friday and Saturday.

That is why we find that Sunday (al-ahad) comes from one (wahid), Monday (al-ithnayn) comes from two (ithnayn), Tuesday (ath-thulatha`) comes from three (thalatha), Wednesday (al-arbi`a`) comes from four (arba`a) and Thursday (al-khamis) comes from five (khamsa).

It was assumed that Friday would come from six; it does not; why? This is because it is the day on which the system of His Existence gathers together for the universe, so Allah the Almighty called it Al-Jumu`a and made it a festival.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him tells us about Friday by saying: 'Indeed Friday is the master of the days and the greatest of them in the sight of Allah. In the sight of Allah, it is greater than the Day of the Sacrifice and the Day of Breaking the Fast. It contains five attributes: it is the day on which Allah created Adam, on which Allah sent Adam down to earth and on which Allah caused Adam to die. It contains an hour in which no slave will ask Allah for something except that Allah will grant it to him, as long as it is not impermissible. On it the Last Hour will be established. There is no angel who is near unto Him, no sky, no earth, no wind, no mountain, and no sea except that they are aware of Friday.'(1)

The festival is the gathering of the entire universe on this day, a gathering of Allah's blessing in bringing the universe into existence and completing it on that day. Thus, the believers in Allah gather together to honour the completion of the creation of the euniverse for them, and the completion of the creation was on Friday.

Allah legislated the gathering of Friday for a social reason, which is that a person looks for each of his brothers. What has held him back? Is he in need or ill? Has something happened to him? This means that the person does not have to humiliate himself and ask, and when he does that he has the sagacity of faith.

The children of Israel asked for a day in which they could take a rest from work and be free to worship Allah. Musa (Moses) peace be upon him proposed Friday to them, as it is the day on which Allah completed the creation of the universe in six days and it is also the day which Allah's close friend, Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him chose, but they rejected Friday and chose Saturday.

They said: 'Indeed Allah created the world in six days, starting on Sunday, finishing on Friday and resting on Saturday, and likewise we want to rest and be free to worship Allah on Saturday.' This was their desire and their choice. As for the Christians, they refused to follow the Jews in Saturday or Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him in Friday, and instead chose Sunday based on it being the very beginning of creation. As for the ummah of Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him Allah has chosen Friday for them as the day of concluding and completing the blessing.

This commandment to perform the obligatory Friday Prayer is like a congregational prayer, and a congregation is required therein. It is necessary that we turn up for it as a congregation because a congregation is stipulated and the prayer is not valid without it.

Allah the Almighty says, 'Believers! When the call to prayer is made on the day of congregation, hurry towards the reminder of Allah and leave off your trading—that is better for you, if only you knew. Then when the prayer has ended, disperse in the land and seek out Allah's bounty. Remember Allah often so that you may prosper.' (al-Jumu'a: 9-10)

Of these two commands, one is connected to the religion and the other is connected to the life of this world, and they are both from Allah's way, as Allah does not want you to trade and work during the time of the prayer, nor does He want you to leave your work without any reason and remain in the mosque after the prayer. When you are called to the prayer, go to the mosque, and when the prayer is ended go and strive for your provisions.

Allah the Almighty addresses those who believe in the way by saying: 'Believers! When the call to prayer is made on the day of congregation' (al-Jumu'a: 9). When the caller to prayer raises his voice with the words 'Allah is the Greatest', this is a call to devote oneself to Allah; to devote oneself at a defined time to stand before Him the Almighty and to be in His Presence and Allah will give you support.

When a person comes into his Lord's Presence through prayer and he begins with 'Allah is the Greatest', it is from this moment that he is in Allah's Presence. When the caller to prayer says, 'Allah is the Greatest', you observe that everyone comes, the rich before the poor, the subject along with the ruler. Everyone leaves their rank at the door of the masjid along with their shoes to be equal in prayer. Whoever has a boss who is overbearing over him sees him prostrating towards Allah, just like him, and he is at ease in that moment of equality in servitude. Let us assume that each one of us offers his daily prayers alone, the matter will be different as to the Friday Prayer because Allah the Almighty commands us to stop and leave everything to perform it together; the weak see the powerful abasing them standing before Allah, just as they do; and the strong see the weak besides them. When each one of us returns to his work, the masks of power and haughtiness will have been already taken off and removed because we all stand equally before One Creator. The words: 'Allah is the Greatest' draw our attention and remind us that Allah is Greater than anything that may preoccupy you, and we know that it is from the inimitable qualities of the call to prayer: 'Allah is the Greatest' and not 'Allah is Great'; this is out of respect for the many things that do preoccupy us in the life of this world and which we view them great. This is because the life of this world must not be neglected, since it is a passageway leading to the coming reward in the Hereafter. That is why I always say that the life of this world is too important to be forgotten and at the same time it is not important enough to be one's ultimate objective. In the life of this world, you move about in the earth and strive for your nourishment and the nourishment of your dependents, so that this nourishment can assist you with worship. That is why no one should scorn the life of this world. Rather, he should thank Allah and supplicate to Him to give him enabling success so that he can expend all his effort in being successful in his work, as it is through good work that the slave obtains reward. As soon as the slave hears 'Allah is the Greatest', he must direct himself towards that which is actually greater, the True Lord the Almighty to perform the prayer. This is the meaning that is drawn from those who come early for the prayer and those who come late. When you hear the caller to prayer says, 'Allah is the Greatest' for the Friday Prayer, for example, you must leave the means of the life of this world and go to stand before Allah the Almighty. As for the soul of the believer, the greatness of the True Lord the Almighty is greater than everything is, and greater than everything that is great. That is why the words 'Allah is the Greatest' are the motto of your call to prayer and the prayer itself so you must declare Allah to be the Greatest and make Him greater than all vicissitudes that are besides Him. So, if you are called to prayer, whatever work you are doing, say: 'Allah is Greater than my work'. If you are called and you are in the presence of a powerful person, say: 'Allah is greater than every powerful person'. Declare Him to be the Greatest such that His commands and prohibitions take precedence over all other commands and prohibitions. The True Lord the Almighty says, '…and keep up prayer for My Remembrance.' (Ta Ha: 14) This means, 'for My Remembrance' because the permanence and monotony of blessings could make you forget about the Granter of Blessings. When you hear the call 'Allah is the Greatest', you see people rushing to mosque, nothing prevents them from it. You will remember if you had already forgotten and your heart awakens if you were heedless. The Arabic word dhikr (remembrance) is a gerund, and a gerund is added to a subject. For example, Arabs say, 'I was astonished by the ruler's beating of Zayd'. It can also be added to an object. For example, 'I was astonished by Zayd's beating on behalf of the ruler'. So, when you say, 'Allah's Remembrance', it is correct that the meaning could be remembrance emanating from Allah or even the slave's remembrance of Allah. If you said: 'Remembrance emanating from Allah' to the praying person, then when a person prays and remembers Allah in terms of His Greatness when he says 'Allah is the Greatest' and declares Him transcendent when He says, 'Glorified is Allah' and prostrates and bows to Him the Almighty then you have indeed done Remembrance of Allah therein, remembrance in word and action, and Allah the Almighty recompenses your remembrance of Him by remembering you, as remembrance is remembrance from Allah of whoever remembers Him in their prayer. There is no doubt that Allah's Remembrance of you is greater and more sublime than your remembrance of Him the Almighty because you remember Allah from your adolescence until your death. As for Him the Almighty because of your remembrance of Him, He will grant you high ranks that have no end on the Day on which no one dies and His Blessings and Benefits will not be withheld from you. Allah's Remembrance of you, by way of reward and mercy, is greater than your remembrance of Him by way of obedience. This is according to the meaning of Allah's Remembrance of the slave. The other meaning or the slave's remembrance of Allah means that remembering Allah outside the prayer is greater than remembering Him in the prayer. How is that so? Some scholars say: 'It is because you are in the presence of your Lord after the opening takbira 'Allah is the Greatest', so when you have finished the prayer and gone back to your daily activity, your remembrance of Allah when you are far from His Presence is more immense and greater than your remembrance of Him when you are in His Presence. Do not think that remembrance is restricted to just the prayer. Rather, Allah's Remembrance must never be absent from your mind because your remembrance of your Lord outside the prayer is greater than your remembrance of Him the Almighty in the prayer. Your Lord is not waiting for you to come to Him. Rather, He is inviting you to visit Him. He turns to you before you turn to Him. Did He not say in a Qudsi Hadith: 'If someone remembers me within himself, I remember him within Myself, and if someone remembers Me in a gathering I remember him in a better gathering. If someone comes to Me walking, I come to him running, and if someone approaches me by an arm's length I approach him by a fathom's length.'(1)

Therefore the reins are in your hand, what an excellent Lord is He Who treats His slaves in this way and bestows all these excellent favours upon them! Hastening to Allah's remembrance and leaving off trade for that end give a person boundless energy whose effects manifest themselves in man's second activities. That is why the True Lord the Almighty says after that: '…then when the prayer has ended, disperse in the land and seek out Allah's Bounty. Remember Allah often so that you may prosper.' (al-Jumu'a: 10) The True Lord the Almighty has only called them to get a collective benefit which is that every believer should declare his slavery to Allah in front of the rest of creation. Thus, when Allah the Almighty calls you and invites you: He says, 'Allah is the Greatest' because the activities of life and the necessities of livelihood are a great matter in Allah's sight that should not be neglected. But if life's activities and striving therein are a great matter, then Allah is Greater, and your Lord takes you away from your work to pray, and after that He calls you to work. We notice in the term 'Allah Akbar' that Akbar (greater/greatest) is a superlative used for hyperbole, and when something is less than akbar, we say kabir (great). It is as if the term is an indication that working and striving are not something paltry and insignificant. Rather, it is something great that you should be concerned with because it is the sinew of life and the building up of the earth cannot be done properly without it. The True Lord the Almighty draws our attention to the inimitability of the Quranic style in His saying: 'Believers! When the call to prayer is made on the day of congregation…' (al-Jumu'a: 9). The preposition min (of) defined an intended time for the prayer, and it is the Friday Prayer as a specified prayer to be performed in the time of the noon prayer, and unlike the noon prayer, it is performed as two units instead of four. This is from the Quranic exact style, for indeed Allah's saying: '…prayer is made on the day of congregation…' (al-Jumu'a: 9) does not single out a specific time, but rather, it makes the obligation to gather for prayer generally applicable to all the prayers on Friday, and this contains hardship, and Allah does not want hardship for His slaves. The True Lord the Almighty says, '…Allah desires ease for you, and He does not desire for you difficulty…' (al-Baqara: 185). He the Almighty also says, '…and He has not laid upon you a hardship in religion…' (al-Hajj: 78). Thus, Allah does not want to bring hardship upon you or constrain you, or make matters difficult for you. Rather, He wants to make everything easy, and thus His Legislation is laid down according to your ability. He has made concessions for you that make matters lighter for you and He has removed constriction and restraint from you. As for Allah's saying: '…hurry towards the reminder of Allah…' (al-Jumu'a: 9), 'hurry' here means to direct oneself and go to Allah's mosques. We must accompany this designation of place with a designation of task for which a person will enter mosque and direct himself towards Allah. The mosque is designated for the worship of Allah, and even though you can pray anywhere on the earth, when you come to the mosque, you must be accompanied by the etiquettes of worshipful devotion. The way you are affected, your interactions, your movement and your activity must all be for Allah's sake, and that is why the best thing you can do when you enter the mosque is to intend spiritual retreat (`itikaf), and thus stay away from anyone who intends to speak to you about worldly matters, A tradition has been mentioned regarding the prohibition of chatting in the mosque because it causes actions to go to waste and wipes out good deeds.(1) You do many good deeds outside the mosque, but you must enter the mosque with the standard proper practices of the mosque, as being present before Allah the Almighty in His mosque and in His House has its norms. Thus, you must not step over people, and this requires organisation, meaning that you do not make the places at the front empty and those at the back crowded, and this is so that everyone who wants to pray can sit without anyone being stepped over. People should sit in the first row and complete it before starting the second, and this is how faithful proper practices can be achieved in the mosques. One day, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said to Salman Al-Farisi: 'Do you know what Friday is?' He said: 'Allah and His Messenger know best.' He said it three times and the third time he said: 'It is the day on which your father Adam was brought together.(2) Shall I not tell you about Friday? No man purifies himself and does so with excellence, wears his best clothes, applies perfume from his household if they have perfume and if not then with water, then comes to the mosque and sits and listens quietly until the imam finishes his prayer except that it is an expiation for what is between two Fridays, as long as major sins have been avoided, and this applies all the time.'(1) This day is Friday, and to exalt this day Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: 'Shall I not tell you about Friday?' This means that what this day deserves great concern from us, so we should purify ourselves well and wear the best of our clothes.

The perfection of the Creator's Blessing towards the creation is that a person purifies himself in the way that Allah has laid down for him, and to hasten to Allah's mosque where Allah the Almighty is remembered. When the Muslim performs ghusl on Friday or makes ablution, two things have happened for him: purification and purity. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him told us about the effect of ablution in purifying the Muslim and keeping him pure, as well as cleansing his limbs from filth and sins. He peace and blessings be upon him said: 'When the Muslim slave, or believer, performs ablution and washes his face, every sin that his eyes looked at falls away with the water or the last drop of water, when he washes his hands, every sin that his hands grasped falls away with the water or the last drop of water. When he washes his feet, every sin that his feet walked in falls away with the water or the last drop of water such that he comes out cleansed of his sins.'(2) The Muslim who is hastening to Allah's mosques wherein he will remember Allah must not rush to catch up with the imam and get the sermon or the prayer. This actually should be from the moment he makes ablution and leaves his house for the prayer. Beware of doing things that are incompatible with the prayer. Enter the mosque with tranquillity and dignity to carry out the prayer with the imam. (3)

(3) It is narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: 'When you are called to the prayer,=

The first attribute that the True Lord the Almighty gave to those believers who attain to a happy state is: 'Who are humble in their prayers.' (al-Mu'minun: 2) He did not say, for example: 'those who perform the prayer' because the issue of the believers performing the prayer is settled. The lesson here is about 'manner and form', the lesson is to have humility and reverence, to have tranquillity and calmness of one's heart and to think in Allah before Whom you are standing. Likewise, you say to your child: 'Sit in front of the teacher, pay attention, and listen quietly'. You do not advise him to go to the school or attend the lesson because that matter is settled. That is why we are concerned with the essence of the subject and the state in which he should be. Humility (khushu`) means that the heart is calm and tranquil in this task that it has, and thus it is preoccupied with nothing but the prayer because Allah has only placed one heart in man. As long as one is in the presence of one's Lord the Almighty one should not be preoccupied with anything besides Him. In this respect, some pious Muslims said that the meaning of humility entails that if one intentionally knows who is on his right or his left, his prayer is invalid(1). When `Umar Allah be pleased with him entered upon a man who was praying and playing with his beard, he struck him on his hand and said: 'If your heart were in a state of humility, your limbs would be in a state of humility.'(2) Indeed, the True Lord the Almighty has made these people among the true servants of the Most Gracious. He the Almighty says, 'And the servants of the Beneficent Allah are they who walk on the earth in humbleness…' (al-Furqan: 63). This means 'with gentleness, tranquillity and tenderness, not with arrogance, pride or haughtiness', why? It is because walking is what exposes you to numerous societies, and this divine modesty in walking brings about human equality in society which makes everyone equal. In another place, the True Lord the Almighty teaches us the modest way of walking, as He says, ‘And pursue the right course in your going about and lower your voice…’ (Luqman: 19). Some scholars said: ‘What is meant by ‘pursue the right course in your going’ is that man should walk naturally without feigning pride or arrogance, but at the same time without humiliation and dejection. When `Umar saw a man walking sluggishly, he hit him and forbid him from walking in such a dejected or sluggish way; and this shows clearly how the walk of the believer should be; it is not arrogant and it is not sluggish and languid. The True Lord the Almighty is asking us to hasten to the mosque when He calls us to the prayer, and even though the entire earth is a mosque and all of it is pure, the mosque has been designated for prayer, and thus prayers should be performed there. If someone’s house is far from the mosque, he must still come for prayer with tranquillity and dignity, and he should maintain this manner even if it means he will miss the opening takbira (Allah Akbar). Therefore, let us dedicate our sitting in the mosque to the Granter of Blessings, and He is Allah the Almighty. As for when we are outside the mosque, and at all other times, we live with the blessings that Allah has bestowed upon us. When the True Lord commands you to hasten to His Remembrance in His mosques, He is only inviting you to His mosque so that you can have a break and be relieved of your burdens and concerns. He rectifies whatever is wrong with you and opens the doors of comfort for you.

The mosque is a place of worship in which Allah is never disobeyed, unlike homes and other places. Allah has exalted His Houses such that He is not disobeyed therein, and He has exalted their visitors above being preoccupied with the trivialities of the worldly matters while therein, so you must leave the life of this world at the door of the mosque, just as you leave your shoes. That is why Islam has forbidden us from conducting transactions in the mosque, or even looking for something that one has lost because a transaction that is conducted in the mosque will be unsuccessful and unprofitable. How can you spend your entire time engaged in worldly matters, day and night, and then find it troublesome to spend a few minutes carrying out what Allah has obligated you to do, such that you are fully occupied with the life of this world, even into the mosque? Do you not know that the mosques have only been made for Allah's worship? The believer must leave his worldly life outside the mosque, and he must intend to be in spiritual retreat, worshipping his Lord and remaining constant in His remembrance in His house. It is not befitting of you to be in the mosque and to be preoccupied with other than Him. If you were to adhere to the etiquettes of the mosque, you would receive light upon light from your Lord and you would be relieved of your anxieties and worries. Your problems would be solved from where you would never imagine, so make your moments in the mosque for Allah, as the mosque is a place of worship. That is why I say to anyone who talks to me in the mosque about anything related to life's activities: 'I am informing you that it will not be beneficial because you have entered the mosque solely for worship. Indeed, the moment you entered the mosque was the moment in which you came to draw near to your Lord, be in intimate conversation with him and live under his providence, so why are you bringing the life of this world with you?' Let one of the Companions be a good example for us, as he would say, 'We would leave the affairs of this world with our shoes.' Another Companion added: 'Even more, my brother. We leave our ranks with our shoes.' Look at the subtlety: the second Companion does not just leave his world with his shoes at the door of the mosque. He also leaves his rank in the life of this world. It is possible that the life of this world can take up several hours of your time, while going to the mosque only takes up a small amount of time, so put your rank with your shoes outside the mosque, and enter the mosque with no rank other than the rank of your faith in Allah. Sit in the place that you find empty and do not step over anyone to get to a specific place in the mosque because you are entering as Allah's slave. Someone who serves may end up sitting next to you and a young person may sit next to an old person. We do not notice you that have any rank except your rank with Allah. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him would sit at the edge of the gathering,(1) this means that where he found a place for himself, and this is the opposite of our time in which a person uses a prayer mat to reserve a place for someone else. A person may also enter and step over people to sit in the first row, and he doesn't know that Allah arranged the rows before he came to the mosque. As long as we will leave aside our ranks, do not say: 'Where will I sit and next to whom?' Rather, sit where you find the edge of the gathering and do not step over people. Intend spiritual retreat and do not talk about any worldly matter, and this is so that you do not come under the supplication of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him that Allah does not bless you in that which you are seeking and have been cherishing for a long time.(1) Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him forbade a person from setting aside a place for himself in the mosque that he would constantly sit in(2) because the basis is that the person prays at the edge of the gathering, and thus people sit on a first come first serve basis according to their place and their hastening to the prayer, and thus one does not step over people or separate between two people. We see some people rushing to the first row, for example, and laying down a prayer mat to reserve a place and then they go and take care of some business. When they come late for the prayer, they step over the necks of people to get to their place. This leads to people being constrained by this behaviour, and they put the prayer mat aside and sit in its place. Indeed this behaviour is not befitting of the mosque, which bring about equality among all of Allah's creation and realise equality of slavery to Allah. Today you are next to so-and-so and tomorrow you will be next to someone else. Everyone is submissive to Allah, bowing and prostrating, and no one is deeming himself above anyone else. One of the most serious things that Muslims are afflicted with is that places are now designated in the mosque for a specific class, and their places are left vacant. They are accompanied by bodyguards, even in the mosques. Then the person comes at a later time and sits in the first row, while another person spreads out his prayer mat to reserve a place. All Muslims should reject this behaviour. You must put the prayer mat to the side and sit down because the first to sit are the first to come, and Allah has made this arrangement in the mosque out of concern for it. This evil habit causes the person who does it to fall into many impermissible acts, in that they step over the necks of people and distinguish themselves over others without any right, and there is a lessening of slavery in the mosque. Allah the Almighty has distributed the places according to the arrival of people. If you come to the mosque first, you get the reward of the first row, even if you pray in the last row. If places were not reserved, harmony would spread among people, disparities would be removed, and people would become acquainted with each other. In each prayer, you would be next to a new person and you would get to know them and know how they are doing. Once someone is sitting in their place, they must listen quietly to the imam's sermon because it includes verses from the Quran. The True Lord the Almighty says, 'And when the Quran is recited, then listen to it and remain silent, that mercy may be shown to you.' (al-A'raf: 204) Some scholars have pointed out that listening quietly to the sermon has been established by the proof of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying: 'If you say to your Companion, while the imam is giving the sermon on Friday, "Be quiet", you have made a mistake.'(1) The Arabic word khutba (sermon) is comprised of the letters kha`, ta` and ba`, and they indicate matters that contribute to a number of particularities. These include the word khutba, the word khatb which is something immense, and there is also the word khitba (engagement).

All these particularities indicate that an immense matter is being dealt with, as khatb is an immense matter because it separates between two lives: the life of liberty and the life of being restricted by family. These are all meanings that contribute to a matter that is important and significant. The matter of the Friday Prayer requires that you beautify yourself, confirming the True Lord's saying: '…attend to your embellishments at every time of prayer…' (al-A'raf: 31). This is what Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him means in the Prophetic Hadith: 'Shall I not tell you about Friday? No man purifies himself and does so with excellence, wears his best clothes, applies perfume from his household if they have perfume and if not then with water, then comes to the mosque…'(1) Regarding His saying: '…attend to your embellishments…' (al-A'raf: 31), when you hear of beautification, you turn your attention towards embellishing yourself beyond your normal habit, and this means that the Muslim goes to the mosque wearing the most splendid clothes that he has. We know that the mosque is a place in which Allah's slaves come together. We know that people's ranks and positions are different, yet we should also know that every task in this life has its own apparel and its own attire. The person who sits at a desk to meet people has a certain kind of clothes, and the person who works in metalwork has his particular uniform that suits his work. But when you go to the mosque to gather altogether to pray to Allah, does each person come wearing the clothes of his profession to enter the mosque? No, there should be clothes for the mosque that do not inconvenience others. If one's work clothes are not befitting, so wear clean clothes so that you do not trouble someone who is next to you. This is because we go to the mosque to perform a common deed that governs all of us, which is performing prayer to Allah in the mosque, so you must honour this praying. In another Hadith from Salman Al-Farisi, he peace and blessings be upon him said: 'Whoever performs ghusl on Friday, purifies himself as much as he is able, applies some oil or perfume, then leaves and does not separate between two people, then prays what Allah has prescribed for him, then listens quietly when the imam has come out, he is forgiven for what is between that Friday and the last.'[1] Furthermore, the True Lord the Almighty commands that we hasten to the prayer on Friday. He the Almighty commands the believers to leave off trade for the sake of the Friday prayer. He says, 'Believers! When the call to prayer is made on the day of congregation, hurry towards the reminder of Allah and leave off your trading…' (al-Jumu'a: 9). The True Lord the Almighty did not say 'leave off agriculture', or 'leave off manufacturing', 'leave off teaching'. Rather, He chose, from all the activities of life, the activity of trade specifically because it contains commerce and commerce includes all the activities of life. The True Lord the Almighty has taken you from trade to prayer and He has not taken you from idleness. Rather, He has taken you from the activity of trade, and He used the Arabic word bay` (trade) because it is a process that brings about immediate profit because when you plant crops you have to wait for a period of time, lengthy or not, before they bear fruit. However, trade bears its fruit immediately. You trade and you take the profit immediately.

(1) It is narrated on the authority of Salman Al-Farisi that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: 'O Salman, do you know what Friday is?' I said: 'It is the day on which your father, or the father of all of you, was gathered.' He said: 'No, but I will tell you about Friday. There is no Muslim who purifies himself and does so with excellence, wears his best clothes, applies perfume from his household if they have perfume and if not then with water, then comes to the mosque and sits and listens quietly until the imam finishes and then prays, except that it is an expiation for what is between two Fridays, as long as enormities have been avoided, and this applies all the time.' See At-Tabarani, Al-Mu`jam Al-Kabir, Hadith no. (5967).

Trade permeates all the activities of trade because the meaning of trade is that it is a medium between a producer and a consumer. When you buy a commodity, that commodity has come from a producer, and the producer looks for an intermediary to sell it to the consumer, and you find this consumer to also be a producer and the producer to also be a consumer. Thus, producing and consuming are exchange and activity, and all of life is in buying and selling, and as long as there is buying there is selling, and this is the continuation of life's activity. Allah the Almighty makes it clear: Leave off this process that brings immediate profit, and heed the call to the Friday Prayer. When man leaves off buying he obviously leaves off selling because buying and selling are two sides of the same process. The only difference is that the buyer may buy the commodity and be reluctant to buy because he is consuming his money with what he is buying. As for the trader, he wants to obtain the price of the sale immediately, and most of the time one obtains the profit afterwards, and this is the peak of earning. A farmer's earnings, for example, come months after the actual farming. The earnings of the employee come at the beginning of the month. As for the trader, he obtains the earnings immediately, and that is why the True Lord commands us to leave off trade when we hear the call to the prayer on Friday. If we were to look at the subtlety of the effectuation of trade we would find that it is the peak of directly taking one's provision, and the True Lord the Almighty mentioned trade because it is the peak of instant expediency. The command came to leave off this instant benefit to perform the Friday Prayer, and this command guarantees that all matters that could bring about subsequent profit are left off in order that the prayer be performed.

Indeed the word bay` is a subtle expression because the One speaking is Allah, and the True Lord did not speak here, for example, about buying because the buyer may buy something reluctantly. The seller, on the other hand, is more than happy to sell. A man may go to buy some things for his house and hears the call to prayer and thus rushes to the mosque. He says to his family afterwards: 'I went to buy but the call to the Friday Prayer was given'. This is because man does not like to spend money. As for the seller, he benefits absolutely. Man's desires are attached to selling and not buying, as buying requires that we have money, as opposed to selling, which earns money. That is why the seller is sad when he does not sell. As for the buyer, when he ca not find something or he finds that the shop is closed, he says, 'Oh well, Allah did not want this transaction to happen'. Know that if you devote yourself to Allah, He gives you abundant blessings that compensate your profits in the life of this world and its commerce. That is why the motto of the call to prayer that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was pleased with is 'Allah is the Greatest', means greater than anything besides Him. If you are sleeping, then Allah is greater than sleep, and if you are engaged in commerce then, Allah is greater than commerce, if you are working, then Allah is greater than work and so on and so forth. It is amazing that we see those who give precedence to work over the prayer on the argument that the time is extended and one can pray after finishing work. This is a flimsy argument because when your Lord calls you with 'Allah is the Greatest', He wants you to respond immediately and not with slackness. Otherwise, how can you call it responding to the call if it is delayed beyond its time? The length of time, especially between dawn and noon and between nightfall and dawn, does not mean that you pray throughout this time, because the call necessitates hastening and response.

Allah's saying: '…that is…' (al-Jumu'a: 9) is a demonstrative referring to that which preceded it which means hastening to Allah's remembrance, and it is the Friday Prayer and its connection to leaving off trade. The particle dha is a demonstrative while the letter kaf indicates address because the True Lord the Almighty is addressing a group. Some of those who do not understand the Arabic language say that dhalikum is one word of address or a demonstrative, and you say to them: 'No, rather, it is two words, a demonstrative and an address, and the demonstrative here is for one thing and the address is for a group. In Allah's saying: '…better for you…' (al-Jumu'a: 9), the Arabic word khayr (better) is a comparative and its origin is akhyar meaning that it gives you lawful benefit and profit. This is a good thing that brings goodness to man. If this is better, then it has more goodness than it and it is responding to the call to the prayer on Friday, leaving off trade, and hastening to Allah's remembrance wherever you are called to it. In Allah's saying: '…if only you knew' (al-Jumu'a: 9) knowledge means that you take a matter that you believe in; it has a reality and you are able to prove it, and if one of these conditions is unfulfilled, it is no longer knowledge. I say that Allah's saying: '…if only you knew' (al-Jumu'a: 9) means that you know for certain a matter that is relative, real, and believed in and you are able to prove it, as there are scales by which we know what is good and what is evil. And when the True Lord the Almighty says, '…if only you knew' (al-Jumu'a: 9), it is as if there are preliminary steps leading to knowledge, and if they do not know then Allah will teach them.

Then the True Lord the Almighty says:

فَإِذَا قُضِيَتِ ٱلصَّلَوٰةُ فَٱنتَشِرُوا۟ فِي ٱلْأَرْضِ وَٱبْتَغُوا۟
مِن فَضْلِ ٱللَّهِ وَٱذْكُرُوا۟ ٱللَّهَ كَثِيرًا لَّعَلَّكُمْ تُفْلِحُونَ ﴿١٠﴾

Then when the prayer has ended, disperse in the land and seek out God's bounty. Remember God often so that you may prosper [10] (The Quran, al-Jumu'a: 10)

When the True Lord the Almighty tells us about the prayer from Friday He says, 'Believers! When the call to prayer is made on the day of congregation, hurry towards the reminder of Allah and leave off your trading—that is better for you, if only you knew, then when the prayer has ended, disperse in the land and seek out Allah's bounty…' (al-Jumu'a: 9-10). This is how the True Lord the Almighty takes us from work to prayer, and after the prayer He commands us to work and strive, disperse freely on earth and seek to obtain something of Allah's bounty. Disobey command in Allah's saying: '…hurry towards the reminder of Allah and leave off your trading…' (al-Jumu'a: 9). The same as disobeying the command in Allah's saying: 'then when the prayer has ended, disperse in the land and seek out Allah's bounty…' (al-Jumu'a: 10). This is because Islam does not approve of laziness and is not pleased with idleness and sitting around. Whoever wants stillness will not benefit from the activity of someone moving. When \`Umar (1) saw a man living in the mosque and never leaving it, he asked: 'Who is providing for him?' Some people said: 'His brother.' He said: 'His brother is more worshipful than him.'(2) Why? It is because he partakes in life's activity and he spreads benefit among mankind. Therefore, every beneficial work is worship on the condition that it has the right intention. The disbeliever works and his intention is to provide for himself, and if the believer were to do likewise then what is the difference? Yes, the believer works to feed himself, and to make it easier for his brothers to be nourished and to facilitate their activities in life. If a taxi driver, for example, works and earns enough for the day and then goes home and parks his car, who is going to take the patient who needs to get to the doctor? If the seller were to earn his sustenance and then close his shop, who would sell to the people? Therefore, work for yourself but at the same time think about the benefits and needs of others, and if you do that you will be in a state of worship. Work according to your capacity, not according to your need. Then take what you need from what your capacity has produced. The rest can be given back to people, either in the form of charity or at a price, and it suffices that you facilitate a way for it. Therefore, we say that worship is every activity that carries out a service in the universe and your intention therein is for Allah. Worship is the worshipper's obedience of the object of worship. Therefore, do not think that the only worship we do is prayer, fasting, zakat and the Pilgrimage because these are the pillars of Islam. As long as these are the pillars and the foundations upon which Islam is based, it therefore means that Islam is not just comprised of the pillars. Rather, the pillars are the foundations upon which Islam is built. The foundations upon which a house is built are not the entire house, and that is why Islam is a multifarious construction. Those who take from systematic terminology, or technical terminology in science, say that worship is the prayer and whatever is connected to it, along with zakat, fasting and the pilgrimage because in the books of jurisprudence, they are referred to as 'worship' (`ibadat) I have replied by saying that this is the technical term, but every matter from Allah is worship, and that is why some people say: 'We worship Allah and we do not work.' We respond to them by saying: 'Worship is the worshipper's obedience of the object of worship, so do understand worship on the basis that it is the outward rites only, as the outward rites are a declaration and a perpetuation of allegiance to Allah. The outward rites give you a boost with which you face the events of life, but the outward rites alone are not all of worship, as transactions (mu`amalaat) are also worship, and the true understanding of worship is that it comprises the building up of the earth. That is why He the Almighty says, 'then when the prayer has ended, disperse in the land and seek out Allah's bounty…' (al-Jumu'a: 10). Thus, if we have obeyed Allah in the first command: '…hurry towards the reminder of Allah…' (al-Jumu'a: 9), then the command in Allah's saying: '…disperse in the land…' (al-Jumu'a: 10), also merits obedience. Thus, every activity in life is worship. Then, does not the prayer need some sustenance of life? Indeed, it provides you with the essentials of life so that you can pray, and what are your life's essentials? Indeed, they are food, drink, a place to live and clothing, and that which is needed to fulfil an obligation is also an obligation.

(1) The story of \`Umar ibn Al-Khattab Allah be pleased with him with the worshiper in the mosque.

(2) What Al-Ghazali mentioned in Al-Ihya\` (2/350) is from the statement of \`Isa (Jesus) peace be upon him that he said to a man: 'Your brother is more worshipful than you.' See Abu Bakr Ad-Daniuri, Al-Mujalasa Wa Jawahir Al-\`Ilm, (753); and Ibn Qutaiba, \`Uyun Al-Akhbar, (1/137). As for what has been mentioned from \`Umar ibn Al-Khattab, he said to someone who was not working: 'Indeed the sky does not rain down gold or silver.' Abu Hamid Al-Ghazali (2/153) attributed it to \`Umar saying: 'None of you should sit around asking for sustenance by saying 'O Allah, grant me sustenance', when you know that the skies do not rain down gold or silver.'

An example of this is that when a person prays he needs strength, and strength originates in the body as a result of consuming food. Therefore, the process of making food is an obligatory matter, and everything that is a consequence of that is also an obligatory process. That is why, when someone comes and says, ‘I want to dedicate myself to worship and be isolated from life’s activity’, we say: ‘Do that on one condition, which is that you do not benefit from the activity of a single active person in life and that you do not eat any food. That is because the loaf of bread that someone gives you is from the work of many people who have not cut themselves off from life.’ I also say: ‘Why are you wearing those clothes? Indeed, these are the products of the life activity of many other people, as there are those who grow the cotton, those who gin the cotton, others who turn it into yarn, still others who weave it and last of all, those who add the details to these clothes. ‘Look at the tools that are behind each one of these people. So, as long as you have decided to cut yourself off from life’s activity, beware of deriving benefit from the activity of a single person who is preoccupied with the means.’ Indeed, working with the means is worship because worship cannot be done without it, and whatever is needed to fulfil an obligation is itself obligatory. That is why we learn the beneficial skills of life, and they are a communal obligation. The obligations that are binding upon man fall into two categories. The first is an individual obligation, which is a command for which each individual is legally responsible. A person has to do it himself and is not allowed to have someone else do it for him such as the prayer. The second is a communal obligation without which the obligatory cannot be done, and that is why it is obligatory. Each one of us wants food, and that is why we must divide the work, so this person grows crops and this person manufactures. We need to grow wheat. We need to build mills. We need to build ovens, and we need engineers to design these machines. All these are matters that make it easy for man to acquire the strength to perform prayers. You stand before the True Lord to perform the prayer, but what about after the prayer? Here the True Lord the Almighty says, ‘then when the prayer has ended, disperse in the land and seek out Allah’s bounty. Remember Allah often so that you may prosper.’ (al-Jumu‘a: 10) Therefore, let no one say that he is dedicating his entire life to prayer, as no one is able to go and pray without having his essentials of life, and the essentials of life require that man go about the earth and man must seek to obtain some of Allah’s bounty. The True Lord the Almighty has commanded His believing slaves to disperse freely on earth because He has a goal and an objective. The goal is to strive and seek sustenance, and one of the meanings of intishar (dispersing freely) is siyaha (travel), which is taken from water flowing, and when it overflows, it occupies a larger area. Dispersing freely, or travelling in the earth, should be organised, just as you sprinkle a drop of water onto a fabric and an ordered circle appears. The same goes for your dispersing freely in the earth to strive and seek sustenance; it must be according to a specific order such that there is no accumulation in a place or crowding, while at the same time, in another place, there is no one to develop it and extract its resources. Allah the Almighty wants us to travel in the earth, or disperse freely therein, for two objectives. The first is to go about the earth and seek Allah's sustenance and His bounty, as He the Almighty says, '…and others who travel in the land seeking of the bounty of Allah…' (al-Muzzammil: 20). Going about the earth does not just mean dispersing freely therein. Rather, what is meant is work, marriage and extracting its resources because the Creator the Almighty has scattered nourishment all over the earth in equal measure, and He has done the same with resources. That is why the earth gives us new blessings from Allah every day. We did not know about the earth's resources apart from agriculture, and as science and discoveries have advanced and their machines and tools have developed, we have come to know about minerals, petrol and other treasures buried in the earth. We would not know about or extract any material treasures in the earth without going about the earth, and we said previously that the original meaning of darb (going about) is to attack something with force. We used to be amazed at the people who live in the steppes and the desert and we would feel sorry for them. How could they live in this barrenness and scarcity? Why did they not leave this place for somewhere else? Now, after the discovery of petrol, they have become the wealthiest of people and all the resources of the world have come under their feet; why? It is because they held onto their land and their territory and they were patient with it until the time came and they benefitted from its resources. If they had despaired of it, they would not have obtained this benefit. As for the second objective of travelling in the earth and going about therein, it is travelling to consider and reflect on Allah's signs in His universe, for by travelling and roaming the earth I can see signs that do not exist in my usual surroundings. Regarding this, He the Almighty says, 'Say, "Travel in the earth and see how He makes the first creation, then Allah creates the latter creation; surely Allah has power over all things."' (al-'Ankabut: 20) In another place, He the Almighty says, 'Say, "Travel in the land, then see…’” (al-An‘am: 11). The meaning of going all over the earth is to seek sustenance that should be accompanied by beholding and reflecting on Allah’s signs. Beware of thinking that Allah wants you to remember Him for just a while. Rather, you should remember Him always and forever, and if prayer has a circumstance in which it is performed, remembrance of Allah has no set time. That is why Allah has made it easy and simple without any difficulty, not in terms of time or effort. In remembering Allah, it suffices you to reflect on the things you see as you pass by them, and let your eyes behold them so that you can see Allah’s Power therein. It is from His the Almighty magnanimity that He rewards the slave for every activity of goodness he does in this world because this activity is required by faith.

For example, if you want to perform the obligation of prayer, you need strength to carry out this obligation and you will only acquire this strength from food and drink. Let us take the simplest kind of food that can be imagined…a loaf of bread…and look at how many hands participated in producing it, from the moment the grain of wheat was placed in the ground until it became a tasty loaf. Indeed, all the people who spun the wheel of this process are carrying out a positive activity in life which is, in and of itself, worship because it assists you with worship. Also, when you want to pray, it is obligatory for you to cover your nakedness. Look at the fabric without which your prayer cannot be done. Everyone who participated in the growing of the cotton, or in the raising of sheep to take the wool and manufacture it so that it could reach you, all these people are performing an act of worship because of their participation in manufacturing this fabric. Therefore, everything that assists you in worshipping Allah is also worship, and every activity in the world that leads to anything from this is worship. When the True Lord the Almighty summons the believers to the Friday Prayer, He says, ‘Believers! When the call to prayer is made on the day of congregation, hurry towards the reminder of Allah and leave off your trading that is better for you, if only you knew.’ (al-Jumu‘a: 9) He did not take them from idleness but from work, and when the prayer has ended, He commands them to return to work and strive throughout the earth: ‘then when the prayer has ended, disperse in the land and seek out Allah’s bounty…’ (al-Jumu‘a: 10). Know that the sustenance for which you are dispersing freely to obtain and which you are seeking is only from Allah's bounty, so beware of letting your dispersing and your seeking of Allah's bounty and your use of the means in the life of this world preoccupy you from your obligation towards Allah. Rather, you must remember Him the Almighty. Allah the Almighty says, 'And remember your Lord within yourself humbly and fearing and in a voice not loud in the morning and the evening and be not of the heedless ones.' (al-A'raf: 205) It means, do not be from among those who are heedless of what Allah has required and the bounds that Allah the Almighty has made clear, because the meaning of heedlessness is that you are preoccupied from your Creator. If you keep your Creator in mind at all times, then you will not be heedless of His requirements, in the morning and in the evening, and at all times, whether you are performing one of the five prayers or going about the earth, in any of its meanings. The call of your Lord is greater than the activity of life, so you must respond to it, because the call of your Lord is what will grant you strength and energy, and it will give you the boost of faith that will enable you to devote yourself to your work with resolve and sincerity. Let us look at the subtlety in His the Almighty saying: '…disperse in the land…' (al-Jumu'a: 10). Dispersing means that human beings spread out to enter and take part in all the activities of life, and this is how every activity therein develops, as every activity in life is worship. It is as if you go to the mosque to take a boost of faith that will assist you and take control over all your senses, in your activities in commerce, in your production and consumption and in everything that benefits you and augments your life. And when your Lord commands you to free up some time to perform the prayer, He does not want this free time to hamper your activity in life. Rather, it is so that He can give you the necessary fuel so that your activity in life can come to be in accordance with what Allah wants. And how similar is this time that you store up, from the benefits of our life in this world, for worshipping Allah to the charge of an electric battery because when you take the battery to the charger you do not say, 'You killed the battery'. Rather, you increased its efficiency to perform its task and you take the benefit. What is sought from the believer is that he participates in life's activity in a positive way, constructive and beneficial in life and assists with religious devotion. If we were to take the example of covering one's nakedness which is obligatory and the prayer cannot be done without it, to cover your nakedness so that you can perform the prayer you need a garment to wear. How will you be provided with this garment? It needs a tailor to sew it. It needs a retail merchant from which the fabric is bought. Then it needs a wholesale dealer, followed by a textiles factory, followed by spinning, dyeing and ginning. It also needs a farmer who grows the cotton and gathers it. This entire process needs several machines, tools and working hands and all this activity is for your sake, to serve you and assist you. Therefore, these worldly jobs, without which religion cannot be established, are obligatory and are not to be undervalued. Rather, they should be preserved and sanctified because they hold the rank of obligation. When your Lord takes you from these jobs to the prayer, for example, He is not taking you from an insignificant, trivial job that has no value. Rather, He is taking you from work, which in and of itself is worship, and that is why He has declared it great. As for calling you to the prayer, it is greater than all of that. That is why the True Lord the Almighty has only called the believer to the Friday Prayer, when He the Almighty says, 'Believers! When the call to prayer is made on the day of congregation…' (al-Jumu'a: 9).

When the prayer has ended, your Lord returns you to the work from which He summoned you, and He takes you back to your life in this world. Therefore, do not undervalue working in the life of this world and do not think that it is far from the religion. Rather, it is a part of it, and that without which an obligation cannot be done is itself an obligation. Thus, He commands us to go back to the activity of life because it is a means to the abode of the Hereafter and a field in which our provisions are prepared to meet Allah the Almighty. Therefore, the life of this world is too important to be neglected, as it helps us for the Hereafter, but it is not important enough to be an objective in itself. The True Lord the Almighty has given you an intellect to think with and He has given you energy with which to act. He has subjugated the world for you with all the sustenance that is buried within it so that you can extract it and live off it. This is how it is made clear to you that everything needs you to be active, and in your activity, you need energy that you take from those higher than you are and you give to those lower than you. When you are called to respond to Allah's call, your energy is boosted, and you go back to your daily life after renewing your allegiance to the One Who created you and created the entire universe. If you stand before Allah with excellence then your future will come to you based on that excellence. An example of the magnitude of the feelings that the Followers had for Allah's signs is that which has been related from `Arak ibn Malik (1). When he had completed the Friday Prayer, he would go out and stand at the door of the mosque and say: 'O Allah, I have responded to Your call, I have prayed what You made obligatory and I have dispersed as You commanded me, so grant me sustenance from Your bounty, and You are the best of those who provide sustenance.'(2) And You said your saying of truth: 'Believers! When the call to prayer is made on the day of congregation, hurry towards the reminder of Allah and leave off your trading—that is better for you, if only you knew, then when the prayer has ended, disperse in the land and seek out Allah's bounty. Remember Allah often so that you may prosper.' (al-Jumu'a: 9-10) When `Abdullah ibn Bisr(3) had completed the Friday Prayer, he would leave the mosque and go far away from it. Then he would return to the mosque and pray whatever Allah had willed him to pray, so he was asked: 'Why do you do this?' He replied: 'It is because I saw the Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him doing likewise.'(4) Those who want to detach the religion from the activities of life say: 'Indeed the religion is concerned with acts of worship like the prayer, fasting, zakat and the pilgrimage.' I say to these people: 'You are talking about what has reached you from a religion that has not come to organise the activities of life. Rather, it has come to give the dose that was lost by the Jews, which is the spiritual dose.' As for the religion of Islam, it has come as a seal of all religions, organising the activity of life, as every matter in life and every activity therein comes within the bounds of obedience. Islam is broader than the five pillars. The pillars are a boost that your Lord summons you to. So, from meeting Him, take the support that will help you engage in life's activity. This is similar to a battery that you take to be charged. We do not benefit while it is charging. Rather, we give it the necessary charge so that we can use it afterwards. What is amazing about divine mercy is that Allah the Almighty has made going to boost one's energy a legal obligation that must be done. You must meet Me five times in the day and night and you must hasten to the prayer from Friday. You are My creation and My making. The maker knows best as to what will benefit his making, so imagine a making that is shown to its maker five times in the day and night. Will it continue to bear any damage? This is the case with a human maker, so what do you think if the maker is the Maker of humanity and their Creator the Almighty? The human maker will fix his making with material things, and this is because the engineer and his making are material and they are fixed with that which is material. As for the Creator the Almighty He is unseen, and when He fixes whatever is wrong with you He does so with the unseen, and thus you do not feel it and you do not see it. Therefore, we say that we must understand the religion as it truly is, and we must understand that each one of us has a task. If someone is better than you are at something, then know that his superiority is for your benefit and it will come back to you because with his superiority he is carrying out a service for you while at the same time you will not benefit him. One of the things that draw our attention is the True Lord's saying: '…hurry towards the reminder of Allah and leave off your trading…' (al-Jumu'a: 9) followed by: 'then when the prayer has ended, disperse in the land and seek out Allah's bounty…' (al-Jumu'a: 10). The address is entirely for men, as it is men who are legally responsible for the Friday Prayer when it is called to. Also, they are the one usually involved in the process of trade. You notice that the True Lord did not mention buying, which can be engaged in more by women. Then comes: '…disperse in the land…' (al-Jumu'a: 9). For women, spreading freely on earth and striving for sustenance is only done out of some necessity that pushes them towards it, and the society must not put women in situations where they have to manage their necessities as well as their lives.

Men are legally responsible and demanded to be active in this world. As for women, they administer their homes so that they are a place of rest for their husbands and children, and to produce men for this society. If the circumstances and the necessities of life push her towards it then she can be active to earn a living, but it must be according to what will bring about respect and appreciation for her from the society. The society, in turn, must suffice her needs and preserve her dignity.

Then the True Lord the Almighty says, '…Remember Allah often so that you may prosper.' (al-Jumu'a: 10) When the True Lord the Almighty addresses the Muslims, He does not say what He said to the children of Israel: 'Remember Allah's blessings.' Rather, He says, '…remember Allah…' (al-Jumu'a: 10) because the children of Israel are materialistic and worldly. It is as if the True Lord the Almighty is saying to them: 'As long as you are materialistic and worldly, then remember Allah's material blessings that He gave you'. But we are Muslims, a nation that is not materialistic, and there is a difference between someone being with the blessing and being with the Granter of Blessings. The materialists love the blessing, while the non-materialists love the Granter of Blessings and live in His company. That is why Allah's address for the Muslims is: '…remember Allah…' (al-Jumu'a: 10) because we, Muslims, worship the Lord of Blessings, while Allah's address for the children of Israel is: '…Remember the blessings which Allah bestowed upon you…' (Ibrahim: 6).

Another time, Allah the Almighty says, 'O You who have attained to faith! Remember Allah with unceasing remembrance' (al-Ahzab: 41), and another time He says, 'And remember your Lord…' (Al-'Imran: 41).

His statement '…remember Allah…' (al-Jumu'a: 10) has the name of majesty, Allah. Hearing 'Allah', one becomes aware of the commandments because Allah is the One to be worshipped; consequently, He is obeyed in what He commands and forbids.

As for His statement 'And remember your Lord…' (Al-'Imran: 41), it reminds you of the favours that He has granted you. He created you, nurtured you and gave you some of His overflowing blessings, which is countless. Remember your Lord because if you do not ardently love His commandment then you, at least, ardently love Him because He has granted you these blessings, and Allah the Almighty protects and bestows favours upon all of us.

Remember your Lord in two states. The first is a state of imploring, i.e. humility; one may remember someone with pride. Allah is The Beneficent Creator. You must remember Him with the humility of someone who is a slave to His station of Lordship.

The second is to remember your Lord in a state of dread, i.e. fearful and imploring because whenever you humble yourself before Him, He makes you mighty, and remembrance means remembering Allah always.

Allah the Almighty says, ‘so remember Me, and I shall remember you…’ (al-Baqara: 152). It is that remember Me with obedience and I will remember you with goodness and manifestations. If the remembrance is with these meanings, then we can find tranquillity in any of them. Remembrance according to the meaning of the Quran causes tranquillity.

That is why Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him gives us a similitude by saying: ‘The likeness of someone who remembers his Lord and someone who does not remember His Lord is like that of the living and the dead.’(1)

The process of remembrance itself is a spiritual process. In other words, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him gave us a similitude of the living and the dead. A living person is a living, active being who feels, hears, sees, and speaks, i.e. he contains life. As for a dead person, his feelings have died within him, and indeed he is a motionless body.

The one who remembers Allah has a living heart, conscience, and feelings, which receive Allah’s speech with an open heart and understanding intellect. As for the dead person, you do not expect anything good from him because he is simply dead.

Do not think that remembrance is simply restricted to the prayer. Rather: ‘Then when the prayer has ended, disperse in the land and seek out Allah’s bounty. Remember Allah often so that you may prosper’ (al-Jumu‘a: 10).

Thus, do not give up Allah’s remembrance because your remembrance of your Lord outside of the prayer is greater than your remembrance of Him the Almighty in the prayer. It has been related (1) from `Ata` ibn As-Sa`ib(2) that Ibn `Abbas asked `Abdullah ibn Rabi`a:(3) 'What do you say about Allah's statement: "…and remembrance of Allah is indeed the greatest [good]. And Allah knows all that you do" (al-'Ankabut: 45)? He replied: 'Reciting the Quran is good. The prayer is good. Glorifying Allah is good. Praising Him is good. Declaring Him the Greatest is good. Declaring that there is no deity but Him, is good. But what is better than all that is for someone to remember Allah just before they are about to commit disobedience, and by remembering their Lord they refrain from disobeying Him.'

So, what did Ibn `Abbas say, even though this statement contradicted what he had said regarding the verse? He said: 'Amazing, by Allah.' He was amazed at the statement of Ibn Rabi`a, and blessed his understanding of the verse. He did not reject his independent reasoning because it is natural for a person to remember Allah in a state of obedience, as he is prepared for remembrance.

As for remembering Him in a state of committing a sin, it is greater. A person, in that case, is more prevented from doing so because it needs more power and intense as Allah the Almighty said: '…and remembrance of Allah is indeed the greatest…' (al-'Ankabut: 45).

That is why it is mentioned in the Noble Hadith: 'Seven people will be shaded by Allah's shade on the Day when there will be no shade but His – and they include: a man who is invited by a woman of rank and beauty and he says, "Indeed I fear Allah."'(4)

(2) See Adh-Dhahabi, Siyar A`lam An-Nubuwwa: `Ata` ibn As-Sa`ib, a Hadith scholar of Kufa. He was known as Abu As-Sa`ib. He was from amongst the senior scholars, but his memory became a bit weak towards the end of his life. Abu Hatim said: 'He was previously known for his veracity, before he became confused and his memorising changed.'

(3) See Siyar A`lam An-Nubuwwa, vol. (3-116/504): `Abdullah ibn Rabi`a ibn Farqad As-Salmi. It is said that he was a Companion, but if he is not, then a Hadith from him would considered as mursal (discontinued at the level of Companion). He settled in Kufa and died after the age of eighty. Ibn Rabi`a said: 'I performed the dawn prayer behind `Umar and he read the chapter of al-Hajj and the chapter of Yusuf slowly.'

(4) See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, no. (660); Muslim, Sahih, no. (2427); Ahmad, Musnad, no. (9663); and Malik, Muwatta`, no. (1709), on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him.

This is the remembrance of Allah that is the greatest because the motives are motives of disobedience, and the matter needs great struggle to turn from disobedience into obedience.

Allah says, '…and remembrance of Allah is indeed the greatest…' (al-'Ankabut: 45). Do not think that Allah wants you to remember him just when you are praying. Indeed, remember Him continually and forever. While prayer has a fixed time in which it is performed, Allah must be remembered all the time.

That is why Allah has made remembering him easy and simple, timeless or effortless. In remembering Allah, it is enough to reflect on you what you watch around you, so that you can see Allah's power therein.

Remembering Allah does not burden you at all, nor is it difficult for you. That is why Allah the Almighty says, '…and remembrance of Allah is indeed the greatest…' (al-'Ankabut: 45). It is greater than any other act of obedience because it is easy on the tongue and you can do it while doing any of your actions, at any time and in any place.

Remembering Allah is greater than any act of worship because acts of worship, as we have mentioned, need preparation, time, toil, and that one not be preoccupied with anything else. As for Allah's remembrance, it can flow on your tongue at any time, without preparation or toil, and your tongue can be devoted to it at any time and in whatever state in which you are.

Read in that statement of Allah's in the chapter of al-Jumu'a: 'Then when the prayer has ended, disperse in the land and seek out Allah's bounty. Remember Allah often so that you may prosper' (al-Jumu'a: 10).As long as remembrance means to have Allah in your thoughts and on your tongue, then striving and working will not prevent you from it because remembrance is the lightest and easiest act of worship for the soul and the heaviest on the scales.

Allah the Almighty says, 'O you who have attained to faith! Remember Allah with unceasing remembrance, and extol His limitless glory from morn to evening.' (al-Ahzab: 41-42)

Allah the Almighty has commanded us to remember Him unceasingly because remembrance is the pillar of the other acts of worship and the easiest of them for the believer. That is why we find our Lord commanding us to it when we have finished acts of worship like the prayer, fasting, and pilgrimage.

Remembering is the preoccupation of the memory which is an area in the brain. Information is received by man in the seat of his feelings, and if he wants to remember something for when he will need it, he keeps it in his memory or in the periphery of his feelings. For example, you might see someone and say: 'I have not seen this man for twenty years', and another time: 'I saw him in such-and-such place.'

Therefore, remembering something is present in the seat of one's feelings. Remembrance means a matter that is present with you in reality and it has a time in which it exists. However, you become heedless of it and it moves to the periphery of your feelings, or memory. After that, we do not want you to forget it in the periphery, or somewhere faraway, such that you will require effort to remember it. Rather, you should always keep it somewhere close so that it will be easier for you to remember it without trouble.

Likewise, your remembrance should be for Allah, as it is a vital matter that you should be remembering constantly, always and forever. How can you forget the remembrance of your Lord when you took the covenant from Him while you were in the atomic world? He took affirmation from you that Allah the Almighty is your Lord.

Remembrance is the one act of worship that does not burden you at all and does not hinder any of your limbs. It does not require any time or effort on your behalf and it does not have a fixed time. Whoever remembers Allah standing, or remembers Allah on his side, is considered amongst those who remember. This is according to your situation when remembering. Whoever remembers Allah early in the day, or late in the day, in the morning or in the evening becomes amongst those who remember. This is according to the time of your remembrance.

Whoever says 'Glory be to Allah, Praise be to Allah, There is no deity but Allah, Allah is the Greatest and There is no power and no strength except in Allah, The Sublime, The Most Great' thirty times a day, he will be written down as one of those who remember.(1) Whoever wakes up at night, wakes up his family and prays two units of prayer is considered amongst those who remember. (1)

(1) See Ibn Abu Shayba, Musannaf, no. (29728) On the authority of Al-Hasan, who said that Prophet Muhammed peace and blessings be upon him said: 'Shall I not inform you of an act of charity that fills up what is between the heavens and the earth: 'Glory be to Allah, Praise be to Allah, There is no deity but Allah, Allah is the Greatest and There is no power and no strength except in Allah, The Sublime, The Most Great, thirty times a day.'

Therefore, remembering Allah is an easy matter. You can remember Allah while you are working with an axe or writing with a pen. You can remember Allah while you are eating or drinking, and so forth. Thus, even though remembering Allah is the greatest, it is still easy and light on the believer.

Know that remembering Allah the Almighty will make you an imperturbable pillar and you will not be reached by anything evil or unpleasant. Indeed, the remembrance of Allah, the Lord of Blessings, will give you the activity of life in everything. Remembering Allah brings about humility in the hearts, lessens disobedience, everyone benefits from it and it makes the activities of life upright.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him would not sit or stand without being in remembrance. (2) In a Hadith: 'Prophet Muhammad would do much remembrance.'(3) Why? It is because sitting and standing cancel one activity with another activity. If someone is standing and then they sit, they have carried out the activity of sitting. If someone is sitting and then he stands, he has carried out the activity of standing. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him would remember Allah in every activity, showing gratitude for the blessings of the Creator the Almighty.

The Lord of Might the Almighty says in a Qudsi Hadith: 'I am as My slave thinks of Me. I am with him when He remembers Me. If he remembers Me within himself, I remember Him within Myself. If he remembers Me in a gathering, I remember him in a better gathering. If he comes to Me walking, I come to him running, and if he approaches Me by an arm's length I approach him by a fathom's length.'(1)

(1) See Al-Bayhaqi, As-Sunnan As-Sughra, no. (609) On the authority of Abu Sa`id Al-Khudri and Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with them who said, 'Prophet Muhammad said: 'If someone wakes up at night, wakes up his family and they pray two units of prayer together, on that night they are written down as amongst those who remember Allah much.'

(2) See Al-Bayhaqi, Shu`ab Al-Iman, no. (1362); and At-Tabarani in Al-Mu`jam Al-Kabir, no. (17868) On the authority of Al-Hasan ibn `Ali ibn Abu Taleb, who said: 'I asked my uncle Hind ibn Abu Hala, and he was giving a description, part of which was: "I asked him what he was like in gatherings and he said: 'Prophet Muhammed peace and blessings be upon him would only sit or stand after some remembrance. He would not reserve places and he would forbid them from being reserved. When he came across some people sitting he would sit at the edge of the gathering.'"'

(3) On the authority of Ibn Abu Awfa, who said: 'Prophet Muhammed peace and blessings be upon him would remember Allah much, he would speak little, lengthen the prayer, shorten the sermon and he would not disdain walking with widows and poor people and then fulfilling their needs.' Narrated by An-Nasa`i in his Sunnan (1414), Al-Hakim in his Mustadrak (4225) and At-Tabarani in Al-Mu`jam Al-Kabir (1377).

With your faith in Allah, you make yourself mighty and you strong. If you want Allah to remember you, then remember Allah. If you remember Him within yourself then He will remember you within Himself. If you remember Him in a gathering, He will remember you in a better gathering. If you approach Him by an arm's length, He will approach you by a fathom's length.

What more than that do you want, especially if you will never add anything to it? Therefore, the situation is in your hands. If you want Allah to be with you, then travel along His path, and his support will come to you immediately. This is how the situation is with you and it comes under your control, and it is through your faith in Allah, your devotion to being connected to Him and your faith in Him the Almighty.

Allah the Almighty tells us how remembering Allah affects the heart and the body. Allah the Almighty says, 'Believers are only they whose hearts tremble with awe whenever Allah is mentioned, and whose faith is strengthened whenever His messages are conveyed unto them, and who in their Lord place their trust.' (al-Anfal: 2)

Remembering Allah causes the believers' hearts to tremble and have fear, and trembling; 'wajal' is the kind of fear that makes the heart shake and beat faster. But if remembering Allah the Almighty makes the believers' hearts tremble, does that not contradict this statement of Allah the Almighty: 'those who believe, and whose hearts find their rest in the remembrance of Allah – for, verily, in the remembrance of Allah [men's] hearts do find their rest' (ar-Ra'd: 28).Actually, there is no contradiction between the two statements because remembering Allah the Almighty brings about various states. If a person is extravagant with himself, he will tremble when He remembers Allah, The One Whose way he has contravened.

(1) Agreed upon Hadith narrated by Al-Bukhari, Sahih, no. (7405); Muslim, Sahih, no. (6981, 7008); At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, no. (3603); and Ibn Majah, Sunnan, no. (38822) on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him.

If a person respects Allah's right in every action, as much as he is able, then his heart will inevitably find rest the moment Allah is remembered because he has followed Allah's way as much as he is able.

Therefore, fear and trembling come about from the awe and authority of the attributes of majesty, and finding rest only comes from the illuminations and tenderness of the attributes of beauty. That is why one verse gathers all of this together, and it is Allah's saying: 'Allah bestows from on high the best of all teachings in the shape of a divine writ fully consistent within itself, repeating each statement [of the truth] in manifold forms – [a divine writ] whereat shiver the skins of all who of their Lord stand in awe: [but] in the end their skins and their hearts do soften at the remembrance of [the grace of] Allah...' (az-Zumar: 23).

The skins shiver out of fear, trembling at awe of Allah the Almighty. Then they soften, finding rest and desiring the tenderness of the Benefactor the Almighty because our Lord says, 'Tell My servants that I – I alone – am truly forgiving, a true dispenser of grace' (al-Hijr: 49).

The remembrance of Allah is imperative in man's most difficult moments which is when he is facing his enemy on the battlefield. Allah the Almighty says, '[Hence,] O you who have attained to faith, when you meet a host in battle, be firm, and remember Allah often so that you might attain to a happy state!' (al-Anfal: 45)

Allah the Almighty is the Creator of the human soul, and He is the All Knowing regarding it when it is facing a force that has not been reckoned with. He knows how the soul suffers immense distress, especially if this is happening on the battlefield.

That is why He has asked the believers to always remember that they are not alone in battle, and that Allah the Almighty is with them. Let them remember this often so that He can assist their victory over their enemies because as long as they are in a state of remembering Allah the Almighty then this remembrance will strengthen their faith and give their hearts the necessary courage to achieve victory.

Allah the Almighty has described those who remember Allah often as being endowed with insight. Allah the Almighty says, 'Verily, in the creation of the heavens and the earth, and in the succession of night and day, there are indeed messages for all who are endowed with insight' (Al-'Imran: 190).

Then He described them by saying: '[and] who remember Allah when they stand, and when they sit, and when they lie down to sleep…' (Al-'Imran: 191). In commenting on this verse, some scholars have said that what is meant by this is the prayer because whoever cannot pray standing can pray sitting down. If someone cannot pray sitting down, then he can pray lying down. (1)

We say to these scholars: 'You have singled out this meaning when the purport is actually more general such that no one should think that remembering Allah is only in the five obligatory prayers. Allah the Almighty has said: 'And when you have finished your prayer, remember Allah – standing and sitting and lying down; and when you are once again secure, observe your prayers [fully]. Verily, for all believers prayer is indeed a sacred duty linked to particular times [of day]' (an-Nisa': 103).Thus, remembering Allah is a continuous obligation, in the prayer and outside of it. The is, have Allah constantly in your thoughts, and the hearts only find rest in Allah's remembrance, as finding rest grasps all the hearts and every person has a corner in which his heart beats. No sooner does he remember Allah that he finds rest and his heart is settled.

Remembering Allah after committing disobedience will inevitably cause the soul to fear and tremble and become troubled out of fear of Allah the Almighty. If one remembers Allah after some affliction or hardship, one's soul finds rest and takes comfort from the balance of faith that it contains, and it returns to this balance of faith and relies on it in moments of constraint and tribulation.

As long as the believer has established his heart with Allah's remembrance, faith and the testimony of that faith, then his heart will never deviate and never shake with regards to the truth. But what is remembrance? Remembrance means to preserve something from being forgotten because life's routine makes us forget the Original Cause of blessings. The sun rises every day, and who from amongst us remembers that it only rises with Allah's permission and thus thanks Him?

---

(1) See Al-Bayhaqi, Sunnan, no. (3493), on the authority of Al-Husain ibn `Ali Allah be pleased with them that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: 'The sick person should pray standing, and if he cannot, then he can pray sitting. If he cannot prostrate, then he can lean forward and make his prostrating lower than his bowing. If he cannot pray sitting then he can pray on his right side, facing the direction of prayer. If he cannot pray on his right side then he can pray lying down with his feet facing the direction of prayer.'

The rainfalls from time to time, and who remembers that Allah sends down the rain and thus thanks Him?

Remembrance is performed with the tongue and the heart, and Allah the Almighty is veiled and unseen. It is from His sublimity that He is unseen, but Allah's blessings indicate Him. With remembrance, Allah is always in our thoughts and we are always remembering Him and thanking Him for His blessings.

Allah the Almighty wants remembrance from His slaves, and whenever they remember Him the Almighty and thank Him, He thanks and increases them. The desire of The Bountiful to give is on the condition that we are worthy of the gift because He wants to give you more and more.

Allah's statement '…remember Me…' (al-Baqara: 152) means: remember Allah for all His blessings, His gifts, His veiling, His Mercy, His Acceptance of Repentance and so forth.

Some of the righteous people say, 'I heard from whoever heard from my beloved, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him that when you drink you should divide it into three parts: with the first gulp say 'In the Name of Allah' and drink. Then say 'Praise be to Allah'. Start drinking the second gulp by saying 'In the Name of Allah', and after finishing it say 'Praise be to Allah'. Then say 'In the Name of Allah' and drink the third gulp, and finish it by saying 'Praise be to Allah'. As long as this water is inside you, no particle in your body will tell you to disobey Allah.'(1)

Practise doing this daily. Say 'In the Name of Allah' and drink and then say 'Praise be to Allah', and repeat three times. Then you will receive the blessing by remembering the Lord of Blessings. You will distance yourself from your strength and your power and you will conclude the blessing by praising Allah.

(1) See At-Tabarani, Al-Mu`jam Al-Kabir, no. (332); Al-Mu`jam Al-Awsat, no. (840) On the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him would drink in three breaths. When he brought the vessel to his mouth he would say 'In the Name of Allah' and when he was finished he would praise Allah, and he would do that three times. Also, Abu Ash-Sheikh Al-Asbahani narrated it in `Akhlaq An-Nabi no. (656) on the authority of Ibn Mas`ud, who said: 'When Prophet Muhammed peace and blessings be upon him would drink, he would do it in three breaths. He would praise Allah with each breath and thank Him with the last one.'

Dhikr (remembrance) in the absolute sense is the remembrance of Allah; His Blessings, His Sublimity, His Power and His Attributes of Perfection. Tasbih (glorification) means to declare Allah transcendent because what Allah does cannot be done by anyone else.

Thus, 'Glory be to Allah' means that Allah is transcendent because He is the One Who is fully Capable of doing what that the means do not do and what no one can make. Indeed, He wants us to thank Allah, who grants sustenance unto whom He wills, beyond all reckoning.

Sometimes, what is meant by remembrance is glorification and praise. Look at Allah's statement: 'In the houses [of worship] which Allah has allowed to be raised so that His name be remembered in them, there [are such as] extol His limitless glory at morn and evening, people whom neither [worldly] commerce nor striving after gain can divert from the remembrance of Allah, and from constancy in prayer, and from charity…' (an-Nur: 36-37).

It is remembrance because there are those who glorify Him therein in the morning and the evening, and they are described as people who do not let commerce and trade divert them from remembering Allah. Dhikr (remembrance) can also refer to Allah's goodness towards His slaves. It can also refer to their acts of worshipping Him in obedience, as Allah the Almighty remembers them with goodness and they remember Him with obedience.

His remembrance of them through blessings and favours is a bounty and beneficence, and He is the Great the Exalted. Thus, there is a second, lesser remembrance, which is their worship of their Lord in obedience. So 'remember Me, and I shall remember you…' (al-Baqara: 152). It is as if Allah is saying, 'Remember Me with obedience, and I will remember you with favours'.

The place for remembering Allah could be the mosque or outside the mosque, indoors or outdoors, at home or at work, while walking or while sleeping, when you wake up from your sleep and at every time and in every place.

However, the most certain remembrance of Allah is in the mosque, Allah's houses. That is why Allah the Almighty says, 'Hence, who could be more wicked than those who bar the mention of Allah's name from [any of] His houses of worship and strive for their ruin…' (al-Baqara: 114).

There is no one more in wickedness than those who prevent Allah’s name from being mentioned in His houses. This is tremendous wickedness and it is the peak of wickedness. Allah’s statement ‘…and strive for their ruin…’ (al-Baqara: 114) means to put an end to them or maintain them in a way that they are no longer fit for worship. Striving to ruin the mosque means to destroy it.

Indeed, I warn every believer against being weak and feeble in the face of those who are trying to prevent Allah’s name from being mentioned in Allah’s mosques because in that case one is partaking in their sin and maybe even doing worse, and Allah will not leave such a person alone on the Day of Resurrection. Rather, He will throw him in the fire.

Then Allah the Almighty says,

وَإِذَا رَأَوۡاْ تِجَٰرَةً أَوۡ لَهۡوًا ٱنفَضُّوٓاْ إِلَيۡهَا وَتَرَكُوكَ قَآئِمٗاۚ قُلۡ مَا عِندَ ٱللَّهِ
خَيۡرٞ مِّنَ ٱللَّهۡوِ وَمِنَ ٱلتِّجَٰرَةِۚ وَٱللَّهُ خَيۡرُ ٱلرَّٰزِقِينَ ﴿١١﴾

Yet they scatter towards trade or entertainment whenever they observe it, and leave you [Prophet] standing there. Say, ‘God’s gift is better than any entertainment or trade: God is the best provider’[11] (The Quran, al-Jumu‘a: 11)

Twelve men remained with Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him including Abu Bakr and `Umar, and they did not leave him while he was giving the sermon as the others had done. Rather, they remained with Him peace and blessings be upon him because they were the ones who had certainty that goodness was found in keeping the company of the beloved, the chosen one because in his company they became guests of Allah the Almighty.

That is why they remained firm with Prophet Muhammad while the others looked at the life of this world and its ceasing pleasures and dispersed from around Him peace and blessings be upon him. They went out to receive a caravan that had come from the Levant accompanied by entertainment and drumming.

Allah the Almighty did not want to punish them or chastise them because of what they had done because of the presence of Prophet Muhammad, who was a security for them against a punishment befalling them. We must understand that Medina had become a stopping place and people were coming from all over to learn about the new religion, and there were many people who were new to Islam or were hypocrites.

It has been related from Jabir ibn 'Abdullah Allah be pleased with him that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was standing, giving the sermon on Friday when a caravan arrived from the Levant and the people went out to see it until only twelve men remained.(1) Then this verse, which is in al-Jumu`a, was sent down: ‘Yet they scatter towards trade or entertainment whenever they observe it, and leave you [Prophet] standing there say, “Allah’s gift is better than any entertainment or trade: Allah is the best provider.”’ (al-Jumu‘a: 11)

The Quran has precision in its stylistic and linguistic rendering, and an example of this is that here the Quran says, ‘Yet they scatter towards (ra`aw)…’ (al-Jumu‘a: 11). The verb ra`a (to see) can be used to indicate knowledge such as in His statement: ‘have you ever seen [the kind of man] who makes his own desires his deity?...’ (al-Furqan: 43), i.e. have you even known? These people, who were in the mosque of Prophet Muhammad listening to his peace and blessings be upon him Friday sermon, did not literally see the caravan that had come. Rather, they knew about it or they heard the commotion and noise of the approaching caravan. Thus, they went outside and left Prophet Muhammad standing, apart from twelve men, and they included Abu Bakr and `Umar.

Another example of ra`a meaning ‘to know’ is in Allah’s statement to His Prophet peace and blessings be upon him: ‘Are you aware of how you Lord dealt with the Army of the Elephant?’ (al-Fil: 1) It means: do you not know with certainty? This is because Prophet Muhammad was born in the Year of the Elephant and thus did not see this event. It is as if Allah is informing him of it and saying to Him: ‘Do you not know?’ It is also as if He is saying to him: ‘Know with absolute certainty as if you have seen it, because your Lord is more reliable than your eyes.

These people saw it literally, or they ‘saw’ it in terms of hearing and knowledge. They saw the merchandise or the entertainment. They saw the merchandise that they had been waiting for to fulfil their needs, but this does not permit them to leave Prophet Muhammad while He is giving them the sermon. That is why Allah the Almighty censured them, and due to His Forbearance He did not chastise them for what they had done.

(1) See At-Tabari, Tafsir, no. (34460).

For the Arabs in that time, commerce was the most important economic activity. Merchandise and caravans would go out to Yemen in the winter and to the Levant in the summer, and it is something that Allah favoured Quraysh with, as Allah the Almighty says, ‘So that the Quraysh might remain secure, secure in their winter and summer journeys.’ (Quraysh: 1-2)

Commerce was the heart of their livelihood, as they brought goods from the north and the south and sold them to those visiting the Sacred House in Mecca in the Age of Ignorance, or they sold the merchandise of the Levant to the people of Yemen and sold the merchandise of Yemen to the people of the Levant.

Quraysh had two journeys every year; a winter journey to Yemen and a summer journey to the Levant. They would travel along various routes and use the stars to guide their way. That is why they were people of power and wealth.

Allah brought about security and assurance for them in their trade because they were in control of Allah’s Sacred House, and man only feels assured in a place that is free of disturbances and which contains the essentials of life, as security and assurance are the secret to a life’s happiness and its stability.

When Allah the Almighty bestowed favours upon Quraysh, He said: ‘So that Quraysh might remain secure, secure in their winter and summer journeys. Let them, therefore, worship the Lord of this House, who has given them food against hunger, and made them safe from danger.’ (Quraysh: 1-4)

Allah the Almighty says about Mecca: ‘…Why – have We not established for them a sanctuary secure, to which, as a provision from Us, shall be gathered the fruits of all [good] things? But most of them are unaware [of this truth].’ (al-Qasas: 57)

Sustenance would come to this town from every place. As for Medina, it did not have a sacred house and its commerce was only with the Levant. The road to Yemen was surrounded by dangers, because Quraysh would not allow the Muslims’ caravans to go to Yemen.

The accounts relate that the owner of the caravan(1) that had entered Medina at that time was `Abd Ar-Rahman ibn `Awf, and he is who he is in the world of commerce, such that when he emigrated from Mecca to Medina he turned down the Helper's offer to divide his wealth and family with him and instead said to him: 'Show me where the market is.'

Commerce is buying and selling, and it is an intermediary between the producer and the consumer. The producer wants to sell his produce and the consumer needs this produce. Allah the Almighty has used the process of trade to make it clear us that it is the quickest way to acquire benefit.

Commerce gathers together all of life's jobs, as commerce include agricultural production, manufactured production, as well as services. That is why commerce gathers all of this together.

This commerce was done in an outwardly beautiful way, and it took a long time to get back to Medina, where everyone was waiting for it. Its return coincided with the Friday sermon of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and those who remained sitting, listening to Prophet Muhammad, were only twelve men. The rest went out to meet the caravan.

As for lahw '…passing delight…', it kills time, causing it to pass by and preoccupying man from his obligations. The meaning of lahw is to do something that has no objective and no benefit, and if we look at a life that is stripped of Allah's way, it is la`ib and lahw. La`ib (play) might be lahw and it might not. If la`ib preoccupies you from something you are supposed to do then it is lahw because it has diverted you from an obligation because when you direct your energy towards that which is less important it is lahw.

You find the loss due to lahw to be heavy because the distracted person leaves off an important matter and does something that is not important. He sits and plays backgammon [1] instead of doing the work that provides him an income that he lives off.

(1) See Al-Qurtubi, Tafsir, vol. 18/109, (Dar Al-Kutub Al-Misriyya) says that the one who brought the caravan was Dihya ibn Khalifa Al-Kalbi. Also, in At-Tahrir wa At-Tanwir it has been mentioned on the authority of Mujahid and Muqatil. Muqatil ibn Sulaiman mentioned in his Tafsir vol. (3/361) that Dihya was from Banu `Amir ibn `Awf and he was involved in bringing merchandise from the Levant before he became Muslim. He arrived on a Friday and the people of Medina received him with drums and clapping.

If only this lahw were confined to the distracted person, but instead it attracts the glances of those who are not distracted and takes up their time, this time that should be used for beneficial matters. The corruption of entire societies comes about because of some individuals therein using their energy in that which will not bring about any benefit for themselves or their nation.

Therefore, lahw is inactive energy. An example of a distracted person who does not achieve anything in life is that student who does not go to school and does not revise. Rather, he spends him time playing and amusing himself and giving himself what he wants, but he only takes limited enjoyment. Afterwards, he lives the rest of his life in misery.

As for the one who limits his activity to revision, he has denied his soul's desire for games and amusement, and the fruit of this is that he achieves a future for himself that is comfortable and admirable.

Both the student who works hard and the student who plays games and amuses himself partake in a kind of enjoyment, but one of them has very limited enjoyment, after which he becomes one of life's paupers. As for the second, he restrained his soul for several years so that he could enjoy a successful future.

Likewise, if you restrict yourself to the commandments of 'Do!' and 'Do not do!' it looks like you have restricted your freedom, even if you do it willingly because Allah gives you comfort, rest and enjoyment for your soul.

As for the beneficial work that man should be preoccupied with, it is that which is imposed upon you by The One Who is higher than you, and He is Wise and Beloved to you. You will only find these specifications in Allah, and that is why everything that distracts from what your Allah has imposed upon you is lahw because it preoccupies you from what is more important.

(23029, 23075, 23106): on the authority of Burayda that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: 'If someone plays backgammon it is as if he has dipped his hand in the flesh and blood of a pig.'*

An example of the lahw that Allah the Almighty has mentioned is in the chapter of Luqman. Allah says, 'But among men there is many a one that prefers a mere play [lahw] with words [to divine guidance]…' (Luqman: 6). Scholars have said that mere play with words is everything that distracts one from what Allah requires, even if it is not intrinsically lahw, i.e. when it is not outside of what Allah requires. Thus, if someone allows their work such as agriculture, or manufacturing, or something else, to preoccupy them from the prayer or from carrying out some other obligation of Allah the Almighty that work is considered lahw.

That is why Allah the Almighty says in the chapter of an-Nur: 'In the houses [of worship] which Allah has allowed to be raised so that His name be remembered in them, there [are such as] extol His limitless glory at morn and evening. People whom neither [worldly] commerce nor striving after gain can divert from the remembrance of Allah, and from constancy in prayer, and from charity: [people] who are filled with fear [at the thought] of the Day on which all hearts and eyes will be convulsed.' (an-Nur: 36-37)

Allah the Almighty has described these people who fill Allah's houses with remembrance and glorification as: 'people whom neither [worldly] commerce nor striving after gain can divert…' (an-Nur: 37).

His saying: 'people whom neither [worldly] commerce nor striving after gain can divert…' (an-Nur: 37) does not mean a prohibition against commerce, as the honest person will not let commerce divert him from Allah's remembrance. These people could have waited until Prophet Muhammad had finished his Friday Sermon and until the prayer had ended, and then directed themselves towards the caravan bringing merchandise. At that time, their preoccupation with commerce would not have been considered lahw.

Someone might wonder: Allah says, 'Yet they scatter towards trade or entertainment whenever they observe it…' (al-Jumu'a: 11). There are two matters, commerce, and passing delight, so why does He say afterwards: '…they scatter towards trade…' (al-Jumu'a: 11), and not 'they rush headlong towards them'? Allah the Almighty uses the singular for both by saying '…they scatter towards trade…' (al-Jumu'a: 11) because commerce and a passing delight have the same function which is to preoccupy the believers from worship, remembrance and listening to goodness

Al-Infidad (scattering) means to turn away from what they were gathered upon or gathered for, and Allah the Almighty says in another verse: ‘It is they who say [to their compatriots], “Do not spend anything on those who are with Allah’s Apostle so that they [may be forced to] leave [yanfadu]”’ (al-Munafiqun: 7).

They had a mistaken understanding of those who believed in Prophet Muhammad, as they thought that if they did not spend on them they would apostate from their faith. They forgot that the emigrant believers had left behind their wealth and their native land, and if someone has left behind their wealth to emigrate for Allah’s sake, would he disbelieve if he cannot find something? No, because he has already left everything behind for Allah’s sake.

When the hypocrites like `Abdullah ibn Ubay said to the Helpers: ‘Do not spend on those who are with Prophet Muhammad so that they leave’, i.e. apostate and withdraw from Islam, they did not leave. Their intention was to starve those who were with Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and make them abandon him.

Then Allah the Almighty says, ‘…and leave you [Prophet] standing there’ (al-Jumu‘a: 11). This standing was during the sermon and Jabir ibn `Abdullah relates: ‘In the sermon, I only saw Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him standing.’(1) ‘Abdullah ibn Mas`ud(2) was asked: ‘Did Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him give his sermons standing or sitting?’, so he recited: ‘…and leave you standing there…’ (al-Jumu‘a: 11).

It is on the authority of Ibn `Umar Allah be pleased with him that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him would give two sermons and sit between them. (3)

(1) See Ahmad, Musnad, no. (20903, 20927): it is on authority of Jabir ibn Samra and not Jabir ibn `Abdullah: ‘In the Friday sermon, I only saw Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him standing, and whoever says that he has seen him give the sermon while sitting is lying.’

(2) See Ibn Majah, Sunnan, no. (1108); Abu Ya`la, Musnad, no. (5034); and At-Tabarani, Al-Mu`jam Al-Kabir, no. (9860) on the authority of `Abdullah ibn Mas`ud and in Al-Anjam Az-Zahirat.

(3) See Muslim, Sahih, no. (2032); Abu Dawud, Sunnan, no. (1096); and Ibn Majah, Sunnan, no. (1103) on the authority of Ibn `Umar.

Even Ka`b ibn `Ujra [1][2] entered the mosque and found `Abd Ar-Rahman ibn Umm Al-Hukm[3] was giving the sermon while sitting, so he said: 'Look at this wicked person giving the sermon while sitting[4], when Allah has said: '…and leave you [Prophet] standing there' (al-Jumu'a: 11).

Tawus ibn Kisan[5] considered it a false innovation, as he said: 'Sitting on the pulpit on Friday is a false innovation.'[6] This is for the person who is able to stand, as it is not permissible for him to sit and give the sermon. Between the schools of jurisprudence, the scholars have many details regarding this.

The priority for these people, who left Prophet Muhammad standing giving the sermon and rushed outside, was to be polite by showing forbearance and patience. Allah the Almighty has said: 'Verily, [O Prophet,] as for those who call you from without thy private apartments – most of them do not use their reason, for if they had the patience [to wait] until you come forth to them [of thine own accord], it would be for their own good. Still, Allah is much-forgiving, a dispenser of grace.' (al-Hujurat: 4-5)

If Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him had not yet appeared, they were supposed to wait for him to come out and not disturb him, as he must have been doing something important. Maybe he was busy in seclusion with Allah the Almighty or with his family.

These people called Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him as they would call one another. They did not respect the sanctity of Prophet Muhammad and his rank. That is why most of them were described as not using their reason since using reason would produce the opposite of this behaviour.

'for if they had the patience [to wait] until thou come forth to them [of thine own accord], it would be for their own good…' (al-Hujurat: 5). Indeed, if they had been patient, it would have been better for them, as after they had called him and compelled him to come out, he released half of the prisoners that had come under their ransom, and he said: 'By Allah, if they had been patient until I had come out, I would have released all the prisoners.'(1)

Thus, it is Prophet Muhammad's right that you have etiquette with him, whether it is calling him, not leaving him while he is speaking or giving a sermon, or in dealing with his Sunna.

Here Allah the Almighty says, '…Say, "Allah's gift is better than and entertainment or trade: Allah is the best provider."' (al-Jumu'a: 11) What is with Allah is not to be feared for. Rather, it multiplies and increases. What is with Allah is not to be grieved over because man grieves when he loses out on goodness, but what is with Allah remains and will never lose you, nor will you lose it. There is nothing with Allah the Almighty which is grieved over because it has been lost.

'…Verily, that which is with Allah is by far the best for you…' (an-Nahl: 95). Thus, in actual fact, goodness is not to be found in the enjoyments of the life of this world, regardless of how numerous they may be. Rather, it is found with Allah the Almighty. Man's lot in the life of this world is contingent and transitory. Either you will leave it when you die or it will leave you through some event happening to you. As for what is with Allah, it remains and never comes to an end.

What is with Allah is better than your passing delights and your commerce. It is not appropriate for you to leave Prophet Muhammad to go out for passing delights, or even commerce. You only came to the Friday Prayer because Allah called you to it: 'Believers! When the call to prayer is made on the day of congregation, hurry towards the reminder of Allah and leave off your trading—that is better for you, if only you knew' (al-Jumu'a: 9).When you left your work in the life of this world, you responded to Allah's call, so after you have responded to his call, how can you then disperse from Him when you see commerce or a passing delight?

(1) See Al-BaghawI in Ma`alim At-Tanzil, vol. 7/333 Dar Tayyiba.

If you are seeking sustenance by going out for commerce, then where will you seek sustenance? Is it not with Allah the Almighty? Is He not the All-Provider? Indeed, Allah the Almighty is '…the best of providers!' (al-Jumu'a: 11)

Sustenance is not just wealth and it is not just food. Rather, clothes are sustenance, knowledge is sustenance, forbearance is sustenance, and everything that you benefit from is sustenance from Allah. The slave is a means in sustenance because Allah the Almighty first, is the Creator of sustenance. Then He gives it to you, you benefit from it and work with it, and then from it you give to others.

Sustenance from you is just handed over from the Original Provider the Almighty. In this sense you are a provider, even though it is disliked for a person to be called a provider because no one should think that sustenance comes from people.

That is why we often hear of simple labourers, or lower-ranking employees, or doormen, for example, saying to their employers after being dismissed: 'Sir, sustenance is in Allah's hand'. How can you say that when you took your salary from his hand and from his wealth? They said: 'It is because he was looking at the First One to hand over the sustenance, not the second one to hand it over'.

Some of those who seek to discredit the Quran say that His statement: '…And Allah is the best of providers' (al-Jumu'a: 11) means that the attribute of providing is shared, as others besides Him the Almighty also provide, but He is The Best of Providers because He provides the creation with the sources of things from which they provide others. If you provide someone else with food, for example, Allah the Almighty is the source and origin of that food.

Allah's statement '…best of providers!' (al-Jumu'a: 11) is like His other statements '…the Most Merciful of the merciful!' (Arham Ar-Rahimin), or '…the best of inheritors…' (Khayr Al-Warithin) or '…best of creators (Ahsan Al-Khaliqin). Each plural is an attribute of Allah. He is inviting His creation to be moulded by this character and to be described as such.

Know that Allah did not deny them from being described with these attributes because they have a task therein even if it is limited, that suits their ability and their nature as created beings and slaves, let alone being a gift and a grant from Him the Almighty. As for Allah’s attributes, they are unlimited and boundless in their majesty, perfection, and beauty.

If it is Allah’s creation and He is the Most Merciful of the merciful (Arham Ar-Rahimin), then this means that He will not prevent His creation from showing mercy to one another. If someone is merciful towards his brother then he is called Rahim or Raheem, but Allah is the Most Merciful of the merciful.

The same goes for ‘…the best of all forgivers!’ (al-A‘raf: 155) because forgiveness can be from one person towards another, but we know that Allah’s forgiveness is superior to the creation’s forgiveness because a human being may forgive for the sake of ostentation, or reputation, or because he is scared of the other person. However, Allah the Almighty is not scared of anyone, and He is the Best of Forgivers, with no equal.

We notice here that this verse: ‘Yet they scatter towards trade or entertainment whenever they observe it, and leave you [Prophet] standing there’ (al-Jumu‘a: 11), is a preface and introduction for the chapter that comes afterwards, al-Munafiqun which exposes and uncovers their actions. What they did by leaving Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him standing and giving the sermon was nothing other than a reaction to the hypocrisy that was in their souls. That is why they were not able to control their reaction, and thus they rushed headlong without thinking because this is the reality that was in their hearts and minds.

Indeed, they did not truly believe, even though they declared their Islam and they prayed with Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and with the Muslims. However, in actual fact, they were concealing disbelief and hypocrisy and their hearts were filled with love for the life of this world, wealth and the adornments of this life. That is why they rushed headlong towards what they loved and what they hoped for from their life in this world, and they will have no share in the Hereafter.

al-Munafiqun

In the Name of God, the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of al-Munafiqun (1) (Hypocrites):

إِذَا جَآءَكَ ٱلۡمُنَٰفِقُونَ قَالُواْ نَشۡهَدُ إِنَّكَ لَرَسُولُ ٱللَّهِۗ وَٱللَّهُ يَعۡلَمُ إِنَّكَ

When the hypocrites come to you [Prophet], they say, ‘We bear witness that you are the Messenger of God.’ God knows that you truly are His Messenger and He bears witness that the hypocrites are liars [1] (The Quran, al-Munafiqun: 1)

The hypocrites came to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to testify to the truthfulness of his Message; meanwhile, Allah the Almighty knows that this testimony is true yet insincere on the part of the hypocrites. This is because He the Almighty knows that the Message of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is true, but at the same time, He the Almighty testifies that the hypocrites are liars. Here, a question arises which is, ‘How could He the Almighty affirm the truthfulness of the hypocrites’ testimony and then call them liars?’ To this we reply, ‘This is because the hypocrites said with their tongues what is not in their hearts. Therefore, they only testified with their tongues that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is the

(1) In his book, As-Suyuti says, ‘Al-Munafiqun is the chapter number 63 in the order of the Noble Quran, with a number of 11 verses.’ According to Al-Qurtubi, it was revealed in Medina, as all the scholars opine that it was revealed with relation to the Battle of Banu Al-Mustaliq in 6 A. H. as a result of what ‘Abdullah ibn Ubay ibn Salul said. The chapter of al-Munafiqun was revealed after the chapter of al-Hajj and prior to the chapter of al-Mujadala. See As-Suyuti, Al-Itqan Fi ‘Ulum Al-Quran, 1/78.

Messenger of Allah, yet their hearts denied and opposed this fact. Thus, though what the hypocrites said is true, they lied and said with their tongues what is not in their hearts, since truth means that the speech is consistent with what is in the heart. Those hypocrites lied because while testifying to the truthfulness of Prophet Muhammad's Message, they were not expressing what is in their hearts which denied what they testified to.'

More often than not, people misunderstand the reality, and, therefore, think that they found contradiction regarding some Quranic ways of expression. Some orientalists' understanding of Allah's saying: 'When the hypocrites come to you [Prophet], they say, "We bear witness that you are the Messenger of Allah," (al-Munafiqun: 1) is a case in point. Is the statement of the hypocrites consistent with the reality or contradicting it? It is consistent with the reality, for it is confirmed by Allah's saying: '…Allah knows that you truly are His Messenger…' (al-Munafiqun: 1). So, what did the hypocrites lie about? Did they lie about the fact that: '…Allah knows that you truly are His Messenger…' (al-Munafiqun: 1)? No, Allah the Almighty does not deny their saying: '…Allah knows that you truly are His Messenger…' (al-Munafiqun: 1) since He the Almighty approves this truth, saying: '…And Allah knows you are His Messenger...' (al-Munafiqun: 1).

However, Allah the Almighty denies what the orientalist critic missed regarding the hypocrites' saying: 'We bear witness that you are the Messenger of Allah.' (al-Munafiqun: 1) Here, He the Almighty denies their sincerity in that testimony, not what they testify to, namely, that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is a Messenger sent by Allah. He the Almighty knows that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is His Messenger whom He sent as a mercy for the worlds. However, the hypocrites' lie about their sincerity in their testimony.

To recap, Allah the Almighty does not deny their saying that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is Allah's Messenger as it is a true fact. Rather, He the Almighty denies their utterance, 'We bear witness,' since this suggests that their statement is consistent with what they believe in their hearts, which is not the case. So, they are described as liars because their words contradict what is in their hearts. In the same connection, Allah the Almighty says in another verse: ‘They tell a lie against Allah and they know it…’ (Al-‘Imran: 75). This means that they consciously lie and say words which are not in line with the reality. Thus, we cannot say they uttered them unconsciously.

The hypocrites lied on purpose as they know they were not speaking the truth. Mainly, we need to differentiate between the truthfulness of the information and the truthfulness of its reporter; the truthfulness of the reporter means that his/her information is consistent with the reality. However, sometimes the reporter is truthful, but his/her information itself is untrue. For instance, when someone says: ‘So and so studies all night,’ because this person saw the light on and found him/her opening a book. In reality, however, this so and so was overwhelmed with reading a novel. Here, the reporter is truthful yet the information is untrue. Therefore, there is a distinction between the truthfulness of the information and the truthfulness of the reporter. If the reporter’s conviction is consistent with the reality, then the information is true and the reporter is truthful. Meanwhile, if the information is consistent with the reality and contradictory to the reporter’s conviction, then the information is true yet the reporter is untruthful.

Thus, only verbally did the hypocrites testify to the truthfulness of Prophet Muhammad’s Message. This issue is true though Allah, the All Knowing of hearts, reveals their true stance before Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying: ‘…and He bears witness that the hypocrites are liars.’ (al-Munafiqun: 1) So, their verbal testimony is in conformity with what Allah the Almighty knows, yet their statement contradicts what is in their hearts. Thus, He the Almighty bears witness that they are liars about their testimony since the hypocrite among them did not testify a sincere testimony which requires that the statement of the tongue agrees with what is in the heart.

Some idiots who attempt to spot errors in the Quran do not adequately understand its language and its subtleties; therefore, they become confused and unable to purely comprehend the Quran. They said, ‘The Quran has contradictions,’ while they know that the hypocrites did not lie in their saying, ‘Muhammad is the Messenger of Allah,’ but rather in their sincerity regarding this testimony. Allah the Almighty denies only their saying, ‘We testify,’ since they declared faith only with their tongues, not with their hearts.

Allah the Almighty wanted to expose the hypocrites as they testified to Prophet Muhammad's truthfulness only with their tongues while their hearts denied that. So, He the Almighty revealed what was inside their hearts and clarified that their tongues did not utter what was in their hearts. The Quran clarifies that the hypocrites: 'Say with their tongues what is not in their hearts.' (Al-'Imran: 75) The heart is concerned with the inner faith, whereas the person may say something with the tongue and then s/he does not comply with it. So, we said, 'The hypocrite has a fragmented soul with fragmented faculties, saying things with his/her tongue while denying them in his/her heart. As a result, they will be in the deepest level of the hell because they are deceitful with fragmented souls.'

Speech, which is uttered for revealing what is inside people's hearts, is mainly done with the tongue. When the people explain through writing what they have in their inner self, this is considered as speaking in terms of expressing themselves and revealing what is in their heart. Therefore, if someone is embarrassed to say something to someone else, s/he writes it on a piece of paper. The moment s/he writes about something, it is as if s/he had said it. Those hypocrites said their words not by means of writing, but through their tongues and this is an act of boasting, for if they were ashamed, they would whisper their words. Moreover, they were presumptuous enough to say, 'We testify,' given the fact that testimony is the most emphatic kind of speech.

There was a man who used to come to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and say, 'O Prophet! I testify that you brought the truth from Allah,' so Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him used to be pleased with his words. Then, the man would say, 'By Allah, O Prophet Muhammad, Allah knows that I utter what is in my heart.' In this connection, Allah the Almighty says: '…and he calls on Allah to witness as to what is in his heart...' (al-Baqara: 204).

The Prophet peace and blessings be upon him said, 'These are the hypocrites,'(1) and recited Allah's saying: 'When the hypocrites come to you [Prophet], they say, “We bear witness that you are the Messenger of Allah.” Allah knows that you truly are His Messenger and He bears witness that the hypocrites are liars.’ (al-Munafiqun: 1) Allah the Almighty warns us against those people, saying: ‘And among men is he whose speech about the life of this world causes you to wonder, and he calls on Allah to witness as to what is in his heart…’ (al-Baqara: 204). This shows that those hypocrites reveal goodness and conceal evil. It is not forbidden to be pleased by speech, yet it is better to be pleased by speech which does not concern the worldly life. In order that Allah the Almighty grants us goodness, speech that pleases us should be related to the Hereafter which will last eternally. He the Almighty indicates that it is necessary for Muslims to be attentive and smart. So, when one of the caliphs of the Muslims sent for Imam Ja‘far As-Sadiq, (1) asking him, ‘Why do you not visit us like other people? Imam Ja‘far As-Sadiq wrote to him, ‘I have nothing in the worldly life to worry about and you have nothing from the Hereafter that I am looking forward to having.’(2) It is as if he wanted to tell him, ‘Leave me alone. You need someone who flatters you, and you do not know that those who think badly of you are most willing to flatter you.’

He was among the major followers with a high position in knowledge influencing both Imam Abu Hanifah and Imam Malik. Further, he was nicknamed As-Sadiq (The Honest) since he was never known to lie and was daring regarding the truth. Ja‘far was 68 years old when he died in Medina in 148 A.H. See Az-Zirikli, Al-A‘lam, 2/126.*

(2) This occurred with Caliph Al-Mansour Al-‘Abbasi as he wrote to Ja‘far As-Sadiq, ‘Why do you not visit us like other people?’ Ja‘far replied, ‘I have nothing in the worldly life to worry about and I can ask you for nothing in the Hereafter. You do not have a blessing to congratulate you on nor do you go through hard times that need consolation. So, what shall we do when we visit you?’ Al-Mansour wrote, ‘You accompany us to advise us.’ Ja‘far replied, ‘Who wants the worldly life does not advise you and who wants the Hereafter does not accompany you.’ See Ibn Hamdun, At-Tadhkera Al-Hamduniya, 1/24.

Allah to witness as to what is in his heart…' (al-Baqara: 204) with regard to Ubbay, Al-Akhnas ibn Shariq Ath-Thaqafi.(1) He was called Al-Akhnas (The retreater) because he retreated and did not fight the Muslims with Quraysh at the Battle of Badr; he apologised to the people of Quraysh, claiming that his camels survived from the attack of the Muslims and returned to him. Besides, when he met Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him he declared his belief in Islam, showed kindness towards him, and claimed his love for him. However, as soon as he had left Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him passing by some crops and donkeys belonging to a group of Muslims, he destroyed the crops and killed the donkeys.(2) Though the verse is revealed with regard to Al-Akhnas Ibn Shariq, it concerns every hypocrite.

With regard to Allah's saying: '…and he calls on Allah to witness as to what is in his heart, yet he is the most violent of adversaries,' (al-Baqara: 204) he should not have called Allah the Almighty to witness for him, but rather, he should have brought his witnesses to testify to the trueness of his words, since his saying, 'Allah testifies' means that he tells the Muslims that Allah the Almighty testifies for him. Meanwhile, he is a liar and only wants to validate his lie by involving Allah the Almighty in the matter. Therefore, whenever you hear someone saying, 'Allah testifies that I am so and so,' tell him/her, 'this means that you are affirming that He the Almighty testifies, but perhaps you are untruthful. I would prefer that two people witness for you than involving Allah the Almighty in this testimony.'

Further, the hypocrites are the fiercest of opponents and the most threatening to the believers because they seek sedition and dissension; spread lies among Muslims while claiming that they are Muslims; discourage those who fight in the cause of Allah the Almighty; keep them away from Jihad; and promise the laggards who refrain from fighting with the Muslims with survival and prosperity. In addition, the hypocrites refute the fundamentals of the society like its virtues and morals; call for anything that destroys the Islamic Law; and desire corruption for the Muslim society and family. The hypocrites practiced this during the time of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him ,so Allah the Almighty warns against them in numerous verses of the Noble Quran, especially in the chapters of al-Baqara and Al-'Imran and allocates a chapter titled with their name: al-Munafiqun (The hypocrites). Allah the Almighty exposes them through their looks and deep secrets, displays their evil deeds and reveals the issues by which they invoke dissension between the Muslims.

He witnessed the Battle of Hunayn and died at the outset of the caliphate of 'Umar ibn Al-Khattab. Known for his handsome look and speech; he retreated at the Battle of Badr with three hundred allies and did not fight Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. See Ibn Hajar, Al-Isaba, 1/25.*

(2) In his Tafsir, As-Suyuti mentions this narration and ascribes it to Ibn Jarir At-Tabari, Ibn Al-Mundhir, and Ibn Abu Hatim. See As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur, 2/476.

People in this worldly life can be divided into three types: A believer, a disbeliever and a hypocrite. Allah the Almighty at the outset of the Noble Quran, in the chapter of al-Baqara, wants to present a description for all people according to His Way of Guidance showing that they are one of three categories. The first category is the believers; He the Almighty describes their qualities in three verses, saying: 'Those who believe in the unseen and keep up prayer and spend out of what We have given them. And who believe in that which has been revealed to you and that which was revealed before you and they are sure of the Hereafter. These are on a right course from their Lord and these it is that shall be successful.' (al-Baqara: 3-5)

The second category is the disbelievers whom Allah the Almighty describes their qualities in two verses, saying: 'Surely those who disbelieve, it being alike to them whether you warn them, or do not warn them, will not believe. Allah has set a seal upon their hearts and upon their hearing and there is a covering over their eyes, and there is a great punishment for them.' (al-Baqara: 6-7) As for the hypocrites, Allah the Almighty identifies their qualities in thirteen successive verses. So, what is the reason for this? The reason is that they pose a threat to the religion of Islam. Indeed, the one who is more likely to destroy the religion is the hypocrite, unlike the disbeliever whom we avoid and beware since s/he declares his/her disbelief.

The hypocrite pretends before you that s/he is faithful yet conceals evil and disbelief. You may think s/he is a believer and start showing him/her your secrets which s/he uses against the religion of Islam. Allah the Almighty has endowed the human beings with many faculties. In order for him/her to live in inner peace, his/her faculties ought to be consistent and compatible. As for the believer, his/her faculties are consistent since s/he has faith in his/her heart and utters with his/her tongue what s/he believes. Thus, there is no contradiction between his/her faculties. Likewise, the disbeliever who claims s/he lives in inner peace rejects belief and denies it in his/her heart and utters this with his/her tongue. The hypocrite, on the other hand, undergoes a contradiction between his/her faculties; s/he conceals disbelief in his/her heart and reveals belief with his/her tongue. This contradiction remains with him/her till the last day of his/her worldly life and then continues with him/her in the Hereafter so as to turn against him/her, leading him/her into the hellfire. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: ‘Until when they come to it, their ears and their eyes and their skins shall bear witness against them as to what they did. And they shall say to their skins: Why have you borne witness against us? They shall say: Allah Who makes everything speak has made us speak, and He created you at first, and to Him you shall be brought back.’ (Fussilat: 20-21) Thus, all their faculties turn against them in the Hereafter. Neither in their worldly life nor in the Hereafter did the hypocrites reach peace. The tongue of the hypocrite, his/her hands, legs and skin will all testify against him/her. So, what is left for him/her?

The hypocrite has contradictions between himself/herself and his/her Lord, society, Hereafter and even the disbelievers. His/her tongue says what is not in his/her heart. Allah the Almighty describes the qualities of the hypocrites, saying: ‘And there are some people who say: “We believe in Allah and the Last Day”; and they are not at all believers.’ (al-Baqara: 8) This is the first characteristic of the hypocrites mentioned in the Quran. They declare faith while concealing disbelief in their heart. So, they just pretend to be believers. If they were to pray, their prayer would not be accepted since they pretend to be praying and do not establish it faithfully. Further, if they were to give the prescribed alms, it would be a source of regret for them since they spend it unwillingly as they claim it decreases their wealth and they will not be rewarded for it in the Hereafter. In addition, if someone of them were killed in a battle, they would be overwhelmed with sadness and grief since they lost their lives without getting the reward of the one who lost his/her life in the cause of Allah the Almighty. Thus, everything they do is a plight for them.

Unlike the believer who prays, gives the prescribed alms or is killed in the cause of Allah while striving for paradise, the hypocrites do all these without expecting any reward. It is as if they were destined by Allah the Almighty to lose both the worldly life and the Hereafter. They do not have the pleasure that the believer has when s/he does good deeds in the cause of Allah the Almighty nor do they have the reward that the believer seeks in the Hereafter.

The second characteristic of the hypocrites suggests their ignorance and stupidity. They think that they deceive Allah the Almighty with their hypocrisy, but how can a human being deceive the Lord of the worlds? Allah, All Knowing, knows what we conceal and what we reveal, and He knows the secret and what is more concealed than the secret. But is there something more concealed than the secret? We say, ‘Yes, the secret is what you tell to someone else so it is known by two people: You and that one. Yet, what is more concealed than the secret is what you keep to yourself and do not tell anyone about it; it remains in your heart and no one knows about it.’ Allah the Almighty says: ‘And if you utter the saying aloud, then surely He knows the secret, and what is yet more hidden.’ (Ta Ha: 7)

No one can deceive his/her Creator Glorified is He; yet because the hypocrites are ignorant, they believe they can deceive Allah the Almighty. Thus, there is no peace between them and Allah the Almighty but rather detest and anger. Meanwhile, they think they deceive the believers when they reveal before them something other than what they conceal. Yet, this deception is a misery for them since they live in constant fear that the believers might find out their true position or listen to them at their private sessions while speaking about their disbelief and mocking the believers.

For this reason, if they spoke, they would make sure first that no one of the believers hear them and then ensure that none of the believers would join them while speaking. Their hearts are overwhelmed with fear even if they are sitting with the believers; everyone fears that s/he might say a word which reveals his/her hypocrisy and disbelief. Thus, there is no peace between them and the believers. In fact, they only deceive themselves, for Allah the Almighty knows their hypocrisy. As for the believers, they may know this hypocrisy; however, if they did not, Allah the Almighty would tell them. In this regard, He the Almighty says: ‘And if We please We would have made you know them so that you would certainly have recognised them by their marks and most certainly you can recognise them by the intent of (their) speech; and Allah knows your deeds.’ (Muhammad: 30)

In the verse in question, Allah the Almighty says: ‘He bears witness that the hypocrites are liars.’ (al-Munafiqun: 1) He the Almighty exposes the hypocrites and reveals to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him what they keep in their hearts. Though their deception to the believers is one between the human beings, they sometimes lose control over their tongues so they reveal their reality. If their tongue is controlled, Allah the Almighty exposes them and consequently they do not deceive anyone since He the Almighty knows their secrets and declarations. Thus, sometimes He the Almighty helps the believers to reveal them and other times the tongues of the hypocrites themselves lose control and thus they reveal themselves.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says:

ٱتَّخَذُوٓاْ أَيْمَٰنَهُمْ جُنَّةً فَصَدُّواْ عَن سَبِيلِ ٱللَّهِۚ إِنَّهُمْ سَآءَ مَا كَانُواْ يَعْمَلُونَ ۝٢

They use their oaths as a cover and so bar others from God’s way: what they have been doing is truly evil [2] (The Quran, al-Munafiqun: 2)

In fact, the oaths are one of the means of deception that the hypocrites use and master. They use them as a cover which protects them from being exposed. In this way, they conceal their deep disbelief in order to live among the Muslims without being exposed. That is why Allah the Almighty says: ‘But how will it be when misfortune befalls them on account of what their hands have sent before? Then they will come to you swearing by Allah: We did not desire (anything) but good and concord.’ (an-Nisa’: 62) They believe that hypocrisy benefits them; it allows them the benefits of the Islamic legal rulings. Hence, whenever they are exposed before people, they resort to false swearing by Allah the Almighty as they desire sustainability of their hypocrisy.

Besides, they attempt to justify heading to unjust tyrants by claiming that they intended good conduct and reconciliation between them and their opponents.

Moreover, Allah the Almighty says: 'They swear to you by Allah that they might please you and, Allah, as well as His Prophet, has a greater right that they should please Him, if they are believers.' (at-Tawba: 62) The hypocrites aimed to please the believers by means of false oaths so that the latter may trust them and expect no evil from them. This indicates the stupidity of the hypocrites since it is Allah the Almighty and Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him who are most worthy of being pleased. The human being can deceive other people, but s/he cannot deceive Allah the Almighty. Consequently, their deception does not escape Allah's Knowledge and He the Almighty will justly recompense them for it.

So, the hypocrite always clings to false, solemn oaths because s/he wants to conceal his/her disbelief and that no one finds out about the secrets of his/her ill soul. On the other hand, the disbeliever, who publicly declares his/her disbelief, does not need to hide his/her disbelief. Thus, the hypocrites conceal disbelief and reveal the belief in Islam. In this connection, Allah the Almighty says: '…and when they meet those who believe, they say: We believe; and when they are alone with their evil ones, they say: Surely we are with you, we were only mocking.' (al-Baqara: 14) They are two-faced people, dealing with the believers in one way and dealing with the disbelievers in another different way; that is why they constantly need to swear, for no one believes them. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: 'They swear by Allah that they did not speak, and certainly they did speak, the word of unbelief, and disbelieved after their Islam…' (at-Tawba: 74).

When Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him had called the people to fight the Byzantines in the cause of Allah the Almighty, the hypocrites made up false excuses in order not to go for Jihad. As a result, the Quran revealed verses concerning those retreaters for two whole months. A man called Al-Jallas ibn Suwayd(1) said, 'By Allah, if what Muhammad says about those retreaters is true, then we are worse than donkeys.' 'Amer ibn Qays Al-Ansari replied, 'Messenger Muhammad spoke the truth; you are worse than donkeys and you, Jallas, are worse than the donkey.'(1)

(1) Al-Jallas ibn Suwayd is among thirty-six hypocrites and one of those who retreated at the Battle of Tabuk. See Al-Baghdadi, Al-Muhabbar, 1/ 467.

'Amer ibn Qays went to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to tell him about the incident. So, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him sent for Al-Jallas ibn Suwayd to ask him about the issue. Al-Jallas swore by Allah that all what 'Amer ibn Qays said did not occur and that he did not say anything against Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Then, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him left him after swearing. Meanwhile, 'Amer ibn Qays raised his hands invoking Allah, saying, 'O Lord! Reveal the truth to your servant and Messenger, and allow the truthfulness of the truthful and the lie of the liar to be known.' Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Amen!' Before they finished their supplication, Allah the Almighty revealed His saying (2): 'They swear by Allah that they did not speak, and certainly they did speak, the word of unbelief, and disbelieved after their Islam…' (at-Tawba: 74).

Those who remained behind after the departure of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him had made up false excuses in order not to fight with him, telling each other: 'Do not go forth in the heat.' (at-Tawba: 81) In the same connection, Allah the Almighty says: 'They will swear to you by Allah when you return to them so that you may turn aside from them...' (at-Tawba: 95). The expression 'will swear' comes in a future tense to suggest that they have not sworn yet. So, they would swear by Allah the Almighty and make up trivial excuses. But why will the hypocrites swear by Allah the Almighty to the believers? Allah the Almighty provides the answer, saying: '…so that you may turn aside from them...' (at-Tawba: 95). This means that they swear in order for the believers to stop condemning and blaming them for not fighting with them. Allah the Almighty indicates the best way to deal with such people, saying: '…so do turn aside from them…' (at-Tawba: 95). They asked the believers to turn aside from them which suggest asking for forgiveness. Similarly, the governor of Egypt tells Prophet Joseph peace be upon him after the plot of his wife was revealed: 'Joseph, turn aside from this…' (Yusuf: 29). This means that the governor of Egypt asked him to forget what happened and forgive their abuse.

(1) In his book, Abu Nu'aym Al-Asfahani narrates on the authority of Mohammed ibn Ishaq that Al-Jallas ibn Suwayd retreated from fighting with Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in the Battle of Tabuk, saying, 'If what this man (Messenger Muhammad) says about those retreaters is true, then we are worse than donkeys.' 'Umair ibn Sa'd related his words to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him who was staying with Al-Jallas. Al-Jallas claimed 'Umair is a liar, swearing by Allah that he did not say so. Henceforth, Allah the Almighty revealed His saying: 'They swear by Allah that they did not speak…' (at-Tawba:74) See Abu Nu'aym Al-Asfahani, Ma'rifat As-Sahaba, 15/88.

(2) See Al-Fakhr Ar-Razi, Mafatih Al-Ghaib; Az-Zamakhshari, Al-Kash-shaf, 2/291; An-Nasafi, Madarik At-Tanzil, 1/455; and Al-Alusi, Ruh Al-Ma'any, 5/ 328.

Allah the Almighty commands the believers to turn aside from the hypocrites as a way of belittling and insulting them, not to show that they had forgiven them. Thus, the believers were commanded not to blame or condemn them, for blaming them signifies that they may return to the truth, which in fact is impossible. Therefore, reproaching the hypocrites is of no avail, a fact which is clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…surely they are unclean and their abode is Hell; a recompense for what they earned.' (at-Tawba: 95)

The hypocrites do not watch Allah the Almighty in their actions, believing that He the Almighty does not see them and knows nothing of what they conceal in their hearts. Besides, they are heedless of Him, thinking only about the benefits and interest people might provide for them. Indeed, their belief is infected. Allah the Almighty says: 'They will swear to you that you may be pleased with them…' (at-Tawba: 96). They ask 'the believers' to be pleased with them, forgetting that the true Pleasure comes from Allah the Almighty. By swearing, they might gain the believers' satisfaction with them, yet He the Almighty says: '…but if you are pleased with them, yet surely Allah is not pleased with the transgressing people.' (at-Tawba: 96) If Allah the Almighty is not pleased with them, the believers' pleasure will not benefit them; it will not bring forth or hold back anything which does not please Allah the Almighty.

Using their oaths as a cover, the hypocrites bar others from the Way of Allah the Almighty since they tempt others to follow their example by adopting deception and scheming as a means for concealment and hiding. By so doing, they attempt to avert the implementation of the Islamic rulings regarding their disbelief. This tempts people to find ways far from Allah's Way of Guidance. Our popular proverb can be best quoted here: 'They asked the thief to swear, he rejoiced: Thanks Allah.' This is similar to the case of the deviant people who bar others, by means of their deviant behaviour, from the Way of Allah the Almighty.

Thus, the hypocrites refuse to follow the Way of Allah the Almighty and incite others to do the same. In other words, not only did they go astray, but they also mislead others. They disbelieve in Allah's Way of Guidance and seek to falsify it. Consequently, they oppose the implementation of the prescribed penalties and legal retribution and discourage people and keep them away from Allah's Way of Guidance. This makes people turn away from the religion. When the people see the disbelievers, who oppose Allah's Way of Guidance and Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him having the upper hand, dance, sing and rejoice for their victory by means of plotting, deception, false swearing and hypocrisy, this will tempt people to follow the approach of the opponents to Allah's Way of Guidance.

The reason for their opposition to the Way of Allah the Almighty is that they want the Way to be crooked in order to avert people from faith. This will enable them to have a temporal power and to cause corruption in the earth. This is because the religious reformation disturbs them and prevents them from exploiting corruption.

So, how do they avert people from the Way of Allah the Almighty? Those who mislead people attempt to ensure that the verses of Allah the Almighty do not reach people since they know that the sweetness of the Call makes anyone listening believe in it. One of the things the hypocrites did in order to avert people from the Way of Allah the Almighty is by building a mosque called 'Masjid Ad-Dirar' (Harming Mosque)(1). In this vein, Allah the Almighty says: 'Then there are those who built a mosque—in an attempt to cause harm, disbelief, and disunity among the believers—as an outpost for those who fought Allah and His Messenger before…' (at-Tawba: 107). Those people desired to express their hypocrisy through a manifestation of obedience by building a mosque to divide the Muslims; a group of Muslims prays here and another prays there. If they stayed to pray in it, they would be free to say whatever they want; yet, if they headed to another mosque, they would stay there suppressed and unable to speak. Thus, their objective of building the mosque was to divide the believers, and to make that mosque: 'as an outpost for those who fought Allah and His Messenger before…' (at-Tawba: 107).

(1) Allah the Almighty says: 'Then there are those who built a mosque—in an attempt to cause harm, disbelief, and disunity among the believers —as an outpost for those who fought Allah and His Messenger before: they swear, "Our intentions were nothing but good," but Allah bears witness that they are liars. [Prophet], never pray in that mosque.' (at-tawba: 107-108)

Those who built that mosque made it an outpost to Abu 'Amir the monk, whom Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him called 'the Disobedient.' This monk asked them to establish that mosque in order to cause harm, disbelief and division. It also would be an outpost for that monk who would head to Ash-Sham and bring soldiers to fight Allah's Cause and Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Though, they dare to swear by Allah the Almighty falsely, saying: 'Our intentions were nothing but good.' (at-Tawba: 107) They swore claiming, 'By building this mosque, we only desire the interest of the Muslims; it would assist the disabled and sick people and those who are unable to walk to the other mosque. Besides, if it is a rainy or cold night, people could find another mosque to perform prayers.'

They desire to avert people from the Way of Allah the Almighty so the Quran has been decisive regarding this issue. Allah the Almighty says: '[Prophet], never pray in that mosque. You should rather pray in a mosque founded from its first day on consciousness of Allah: in this mosque there are men who desire to grow in purity – Allah loves those who seek to purify themselves.' (at-Tawba: 108)(1)

(1) In his Tafsir, As-Suyuti relates that Ibn 'Abbas said, 'These are people from the Ansar (The Helpers). They built a mosque so Abu 'Amir told them, 'Build your mosque and prepare your arms because I am going to the Caesar of the Romans to provide soldiers in order to expel Muhammad and his Companions.' When they finished building their mosque, they came to Prophet Muhammad saying, 'We finished building the mosque and we would like you to establish the prayers and invoke Allah to bless it.' Thereupon, Allah the Almighty reveals His saying: '[Prophet], never pray in that mosque...' (at-Tawba: 108). As-Suyuti ascribes this narration to Ibn Jarir At-Tabari, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abu Hatim, Ibn Mardawayh and Al-Bayhaqi in Dala'il An-Nubuwwa. See As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur, 7/522.

Allah the Almighty also says: ‘And those who believe will say: Are these they who swore by Allah with the most forcible of their oaths that they were most surely with you? Their deeds shall go for nothing, so they shall become losers.’ (al-Ma‘ida: 53) The hypocrites who oppose Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him swore by Allah the Almighty with the strongest oaths so as to show those whom they swore to that they keep their word. When they swore by Allah the Almighty their strongest oaths, they might have been close to Faith. However, their hearts do not stick to one doctrine, but rather fluctuate constantly. Hence, if their doctrine is unstable, how can we believe them at the moment they swore by Allah the Almighty?

Another thing the hypocrites do to bar others from the Way of Allah the Almighty is that they divide the Muslims who intend to fight the enemy. Allah the Almighty says: ‘Go forth light and heavy, and strive hard in Allah’s way with your property and your persons; this is better for you, if you know.’ (at-Tawba: 41) This is the Decree of Allah the Almighty Who declares the mobilisation; yet, the hypocrites desired to avoid responding to it and began to make up excuses. In this regard, He the Almighty says: ‘Had it been a near advantage and a short journey, they would certainly have followed you, but the tedious journey was too long for them...’ (at-Tawba: 42). They only respond to easy tasks; however, if the task was difficult, they: ‘…steal away from among you, concealing themselves...’ (an-Nur: 63); and another hypocrite says: ‘Allow me and do not try me. Surely into trial have they already tumbled down.’ (at-Tawba: 49)

When Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him wants to meet one of his enemies, he rarely reveals his true destination. Yet, at the Battle of Tabuk, he said, ‘O people! Know that I want to fight the Byzantines.’ This was at the days of hardships, extreme heat, barren grounds and when the fruits of the city ripen. During that time, people liked to reside by their fruits and shades and hated to leave them.

One day, while Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was preparing for the battle, he asked Jadd Ibn Qays, ‘Will you fight the Byzantines, Jadd?’ He said, ‘My people knew that there is no one more infatuated by women than me and I am afraid that their women might seduce me. So please permit me, Messenger of Allah, to stay.’ Thereupon, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him ignored him saying, 'I permit you.'[1] Thus, Allah the Almighty revealed His saying: 'And among them there is he who says: Allow me and do not try me. Surely into trial have they already tumbled down.' (at-Tawba: 49)

Surprisingly, the Quran is revealed before they refused to join Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in his war and before they swore their strongest oaths. In this connection, Allah the Almighty says: '…and they will swear by Allah: If we had been able, we would certainly have gone forth with you; they cause their own souls to perish, and Allah knows that they are most surely liars.' (at-Tawba: 42) Using the future tense 'will swear' suggests that they have not sworn yet, but rather will swear in the future. If they were alarmed, they would not swear and would say, 'The Quran says we would swear, but we did not.' However, Allah the Almighty knows that they will swear. Similarly, the opponents of Islam unintentionally testify to the veracity of Islam. By swearing, they divided the Muslims who were preparing to fight the enemy because they refused to go forth and thus they encouraged others to retreat, causing dissension among the Muslims. The hypocrites typically do that.

It is true that hypocrites' staying behind was better for the Muslims, a fact which is clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Had they gone forth between you, they would not have added to you aught save corruption, and they would certainly have hurried about among you seeking (to sow) dissension among you, and among you there are those who hearken for their sake; and Allah knows the unjust.' (at-Tawba: 47) Indeed, the hypocrites would have only caused confusion to the minds if they had gone forth to fight; thus, the Muslims would not have been able to take the right decision. It is as if they were spying for the enemies of the Muslims. Besides, they might have been factors for defeat, which was not destined for the Muslims. Thus, if the hypocrites had gone forth with the Muslims, they would have caused division

---

(1) In his book, Al-Bayhaqi narrates this Hadith on the authority of 'Asim ibn 'Amr ibn Qatada and 'Abdullah ibn Abu Bakr ibn Hazm. In his Tafsir, As-Suyuti narrates this Hadith and ascribes it to Ibn Ishaq, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Al-Bayhaqi. It is also narrated by Ibn Abu Hatim on the authority of Jabir ibn 'Abdullah Allah be pleased with him. See Al-Bayhaqi, Dala'il An-Nubuwwa, 5/ 214; As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur, 7/ 396; Ibn Abu Hatim, Tafsir Al-Quran Al-'Azhim, 6/ 1809.

between them and would have penetrated them, aiming at causing corruption; they would join the groups of the Muslims to corrupt and divide them.

Notably, Allah the Almighty says: ‘Had they gone forth between you...’ (at-Tawba: 47). He the Almighty does not say ‘gone forth with you’ since ‘with’ implies total obedience; unlike ‘between you’ which signifies penetrating into weak spots and causing problems, arguments and division, such as those caused by microbes and germs when they penetrate the weak parts of the human body.

Mainly, they whisper in the ears of the believers and beautify falsehood in order to refute any directive issued by the leader. The hypocrites desire dissension and the defeat of the Muslims so that when the former would return to Medina, their popularity increases. Their leader (1) even said: ‘Once we return to Medina the powerful will drive out the weak.’ (al-Munafiqun: 8)

Back to the verse in question, Allah the Almighty describes their act of swearing falsely and using their oaths as a cover to avert people from His Way, saying: ‘…what they have been doing is truly evil.’ (al-Munafiqun: 2) The evil meant in the verse is not temporal; rather, it implies a present and a future evil as well since its impacts are continuous. Their evil includes their speech and acts; they swore through their tongues, lied intentionally, sought dissension between the Muslims and averted others from the Way of Allah the Almighty.

So, Allah the Almighty says: ‘…what they have been doing is truly evil.’ (al-Munafiqun: 2) Thus, their evil deeds are many; for instance, they avert people from the Way of Allah the Almighty by their speech and sometimes by force.

Allah the Almighty then says:

ذَٰلِكَ بِأَنَّهُمْ ءَامَنُوا۟ ثُمَّ كَفَرُوا۟ فَطُبِعَ عَلَىٰ قُلُوبِهِمْ فَهُمْ لَا يَفْقَهُونَ ﴿٣﴾

Because they professed faith and then rejected it, so their hearts have been sealed and they do not understand [3]
(The Quran, al-Munafiqun: 3)

This verse follows Allah’s saying: ‘…they use their oaths as a cover and so bar others from Allah’s way: what they have been doing is truly evil.’

---

(1) Their leader is called ‘Abdullah ibn Ubayy ibn Salul, the head of the hypocrites in Medina.

(al-Munafiqun: 2) So, with regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…what they have been doing is truly evil' (al-Munafiqun: 2) it includes both of the hypocrites' deeds, that is, using their oaths as a cover to bar others from Allah's Way and disbelieving after believing.

The Quran tells us about those who believe and then disbelieve in many instances. For example, Allah the Almighty says: 'Surely (as for) those who believe then disbelieve, again believe and again disbelieve, then increase in disbelief, Allah will not forgive them nor guide them in the (right) path.' (an-Nisa': 137) These are the hypocrites who declared belief and concealed disbelief. Thus, they turned belief, which is a doctrine that the heart believes in and the deeds confirm, to a mere word. The hypocrites were keen on performing the apparent rituals and requirement of Islam in order not to be doubted while concealing disbelief in their hearts. So, they desired to corrupt and to bring about confusion to the minds.

In the same vein, Allah the Almighty mentions the Bedouins, saying: 'The desert Arabs say, "We have faith." [Prophet], tell them, "You do not have faith. What you should say instead is, 'We have submitted,' for faith has not yet entered your hearts."' (al-Hujurat: 14) Allah the Almighty reveals their inner secrets to make known to them that they are Muslims by words only since their hearts did not believe. Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him addresses them with: 'You do not have faith. What you should say instead is, "We have submitted," for faith has not yet entered your hearts.' (al-Hujurat: 14)

They have been the first ones in the rows of prayers; yet, when the Quran revealed their inner secrets, they recognised that it is revealed by Allah the Almighty and that He the Almighty had exposed their secrets to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. If they had believed that it is Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him who knew their inner secrets, they would not have recognised him as a Prophet only; instead, they would have exaggerated the matter and would have made him a god. Therefore, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him settled the matter and indicated that Allah has revealed that to him as He the Almighty has asked him to tell them: 'You do not have faith.' (al-Hujurat: 14)

Allah the Almighty says: '…surely (as for) those who believe then disbelieve, again believe and again disbelieve, then increase in disbelief…'—that is, they disbelieved till their death — '…Allah will not forgive them nor guide them in the (right) path.' (an-Nisa': 137) He the Almighty will not guide such people because they disbelieved after their belief.

By so doing, they have committed what is mentioned in the previous verse: '…bar others from Allah's way.' (al-Munafiqun: 2) By this behaviour, they intend to cause dissension since other people watch them when they believe and watch them when they disbelieve. These hypocrites would justify their disbelief saying that when they have delved into the doctrinal issues of Islam, they disbelieved. They act so in order to diminish the value of Islam. Mainly, they intend to cause dissension by showing belief then declaring disbelief. This is enough to cast doubt into the Muslims' hearts.

Those who hesitate between belief and disbelief and ended up increasing in disbelief are punished, a fact which is clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…Allah will not forgive them nor guide them in the (right) path.' (an-Nisa': 137) Indeed, they have committed high treason against faith.

Allah the Almighty tells us about a group of the people of the Book who believed then disbelieved, saying: 'And a party of the followers of the Book say: Avow belief in that which has been revealed to those who believe, in the first part of the day, and disbelieve at the end of it, perhaps they go back on their religion.' (Al-'Imran: 72) Some of the people of the Book wanted to make the Muslims skeptical about the religion of Islam so they planned this plot. Notably, at that time, the Arab and Quraysh, believers and disbelievers, were illiterate and acknowledged that the people of the Book are well versed in the Divine Revelation. So, if some of them believed in the Message revealed to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him at the beginning of the day and rejected it at its end, that would confuse the Truth with falsehood and amount to deception and dissension to the believers. So, by believing at the beginning of the day and disbelieving at its end, this group of the people of the Book aimed at making the believers skeptical and confused about the religion of Islam and averting those who want to believe by means of making them hesitate and then refuse to believe. In this way, they would hinder the spread of Islam.

Thus, Allah the Almighty reveals the plot of those who tried to conceal their deception and wickedness. They pledged each other to keep the matter secret for fear that the plot would not achieve its aim. That is why these schemers told each other: ‘And do not trust except those who follow your religion.’ (Al-‘Imran: 73) This means that they warned one another against revealing that secret except for those who follow their religion. However, Allah the Almighty revealed the whole issue to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in order to convey it to the believers. Thus, confusion ended and the psychological war that they waged backfired.

Allah the Almighty does not guide such people, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘How shall Allah guide a people who disbelieved after their believing and (after) they had borne witness that the Messenger was true and clear arguments had come to them; and Allah does not guide the unjust people.’ (Al-‘Imran: 86)

Among those people who believed in the Message of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him then disbelieved are Tu‘ma ibn Ubayriq, Ibn Al-Aslat and Al-Harith ibn Suwayd. After they had declared belief, they headed to Mecca, declared their disbelief and stayed there. One of them repented, yet the rest did not.

In the verse in question, Allah the Almighty says: ‘…and then rejected it...’ (al-Munafiqun: 3). This means that the hypocrites denied their belief in Allah the Almighty and in Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Disbelief is the attempt to cover and deny the existence of Allah the Almighty the Necessary Being. In addition, the attempt to conceal this existence is actually a declaration that Allah the Almighty exists since you do not attempt to conceal something unless it exists in the first place. The thing which has no existence does not need concealment, since it does not exist in our minds. So, when those disbelievers attempt to conceal the existence of Allah the Almighty, they prove His Existence because you do not conceal something unless it exists. Thus, disbelief is evidence for belief.

The disbeliever who denies the existence of Allah the Almighty deprives himself/herself of His Way of Guidance. Indeed, such a person had gone far, far astray. Belief in Allah the Almighty is a natural disposition in the created beings. Yet, some people reject this belief or became unconscious about it. Disbelief, which linguistically means to cover something, is evidence for belief. If Allah the Almighty does not exist, how would they cover what did not exist?! Therefore, if someone tells you s/he disbelieved – Allah forbid – you shall reply, ‘Disbelief linguistically means concealing what exists, so you must have concealed what exists, that is, Allah the Almighty.’

Thus, the one who disbelieved in the countless universal signs of Allah the Almighty has concealed and denied their existence. Likewise, they disbelieved in the Messengers and their miraculous signs, which transcend the laws of nature. Similarly, they did not believe in the verses of the Book that are revealed to show them Allah’s Way of Guidance.

The result of their disbelief after belief was that: ‘…their hearts have been sealed...’ (al-Munafiqun: 3). This shows that Allah the Almighty has sealed their hearts so that guidance could not enter their hearts, neither could disbelief leave them. It is worth mentioning that Allah the Almighty sealed their hearts only when they had disbelieved. Then, Allah the Almighty abandoned them in their error, and sealed over their hearts so that disbelief could not leave and belief could not enter.

Other disbelievers listen to Quran, and then leave faithlessly. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: ‘And there are those of them who seek to listen to you until when they go forth from you, they say to those who have been given the knowledge: What was it that he said just now? These are they upon whose hearts Allah has set a seal and they follow their low desires.’ (Muhammad: 16)

Those who do not believe in the Quran could not perceive or understand Allah’s Revelation; this is called ‘the rust of the heart’ about which Allah the Almighty says: ‘Nay! Rather, what they used to do has become like rust upon their hearts.’ (al-Mutaffifin: 14) Thus, their hearts became closed and blocked after Allah the Almighty had sealed them that they could not tolerate or incline to goodness; and thus, they do not believe.

The seal of the hearts is for those who are filled with wickedness and deny Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. So, Allah the Almighty does not unjustly seal their hearts; rather, this was due to the fact that they are hypocrites and conceal disbelief in their hearts. They led to that seal after they had disbelieved. So, Allah the Almighty sealed their hearts with the disease in it. If they had not disbelieved, Allah would not have sealed their hearts.

When the act of sealing is attributed to Allah the Almighty then it is considered the most powerful seal over hearts. It is a final Judgment that He the Almighty has issued against them, so even an atom of hypocrisy or disbelief cannot leave their hearts. He the Almighty emphasises that the hypocrites have driven this seal to their hearts since they disbelieved in their heart then apparently declared faith, vainly attempting to deceive Allah the Almighty and the believers.

So, Allah the Almighty wants to indicate to them that if they opted for hypocrisy and disbelief in their hearts, Allah would seal these hearts that disbelief could not leave them nor could faith enter them. They express their feeling about that seal, saying: ‘Our hearts are under coverings from that to which you call us, and there is a heaviness in our ears, and a veil hangs between us and you, so work, we too are working.’ (Fussilat: 5) He the Almighty has made their hearts under coverings that neither faith can enter nor can disbelief leave. By doing so, He the Almighty does not oppress His servants, but responds to what they asked for and desired. In other words, when they desired and were satisfied with disbelief, Allah the Almighty increased it for them because He is the Lord who grants His servant what s/he desires.

Allah the Almighty says in another verse: ‘There is a disease in their hearts, so Allah added to their disease and they shall have a painful chastisement because they lied.’ (al-Baqara: 10) Allah the Almighty responded to them with what they desired and sealed their hearts to increase their disbelief inasmuch as they liked it.

In the verse in question, Allah the Almighty then says: ‘…and they do not understand...’ (al-Munafiqun: 3). Understanding occurs after being convinced through the vision and other senses, though, those disbelievers do not see except their desires. Besides, their ears listen only to what they like; they do not listen to guidance nor do they reflect on the signs which prove the Existence of the Creator. Thus, they have no understanding in their hearts. So, when Allah the Almighty says: ‘…and they do not understand...’ (al-Munafiqun: 3), it means they do not understand by themselves. For the human beings, understanding is the first stage of having knowledge. Notably, there is a distinction between understanding and knowledge. Understanding suggests that you have the ability to understand things by yourself. Yet, knowledge implies that you may not understand by yourself and that someone else shall understand and then teach you. Someone may ask here, ‘As long as they do not understand, why do we blame them?’ We say, ‘Who does not understand has to accept learning; though, they did not understand nor did they learn. Besides, they insisted on refusing education and that is why they deserved the seal on their hearts.’

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says:

وَإِذَا رَأَيْتَهُمْ تُعْجِبُكَ أَجْسَامُهُمْ ۖ وَإِن يَقُولُوا تَسْمَعْ لِقَوْلِهِمْ ۖ كَأَنَّهُمْ خُشُبٌ مُّسَنَّدَةٌ ۖ
يَحْسَبُونَ كُلَّ صَيْحَةٍ عَلَيْهِمْ ۚ هُمُ الْعَدُوُّ فَاحْذَرْهُمْ ۚ قَاتَلَهُمُ اللَّهُ ۖ أَنَّىٰ يُؤْفَكُونَ ﴿٤﴾

When you see them [Prophet], their outward appearance pleases you; when they speak, you listen to what they say. But they are like propped-up timbers — they think every cry they hear is against them — and they are the enemy. Beware of them. May God confound them! How devious they are! [4] (The Quran, al-Munafiqun: 4)

Allah the Almighty describes these hypocrites with numerous characteristics relating to their physical appearance: ‘When you see them [Prophet], their outward appearance pleases you…’ (al-Munafiqun: 4) and their speech: ‘…when they speak, you listen to what they say...’ (al-Munafiqun: 4). They are like propped up timbers. Due to their hypocrisy and fear of being revealed: ‘…they think that every cry is against them…’ (al-Munafiqun: 4).

In fact, their hypocrisy is a manifestation of the influence of Islam and the Muslims in Medina since the hypocrites used to deceive people with their pleasant speech and acts. So, hypocrisy originated in Medina, not in Mecca. In Mecca, Islam was weak, so hypocrisy did not appear there, for no one flatters weak people. However, the power of Islam in Medina gave rise to hypocrisy. Henceforth, the existence of hypocrisy in Medina was a healthy phenomenon as it proves that belief became so powerful that non-Muslims claimed it.

The hypocrites’ speech was sweet and beautiful and they acted pleasantly in front of true Muslims; however, they do not adhere to righteousness. Yet, when they give Muslims their backs, they return to their disbelief.

The pleasant speech and acts of the hypocrites run counter to piety because they stem from insincere souls. It is true that they pray at the first row, show keenness on doing religious deeds and speak nicely to please the believers; yet, their behaviour and speech conceal a corrupt intent.

The believer has to be intelligent and smart in order not to apparently judge the pleasant speech of the hypocrites, for their speech contradicts their acts. Allah the Almighty reveals to us the reality of the hypocrites through actual practices so that no one among them shall say, ‘I am not a hypocrite.’ When He the Almighty exposes the hypocrite through a shameful incident, s/he will be stigmatised as a hypocrite.

Many people who practice hypocrisy during their life under their pretense of being Muslim are not left without punishment. Allah the Almighty must expose them to the believers so that they find out their reality. For instance, when the believer assembles with a group of hypocrites at the time of noon prayer and they hear the call to prayer, the believer says, ‘Let us establish the prayer.’ Then, the hypocrite mockingly tells the believer, ‘Protect me on the Day of Judgment.’ Let us offer another example; if a believer joined a group of people, the hypocrite among them would greet the believer sarcastically, saying, ‘How are you, Sheikh so and so?’ This suggests that he does not welcome the believer, so he mocks him.

Moreover, the hypocrites do not observe toward a believer any tie(1) of kinship or treaty. This is best illustrated by the story of Zayd ibn Thabit Allah be pleased with him and one of the hypocrites who was about to kill Zayd since the hypocrites conceal hatred and evil and reveal compliance with Islam. One day, Zayd ibn Thabit departed from Mecca to At-Ta’if with a hypocrite. When they arrived at a secluded place, the hypocrite said, ‘Let us rest here.’ So, both of them entered and Zayd slept. Then, the hypocrite tied Zayd in order to kill him. Zayd asked him, ‘Why do you want to kill me?’ He said, ‘This is because Muhammad likes you and I hate him.’ Zayd invoked Allah the Almighty saying, ‘O Allah, You are the Most Merciful, so save me.’ Then, the hypocrite heard a voice saying, ‘Do not kill him.’ So, the man went out looking for the one who spoke, but did not see anyone. The hypocrite came back to kill Zayd, but he heard a closer voice crying, ‘Do not kill him;’ and so he looked once again, but did not see anyone. He came back for the third time to kill him, but heard a closer voice saying, ‘Do not kill him.’ As soon as he had gone out, he saw a knight holding a lance; the knight killed him, then entered the secluded place and untied Zayd. Then, the knight asked him, ‘Do you not know me? I am Gabriel. When you invoked Allah, I was at the seventh heaven. So Allah said, ‘Save my servant.’ At the second time, I was at the lowest heaven and at the third time, I reached the hypocrite.’(1) Thus, Allah the Almighty says: ‘…they are the enemy. Beware of them.’ (al-Munafiqun: 4) A believer should not trust a hypocrite with his/her life, wealth, chastity, ideas, doctrine or principles.

(1) Allah the Almighty says: ‘Where believers are concerned, they respect no tie of kinship or treaty.’ (at-Tawba: 10) This means that they do not consider kinship, a covenant, inviolability, etc.

The hypocrites considered telling lies about the lawful Creator, thinking that Allah the Almighty does not see them. So, it is conceivable that they deceive and lie to the servants of Allah the Almighty Who says: ‘And if We please We would have made you know them so that you would certainly have recognised them by their marks and most certainly you can recognise them by the intent of (their) speech...’ (Muhammad: 30). Therefore, if you observe their speech, you will notice hypocrisy in it. Allah the Almighty tells Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him that if He wished to identify them to him, He would reveal their identity to him. However, He the Almighty concealed their identities, taking into consideration that they might repent. However, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him can recognise them through their speech and behaviour. In this verse, Allah the Almighty calls people to examine what the hypocrites say, even if it seems pleasant.

Allah the Almighty draws our attention to the necessity of cautiousness and that the believers should have intelligence, shrewdness and true vision. So, He the Almighty reveals to us all forms of hypocrisy; He the Almighty identifies the hypocrites from among the people of Medina and the Bedouins, who include both hypocrites and non-hypocrites. Further, He the Almighty has educated the believers to identify the hypocrites by their appearances which reveal the inner souls.

(1) See Ar-Razi, Mafatih Al-Ghaib, 1/ 154; and Al-Safouri, Nuzhat Al-Majalis Wa Muntakhab An-Nafa’is, 1/81.

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…intent of (their) speech...' (Muhammad: 30), it suggests that the tone of their words indicates other meanings; for instance, they greet Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying: 'Death be upon you,' instead of: 'Peace be upon you,' as the Arabic words for death and Peace are somewhat similar in the pronouncement. Another common instance is that they attributed frivolity to Messenger Muhammad while saying, 'Consider us.'

So, Allah the Almighty advises us to beware of them. He will expose them in order that the believers know their behaviours and their evil deeds. He the Almighty says: 'And among men is he whose speech about the life of this world causes you to wonder, and he calls on Allah to witness as to what is in his heart, yet he is the most violent of adversaries.' (al-Baqara: 204) With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And among men is he whose speech about the life of this world causes you to wonder...' (al-Baqara: 204) is it forbidden to be pleased with speech? No, it is better to be pleased by speech which does not concern the worldly life. Thus, speech which should please us is what is related to the eternal Hereafter in order that Allah the Almighty grants us goodness. It is enough for the flattered one to know that the flatterer conceals his/her hatred from him/her, which reflects the stupidity of the flattered one, since the flatterer says to himself/herself, 'The flattered is an idiot because I flatter him/her though I hate him/her and s/he still believes my flattery.'

Allah the Almighty emphasises that the believer ought to be attentive and smart. If someone tells us a pleasant speech concerning the worldly life, we should tell him/her that his/her speech is unpleasant because the best speech concerns the Eternal Hereafter. So, when one of the caliphs of the Muslims sent for Imam Ja'far As-Sadiq asking him, 'Why do you not visit us like other people? Imam Ja'far As-Sadiq wrote to him, 'I have nothing in the worldly life to worry about and you have nothing from the Hereafter that I am looking forward to' as if he wants to tell him, 'Leave me alone. You need someone who flatters you, and you do not know that those who think badly of you are most willing to flatter you.'

Allah the Almighty has revealed His saying: ‘And among men is he whose speech about the life of this world causes you to wonder, and he calls on Allah to witness as to what is in his heart…’ (al-Baqara: 204) with regard to Ubbay, Al-Akhnas ibn Shariq Ath-Thaqafi, He was called Al-Akhnas (the retreater) because he retreated and did not fight the Muslims with Quraysh at the Battle of Badr; he apologized to the people of Quraysh, claiming that his camels survived from the attack of the Muslims and returned to him. Besides, when he met Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him he declared his belief in Islam, showed kindness towards him, and claimed his love for him. Though the verse is revealed with regard to Al-Akhnas ibn Shariq, it concerns every hypocrite.

Allah the Almighty teaches us that speech differs from the actual works. You may hear pleasant speech from someone, but when it comes to real work and execution, s/he disappears. At the beginning, s/he easily promises you, ‘I am at your service or I am all yours,’ but when you actually need him/her, s/he would vanish.

Hence, in the verse in question, Allah the Almighty describes them, saying: ‘…they are like propped-up timbers…’ (al-Munafiqun: 4). They are like pieces of wood. He the Almighty describes them by their pleasant look and sweet speech. They avoid understanding what they hear and refuse to implement what belief necessitates and, therefore, they became like wood. The hypocrite does not want to respond to Prophet Muhammad’s orders or advice, so s/he seems to be inanimate or a piece of wood that does not move or respond. Besides, they are propped-up pieces of wood, leaning against a wall. The simile suggests there is no hope for their guidance. They are semi-people with no souls; they are bodies with no minds. So, some scholars said, ‘They are like the empty and hollow pieces of wood which are useless.’ Similarly, the hypocrites are endowed with big bodies which please people and eloquent tongues saying what pleases the audience; yet, their hearts are empty and bereft of belief and obedience.

Allah the Almighty then says: ‘…they think that every cry is against them.’ (al-Munafiqun: 4) This is because doubt fills their hearts. If one of them saw a believer walking towards him, he would think he came to beat or kill him. The skeptical seems to say; ‘I did it,’ for his/her behaviour exposes him/her.

Allah the Almighty has cast terror into their hearts. That terror, which is one of Allah's soldiers, overwhelms them, so they are terrified lest they are exposed.

The 'cry' here does not mean 'the cry of punishment' which was sent upon some previous peoples, as when Allah the Almighty says about the people of Prophet Lut: 'By your life!(1) They were blindly wandering on in their intoxication. So the rumbling overtook them (while) entering upon the time of sunrise.' (al-Hijr: 72-73)

In the verse in question, 'the cry' suggests the shout of calling them for confrontation. In fact, the shout terrifies the opponent, and it is recommended in some sports, like karate where the player shouts to his/her opponent in order to increase his/her terror. Moreover, it is common to see certain shouts in the training of the military; these shouts enable the fighter to cast terror into the heart of his/her enemy. Namely, terrifying the opponents begins with a shout making him/her lose his/her mental balance.

In this regard, Allah the Almighty describes the behaviour of the hypocrites, saying: '…but when fear comes, you will see them looking to you, their eyes rolling like one swooning because of death...' (al-Ahzab: 19). Their eyes revolve here and there; they do not settle down whether for fear, anxiety, or uncertainty. When terror and horror overwhelm the eyes, the eyes either stare in shock or revolve here and there looking for an escape or resort. Terrified and frightened, people are subject to these states. Their eyes do not settle down and turn dull: '…like one swooning because of death...' (al-Ahzab: 19). This is their state when they are afraid and terrified: 'but when the fear is gone they smite(2) you with sharp tongues...' (al-Ahzab: 19). 'Smite you' suggests that they hurt and abuse the believers by their insults, hurting and blaming.

In the verse in question, Allah the Almighty then says: '…they are the enemy. Beware of them. May Allah confound them! How devious they are!'

(1) Allah the Almighty swears by the life of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Life means the whole life of the person. See Al-Qamus Al-Qawim, 2/35.

(2) 'Smite you with their tongues…' (al-Ahzab: 19) means to abuse you. It also means exaggeration in saying what someone hates. So the hypocrites exaggerated in speech and opposed the believers fiercely. See Al-Qamus Al-Qawim, 1/323; Ibn Mandhur, Lisan Al-'Arab, root: Salaqa.

(al-Munafiqun: 4) Here, Allah the Almighty commands the believers to observe the hypocrites' moves, speech and acts in order to feel secure. They should watch them closely and exert all efforts to avoid their evil deeds. The believers should not be deceived by their pleasant speech and falsified behaviours which they use to please them. If the believers were pleased with them, it would go against the pleasure of Allah the Almighty and Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him.

The word 'enemy' in the verse seems to be a singular word; yet, it can suggest one enemy, two enemies or a group of enemies. So, you say, 'He is an enemy, she is an enemy, both are enemy,' since this word is used for both genders, singular and plural.

Allah the Almighty employs the pronoun 'they' and the definite article 'the' to refer to the enmity of the hypocrites; as if Allah the Almighty limits all the enemies to one enemy–the hypocrites–since they are indeed the real enemies for the believers. These hypocrites drive people to doubt their religion, cause dissension between Muslims, attract those with fragile hearts and weak doctrine, divide the row of Muslims and spread misconceptions among them.

The enemy is the opponent who wants to cause you harm and abuse. Unlike the hidden enemy, the evil of the apparent enemy is clear. The hidden enemy is more dangerous than the apparent one since we can be cautious about the apparent enemy, unlike the hidden enemy who knows one's inner secrets and moves and can deceive his/her at any time without being noticed.

Enmity drives us to be active and attentive. The orientalists, for instance, oppose Islam; however, their opposition stimulates us to search and read in order to respond. Likewise, the human soldiers of the devil oppose the believers; yet, their enmity encourages us not to become oblivious. So, if you have an enemy, try to surpass him/her by all means. It becomes clear that belief awakens the souls of people to defend Islam when it is attacked by any of its enemies. If people did not find out the dire consequences of evil, they would not incline to good deeds.

The word 'enemy' suggests the existence of conflict, namely, the believer will go through a conflict against the hypocrite. It is a conflict between righteousness and wrongfulness concerning the principles and values. Besides, it is a non-stopping conflict since it is controlled by the whims of the human beings; no wonder they differ deeply.

Enmity persists and becomes heated, while conflict grows fierce; so Allah the Almighty says: ‘And prepare against them what force you can and horses tied at the frontier, to frighten thereby the enemy of Allah and your enemy and others besides them, whom you do not know (but) Allah knows them…’ (al-Anfal: 60). Allah the Almighty draws our attention to the fact that the enemies of the Muslims do not only include those who appeared during the time of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him such as the disbelievers of Quraysh, the Jews and the hypocrites, but also include so many future enemies only known by Allah the Almighty. Further, Allah the Almighty highlights that the enemies of the Muslims do not only include those fighters who appear in the battlefield, but also include many other people who do not show up there, yet they are fighting the religion of Allah the Almighty and the Muslims by other means.

So, you should be a righteous believer so that Allah the Almighty grants you victory. You should also know that the hypocrite is worse than the disbeliever; since the disbeliever declares his/her opposition to the religion and is an apparent enemy whom you can take precaution against. Unlike the disbeliever, the hypocrite pretends belief so that you may trust him/her and thus, his/her abuse is greater and his/her betrayal is the fiercest.

So, Allah the Almighty says here: ‘…they are the enemy...’ (al-Munafiqun: 4). Here, He the Almighty advises the believers to beware of thinking that the disbelievers are their only enemy, for the hypocrites are their real enemy who combines all the evils of all enemies.

Then, Allah the Almighty says: ‘Beware of them...’ (al-Munafiqun: 4). Needless to say, being cautious about the enemies is important, so Allah the Almighty highlights this fact regarding the hypocrites. The hypocrites feel deep inside their hearts that every Muslim doubts their behaviours. Indeed, the believers are endowed with belief immunity which prevents them from believing what the hypocrites say in order to beware of them and avoid any plotted harm. Therefore, Allah the Almighty warns the believers against believing the speech of the hypocrites, even if they swore.

Allah the Almighty then says: '…May Allah confound them…' (al-Munafiqun: 4). Here, He the Almighty curses and expels them from His Mercy. If you see someone doing a foul act, we say, 'May Allah kill him/her,' as his/her life increase the wrong deeds.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says: '…How deviant they are!' (al-Munafiqun: 4) The Arabic word for 'how' here suggests two meanings: 'from where?' and 'how.' An example for the first meaning is what Prophet Zechariah peace be upon him said when he entered upon Virgin Mary: 'O Mary, from where comes this to you?' (Al-'Imran: 37)

An example for the second meaning is found in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And the Jews say: Uzair is the son of Allah; and the Christians say: The Messiah is the son of Allah; these are the words of their mouths; they imitate the saying of those who disbelieved before; may Allah destroy them; how they are turned away.' (at-Tawba: 30) How can they turn away from righteousness while they should have realised the truth of belief directed by one's natural disposition? How do they avert from the apparent truth and resort to falsehood?

In fact, no one can bear Allah's fighting against him/her. In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'O you who believe! Be careful of (your duty to) Allah and relinquish what remains (due) from usury, if you are believers. But if you do (it) not, then be apprised of war from Allah and His Messenger…' (al-Baqara: 278-279). We have nothing to say about the war of Allah the Almighty except His saying: 'And none knows the soldiers of your Lord except Him.' (al-Muddaththir: 31) No one can beware of this war. As for the war of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and the war of the believers against the hypocrites–it is apparent. It is clear that Allah the Almighty sends forth a huge number of His Soldiers, which are known by Him only, to fight the hypocrites just like those who deal by usury.

Allah the Almighty says: 'How deviant they are!' (al-Munafiqun: 4) So, how do they avert from Allah the Almighty and the Truth? Deviation is to change the reality of something. That is why lying is called deviation since the liar speaks about an issue contradicting the reality; thus, s/he denies the existence of something existent and vice versa. Thus, mainly, the hypocrite is a liar.

A related derivation of the root deviation is translated as ‘overthrown’ in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘And the overthrown cities did He overthrow.’ (an-Najm: 53) They are the villages which Allah the Almighty overturned.

Allah the Almighty then says:

وَإِذَا قِيلَ لَهُمْ تَعَالَوْا۟ يَسْتَغْفِرْ لَكُمْ رَسُولُ ٱللَّهِ لَوَّوْا۟ رُءُوسَهُمْ
وَرَأَيْتَهُمْ يَصُدُّونَ وَهُم مُّسْتَكْبِرُونَ ﴿٥﴾

They turn their heads away in disdain when they are told,
‘Come, so that the Messenger of God may ask forgiveness for you,’ and you see them walking away arrogantly [5]
(The Quran, al-Munafiqun: 5)

When Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him emigrated from Mecca to Medina,(1) the people of Yathrib were making preparations for appointing ‘Abdullah ibn Ubayy ibn Salul king over Yathrib. Yet, when Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him came to Medina, people abandoned Ibn Ubayy, as Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him directed all people’s attention. This made Ibn Ubayy angry and increased his hatred towards Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and thus he attempted to fight him, planned plots against him and envied him due to the love and support of the people for him. ‘Abdullah ibn Ubayy could not forget that when Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him entered Medina, he got all people around him and affected his popularity. This was on the day when people were making him a crown to appoint him king.

The disbelievers gathered at Mount Uhud with 3,000 fighters to fight Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. So, he consulted his Companions and sent for ‘Abdullah ibn Ubayy ibn Salul who was not summoned except for this Battle. Ibn Salul and most of the Ansar (The Helpers) said, ‘O Messenger of

(1) In his Tafsir, Ibn Jarir relates on the authority of Mohammed ibn Ishaq that Asad ibn Hudair told Prophet Muhammad: ‘O Messenger of Allah, be kind to him, for Allah has sent you as a Prophet while his people were preparing to appoint him as a king. He thinks you have seized his kingship.’ This is also narrated by Al-Wahidi An-Naysaburi and Al Bayhaqi. See At-Tabari, Jame‘ Al-Bayan, 34494; Al-Wahidi, Asbab An-Nuzul; and Al-Bayhaqi, Dala’il An-Nubuwwa, 4/53.

Allah, we were always defeated when we confronted our enemies out of Medina, yet, we were always victorious when we confronted enemies inside Medina. So we think you should not confront them out; if they stayed out, it would be the worst prison, yet, if they entered, our men would fight them face to face, women and boys would throw stones at them, and if they retreated, they would be disappointed.'

Meanwhile, other Companions suggested confronting the disbelievers, saying, 'O Messenger of Allah, let us out to confront our enemies lest they say we fear them.' The supporters of the second suggestion insisted on their opinion until Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him agreed to follow their opinion. So, he entered his house, wore his armour and carried his sword. Those who insisted on confronting the disbelievers thought that they pushed him into doing what he does not want, so they regretted doing so. When Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him met them, they said, 'We pushed on you, Messenger of Allah, and we should not have done that. If you wish, stay.' Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him replied, 'A Prophet who put on his armour should not take it off until he fights.'(1) So, they confronted them out.

In this story, we find that Ibn Ubayy supported the stance that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him should stay in Medina. What is the reason for this? This is because it is proved that if some people entered Medina to attack it, the people of Medina would win; though, if the people of Medina left it to confront them out, they would be defeated. So, it was clear for Ibn Ubayy that he refused to go forth because the past experiences proved that if they went out of Medina to fight their enemy, their enemy would win; yet, if they stayed, they would win. Thus, he was sure of the result of going forth. However, since this opinion came from the leader of hypocrisy, you cannot decide where the right is. Perhaps the day of Hijra from Mecca to

(1) In his book, Abu 'Umar ibn 'Abd Al-Barr relates that the Muslims said, 'O Messenger of Allah, if you wish, stay.' Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him replied: 'A Prophet who put on his armour should not put it off until he fights.' This is also mentioned by Al-Mubarkfuri and As-Suhaily. See Ibn 'Abd Al-Barr, Ad-Durar Fi Ikhtisar Al-Maghazi Wa As-Siyar, 1/145; Al-Mubarkfuri, Ar-Rahiq Al-Makhtum, 1/215; and As-Suhaili, Ar-Rawd Al-Anuf, 3/243.

Medina was still affecting him. At that day when Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him emigrated from Mecca to Medina, Ibn Ubayy was supposed to be king of Medina; yet, when Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him came with the Message, the situation changed and the crown had no king which badly affected Ibn Ubayy.

Allah the Almighty says: 'And that He might know the hypocrites; and it was said to them: Come, fight in Allah's way, or defend yourselves. They said: If we knew how to fight, we would certainly have followed you. They were on that day much nearer to unbelief than to belief. They say with their mouths what is not in their hearts, and Allah best knows what they conceal. Those who said of their brethren whilst they (themselves) held back: Had they obeyed us, they would not have been killed. Say: Then avert death from yourselves if you speak the truth.' (Al-'Imran: 167-168)

When Ibn Ubayy desired to discourage the army from fighting, some hypocrites agreed with him but others did not. Those who stayed inside Medina gloated over the fate of those who did not agree with them, went forth for fighting and were killed, saying, 'If they had obeyed us and stayed in Medina, they would not have been defeated and killed.' It is as if Allah the Almighty clarifies the behaviour of the hypocrites so that we can recognise their position. They stayed and said about their brothers who were killed in the Battle: '…Had they obeyed us, they would not have been killed…' (Al-'Imran: 168). They thought that those who were less hypocritic were killed because they did not obey their order to stay behind. So, how does Allah the Almighty reply to this? Let us reflect on His beautiful reply: 'You, hypocrites, say: 'Had they obeyed us...' (Al-'Imran: 168) as if your obedience was the means for their safety. So, you think you know the way which makes you avoid being killed. However, the one who knows how to avoid being killed, does he know how to avoid death?' So, Allah the Almighty mocks them, saying: 'Then avert death from yourselves if you speak the truth.' (Al-'Imran: 168) This is a reply to their saying: 'Had they obeyed us, they would not have been killed...' (Al-'Imran: 168).

The heart of 'Abdullah ibn Ubayy ibn Salul was filled with grudge, bitterness, hatred and hostility; thus, there were dark depths inside his heart.

As the head of hypocrisy in Medina, Ibn Ubayy is known with many instances of hypocrisy. Among these was what is mentioned in a Hadith that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him came to Medina after he returned from the Battle of Uhud while ‘Abdullah ibn Ubayy ibn Salul was making his usual Friday speech where he would show off his nobility and that of his people, for he was the noblest among his people. If Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him sat while he was making his speech on Friday, Ibn Ubayy would stand up saying, ‘O people, this is the Messenger of Allah, sitting beside you. Allah the Almighty blessed and supported you through him, so support, revere and obey him.’ Then, he would sit.

Thus, after his deed at the Battle of Uhud (i.e., withdrawing with a third of the army), he did what he was used to doing, that is, addressing people; yet, the people pulled his clothes from all sides urging him to sit down, saying, ‘Sit down, enemy of Allah, you are not entitled to speak so after doing what you did.’ So he left passing by all people while saying, ‘By Allah, it is as if I said foul speech when I stood to strengthen his position.’ Some of the Helpers saw him at the door of the mosque and asked him, ‘Woe to you! What happened?’ He said, ‘I stood to strengthen his position so some of his Companions jumped at me, pulling me and condemning me as if I did a grave mistake when I stood to promote his cause.’ They said, ‘Woe to you! Return and the Messenger of Allah will ask Allah to forgive you.’ He said, ‘By Allah, I do not want him to ask Allah to forgive me.’(1)

After Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him returned from the Battle of Uhud, he wanted to stand up and say what he used to say despite committing a major sin, namely, turning back at the battlefield and the withdrawal with one-third of the army that went forth to confront the disbelievers at the Battle of Uhud.

Fleeing the army is among the destructive things which Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him ordered to avoid; he said: ‘Avoid the seven destructive things.’ It was asked: (by those present), ‘What are they, O Messenger of Allah?' He mentioned among them, 'fleeing from the battlefield.'(1) In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: 'And whoever shall turn his back to them on that day-unless he turn aside for the sake of fighting or withdraws to a company-then he, indeed, becomes deserving of Allah's wrath, and his abode is hell; and an evil destination shall it be.' (al-Anfal: 16)

(1) This Hadith is narrated by Al-Bayhaqi on the authority of Mohammed ibn Shehab Az-Zuhari. See Al-Bayhaqi, Dala’il An-Nubuwwa, 3/328.

Thus, the withdrawer, who flees the battlefield, returns with the anger of Allah the Almighty. Such a person who retreats from confronting the enemy at the battles of Islam makes the hellfire his refuge, which is the most wretched destination. Those who retreated and avoided confronting the enemies lest they would be killed will find a worse destination than death.

Indeed, the following saying of Allah the Almighty applies to Ibn Ubayy ibn Salul: '…when they speak, you listen to what they say...' (al-Munafiqun: 4). He said about Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him pleasing words, thinking that the Muslims would accept and believe it. Mainly, after his deed at the Battle of Uhud (i.e., fleeing the battlefield with a third of the army), he did what he was used to doing, that is, addressing people; yet, people pulled his clothes from all sides urging him to sit down, saying, 'Sit down, enemy of Allah, you are not entitled to speak so after doing what you did.' So he left passing by all people while saying, 'By Allah the Almighty it is as if I said foul speech when I stood to strengthen his position.'

As a hypocrite, Ibn Ubbay said so in order to conceal what he committed at the Battle of Uhud and his withdrawal with a third of the army after he had gone forth to confront the people of Quraysh with Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and his Companions. If he desired to strengthen Prophet Muhammad's position, why, then, did he not do that at the battlefield? Why did he withdraw and weaken the Muslims? Did he not realise that if the people of Quraysh won, it would be a disaster for all the people of Medina? They would invade it, capture its people, kill and commit all kinds of atrocities.

(1) It is narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayra that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Avoid the seven destructive things.' It was asked: (by those present): 'What are they, O Messenger of Allah?' He replied, 'Associating anyone or anything with Allah in worship; practising sorcery; killing of someone without a just cause whom Allah has forbidden; devouring the property of an orphan; eating of usury; fleeing from the battlefield; and slandering chaste women who never even think of anything touching chastity and are good believers.' See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 2766; and Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 272.

So, ‘Abdullah ibn ‘Amr ibn Haram Al-Ansari(1) told the hypocrites, ‘Go forth and fight with us. If you do not go forth to fight with us, go forth to defend yourself, your wealth and your women because if they defeat the Muslims, they would enter the Medina, committing so and so.’(2) After losing hope that they would fight in the cause of Allah, ‘Abdullah urged them to go forth by stimulating their enthusiasm and pride. Yet, when he found them insisting on turning back, he told them, ‘Go, enemies of Allah, Allah will suffice His Prophet.’ In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: ‘And that He might know the hypocrites; and it was said to them: Come, fight in Allah’s way, or defend yourselves. They said: If we knew how to fight, we would certainly have followed you. They were on that day much nearer to unbelief than to belief. They say with their mouths what is not in their hearts, and Allah best knows what they conceal.’ (Al-‘Imran: 167) Thus, Allah the Almighty exposes them, saying: ‘…They were on that day much nearer to unbelief than to belief...’ (Al-‘Imran: 167). The hypocrites say with their tongues what their hearts deny. They are wavering all the time between belief and disbelief, belonging neither to the side of the Muslims nor to that of the disbelievers. Their fleeing of the battlefield made their hearts nearer to apparent disbelief.

(1) He is ‘Abdullah ibn ‘Amr ibn Haram ibn Tha‘laba, Abu Jaber Al-Ansari Al-khazraji As-Salmi, an honorable Companion, and one of the twelve heads. He witnessed Al-Aqaba with seventy of the Ansar, witnessed the Battle of Badr and was killed at the day of Uhud in 3 A.H. Az-Zirikli, Al-A’lam, 4/111.

(2) In his book, Ibn Hisham mentions in the context of Prophet Muhammad’s going forth to Uhud that ‘Abdullah ibn Ubayy ibn Salul opposed going out of Medina to fight; yet, Messenger Muhammad considered the stance of the young people. So, when they were between Medina and Uhud, ‘Abdullah ibn Ubayy ibn Salul turned back with a third of the people, saying, ‘He obeyed them and disobeyed me; we do not know why we kill ourselves here, O people.’ Then, he turned back with those who followed him among his tribe and the hypocrites. Abdullah ibn ‘Amr ibn Haram of Bani Salma said, ‘O people, remember Allah. Do not disappoint your people and your Prophet when he is about to fight the enemy. They said: If we had known that you would fight, we would not have left you; though we do not think there will be fighting. He said, ‘When they insisted and refused to stay in the field, he said, ‘May Allah keep you away, enemies of Allah, Allah will suffice His Prophet.’ This is also narrated by At-Tabari. See Ibn Hisham, As-Sira An-Nabawiyya, 2/64; At-Tabari, Jame‘ Al-Bayan, 8236.

Some of the Helpers saw Ibn Ubayy at the door of the mosque and asked him, ‘Woe to you! What happened?’ He said, ‘I stood to strengthen his position so some of his Companions jumped at me, pulling me and condemning me as if I did a grave mistake when I stood to promote his cause.’ They said, ‘Woe to you! Return and the Messenger of Allah will ask Allah to forgive you.’ He said, ‘By Allah, I do not want him to ask Allah to forgive me.’ That is why Allah the Almighty says: ‘…when they are told, “Come, so that the Messenger of Allah may ask forgiveness for you,” and you see them walking away arrogantly.’ (al-Munafiqun: 5)

The Noble Quran draws for us a picture for evading from the truth and arguing, saying: ‘They turn their heads away in disdain…’ (al-Munafiqun: 5). Evading from the Truth always begins with turning the head, then the side and finally giving the back. All these observances are used to avoid arguing when it fails to convince.

Similarly, Allah the Almighty says: ‘Turning away haughtily that he may lead (others) astray from the way of Allah; for him is disgrace in this world, and on the day of resurrection We will make him taste the punishment of burning.’ (al-Hajj: 9) So, when someone disputes about Allah the Almighty without knowledge, guidance or illuminating books, s/he tends to turn his/her side and head because s/he does not like your speech not because your speech is false, but rather, because s/he is groundless. S/He does not have evidence to defend his/her point, so s/he tends to resort to this body movement.

The Helpers invited Ubay to elevate his lower rank, so Allah the Almighty says: ‘…when they are told, “Come”...’ (al-Munafiqun: 5). The Arabic word for ‘come’ can also mean to rise from a low position, for the religion of Islam came to prevent us from falling. Similarly, Allah the Almighty says: ‘And when it is said to them, “Come to what Allah has revealed and to the Messenger”...’ (al-Ma‘ida: 104). Answering this invitation elevates your low position to reach the level of belief in Allah the Almighty and receiving His Guidance so that you do not follow your own desires, stances or laws. They told Ibn Ubayy, ‘Come and the Messenger of Allah will ask Allah to forgive you.’ Needless to say, mercy and the wiping out of sins are granted for whom Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him asks Allah the Almighty for forgiveness.

In this connection, Allah the Almighty says: ‘And We did not send any Messenger but that he should be obeyed by Allah’s permission; and had they, when they were unjust to themselves, come to you and asked forgiveness of Allah and the Messenger had (also) asked forgiveness for them, they would have found Allah Oft-returning (to mercy), Merciful.’ (an-Nisa’: 64) It is necessary for those who wrong themselves by their sins, violate the laws of Allah the Almighty and cause harm to the Muslims to repent in the first place. Then, they should ask Allah the Almighty for forgiveness and please Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him so that he asks forgiveness for them.

However, the hypocrites were passive, adhered to the earth and things were reversed for them. When they were called to go to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to ask forgiveness for them, their response was: ‘They turn their heads away in disdain…and you see them walking away arrogantly.’ (al-Munafiqun: 5) Similarly, Allah the Almighty says: ‘And when it is said to them: Come to what Allah has revealed and to the Messenger you will see the hypocrites turning away from you with (utter) aversion.’ (an-Nisa’: 61) This means that they ignore this call. Aversion, here, suggests ignoring and averting from following the right course. As for averting from the Way of Allah the Almighty it comprises averting and preventing others from following it. The one who averts others from the Way of Allah commits a greater sin since not only did s/he avert by himself/herself from it but averted others as well.

The one who averts from the right course does so in haughtiness; s/he is arrogant and considers himself/herself higher than following the right and responding to the Call. Ibn Ubayy, for instance, and some leaders of the hypocrites saw themselves higher than Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. So, they refused to come to him to ask forgiveness for them. Moreover, they turned their heads away, averted and showed their arrogance. They acted as great persons without having the qualities of greatness. The qualities of greatness are not inherent in anyone of us and they may be taken away from those who are endowed with them. So, it becomes clear that each one of us needs to be humble to his/her Creator and to observe his/her Lord.

When the hypocrite is reminded of the verses of Allah the Almighty and about Messenger Muhammad: ‘And when Our communications are recited to him, he turns back proudly, as if he had not heard them, as though in his ears were a heaviness, therefore announce to him a painful chastisement.' (Luqman: 7) Thus, Ibn Ubay turned away in arrogance and considered himself greater than what he is called to do. His arrogance is pointless since the arrogant is always forgetful of Allah the Almighty because s/he looks at himself/herself in comparison to people and forgets Allah the Almighty. If he had recalled the Greatness and Mightiness of Allah the Almighty he would have been ashamed to be arrogant. Pride implies greatness and mightiness and this can only be attributed to Allah the Almighty. His Pride is an honour for us; it prevents us from becoming servants for anyone but Him.

That arrogant one refused to listen to the verses: '…as though in his ears were a heaviness...' (Luqman: 7). The Helpers said to Ibn Ubayy, 'Woe to you! Return and the Messenger of Allah will ask Allah to forgive you.' He said, 'By Allah, I do not want him to ask forgiveness for me.' This was due to his envy and malice which filled his heart with dark depths of hypocrisy, arrogance and plotting against the Muslims: '…out of envy from themselves...' (al-Baqara: 109). Allah the Almighty also says: 'Or do they envy the people for what Allah has given them of His grace?' (an-Nisa': 54) They envy Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him since Allah the Almighty has chosen him and selected him to bear the Message. Envy is only generated from a malevolent heart revolting against the destiny of Allah the Almighty. Notably, envy occurs when someone desires that Allah's Favour on others comes to an end. This amounts to a rejection of Allah's Predestination for people. Thus, Ibn Ubay's heart was burning with malice. In fact, Allah the Almighty will not forgive them, for He the Almighty then says:

سَوَآءٌ عَلَيْهِمْ أَسْتَغْفَرْتَ لَهُمْ أَمْ لَمْ تَسْتَغْفِرْ لَهُمْ لَن يَغْفِرَ
ٱللَّهُ لَهُمْ ۚ إِنَّ ٱللَّهَ لَا يَهْدِى ٱلْقَوْمَ ٱلْفَٰسِقِينَ ﴿٦﴾

It makes no difference whether you ask forgiveness for them or not, God will not forgive them: God does not guide such treacherous people [6] (The Quran, al-Munafiqun: 6)

Allah the Almighty says in another verse: 'Ask forgiveness for them or do not ask forgiveness for them; even if you ask forgiveness for them seventy times, Allah will not forgive them; this is because they disbelieve in Allah and His Messenger, and Allah does not guide the transgressing people.' (at-Tawba: 80) There are two issues here: Firstly, the Forgiveness of Allah the Almighty; and secondly, the flattery of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to 'Abdullah Ibn 'Abdullah ibn Ubay, a believing son to a hypocrite father. Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him knows that Allah the Almighty will never forgive the hypocrites.

There is asking for forgiveness which results in Allah's Forgiveness; yet, in the case of Ibn Ubay, it is meant to please 'Abdullah ibn 'Abdullah ibn Ubay. Further, the one who committed a sin and desires to repent and ask for forgiveness must ask Forgiveness of Allah the Almighty by himself in the first place, then ask Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to ask Allah the Almighty to forgive him.

Because he did not desire forgiveness, Ibn Ubay, head of the hypocrites, did not know that way of asking forgiveness. Therefore, he should have come humbly to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in order that he asks forgiveness for him, not to look for someone else to ask him for that on his behalf. Then, Allah the Almighty illustrates the reason for not forgiving them, whether Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him asked forgiveness for them or not, saying: '…this is because they disbelieve in Allah and His Messenger, and Allah does not guide the transgressing people.' (at-Tawba: 80) In the verse in question, He the Almighty says, '…Allah does not guide such defiantly disobedient people.' (at-Tawba: 80)

Allah the Almighty deprived three types of people of His Guidance and Support. They include the disbelievers: '…and Allah does not guide the disbelieving people;' (at-Tawba: 37) the unjust people: '…and Allah does not guide the unjust people…;' (at-Tawba: 19) and the defiantly disobedient people '…and Allah does not guide the defiantly disobedient people.' (at-Tawba: 24)

Further, has Allah the Almighty prevented His Guidance first? Or have they committed sins which made them unworthy of His Guidance? How could a human being defy Allah the Almighty with disbelief and refuse to listen to His verses and His Messenger? They began with disbelief, wrongdoing or disobedience, so Allah the Almighty did not guide them. Some people say, 'Guidance comes from Allah; if He had guided me, I would not have killed, stolen, or taken a bribe.' However, we say, 'This is a misunderstanding of the matter. Let us observe the Noble Quran. With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…and Allah does not guide...' (at-Tawba: 80), it negates that the wrongdoer, the disobedient and the disbeliever deserve Guidance; since Allah the Almighty does not guide someone who gave precedence to disbelief, wrongdoing, or disobedience. It is as if the disbeliever, the wrongdoer or the disobedient are the ones who prevent Guidance from themselves.

If the human being gives priority to belief, s/he will be included in the Guidance of Allah the Almighty. It is as if being excluded from the Guidance of Allah is an act controlled and chosen by the human being. S/he can choose the way of error and leave the way of Guidance. Therefore, Allah the Almighty does not guide him/her because He the Almighty only guides the believer. On the other hand, if the human being chooses the way of Guidance, Allah the Almighty will grant him/her more Guidance. This is because s/he believes in Allah the Almighty chooses the way of Guidance and accepts the religion of Allah. Thus, Allah the Almighty guides the one who listens to the Quran with the spirit of belief, is certain that s/he has a Lord and believes in Him.

Allah the Almighty clarifies that He does not guide the disbelievers, the wrongdoers and the disobedient people, for He guides the believers, the righteous and obedient people. Actually, He, guides who gives priority to the Way of Guidance and submits to Faith, a fact which is clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And Allah increases in guidance those who go aright…' (Maryam: 76) and also His saying: '…and (as for) those who follow the right direction, He increases them in guidance and gives them their guarding (against evil).' (Muhammad: 17) Allah the Almighty clarifies for us in advance who deserves His Guidance and who does not so that you can choose your way. You can either believe and receive His Guidance or choose the way of disbelief and wrongdoing – Allah forbid – and so you will be deprived of His Guidance.

It becomes clear therefore that their previous misdeeds lead Allah the Almighty to deprive them of His Guidance. In other words, if someone prefers disbelief and insists on defiance, Allah the Almighty will abandon him/her, increase his/her disbelief and seal his/her heart. He the Almighty says: 'And We will leave them in their transgression, wandering blindly.' (al-An'am: 110) They refused Allah's Guidance, so He the Almighty deprived them of His Support of Guidance. He the Almighty has made the Way of Guidance clear; yet, those people who ignored it deprive themselves of attaining the Guidance of belief.

Then, Allah the Almighty says:

هُمُ ٱلَّذِينَ يَقُولُونَ لَا تُنفِقُوا۟ عَلَىٰ مَنْ عِندَ رَسُولِ ٱللَّهِ حَتَّىٰ يَنفَضُّوا۟ ۗ وَلِلَّهِ
خَزَآئِنُ ٱلسَّمَٰوَٰتِ وَٱلْأَرْضِ وَلَٰكِنَّ ٱلْمُنَٰفِقِينَ لَا يَفْقَهُونَ ﴿٧﴾

They are the ones who say, 'Give nothing to those who follow God's Messenger, until they abandon him', but to God belong the treasures of the heavens and earth, though the hypocrites do not understand this [7]
(The Quran, al-Munafiqun: 7)

The defiance of the hypocrites to Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is limitless. They are the fiercest of enemies because they reveal their Islam while concealing their disbelief, malice and envy for Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and the believers. One of the means they followed to defy him is that they desired to disperse people away from him using all means since their leader wants to be the king of the people of Medina. So, they thought that if they deprived the poor Emigrants of what the Helpers give them, they would disperse from around Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. The hypocrites did not realise that those Emigrants believed in order to please Allah the Almighty and Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him not for worldly life, wealth or getting close to the rich.

The hypocrites wrongly thought that if they did not support those who believed in Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him with their wealth, they would abandon their belief, forgetting that the Emigrant believers left their wealth and country for Allah's sake. If someone left his/her wealth for emigration in the cause of Allah and found no wealth, would s/he disbelieve in Allah? No, because s/he left everything for His Sake. For example, Mus'ab ibn 'Umayr(1), who used to be the spoiled young man of Quraysh and whose mother used to shower him with favours and perfumes, emigrates from Mecca to Medina and wears leather of goats in order to cover his body. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him looked at him saying to his Companions, 'Look to what faith has done to your brother.' The hypocrites think that the believers can substitute a piece of bread with their belief; as if they forgot that who substitutes a piece of bread with his/her belief is the one who upholds a false doctrine. Yet, the one who believes in a right doctrine adheres to it, enjoys its sweetness in his/her inner soul and his/her reward is saved with his/her Lord. 'Ali Ibn Abu Taleb Allah be pleased with him said about him, 'I came to the mosque, then I saw Mus'ab ibn 'Umayr wearing a garment with a fur patch though he was the most spoiled boy in Mecca. When Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saw him, he shed tears for remembering the advantages that Ibn 'Umayr left behind compared to his current state. Then, he said, 'Are you better today or when you had someone offering you some bread and meat?' We said, 'We were better that day when we had enough food and were dedicated to worship.' He said, 'No, you are better today.'(1)

(1) Mus'ab ibn 'Umayr ibn Hashim ibn 'Abd Munaf, a young man from Quraysh, who relates particularly to the family of Bani'Abd Ad-Dar, was one of the first Companions=

You should take into account that the believer enjoys the sweetness of Certainty and Belief when s/he sacrifices everything in the cause of Belief. Yet, those people with false principles do not attract the people to their ideology unless they pay for them in advance, i.e. they buy their followers. Therefore, if you see a principle whose supporters attract people by money, you should know it is a false principle. If it was a right principle, not only

He witnessed the Battle of Badr and held the banner of Islam at the Battle of Uhud. He was killed in the cause of Allah in 3 AH. See Az-Zirikli, Al-A'lam, 7/248.*

(1) In his Musnad, Abu Ya'la Al-Mausili narrates that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Are you better today or when you were offered bread and meat, followed by other treats, moving from one place to another, and meeting the needs of your homes like the Ka'ba?' We said, 'We were better that day when we had enough food and were dedicated to worship.' He said, 'No, you are better today.' In his book, Al-Haythami says, 'At-Tirmidhi narrated some of it. It is narrated by Abu Ya'la through the narration of upright narrators including a unanimous narrator.' Abu Ya'la, Musnad, 502; Al-Haythami, Majma' Az-Zawa'id 10/ 231 would people spend all their wealth on it, but would sacrifice their lives in its cause as well.

Amazingly, when Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him made the covenant in The Pledge of Al-‘Aqabah, Helpers said, ‘If we fulfilled this, what is left for us?’ It is as if they said, ‘You took what you need, what will we get?’ Observe the grandness of belief and the certainty of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him when he said that belief itself is a reward. Did he promise he would give them the kingdom of the earth? Did he promise them that these weak people would be empowered? No, he said, ‘You are promised the Paradise.’(1) Had he said to them, ‘You will have the sovereignty of the worldly life, which actually took place afterwards, the truthfulness of his Prophehood would not have been proven for those whose lives came to an end before the fulfillment of this promise.’ Thus, he told them about the guaranteed reward which the believer enjoys as soon as s/he dies. He said to them, ‘You are promised the Paradise.’

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, while being surrounded by a group of his Companions, ‘Come along and give me the pledge of allegiance that you will not worship anything besides Allah, will not steal, will not commit illegal sexual intercourse, will not kill your children, will not utter slander invented by yourself, and will not disobey me if I order you to do something good. Whoever among you will respect and fulfil this pledge, will be rewarded by Allah. And if one of you commits any of these sins and is punished in this world, then that will be his expiation for it, and if one of you commits any of these sins and Allah screens his sin, then his matter will rest with Allah: If He will, He will punish him and if He will, He will excuse him.'(1)

(1) In their books, Abu Nu‘aym and As-Suhayli relate that Mahmoud ibn Labid said, ‘When people met for the pledge of allegiance to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him Al-‘Abbas ibn ‘Ubada ibn Nadlah Al-Ansari then one of Bani Salem ibn ‘Awf said, ‘O people of Khazraj, do you know why you pledge that man?’ They said, ‘Yes.’ He said, ‘You pledge him to fight; if you see that destroying your wealth is a disaster and that if your honourable people are killed, you will forsake him, then do not pledge allegiance to him, for if you did so, it would be shame on you in the worldly life and the Hereafter. But if you will fulfil what you pledge at the expense of the destruction of your wealth and the killing of the honourable people, what are we going to get, Prophet Muhammad?’ He said, ‘The Paradise.’ They said, ‘Extend your hand.’ When he did so, they pledged him. See Abu Nu‘yam Al-Asfahani, Ma‘rifat As-Sahaba; and As-Suhaili, Ar-Rawd Al-Anuf, 2/271.

He did not tempt them saying they will have power; neither did he say to them, 'You will live luxuriously and the worldly life will be yours.' Instead, he said at the very beginning of the pledge of allegiance, 'You are promised the Paradise.' He orders them not to long for anything except the Paradise. No wonder, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him loves the people of the Ansar. During the Battle of Hunayn, the emigrants were given some of the gains, while the Ansar were given nothing. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him regarded them with a faithful hint saying, 'O people of the Ansar, is it not pleasing for you that people go with goats and camels and you return to your positions with the Messenger of Allah? By Him in Whose Hand is the soul of Muhammad, but for the emigration, I would have been one of the Ansar; and if the people took their way in a valley, I would take the Ansar's valley. May Allah extend His Mercy upon the Ansar, the sons of the Ansar and the sons of the Ansar!'(2) The people cried until their beards became wet with tears saying, 'We are pleased with the Messenger of Allah as our share and destiny.' What sublime Faith is this!

The hypocrites said to the Ansar, 'Do not spend your wealth on those who are with Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him until they disband.' However, the believers did not disband. They left the abundance and wealth in Mecca and emigrated from Mecca to Medina; they did not come for doubtful, limited, little bliss as they are satisfied with what they are promised of certain, vast, everlasting bliss. Through Belief, they knew that the worldly bliss is either missed when you die, or when it changes; yet, the bliss of the Hereafter is limitless: It never leaves you and you never miss it.

The hypocrites said to the Helpers, the wealthy people in Medina: ‘Give nothing to those who follow Allah’s Messenger until they abandon him.’ (al-Munafiqun: 7) They wanted to sever the brotherhood ties between the Emigrants and the Helpers even though they described Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him as: ‘the Messenger of Allah’ (al-Munafiqun: 7). Ironically, while they urge the wealthy people of Medina to let the Emigrants starve and thus they disband away from him, they say about him: ‘the Messenger of Allah’ (al-Munafiqun: 7). So, did they believe in that? Or is it the overwhelming of the truth? Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was subject to their ridicule and mockery. The Quran narrates their saying to him: ‘O you upon whom the message has been sent down, indeed you are mad.’ (al-Hijr: 6) With regard to their saying: ‘…upon whom the message has been sent down,’ (al-Hijr: 6) it does not imply that they believe in the Message, as they mock and ridicule him. Their saying: ‘the Messenger of Allah’ (al-Munafiqun: 7) does not result from their belief in him. Instead, either they are unaware of their untrue practices or they are ridiculing and mocking him. For example, if you were in a gathering and you saw someone pretending to have knowledge, you would say, ‘Ask that scholar.’ In another verse, Allah the Almighty says about their ridicule at Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him: ‘And those who disbelieve would almost smite you with their eyes when they hear the reminder, and they say: Most surely he is mad…’ (al-Qalam: 51).

Surprisingly, the hypocrites admit and declare that Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is the Messenger of Allah; however, they deny that with their deeds and behaviours, causing confusion in thinking and statement. Though they know that he is the Messenger of Allah, they prevent people from spending on the poor Emigrants. Even their defiance is characterised with stupidity. They acknowledge the Quran, and they are convinced with it; yet, what makes them spiteful is that it is revealed to Messenger Muhammad. Then, we see them contradicting themselves regarding this as well when they admit, but unwary, that Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is the Messenger of Allah, saying: ‘Give nothing to those who follow Allah’s Messenger, until they abandon him.’ (al-Munafiqun: 7) If they acknowledge that he is the Messenger of Allah, why do they oppose him? Indeed, their natural disposition contradicts them so that they utter the truth unwarily.

When they say: ‘Give nothing...’ (al-Munafiqun: 7) not only do they withhold, but they urge people to be stingy as well. Allah the Almighty says: ‘Those who are niggardly and bid people to be niggardly and hide what Allah has given them out of His grace; and We have prepared for the unbelievers a disgraceful chastisement.’ (an-Nisa’: 37) The stingy person can hardly give; s/he does not welcome giving out any of his/her own wealth and finds difficulty in giving others. Even though, s/he might be stingy on himself/herself. The poet(1) draws a picture of a miser called ‘Isa and wants to condemn him because he is so miserly. He is depicted as stingy with people as well as with himself regarding what would not harm if it was done and what would not benefit if it was prevented. Naturally, since he is stingy on himself, then it is expected that he is stingy on others:

‘Isa is stingy on himself, though mortal and approaches death

Were it possible, out of one hole(2), he would take his breath

He is so stingy that he wishes to breathe out of one nostril in order not to use the other nostril. Allah the Almighty says about stingy people: ‘And let not those deem, who are niggardly in giving away that which Allah has granted them out of His grace, that it is good for them; nay, it is worse for them; they shall have that whereof they were niggardly made to cleave to their necks on the resurrection day; and Allah’s is the heritage of the heavens and the earth; and Allah is aware of what you do.’ (Al-‘Imran: 180) From the beginning of emigration, they witnessed Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him promoting the brotherhood relations between the Emigrants and the Helpers.

(1) This poet is Ibn Ar-Rumi Ali Bin Al-‘Abbas ibn Jarir Abu Al-Hasan who was born in Baghdad in 221 A.H., a major poet like Bash-shar and Al-Mutanabbi. Al-Mizribani said about him, ‘Anyone praised by him whether a superior or a subordinate is satirised later.’ He has a collection of poems in three volumes. In 283 AH, he was poisoned and died at the age of 62 in Baghdad. See Az-Zirikli, Al-A‘lam, 4/ 297.

(2) In his book, Al-Baghdadi relates that ‘Ali ibn Al-‘Abbas said, ‘Al-Buhturi was sitting with me when Ibn ‘Isa Al-Mansour came and greeted us. He said to him, ‘Who is this?’ I said, ‘This is ‘Isa ibn Al-Mansour whom Ibn Ar-Rumi says about his father and mentioned two lines of poetry.’ He said, ‘That is among the thoughts of the demons not the thoughts of humans.’ Then he stood up and left. This is also narrated by Abu Hilal Al-‘Askari and Ibn Hamdun. See Al-Baghdadi, Tarikh Baghdad, 12/35; Abu Hilal Al-‘Askari, As-Sina‘tain, 1/34; and Ibn Hamdun, At-Tadhkira Al-Hamdouniya, 1/328.

During that time, the Muslims spent nights without food and so the Jews and hypocrites ridiculed their state, saying, ‘The hand of Allah is chained and cannot assist Muhammad and his companions.’

Furthermore, the hypocrites were criticising those who give charity among the believers. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: ‘They who taunt those of the faithful who give their alms freely, and those who give to the extent of their earnings and scoff at them; Allah will pay them back their scoffing, and they shall have a painful chastisement...’ (Al-‘Imran: 181). Here, is the story of this verse: ‘Abd Ar-Rahman ibn ‘Awf emigrated from Mecca to Medina, leaving his wealth and properties in Mecca. Meanwhile, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him has been establishing brotherhood bonds between the Emigrants and the Helpers, so he urged each one of the Helpers to share his wealth with a man from the Emigrants. When it was the turn of ‘Abd Ar-Rahman Ibn ‘Awf, his brother from the Helpers said to him, ‘You will share my wealth with you’ He said, ‘May Allah bless your wealth; show me where the market is.’ He went to the market and Allah the Almighty blessed his trade as he has been dividing his profits by half: one for charity and the other for his family.(1)

One day, ‘Abd Ar-Rahman ibn ‘Awf came to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying, ‘O Messenger of Allah, I earned 8,000 dirhams. I spent four of them for Allah’s sake and kept four for my family.’ Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘May Allah bless what you gave and what you kept.(2) When the hypocrites knew about what ‘Abd Ar-Rahman ibn ‘Awf had done, they said, ‘Abd Ar-Rahman has given alms to show off and gain reputation.’ However, do people have knowledge about showing off or does Allah alone have knowledge about it?

(1) Anas ibn Malik narrated that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him established brotherhood bonds between ‘Abd Ar-Rahman ibn ‘Awf and Sa‘d ibn Ar-Rabi’ Al-Ansari who offered to share his family and wealth. ‘Abd Ar-Rahman said, ‘May Allah bless you in your family and your wealth; show me the market.’ He went to the market and gained some dried buttermilk and butter. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saw him some days later scented with yellowish perfume. See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no.3937; Al-Bazar, Musnad, Hadith no. 6548, 6541; and Abu Ya‘la, Musnad, Hadith no. 3836.

(2) It is narrated that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said to him, ‘May Allah bless what you lent and what you kept.’ So, Allah blessed his wealth very much. See Ibn 'Adel, Al-Lubab, 10/157; Al-Alusy, Ruh Al-Ma‘any, 2/33; Az-Zuhaili, At-Tafsir Al-Wasit, 1/154; and Al-Khazin, Lubab At-Ta’wil, 2/389.

Likewise, ‘Asim ibn ‘Uday,(1) owner of a garden which yielded many fruits, contributed to charities with 100 loads of dates. The hypocrites said, ‘By Allah, ‘Asim has done so to show off.’ Moreover, a man called Abu Uqail Al-Ansari came to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying: ‘O Messenger of Allah, I spent the night working and my wages were two measures of dates; I kept one measure for my family and I would like to contribute to the charities.’ The hypocrites said, ‘Allah and his Messenger do not need your measure, Abu 'Uqail.’(2) Thus, the hypocrites criticised ‘Abd Ar-Rahman ibn ‘Awf who donated much saying, ‘This is showing off;’ attacked ‘Asim ibn ‘Uday, saying, ‘He shows off by donating half of the fruits of his garden;’ and ridiculed Aba Uqail, though he had only a measure to donate, saying, ‘Allah and his Messenger do not need your dates.’ They mocked who gave much and ridiculed who gave little. They should have praised the contributors instead of ridiculing them since each one donated according to his ability; they gave out of the Bounty of Allah the Almighty whether it is much or little.

Among those who were with Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him are some destitute people, people of As-Suffa(3) about whom Allah the Almighty says: ‘Alms are for the poor who are confined in the way of

(1) ‘Asim ibn ‘Udayy ibn Al-Jadd Al-Balwy Al-‘Ajlany, ally of the Helpers, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him appointed him over Al-‘Alia in Medina. He lived a long life (he died in 45 AH at the age of 120). In his Tafsir, As-Suyuti relates that ‘Asim ibn ‘Udayy said, ‘O Messenger of Allah, I have seventy measures of dates.’ The hypocrites considered it exorbitant, saying: ‘He donated to show off and gain reputation.’ See Az-Zirikli, Al-A‘lam, 3/ 248; and As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur 7/46.

(2) In his Tafsir, Muqatil ibn Sulayman says, ‘Abu 'Uqail ibn Qays Al-Ansari from Bani ‘Amr got a measure of dates and put it into the charity saying, ‘O Messenger of Allah, I spent the night working and my wages were two measures of dates; I lent one measure for my Lord and left one for my family and I would like to contribute in the charities.’ In his Tafsir, Ibn Jarir At-Tabari relates that the hypocrites said, ‘Allah and his Messenger do not need your measure, Abu 'Uqail.’ See At-Tabari, Jame‘ Al-Bayan, 14/387; Muqatil ibn Sulaiman, Tafsir Muqatil ibn Sulaiman, 2/62.

(3) People of As-Suffa are the poor people among the Emigrants who had no home to reside in; they lodged at the shaded corners of the Mosque of Medina. ‘As-Suffa’ is the shaded corner of the mosque which the poor use as a refuge. See Ibn Mandhur, Lisan Al-‘Arab, root: Safaf.

Allah— they cannot go about in the land…' (al-Baqara: 173). Their limited charity was due to reasons beyond their will or their dedication to the cause of Allah. The Helpers used to bring dates, leave it in its bunches and hang them in tight robes to the pillars of the mosque so that those poor people, including those who were secluded for worship and were subject to rumors and rejection, could eat. The hypocrites used to criticise them, saying, 'Why do not they work? Why do not they labour like all people?'

Moreover, the hypocrites went to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying, 'We want you to regard us and leave those destitute people.' So Allah the Almighty revealed His saying: 'And withhold yourself with those who call on their Lord morning and evening desiring His goodwill, and let not your eyes pass from them, desiring the beauties of this world's life; and do not follow him whose heart We have made unmindful to Our remembrance, and he follows his low desires and his case is one in which due bounds are exceeded.' (al-Kahf: 28) Allah the Almighty has ordered Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to regard them saying: '…and let not your eyes pass from them…' (al-Kahf: 28). This means that he should focus on them and not abandon them for other people of the worldly life; since his look is a supply for these poor believers. Then, Allah the Almighty says: '….and do not follow him whose heart We have made unmindful to Our remembrance, and he follows his low desires and his case is one in which due bounds are exceeded.' (al-Kahf: 28) This is because only the one who is heedless of the Remembrance of Allah orders you to ignore these poor people for the company of people of the worldly life; yet, the ones whose hearts are concerned with His Remembrance and tasted the sweetness of Belief will not issue such an order.

Then, Allah the Almighty says: '…but to Allah belong the treasures of the heavens and earth…' (al-Munafiqun: 7). This is a reply to the hypocrites who think they can give or deprive those with Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Actually, Allah the Almighty is the Ever-Affluent; He does not seek the bounties we have because they are His Bounties in the first place and He does not need our wealth because He owns the treasures of the heavens and the earth. Treasure includes all kinds of precious things that you save in order to be used at the time of need.

Allah the Almighty owns all the treasures of the earth, a fact which is clear in His saying: 'And the earth— We have spread it forth and made in it firm mountains and caused to grow in it of every suitable thing. And We have made in it means of subsistence for you and for him for whom you are not the suppliers. And there is not a thing but with Us are the treasures of it, and We do not send it down but in a known measure.' (al-Hijr: 19-21) The treasures of Allah the Almighty are either buried or highly secured and can only be bestowed by Him to the people at the appropriate time. When He the Almighty addresses the hypocrites, saying: '…but to Allah belong the treasures of the heavens and earth…' (al-Munafiqun: 7) it means that if you consider those with Messenger Muhammad destitute people, Allah the Almighty Who owns all the treasures of the earth, is able to make them wealthy, possessing the countries and the earth.

Indeed, this is exactly what happened, as it has been a prophecy and good news to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. An example for this is Suraqah ibn Malik,(1) who pursued Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in the emigration journey in order to win the prize of Quraysh. After he repented and returned to the right course, the Companions were wondering about his thin arms and mocking them with their descriptions. Thus, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him replied, 'How do you find them in the bracelets of Kisra? (2) Later on, the Muslims control the dominion of Kisra and the bracelets are allocated to Suraqah, who wears them on his hands before people.

Allah the Almighty then says: '…though the hypocrites do not understand this...' (al-Munafiqun: 7) because: 'They know what is apparent of the worldly life...' (ar-Rum: 7). They know artificial issues without delving into the valuable matters. They have no knowledge about the realities, the essence, and the outcome of things and the changing state of the universe. Instead, they know apparent, superficial sciences; so they do not understand. They are similar to the people of Qarun, about whom Allah the Almighty says: ‘So he went forth to his people in his finery. Those who desire this world’s life said: O would that we had the like of what Qarun is given; most surely he is possessed of mighty good fortune.’ (al-Qasas: 79) They were dazzled at the superficiality of his adornment since they look at issues according to their measure in the worldly life. Like the hypocrites, they consider the destinies of people by the extent of their wealth, fame and power. They admire the worldly life with its pleasures and adornments, unlike people of knowledge who consider issues with a different vision. Allah the Almighty relates that they said: ‘And those who were given the knowledge said: Woe to you! Allah’s reward is better for him who believes and does good, and none is made to receive this except the patient.’ (al-Qasas: 80) They are unaware of the fact that the adornment is a worldly aspect which does not imply the outcome of those who oppress, spoil and rejoice at his/her adornment and wealth. That is why Allah the Almighty then says: ‘Thus We made the earth to swallow up him and his abode...’ (al-Qasas: 81). The swallowing involved him and his home, which includes his treasures, depositories and all his possessions.

(1) He is Suraqah ibn Malik ibn Ja'sham Al-Madlajy Al-Kanany, Abu Sufian. He narrated 19 Hadiths mentioned in Hadith collections. During the period before Islam, Abu Sufyan asked him to trace the Messenger of Allah when he went to the cave with Abu Bakr. He became Muslim after the Battle of Ta'if in 8 AH and died in 24 A.H. See Az-Zirikli, Al-A'lam, 3/80.

(2) See Al-Bayhaqi, As-Sunnan Al-Kubra, Hadith no.13414; Ibn Al-Athir Asad Al-Ghaba, 1/ 422; As-Safady in Al-Wafy Bilwafyat, 5/ 37; and Adh-Dhahabi, Tarikh Al-Islam, 1/377.

The hypocrites do not understand that those with Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him would not disband if the Helpers did not spend on them or aid them, for they did not gather around him seeking the worldly life, but they sought to obey and follow him.

Allah the Almighty then says:

يَقُولُونَ لَئِن رَّجَعۡنَآ إِلَى ٱلۡمَدِينَةِ لَيُخۡرِجَنَّ ٱلۡأَعَزُّ مِنۡهَا ٱلۡأَذَلَّۚ وَلِلَّهِ ٱلۡعِزَّةُ
وَلِرَسُولِهِۦ وَلِلۡمُؤۡمِنِينَ وَلَٰكِنَّ ٱلۡمُنَٰفِقِينَ لَا يَعۡلَمُونَ ﴿٨﴾

They say, ‘Once we return to Medina the powerful will drive out the weak,’ but power belongs to God, to His Messenger, and to the believers, though the hypocrites do not know this [8] (The Quran, al-Munafiqun: 8)

The hypocrites, especially their leader Ibn Ubay ibn Salul, were constantly abusing Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Here, they say: ‘Once we return to Medina the powerful will drive out the weak.’ (al-Munafiqun: 8) They mean that they are the powerful and honoured, while the believers are weak and humble. Allah the Almighty partly agrees with them, ‘Yes, the powerful will expel the weak’; yet, He the Almighty wants to indicate who is the powerful and who is the weak, so He says: ‘…but power belongs to Allah, to His Messenger, and to the believers…’ (al-Munafiqun: 8). This is called a positive saying, that is, to agree with the speaker who means evil by his/her words; yet, you reverse the meaning of the speaker and direct it towards goodness. Here, it is meant to increase the humiliation of the speaker; you make him/her think you agree with him/her, filling him/her with joy and delight, but then you reverse what s/he said so s/he feels humiliation. It is exactly like when the guard of a prison agrees to bring a cup of water to a thirsty prisoner who begs for a cup of water, saying, ‘I will bring you a cup of water.’ Then, he comes back with a cup full of cold water. The prisoner rejoices thinking he will get what he longs for. Though, as soon as the guard brings the cup closer to the mouth of the prisoner, he spills the water on the ground. Thus, if the guard refused to bring the water from the beginning, the prisoner would not suffer more humiliation.

Another example of this is the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘And there are some of them who molest the Prophet and say: He is one who believes everything that he hears; say: A hearer of good for you (who) believes in Allah and believes the faithful and a mercy for those of you who believe; and (as for) those who molest the Messenger of Allah, they shall have a painful punishment.’ (at-Tawba: 61) They mean to insult and abuse Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him accusing him of not examining the speech transferred to him and believing all what is said to him. Allah the Almighty agrees with them that he peace and blessings be upon him believes everything he hears; however, He replies with the contrary of their meaning, saying: ‘…A hearer of good for you…’ (at-Tawba: 61). He is a hearer of goodness because he listened to the last Revelation coming from the Heavens to guide the people of the earth and because he has brought goodness for all humanity. Yet, this does not suggest the intended meaning of the hypocrites. He may hear their insults, then listen to their excuse and forgive them.

When Ibn Ubayy said, ‘the powerful,’ he meant the hypocrites; and when he said ‘weak,’ he meant the Muslims of the Emigrants and the Helpers. Allah the Almighty approved his saying that the powerful will expel the weak, saying: ‘They say, “Once we return to Medina the powerful will drive out the weak,” but power belongs to Allah, to His Messenger, and to the believers, though the hypocrites do not know this.’ (al-Munafiqun: 8) The hypocrites will leave Medina, while the believers will stay powerful in it; however, why does Allah the Almighty say: ‘…but power belongs to Allah, to His Messenger, and to the believers...’ (al-Munafiqun: 8)? Allah the Almighty wants to indicate that the power of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and that of the believers is derived from His Power. He the Almighty says in another verse: ‘…surely might is wholly Allah’s…’ (Yunus: 65). This means that Power in all forms belong to Allah the Almighty. His Power accompanies His Wisdom, Mighty, Forbearance, Anger and Revenge, for He is All-Wise, All-Mighty, All-Forbearing, the Avenger and the Omnipotent. All other forms of Power belong to Him. If this is the reality, then the hypocrites are the weak and they are the ones who will be expelled.

The reason for the revelation of this verse is narrated by Jabir ibn ‘Abdullah who said, ‘We were with Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in the Battle of Banu Al-Mustaliq(1) when a man from the Emigrants kicked a man from the Helpers. When he heard this, he said: ‘Leave that, for it is disgusting.’ ‘Abdullah ibn Ubayy ibn Salul heard that and said, ‘Did they really do that? By Allah, if we return to Medina indeed the powerful will expel therefrom the weak.’ Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him knew about that, so ‘Umar said, ‘Allow me to cut off the head of this hypocrite, O Messenger of Allah.’ He said, ‘Leave him. I do not want the people to say that Muhammad kills his Companions.’(2) So his son ‘Abdullah ibn ‘Abdullah said: ‘By Allah! You shall not return until you admit that you are the mean and that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is the honourable.’ So he did so.(1)

(1) The Battle of Banu Al-Mustaliq is the ninth battle among the nineteen battles of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him according to Al-Bukhari. It was before the Battle of Al-Hudaybiyya. Notably, Banu Al-Mustaliq were allies for Quraysh from Al-Ahabish, a tribe from Khuza’a. The name of Al-Mustaliq: Judhaima ibn Sa‘d.

(2) In his book, Al-Bukhari narrates that Jabir ibn ‘Abdullah said, ‘We were along with Allah's Messenger in an expedition that a person from amongst the emigrants struck at the back of a person from the Ansar. The Helper said, ‘O Helpers!’ And the Emigrant said, ‘O Emigrants!’ Thereupon Allah's Messenger said, ‘What are these proclamations of=

This incident shows that the hypocrites play a negative role in the society, seize any opportunity to divide the Muslims and arouse the spirit of tribalism among the Muslims. The incident that took place between an Emigrant and a Helper might have taken place in any time and any place; however, ‘Abdullah ibn Ubayy ibn Salul wanted to seize the opportunity to quench the malice in his heart towards Messenger Muhammad, Islam and the Muslims.

The Jews were typically acting like them. When Islam reached Medina, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him established brotherhood bonds and put boundaries between Al-Aws and Al-Khazraj. Due to these brotherhood bonds, the scientific position of the Jews deteriorated since Islam came with a religious Law and a Book which is a guardian over the previous Books. Besides, the Jews lost their military position, as they witnessed a minority of believers defeating the disbelievers at the Battle of Badr. Moreover, the Jews lost all their authority in Medina; so they desired to revive their powers of the Pre-Islam period. They said, ‘Let us fuel the hostilities and awaken the animosity between Al-Aws and the Al-Khazraj.’ Upon witnessing the light of belief adorning the faces of Al-Aws and Al-Khazraj people, the harmony of belief uniting them, affection and smiles prevailing among them,

= the Days of Ignorance?’ They said. ‘Allah's Messenger, a person from the emigrants struck at the back of a Helper, whereupon he said, ‘It is something disgusting.’ ‘Abdullah ibn Ubayy heard it and said, ‘They have indeed done it. By Allah, when we would return to Medina the respectable amongst them (The Helpers) would turn away the mean (the Emigrants).’ Thereupon ‘Umar said, ‘Permit me so that I should strike the neck of this hypocrite.’ But he (the Prophet) said, ‘Leave him, the people may not say that Muhammad kills his Companions.’ See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 4905.

(1) In his Tafsir, As-Suyuti narrates this Hadith and ascribes it to Sa‘id ibn Mansour, Al-Bukhari, Muslim, At-Tirmidhi, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Mardawayh, Al-Bayhaqi on the authority of Jabir ibn ‘Abdullah. At-Tirmidhi added, ‘So his son ‘Abdullah ibn ‘Abdullah said, ‘By Allah! You shall not return until you admit that you are the mean and that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is the honourable.’ So, he did so. He said it is an authentic, good Hadith. See As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur, 14/ 503; At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 3631.

a man called Sha's ibn Qays[1] was provoked. He said, 'By Allah! We must return the old days and bring back their grudge and animosity; we cannot settle down when they are united.'[2] So, he sent a Jewish boy to sit in a gathering between the people of Al-Aws and the Al-Khazraj. Then the boy digressed talking about a day called 'Ba'ath', a day when Al-Aws tribe defeated the Al-Khazraj tribe in the pre-Islamic era. The boy began elaborating on the events of that day and recalled its poetry until he provoked the anger of the people of Al-Aws and the Al-Khazraj. This resulted in fighting, showing off, awakening hatred and calling for war.

Thus, the plot succeeded, so when Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him knew about it, he went with his companions to the gathering of Al-Aws and the Al-Khazraj to find that they were highly provoked (fighting, hating each other and carrying their swords). He said, 'The call of pre-Islamic pride while I am still among you!'[3] This means that they should have been ashamed of themselves because Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is sitting with them. He then added, 'Allah has blessed you with Islam,

(1) Sha's ibn Qays belonged to the Jews of Bani Qaynuqa'. He was a fierce disbeliever and enemy to the Muslims, and he was among those who said, 'The Hand of Allah is chained.' He was blind.

(2) In his Tafsir, At-Tabari relates that Zayd ibn Aslam said, 'Sha's ibn Qays, an old man known with his bold disbelief, intense grudge and deep envy for the Muslims, passed by some companions of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him belonging to Al-Aws and Al-Khazraj, gathering together in a seating he prepared. He was aroused by their gathering, their affection and unity over Islam though they were enemies before it. So he said, 'Bani Qila are gathering in this country. No! By Allah! We cannot live here if they are united.' Therefore, he asked a Jewish young man to go to sit with them, remind them of the day of Ba'ath and elaborate on some of its poetry…' See At-Tabari, Jame' Al-Bayan, 7563; and Ash-Shukani, Fath Al-Qadir, 2/5.

(3) In his Tafsir, As-Suyuti ascribes this narration according to Ibn Ishaq, Ibn Jarir At-Tabari, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abu Hatim, and Abu Ash-Sheikh Al-Asbahani on the authority of Zayd ibn Aslam who said, 'The Messenger of Allah said, "O Muslims! Allah! Allah! The call of pre-Islamic tribalism while I am sitting among you! Allah has guided you to Islam, blessed you with Islam, prevented you from pre-Islamic customs, saved you from disbelief, and brought your hearts together. And now you return to your old state, disbelievers?" Thus, the tribes knew it was a whisper of the devil and plot by an enemy, so they threw their swords, shed their tears and hugged each other.' See As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur, 3/699; At-Tabari, Jame' Al-Bayan, 5/ 628.

prevented you from the days of the pre-Islamic era, and brought your hearts together.' How did the words of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him influence the tribes? They made them drop their weapons, cry, hug each other and leave with the Messenger of Allah. There was no day worse in its beginning and better by its end like that one.

The same foul plot which the Jews used to implement in Medina between Al-Aws and the Al-Khazraj was planned by Ibn Ubayy to increase dissension, division and arguments between the Emigrants and the Helpers. Jabir ibn 'Abdullah Allah be pleased with him narrated, 'We were in a Battle when a man from the Emigrants kicked a man from the Helpers. The Prophet heard this and said, 'Leave that, for it is disgusting;' that is, stop that because it will result in a great evil and dissension. Believers cannot be subject to or provoked by tribalism and pride of the pre-Islamic era. Here, Emigrants kicked a Helper, so the latter said, 'O Helpers!' While the former said 'O Emigrants!' Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him heard this and said, 'It is the evil call of the pre-Islamic tribalism.'

The call of the pre-Islamic tribalism aims at dividing the Helpers and the Emigrants or any two different parties, driving each party to factionalism, dissension and fighting; and consequently, resulting in acts which belong to the pre-Islamic era. So, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Leave that, for it is disgusting;' that is, ugly and mean since it provokes disputes over falsehood and drives to fire. He said, 'Whoever calls the Call of the pre-Islamic era is not one of us and let him take his seat in fire.'(1)

The call of the pre-Islamic era is a call for war, for they used to say, 'O the tribe of so and so.' Then, the tribe gathers to support the speaker even if he is a wrongdoer; yet, Islam prohibits this. The people of the pre-Islamic era came together through tribalism regarding all the issues of the worldly life and were settling their rights through coalitions and tribalism. Islam came to prohibit all these and settle issues through the Islamic rulings. Thus, if someone engaged in an aggressive action against someone else, the judge would adjudicate between them according to the Islamic laws, not the tribal code, and would obligate him/her to receive the due legal punishment for his/her aggression.

(1) Al-Bukhari and Muslim narrate on the authority of 'Abdullah ibn Masu'd that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'He who (on befalling of a calamity) slaps his cheeks, tears his clothes and follows the ways and traditions of the days of Ignorance is none of us.' Al-Harith Al-Ash'ari narrated that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'He whoever calls with the call of the days of Ignorance, then he is among the coals of hell.' A man said, 'Even if he performs prayers and fasts, O Messenger of Allah?' He said, 'Yes. So call with the call that Allah named you with: Muslims, believers and worshipers of Allah.' This is narrated by At-Tyalisi, Ahmad, At-Tirmidhi and others. See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 1294, 1298 and 3520; and Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no.148.

When the call of the Pre-Islamic tribalism and achieving triumph through fanaticism and tribalism appear, the hypocrites – who desire to fuel the fires because they are beneficiary – appear as well. Here, ‘Abdullah ibn Ubay ibn Salul, the head of the hypocrites, seized the opportunity as well, even though he was out of Medina. When he heard about the quarrel between a boy from the Emigrants and a boy of the Helpers, he said, ‘Did they really do that?’ It is as if he was waiting for this incident since he wanted dissension. In this connection, Allah the Almighty says: ‘…had they gone forth between you, they would not have added to you aught save corruption, and they would certainly have hurried about among you seeking (to sow) dissension among you, and among you there are those who hearken for their sake; and Allah knows the unjust.’ (at-Tawba: 47) They cause division between the rows of the believers in order to penetrate them aiming at causing corruption. Allah the Almighty employs the word ‘between’ to indicate penetration and division between two things or persons. So, one of them would enter a group of believers to corrupt it and another one would join another group to corrupt it as well. Thus, they penetrate the believers to divide them.

When Ibn Ubayy said, ‘Did they really do that?’ he means that the Emigrants dared to harm the Helpers; though, at the beginning, the latter were greater in number than the former, as the Emigrants only increased later on. Then, he said, ‘By Allah, if we return to Medina, indeed, the powerful will expel therefrom the weak.’ It is known that he would have been appointed king of Medina and that during the celebration of the crown, they were surprised by the arrival of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him emigrating to Medina. This is one of the reasons for the malice of ‘Abdullah ibn Ubay towards Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him; he lost kingship and his son, ‘Abdullah ibn ‘Abdullah ibn Ubay, became a true Muslim.

The proof of the sincere belief of his son can be found when he went to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him upon hearing that he would order the killing of his father after he had said: ‘Once we return to Medina the powerful will drive out the weak.’ (al-Munafiqun: 8) The son went to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying, ‘If you have to order the killing of my father, O Messenger of Allah, let me implement it because I am afraid that if a believer brother killed him, I would hate him and I do not like to hate a believer.’(1) Thus, his truthfulness and strength of belief become clear; Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him desired to treat that hypocrite with generosity for his son, so he did not order him to be killed. Later on, the son came to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying, ‘O Messenger of Allah, ask Allah for forgiveness of my father.’ Due to the fact that he was sent as a mercy for all people, he asked Allah the Almighty to forgive ‘Abdullah ibn Ubay; and thus, Allah the Almighty revealed His saying, ‘Ask forgiveness for them or do not ask forgiveness for them; even if you ask forgiveness for them seventy times, Allah will not forgive them; this is because they disbelieve in Allah and His Messenger, and Allah does not guide the transgressing people.’ (at-Tawba: 80) The good son wanted to kill his father himself in order not to seek a Muslim for revenge. In the same vein, when ‘Umar ibn Al-Khattab Allah be pleased with him passed by the killer of his brother, Zayd ibn Al-Khattab, ‘Umar said to him, ‘Get away from me, I do not love you.’ The man replied with a daring faith, ‘Does your hatred deprive me a right of my rights?’ ‘Umar said, ‘No.’ The man said, ‘Women only cry over love.’

Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him sent for ‘Abdullah ibn Ubay ibn Salul in order to ask him about what he said; yet, he denied and swore by Allah he had not said that. So, Allah the Almighty revealed His saying: 'They swear by Allah that they did not speak, and certainly they did speak, the word of unbelief, and disbelieved after their Islam…' (at-Tawba: 74). He made ibn Salul swear by Allah that he did not say that.

(1) In his book, At-Tabari narrates that ‘Asim Ibn ‘Amr ibn Qatada said that ‘Abdullah ibn ‘Abdullah ibn Ubay came to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying, ‘O Messenger of Allah, I heard that you want to kill ‘Abdullah ibn Ubayy because of what he said. If you will kill him, order me and I will bring his head to you. By Allah, the Khazraj tribe did not witness a man more obedient to his father than me and I fear lest you order someone else to kill him. Do not let me see the killer of my father walking among people lest I would kill him and thus go to fire because I killed a believer in revenge for a disbeliever. Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘Alright, we will be kind and good to him as long as he stays with us.’ This is also narrated by Ibn Al-Athir. See At-Tabari, Jame‘ Al-Bayan, 23/407; Ibn Al-Athir, Al-Kamil Fi At-Tarikh, 1/309.

In the same connection, Zayd ibn Arqam said, 'We went for a journey with Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him where people suffered a hardship. So, 'Abdullah ibn Ubay said to his friends, 'Do not spend on those who are with the Messenger of Allah until they disband…if we return to Medina, the powerful will surely expel therefrom the weak.' Zayd came to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and related that to him. Then, he sent for 'Abdullah ibn Ubayy to ask him; yet, he denied and swore he did not. They said, 'Zayd lied to the Messenger of Allah.' So, this really disappointed Zayd until Allah the Almighty revealed the truth, saying: 'When the hypocrites come to you [Prophet]…' (al-Munafiqun: 1). Finally, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him called them to ask forgiveness for them; however, they turned their heads(1) aside.

Since the son of Ibn Ubay was a true Muslim, when his father returned to Medina, he carried his sword and said to his father, 'You claim if we return to Medina, the powerful will surely expel therefrom the weak. By Allah! You will not enter Medina until the Messenger of Allah permits you.' He also said, 'By Allah! You shall never return to Medina until you admit that you are the mean and that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is the honourable.' He also said, 'By Allah! I will not return the sword back until you admit that Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is the honourable and you are the mean.' So, he admitted.

Ibn Salul was constantly hurting Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. For instance, when two men – one from the tribe of Juhaina, which is an ally to the Helpers, and the other from Ghafar – fought each other, the man from Ghafar defeated the man from Juhaina. So, ‘Abdullah ibn Ubaycried out, ‘O people of Aws! Help your brother.’ He added, ‘By Allah! The example of Muhammad with regard to us is as one says, “Feed your dog and it would eat you.”’(1)

(1) In his Tafsir, As-Suyuti narrates this narration and ascribes it to At-Tabarani that 'Usama ibn Zayd said, 'When Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him came back from the Battle of Banu Al-Mustaliq, 'Abdullah ibn Abdullah ibn Ubay drew the sword against his father saying, "By Allah! I will not leave the sword until you admit that you are the mean and that the Messenger of Allah is the honourable." So he said, "Woe to you! Muhammad is the honourable and I am the mean." When this was narrated to Prophet Muhammad, he admired him and appreciated it.' See As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur, 14/504.

Besides, Ibn Ubay abused Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him by slandering his wife, ‘A’isha Allah be pleased with her. During the Battle of Banu Al-Mustaliq, he was involved in and increased the abuse of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and slandered the reputation of his wife, accusing her of committing adultery. So Allah the Almighty says: ‘Surely they who concocted the lie are a party from among you. Do not regard it an evil to you; nay, it is good for you. Every man of them shall have what he has earned of sin; and (as for) him who took upon himself the main part thereof, he shall have a grievous chastisement.’ (an-Nur: 11) ‘Abdullah ibn Ubay ibn Salul is responsible for spreading the rumour since he began the talk, saying, ‘The wife of your Prophet spent the night with a man, and then at the morning, he came to lead the camel for her.’(2)

The hypocrites were unaware that Power and Honour belong to Allah, His Messenger and the believers and that humiliation is for the hypocrites, so He the Almighty Allah says: '…but power belongs to Allah, to His Messenger, and to the believers…' (al-Munafiqun: 8). Allah the Almighty defeats and is undefeatable. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is also honoured with untouchable dignity and chastity, and the believers, by following the Book of Allah, are endowed with honour and dignity. The word for Power in the verse in question is derived from a concrete meaning which is rigidness and toughness. For instance, we say 'rigid earth,' that is, concrete and cannot be affected by a pickax. Then, the adjective was used to describe anything sturdy. So, when it is said: Allah is Almighty, it means that He controls everything; no one can bear His Scheme, Power or Punishment. The same adjective is used to refer to something rare and valuable, for all precious metals are valuable due to their scarcity and rarity.

(1) In his Tafsir, Ibn Abu Hatim narrates that Qatada said, ‘It was mentioned to us that two men - one from the tribe of Juhain, which is an ally to the Helpers, and the other from Ghafar - fought each other, the man from Ghafar defeated the man from Juhaina. So, ‘Abdullah ibn Ubay cried out, “O people of Aws! Help your brother,” and added, “By Allah! The example of Muhammad with regard to us is as one says, ‘Feed your dog and it would eat you.’”’ In his Tafsir, As-Suyuti ascribes this narration to Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, and Ibn Abu Hatim. See Ibn Abu Hatim, Tafsir Ibn Abu Hatim, 10403; As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthour, 7/445.

(2) In his Tafsir, Ibn Jarir At-Tabari narrates that Ibn Zayd said, ‘He who is responsible for spreading the rumour is ‘Abdullah ibn Ubayy ibn Salul, the wicked man, since he began the calumny saying, ‘The wife of your Prophet spent the night with a man and then he came to lead us with her.’ Ibn Abu Malika narrated from ‘Urwa that ‘A’isha said regarding the calumny, ‘Then I rode and Safwan led the camel by the rope. We passed by a group of hypocrites who used to be hated by people. So, ‘Abdullah ibn Ubay, their head, said, ‘Who is this?’ They said, ‘‘A’isha.’ He said, ‘By Allah! She did not survive nor did he survive.’ He added, ‘The wife of your Prophet spent the night with a man; and then at the morning, he came to lead the camel for her.’ See At-Tabari, Jami’ Al-Bayan, 26050.

Then, Allah the Almighty says: '…though the hypocrites do not know this.' (al-Munafiqun: 8) This is not negation of their knowledge and obtaining the information, yet, it negates their benefit from the knowledge that reached them. In fact, the knowledge which does not influence the movement of the human being is useless. It is as if the knowledge is negated from the hypocrite because s/he did not benefit from it. They do not know the useful knowledge, nor the essence and outcome of the matters. This is because they do not assess the issues with the precision that leads to real benefit, nor do they value the true belief. The human being may not understand something, but someone else may understand it and help him/her understand it.

Allah the Almighty then says:

يَٰٓأَيُّهَا ٱلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُواْ لَا تُلۡهِكُمۡ أَمۡوَٰلُكُمۡ وَلَآ أَوۡلَٰدُكُمۡ عَن
ذِكۡرِ ٱللَّهِۚ وَمَن يَفۡعَلۡ ذَٰلِكَ فَأُوْلَٰٓئِكَ هُمُ ٱلۡخَٰسِرُونَ ٩

Believers, do not let your wealth and your children distract you from remembering God: those who do so will be the ones who lose [9] (The Quran, al-Munafiqun: 9)

Whenever the believer remembers that Allah the Almighty sends down the rain, for example, s/he thanks Him. So, remembrance is achieved through the tongue and the heart. Allah the Almighty is unseen and concealed from us. In fact, His Mightiness lies in the fact that He is unseen; yet, His Favours are evidence for Him. So, remembrance should be always in our minds. We should constantly remember and thank Allah the Almighty for His Favours. Actually, remembrance of Allah the Almighty facilitates the movement of life in all aspects because when it exists in the humble hearts, it diminishes the sins, benefits all people, and corrects the movement of life. So, in the verse in question, Allah the Almighty says: 'Believers, do not let your wealth and your children distract you from remembering Allah: those who do so will be the ones who lose.' (al-Munafiqun: 9) He the Almighty addresses the believers to keep their belief pure, clear and flawless.

This verse should be explained in the context of what was previously mentioned in the chapter of al-Jumu'a. Allah the Almighty says: 'O you who believe! When the call to prayer is made on the day of congregation, hurry towards the reminder of Allah and leave off your trading—that is better for you, if only you knew—then when the prayer has ended, disperse in the land and seek out Allah's bounty. Remember Allah often so that you may prosper. Yet they scatter towards trade or entertainment whenever they observe it, and leave you [Prophet] standing there. Say, 'Allah's gift is better than any entertainment or trade: Allah is the best provider.' (al-Jumu'a: 9-11) The believers are called to seek remembrance of Allah the Almighty when the call to prayer is made on Friday and stop trading; though after the prayer, they are encouraged to disperse within the land and seek from the Bounty of Allah the Almighty. During that time, you should: 'Remember Allah often so that you may prosper.' (al-Jumu'a: 10)

Meanwhile, Allah the Almighty condemns those believers who disbanded, leaving Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him giving the Friday sermon and were deluded by the trade coming to Medina on that day. So, He the Almighty addresses the believers because they are the ones who are entitled to comply with His Commands and Prohibitions. Unlike the disbeliever, the believer is obliged to act in accordance with the religion of Allah; thus, s/he enters an agreement of Belief with the Almighty. Thus, He the Almighty does not address all people with respect to His Commands; instead, He addresses the believers only. For example, He says: 'O you who believe! Fasting is prescribed for you, as it was prescribed for those before you so that you may guard (against evil).' (al-Baqara: 183) He the Almighty says: 'O you who believe! Seek assistance through patience and prayer; surely Allah is with the patient.' (al-Baqara: 153) Thus, Allah the Almighty only charges the believer who enters the agreement of Faith with the religious obligations. If the servant has believed, then his/her moves in life become the responsibility of his/her Lord who reveals to him/her the law of life. As for the disbeliever, Allah the Almighty does not command him/her to do anything. Belief is a commitment. As long as you acknowledged Allah's Wisdom, then commit yourself to obtain the rulings of your religion from Him. Allah's Justice necessitates that He does not command the disbelievers; unlike the humans whose leaders command all people whether they consent or not. Besides, if that human leader is powerful, s/he tends to force anyone under his/her authority to do what s/he says. So, Allah the Almighty often begins the verses which include commands with: 'O you who believe…' (al-Munafiqun: 9). Thus, Allah the Almighty does not command all people. He only commands those who believe.

Allah the Almighty does not interfere in the actions related to one's free choice. He only commands those who believe to comply with His Way of Guidance. Notably, He the Almighty does not command the disbeliever because He has no agreement with him. Instead, He commands the believer. Thus, every verse bearing a ruling starts with this faithful call: 'O you who believe…' (al-Munafiqun: 9). Our belief in Allah, Who decrees the dos and do nots, is what makes us entitled to receive His Rulings and comply with them. Therefore, the one who agrees to believe in Allah the Almighty has entered an agreement of Belief with Him and that is why s/he receives from Allah the Islamic Way of Guidance related to the dos and do nots. In addition, s/he should apply this approach without questioning the logic of everything. The logic behind any religious decree is that it is issued from Allah the Almighty. You cannot argue it because it is not issued by an equivalent person to you. On the contrary, it is issued by Allah the Almighty Whom you are obliged to obey because He is the Lord and you are His worshiper. It is sufficient that He the Almighty says, 'Do' so that we carry out the command, and it is sufficient that He says, 'Do not,' that we refrain from what He prohibits. Thus, we comply with all the commands of Allah the Almighty because He has decreed them and not due to anything else. Mainly, we receive all what is revealed from Allah in the Quran as the Words of Allah the Almighty. This is the belief that He the Almighty wants us to adhere to and follow in our life.

Allah the Almighty calls those who have believed saying: ‘O you who believe…’ (al-Munafiqun: 9) and commands them to seek the remembrance of Allah the Almighty: ‘O you who believe! When the call to prayer is made on the day of congregation, hurry towards the reminder of Allah...’ (al-Jumu‘a: 9). This is a Command to do something. In the verse in question, Allah the Almighty forbids those who believe, saying: ‘O You who believe, do not let your wealth and your children distract you from remembering Allah…’ (al-Munafiqun: 9).

Diversion is spending the time in an act which may distract you from your duties. If the worldly life which Allah the Almighty created and created man in it, is free from His Way of Guidance, then it is diversion and amusement. Diversion is the unwise recreation; the worldly life may pass while the person is in diversion, amusement and business, for s/he did not take life seriously. Anything that diverts you from what Allah the Almighty has created you for is a diversion because it diverted you from what is most important. The word ‘diversion’ points to the thing which does not benefit you and diverts from what is required from you. There is a difference between diversion and amusement, yet both are useless and diverts from what is required from you.

The Quran mentions diversion and amusement in numerous verses, yet amusement was mentioned first in the following saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘And the worldly life is not but amusement and diversion; but the home of the Hereafter is best for those who fear Allah, so will you not reason?’ (al-An‘am: 32) And in another verse Allah the Almighty says: ‘Know that life of this world is but amusement and diversion...’ (al-Hadid: 20). Yet, diversion is mentioned first in the following saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘And this worldly life is not but diversion and amusement...’ (al-’Ankabut: 64). Amusement is mentioned before ‘diversion’ in two verses because ‘amusement’ suggests that you make unintended moves like children while playing; mainly, it implies aimless movements which we call ‘amusement of children’. It is called ‘amusement’ since the child amuses himself/herself before s/he is charged with anything. Thus, amusement does not divert him/her from any duties. However, when s/he grows up and moves to the stage of being religiously responsible, ‘amusement’ diverts him/her from something required from him/her; and thus, it becomes ‘diversion’. That is why Allah the Almighty says: ‘…yet they scatter towards trade or entertainment whenever they observe it, and leave you [Prophet] standing there…’ (al-Jumu‘a: 11). So, it becomes clear that diversion is the thing which is useless and diverts you from what is required from you. Notably, the verse in the chapter of al-‘Ankabut which mentions ‘diversion’ prior to ‘amusement’ means that the issues which divert from religion are countless, that corruption has prevailed and that diverting from what is required has exacerbated. Allah the Almighty says: ‘And of men is he who takes instead diversion of speech to lead astray from Allah’s path without knowledge…’ (Luqman: 6). According to the scholars,(1) ‘diversion of speech’ is all that diverts from what Allah decrees. Therefore, the work which diverts the person from performing the duties for Allah, such as performing the prayers, is considered diversion. It is extreme diversion and amusement that they play when they hear the Quran. They did not even listen to it like any purposeful diversion, but they heard it as amusement with no aim or benefit because its aim is harmful to them. Amusement is lawful in the period before adolescence; yet, the hearts need to be brought up to observe Allah the Almighty the Creator and the Provider in this early period of man’s life. This task should be done by the father. When he brings food or drink for his child, he should say before him/her, ‘Allah the Almighty has provided us with it.’ Thus, we attribute all the issues of life to Allah. We should command the young boy to say, ‘In the Name of Allah and praise be to Allah.’ Hence, the father embeds in his child’s soul Certainty of Allah the Almighty, the Omnipotent. If the boy does not see Him, he sees His signs and favours and sees his father, who takes responsibility for him, not attributing this favour to himself; instead, he attributes everything to Allah the Almighty. His father – his role model—is humble and attributes all issues to Allah. Thus, belief becomes embedded in the conscience of the boy. If the boy was not brought up this way, diversion and amusement would find their ways to his soul.

(1) In his Tafsir, As-Suyuti relates that Ibn ‘Al-Abbas said, ‘Diversion of the speech means futile speech, i.e. singing and other similar things.’ Ibn Mas‘ud said, ‘A man buying a girl who sings for him at day or night.’ In his book, Ash-Shawkani says, ‘It is everything that diverts from goodness such as singing, clubs, false talk and all forbidden acts.’ In his book, Al-Biqa‘i says, ‘It means what distracts among the evolving things which amuse so man loses track of time such as singing and jokes among other useless things.’ See Ash-Shawkani, Fath Al-Qadir, 4/483; Al-Biqa‘i, Nazhm Ad-Durar, 6/6.

On the other hand, if you divert from the way of Allah the Almighty the worldly life will be a useless home for diversion and amusement. Yet, He the Almighty specifies, in the verse in question two things from the worldly life: wealth and children, saying: ‘O you who believe! Do not let your wealth and your children distract you from remembering Allah…’ (al-Munafiqun: 9). Allah the Almighty forbids the believers from being diverted from remembering Him by their wealth and children. Both these factors are also combined in another verse in Al-'Imran and when Allah the Almighty says: ‘Wealth and children are [but] adornment of the worldly life...’ (al-Kahf: 46).(1) Wealth and children are fundamental elements that test people in the worldly life. Yet, why does Allah mentions ‘wealth’ prior to ‘children’? Is the wealth more worthy for people than the children? We say, ‘Allah the Almighty mentions “wealth” before “children” in both verses not because wealth is more precious, but because wealth is more general, unlike children, since all people have property even if it is little, yet, “children” is more specific as some people are deprived of them. In addition, the children do not come unless the person possesses wealth because he needs marriage and expenses in order to produce and bring children. Everyone has wealth, yet, everyone does not necessarily have children. When Allah the Almighty says: ‘Wealth and children are [but] adornment of the worldly life...’ (al-Kahf: 46) this means that they are not necessities of life: they are mere adornment and artificial things since the believer who is pleased with what Allah the Almighty has destined for him/her lives his/her life happily even with no wealth or children. Wealth or children might make the person so miserable that s/he wishes s/he had died before having that wealth or that child. You might see a distressed, worried man because he wants to have a boy for ancestry and honour; however, he might be provided with a boy who truly humiliates him.

(1) In his Tafsir, Al-Qurtubi says, ‘Wealth and children are adornment of the worldly life because wealth has beauty and benefits while the children imply strength and advancement; thus, they become the adornment of the worldly life.’ In his Tafsir, Al-Baydawi says, ‘They adorn man in his worldly life and leave him sooner.’ In his Tafsir, Ibn Al-Jawzi says, ‘This responds to the polytheists who used to show off with their wealth and sons; Allah the Almighty tells them that these adorn only your worldly life.’ See Al-Qurtubi, Jame‘ Ahkam Al-Quran, 10/413; Al-Baydawi, Anwar At-Tanzil, 3/ 500; and Ibn Al-Jawzi in Zad Al-Masir, 4/ 228.

Wealth, here, does not mean gold and silver, but rather, it is a general word including gold, silver, money, horses, crops, cattle, and everything you spend to pay for something else. Wealth specifically refers to money because it enables us to buy everything. Wealth is divided into two types: wealth which is used directly, like food, drinks, clothes, etc. This type of wealth benefits people directly. The other type of wealth is money which does not benefit people directly. In other words, they can benefit from it only when they buy things that benefit them directly.

So, you should not be diverted by your wealth and children from the remembrance of Allah the Almighty since they will not benefit you on the Day of Resurrection. Allah the Almighty says: ‘As (for) those who disbelieve, surely neither their wealth nor their children shall avail them in the least against Allah…’ (Al-‘Imran: 116). Moreover, wealth and children are reasons for temptation, as Allah the Almighty says: ‘And know that your property and your children are a temptation, and that Allah is He with Whom there is a mighty reward.’ (al-Anfal: 28) The hypocrites and the disbelievers do not succeed in the temptation of the wealth and children. Instead, there will come a day when they lose that wealth and these children. Even if they have wealth, it will not buy anything in the Hereafter and, besides, each one of their children will be fully busy with himself/herself, a fact which is clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘O people! guard against (the punishment of) your Lord and dread the day when a father shall not make any satisfaction for his son, nor shall the child be the maker of any satisfaction for his father; surely the promise of Allah is true, therefore let not this world’s life deceive you, nor let the deceiver(1) deceive you in respect of Allah’ (Luqman: 33). If wealth and children are among the decoration and adornment of the worldly life, why do we let them delude us from the remembrance of Allah the Almighty and distract us from religious duties and obligations decreed by Allah the Almighty? Why are we attracted to mere decoration and adornment?

(1) In his Tafsir, ‘Abd Ar-Razzaq relates that ‘the Deceiver’ is Satan and falsehood. In his Tafsir, Ash-Shawkani says that the deceiver is the Satan who tempts people with false temptations and untrue promises. See ‘Abd Ar-Razzaq, Tafsir Ibn ‘Abd Ar-Razzaq, 2434; and Ash-Shawkani, Fath Al-Qadir, 2/62.

When Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was asked about this verse: ‘O you who believe! Do not let your wealth and your children distract you from remembering Allah…’ (al-Munafiqun: 9). He said, ‘They are worshipers from my Ummah, the good among them who are not diverted by trade or transaction from the remembrance of Allah and the five daily prayers.’(1) So, these are worshipers of the Prophet Muhammad’s Ummah, but he specifies their category, saying, ‘The good among them,’ who connect themselves to Allah the Almighty through His remembrance, and whom He the Almighty provides with support in order that they become able to lead the movement of life on earth and thus, establish security, peace, mercy and justice in it. This is what should make us feel proud.

Remembrance of Allah the Almighty is achieved through the renewal of connection with Him and standing before Him in the prayers. Even during war and time of fear, we should remember Him. In general, remembrance of Allah the Almighty includes recalling His Favours, Mightiness, Omnipotence and His Attributes of perfection. This should be continuous, and it is obligatory during prayers and at other times. So, Allah the Almighty says in this regard: ‘Then when you have finished the prayer, remember Allah standing and sitting and reclining…’ (an-Nisa’: 103).

In addition, remembrance means reflection and to live as a true Muslim following Allah’s Way of Guidance. Remembrance can also mean glorification and praising of Allah the Almighty. In this connection, He the Almighty says: ‘In houses which Allah has permitted to be exalted and that His name may be remembered in them; there glorify Him therein in the mornings and the evenings, Men whom neither merchandise nor selling diverts from the remembrance of Allah and the keeping up of prayer and the giving of poor-due…’

(1) In his Tafsir, As-Suyuti narrates this Hadith on the authority of Ibn ‘Abbas Allah be pleased with him. He ascribes it to Ibn Mardawayh. In his Tafsir, Ash-Shawkani narrates it on the authority of Ibn ‘Abbas and ascribes it to Ibn Mardawayh as well. He said, ‘They were men seeking from His bounty, buying and selling; yet, as soon as they hear the call to prayers, they throw what is in their hands and rush to the mosque for prayers.’ See As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur; and Ash-Shawkani, Fath Al-Qadir, 5/228.

(an-Nur: 36-37). It is remembrance since there are people who glorify Allah the Almighty in the morning and in the evenings; they are men described as not being distracted from the remembrance of Allah by trade or sale.

Remembrance may also refer to Allah's Bounties bestowed on His worshipers; and it also may refer to their worship through obedience. Thus, Allah the Almighty remembers them with goodness, while they remember Him by obedience.

So, you should never let your world businesses and interests distract you from the remembrance of Allah, for He says: '…and leave off your trading—that is better for you, if only you knew.' (al-Jumu'a: 9) Yet, here, Allah the Almighty warns us against letting wealth and children avert us from remembrance of Him, as He the Almighty says: 'O You who believe, do not let your wealth and your children distract you from remembering Allah: those who do so will be the ones who lose.' (al-Munafiqun: 9)

You should never think that the remembrance of Allah is done only in the mosque or during times of prayers. Instead, keep remembering Him during all events of life; if you do so and He remembers you, then you will be among the successful. Remembering Allah frequently means that you constantly feel Him beside you, so you fear Him, praise Him and ask Him for Guidance; and thus the connection between you and Allah the Almighty becomes constant at all times. However, whoever follows his/her desires and lets them distract him/her from the remembrance of Allah the Almighty will not be concerned with what He the Almighty requires from him/her since s/he is busy with what s/he requires. In short, you should always remember Allah and be conscious of Him.

That is why, Allah the Almighty says: '…and the Remembrance of Allah is greater…' (al-'Ankabut: 45). It means that the remembrance of Allah is greater than all other acts of worship because they need preparing, time, dedication and spare time, unlike remembrance which can be said at any time, with no preparation, or hardship, and regardless of your state. As remembrance of Allah means being mindful of Him, and it does not prevent you from working. It is the lightest and easiest worship for the soul and the heaviest worship in the Scale. It is the only act of worship which does not cost you anything; it does not occupy any of your senses or need time or effort, nor does it require a specified time. So, whoever remembers Allah the Almighty while standing, sitting, or lying on his/her side is considered one of those who remember Allah the Almighty frequently(1) and so is the one who remembers Him at the morning or the evenings. Further, whoever says, 'Allah is free from imperfection, all praise is due to Allah, there is no true god except Allah, and there is no change of a condition nor power except by Allah the Almighty' 30 times a day is recorded among those who remember Allah frequently.(2) Also, whoever wakes up at night, wakes his wife and prays two units of prayer becomes one of those who remember Allah frequently.(3)

Thus, to remember Allah the Almighty is an easy act of worship. You can remember Him Glorified is He while you are using an axe, writing by pen, eating a meal or having a drink. Though being the greatest act of worship, the remembrance of Allah the Almighty is an easy, effortless act for the believers

Someone may ask, 'If the act of remembering Allah the Almighty is an easy one and is considered the lightest act of worship, why would it be difficult for any person to do it?' In the context of talking about those who get distracted by their wealth and children from remembering Him, He the Almighty says: '…those who do so will be the ones who lose.' (al-Munafiqun: 9)

(1) Abd Ibn Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abu Hatim mention that Qatada said regarding the saying of Allah: 'Who remember Allah while standing or siting or [lying] on their sides...' (Al-'Imran: 191), 'These are all your states, son of Adam, remember Allah while you are standing, if you cannot, then remember Him while sitting; if you cannot, remember Him while lying on your side. This is to make it easier and lighter.' In his Tafsir, Ibn Abu Hatim narrates that Mujahid said, 'The worshiper does not become among those who remember Allah frequently until he remembers Allah while standing, sitting and lying on his side.' See Ibn Abu Hatim, Tafsir Al-Quran Al-'Adhim, 4657.

(2) In his Tafsir, As-Sam'ani relates that Ad-Dahaak ibn Muzahim narrated on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas that Messenger Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Whoever says, 'Allah is free from imperfection, all praise is due to Allah, there is no true god except Allah, Allah is the Greatest and there is no change of a condition nor power except by Allah the Most High the Almighty' is recorded among those who remember Allah frequently, wipes out his sins just as leaves of a tree fall down and Allah looks to him and whom Allah looks at him do not receive punishment.' See As-Sam'ani in Tafsir Al-Quran, 4/ 284.

(3) In his book, Al-Bayhaqi narrates on the authority of Abu Sa'id and Abu Hurayra that Messenger Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him said, 'If someone wakes up at night, wakes his wife and they pray together two units of prayer, they are known among those who remember Allah frequently.' See Al-Bayhaqi, As-Sunnan As-Sughra, Hadith no. 609.

This clearly indicates that the remembrance of Allah the Almighty meant here has an unrestricted meaning; it is broader than uttering words for glorifying and praising Allah the Almighty. Here, it means to abide by Allah's Way of Guidance which He has sent for us. Whoever does not abide by it will be one of the losers, for s/he disregarded Allah's Laws and established his/her own laws according to his/her whims and inclinations.

Therefore, Allah the Almighty describes those who deviate from His Way of Guidance, saying: 'These are they who buy error for the right direction, so their bargain shall bring no gain, nor are they the followers of the right direction.' (al-Baqara: 16) They lost everything and did not gain anything, that is, they did not achieve anything useful. Moreover, they lost guidance and thus lost the profit and capital of their trade, both in this worldly life and the Hereafter.

When Allah the Almighty says: '…those who do so will be the ones who lose,' (al-Munafiqun: 9) He indicates that the bargain has been concluded and that they, i.e. those deniers of the Truth ultimately lost everything. Moreover, such loss is timeless and cannot be compensated in any way. It is permanent and will be bitterly regretted.

As for those who remember Allah the Almighty and strictly observe His Rules and what He revealed to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him they will be: '…the successful.' (al-Baqara: 5) Linguistically, the Arabic word Al-Falah (successfulness) means cultivating lands for growing crops. When a dry land is cultivated, it gives a large, bumper harvest, and that is why this word is used here. Allah the Almighty gives us an example from practical reality to enable our limited thinking to properly understand the Unseen. Therefore, He the Almighty likens the observance of His Rules and its reward in the Hereafter to the cultivation of lands. Thus, the successful person is the one who makes a profitable trade, so his/her position is the opposite of the loser.

After knowing this, how could we be distracted by our wealth and children from remembering Allah the Almighty and from following His Guidance? Those who are deluded in the worldly life by their wealth and children will find them a source of regret on the Day of Resurrection. But, what is the reason for this? This is because whenever they remember that their wealth and children have distracted them from paying attention to the good deeds that prepare them for that Day, they feel regret and deep sorrow. That is why Allah the Almighty refers to them, saying: '…those who do so will be the ones who lose.' (al-Munafiqun: 9)

Allah the Almighty then says:

وَأَنفِقُواْ مِن مَّا رَزَقۡنَٰكُم مِّن قَبۡلِ أَن يَأۡتِيَ أَحَدَكُمُ ٱلۡمَوۡتُ فَيَقُولَ رَبِّ
لَوۡلَآ أَخَّرۡتَنِيٓ إِلَىٰٓ أَجَلٖ قَرِيبٖ فَأَصَّدَّقَ وَأَكُن مِّنَ ٱلصَّٰلِحِينَ ١٠

Give out of what We have provided for you, before death comes to one of you and he says, 'My Lord, if You would only reprieve me for a little while, I would give in charity and become one of the righteous' [10] (The Quran, al-Munafiqun: 10)

Allah the Almighty says that He does not ask us to spend on Him, but rather, He wants us to spend of what He has provided us with. The provision is gained as a result of the human beings' actions which are based upon arranged thought. In fact, the human thought, organs, senses, and the materials s/he uses are created by Allah the Almighty. If we take the farmer as an example, we find that the land, which is his/her source of provision, is created by Allah the Almighty.

Thus, the human being uses what Allah the Almighty has created for him/her in order to get his/her provision. The mind which devises a plan; the organs and senses used by man to generate power; and even the materials which s/he makes use of to reap the fruit of his/her work are all created by Allah the Almighty. So, can you tell me which of all these things does the human being own?

Therefore, when Allah the Almighty says: 'Give out of what We have provided for you…' (al-Munafiqun: 10), He Glorified is He means that we are not giving charity to Him in the material sense of the word; rather, we give charity to others out of what He the Almighty has provided for us. It is out of His Generosity that He appreciates the result of our effort and ascribes its outcome to us. So, when someone is in need, it is as if s/he borrows money from you, not from Allah, the Provider of everything.

Allah the Almighty draws our attention to the importance of giving charity out of what He has provided for us before the coming of the Last Day on which there will be no more trading. In this connection, He the Almighty says: ‘O you who believe! Spend out of what We have given you before the Day comes on which there is no bargaining, neither any friendship nor intercession, and the unbelievers— they are the unjust. (al-Baqara: 254)

In the Hereafter, there will be no bargaining, no purchasing, no friendship, and no intercession; those are the means on which the human being can depend. On that Day, s/he does not own money to buy with, nor do others own goods to sell. So, this door is closed. Likewise, there will be no friendship or intercession. Therefore, He the Almighty tells us that if we spend out of what He has given us, we will be well-prepared for that Day, and He teaches us that we should make use of this opportunity before the coming of that Day, as there will be neither bargaining, nor friendship, nor intercession.

Furthermore, with regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Out of what We have provided for you,’ (al-Munafiqun: 10) He the Almighty clearly states that He is the True Owner of all provisions, yet He makes the human being earn his/her provision and even makes it his/her property. In this connection, He the Almighty says: ‘O you who believe! Spend (benevolently) of the good things that you earn and or what We have brought forth for you out of the earth…’ (al-Baqara: 267). He the Almighty directs our attention to the fact that pursuing one’s provision is not the cause of gaining it, for having the means to gain the provision is part of one’s provision gifted by Allah the Almighty. In other words, the means of gaining the provision such as the intellect and the bodily power are part of Allah’s Provision bestowed on us, and so is His subjection of the earth for us.

In general, the act of spending, especially if rationally made, enhances the course of life and contributes to its development and promotion. On the contrary, the act of receiving money and then holding it hinders the course of life and results in unemployment, market recession and stagnation which spoil life and interrupt its course. So, the act of spending is a must to contribute to the development of the course of life. Spending entails transferring the money from the property of someone to another by selling, buying, or due to a relationship.

The Arabic word Infaq (giving out) in the verse in question originally refers to the flourishing of the trade in the market. Markets mainly depend on goods, and when we find a marketplace empty from goods, this means that it is a flourishing market. But if we find that the goods are heaped up in a marketplace, this means that it is in a standstill. Then, the flourishing of the market means that it became empty of all goods, just as the spirit departs from the corpse.

With respect to the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Give out…’ (al-Munafiqun: 10), it does not mean only to give charity or zakat, but it also means to spend money in general and not to hoard it. That is why Allah the Almighty says: ‘O you who believe! Most surely many of the doctors of law and the monks eat away the property of men falsely, and turn (them) from Allah’s way; and (as for) those who hoard up gold and silver and do not spend it in Allah’s Way, announce to them a painful chastisement…’ (at-Tawba: 34).

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…(as for) those who hoard up gold and silver…’ (at-Tawba: 34), He the Almighty talks about two types of metal, namely silver and gold. These two metals are the base of economy in worldly life. The first economic business was conducted by exchanging some goods in consideration of other goods, which is called ‘bartering’. After the development of the economic business, the currency was invented and has become the main means for conducting businesses among people and countries.

Allah the Almighty wants to draw our attention to the fact that silver and gold are the primary means for running an economy, which requires permanent circulation of money as the benefit of money is to be used for populating the earth and creating its civilisation.

If you are a believer and you do not invest your money, it will decrease by 2.5% annually — which is the small value of zakat the Muslims are asked to pay out of their property — and thus it may run out within forty years. Thus, if a believer wants to maintain his/her property, s/he should engage in the course of life to invest and increase it, and s/he should refrain from hoarding it, otherwise, the annual repayment of zakat will decrease the amount of his/her property.

If a money holder invests what s/he owns in practical life, other people will benefit from that, even if s/he did not intend to benefit them. Let us give an example to illustrate this point: the one who invests his money in a building only cares about the profit he will reap for himself. However, other people get benefit of such investment even if he did not intend to do so, i.e. the one who sets up the foundations will have a remuneration; every one of those who bring bricks, cement or steel will receive its price; and so will the labs which manufactured the building materials; the workers in sanitary ware and electrical wires factories will also receive salaries; and those who install all such things will receive their remunerations, etc. Thus, a large number of the society members benefit from the owner of this building even if he does not mean it. Therefore, whoever builds a building provides the society with an economic service that benefits a large number of people, and so does everyone who sets up an investment project.

Allah the Almighty wants people to engage in financial transactions and not to make their money stagnant, even if they are disbelievers. This is because if such money is spent in a trade, all the people will benefit from it; they will sell and buy; goods will be produced; factories will be built; and job opportunities will be provided for the labour force, etc.

On the contrary, if every one of us hoards his/her money and does not spend or invest it in the practical life, goods will not be consumed; factories will stop working; and people’s work will be interrupted. That is why Allah the Almighty wants money to be operated and not hoarded.

The aforementioned verse also refers to the act of not paying the duty that Allah the Almighty has ordered us to pay from our money. Thus, if the zakat due is taken from money, such money is not considered hoarded money because it decreases annually owing to the payment of zakat.

If we spend money and do not hoard it, markets will flourish and, therefore, there will be job opportunities and means for earning our living. For example, if you buy a washing machine or a refrigerator, or even build a small house, you are contributing to the economic development of the society. Meanwhile, we are developing the different means we use. Such prosperity stimulates people to discover more things that may serve humanity. On the one hand, hoarding all of our money leads to economic stagnation.

Evidently, this does not mean that a money holder spends all that s/he has because Allah the Almighty likes moderation in all things, a fact which is clear in His saying: ‘And they who when they spend, are neither extravagant nor parsimonious, and (keep) between these the just balance.’(1) (al-Furqan: 67) Here, Allah the Almighty warns about being wasteful in our spending and not keeping a part of our money for any sudden crisis. At the same time, if we are niggardly, markets will stagnate; production will stop; and workers will stop working. But Islam wants a moderate spending that generates marketability of goods while saving what helps us promote our life and prepare us for crises.

There are two types of spending: first, spending for a material consideration which maintains a continuous trading between the producers and consumersand secondly, spending without a material consideration such as giving zakat to the poor, the needy, and the indigent. This purifies the society from many corruptions as it prevents malicious feelings among people.

If a poor person finds someone who satisfies his/her needs, s/he will ask Allah the Almighty to keep His Grace on the giver to be able to continue to give charities. Thus, the poor will not envy the rich as both of them receive equal benefit. When the poor person takes a charity, s/he will not feel dissatisfied with his/her state, but rather, s/he will be satisfied for receiving charity. Similarly, when the rich person gives a charity, s/he feels secure as s/he knows that if s/he no longer has this wealth, s/he will find someone who will give him/her. Thus, there will be a social equilibrium between people–no one will be unable to have the basic needs of life, and no one will have a surplus that s/he might hold from others.

In the verse in question, Allah the Almighty says: ‘…before death comes to one of you…’ (al-Munafiqun: 10). This means that He the Almighty wants us to take advantage of this opportunity, and to make use of our lifetime before death overtakes us. It is out of Allah’s Great Wisdom that He made the time of death unknown to all people. Were the human being to know the time of his/her death, s/he would say, 'I will do whatever I want, then I will repent to Allah before death.'

(1) The word for ‘the just balance’ is being just, i.e. in the middle between being wasteful and miserly, that is, to be economical. In his Tafsir, Ibn Abu Hatim relates that Ibn Zayd says, ‘The just balance is to spend on the things that please Allah and to keep away from the unlawful things.’ See Ibn Abu Hatim, Tafsir, p. 15395.

No one doubts the fact that s/he will die; it is the destiny of all people. It is the time when our reality as humans fades, our life stops and our deeds come to an end. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: 'When a man dies, his deeds come to an end, except for three: a continuous charity, knowledge by which people derive benefit, a pious son who prays for him.'(1)

When anyone dies, his/her deeds come to an end and his/her book of records is closed. S/he cannot compensate the good deeds or the degree of faith that s/he has lost. It is as if this death represents his/her Day of Resurrection. Every one of us should never feel that his/her lifetime in this worldly life is too long. This worldly lifetime extends to include all people's life span, so you should not think that your life span will be as long as that of the worldly life. So, one's life span is limited, and as long as the death time would come, believers should remember the saying of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him: 'When any of you dies, this is his Day of Resurrection.'

It is out of the Wisdom of Allah the Almighty that He made the matter of death hidden in relation to time, cause, and place. So, this hidden nature of death is, in reality, the very essence of clarity because this makes the human being ready to face it at any time, for any reason and at any place. This is because death comes suddenly and does not depend on time, reason, or place. A child may die in his/her mother's womb, after a day or days of his/her birth or after a hundred years. S/he may also die without a reason. We may be surprised when one of us dies without apparent reason like a car accident, the falling down of a wall or a stone upon him, or an illness; so we wonder, 'What is the reason for his/her death?' The reason is death itself, i.e. s/he died because the time of his/her death has come. In this regard, it is being said that death without a reason is in itself the reason.

This death has a specific moment and hour that no one knows but Allah the Almighty. If a person's death time comes, s/he cannot delay nor hasten it, even for a minute, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty '…when their time comes, they cannot delay it for a moment nor can they bring it forward.' (an-Nahl: 61) No one can delay the time of death, or bring it forward, as it is controlled by Allah, the Lord of this universe. This appointed time comes and it cannot be postponed or hastened.

(1) This Hadith is narrated by Muslim, Abu Dawud, At-Tirmidhi and Ahmad on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him. At-Tirmidhi grades it as good, authentic Hadith. See Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 4310; Abu Dawud, Sunnan, Hadith no. 2882; At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 1376; and Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 8831.

Then Allah the Almighty tells us about some of those who fail, throughout their lifetime, to spend or give zakat out of what He the Almighty has provided them with, or who do not perform the prayers, and who were then taken suddenly by death. Allah the Almighty mentions that such people would say: 'My Lord, if You would only reprieve me for a little while, I would give in charity and become one of the righteous.' (al-Munafiqun: 10)

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…would only reprieve me for a little while,' (al-Munafiqun: 10) this means that they ask Allah the Almighty to give them more time and to extend their lifetime even for a little short period so they can have further opportunity in life. The reason behind this failure is the extended false hope in life by which they were deceived. This is similar to the case of a person who dies before s/he can perform the Islamic pilgrimage; if Allah the Almighty would extend his/her life till s/he performs it, this obligation would be waived. But who can give him/her a guarantee that s/he will live until that time? Therefore, one of Prophet Muhammad's Hadiths states: 'Perform Hajj (Islamic pilgrimage) before you will not be able to perform it.'(1)

Similarly, regarding the performance of the prayers, it seems that we have long and extended time for performing them, but who can guarantee such extendedness?! That is why the one who does not perform the prayers will be considered a sinner at the last moment of his/her life, i.e. if s/he has the opportunity to live till performing all the obligatory prayers, s/he will bear no sin. However, such limited lifetime is doubted and uncertain; we may die at any moment, and, as we said before, when a person dies, his/her Day of Resurrection begins.

(1) Ad-Daraqutni narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayra that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: 'Perform Hajj before you will not be able to perform it.' Then he was asked, 'What would be the problem in performing Hajj to Mecca?' He said, 'The Bedouins will be at the gates of its valleys and no one can reach it.' It is also narrated by Al-Bayhaqi and Al Fakihi. See Ad-Daraqutni, Sunnan, Hadith no. 2795; Al-Bayhaqi, As-Sunnan Al-Kubra, Hadith no. 8963; and Al-Fakihi, Akhbar Makka, Hadith no. 809.

Allah the Almighty then says: '…I would give in charity and become one of the righteous.' (al-Munafiqun: 10) They ask Allah the Almighty to let them get back to life so that they can correct their deeds, yet their request will be unquestionably rejected. It is human nature that when death time approaches, the human being tends to repent and feel regret and remorse for his/her previous misdeeds and for his/her failure to do good deeds. So, s/he asks for extra time to pay zakat, perform Islamic pilgrimage, give charity, do more good deeds and voluntary acts of worship, and try to get closer to Allah the Almighty by doing the acts of goodness that He loves, but unfortunately, his/her wishes, requests and supplications will be of no avail.

The disbelievers ask Allah the Almighty imploringly to delay their death for a period of time so that they can compensate for the good deeds and the acts of spending that they were distracted from doing in this worldly life.

Here, someone may ask, 'Why do they ask for "a little while" (al-Munafiqun: 10) and not for a long period of time?' This is because it is commonly known among people that things that are simple and may not take much time are more likely to be accepted by an official. Therefore, such a conception prevails when they are asking Allah the Almighty and their souls follow the knowledge established in their minds.

Allah the Almighty then says: '...and become one of the righteous.' (al-Munafiqun: 10) In our daily life, we say, 'S/he is a righteous person,' and to the opposite of that, we say, 'S/he is an unrighteous person.' A righteous person leaves what is good as it is, or adds to its goodness. On the contrary, an unrighteous or corrupt person tends to spoil the good thing and does not do any good.

The words 'righteous person' mean that s/he is a suitable person to be a Vicegerent of Allah the Almighty on earth; s/he executes the good aspect of any act. We can see that the Quran correlates the acts of giving charity and spending for the sake of Allah the Almighty with righteousness and being righteous.

In another verse, Allah the Almighty says: ‘And there are those of them who made a covenant with Allah: If He gives us out of His grace, we will certainly give alms and we will certainly be of the righteous.’ (at-Tawba: 75) The person referred to in this aforementioned verse is Tha‘laba.(1) He asked Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to supplicate to Allah the Almighty to make him a rich man. Then, after Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him prayed for him and after Allah the Almighty had given him an abundant wealth, he stingily refused to pay zakat and tried to evade payment.

After the revelation of theses verses, Tha‘laba tried to pay zakat to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him but he did not accept it. After the death of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him he went to Abu Bakr Allah be pleased with him but Abu Bakr did not accept it, too. Then, after the death of Abu Bakr, he went to ‘Umar ibn Al-Khattab Allah be pleased with him, but he also did not accept it. Then Tha‘laba died during the reign of ‘Uthman Allah be pleased with him. This is what we can call rejection. (2)

(1) His name is Tha‘laba ibn Hatib ibn ‘Amr ibn ‘Ubaid Al-Awsi Al-Ansari. He witnessed the Battle of Badr, as Muhamed ibn Ishaq says. He is the one who asked Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to ask Allah the Almighty to grant him wealth, then he refrained from paying zakat. Allah the Almighty then revealed some verses to Prophet Muhammad talking about this incident. He the Almighty says: ‘There are some among them who pledged themselves to Allah, saying, “If Allah gives us some of His Bounty, we shall certainly give alms and be righteous, ” yet when He did give them some of His Bounty, they became mean and turned obstinately away. Because they broke their promise to Allah, because of all the lies they told, He made hypocrisy settle in their hearts until the Day they meet Him.’ (at-Tawba: 75-77)

(2) Abu Umama Al Bahli said, ‘Tha‘laba came to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and said to him, ‘O Messenger of Allah, ask Allah to provide me with wealth.’ Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘Woe to you, Tha‘laba, a small amount of money that you can give its [due] thanks is better than having a wealth that you cannot give its [due] thanks.’ He said: ‘O Messenger of Allah, ask Allah to provide me with wealth.’ Prophet Muhammad said, ‘Woe to you, Tha‘laba, do you not want to be like me? If I asked Allah to turn these mountains into gold, He would turn them for me.’ He said, ‘O Messenger of Allah, ask Allah to provide me with wealth. I swear by Allah Who sent you with the True Message, if He provided me with wealth, I will give everyone who has a right what is due to him.’ Prophet Muhammad repeated, ‘Woe to you, Tha‘laba, a small amount of money that you can give its [due] thanks is better than having a wealth that you cannot give its [due] thanks.’ But the man said [again]: ‘O Messenger of Allah, ask Allah to provide=

What we need to highlight here is that giving charity, spending for the sake of Allah the Almighty and paying zakat are indications to the righteousness of the person. Giving charity spreads the sense of goodness among people and protects the poor from being driven to committing sins and being deviated from the right course.

Social solidarity must be established in societies; there must be cooperation among all the members of the society. If you are poor or needy and a rich person gives you what helps you to satisfy your needs, you will wish him/her all the best because whatever blessing s/he will have, you will have a share thereof. On the contrary, if s/he does not give you anything, mistakenly thinking that if s/he gives you, s/he will become poor, your feelings of bitterness towards him/her will be intensified.

Allah the Almighty wants the sense of social solidarity to be fostered in societies. That is why some Muslim scholars in Andalusia(1) believe that the punishment

= me with wealth.' Then Prophet Muhammad supplicated to Allah, saying, 'O Allah! Provide him with wealth.' Abu Umama said that Tha'laba bought sheep and their number increased rapidly like the number of worms increases. They increased till Medina became a small place for him to operate his trade. He took them to another place and was attending the prayers with Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him only during the day and not at night. Then they doubled again in the same way that the number of worms grows. He took them to another place and thus did attend the prayers, neither during the day nor at night. He was only attending the Friday prayers with Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Then they trebled, so he moved to another more spacious place, and he thus did not attend any of the prayers with Prophet Muhammad, even Al-Janaza prayer. He even used to meet the caravans and ask them about the latest developments. Then Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him asked about him and he was told that he had bought sheep and moved to another place more spacious than Medina, and Prophet Muhammad was told his story. Then he peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Woe to Tha'laba Ibn Hatib, woe to Tha'laba ibn Hatib.'

(1) Allah the Almighty commanded Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to take alms. He the Almighty says: 'In order to cleanse and purify them [Prophet], accept a gift out of their property [to make amends]...' (at-Tawba: 103). Then, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him sent two men, one of them was from Juhayna tribe and the other was from Bani Salama, to collect alms and wrote for them the ages of the sheep and camels and how could they know this from their faces. He asked them to go to Tha'laba ibn Hatib and another man from Salim tribe. When they reached Tha'laba and asked him to pay alms, he said to them, 'Show me the letter you have, ' and after having a look, he said to them, 'It is a mere levy, continue your way and pass by on your way back.' For this incident, Allah the Almighty revealed the following verse: 'There are some among them who pledged themselves to Allah, saying, 'If Allah gives us some of His = that should be meted out on someone who refrains from paying zakat of anything which reaches the minimum amount on which zakat is payable is to cut his/her hand, that is to say, the punishment of theft. Those scholars actually depended on the fact that Allah the Almighty ordained zakat as being a 'due right,' and whoever refrains from paying a right to whom it is payable is deemed as if s/he has stolen it from him/her. The Muslim scholars in Andalusia adopted this opinion for they were living in a rich country so that they were conservative towards this issue as there was no excuse for anyone who did so.

When individuals perform good deeds, everyone will receive larger returns of the good deeds done by others than those done by him/herself, i.e. s/he is one individual and benefits from the good deeds of the whole society. Hence, we should not feel that the Lawgiver's Orders and Obligations are burdens. In this way, we can deal in life with feelings of satisfaction at times of prosperity and feelings of safety at times of poverty.

The believers ask Allah the Almighty to return them back to the worldly life and to give them a chance to do good deeds. One of the Hadiths of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him gives this meaning: 'Whoever has wealth which enables him to perform the Islamic pilgrimage to the House of his Lord, or upon which zakat is obligatory, but he does not do it, then he shall ask to return to the worldly life upon his death.'(1)

When Ibn 'Abbas narrated this Hadith, a man said to him, 'O, Ibn 'Abbas! Fear Allah! Only the disbelievers are the ones who will ask to be returned to = Bounty, we shall certainly give alms...' (at-Tawba: 75). Knowing about the revelation of this verse, Tha'laba came to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and said to him, 'This is the due alms of my wealth,' whereupon he peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Allah ordered me not to take alms from you.' Then he started to regretfully weep and cry. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'You brought it upon yourself. I ordered you and you did not obey.' Prophet Muhammad did not accept the alms from him until his death. Then Tha'laba went to Abu Bakr, and he did not accept it; after that he went to 'Umar ibn Al-Khattab who also did not accept it. See Al-Bayhaqi, Dala'il An-Nubuwwa, 5/290.

(1) In his Tafsir, As-Suyuti narrates this Hadith and ascribes it to 'Abd ibn Hamid, At-Tirmidhi, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abu Hatim, At-Tabarani and Ibn Murdawayh, on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas. It is also narrated by Ibn Abu Hatim, At-Tirmidhi and Hamid ibn Zanjwyh. See As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur, 8/179; see also Ibn Abu Hatim, Tafsir, 3316; At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 18901; and Hamid Ibn Zanjwyh, Al-'Mwal, 1352.

the worldly life.’ In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: ‘Until when death overtakes one of them, he says: Send me back, my Lord, send me back; Haply I may do good in that which I have left. By no means! It is a (mere) word that he speaks; and before them is a barrier until the day they are raised.’ (al-Mu’minun: 99-100) But Ibn ‘Abbas, who was known as the ‘Interpreter of the Quran’, clarified to them what they did not know. He said to them, ‘I will recite to you verses of the Quran,’ and he recited: ‘Believers, do not let your wealth and your children distract you from remembering Allah: those who do so will be the ones who lose. Give out of what We have provided for you, before death comes to one of you and he says, “My Lord, if You would only reprieve me for a little while, I would give in charity and become one of the righteous.”’ (al-Munafiqun: 9-10)

Throughout the worldly life, the believers are asked to hasten to good deeds before their death, and no one of them should think that s/he can escape from Allah’s Ordinance of death. He the Almighty says: ‘And a soul will not die, but with the permission of Allah the term is fixed…’ (Al-‘Imran: 145). The ‘fixed term’ sometimes refers to the whole lifetime of the human being, yet it may also refer to the time of his/her death. When a killer destroys by his/her act of killing the structure of the killed, s/he is just doing so at the appointed term that Allah the Almighty has previously set. But, if so, why is the killer punished? As a matter of fact, s/he is punished because s/he destroyed the structure of another person.

If some of the scholars who care about scrutinising words ask, ‘If the killed person had not been killed by the killer, would have s/he died?’ The answer is ‘yes’ because the killed person died because his/her death time has come. But, did the killer know the killed person’s appointed death time? No, s/he did not. Therefore, s/he is punished for committing the crime of causing death. According to Allah’s Will, the killed person was destined to die in that way. Death is to die without the body structure being destroyed; this is only done by Allah the Almighty. But the act of killing and causing destruction to the body structure can be done by anyone, and then the person dies by Allah’s Will. This does not mean that the killer has interfered and hastened the time of death of the killed, but s/he merely interfered and caused destruction to a body structure that Allah the Almighty has built. If no one interfered to cause such destruction to this body, it still would have died at its appointed term.

No one of us knows when s/he is going to die, no matter how so many physicians s/he sees, a point which is crystal clear in Allah's saying: 'He it is Who created you from clay, then He decreed a term; and there is a term named with Him; still you doubt.' (al-An'am: 2) With regard to Allah's saying: '…then He decreed a term…' (al-An'am: 2), it means that He the Almighty has specified a term of death for every one of us, and another appointed term for everything. So, the individuals will continue to meet their appointed time of death until the appointed time of the whole comes, which is the Day of Resurrection.

There is a piece of wisdom behind setting the moment of the human being's death at a time that is only known to Allah the Almighty. So if someone knows when s/he is going to die, s/he may commit sins for a long time, and then starts to do good deeds shortly before the time of death. But Allah the Almighty wants the time of death to be hidden, so it may occur at any time.

In this vein, He the Almighty says: 'And for every nation there is a doom, so when their doom is come they shall not remain behind the least while, nor shall they go before.' (al-A'raf: 34) When one's appointed time of death comes, no one can delay it, because it is controlled by the Maintainer of the universe, or hasten it as we do not know when it will come. When Allah the Almighty hides the time of death from us, it is as if He makes it a commonly known time. In fact, such hiddenness is the best way to make it obvious. Thus, when He the Almighty wants to make something very clear to us, He makes it obscure. Let us give an example to illustrate this point further; if He the Almighty sets a certain age for death, it would be totally a fixed time with no hope to change. But He the Almighty has not set for death certain age or cause, but rather made it possible to occur at all times. The human being may die at any moment; it does not depend on a reason, but it happens for and without a reason.

As long as the human being expects death at any moment, a sinner should not meet Allah the Almighty while s/he is committing sins. Death can be caused by many things, and it also can happen without a material cause. When it happens with no evident cause, then death itself is the cause, i.e. if someone just dies with no evident cause, s/he dies because the end of his/her lifetime has come.

There is an end waiting for every one of us; an end for the lifetime of every individual. Besides, there is an appointed time for the end of the lifetime of the whole, which is the Day of Resurrection. If such end comes, it cannot be delayed or hastened.

We have to know that every lifetime, even if long, can be counted, and anything that can be counted is still ‘few’ even if it seemed ‘many,’ i.e. anything that can be counted is considered few as long as we are able to enumerate it.

Can anyone guarantee that our lifetime will be extended until we repent? Death comes suddenly and our souls are not destined to be given a delay because, after reaching the end of our lifetime, this is impossible.

Reality proves to us that our ages are not similar, nor are the causes of death. Allah the Almighty has made the human soul expect death at any moment of our life. Thus, death exists at all times. As long as this is the case, we should be aware and fear to die while we are committing a sin. As we said before, hiddenness is the best way to make things obvious.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says:

وَلَن يُؤَخِّرَ ٱللَّهُ نَفْسًا إِذَا جَآءَ أَجَلُهَا ۚ وَٱللَّهُ خَبِيرٌۢ بِمَا تَعْمَلُونَ ﴿١١﴾

God does not reprieve a soul when its turn comes: God is fully aware of what you do [11]
(The Quran, al-Munafiqun: 11)

Here, Allah the Almighty puts an end to the hopes of the sinners, criminals and hypocrites who might think that He the Almighty may delay the death of a soul whose time has come so that it can do what it could not do at the time of health and wealth and when there was a space of time in the worldly life; such delay cannot be achieved.

In this verse, He the Almighty employs the particle Lan (does not) to negate the future. He the Almighty does not say ‘did not’, but rather, He says ‘does not,’ which means that the delaying of a soul’s appointed time of death will never happen. So, He the Almighty advises us not to give ourselves vague and groundless hopes. In another verse, He the Almighty says: ‘This shall not be in accordance with your vain desires or in accordance with the vain desires of the followers of the Book; whoever does evil, he shall be requited with it…' (an-Nisa': 123).

What is a false hope? A false hope is a thing that you heartily wish that it would happen, yet it is impossible to happen. So, it will not occur and will never exist. False hopes mean that you deeply want a wish to be achieved while you do not have any practical means to achieve it. Thus, false hopes are the fools' longing for wishes that cannot be achieved, that is why they are 'false'.

In this verse in question, Allah the Almighty uses the word 'soul' as it refers to both the body and spirit of the human being. So, the assembly of both constitutes the soul. The soul has the choice whether to be obedient or disobedient. This will become much clearer when we quote the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'When you kill a soul…' (al-Baqara: 72). Here, the act of killing occurs both to the substance which is the body, by destroying its structure, and to the spirit, by causing its death. So the soul includes both together, as both of them constitute the human being.

Allah the Almighty uses the word 'soul' here and in many other instances without a definite article. Also, the one who scrutinises the verses of the Quran will find that when this word 'soul' has the definite article, it also refers to the body and spirit together. For example, Allah the Almighty says: 'In the Torah We prescribed for them the soul for the soul...' (al-Ma'ida: 45) and He the Almighty says: 'Do not kill the soul Allah has made sacred...' (al-An'am: 151). The word 'soul' here came with the definite article 'the', thus it means both the body and the spirit of the human being together.

But, with regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: '...man's very soul incites him to evil...' (Yusuf: 53) and His saying: '...you, soul at peace...' (al-Fajr: 27) the word 'soul' is used to refer only to the spirit of the human being.

One of the manifestations of the highly Quranic styles is that it uses one word to give various meanings. When Allah the Almighty says: '…when its death time comes...' (al-Munafiqun: 11), He says: '…its death time…' and does not say, 'The death time,' as a general term. Here, He the Almighty connects the death time to the soul which is mentioned here without a definite article. This means that every soul has its own death time which is not related to the other souls. There are those who die in their mothers' wombs; others might live for an hour or two then die; yet others might live too long. Even the foetuses that die in their mother's wombs, some of them die after one hour, whilst others die after a month or months.

Death overtakes all living souls; this is a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Wherever you are, death will overtake you, though you are in lofty towers…' (an-Nisa': 78). The word 'overtake' shows that when the human being becomes alive, his/her spirit is being pursued by death till it overtakes it at the time that Allah the Almighty has previously specified.

Mystic scholars say: 'Death is like an arrow which has been shot towards you, and your life span is as long as the time it takes to reach you.'(1) Thus, we realise that this word 'overtake' demonstrates that the human being's life and spirit are pursued by death until it overtakes them.

With regard to the moment of death, Allah the Almighty says: 'And He is the Supreme, above His servants, and He sends keepers over you; until when death comes to one of you, Our messengers cause him to die, and they are not remiss.' (al-An'am: 61) Those messengers do not disregard, fail in, or exceed the limit of their duty. They come to us at the appointed moment set previously by Allah the Almighty not before or after it. That is why Allah the Almighty says: 'Our messengers cause him to die...' (al-An'am: 61) and: 'Allah takes the souls at the time of their death....' (az-Zumar: 42).

The Arabic word for 'cause to die' linguistically means to take something in full. The Arabic language shows this clearly. For example, if you lent money to someone, then s/he asks you to deduct part of the loan and you refuse saying, 'I want to take my money in full,' when s/he yet pays you all your money, you say, 'I took my money in full, my money.'

With regard to delaying the time of death, Allah the Almighty says: 'And warn people of the day when the chastisement shall come to them, then those who were unjust will say: O our Lord! Respite us to a near term, (so) we shall respond to Your call and follow the Messengers. What! Did you not swear before (that) there will be no passing away for you'? (Ibrahim: 44) The last two verses of the chapter of al-Munafiqun arouse the fear that asking for a delay may be similar to what the disbelievers mistakenly think that Allah the Almighty may delay their reckoning time and may return them back to worldly life so that they may do good deeds and respond to the call of the Messengers, though they were swearing before that there is no Resurrection after death: 'What! Did you not swear before (that) there will be no passing away for you'? (Ibrahim: 44) Can anyone repel against death when it comes to him/her? We have no power to refuse the exit of our spirits from our bodies, a fact which is crystal clear in the Quran; Allah the Almighty says: 'And He is the Supreme, above His servants, and He sends keepers(1) over you; until when death comes to one of you, Our messengers cause him to die, and they are not remiss.' (al-An'am: 61)

(1) 'Abdullah ibn Al-Mu'taz said, 'Death is like an arrow which is shot towards you, and your lifetime is as long as the time it takes to reach you.' See Ath-Tha'alibi, Al-I'jaz, 1/90; and Abu Ishaq Al-Qirawany, Zahr Al-Adab Wa Thimar Al- Albab, 2/251.

Allah the Almighty talks about their expected behaviour as an unquestionable issue. He the Almighty says: '…and if they were sent back, they would certainly go back to that which they are forbidden…' (al-An'am: 28). Whether they are returned again to the worldly life or their death time is postponed, they will return to the bad deeds and to the things that they were forbidden from doing. They are not honest in their request to return back to life, nor are they honest in their demand for a delay for their death time. If someone really had wanted to do good deeds, s/he would have done them at the times of health and power and when s/he had a space of time.

Thus, we can understand that the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Allah does not reprieve a soul when its death time comes...' (al-Munafiqun: 11) urges us to hurry to perform good deeds in advance of the coming of death. So, we should hasten to do good acts and be prepared for what is coming. Allah the Almighty will not grant a delay period for anyone, whoever s/he is, nor will He elongate his/her lifetime. This incites people to hurry towards performing good acts, lest death time comes while they had fallen short in doing good deeds, or while they had not prepared themselves for meeting their Lord Glorified is He.

Then Allah the Almighty says in the verse in question: 'Allah is fully Aware of what you do.' (al-Munafiqun: 11) The fact that Allah the Almighty is fully

(1) Here, the keepers are the watching angels. In his lexicon, Ibn Mandhur says, 'The keepers are the angels who list and record the deeds of the children of Adam; they are the watching angels.' See, Al-Qamus Al-Qawim, 1/163; Ibn Mandhur, Lisan Al-'Arab, root: Hafizha.

Aware of what we do makes our hearts filled with fear and awe. The human being can deceive other humans like him/her. For example, there are some people who evade taxation by making two tax records, one for the real gains and another for the false losses. Such tax evaders own money and deny it. Such persons have to know that Allah the Almighty is fully Aware of all what they are doing. Therefore, we find in many instances in the Quran that Allah the Almighty describes Himself as the All-Subtle, Who knows the minute details of everything, the All-Aware and the Omnipotent over all things.

In our daily life, we frequently use the Arabic word for 'All-Aware' to mean 'an expert'. For example, when we face a problem, we say, 'We need the opinion of an expert,' and in courts of law we find the judge requests an expert to write a report on a special matter that this expert is specialised in and knows more about it. So, the expert in a certain field is the one who knows its details. What if we are talking about Allah, the All-Aware Who is not disobeyed by anything in His Dominion and Who perfectly knows everything in the universe, be it hidden or apparent? So, you should not deceive yourself, for if you hide something from people, it cannot be hidden from Allah the Almighty. If you were able to escape the law on earth, you will not be able to escape the Judgment of Allah the Almighty. In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'And your Lord will most surely pay back to all their deeds in full; surely He is aware of what they do.' (Hud: 111)

Allah the Almighty is Fully Aware of the deeds of His servants while they are doing them, and also before they do them. But when such deeds occur, they will be held accounted for them; they will not go in vain because the One Who knows about such deeds is the All-Aware Who has All-Knowledge.

The expert differs from the one who has general knowledge in that s/he is highly specialised in a particular field. That is why the two terms 'the All-Subtle' and 'the All-Aware' are usually used together because the 'All-Aware' means the One Who knows the places where things are, and the 'All-Subtle' means the One Who knows how to reach these places. For example, you may know the place where someone is hiding in a mountain, but such knowledge or information is not enough to reach and enter his/her place. But this needs something more which is experience, and more importantly, accuracy and delicacy.

Nothing can hinder Allah the Almighty as He is the All-Knower of the positions and locations of all things. He Glorified is He possesses both All-Subtlety and All-Awareness. His Power to know all the details cannot be confronted by anyone; nothing can be concealed from Him and nothing can stand against His Will.

Allah the Almighty is fully Aware of the positions of things, and His Knowledge is infinite. He is the All-Wise Who runs the course of events according to His Wisdom and no one can add to Him anything. He has the Absolute Perfection.

In some verses of the Quran, Allah the Almighty mentions His Attribute of All-Subtlety and All-Awareness together. He the Almighty tells us what Luqman was saying to his son: 'My son, if even the weight of a mustard (1) seed were hidden in a rock or anywhere in the heavens or earth, Allah would bring it [to light], for He is All-Subtle and All-Aware.' (Luqman: 16)

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…even the weight of a mustard seed…' (Luqman: 16) it means something which is equal to the weight of a mustard seed. This was the smallest thing they knew at that time, so they used it as a unit which indicates small things. So, no one now can wonder and ask, 'Is a mustard seed the smallest thing in the universe?' The Quran used it as an example for tininess according to the people's knowledge at the time of revelation. But for purposes of validation, we will find that the Quran mentioned atoms and other smaller things.

Allah the Almighty is the All Subtle. No matter how small or tiny things are, He reaches it by His Knowledge. Thus, He is the All-Aware and All Knowing of everything, regardless of how small it is. He is the All-Able to reach them regardless of how delicate they are because He is the All-Subtle and nothing can hinder Him. The Attribute of being All-Subtle means the full ability to know the minute details of things.

When Allah the Almighty says: 'He is All-Subtle and All-Aware,' (Luqman: 16) this means that He is neither in need for more Knowledge about space nor for something to facilitate access to things.

(1) Mustard is a tiny plant; if its seeds become dry, it becomes extremely tiny. It is an herb plant whose taste is bitter and whose seeds are used in medicine. See Al-Qamus Al-Qawim, 1/190.

As long as: 'Allah is Fully Aware of what you do,' (al-Munafiqun: 11) He is the One Who provides you with goodness of deeds by His Awareness, Wisdom, Omnipotence and Ever-Watchfulness. Awareness means the complete and wide knowledge that nothing, no matter how minute it is, can escape it owner. Allah the Almighty is fully Aware of our inner souls; He knows our inner thoughts and our intentions of doing good deeds. If someone does something in secrecy, s/he should not think, even if the people do not witness him/her, that this deed is forgotten. Indeed, it is not forgotten; Allah the Almighty knows what everyone does even if no one has witnessed him/her.

Someone may ask, 'Why does Allah the Almighty end the chapter of al-Munafiqun by His saying: 'Allah is Fully Aware of what you do.' (al-Munafiqun: 11)? The reason is clear. The original meaning of hypocrisy is to hide something other than what you show by your words or deeds. So He the Almighty clearly tells the hypocrites that He knows the reality of what they are doing or saying. He knows their secrets, their private discussions and what they are hiding.

Additionally, the chapter of al-Munafiqun talks about the issue of giving charity and spending out of our money. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: 'Give out of what We have provided for you, before death comes to one of you and he says, "My Lord, if You would only reprieve me for a little while, I would give in charity and become one of the righteous."' (al-Munafiqun: 10) Here, He the Almighty is fully Aware of our intentions behind giving of charity, be they concealed or disclosed. In addition, He the Almighty will reward us according to them. It is not disapproved that your giving of charity is disclosed as long as it is done for the purpose of giving a good example.

What is important is that when you give charity, you should dismiss any intention of showing-off. Allah the Almighty puts it clear to us that we should not spend while we are showing-off. However, the one who gives charity while his/her heart is waiting for praise, this charity will reach to the poor; they will not be deprived of it, yet the giver will not be rewarded. It is as if Allah the Almighty is saying to the poor, 'Take the charity from him/her, but s/he will be the loser and s/he will not be rewarded, although the society will reap the benefit.'

Thus, the end of the chapter of al-Munafiqun is in line with its subject. When Allah the Almighty says: 'Allah is Fully Aware of what you do,' (al-Munafiqun: 11) He reminds and warns the hypocrites that all their actions cannot be concealed from Him. Here, He the Almighty says that He is fully Aware of what we do; He does not mention what we say because 'doing' in Arabic includes both the actions and the sayings.

Allah the Almighty knows every act or feeling, a matter which requires being Fully Aware and All-Subtle. Deeds are divided into three types: the sayings of the tongue; the actions of the limbs; and the intentions and desires of the heart.

You should be aware of doing deeds that look sincere but, in reality, you are waiting for adulation. Every organ of our body has a field in which it performs its function. The function of the tongue is to utter; the ears' function is to listen; and the function of the nose is to smell; and all of them are gathered under the umbrella of deeds which include both the acts and the sayings. Sayings are made by the tongue, whilst acts are made by the other body organs.

This chapter also discusses what the hypocrites were saying. They said: 'We bear witness that you are the Messenger of Allah.' (al-Munafiqun: 1) As Allah the Almighty is the All-Aware, He continues and says: 'Allah knows that you truly are His Messenger. He bears witness that the hypocrites are liars.' (al-Munafiqun: 1)

Allah the Almighty also says about them: 'They are the ones who say, "Give nothing to those who follow Allah's Messenger until they abandon him."' (al-Munafiqun: 7) They also said: 'Once we return to Medina the powerful will drive out the weak.' (al-Munafiqun: 8) Those are examples for their sayings.

As for their acts, they are the ones whose children and wealth distract them from remembering Allah the Almighty. Therefore, He the Almighty commands the believers not to be like the hypocrites in their acts, saying: 'Believers, do not let your wealth and your children distract you from remembering Allah...' (al-Munafiqun: 9) because this is an act, and Allah the Almighty says: '…those who do so will be the ones who lose.' (al-Munafiqun: 9)

Lastly, the hypocrites do not give charities, and prevent others from doing so, and this is an act. So, the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Allah is fully aware of what you do' (al-Munafiqun: 11) includes both of their sayings and the acts they did not do. Thus, deeds include acts and sayings.

the chapter of

at-Taghabun

In the Name of God, the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of at-Taghabun (1):

يُسَبِّحُ لِلَّهِ مَا فِي ٱلسَّمَٰوَٰتِ وَمَا فِي ٱلْأَرْضِۖ لَهُ ٱلْمُلْكُ
وَلَهُ ٱلْحَمْدُۖ وَهُوَ عَلَىٰ كُلِّ شَيْءٖ قَدِيرٌ ﴿١﴾

Everything that is in the heavens and earth glorifies God; all control and all praise belong to Him; He has power over everything [1] (The Quran, at-Taghabun: 1)

Here, Allah the Almighty states a fact that the human being is not aware of, that is, the earth which we walk on and which He the Almighty has made subservient to us is glorifying Him Glorified is He the heavens that are above us and shelter us and which He the Almighty holds from falling upon the earth are also glorifying Him the Almighty. So, why does the human being deviate from this matter and does not glorify and exalt Him, Who is above all imperfections, and do like what the inanimate things do?

The human being thinks that such inanimate things are totally senseless, while this is not the truth. They do not glorify Allah the Almighty temporarily, but rather, they permanently glorify Him. That is why He the Almighty uses here the present tense,(1) which means that their glorification for Him the Almighty started in the past, is happening in the present time and will continue in the future.

(1) The number of verses of this chapter in question is 18. Scholars differed on whether it was revealed in Mecca or Medina. In his Tafsir, As-Sam'ani says, 'Most of the scholars say it was revealed in Medina.' Ad-Dahhak said it was revealed in Mecca. Al-Kalbi said it is both Meccan and Medinan, which means that some of its verses were revealed in Mecca and some others were revealed in Medina. It was revealed after the chapter of at-Tahrim. It is chapter number 64 of the Quran. It is the last chapter that begins with a glorification for Allah. See As-Sam'ani, Tafsir Al-Quran, 5/448

The heavens and the earth are part of the vast universe which we know little about its secrets and facts. The heavens and earth are under the control and Power of Allah the Almighty so they obey His Orders. Even if the human being cannot understand the nature of this glorification made by what is in the heavens and the earth and how it can be done, s/he can realise it as a practical glorification, i.e. when the heavens rain, this rain can be considered as a glorification for Allah the Almighty as they obeyed His Order to rain on His servants. As for the glorification of the earth, it is clear in the fact that it produces various kinds of plants.

What about you, O man? What do you do?! You rebel against Allah the Almighty and disobey His Orders. You are not like what is in the heavens in their glorification for Allah the Almighty nor like what is on earth in their submission to Him and in their bringing benefit for people. Allah the Almighty talks about this obedience of the heavens and the earth, saying: ‘Then He directed Himself to the heaven and it is a vapour, so He said to it and to the earth: Come both, willingly or unwillingly. They both said: We come willingly.’ (Fussilat: 11)

So, you who believe in Allah the Almighty as your Lord shall glorify Him, as all the universe does. You should never think that you can escape from His Dominion. That is why He the Almighty then says: ‘…all control and all praise belong to Him.’ (at-Taghabun: 1) This means that you and whatever you own is the property of Allah the Almighty and that He has the Power over you. He is the Only Owner of the Kingdom. In the worldly life, He the Almighty made things belong to people according to their efforts, but in the Hereafter no one will have any control. In this connection, He the Almighty says: ‘To whom belongs the kingdom this day? To Allah, the One, the Subduer (of all).’ (Ghafir: 16) Also, He the Almighty says elsewhere in the Quran: ‘Say, “Allah, holder of all control”…’ (Al-‘Imran: 26). No one has control over things except Allah the Almighty. The control we have over things is not obtained by ourselves because if so, no one would be able to take it from us, and we would never lose it.

(1) The present tense in Arabic Language refers to an act that started in the past, still continuing in the present time, and will continue in the future as well.

Allah the Almighty is the One Who gives control to whomever He wants. He is the Grantor of sovereignty, power, and authority. No one, even the tyrant, can force Him the Almighty to do something. That is why He Glorified is He says elsewhere in the Quran: ‘Say, “Allah, holder of all control, You give control to whoever You will and remove it from whoever You will; You elevate whoever You will and humble whoever You will. All that is good lies in Your Hand: You have power over everything.”’ (Al-‘Imran: 26)

It is necessary to know that there is a difference between ‘ownership’ and ‘sovereignty’. Everyone has something which s/he owns such as clothes, pen, or the furniture of his/her house. Such things are called possessions, whereas ‘sovereignty’ means to have control over those who have ownership. Allah the Almighty has given sovereignty to some human beings over others. First, He the Almighty gave them ownership of some items, and then He gave sovereignty to others over them. Allah the Almighty removes sovereignty from one and gives it to another in order to avoid monotony. He has the real sovereignty; He grants from His sovereignty to whomever He wills. However, the king and what lies in his sovereignty are controlled by Allah the Almighty since He is Ever Watchful over His creatures. No one gets out of His control.

Allah the Almighty has the everlasting sovereignty of the worldly life and the Hereafter. Since there is sovereignty in the worldly life, He Glorified is He grants part of it to His creatures, a fact which is clear in His saying: ‘…because Allah had given him the kingdom…’ (al-Baqara: 258). He the Almighty also says in another verse: ‘…You give control to whoever You will and remove it from whoever You will...’ (Al-‘Imran: 26). So, it is clear that sovereignty is for Allah the Almighty and that He gives it to His creatures in the worldly life for certain reasons. However, in the Hereafter, sovereignty will be removed from everyone except Allah the Almighty; even the human being’s control over his/her senses will be taken away from him/her that his/her senses will testify against him/her, saying what s/he did in the worldly life.

The fact that all-sovereignty belongs only to Allah the Almighty ensures that the components of life on earth are sustained; the air will not be cut one day; the sun, the moon and the earth will never refuse to serve you one day because they are controlled by Allah the Almighty. No one shares their sovereignty with Him, and so no one can prevent you from them. They are guaranteed to serve you all the time, so do not worry about them. This is because the sovereignty of the heavens, the earth, and that which is on, inside, and between them all belong to Allah the Almighty Alone. In this regard, He says: 'Do you not see that Allah drives along the clouds, then gathers them together, then piles them up, so that you see the rain coming forth from their midst? And He sends down of the clouds that are (like) mountains wherein is hail, afflicting there with whom He pleases and turning it away from whom He pleases; the flash of His lightning almost takes away the sight.' (an-Nur: 43)

When Allah the Almighty says: 'Do not think those who rejoice for what they have done and love that they should be praised for what they have not done—so do by no means think them to be safe from the chastisement, and they shall have a painful chastisement.' (an-Nur: 188) This threatening will be achieved since no one can escape from Him out of the ultimate fact that He the Almighty is the Owner of the heavens and the earth. When He promises, He is Fully Able to execute what He has promised, thus no one will escape from Him. We live within His dominion; the sky is above us and the earth holds us. Both are the possessions of Allah the Almighty so where will you go?

Allah's Omnipotence is manifested in the issue of reproduction. He the Almighty says: 'To Allah is the kingdom of the heavens and the earth; He creates what He pleases; He grants to whom He pleases daughters and grants to whom He pleases sons. Or He makes them of both sorts, male and female; and He makes whom He pleases barren…' (ash-Shura: 49-50). He the Almighty has the Absolute Power to create whatever He wills. So, He the Almighty willed to divide people into the four logical categories, as follows: whether to create them from both parents, or to create a human being without two parents, like Adam, or to create a being from the male only, like Eve, or to create through the female only like Jesus peace be upon him.

The heavens and the earth are the place where all creatures, including the constellations, the sun, the planets, the moon, the stars, the air, the clouds, water, the animals, and the human beings, exist. The earth is the bottom dominion which we see, and which upon it exist food, animals and the human beings. The heavens with all of their components represent the higher dominion; they both are the Possessions of Allah the Almighty. He is the Supreme Owner of everything and owns even the owners of things. No creature can avert from His Will. As for the worldly life, He the Almighty made its means of sustenance under the control of people; for instance, the provision of one human being is under the control of another. He the Almighty also has made some of us take control of the affairs of others; for instance, someone owns the food, while another owns clothes.

However, not every owner is sovereign because the sovereign is the one who owns the owners. This is a Divine Law in the universe. By contrast, in the Hereafter, there is One Sovereign Who has control over the Day of Judgment. He the Almighty owns the whole universe which is composed of various elements. The first element is the servant which is not served, namely, the inanimate objects, including water, mountains, iron, the sun, the moon and the stars, etc. All of these are inanimate objects since they have no senses. Such inanimate objects serve first the plants; the plants then serve the animals and finally the animals serve the human being. Thus, the inanimate objects are servants for all the superior elements: the plants, animals and the human being. The plants serve their superior elements as well which are animals and the human being, while the animals serve their superior element which is the human being.

So, Allah the Almighty says: '…all control and all praise belongs to Him…' (at-Taghabun: 1). Whenever you hear the word 'praise', you have to understand that it is the word of glorification, commendation and gratitude. Praise is something innate that we direct to Allah the Almighty since He has provided each one of us with His Provision, as He Glorified is He is the Provider of Graces. Due to His Mercy, He the Almighty has made thanking Him in these words: 'Praise be to Allah.' By contrast, when you want to thank someone for a favour s/he did for you, you may spend long hours eliciting the words of gratitude and praise, removing, and adding and asking people about their opinions until you figure out a poem or a letter full of praise and gratitude. Thus, due to His Mercy, Allah the Almighty has taught us the way of praising Him. If He had left the matter without specifying these words, it would have been challenging for people to find the appropriate expression to praise Him for His Divine Perfection.

No matter how eloquent and fluent people are, they fail to come up with a praise formula appropriate for the Sublimity of Allah, the Provider. How do we praise Allah the Almighty while the mind is unable to realise His Omnipotence, count His favours or comprehend His Mercy? Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him depicts the human failure to thank the Divine Perfection of Allah the Almighty saying, ‘I cannot enumerate Your praises as You praise Yourself.’(1)

Allah the Almighty makes all people equal through these words of praise; the illiterate who does not read or write expresses his/her gratitude through these words like all other people. As Allah the Almighty is All Just, He wants to make all His worshipers equal using one praise formula. The first words in the Quran are: ‘All praise belongs to the Lord of the Worlds.’ (al-Fatiha: 2) Before He created us, Allah the Almighty had created all the favours due for praise; He created the heavens and the earth; He provided us with water and air and placed on earth its sustenance until the Day of Judgment.

This is a favour which deserves praising because Allah the Almighty created His favours even before He created mankind. So, when He the Almighty created the human being, His favours were already there receiving him/her. Moreover, He created Adam, father of all mankind, after He had created paradise wherein he lived without fatigue or misery. So, He the Almighty is praised because all that is praiseworthy is actually found in the universe, even before the existence of mankind. He created in this universe what supports the human being without effort or submission; however, the human being is unable to provide him/herself with these favours which Allah the Almighty offers without efforts. The sun gives warmth and life to the earth without compensation or effort by the humans; the rain is sent down from the heavens without effort or ability to bring it down; and the air is there surrounding you everywhere in order to breathe with no effort or ability; even the earth provides you with fruits as soon as you sow it and water it; the plants grow by the Will of Allah the Almighty. Meanwhile, the day and night rotate in order that you can sleep and seek sustenance for your life. You did not bring the light of the day, nor did you make the darkness of the night; however, you rest at night and work all day thanks to Allah's Omnipotence and without any interference by us. This necessitates due praise.

(1) ‘Aisha Allah be pleased with her said, ‘One night I missed the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him from bed so I felt for him with my hand and I put my hand on his feet and he was prostrating and saying, “I seek refuge in Your Pleasure from Your Wrath, in Your Forgiveness from Your punishment and in You from You. I cannot enumerate Your Praises as You praise Yourself.”’ See Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 1118; Abu Dawud, Sunnan, Hadith no. 879; and At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 3493.

When you say, 'Praise belongs to Allah,' this carries meanings of gratitude that even fails to provide due thanks to Allah the Almighty Who is All-Perfect and Who is the Provider of All Bounties. These words are not only uttered through the mouth, they pass through the mind first in order to be aware of the Greatness of Allah's Favours. They then settle in the heart in order to be influenced by the Favours, and they finally move to the organs. Thereupon, the person stands up to perform prayers thanking Allah the Almighty with all his/her body shaking and trembling and with his/her eyes full of tears. Allah's return of our souls to us after getting up from sleep is a favour that deserves praising. If we stood up, this is due to the ability that Allah the Almighty has granted us. As a matter of fact, without this ability, we would not be able to stand up. This deserves praising as well. (1)

Any movement of the human being in this worldly life requires praise. So, the human being should praise Allah the Almighty constantly. S/he should praise Him Glorified is He for any harm striking him/her because what you, O man, think as evil may entail good in essence. You should praise Allah the Almighty for all conditions because His Predestination is good, whether you like it or not. It is good for you because you do not know, while Allah the Almighty perfectly knows.

(1) Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him narrated that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'When any of you goes to bed, he should say, 'With Your Name, my Lord, I place my side and with Your Grace I will raise it up. If you withhold my soul [cause me to die], have mercy on it but if You let it go [let me live], guard it against which You guarded Your pious slaves.' And when you awaken, you should say, 'All praise is due to Allah Who healed me in my body, and returned to me my soul, and permitted me to remember Him' See At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 3401; see also An-Nasa'i, As-Sunnan Al-Kubra, Hadith no. 10636.

Among the Most Beautiful Names of Allah the Almighty is the Praiseworthy and the Honourable; He, says: 'Indeed, He is Praiseworthy and Honourable.' (Hud: 73) So, He the Almighty deserves praise for Himself and for all that He does to His creatures; His Goodness and Benevolence are limitless. The Arabic word Al-Hamid '…Praiseworthy…' (Hud: 73) suggests two meanings: 'praising' and 'being praised'. So, Allah the Almighty is Hamid because He praises whoever obeys Him faithfully. In the same connection, He the Almighty is the Praised One because people praise Him for His Generous Favours.

Moreover, we praise Him the Almighty because His Destiny and His Knowledge of the unseen are concealed from us; He is the One Who protects us from the others, that is to say that we should praise Him Glorified is He since He concealed our fate from the others. If you knew what I hide in my heart, it might not please you; you might never forget that and thus harbour a bad idea about me. However, bad thoughts and ideas may pass through our minds and then we forget them, without even being known by others. If each one of us knew the unseen of the other, life would be exhausting. There is a popular saying, 'If you share all of your secrets, you will not bury each other.'(1) Therefore, one of the greatest favours of Allah the Almighty which deserves praise is that He the Almighty conceals the defects of people from each other.

Praise is also due to Allah the Almighty: 'And say: (All) praise is due to Allah, Who has not taken a son and Who has not a partner in the kingdom, and Who has not a helper to save Him from disgrace; and proclaim His Greatness magnifying (Him).' (al-Isra': 111) Allah the Almighty refrains from taking sons; He Glorified is He made all people, His servants, equal to each other. Yet, He the Almighty loves the most pious ones. Thus, all creatures receive Compassion and Mercy from Him Glorified is He.

In the verse in question of the chapter of at-Taghabun, Allah the Almighty says: '…all control and all praise belong to Him…' (at-Taghabun: 1) He also says in the chapter of al-Isra': '…Who has not a partner in the kingdom…' (al-Isra': 111). This is also one of the bounties that require praising Allah the Almighty for can you imagine the confusion of the servants if there is a partner with Allah the Almighty in His Dominion? Which one should they obey and which one should they please?!

(1) In his book, Abu Bakr Ad-Dinury relates that Al-Hasan Al-Basri said, 'I hear faint sounds and see no one saying, "(The manners of) People went while the (manners of) monkeys remained. If you share all of your secrets, you will not bury each other. You exchanged plates as gifts, but you did not exchange pieces of advice."' Al-Mubarrid says, 'If you share your secrets, you will find it heavy to bury each other.' See Ad-Dinury, Al-Mujalasa Wa Jawahir Al-'Ilm, 3/21; see also Ibn Al-Jawzi, Gharib Al-Hadith, 2/291.

Thus, Allah the Almighty explains for us this matter by offering us the following example: He the Almighty says: 'Allah sets forth an example: There is a slave in whom are (several) partners differing with one another, and there is another slave wholly owned by one man. Are the two alike in condition?' (az-Zumar: 29) Allah's being One, without a partner, in His Dominion makes you feel reassured about His Command and Proscription because His Commands are certainly implemented and no one can reverse His Decision or even oppose Him. There is no other god who commands you to something contradictory to His command. Is this not a bounty for which Allah the Almighty requires praising?

Allah the Almighty never seeks the protection of anyone, nor does He seek the support of anyone. That is because He is the Almighty Who grants honour, Who is Self-Sustained and Who does not need anyone. In this regard, He the Almighty says: '…and Who has not a helper to save Him from disgrace…' (al-Isra': 111).

The Bounties of Allah the Almighty that we should praise Him for are countless, but these three Bounties are at the top of them all, i.e. Praise belongs to Allah the Almighty because He has no child; Praise belongs to Allah the Almighty Who has no partner because He is the One God; and Praise belongs to Allah the Almighty Who is not so weak as to need a protector since He is the All-Dominant the Almighty and the One Who grants honour.

The word 'praise' in the verse in question indicates restriction, that is, the absolute and complete praise belongs only to Allah the Almighty. It is the praise that encompasses everything as He the Almighty says: 'All praise belongs to Him…' (at-Taghabun: 1). So, the absolute praise is confined to Allah the Almighty Alone. This Praise for Him the Almighty shall be continuous, so that He Glorified is He is praised forever and the servant keeps praising Him eternally. We are praising Him because He is glorified by all creatures, a fact which is clear in His saying: 'Everything that is in the heavens and earth glorifies Allah…' (at-Taghabun: 1) He is far exalted over any similarity with His creatures and this is a bounty for which we should thank Him the Almighty and praise Him. We should also praise Him because there is nothing like Him Glorified is He.

He is the All-Powerful Who never becomes weak and the All Knowing Who knows all that is in the heavens and the earth. He is the All-Generous Who never becomes stingy, and the All-Omnipotent Who never becomes disabled. This is a great bounty that also entails extending praising for Him the Almighty. How would He support those who believed in Him if He were weak? How would He know the distressed among His servants and answer their supplications if He were not All Knowing? How can a God grudge giving bounty to His creatures?!

Thus, all the praise belongs to Allah the Almighty because He is exalted over any defect, as He says: 'He has power over everything.' (at-Taghabun: 1) Everything is subjected to Allah's Will and Power. He says: 'Do you [Prophet] not know that control of the heavens and earth belongs solely to Allah?' (al-Ma'ida: 40) Therefore, everything in the universe is possessed by Allah the Almighty and He does what He wants in His Possession. So, when Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him emigrated to Medina, the Jews were possessing property and some religious and mundane knowledge. For this reason, they were the masters of Medina and started to scheme against him peace and blessings be upon him. Allah the Almighty has made Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him feel reassured that the Absolute Power in the universe belongs only to Him Glorified is He and that the Jews' sovereignty will not last forever because He the Almighty takes sovereignty away from whom He wills and gives it to whom He wills. As long as He the Almighty is the Only Sovereign, He can take from the Jews and from all the people in the worldly life what they possess because there is nothing that He cannot do and nothing can disobey Him, as He is the All-Powerful over everything. Thus, you should seek refuge in Allah the Almighty Who is the Supreme Creator and holds control over everything, thus nothing can dominate Him in His affairs. He is the Ever Powerful Who can give you or hold from you, and He the Almighty has Unlimited Power.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says:

هُوَ ٱلَّذِى خَلَقَكُمْ فَمِنكُمْ كَافِرٌ وَمِنكُم مُّؤْمِنٌ ۚ وَٱللَّهُ بِمَا تَعْمَلُونَ بَصِيرٌ (٢)

It is He who created you, yet some of you disbelieve and some believe: God sees everything you do [2]
(The Quran, at-Taghabun: 2)

To start with, we must receive the information of how we were created only from Allah the Almighty because He is the One Who created us, thus we must believe Him regarding this matter. In this vein, He the Almighty says: 'I did not make them witnesses to the creation of the heavens and earth, nor to their own creation; I do not take as my supporters those who lead others astray.' (al-Kahf: 51) No one had ever claimed that s/he had created the creation, which is one of the well-established facts about the universe. Allah the Almighty has created the universe and all that is in it, and as no one else had claimed that, then this creation is purely attributed to Him the Almighty.

If there were many gods in the universe, every one of them would claim he had created the universe. However, no one except Allah the Almighty had claimed this. As this is the case, then it is a well-established fact that Allah is the Creator of everything. In fact, no one in the creation can claim that s/he has created him/herself or anyone else. Thus, the matter of creation conclusively belongs to Allah the Almighty.

In the Noble Quran, Allah the Almighty mentions for us what is unknown about the creation. He says that He has created man from dust, and then from clay which later became black mud fashioned in shape, and then He breathed the Spirit into him. In this connection, He the Almighty says: 'O people! If you are in doubt about the raising, then surely We created you from dust.' (al-Hajj: 5) He also says: 'Surely We created them of firm clay.' (as-Saffat: 11) Further, He the Almighty says: 'And certainly We created man of clay that gives forth sound, of black mud fashioned in shape.' (al-Hijr: 26) Moreover, He Glorified is He says: 'So when I have made him complete and breathed into him of My Spirit, then fall down making obeisance to him.' (Sad: 72)

Thus, the Creator Glorified is He says that He has created the human being from dust which turned to clay and became black mud fashioned in shape and then became dry clay, like earthen vessels, after which He the Almighty shaped him in the form of a man. Then He the Almighty breathed into him of His Spirit and thus he became a living human being.

These stages have not been witnessed by the human being or any other creature, but Allah the Almighty has put forward evidence for these stages by what we can see in the case of death; the soul, which was the last thing to be put into the human being, is the first element to depart from the body. Then, the body becomes stiff like dry clay similar to earthen vessels. Afterwards, it decays and the water inside the body evaporates and thus returns to be dust. What we see in the case of death and the stages of the decay of the bodies makes us fully realise the stages of creating man from dust, which only happened for one time in the case of Adam peace be upon him. Thereafter, Eve was created from Adam and, afterwards, Allah the Almighty has made the reproduction of the human beings through the water (sperm) of the man and the woman.

In this regard, He the Almighty says: ‘The man should reflect on what he was created from. He is created from spurting fluid, and then he emerges from between the backbone and breastbone.’ (at-Tariq: 5-7) In reality, this fluid, which is the sperm, has special characteristics about which Allah the Almighty says: ‘Was he not just a drop of spilt-out sperm which became a clinging form, which Allah shaped in due proportion’ (al-Qiyama: 37-38)?

Allah the Almighty creates either a male or a female from the sperm and gives them the ability of reproduction, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘We have created man from an essence of clay, then placed him as a drop of fluid in a safe place, then he made that drop into a clot of thick blood, and made that form into a piece of flesh, and made that piece into bones, and clothed those bones with flesh, and later made him into other forms—glory be to Allah, the best of creators.’ (al-Mu’minun: 12-14)

In this regard, it is narrated that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘A human being is put together in the womb of the mother for forty days, and then he becomes a clot of thick blood for a similar period, and then a piece of flesh for a similar period. Then Allah sends an angel who is ordered to write four things. He is ordered to write down his (i.e. the new creature's) deeds, his livelihood, his (date of) death, and whether he will be blessed or wretched (in religion). Then the soul is breathed into him.'(1)

Thus, the first stage of creation of the human being is the sperm which is spurted out of the man into the womb of the woman. This fluid is called the 'spermatozoon,' which carries, as the modern science has proved, the characteristics of either femaleness or maleness. Thus, the woman has nothing to do with determining the gender of the foetus. This seems to refer to women's mission as a source of serenity for the man, just as the ovum receives the spermatozoon and embraces it so that the development of the human being's creation completes.

The sperm-drop of the man mixes with woman's water to form what we call 'a clot of thick blood'. This happens when the sperm-drop attaches to the uterine wall after forty days. The embryologists call this clot of thick blood 'zygote', which refers to a fertilised ovum that starts to take its nourishment from it.

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…and made that form into a piece of flesh…' (al-Mu'minun: 14), it means that out of this 'clot of thick blood,' Allah the Almighty then creates a piece of flesh which is proportional to the piece that can be chewed. In Arabic, the word Mudgha (piece of flesh) means a mixture of many kinds of food chewed together, as when one eats, for instance, a piece of meat with a spoon of a vegetable salad and a spoon of rice, which all finally turn into a mixture by chewing them together.

As far as the creation of the human being is concerned, the piece of flesh is either shaped or unshaped; the shaped one forms the limbs and the organs of the human being, while the unshaped one repairs what is damaged of the human body. For example, when an injury or any other form of disorder happens to the human being, the unshaped piece of flesh does its part to repair the body. So, the shaped piece of flesh forms the limbs and the organs whilst the unshaped one serves as the balance put in the body to maintain it and compensate for any disorder that happens to the shaped limbs.

(1) This Hadith is narrated by Al-Bukhari, Muslim, Ahmad and Al-Bayhaqi on the authority of 'Abdulah ibn Mas'ud Allah be pleased with him. See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 3208, 3332 and 6594; Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 6893; Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 3624 and 4091; and Al-Bayhaqi, As-Sunnan Al-Kubra, Hadith no. 15819 and 21816

This piece of flesh remains for another forty days and then the fashioning of the human being takes place in the womb. This stage is concerned with creating the substance from which the human being will be fashioned in a specific form that differs with regard to the gender, male or female; the colour of the skin be it white, black, brown or red; and the stature, be it short or tall. These are the distinctive features that the created beings will have.

After the completion of the human being's formation, Allah the Almighty sends an angel who is ordered to write down the new creature's deeds, livelihood, date of death, and whether s/he will be blessed or wretched in religion. Then the soul is breathed into it.

Being wretched or blessed in religion is predestined for the one who is so described according to Allah's Eternal Knowledge. He the Almighty perfectly knows whether the new creature will be blessed or wretched and also knows for certain where and when s/he will be, which is beyond the ability of the doctors and researchers in the present and in the future.

In this verse in question, Allah the Almighty says: 'It is He Who created you…' (at-Taghabun: 2). Here, He the Almighty uses the demonstrative pronoun 'Who' after the third person pronoun 'He', in order to confine the act of creating the human beings to Himself, and to emphasise that no other creature has created them. This fact has been mentioned twenty-eight times in the Quran. For example, He the Almighty says: 'He it is Who created for you all that is in the earth…' (al-Baqara: 29); 'He it is Who shapes you in the wombs as He likes...' (Al-'Imran: 6); 'He it is Who made the sun a shining brightness and the moon a light.' (Yunus: 5) In addition, He the Almighty says: 'He it is Who sends down water from the cloud for you; it gives drink, and by it (grow) the trees upon which you pasture.' (an-Nahl: 10) He further says: 'Say: He it is Who brought you into being and made for you the ears and the eyes and the hearts: little is it that you give thanks.' (al-Mulk: 23)

Here arises a question, which is, 'If all the creation were created by Allah the Almighty why does He say: '…so blessed is Allah, the best of creators…'?

(al-Mu'minun: 14) Are there other creators and Allah the Almighty is the best one among them all?' We respond to that question by stating that Allah the Almighty has not prevented the human beings from creating things, but the creation of Allah the Almighty is better than theirs, as He creates out of nothing, while they create from something already existent. He the Almighty creates His creatures and endows them with life and ability of multiplication, but the human beings, on the contrary, create something bereft of life and development. Moreover, the human beings do not create something out of nothing; rather, they compose something from existing substances; therefore, they use substances already created by Allah the Almighty to create something. Furthermore, what is created by the human beings remains in the same condition without reproduction, development, or sensibility, whereas the Great Creator, Allah the Almighty creates out of nothing.

So, Allah the Almighty has willed to bestow out of His Bounty on His servants by giving them the attribute of creating, but what they create is totally different from His Creation. He the Almighty has created Adam and brought his offspring into existence out of him. On the contrary, the human beings may make some useful instruments and tools for their lives, but, unlike Allah, they do not create out of nothing; they create from what is existent and their creation remains fixed in the same condition.

For this reason, those who believed in the divinity of Jesus peace be upon him thought that his creation of the birds from clay is evidence for his divinity. By so doing, they have committed a fatal mistake and have gone far astray. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: '…I determine for you out of dust like the form of a bird, then I breathe into it and it becomes a bird with Allah's permission…' (Al-'Imran: 49). Thus, Jesus peace be upon him did not create the birds out of nothing, but rather from clay composed of dust and water, which are originally created by Allah the Almighty alone. Jesus peace be upon him only shaped from the clay a form like the bird, which is also created by Allah the Almighty; thus, his work is confined to shaping the birds. Afterwards, he peace be upon him: '…breathe into it and it becomes a bird with Allah's permission…' (Al-'Imran: 49). This breathing of the spirit into the formed bird is not an intrinsic attribute of Jesus peace be upon him; rather, it is carried out with Allah's Permission.

If Allah the Almighty had not granted His Permission to make Jesus' breath the cause of placing the spirit into the shaped bird, it would not have become a living bird even if his breathing continued until the Day of Resurrection. Thus, Jesus' miracle of making a bird out of clay is carried out with Allah's Permission. Similarly, his healing of the blind and the leper and his bringing of the dead back to life are all carried out with Allah's permission. Thus, Jesus peace be upon him did not really create the birds, as his role was simply confined to making the bird's shape out of the clay.

In fact, Allah the Almighty is the only True Creator, for He creates out of nothing. By contrast, the human beings can make things and shape them in the image of Allah's creation, but what they make is not really a creation. This is evident in the sculptures that an artist makes out of stones or clay in the shape of a camel or a bird, for example; s/he cannot breathe the spirit into them. Further, the human being can make a cup from purified, molten sand, but we have never heard of making a male and a female cup that produces other cups!

Allah the Almighty describes the human being as 'a creator' and respects his/her creating of something new out of something else, whereas He is the best of creators as He creates out of nothing. Further, He the Almighty has created living, developing, and multiplying creatures, but the human being only creates fixed things that remain in their original conditions.

Thus, with regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…I determine for you out of dust like the form of a bird…' (Al-'Imran: 49) it is known that the human being can make the shape of a bird out of clay, but can we say that the human being has created a real, living bird? In other words, does the greatness stem from the act of shaping the bird itself? No, the greatness is embodied in bringing life to it, which is only done by Allah the Almighty. That is why Jesus peace be upon him said: '…I breathe into it and it becomes a bird with Allah's permission…' (Al-'Imran: 49).

Then, Allah the Almighty says: 'It is He Who created you, yet some of you disbelieve, and some believe.' (at-Taghabun: 2) After discussing the topic of creation, scholars discussed the question of whether or not Allah the Almighty has created the believer and the disbeliever as such; in other words, is the human being coerced and compelled to be a disbeliever? If so, why does

Allah the Almighty punish him/her and throw him/her eternally in the hellfire? Some people understood from this verse that Allah the Almighty has destined a person to be a believer, while in his/her mother's womb and, similarly, He has destined the disbeliever to be as such while in his/her mother's womb. They cited the Hadith of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in which he said, 'Allah has created Pharaoh in his mother's womb as a disbeliever and created John in his mother's womb as a believer.'(1) They also cited Messenger Muhammad's saying, 'By Allah other than Whom there is no God, certainly, one of you will definitely perform the deeds of the people of paradise until there is not between him and paradise except an arm's length and then what has been recorded will overtake him and he shall perform the deeds of the people of hell and enter it. And, certainly, one of you will definitely perform the acts of the people of hell until there is not between him and hell except an arm's length and then what has been recorded will overtake him and he shall perform the deeds of the people of paradise and enter it.'

The verse in question and these Hadiths do not give the meaning mistakenly understood by some people, which is that the servant is compelled to do his/her actions and has no choice but to do them, like a piece of paper facing a violent storm. However, creating Pharaoh in his mother's womb as a disbeliever, does not mean that Allah the Almighty has compelled him to disbelieve or that He the Almighty has predestined that for him. The fact is that He the Almighty has created him as a disbeliever according to His Eternal Knowledge that he, i.e. Pharaoh would not believe and would die as a disbeliever. If He the Almighty has compelled Pharaoh to disbelieve, why has He sent Moses peace be upon him to him and has given him the chance to believe? However, Allah the Almighty eternally knows that Pharaoh would disbelieve and claim divinity.

For this reason, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'What has been recorded will overtake him,' which means that what

(1) In his Tafsir, As-Suyuti narrates this Hadith on the authority of Ibn Mas'ud Allah be pleased with him. He ascribes it to Ibn 'Uday, Ad-Daraqutni, Al-Bayhaqi and Ibn 'Asakir. Furthermore, it is narrated by Al-Bayhaqi and Ibn 'Uday. See As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur, 3/529; see also Al-Bayhaqi, Al-Qada' Wa Al-Qadar, 1/80; and Ibn 'Uday, Al-Kamil Fi Du'afa' Ar-Rijal, 8/277

Allah the Almighty has recorded, according to His eternal Knowledge, in the Preserved Tablet about what would happen until the Day of Resurrection and what the servant would do out of his/her own accord will overtake him/her, not what Allah the Almighty has compelled His servant to do.

Some other scholars stop in the recital of this verse at Allah's saying: '…created you…' (at-Taghabun: 2) then resume the recital with His saying: '…some of you disbelieve and some believe.' (at-Taghabun: 2) This means that Allah the Almighty has created the human beings with a true faith in Islam as Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Every child is born with true faith in Islam, then his parents convert him to Judaism or Christianity or Magianism.'

Thus, disbelief or belief comes from the human being him/herself; it is up to the servant to disbelieve or believe. Let us give an example to further illustrate this point. Allah the Almighty says: 'And Allah has created from water every living creature: some of them is that which walks upon its belly, and of them is that which walks upon two feet, and of them is that which walks upon four; Allah creates what He pleases; surely Allah has power over all things.' (an-Nur: 45) Therefore, He the Almighty has created all living creatures from water, yet their actions differ; some walk upon their bellies like the creeping creatures and snakes; some others walk upon two feet like the human being and the birds; and some walk upon four feet like the cattle, the cows, goats and sheep.

So, He the Almighty has created all of these from the same materials, but their way of walking is determined by their choice, as He says: '…some of them is that which walk…' (an-Nur: 45). Those who maintained this opinion were unaware that their walking upon their bellies, two feet or four feet is a sign of the perfection of their creation by Allah the Almighty. That is to say that He the Almighty has wanted to make the snakes and the creeping beings walk upon their bellies; the human being to walk on two feet; and the cattle and the lion, for example, to walk on four. All that He has willed come to pass. So, the way these creatures walk is not merely dependent on their will or independent choice.

At this point, all that remains to say is that the stance of the Sunnites is middle between the two previous stances: between Al-Jabriyya,(1) who maintained the Absolute Will of Allah the Almighty and that He has created His servants and also their deeds and that the servant has no choice or action, and those who maintained that the human being has an absolute will and that Allah the Almighty has created the universe and the human being, but then left them, that is, He has no Will over that of the human being. Both stances are wrong, as the sound stance is the middle between them.

The people discussed the issue of creating the servants' deeds. Let us, first of all, define the meaning of the 'deed'! It means to direct a power to do something. There is a power, for instance, in the hand that enables it to do good or bad; it does what the human being wants, such as hitting someone, carrying someone off the ground, or patting on an orphan's head. The limbs and its readiness to do good or bad are created by Allah the Almighty but it is the human being who directs them to do what Allah the Almighty has obliged him/her to do. This direction of the power is what the servant will be rewarded or punished for. Thus, you will be held accountable not for the creation of the actions, but rather for doing them, as Allah the Almighty is the Creator of the actions and you carry them out by your choice and will. The tongue, for example, has a created power to express what is in the soul; it enables the believer to say, 'There is no god but Allah,' and also the atheist to say – Allah forbid –: 'There is no God.' The tongue, created by Allah the Almighty does not disobey man in either case.

Thus, the human being's limbs are nothing but witnesses against him/her on the Day of Resurrection, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Until when they come to it, their ears and their eyes and their skins shall bear witness against them as to what they did. And they shall say to their skins: Why have you borne witness against us? They shall say: Allah Who makes everything speak has made us speak, and He has created you at first, and to Him you shall be brought back.' (Fussilat: 20-21)

(1) Al-Jabriyya is a sect whose followers believe that the servant is compelled to do his/her actions and that s/he has nothing to do with it, to the extent that they believe that attributing the action to the servant is an act of disbelief. In their opinion, the servant has no control over his actions like someone falling from a high place or a palm leaf moved by the wind. They also maintain that the servant does not do an act of obedience or disobedience with his/her free will and that Allah does not burden him/her according to his/her ability, but rather, He overburdens him/her. Further, they hold that the servant does not create his/her actions and has no power over them. By so doing, they excused the disbelievers, the transgressors and the disobedient. See Al-Hakami, Ma'arij Al-Qabul, 1/372

When we ponder over the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'It is He Who created you, yet some of you disbelieve and some believe…' (at-Taghabun: 2), we find that He the Almighty mentions the disbeliever before the believer, so what is the reason for this? The intended meaning here is to rebuke some people for disbelieving in Allah the Almighty even though He has created them and bestowed life and countless Bounties on them. The disbelieving group is the majority of people and that is why Allah the Almighty will say to Adam peace be upon him on the Day of Resurrection: 'Bring forth the group of (the denizens of) Fire.' Adam would say: 'Who are the denizens of Hell?' It would be said: 'They are out of every thousand nine hundred and ninety-nine.'(1) In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: 'And very few of My servants are grateful;' (Saba': 13) He the Almighty also says: '…but most people do not believe.' (ar-Ra'd: 1)

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'It is He Who created you, yet some of you disbelieve and some believe…' (at-Taghabun: 2), we notice that the verse only mentions two kinds of people, namely: the disbeliever and the believer. It does not make mention of the hypocrites, the transgressors or the wrongdoers. The reason for this is that the position here is intended to talk about the creation of the human being: 'It is He Who created you…' (at-Taghabun: 2) and, then, the creation of the heavens and earth: 'He created the heavens and earth for a true Purpose…' (at-Taghabun: 3). The people are divided in this regard into believers and disbelievers, either believing that

(1) Abu Sa'id Al-Khudri narrated that Messenger Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Allah, the High and Glorious, would say: O Adam I and he would say: At Your service, at Your beck and call, O Lord, and the good is in Your Hand. Allah would say: Bring forth the group of (the denizens of) fire. He (Adam) would say: 'Who are the denizens of hell? It would be said: 'They are out of every thousand nine hundred and ninety-nine.' Prophet Muhammad then said: 'It is at this juncture that every child would become white-haired and every pregnant woman would abort and you would see people in a state of intoxication, and they would not be in fact intoxicated but grievous will be the torment of Allah.' See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 3348; Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 554

Allah the Almighty is the Creator or disbelieving in that. Accordingly, Allah the Almighty only mentions two kinds of people here.

Some scholars consider this verse an argument against those who maintain that there is a degree between belief and disbelief. Although we also believe that this article of faith is wrong, this verse has nothing to do with this. The verse talks about those who deny the Existence of Allah the Almighty and His Creation of the universe with its heavens, earth, human beings, jinn, and angels.

The previous chapter of al-Munafiqun exposes the hypocrites and discloses their secrets because they are included under the category of disbelief, as they inwardly disbelieve even if they outwardly claim otherwise. The hypocrites are even more dangerous than the disbelievers who declare their disbelief. For this reason, Allah the Almighty says: 'Surely, the hypocrites are in the lowest stage in the Hellfire.' (an-Nisa': 145)

Thus, the verse in question addresses two kinds of people: the believers who believe in Allah's creation of the universe and that He is the Creator and the Originator. It also addresses those who disbelieve in that. It does not, however, address the article of faith of the degree between 'belief' and 'disbelief' because there are only two degrees with regard to belief in Allah's Creation, that is, either to believe or to disbelieve in that.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says: '…Allah sees everything you do.' (at-Taghabun: 2) This means that He the Almighty sees our deeds and utterances, as the 'doing' includes both the deeds of the limbs and the utterances of the tongue. This part of the verse indicates clearly that every action carried out by the human being proves his/her belief, or his/her disbelief. As for the actions, Allah the Almighty does not compel anyone to do an act of belief or disbelief, nor does He the Almighty order anyone to do an act of transgression or injustice.

So, as for the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…Allah sees everything you do.' (at-Taghabun: 2) it means that He the Almighty knows our actions and that is why we should not think that there is anything hidden from Him or that someone can deceive Him, for He sees everything, not only what you reveal, but also what you conceal in your soul that no other human being knows about it.

In the same connection, He the Almighty also says: '…Allah sees the servants.' (Al-'Imran: 15) Here, He does not say that He knows His servants because His Knowledge is pertinent to perceiving people's hidden beliefs. Therefore, He the Almighty describes Himself in the verse in question, saying: '…Allah sees everything you do.' (at-Taghabun: 2) This is because the sight is only used to perceive a movement or a conduct.

So, what does Allah the Almighty see from His servants? He Glorified is He sees the movements of His servants and whether they are in conformity with Islam or not. Overseeing a movement requires the existence of the Attribute of sight, not that of Knowledge. Describing Himself as seeing what they do signifies the stupidity of the wrongdoers because they did not even try to conceal themselves while committing their sins, that is, they made the act of sinning a visible movement. Thus, using the Attribute of sight is more expressive than the Attribute of Knowledge, as employing the latter may indicate that they feel ashamed so that they conceal their sins, but, on the contrary, their movements are obvious and visible.

One of the miraculous aspects of the Quran is that when Allah the Almighty talks about the hypocrites, He says: '…Allah is Fully Aware of what you do.' (al-Munafiqun: 11) The outward actions of the hypocrites are in conformity with the principles and the rulings of Islam. They, for example, pray and fast like all Muslims, and they are even keen on praying in the front rows in the mosque. Therefore, knowing about their real intentions requires the existence of the Attribute of Knowledge of Allah the Almighty.

On the contrary, the actions of both the believers and the disbelievers, whether good or bad, are clear and obvious to Him Glorified is He and that is why the Attribute of the All Seeing perfectly fits this context. Allah the Almighty knows the movements that the servant makes, whether they are acts of worship or sins because they are visible. He gathers between the two Attributes of Seeing and Knowing about the actions of His servants when He says: 'Your Lord is sufficient as Knowing and Seeing with regard to His servants' faults.' (al-Isra': 17)

As a matter of fact, the Attribute of sight is one of the requirements of Divinity and that is why Prophet Abraham peace be upon him said to His father:

'O my father! Why do you worship what neither hears nor sees, nor does it avail you in the least?' (Maryam: 24) How can they worship a false god that cannot hear their moaning and sufferings and that cannot see anything due to its blindness? These are not the Attributes of the One worthy of being worshipped. Allah's seeing of His servants does not mean that He the Almighty has an eye like ours; we should understand this fact within the context of His saying: '…nothing is like Him; and He is the Hearing, the Seeing.' (ash-Shura: 11) Allah the Almighty can hear and see, but His Attributes of Hearing and Seeing are not similar to yours – Exalted is He over any similarity with His creatures.

Subsequently, Allah the Almighty says:

خَلَقَ ٱلسَّمَٰوَٰتِ وَٱلۡأَرۡضَ بِٱلۡحَقِّ وَصَوَّرَكُمۡ فَأَحۡسَنَ صُوَرَكُمۡۖ وَإِلَيۡهِ ٱلۡمَصِيرُ ٣

He created the heavens and earth for a true purpose;
He formed you and made your forms good: you will all return to Him [3] (The Quran, at-Taghabun: 3)

These verses continue addressing the topic of creation. First, they remind us about our creation: 'It is He who has created you…' (at-Taghabun: 2). Then, they talked about what is greater than the creation of the human being, namely: the creation of heavens and earth. In this vein, Allah the Almighty says: 'The creation of the heavens and the earth is certainly greater than the creation of men, but most of them do not know.' (Ghafir: 57) The people were created from the earth, a point which is clear in the following Hadith of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in which he says, 'Allah has created Adam from a handful which he took from the whole of the earth; so the children of Adam are in accordance with the earth: some red, some white, some black, some a mixture, also smooth and rough, bad and good.'(1)

(1) This Hadith is narrated by Abu Dawud, At-Tirmidhi, Ahmad, Al-Bazzar and Al-Bayhaqi on the authority of Abu Musa Al-Ash'ari Allah be pleased with him. See Abu Dawud, Sunnan, Hadith no. 4795; At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 2955; Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 19659 and 19597; Al-Bazzar, Musnad, Hadith no. 3026; and Al-Bayhaqi, As-Sunnan Al-Kubra, Hadith no. 18163

We have to express our wonder about the creation of the heavens and the earth. The human being should know what has been created for him/her, in order to find the evidence of the existence of the Creator in which s/he believes and to whom s/he bears witness that He is the only God. If the human being reflected on the creation of the heavens and the earth, s/he would be guided by his/her natural disposition to the fact that there is a Creator Who has created this universe in a precise and accurate manner. If s/he thought about the creation of the heavens and the earth, s/he would find that it is greater than the creation of mankind, for the universe includes the heavens, the earth, and what is between.

Allah the Almighty has created the heavens and the earth out of nothing, and no one should dare to ask how He has created them, as He the Almighty says in the Quran: ‘I did not make them witnesses of the creation of the heavens and the earth, nor of the creation of their own souls; nor could I take those who lead (others) astray for aiders.’ (al-Kahf: 51) So we have to take information about the creation from our Creator, Allah the Almighty. Some people said that the earth had separated from the sun and then it cooled; these are just unproved hypotheses because no one of them had seen the creation of the heavens and the earth. The saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…nor could I take those who lead (others) astray for aiders,’ (al-Kahf: 51) applies to those people.

When we carefully reflect on the heavens and the earth, we become fully aware of the absolute precision of Allah’s Creation. The heavens and the earth encompass the human being, the Vicegerent of Allah the Almighty on the earth. The human being came to this universe, with all its powers and laws, after Allah the Almighty prepared it for him/her. This was prior to the creation of man, so that s/he would find a universe subjected to him/her, and where nothing can disobey Allah the Almighty.

Allah the Almighty has willed to create the heavens and earth in Six Days similar to the days of our worldly life, even though He Glorified is He has the Full Ability to create them in a time less than a twinkle through His command: ‘Be.’ There is a difference between creating something and bringing the components necessary for that creation. When you think about the creation of the heavens and the earth, you will find it a very mighty matter. It is sufficient for you to be baffled by the matter of your creation and formation, even though you are only one individual with limited space and a limited lifetime. What would you think then about the creation of the heavens and earth that came into existence before you and that will last after your passing away, until they split and the stars break with the Permission of Allah the Almighty!

Allah the Almighty veiled two matters from the minds so that the human being should not exhaust him/herself in looking for them. The first matter is how the human being was created, and whether s/he was an individual from the outset and then evolved. You have nothing to do with this matter, and so you should not involve in it with hypotheses that lead you to error.

The second matter is the creation of the heavens and the earth. You should not hypothesise that the earth was part of the sun from which it separated, then its surface cooled down and became frozen; these hypotheses are baseless and groundless.

No one has the ability to create the like of the heavens and the earth; they were not created according to any previous pattern, as Allah the Almighty says that He is: ‘The Wonderful Originator of the heavens and the earth….’ (al-Baqara: 117). This means that He has not created the heavens, the earth and all what they contain from any previous model, i.e. there had not been another heaven, earth, angels, jinn or human beings and then He the Almighty has created something similar to any of them in the shape, size or power; that is to say that He the Almighty has not resorted to what we call ‘the template.’

The one who makes a cup first makes a pattern in which the marble of the molten glass is poured and, eventually, the cups will be similar to each other. All the creations, apart from Allah’s, are based on making the pattern and then the production follows. For this reason, the true cost lies in preparing the good pattern or model that gives us an image of what we want. The one who bakes bread, for example, may not need a template, as s/he imitates someone before him/her; the shape of the loaf and its quality has been prepared before and s/he just imitates it every time. S/he, nevertheless, cannot give the similarity in the weight, the shape, or the roundness; rather, there is a difference in the imitation and there is no perfection in the product.

When Allah the Almighty creates the human beings from Adam, and up till the Day of Resurrection, He Glorified is He makes them similar in some features: in the form of the body, shape, head, legs, hands, eyes and other organs. They are precisely similar in the form and the function so that every individual carries out his/her mission in life. This similarity, nevertheless, has not been done by using a template; rather, through Allah's Word: 'Be,' without any previous model, as He is the Wonderful Originator and Creator.

The purpose of the universal signs of Allah the Almighty is to attract the creatures' attention towards His Wonderful Creation, and to convince them of the necessity of believing in Him. Through this wonderful universe, we came to know that there is a Creator and a power that provides and regulates it. Who provides the sun with this immense power? Who created it out of nothing and provided it with a power that comes from nothing? If you looked at the sun and asked yourself about how many generations enjoyed its warmth and benefited from it, you would not, for sure, know the answer because the sun was created before the human beings and everyone enjoys it and benefits from it for the period of his/her lifetime and then passes away.

Allah the Almighty tells us about the creation of the Heavens and the Earth, saying: 'Do those who disbelieve not see that the heavens and the earth were closed up, but We have opened them; and We have made of water everything living, will they not then believe?' (al-Anbiya': 30) The people before us did not deeply understand this verse, but we understood it when the scientists found out that the heavens and the earth were one entity and then Allah the Almighty willed to separate them and made of water everything living.

However, some scholars maintained that the heavens and the earth had not been joined together; they cited the following verses as evidence: 'The man should reflect on his food that We pour down the water, pouring (it) down in abundance, then We cleave the earth, cleaving (it) asunder, then We cause to grow therein the grain, and grapes and clover.' ('Abasa: 24-28) In another verse, Allah the Almighty says: 'So We opened the gates of the cloud with water pouring and We made water to flow forth in the land in springs, so the water gathered together according to a measure already ordained.' (al-Qamar: 11-12) The intended meaning, according to these scholars, is that the earth was closed up and then it was opened by the plants; and similarly, the heaven was closed up and was then opened by the rain. Thus, Allah the Almighty has cleaved the heaven with the rain and the earth with the plants that split it. We understand from this opinion that the split is not related to ripping the heaven apart from the earth; rather, separating each one from itself.

Allah the Almighty has created the heavens and the earth with truth so that the universe is constructed with truth, a fact which is clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'We did not create them both but with the truth, but most of them do not know.' (ad-Dukhan: 39) 'Truth' is the established matter that does not change. All the matters of truth are consistent: Allah the Almighty is the True God; the creation of the heavens, the earth, and the whole universe was done with truth; the universe was originated with rightful Laws; and the Divine Laws of Allah the Almighty continue in the universe with truth. Further, Allah the Almighty has made His following saying one of the supplications of the believers: 'Those who remember Allah standing and sitting and lying on their sides and reflect on the creation of the heavens and the earth: Our Lord! You have not created this in vain; save us then from the chastisement of the Fire.' (Al-'Imran: 191) Thus, He is the True God and the heavens and the earth were created with truth and their natural laws and systems were prescribed with truth. Thus, we have to receive Allah's Bounty that He the Almighty has created for us in the right way because if someone dealt with it unrightfully, it would be calamitous for him/her.

Allah the Almighty is the Supreme Truth Who created everything with truth: the creation of the heavens and the earth, the running of the sun and the falling of the rain are all created with truth. Everything, whether static or dynamic, has laws prescribed by Allah the Almighty. Creating with truth means that the creation of the heavens and the earth was carried out with subtle and precise balance and that Allah the Almighty has set for them a fixed system that regulates their motion with truth and wisdom. The sun, for example, did not fail to rise one day so that we would say, 'The sun did not rise on those people because they are wrongdoers.' This does not happen because the sun has certain laws that regulate its motion, and it was created with established truth that does not change. As long as these cosmic creatures were created with unchangeable truth, you can base your calculations on them and regulate your life according to them. That is why Allah the Almighty says: 'The sun and the moon follow a reckoning.' (ar-Rahman: 5) This means that they were created with a reckoning and thus Allah the Almighty has made them a means of calculation.

In this regard, He the Almighty also says: 'We were not playing a pointless game when We created the heavens and earth and everything in between.' (ad-Dukhan: 38) He has not created the heavens and the earth as a game; rather, He has created them with truth. As a matter of fact, there is a big difference between the truth and the game. The ones who randomly mess around with something may realise something by chance and then s/he or someone else uses it as a game.

On the contrary, Allah the Almighty has created everything with truth and thus He will not leave the people wandering without a purpose; rather, every action done by man is recorded and s/he will be held accountable for it on the Day or Resurrection. In this connection, He the Almighty says: 'Does man think that he is to be left to wander without an aim? Was he not a small seed in the seminal elements, then he was a clot of blood, so He has created (him) then made (him) perfect. Then He has made of him two kinds, the male, and the female.' (al-Qiyama: 36-39) Thus, we were not created in vain, without an aim. This fact is clearly mentioned by Allah the Almighty Who says: 'What! Did you then think that We have created you in vain and that you shall not be returned to Us?' (al-Mu'minun: 115) Had Allah the Almighty left us without any Reckoning, the deviated person, who satisfies his/her whims and desires in this worldly life, would have been more fortunate than the righteous one. However, Allah the Almighty could never deceive His servant who believed in Him and followed His Way of Guidance. In addition, He could never equate him/her with the wrongdoers and deviant people.

Allah the Almighty created the heavens and the earth and also created the sun and the moon and made them two of the Signs of His Omnipotence and of the Greatness of His Dominion. In fact, He did not create them in vain, but for a great Wisdom, which is stated plainly in the saying of Allah: '…that you might know the computation of years and the reckoning.' (Yunus: 5) Thus, nothing was created in vain; everything was created with truth.

Allah the Almighty does not show His Bounty on us by the creation of the heavens and the earth because they are the most wonderful creation, but because they are created for the people and subjected to their service. The whole universe is made subservient to the human being. Therefore, s/he should have searched with his/her mind about the One Who subjected all of that for him/her. S/he should have been guided to the One Who created the heavens and the earth and what is between them because He has not created them in vain or for playing but to serve the human being.

Then, Allah the Almighty says in the verse in question: '…He formed you and made your forms good…' (at-Taghabun: 3). Here, Allah the Almighty refers to the formation of the human being in the womb; not the first formation of Adam from clay, and that is why He says: '…and made your forms good…' (at-Taghabun: 3) using the plural form. He says in another verse: 'He it is Who shapes you in the wombs as He likes…' (Al-'Imran: 6). The formation of the human being in the womb means finding the substance from which s/he will be created in a specific form that differs in the gender, male or female; in the skin colour, white, black, brown or red; and in the stature, short or tall. Allah the Almighty shapes our forms according to His Choice for us and every formation has a profound wisdom and, subsequently, all of His Creation is beautiful. You should not think about your formation without taking the wisdom behind it into consideration; rather, consider every formation according to the wisdom behind it. Thus, what makes you say that so and so is ugly is separating the creation from its wisdom. So, Allah the Almighty says: 'O man! What has beguiled you from your Lord, the Gracious One Who has created you, then made you complete, then made you symmetrical? Into whatever form He pleased He constituted you.' (al-Infitar: 6-8) Here, Allah the Almighty numerates some of His Bounties on the human being with regard to their creation in the best form, the perfection of their creation and making them symmetrical. The human being cannot doubt these facts when s/he reflects on his/her intellect, form, and perfection of his/her creation above the rest of Allah's creatures. Allah the Almighty has not made the human being walk upon his/her belly or four feet, but rather, He Glorified is He made him/her upright. Not to mention the perfection of his/her subtle systems about which the scientists are still wondering and discovering its secrets.

Allah the Almighty also shows His Bounty on the human being when He says: 'Have We not given him two eyes, and a tongue and two lips.' (al-Balad: 8-9) The dominion and the creation belong only to Allah the Almighty and so is the formation of the human being in the womb, a fact which is clear in His saying: 'He shapes you in the wombs as He likes, no God but He…' (Al-'Imran: 6). In this context, the meaning of the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'No God but He…' (Al-'Imran: 6) is that Allah the Almighty forms the people while knowing that they will take on such forms because there is no other god to say to Him, 'I do not like this form and I will make another one.' This does not happen because the One Who forms the people is Allah the Almighty Who no one can overcome or prevent what He wants. All what He wants will come to pass, and everything He does has a profound wisdom behind it. With regard to His saying: 'He shapes you in the wombs as He likes…' (Al-'Imran: 6), someone may say, 'What about the deviant and unnatural forms?' But Allah the Almighty says to you, 'I Am the All-Wise and I have done so for Wisdom, so do not separate the action from the Wisdom behind it and consider both of them. Then you will find these forms beautiful.'

So, Allah the Almighty forms the people in the wombs as He likes. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him taught us how to recognise that fact in our prostration in prayer. He used to say when he prostrated, 'O Allah, to You I have prostrated and to You I have submitted, and in You I have believed. My face has prostrated to the One Who created it and shaped it well, and brought forth its hearing and sight. Blessed be Allah the best of Creators.'(1) Besides, he peace and blessings be upon him used to say when he looks in the mirror: 'Praise belongs to Allah Who has beautified my creation and my conduct and beautified me with what He deprived others of.'(2)

---

(1) 'Ali ibn Abu Taleb related that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him used to say when prostrating: 'O Allah, to You I have prostrated and in You I have believed and to You I have submitted, and You are my Lord. My face has prostrated to the One Who created it and formed it, and brought forth its hearing and sight. Blessed be Allah the best of Creators.' See Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 1848; Abu Dawud, Sunnan, Hadith no. 760; and At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 3421

(2) This Hadith is narrated by Abu Ya'la and At-Tabarani in the Book of Supplication on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas Allah be pleased with him. See Abu Ya'la, Musnad, Hadith no. 2611; and At-Tabarani, Hadith no. 402.

Allah the Almighty also says: ‘Certainly We created man in the best make.’ (at-Tin: 4) This means that He the Almighty with regard to the material side, created the human being in an upright form and in the best state. Further, He the Almighty wants man to remain in this fine state in everything, so if this Vicegerent violates the laws of his/her preservation, s/he undoubtedly makes Allah the Almighty angry as He Glorified is He wants His Make to remain beautiful as He has originated it.

As Allah the Almighty talks about the creation of the human being in the best form after talking about the creation of the heavens and the earth, He says in another verse: ‘Allah is He Who made the earth a resting-place for you and the heaven a canopy, and He formed you, then made goodly your forms…’ (Ghafir: 64). He has created the heavens and the earth and made the earth a resting-place, that is, a proper place for the human being to live on. He the Almighty also made the heavens a strong construction; He even holds it, lest it falls on the earth.

The creation of the human being and shaping him/her in such a form was addressed along with the creation of the heavens and the earth; this is conclusive evidence that Allah the Almighty has formed man without a previous pattern, as He wonderfully originated the whole universe. This fact refutes the hypothesis of those who believe in the evolution of the human being from an ape. How can we believe that an ape evolved into a man? Why did the ape of Darwin evolve, while the rest of the apes did not? Further, why did the rest of the apes not evolve into men so that the species of apes come to an end? What completely refutes Darwinian Theory is to understand the nature of evolution according to the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Of everything We have created pairs…’ (adh-Dhariyat: 49). This means that all the beings are originally created by Allah the Almighty; not a single species evolved of another one. Shaping the human being in this wonderful form constitutes honour bestowed by Allah the Almighty upon mankind. He the Almighty says: ‘Surely We have honoured the children of Adam.’ (al-Isra’: 70)

The aspects of honouring the human being are numerous; s/he was honoured by the intellectual ability, discerning, the freedom of choice, walking upright – unlike the cattle – and the shape of the fingers and its symmetry in a wonderful form that allows him/her to move easily while handling things and carrying out precise actions. S/he was also honoured by making him/her eat with his/her fingers, not with the tongue like some animals, not with the beak like the birds, and not with the trunk like the elephant. All of this is manifested in the creation of man.

One of Allah's Names is the Fashioner Who creates everything in a distinct form which no two species, kinds or even two individuals share; everyone has its special form that distinguishes him/her from others. Thus, the 'Fashioner' is one of the Most Beautiful Names of Allah the Almighty Who wonderfully originated and beautified the forms of the creatures. He the Almighty gave each creature its form according to His Infinite Wisdom, and likewise, He has formed men in the wombs of their mothers in different stages and forms.

Then, Allah the Almighty says: 'You will all return to Him.' (al-Munafiqun: 3) This means that to Allah the Almighty all people will return and no one will be able to escape, for the ultimate destination and the returning of the people on the Day of Resurrection will be to Allah the Almighty as He Glorified is He says: 'They said: No harm; surely to our Lord we go back.' (ash-Shu'ara': 50) Allah the Almighty Who has created the heavens and the earth with truth, has not created the human beings in vain or in play. He has created them also with truth, as He says: 'What! Did you then think that We had created you in vain and that you shall not be returned to Us? (al-Mu'minun: 115)

Our belief in the ultimate returning to Allah the Almighty is the core of our belief because it entails belief in the Last Day and the Resurrection after death. If we will return to Allah the Almighty why then do we disobey Him and violate His Way of Guidance? If the human being disobeyed Him the Almighty as He has given him/her the choice to obey or disobey, s/he will not have any choice after death but to return to Him the Almighty willingly, out of his/her love for meeting with Him, or unwillingly by being compelled against his/her will.

You should not think that you will have any place of refuge, as Allah the Almighty says: 'He asks: When is the Day of Resurrection? So when the sight becomes dazed, and the moon becomes dark, and the sun and the moon are brought together, the man shall say on that day: Whither to fly? By no means! There shall be no place of refuge! With your Lord alone shall on that day be the place of rest.' (al-Qiyama: 6-12) Allah the Almighty also says: 'Therefore strive with one another to hasten to virtuous deeds; to Allah is your return, of all (of you), so He will let you know that in which you differed.' (al-Ma'ida: 48) So, we should compete with each other in doing righteous deeds as all people will return to Allah the Almighty whether they were adhering to His Way of Guidance or even deviating from it. We will return to our inevitable destination of standing before Allah the Almighty to let us know that in which we differed. If our beginning was brought about by Allah the Almighty Who has created us and the heavens and the earth, and Who shaped our forms, why then some people consider returning to Him far-fetched?

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'You will all return to Him.' (al-Munafiqun: 4) employing of the preposition 'to' attracts our attention to the inevitability of the human being's return to Allah the Almighty not to any other false god. The returning back will be to your Creator Who also has created the heavens and the earth and formed you in the wombs as He liked. The ultimate destination must be to Allah the Almighty; otherwise, those who have excessively committed evil in this world would not be punished for their misdeeds, and those who dedicated themselves to fulfilling Allah's Obligations and carrying out the acts of worship and who deprived themselves of some of the gratifications and pleasures of this worldly life would have endeavoured in vain.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says:

يَعۡلَمُ مَا فِي ٱلسَّمَٰوَٰتِ وَٱلۡأَرۡضِ وَيَعۡلَمُ مَا تُسِرُّونَ وَمَا تُعۡلِنُونَۚ وَٱللَّهُ عَلِيمُۢ بِذَاتِ ٱلصُّدُورِ ﴿٤﴾

He knows what is in the heavens and earth; He knows what you conceal and what you reveal; God knows very well the secrets of every heart [4] (The Quran, at-Taghabun: 4)

To Allah the Almighty belongs the Dominion of the heavens and the earth and He is the Creator of everything, including mankind. He has formed us in a fine and good state. As long as He the Almighty is the Owner of the dominion and the Creator of everything, then He knows for certain everything about His creatures. It is as if this verse in question serves as the conclusion of the previous three verses of this chapter: 'Everything that is in the heavens and earth glorifies Allah; all control and all praise belongs to Him; He has power over everything. It is He who created you, yet some of you disbelieve and some believe: Allah sees everything you do. He created the heavens and earth for a true purpose; He formed you and made your forms good: you will all return to Him.' (at-Taghabun: 1-3)

Allah the Almighty makes it crystal clear that He knows everything about us, as He says: 'Does He not know, Who created? And He is the Knower of the subtleties, the Aware.' (al-Mulk: 11) Let us give an example for this point by the maker of the chair. S/he knows the kind of wood which s/he uses to make the chair and the kind of nails that bring the pieces of wood together. Besides, s/he knows which glue to be used to stick the parts of the chair together and likewise the painting material. So, the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Does He not know, Who created? And He is the Knower of the subtleties, the Aware...' (al-Mulk: 11) does not need any evidence. Thus, the carpenter who wants to make his product obvious would say to the buyer, 'I will make a chair from beechwood, so come and see the stages of making it.' Similarly, Allah's Creation is also obvious and clear, as He the Almighty says: 'He created the heavens without pillars as you see them, and put mountains upon the earth lest it might convulse with you, and He spread in it animals of every kind; and We sent down water from the cloud, then caused to grow therein (vegetation) of every noble kind.' (Luqman: 10) Then, He the Almighty clearly says: 'This is Allah's creation, but show Me what those besides Him have created.' (Luqman: 11)

The creation of the heavens, the earth, the sun, and the moon is a challenge for all the worlds; it is so obvious that no one can deny it. When Allah the Almighty orders the polytheists to show Him what those gods besides Him have created, they provided no answer for this question, for they do not have a tangible proof and cannot deny His Creation. Therefore, the truth is obvious and clear and the falsehood is doubtful. Accordingly, we did not hear anyone of them saying, 'Our gods created the mountains, the sun, or the moon.' They could not answer Allah's question even though they are adamant disbelievers.

This is the creation of Allah the Almighty. The human being is not challenged to create something like the heavens, the earth, or the mountains and s/he is not asked to cause the rain to fall or the plants to grow; rather, s/he is challenged to do what is easier than that. Allah the Almighty says: ‘Those whom you call upon besides Allah cannot create a fly, though they should all gather for it.’ (al-Hajj: 73) Those whom the polytheists worship and pray to besides Allah the Almighty cannot create a fly, which is one of the smallest creatures, even if they all gathered and cooperated to accomplish this task and meet that challenge. So, Allah the Almighty does not challenge them to create the heavens, the earth or even a human being; rather, to create a fly. He the Almighty decisively says that they will not be able to do that. This verse negates the future, not only the past, so this negation is eternal; they could not create a fly in the past and will not be able to do so in the future. So, no one should think that s/he will be able to do that in the future.

If the matter of creating the cosmos is conclusively ascribed to Him, then attributing Knowledge to Him is also conclusive, as the one who creates something knows everything about his/her creation. In this connection, He the Almighty says: ‘Does He not know, Who created? And He is the Knower of the subtleties, the Aware.’ (al-Mulk: 11) It is thus conceivable that Allah the Almighty knows everything about His Creation, as He is the Creator. Every maker knows the secrets of his/her make. So how should we think about the Supreme Creator Who is All-Aware and All Knowing about everything?

In this regard, Ibn Mas‘ud Allah be pleased with him narrated that two people of Bani Thaqif and one from Quraysh, who had fat bellies but little wisdom, met near the Ka‘ba. One of them said, ‘Do you see that Allah hears what we say?’ The other said, ‘He hears us if we speak aloud, but He does not hear if we speak in stealthy quietness (softly/murmuing).’ The third fellow said, ‘If He hears when we speak aloud, then He surely hears us if we speak in stealthy quietness (softly).’ So Allah the Almighty revealed His saying: ‘And you did not veil yourselves lest your ears and your eyes and your skins should bear witness against you, but you thought that Allah did not know most of what you did.’ (Fussilat: 22)

Those three men, out of their narrow mindedness and caring for their big bodies and not their minds, were thinking that Allah the Almighty does not know what they are saying and doing. They thought that He does not know what they confined to themselves and that He does not know what they conceal in their hearts. But one of them has more understanding than the rest, even if they all lacked the deep knowledge, so he said, ‘If He hears when we speak aloud, then He surely hears us if we speak in stealthy quietness.’

Allah the Almighty controls the creation from the time of its beginning until its end and to Him all will return: ‘…you will all return to Him.’ (at-Taghabun: 3) This matter requires Knowledge and Awareness because the one who makes something must know what reforms it and what ruins it. That is why Allah the Almighty says: ‘Allah is Knowing and Powerful.’ (an-Nahl: 70) The creation was originated with Allah’s Knowledge, but Knowledge alone is not enough, as you may be knowledgeable but unable to apply what you know. The electrician, for example, may have vast knowledge about electricity, but s/he cannot make an electrical network or a laboratory, so s/he goes to one of the financiers to help him/her. For this reason, Allah the Almighty describes Himself as having both Knowledge and Power.

In the verse in question, He the Almighty says: ‘He knows what is in the heavens and earth…’ (at-Taghabun: 3). He is the All Knowing and All-Wise; His Knowledge and Wisdom are unlimited that nothing in the heavens or the earth escapes it. In this connection, He the Almighty says: ‘With Him are the keys of the unseen treasures-- none knows them but He; and He knows what is in the land and the sea, and there falls not a leaf but He knows it, nor a grain in the darkness of the earth, nor anything green nor dry but (it is all) in a clear Book.’ (al-An‘am: 59) Therefore, Allah the Almighty knows all the unseen because His Knowledge is all-inclusive and nothing can escape from it. He knows what is in the heavens with all its spaces, bodies, suns, and stars. He also knows all that is in the heavy clouds and what they carry for the people and for the earth and its living creatures. Moreover, He the Almighty says: ‘Do you not see that Allah sends down water from the cloud, and then We bring forth therewith fruits of various colours.’ (Ya Sin: 27) Allah the Almighty sends down water from the cloud and no one of His Creation has anything to do with this, as we are unconscious of the water evaporation. We have known how the clouds are filled with the water and how the rain falls afterwards.

Allah the Almighty says: ‘…and He knows what is in the land and the sea…’ (al-An‘am: 59). There is a countless number of Allah’s Creatures in the land and in the sea, which all are beyond the knowledge of anyone. The human being perceives all the inanimate objects, plants, trees, animals, other human beings, countries, and roads. There are countries that do not overlook any seas, and that is why Allah the Almighty mentions the land first before the sea that some people may not see. Allah's Knowledge of what is in the heavens and the earth is not only general, but rather, it is fully detailed; He knows what happens in the heavens, the earth and what is between them, as He says: '…and there falls not a leaf but He knows it...' (al-An'am: 59). So, He the Almighty knows all about the leaf of the tree after it does its part in the photosynthesis process and the ripening of the fruits until it falls on the ground. Thus, He the Almighty knows the time of the movement of all the leaves in any tree, which signifies His Perfect and All-inclusive Knowledge. Then, He the Almighty says: '…nor a grain in the darkness of the earth, and nor anything green nor dry but (it is all) in a clear Book.' (al-An'am: 59) He the Almighty furthermore knows everything about every being in the worldly life, as all the beings are either green or dry.

In this regard, He the Almighty tells us in the Quran about what Luqman said to his son: 'O my son! Surely if it is the very weight of the grain of a mustard-seed, even though it is in (the heart of) rock, or (high above) in the heaven or (deep down) in the earth, Allah will bring it (to light); surely Allah is Knower of subtleties, Aware.' (al-Ahzab: 16) Here, Luqman teaches his son one of the Attributes of Allah, namely: His absolute Knowledge from which nothing escapes. It is as if he said, 'Do not think that what can be hidden from the people can also be hidden from Allah the Almighty.' As the very weight of the grain of a mustard-seed cannot be hidden from Him, even if it is in the heart of a rock or above the heaven or even deep down in the earth; He the Almighty also knows the good and the bad deed, even if it is subtle and even if its doer tried to conceal it. Thus, nothing escapes His Knowledge, even something as little as a muster-seed, which signifies His All-Encompassing Knowledge.

Allah the Almighty then directs our attention to another aspect of His Knowledge, namely: what the human being conceals or reveals. He says: 'He knows what you conceal and what you reveal.' (an-Nahl: 19) The secret–as we know– is what you conceal in yourself or what you confine to someone else and ask him/her not to reveal it to anyone else. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: '…surely He knows the secret, and what is yet more hidden.' (Ta Ha: 7) This means that He the Almighty knows what we conceal in our souls and also what may be a secret before we conceal it. Thus, no one can deceive Allah the Almighty as He knows everything: what we conceal or reveal. He knows the secret and what is more hidden than the secret. But is there something more hidden than the secret? Yes, the secret is what you confine to someone else, so it is known by two people, but what is more hidden than the secret is what you keep to yourself and do not reveal to anyone. In this connection, He the Almighty says: 'And if you utter the saying aloud, then surely He knows the secret, and what is yet more hidden.' (Ta Ha: 7)

Allah the Almighty criticises the hypocrites who think that they can deceive Him, saying: 'And when they meet those who believe they say: We believe, and when they are alone one with another they say: Do you talk to them of what Allah has disclosed to you that they may contend with you by this before your Lord? Do you not then understand?' (al-Baqara: 76) Then, He the Almighty says: 'Do they not know that Allah knows what they keep secret and what they make known?' (al-Baqara: 77) What is the concealed matter and what is the revealed one? The revealed matter is what you say out loud so that anyone can hear it and what is visible so that anyone can see it. If the action is a soundless movement, it is perceived by the eye, and if it has a sound, it is perceived by the ear; these are the basic faculties of perception.

The secret is what you do not confide to anyone else because if you did so, it would not be a secret anymore. The secret, however, is what you conceal in your soul. Thus, what you revealed is what you declare, and it thus becomes an apparent matter if it is known by two people. The apparent matter is known to the people, whereas the secret is hidden from them. However, Allah the Almighty knows the secret and the public and also what is more hidden than the secret: '…surely He knows the secret, and what is yet more hidden.' (Ta Ha: 7) So, if the secret is what you conceal in yourself, Allah the Almighty knows what is more hidden, that is, He knows what you will do before you do it.

Allah the Almighty can use what is hidden as the opposite of the manifest when He says: 'That they do not make obeisance to Allah Who brings forth what is hidden in the heavens and the earth and knows what you hide and what you make manifest.' (an-Naml: 25) This makes us recall once again the relation between Allah's Knowledge of what is in the heavens and the earth and what the human being conceals or reveals. What is hidden in the heavens refers to the rain and what is hidden in the earth refers to the plants. These two elements are the sources of sustenance in the worldly life, as the water of the rain and the fertility of the soil bring out the plants that nourish the animals and the human beings.

In the verse in question, Allah the Almighty then says: 'Allah knows very well the secrets of every heart.' The human being cares to hide in his/her heart what s/he wants to keep to him/herself, just as the friend cares for his/her friend. It is as if the heart avoids revealing what it contains, but Allah the Almighty exposes the hypocrites' secrets before the people and themselves so that they may not be deceived by themselves. The words for the 'secrets of the heart' refer to the qualities that never leave the heart; they are always in the heart, whether they are bitterness or hatred. These secrets may also refer to the good or bad intentions that do not appear in the outward actions.

Allah the Almighty depicts for us the image of those who think that He the Almighty does not know what they reveal or conceal or what their hearts hide. He says: 'Now surely they fold up their breasts that they may conceal (their enmity) from Him; now surely, when they use their garments as a covering, He knows what they conceal and what they make public; surely He knows what is in the breasts.' (Hud: 5) When the human being folds up his/her breast, s/he folds it to the direction of his/her bellies to hide his/her face and conceal his/her facial expressions, given that the sentiments of the human soul appear on the faces. They covered their faces with their garments in order to hide their facial expressions. Allah the Almighty also says: 'Whether you hide what is in your hearts or manifest it, Allah knows it, and He knows whatever is in the heavens and whatever is in the earth, and Allah has power over all things.' (Al-'Imran: 29) He the Almighty knows what is concealed in the hearts, let alone what is revealed, which could be known by anyone else. Thus, what is concealed in the heart is only known by Allah the Almighty and no one else knows it except Him, the Creator of the human being.

After talking about His Knowledge of what the human being hides or reveals, Allah the Almighty attracts our attention to the fact that: ‘He knows whatever is in the heavens and whatever is in the earth, and Allah has power over all things.’ (Al-‘Imran: 29) He knows all that is concealed or revealed, for All-Knowledge comes from Him. He knows our intentions and the degree of our sincerity. Further, He knows what the disbelievers and the hypocrites’ scheme and even what is in their breasts before they even utter it. Recalling Allah’s Most Beautiful Name and Attribute of Knowledge regulates the conduct of the human being because s/he knows very well that Allah the Almighty knows what s/he reveals or conceals and what is in his/her heart. Allah the Almighty gives us an example of this when He says: ‘Bequest is prescribed for you when death approaches one of you, if he leaves behind wealth for parents and near relatives, according to usage, a duty (incumbent) upon those who guard (against evil).’ (al-Baqara: 180) Allah, Who is the All Knowing about the soul of His servants, expects that the testator may be wrong and the heir may be right, so He takes precaution in this Legislation. When the legatee takes his/her share, s/he will decrease the shares of the heirs. Thus, Allah the Almighty wants to preserve the rights of all the parties by protecting the testator, the legatee and the heir. Here, He the Almighty says: ‘Whoever then alters it after he has heard it, the sin of it then is only upon those who alter it; surely Allah is Hearing, Knowing.’ (al-Baqara: 181) The testator cleared him/herself, but the heir should be notified that Allah the Almighty knows what the hearts hide, for He is All Hearing and All Knowing.

Allah the Almighty says in another verse: ‘And make not Allah because of your swearing (by Him) an obstacle to your doing good and guarding (against evil) and making peace between men, and Allah is Hearing, Knowing.’ (al-Baqara: 224) He the Almighty hears the oath of the one who took it and He knows the intention behind it, whether good or bad. So, you should not take the oath as a pretext to prevent righteousness, piety, and reform. Allah’s Knowledge is intrinsic, but the knowledge of the human being stems from the events’ pressure that provokes his/her thinking about what rids him/her of a potential evil, but Allah’s Supreme Knowledge surpasses that because it is intrinsic.

As His knowledge is intrinsic and He is the All Knowing about what the hearts conceal, then He is not only Able to repay the people for their inclination, but also to expose what their hearts hide. Knowledge is often unapparent to the people, unlike what they hear or see; that is why Allah the Almighty gathers between the Hearing and Knowing, saying: ‘He is the Hearing, the Knowing.’ (al-Ma‘ida: 76) Hearing refers to perceiving the utterances that can be heard, whereas Knowing refers to perceiving what is in the minds. When you talk, He the Almighty hears what you say, and when you think about something, He knows it, as the reasonable person should think about his/her speech before uttering it. Every speech has an inclination which is known by Allah the Almighty with His Eternal Knowledge that remains forever.

Likewise, Allah the Almighty says: ‘He is the Hearing and Seeing.’ (al-Isra’: 1) He hears what can be heard and sees what can be perceived by sight, but His Attribute of Knowledge perceives what was not heard or seen, namely: what is in the soul. Allah the Almighty hears the utterance of the one who cannot do an action and sees the one who does this action.

Knowing the intentions needs Allah’s Knowledge and Awareness. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘The reward of deeds depends upon the intentions, and every person will get the reward according to what he has intended. So, whoever emigrated for Allah and His Messenger, then his emigration was for Allah and His Messenger, and whoever emigrated to take some worldly benefits or for a woman to marry, then his emigration was for what he emigrated.’ Thus, Allah the Almighty knows the intention behind your action. The one who pats the head of an orphan, for example, has a great reward, and the one who takes care of an orphan will be with Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in the paradise. But the one who determines this is Allah the Almighty according to the intention of the human being who does these actions, as the doer may seek the closeness of an orphan and treats him/her with kindness and gentleness to get closer to the mother of that orphan. Thus, the cause of reward or punishment is the intention which drives you to do the deeds. Accordingly, you should be careful to make the patting of the head of an orphan for the sake of Allah the Almighty not to get closer to his/her mother.

The intention can only be good when it is accompanied with the fear of Allah the Almighty as He says: ‘Be mindful of Allah for He knows what is in the hearts.' (al-Ma'ida: 7) Piety does not stem from the sensual action, rather, from the inward, concealed state of the soul. An example for this is the good and the bad intentions. So, the bad qualities like bitterness, envy, and scheming, which are hidden in our hearts, are known by Allah the Almighty. Piety purifies you from these bad qualities so that your behaviour would be in line with fearing Allah the Almighty and certitude that He knows what is in your soul even before you utter it or act upon it.

Allah the Almighty subsequently says:

أَلَمۡ يَأۡتِكُمۡ نَبَؤُاْ ٱلَّذِينَ كَفَرُواْ مِن قَبۡلُ فَذَاقُواْ وَبَالَ أَمۡرِهِمۡ وَلَهُمۡ عَذَابٌ أَلِيمٌ ٥

[Disbelievers], have you not heard about those who disbelieved before you? They tasted the evil consequences of their conduct, and a painful torment awaits them [5]
(The Quran, at-Taghabun: 5)

When Allah the Almighty says: 'Have you not heard the story?' (at-Taghabun: 5) this affirms that the news about those people reached the disbelievers. When you negate something already negated, you affirm it. You do not ask such a question unless you are certain that the answer is in the affirmative. You may say to someone, 'You have forsaken me in my calamity,' but he replies to you, 'Have I not visited you on so and so day? Have I not given you such and such? Have I not done so and so to your son?' He is sure that you cannot deny anything of these because they are affirmed by reality.

We notice here that Allah the Almighty makes the verse in a form of address like when He says: 'O assembly of jinn and men! Did there not come to you Messengers from among you, relating to you My communications and warning you of the meeting of this day of yours?' (al-An'am: 130) Likewise, He the Almighty says: 'Has the account not reached you of those before you, of the people of Noah and 'Ad and Thamud, and those after them?' (Ibrahim: 9) The address from the beginning of this chapter is for the second person, as He the Almighty says: 'It is He who created you, yet some of you disbelieve and some believe…He formed you and made your forms good.' (at-Taghabun: 2-3) The address for the second person then continues, as He the Almighty addresses the disbelievers and then the believers. That is why He Glorified is He says: 'It is He who created you…' (at-Taghabun: 2) and then addresses all His creatures, saying: '…some of you disbelieve and some believe.' (at-Taghabun: 2) As long as Allah the Almighty addresses the disbelievers, saying: '[Disbelievers], have you not heard the story of who disbelieved before you?' (at-Taghabun: 5) Then this question is used to rebuke and reproach them because they rejected the Truth. Here, the word 'story' signifies the importance of what Allah the Almighty wants to attract their attention to, because the Arabic word for 'story' is only used for the important news that attracts the attention, not any normal kind of news. An example for this is Allah's saying: 'About what are they asking one another? About the great news.' (an-Naba': 1-2) Thus, this word refers to very important news, not trivial news which the usefulness of knowing it equates the harm of ignoring it. Thus, the word for 'story' refers to the great and surprising news that is valuable and beneficial. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: '[O Muhammad], inform My servants that it is I who is the Forgiving, the Merciful.' (al-Hijr: 49) The informing here is about something very important. Likewise, Allah the Almighty says: 'It is a message of importance, (And) you are turning aside from it.' (Sad: 67-68) The great news should not be neglected; rather, we should keep it in mind and prepare ourselves for it. So, we should not turn our backs on it or neglect it in our action because this leads to perishing. You should listen attentively to the great news and take it into consideration.

The Arabic word translated in the verse in question as 'story' and which refers to the important news also appears in Allah's saying: 'Has the news of those before them not come to them; of the people of Noah and 'Ad and Thamud, and the people of Abraham and the dwellers of Midyan and the overthrown cities; their Messengers came to them with clear arguments; so it was not Allah Who should do them injustice, but they were unjust to themselves.' (Ibrahim: 70) The word for news is used in the singular form to refer to the action of those who disbelieved in the Messengers of Allah because this is regarded as one action even if the Messengers are numerous, as we say, 'Disbelief is one religion.'

However, when Allah the Almighty mentions the news of the Messengers, He says: 'And all we relate to you of the accounts of the Messengers is to strengthen your heart therewith.' (Hud: 120) The plural form of the word ‘accounts’ has been used because Allah the Almighty talks about the experience of every Messenger with his people; what Noah suffered is different from what Saleh, Hud, Moses, Jesus and Abraham peace be upon them have suffered. Every one of them has a different story, so each one of their stories was important news. Additionally, the news of the Prophets is scattered in the chapters of the Quran to illustrate what every Prophet came with to heal the diseases from which his people were suffering and to show the stubbornness of the people to whom each Messenger was sent. Those accounts were mentioned in the Quran to strengthen the heart of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him because he was facing troubles and difficulties in his Mission.

Here, a question arises, which is, ‘How has the news of the previous disbelievers come to the disbelievers of Quraysh?’ We respond that the people of Quraysh were traders and they had two annual journeys: one to Ash-Sham in the summer and the other to Yemen in the winter, a fact which is clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘For the protection of the Quraysh is their protection during their trading caravans in the winter and the summer.’ (Quraysh: 1-2) Allah the Almighty has given the mastery to the tribe of Quraysh so their caravans were going to Al-Yemen and Ash-Sham and no other tribe could dare to attack them. The prosperity of the tribes of Quraysh comes from settling beside the Sacred House of Allah. Their mastery and safety come from their staying in prosperity, while their caravans travel to Ash-Sham and Al-Yemen and then return with goods and profits. Thus, they lived in safety and assurance. In their trading journeys, they used to hear the stories of the previous nations and what happened to them. Further, the routes of trade to Ash-Sham and Al-Yemen enabled them to see the remnants of the disbelievers whether from the people of Thamud, ‘Ad or other nations. Thus, they should have taken admonition from their journeys.

In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: ‘Say: Travel in the land, then see what was the end of the rejecters.’ (al-A‘raf: 11) The purpose of travelling is to take admonition and lessons; thus, there should be some remnants belonging to the people of ancient civilisation to be taken into account. So, the remnants of the inhabitants of those before us are still there and anyone can go and examine them. The cities of Prophet Saleh, ‘Ad and everywhere have remnants of previous nations.

Allah the Almighty explains that the believer believes in these accounts. As for the disbeliever, s/he can verify the veracity of these accounts when s/he: ‘Travel through the land; then observe how the end of the deniers was.’ (an-Nahl: 36) Further, Allah the Almighty says: ‘And indeed, you pass by them in the morning.’ (as-Saffat: 137) The disbelievers used to pass by the cities of the previous disbelievers like Sadum in the morning and evening during their travels in trades in the winter and summer. They also witnessed the remnants of these cities and what is left from their homes. So, people of Quraysh used to pass by these places built by the disbelievers before them. These disbelievers wronged themselves, so Allah the Almighty punished them.

Allah the Almighty says about the habitations of Prophet Lut’s people, Sadum, on which the punishment had fallen: ‘And surely it is on a road that still abides.’ (al-Hijr: 76) This means that the road that the people of Quraysh pass by when they go to that place is still there. This road, therefore, is known to them as it has not been hidden by the means of covering of sand and changes; these means will not make the place hidden except with Allah’s Will. The people of Quraysh were the people of travelling and journeys and they had seen what happened to the people before them, so how could they turn their backs on the signs of Allah the Almighty? How could not they understand these signs? How could not these signs affect their hearts? Allah the Almighty says about them: ‘And certainly they have (often) passed by the town on which was rained an evil rain; did they not then see it?’ (al-Furqan: 40) The city that was rained an evil rain is Sadum, the city of Prophet Lut’s people. Did they not then see it and watch it in their travels? These are not merely some historical scenes that the Quran portrays; rather, the disbelievers of Mecca saw these habitations in their summer journeys and passed by them: ‘So, those houses have fallen down because they were unjust.’ (an-Naml: 52) ‘Abdullah ibn ‘Umar Allah be pleased with him said that they passed by the habitations of al-Hijr, so Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him told them: ‘Do not enter but weeping to the habitations of these persons who committed tyranny among themselves, lest the same calamity should fall upon you as it fell upon them. He then urged his mount to proceed quickly and pass through that valley hurriedly.'(1)

You find the true Muslim remembering Allah the Almighty in his/her travels and take a lesson from the history of the nations before him/her. S/he knows what happened to them and guards him/herself against falling in what makes them deserve the punishment. When s/he passes by the remnants of their houses and habitations, s/he recalls the punishment that befell them and sweepingly should implore Allah the Almighty not to inflict the similar punishment on him/her. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was always careful to teach this to his ummah. In the battle of Tabuk, which is a place to the north of Medina far away from the road to Ash-Sham, he peace and blessings be upon him and his Companions passed by the town of Thamud about which He the Almighty says: 'And certainly did the companions of Thamud deny the Messengers.' (al-Hijr: 80) The companions of Thamud were the people of Prophet Saleh peace be upon him. The place of their habitation was stony; it is still known til today between Khaybar and Tabuk. Allah the Almighty says about them: 'Do you construct on every elevation a sign, amusing yourselves, and take for yourselves palaces and fortresses that you might abide eternally?' (ash-Shu'ara': 129)

The people of Prophet Saleh are the Thamud about whom Allah the Almighty says: 'And Thamud, who carved out the rocks in the valley.' (al-Ghashiya: 9) The power of the people of Thamud was greater than that of Quraysh, as the latter had the mastery only because of the existence of the Ka'ba, and had Allah the Almighty left Abraha to destroy it, they would not have prosperity on earth. The people of Saleh had stony houses and were skilful in carving their houses from the mountains. The one who visits the area between Syria and Medina can watch the cities of Prophet Saleh carved in the mountains. Allah the Almighty says regarding them: 'And you hew houses out of the mountains exultingly…' (ash-Shu'ara': 149).

(1) This Hadith is narrated by Muslim and Ibn Hibban on the authority of Ibn 'Umar Allah be pleased with him. See Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 7656; Ibn Hibban, Sahih, Hadith no. 6199; and Ibn Al-Kharrat, Al-Ahkam Ash-Shar'yya, 3/345

The people of Prophet Saleh disbelieved after the coming of a specific pregnant she-camel out of the stones, which is the miracle that they asked for. But they slaughtered it and that was the sign of the falling of the punishment on them. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: ‘But they slew her, so he said: Enjoy yourselves in your abode for three days, that is a promise not to be belied.’ (Hud: 65) These cities of Prophet Saleh are still the evidence for the truthfulness of the Message that the people of Thamud, ‘Ad and Lut all rejected. So, the one who passes by them should be admonished by them, and should not pass by obliviously They wronged themselves when they disbelieved, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘We did not wrong them; they wronged themselves.’ (an-Nahl: 118)

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is reported to have said, ‘Do not enter but tearfully (the habitations) of these people.’ So, he peace and blessings be upon him commanded the companions to take admonition by the remnants of these habitations when they passed by them, lest they would be affected by the same punishment. After all, they were not stronger than those people who were afflicted with that Divine Punishment.

In the same vein, when Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him passed by the remnants of Thamud, he forced his she-camel to hurry in order to get out of that place that was exposed to Allah’s Punishment. The she-camel hurried till it passed the dwellings of the people of Thamud that were carved inside the mountains.

When Allah the Almighty commanded the people of Quraysh to believe in Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and in the Quran, many of them opposed and disbelieved in him. That is why He the Almighty reminded them about what they used to see in the summer and winter, that is, the remnants of the evildoing people who preceded them.

They knew about the previous nations through many ways; not only did they use to pass by the remnants of the previous nations, but they also lived in their dwellings. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: ‘And you dwell in the abodes of those who were unjust to themselves, and it is clear to you how We dealt with them and We have made (them) examples to you.’ (Ibrahim: 45)

The disbelievers of Mecca were not admonished by the fate of the previous nations whose dwellings were not far away from them, as they used to pass by the cities of Prophet Saleh in their summer and winter journeys and saw the remnants of those who wronged themselves by disbelief and polytheism. They also used to pass by the region of Al-Ahqaf and saw what happened to the people of ‘Ad.

All of these previous peoples were punished by Allah the Almighty either by a screaming, violent wind, or a violent storm, or a shriek [It is the Saiha (the loud cry) by which Allah destroyed some disbelieving nations and peoples as He the Almighty says: ‘So the shriek seized them in truth, and We made them as [plant] stubble. Then away with the wrongdoing people!’ (al-Mu’minun: 41)] from the sky, or by being drowned; each of them was seized by their sins.

Hence, Allah the Almighty makes it clear that the people at the time of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him were able to see the traces of the punishment that befell the previous nations that rejected their Messengers. The news that came to them is not like any normal news. He the Almighty says about it: ‘…the news of those who disbelieved before.’ (at-Taghabun: 5)

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…those who disbelieved before...’ (at-Taghabun: 5) disbelief means covering the belief in Allah the Almighty and Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Due to their disbelief, He the Almighty seals their hearts, eyes and ears, which are the main faculties of perception. Disbelief, thus, means trying to hide the reality of Allah’s Existence. In fact, this trial in itself is a confession of His Existence because you do not try to hide something that does not exist.

One of the established Laws of Allah the Almighty on the earth is to punish those who disbelieve in His Messages in this worldly life first and then in the Hereafter. He the Almighty does not postpone all the punishment till the Hereafter. Otherwise, the good people would be inflicted with the harm of the disbelieving and disobedient people. That is why these disbelievers receive part of the punishment in this worldly life. In this connection, He the Almighty says: ‘(Such has been) the way of Allah with respect to those who have gone before; and you shall not find any change in the Way of Allah.’ (al-Ahzab: 62)

The ‘way’ here means the law that controls life. We knew from the news of the previous people what happened to both the believers who obeyed their Lord, and the disbelievers who denied their Messengers. With regard to these disbelievers, Allah the Almighty says: ‘And We punished each one of them for their sins: some We struck with a violent storm of stones; some were overcome by a sudden blast; some We made the earth swallow; and some We drowned. It was not Allah who wronged them; they wronged themselves.’ (al-’Ankabut: 40)

These are the various kinds of punishment that afflicted the disbelievers of the previous nations. The people of Mecca knew well what happened to them. So, were they waiting for a similar end? In this vein, Allah the Almighty says: ‘What do they wait for then but the like of the days of those who passed away before them? Say: Wait then; surely I too am with you of those who wait.’ (Yunus: 102)

Thus, the disbelievers of Quraysh should not have stubbornly rejected belief in Prophet Muhammad’s Message. In one verse, Allah the Almighty mentions all kinds of punishment that afflicted the previous nations, though they were in different times and the reasons for their punishment were various. This is because these disbelievers were similar to each other. He the Almighty says: ‘And We punished each one of them for their sins...’ (al-’Ankabut: 40). This means that He the Almighty did not wrong any of them, but rather, He the Almighty punished them justly due to their sins. That is why He the Almighty says at the end of this verse: ‘It was not Allah who wronged them; they wronged themselves.’ (al-’Ankabut: 40)

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…some We struck with a violent storm of stone...’ (al-’Ankabut: 40). The violent storm here is that which carries small stones that are very hot and cause pain when thrown by the wind. He the Almighty does not say that He had sent fire on them because fire would cause them to die quickly, while the firing stones would increase their pain.

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…some were overcome by a sudden blast...’ (al-’Ankabut: 40). The sudden blast is that which causes the earth to shake. Those who were seized by it are the people of Thamud. With regard to His saying: ‘…some We made the earth swallow...’ (al-’Ankabut: 40). It refers to the punishment that befell Qarun; and His saying: ‘…and some

We drowned...' (al-'Ankabut: 40) refers to the punishment of the people of Noah and Pharaoh.

These are four ways of destroying the disbeliever: they are destroyed either by fire which afflicted them in the form of stones, or by air which afflicted them in the form of a shriek, or by the collapse of the earth with them, or by drowning them in water.

Instead of taking a lesson from what happened to the previous nations, you find that when one of them, 'Amr ibn Luhayy(1) travelled to Ash-Sham, he found them worshipping idols, and he brought one of them, Hubal' to Mecca. By so doing, he was the first one to bring idols to Mecca. The idols they worshipped came from Byzantines and were placed around the Ka'ba, the House of Allah Glorified is He.

In the verse in question, the word: '…before…' (at-Taghabun: 5) aims at reassuring Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him by informing him that his people were not the first to disbelieve, for the people before them denied the Messages of their Prophets as well. In this vein, Allah the Almighty says: 'And if they reject you, then already before you did the people of Noah and 'Ad and Thamud reject (Prophets).' (al-Hajj: 42) This means that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is not a special case, for many Prophets before him were denied.

As a matter of fact, we should not look at disbelieving apart from its punishment. What was the result of their disbelief? Had Allah the Almighty left them unpunished or had He Glorified is He taken them with His Mightiness and Power?! So, He Glorified is He reassured Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him that the punishment could befall the disbelievers of Mecca just as: '…the people of Abraham and the people of Lut, as well as those of Midyan, and Moses (too) was rejected, but I gave respite to the unbelievers, then did I overtake them, so how (severe) was My disapproval.' (al-Hajj: 44)

(1) 'Amr ibn Luhayy was from the tribe of 'Khuza'ah' and was the leader of Mecca. He was the first to change the religion of Abraham peace be upon him as he was the first to bring the idols inside the Arabian Peninsula. He added many things to the original religion of Abraham peace be upon him.

Allah the Almighty prolonged enjoyment for the disbelievers till they thought that they would not be punished. He the Almighty gave them a complete opportunity to believe and follow the Guidance. So, what did they do? Not only did they disbelieve, but they also tried to mislead the believers. That is why Allah's Punishment befell them.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says in the verse in question: 'They tasted the evil consequences of their conduct…' (at-Taghabun: 5). The 'evil consequences' here refer to the difficult and bad outcomes of their misdeeds. To know the meaning of tasting the consequences, you should read the following saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And Allah sets forth a parable: (Consider) a town (1) safe and secure to which its means of subsistence come in abundance from every quarter; but it became ungrateful to Allah's favors, therefore Allah made it taste the utmost degree of hunger and fear because of what they wrought.' (an-Nahl: 112)

We know that food is the thing that could be tasted, and that only the tongue can sense that taste, unlike the garment which covers the whole body. But in this verse, Allah the Almighty mentions that all the body will taste, not only the mouth. The mouth intakes the food in favour of the whole body, but if the food does not reach the body, all the body tastes the hunger.

Thus, Allah Glorified is He made every part of their bodies taste the consequences, and hence the torture. He the Almighty makes every organ in the body able to taste, just like the tongue, as if the taste turned to a garment of hunger that is felt by all the body. He the Almighty uses the word 'taste' to express the strength of the feeling, and the word 'garment' to express its inclusion of all the body, as if the whole body has the ability to taste: the fingertips, the feet, the chest, the neck, etc., that is, all of them are able to taste.

The Quranic style uses the word 'taste' in the verse in question, which is different from 'swallow' or 'to be full', so why? The punishment that the disbelievers underwent at the hands of the believers at the battle of Badr is nothing compared to their severe, painful, and endless punishment in the Hereafter.

(1) In his Tafsir, At-Tabari says that the city, according to Mujahid and Qatada, is Mecca; yet another group of scholars believe that it is Medina. In his Tafsir, Ibn Al-Jawzi says, 'It is just an example.' It is also said to be a village that was very rich to the extent that they were using bread in cleaning themselves after using the toilet, so Allah the Almighty sent them hunger, till they were forced to eat their dirt. See At-Tabari, Jame' Al-Bayan, 17/309; see also Ibn Al-Jawzi, Zad Al-Masir, 4/132.

Allah Glorified is He says to the disbelievers after the battle of Badr: ‘That is what you get! Taste that!’—‘and the torment of the fire awaits the disbelievers.’ (al-Anfal: 14) This refers to what happened at the battle of Badr, when the believers struck them upon the necks and struck from them every fingertip. In this connection, Allah the Almighty says: ‘…strike above their necks and strike all their fingertips.’ (al-Anfal: 12)

In fact, the disbelievers at all times tasted the consequences of their misdeeds, which are disbelief, denial, deviating from the Way of Allah the Almighty and disobeying their Messengers. They will taste the punishment in this worldly life and in the Hereafter: ‘…a painful torment awaits them.’ (at-Taghabun: 5) Thus, besides being tortured in this worldly life, there is a painful punishment waiting for them in the Hereafter. Describing the punishment as: ‘…painful’ (at-Taghabun: 5) shows that they will suffer a punishment followed by another punishment that will be more painful and severe.

Now, the strength of the deed comes in accordance with the strength of its doer. For example, when we say that a child slapped a man, we understand that the slap of a child differs from that of a young man, and that the young man’s slap differs from that of a boxer, and so on. Hence, we know that the strength of the deed depends on the strength of the doer. So, if the Doer is Allah the Almighty this means that the pain of the punishment is infinite, may Allah protect us from such a punishment.

There are many aspects of torture; the torture may be painful, but the tortured endures it and shows some patience. His/her arrogance may prevent him/her from showing pain, as one poet says:

I keep patient to show my enemies that forever I cannot be defeated

This patience is in fact a kind of arrogance and that is why the people of the fire will be exposed to another kind of torture which is great in amount, more painful and more humiliating; it breaks the arrogance of the human soul. It will be said to the tortured one: ‘Taste! Indeed, you are the honoured, the noble!’ (ad-Dukhan: 49) The chastisement will break the arrogance and haughtiness of the disbeliever who felt proud over Allah the Almighty and His Messengers. If s/he is really honoured, s/he would not have disbelieved and led him/herself to the hell.

Thus, the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Taste…’ (ad-Dukhan: 49) here means to taste and feel the humility, as food and drink are not meant here. This is more severe and painful, may Allah protect us from the hellfire.

Allah says:

ذَٰلِكَ بِأَنَّهُۥ كَانَت تَّأْتِيهِمْ رُسُلُهُم بِٱلْبَيِّنَٰتِ فَقَالُوٓا۟ أَبَشَرٌ يَهْدُونَنَا
فَكَفَرُوا۟ وَتَوَلَّوا۟ ۚ وَّٱسْتَغْنَى ٱللَّهُ ۚ وَٱللَّهُ غَنِىٌّ حَمِيدٌ ﴿٦﴾

That is because their messengers came to them with clear signs, yet they said, ‘Should we take guidance from mere mortals?’, rejected the message, and turned away. But God had no need for them: He is all sufficient, worthy of all praise [6] (The Quran, at-Taghabun: 6)

The word ‘that’ here indicates the reasons why they were punished; it correlates to the previous verse: ‘They tasted the evil consequences of their conduct…’ (at-Taghabun: 5). Thus, this punishment is not unfair; rather, it is because of what they have done.

This is similar to the verse in which Allah the Almighty says: ‘Those who disbelieved from among the children of Israel were cursed by the tongue of David and Jesus, son of Mary; this was because they disobeyed and used to exceed the limit.’ (al-Ma‘ida: 78) Being cursed and driven away from Allah's Mercy is the result of their disobedience and transgression. In another verse, He the Almighty says: ‘And abasement and humiliation were brought down upon them, and they became deserving of Allah’s Wrath; this was so because they disbelieved in the communications of Allah and killed the Prophets unjustly; this was so because they disobeyed and exceeded the limits.’ (al-Baqara: 61)

Further, Allah the Almighty addresses them, saying: ‘Allah has certainly heard the saying of those who said :(1) Surely Allah is poor and we are rich. I will record what they say, and their killing the Prophets unjustly, and I will say: “Taste the chastisement of burning.”’ (Al-‘Imran: 181) Then, He the Almighty says: ‘This is for what your own hands have sent before and because Allah is not in the least unjust to the servants.’ (Al-‘Imran: 182) The word ‘this’ here refers to the chastisement of burning. So, Allah Glorified is He has not wronged them, but they wronged themselves. This is a general principle in Islam: Allah Glorified is He is not ever unjust to His servants.

(1) Ibn‘Abbas narrated that Abu Bakr once entered a place and found a group of Jews therein, whereupon he said to one of their scholars called ‘Finhas’, ‘Fear Allah and be=

In the same connection, Allah the Almighty says: ‘It was not Allah who wronged them; they wronged themselves.’ (al-’Ankabut: 40) This emphasizes that Allah the Almighty will judge them according to their understanding of the miracle of the Messenger. This verse means that He the Almighty would not have wronged them. If you say, ‘I would not do this,’ you mean that you were able to do that, but it is not good from you to do it. So, He the Almighty says that He is far removed from committing injustice; however, this is not because He is not Able to do it, but because this Attribute does not behove Him the Almighty. That is because injustice aims at taking others’ rights, and since He the Almighty is the Owner of everything, why does He need to be unjust? Thus, He the Almighty was not unjust to them when He punished them, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘And Allah was not unjust to them, but they were unjust to themselves.’ (an-Nahl: 33)

Moreover, Allah the Almighty does not punish without warning, or without criminalising the actions for which they are punishable because it is not accepted to punish someone for a sin without warning and showing what the punishment would be. If you punish someone for a crime without clarifying that it is a crime, you do injustice to him/her. That is why the lawgivers say, ‘Nullum crimen sine lege, and nulla poena sine lege [no crime without law and no punishment without law]’.

= a Muslim. You know that Muhammad is the Messenger of Allah’. The man then said bad words and said that Allah is poor and they, i.e. the Jews are rich. Abu Bakr became very angry and hit Finhas strongly on his face. Finhas went to Prophet Muhammad peace be upon him and complained to him, and denied that he had said that, so this verse was revealed. In his Tafsir, As-Suyuti narrates this Hadith and ascribes it to Ibn Ishaq, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abu Hatim, on the authority of Ibn ‘Abbas. See As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur.

Indeed, the disbelievers received the text that shows that their deeds are crimes. Further, the Messengers have informed and warned them, a fact which is clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘And never would We punish until We sent a Messenger.’ (al-Isra’: 15)

This proves what we have previously said in explaining the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘It is He who created you, yet some of you disbelieve and some believe…’ (at-Taghabun: 2). He the Almighty does not force you to be a believer or a disbeliever; it is according to your choice, which is proven by your deeds and sayings. Our Lord created us and gave us the choice either to obey or disobey Him, and to believe or disbelieve in Him. Thus, He the Almighty gave the people the freedom of choice in this worldly life, but this choice is not against His Will, for if someone chooses to disbelieve, s/he does so according to the freedom of choice given to him/her by Him Glorified is He.

If they had been forced by Allah the Almighty He would not have punished them. So, the disbelievers simply realise His Will regarding them. He the Almighty gave us the freedom of choice, and gave us the ability to either obey or disobey and, thus, the human being has the choice to do any of them. Consequently, people have no excuse, for He the Almighty gave them the ability to choose and sent His Messengers to guide them to the Right Path and to give glad tidings to those who obey and to warn those who disobey.

Before we speak more about the Messengers and their Messages, we should clarify that this verse refutes all the excuses of the disbelievers on the Day of Judgment which Allah the Almighty calls: ‘The Day of Mutual Gain and Loss’. It is the Day when the people of paradise will triumph over those of the hell who gave up paradise in exchange for hell. The loss occurred because they changed the good for the bad, the enjoyment for torture. For example, when you exchange a bad type of goods with a good type, you will be considered a winner. No doubt that the loser in this worldly life feels great pain and sadness, so how about losing on the Day of Judgment?! In this worldly life, you may have other opportunities, but the pain of loss, on the Last Day, will be endless and cannot be compensated.

In the same vein, Allah the Almighty allocated a place in paradise for all the people, but the disbeliever loses it because of his/her disbelief, and then his/her share goes to a believer. The disbeliever must realise that these consequences are due to his/her own deeds because s/he chose the way of disbelief, rejected the Message and went against his/her own natural disposition with which Allah the Almighty created him/her.

We know that Allah Glorified is He says: ‘These are they who are the heirs, Who shall inherit the Paradise; they shall abide therein.’ (al-Mu’minun: 10-11) When you read this verse, you know that Allah Glorified is He will make the believer inherit that place in paradise which was prepared for another one, i.e. the disbeliever if s/he had believed. So, the believers will inherit the disbelievers’ share in paradise.

In fact, Allah’s Knowledge about the destiny of the people preceded their creation. He the Almighty created for every one of us a place in paradise and a place in hell. Those who will stay in hellfire forever will leave their places in paradise empty, so He the Almighty will give them to the believers, in addition to their original places in paradise.

In this regard, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘There is no one among you who does not have two abodes: An abode in Paradise and an abode in Hell. If he dies and enters Hell, the people of Paradise inherit his abode.’(1)

The disbeliever wronged him/herself and lost his/her place in paradise because of his/her own misdeeds; nobody has wronged him/her. So, the saying of Allah the Almighty in the verse in question: ‘That…’ (at-Taghabun: 6) refers to the reason why the painful torment befalls the disbelievers in this worldly life, and in the Hereafter: ‘…a painful torment awaits them.’ (at-Taghabun: 6) Then, He the Almighty clarifies this reason, saying: ‘That is because their Messengers came to them…’ (at-Taghabun: 6).

In this verse, Allah the Almighty refers to the previous nations without details, but in another verse, He Glorified is He mentions them in detail, saying: ‘Has the news of those before them not come to them, of the people of Noah and ‘Ad and Thamud, and the people of Abraham and the dwellers of Midyan and the overthrown cities? Their Messengers came to them with clear arguments; so it was not Allah Who should do them injustice, but they were unjust to themselves.' (at-Tawba: 70)

(1) See Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 4341; and Al-Bayhaqi, Al-Ba'ath Wa An-Nushur, 1/151.

So, not only did the people of Noah, Abraham and other Messengers and Prophets receive the Divine Messages, but they also saw the miracles that prove the truthfulness of their Messengers. They have no excuse to reject or deviate from the Divine Way of Guidance, given the fact that every Message is supported by a miracle that proves the truthfulness of the Messenger.

The Messengers were sent to the human beings to guide them to Allah's Way of Guidance, and to show them the Right Path. In another verse, Allah Glorified is He says: 'Has the account not reached you of those before you, of the people of Noah and 'Ad and Thamud, and those after them? None knows them but Allah. Their Messengers come to them with clear arguments, but they thrust their hands into their mouths and said: Surely we deny that with which you are sent, and most surely we are in serious doubt as to that to which you invite us.' (Ibrahim: 9)

Messengers carried Allah's Way of Guidance for their people, but the reaction of their people was that: '…they thrust their hands into their mouths and said: Surely we deny that with which you are sent...' (Ibrahim: 9). The disbelievers put their hands over the Messengers' mouths to prevent them from delivering the Message. Another possible interpretation is that some of them told their Messengers that their speaking with such people was in vain.

In this verse, the disbelievers declare openly that they disbelieve, saying: 'Surely we deny that with which you are sent...' (Ibrahim: 9). To be logical, they said that they are in doubt about what their Messengers came with, as if they were willing to believe if their doubts were to be omitted. That is why they said: '…and most surely we are in serious doubt as to that to which you invite us.' (Ibrahim: 9)

But in the verse in question, they said: 'Should we take guidance from mere mortals?' (at-Taghabun: 6) Here, they search for another excuse for their disbelief other than doubt, a lame excuse that has no credibility. They said, 'Shall human beings guide us? They are humans just like us, not better, how will they guide us?!' However, do the Messengers guide them by a human message that they invented or by a Divine Message from their Lord?! Every Messenger conveys a Message from Allah the Almighty. He the Almighty chooses to send human Messengers to the human beings, a fact which is clear in His saying: ‘And We have not sent before you but men from (among) the people of the towns…’ (Yusuf: 109). Thus, Allah the Almighty chose them as humans.

This was the excuse used by the disbelievers to justify their disbelief. In this vein, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘And nothing prevented people from believing when the guidance came to them except that they said: What! Has Allah raised up a mortal to be a Messenger?’ (al-Isra’: 94) So, they asked for non-human Messengers.

But why does Allah the Almighty not send angels to humans? If there had been angels living on earth, The Almighty Allah would have sent an angel for them. Yet, as long as those who live on earth are mere humans, it is more convenient to send a human Messenger like them. That is why He the Almighty says: ‘Say: Had there been in the earth angels walking about as settlers, We would certainly have sent down to them from the heaven an angel as a Messenger.’ (al-Isra’: 95)

Even when Gabriel came to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and asked him about Islam, Faith, and Goodness, he did not appear in the form of an angel; rather, he appeared in the form of a human and left directly after completing his duty, without being noticed. Later, when being asked about him, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him told his Companions that he was Gabriel who came to teach them their religion.(1) ‘Umar ibn Al-Kattab, the narrator of this incident, said, ‘While we were one day sitting with the Messenger of Allah, there appeared before us a man dressed in extremely white clothes and with very black hair. No traces of journeying were visible on him, and none of us knew him. He sat down close by the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him rested his knees against the knees of the Prophet and placed his palms over his thighs.’

In this Hadith, ‘Umar Allah be pleased with him describes the clothes of the man as being extremely white, meaning that his clothes are not affected by the sand of the desert, and he stresses this meaning by saying, ‘No traces of travelling were visible on him,’ moreover, ‘none of us knew him’. This means that he was not a human, but an angel who appeared suddenly in a form of a man. That is why Allah the Almighty says: ‘And if We had made him an angel, We would certainly have made him a man, and We would certainly have made confused to them what they make confused.’ (al-An‘am: 9) They asked for an angel, yet if He the Almighty had fulfilled their request and sent an angel, He would have made him in the form of a man, and still they would have kept disbelieving and rejecting.

(1) See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 50 and 4777; and Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 106 and 108.

Thus, if Allah the Almighty wanted to send an angel, He would make him in the form of a man because they cannot see an angel in his real form. They might die out of horror then. Even Prophet Abraham peace be upon him was terrified when he saw the angels, although they were in human form. In this regard, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘And certainly Our messengers came to Abraham with good news. They said: Peace. Peace, said he, and he made no delay in bringing a roasted calf. But when he saw that their hands were not extended towards it, he deemed them strange and conceived fear of them. They said: Fear not, surely we are sent to Lut's people.’ (Hud: 69-70)

The same happened to Mary peace be upon her when she saw the archangel Gabriel peace be upon him in the form of a man, while she was in her prayer chamber. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: ‘And mention Mary in the Book when she drew aside from her family to an eastern place; So she took a veil (to screen herself) from them; then We sent to her Our spirit, and there appeared to her a well-made man.’ (Maryam: 16-17) She was frightened although he came in a form of a well-proportioned man in order that she feels secure and not to be afraid. She said: ‘Surely I fly for refuge from you to the Beneficent if you are one guarding (against evil).’ (Maryam: 18) She sought refuge in Allah the Almighty because she was afraid that he would attack or harm her, and she is weak.

That is why Allah the Almighty chose to send Messengers from humans, not from angels, and He Glorified is He supported them, i.e. His Messengers with proofs and miracles to prove their veracity and truthfulness. In the verse in question, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘That is because their Messengers came to them with clear signs…' (at-Taghabun: 6). They came with clear signs to prove the truthfulness of their Messages. The word 'signs' may refer to drawing their, i.e. the disbelievers' attention to the cosmic signs around them, or to the miracles that prove the truthfulness of the Messengers. All the Messengers came with the clear signs that proved their truthfulness, whether they were miracles or verses that contained clear rules organising their life and making them happy. However, most of their people rejected and disbelieved in these clear signs.

All Messengers came with clear signs to their people, as Allah Glorified is He says: 'But if they reject you, so indeed were rejected before you Messengers who came with clear arguments and scriptures and the illuminating book.' (Al-'Imran: 184)

Moses peace be upon him came to his people with clear signs, as Allah says: 'And most certainly Moses came to you with clear arguments, then you took the calf (for a god) in his absence and you were unjust.' (al-Baqara: 92) He the Almighty also says: 'And certainly We gave Moses nine clear signs; so ask the children of Israel. When he came to them, Pharaoh said to him: Most surely I deem you, O Moses, to be a man deprived of reason.' (al-Isra': 101) Those clear signs Moses peace be upon him showed to his people include the stick that turned to a snake; his hand that he took out of his pocket shining in a white colour; the years of famine; and deficiency in property, souls and fruits. Then when they rejected those signs, Allah the Almighty sent upon them the flood, locusts, lice, frogs, and blood.

Moreover, there are some other signs directed to the children of Israel, like striking the stone with the staff, and there gushed forth from it twelve springs; raising the mountain above them as if it was a dark cloud; and sending down to them manna and quails. Despite all these signs, they disbelieved and turned away. Allah the Almighty says: 'They disbelieved and turned away.' (at-Taghabun: 6) The same was done by the people of Hud, Saleh, Shu'aib, Lut, etc. They turned away on purpose, and disbelieved in the clear signs with which their Prophet was sent.

The ummah of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him must avoid acting like those deniers. That is why Allah Glorified be He says: 'O you who believe! Obey Allah and His Messenger and do not turn back from Him while you hear.’ (al-Anfal: 20) Yet, if they do misdeeds, tell them, O Muhammad, that you fear for them the punishment of the Last Day. He the Almighty says: ‘But if they turn away, [say], ‘I have already conveyed that with which I was sent to you.’ (Hud: 57) If they turn away, they have no excuse because he peace and blessings be upon him has showed them the Way of Guidance with which he was sent, as Allah the Almighty does not punish those who are unaware.

The people of previous nations turned away in many ways; let us take the example of the people of Prophet Noah peace be upon him to illustrate the point. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: ‘And whenever I have called them that You may forgive them, they put their fingers in their ears, cover themselves with their garments, and persist and are puffed up with pride.’ (Nuh: 7) They put their fingers in their ears in order not to hear the Truth. Moreover, they covered their heads and ears with their garments out of their hatred to the Message of Allah the Almighty and to the calling for Allah’s Oneness that Prophet Noah peace be upon him came with; so they could not hear the Truth.

Another way of turning away from the Divine Message is that of the Jews. They said: ‘Our hearts are wrapped...’ (al-Baqara: 88). It is as if their hearts are covered with a wrap, thus nothing can go out of them or even enter into them.

Likewise, the people of Shu‘aib said: ‘O Shu‘ayb, we do not understand much of what you say…’ (Hud: 91) This is in fact a turning away from understanding the Truth, even though they could comprehend what Prophet Shu‘aib peace be upon him was saying.

In the verse in question, Allah the Almighty says: ‘But Allah had no need for them…’ (at-Taghabun: 6). In fact, people’s belief or disbelief will not affect Allah by any means, for He has the Perfect Attributes of Divinity and Lordship. He the Almighty is free of need; if some of His creatures turned away from belief and chose to disbelieve, He the Almighty helps them to turn away, and never help them to believe. He the Almighty does not need any partner, nor does He need those who associate partners with Him. That is why He blamed Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying: ‘As for him who considers himself free from need (of you), To him do you address yourself. And no blame is on you if he would not purify himself.’ (‘Abasa: 5-7) This man thought that he does not need to believe in Allah the Almighty in Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and in the Divine Way of Guidance. Instead, he was content with the pre-Islamic lustful way of life which is represented in having dominance and power. So, it is as if Allah the Almighty was telling him: ‘Why do you, O Prophet Muhammad, give attention to those who do not want to believe? I do not need them.’

In this regard, Anas ibn Malik Allah be pleased with him narrated that once Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was preaching to his Companions, then three men came. The first one came and sat with the Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him; the second one sat behind; while the third went away, whereupon he peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘Shall I not inform you about these three people? One of them sought refuge with Allah and Allah gave him refuge; the second one felt shy and Allah showed kindness to his shyness (and so he was accommodated in that meeting), and the last one averted, and so Allah turned away from him.’(1)

In the verse in question, Allah Glorified is He then says: ‘He is All Sufficient, worthy of all praise.’ (at-Taghabun: 6) He Glorified is He is free of need, and deserves to be praised for having this Attribute. His Richness is beneficial for His servants. Evidently, the rich person is not praised unless his/her richness is beneficial for others. In fact, the believer is the only one who benefits from his/her belief, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah Glorified is He: ‘And whoever is grateful, he is only grateful for his own soul; and whoever is ungrateful, then surely Allah is Self-Sufficient, Praised.’ (Luqman: 12)

(1) This Hadith is narrated by Al-Bazzar on the authority of Anas ibn Malik Allah be pleased with him. It is also narrated by Al-Bukhari and Muslim on the authority of Abu Waqid Al-Laythi Allah be pleased with him. Their narration reads: ‘While Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was sitting in the mosque (with some people), three men came, two of them came in front of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and the third one went away, and then one of them found a place in the circle and sat there, while the second man sat behind the gathering, and the third one went away. When Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him finished his preaching, he said, ‘Shall I tell you about these three persons? One of them betook himself to Allah and so Allah accepted him and accommodated him; the second felt shy before Allah, so Allah did the same for him and sheltered him in His Mercy (and did not punish him), while the third turned his face from Allah, and went away, so Allah turned away from him likewise.’ See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 66 and 474; Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 5810; and Al-Bazzar, Musnad, Hadith no. 7243

So, Allah Glorified is He is not in need of anyone of His servants, a fact which is clearly manifested in His saying: ‘And say: “The truth is from your Lord, so whoever wills - let him believe; and whoever wills-let him disbelieve.’ (al-Kahf: 29) He the Almighty also says: ‘…and Allah is Self-Sufficient and you have need (of Him), and if you turn back He will bring in your place another people, then they will not be like you.’ (Muhammad: 38) If the people turned away from Allah’s Way of Guidance, He Glorified is He will replace them with other different people.

In fact, Allah the Almighty had revealed His Way of Guidance for the benefit of people. He the Almighty had created them by the means of all His Perfect Attributes. None of His creation can add to or remove any of these Attributes.

Allah Glorified is He is Praiseworthy, whether you praised Him or not. He the Almighty deserves to be praised even if there is no one to praise Him, for His Attributes are eternal. Thus, Allah the Almighty is free of need, and deserves to be praised by all the creation due to His Generosity and Graces bestowed on them.

Allah Glorified is He subsequently says:

زَعَمَ ٱلَّذِينَ كَفَرُوٓاْ أَن لَّن يُبۡعَثُواْۚ قُلۡ بَلَىٰ وَرَبِّي لَتُبۡعَثُنَّ ثُمَّ لَتُنَبَّؤُنَّ
بِمَا عَمِلۡتُمۡۚ وَذَٰلِكَ عَلَى ٱللَّهِ يَسِيرٞ ٧

The disbelievers claim they will not be raised from the dead.
Say [Prophet], ‘Yes indeed! I swear by my Lord! You will be raised and then you will be informed about everything you have done: an easy matter for God’ [7]
(The Quran, at-Taghabun: 7)

The disbelievers of the previous nations were arrogant to believe in and follow the Messengers of Allah the Almighty. They considered sending a human Messenger to guide them something which is far-fetched. This was out of their arrogance and envy to those Messengers. In this connection, Allah the Almighty tells us that they, i.e. those deniers of the Truth, said: ‘Has the reminder been revealed to him from among us?’ (Sad: 8) After objecting to the humanity of the Messenger, they left this point and moved to the personality of the Messenger himself. They said: ‘Has the reminder been revealed to him from among us?' (Sad: 8) In another verse, Allah the Almighty relates that they said: 'Has the reminder been made to light upon him from among us? Nay! He is an insolent liar! Tomorrow shall they know who the liar is, the insolent one.' (al-Qamar: 26-27)

All of these are lame excuses and pretexts, but the truth will be revealed to them when Allah the Almighty gathers them on the Day of Resurrection and punishes them for their disbelief.

The problem with those disbelievers is that they do not believe in the Resurrection or the Reckoning. They do not believe that they will return to Allah the Almighty because they do not want to stop their evils deeds and transgression against others. They want to do whatever evils they like, without being restricted to a Messenger, a Book, a moral principle, or any ethics.

In the verse under discussion, Allah Glorified is He says: 'The disbelievers claim…' (at-Taghabun: 7). 'To claim' is to say something which is not true. It is another way of lying. In another verse, Allah the Almighty says to these disbelievers: 'Nay, you thought that We had not appointed to you a time of the fulfilment of the promise.' (al-Kahf: 48) This discourse is directed to the disbelievers who do not believe in Resurrection and Reckoning.

Thus, with regard to the saying of Allah Glorified is He: 'The disbelievers claim…' (at-Taghabun: 7) the word 'claim' means that they are liars in denying the reality of being resurrected and held accountable after death. Their claim stems from their wrong thoughts and illusions which have no relation with the reality. In this connection, He the Almighty says: 'And they say: There is nothing but our life in this world; we live and die and nothing destroys us but time, and they have no knowledge of that; they only conjecture.' (al-Jathiya: 24)

In fact, the one who transgressed against him/herself by disbelief or disobedience does not hope to be resurrected and held accountable because s/he cannot discipline him/herself and control his/her behaviour. S/he thinks that by denying Resurrection, s/he will not be exposed to his/her evil destiny in the Hereafter. That is why you find them questioning Resurrection, not knowing that they will be resurrected for sure, whether or not they believed in the Day of Resurrection, as the One Who created them out of nothing has the Power to resurrect them; even Resurrection is easier for Him Glorified is He.

The One Who created them is the One Who sent Messengers to warn them against the Day of Resurrection. He the Almighty is the One Who revealed the Books to guide them, and He the Almighty is the Owner of the heavens and the earth.

In the verse in question, Allah the Almighty tells us that the disbelievers claimed that: '…they will not be raised from the dead.' (at-Taghabun: 7) Nowadays, the disbelievers, atheists, and some materialistic philosophers deny the issue of Resurrection. This is not a novel claim, for they are following the steps of the former ignorant disbelievers of the pre-Islamic era about whom He the Almighty says: 'And they say: What! When we have become lost in the earth, shall we then certainly be in a new creation? Nay! They are disbelievers in the meeting of their Lord.' (as-Sajda: 10) So, the disbelievers are asking, 'Will we be resurrected after our bodies' decay?' They ask in astonishment, 'Will we be raised from the death after our bodies have been dissolved into the earth?!' Thus, they do not believe that the One Who created them from nothing has the Power to resurrect them.

Allah the Almighty tells us in the Quran that the disbelievers said: 'What! When we are dead and have become dust? That is afar (from probable) return.' (Qaf: 3) He the Almighty refutes their claim, saying: 'To Him is your return, of all (of you); the promise of Allah (made) in truth; surely He begins the creation in the first instance, then He reproduces it, that He may with justice recompense those who believe and do good; and (as for) those who disbelieve, they shall have a drink of hot water and painful punishment because they disbelieved.' (Yunus: 4)

In the same connection, Ibn 'Abbas Allah be pleased with him narrated that Ubay ibn Khalaf came to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him with crumbled particles and said, 'Do you claim, O Muhammad, that Allah will resurrect us as new creation after our bones turn to crumbled particles like these?' Then he smashed the bones and threw them into the wind, saying, 'Who will recreate this, Muhammad?' Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Allah will do that; He will make you die, then resurrect you, then throw you into the Hellfire.' Subsequently, He the Almighty revealed this verse: 'And he strikes out a likeness for Us and forgets his own creation. Says he: Who will give life to the bones when they are rotten? Say: He will give life to them Who brought them into existence at first, and He is cognisant of all creation.' (Ya Sin: 78-79)

Ubay ibn Khalaf was a bitter enemy of Islam. He came to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him with old bones and smashed them between his fingers and said, 'Do you claim, O Muhammad, that we will be resurrected after our bones turn to crumbled particles like these?' He kept throwing them into the air and saying, 'Who will resurrect this?!' Due to the arrogance and the toughness of that man, Prophet Muhammad's reply was strong and decisive; he said, 'Allah will do that; He will make you die, then resurrect you, then throw you into the Hellfire.'

This arrogant man said once to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him 'I feed my horse a big amount of corn daily to kill you one day while riding on it.' Thereupon, he peace and blessings be upon him said with a complete trust in His Lord, 'It is me who will kill you, if Allah wills.'(1)

This arrogant man wanted to fulfil his oath when he saw Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in a weak position at the battle of Uhud, for he peace and blessings be upon him was wounded, his teeth were broken, and he was bleeding. At that moment, Ubay ibn Khalaf came to kill him peace and blessings be upon him, but he peace and blessings be upon him stabbed him with his bayonet. So, he fell down off his horse and kept screaming. His companions said to him, 'Why are you so terrified? It is just a small wound!' He said, 'I am sure that Muhammad will kill me! He promised to do so by the will of Allah! That is why I am sure he will kill me even by a spit!' Indeed, he died on their way back to Mecca. (2)

The One Who created us out of nothing, Allah the Almighty will make us die and resurrect us on the Day of Judgment. As the disbelievers could not deny the creation, they turned to denying Resurrection. In this regard, Allah Glorified is He says: 'Q-a-f. I swear by the glorious Quran. Nay! They wonder that there has come to them a warner from among themselves, so the unbelievers say: This is a wonderful thing: What! When we are dead and have become dust? That is afar (from probable) return.' (al-Mu'minun: 15-16)

---

(1) See Al-Baghawi, Ma'alim At-Tanzil, 2/114; and Al-Bayhaqi, Dala'il An-Nubuwwa, 3/211

(2) See Al-Qurtubi, Jame' Ahkam Al-Quran, 7/385; As-Samarqandi, Bahr Al-'Ulum, 1/318; and Ibn 'Ashur, At-Tahrir Wa At-Tanwir, 20/25.

They think it is unlikely that they will be resurrected after death and the decay of their bodies, but Allah the Almighty decisively says: 'Then after that you will most surely die. Then surely on the day of resurrection you shall be raised.' (al-Mu'minun: 15-16) As He the Almighty says: 'To Him is your return.' (Yunus: 4) Then His Promise must be fulfilled because He the Almighty has the Power to fulfil it and is far removed from lying or cheating, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'And who is more truthful than Allah in statement.' (an-Nisa': 87)

It is as if Allah the Almighty is saying to these disbelievers, 'Do not think that you gained the worldly life and enjoyed it and that is all! Rather, you will be resurrected and held accountable. Why do you think it is impossible?' In the same connection, He the Almighty says: '…surely He begins the creation in the first instance, then He reproduces it...' (Yunus: 4). Is He the Almighty Who created out of nothing not Able to create out of something? Further, He the Almighty says: '…for I created you before, while you were nothing.' (Maryam: 9) So, they should not ask, 'How will Allah resurrect us?', for their atoms are there. Moreover, He Glorified is He says: 'Were We then fatigued with the first creation? Yet are they in doubt with regard to a new creation?' (Qaf: 15) By referring to the first creation, He the Almighty proves Resurrection. If you wonder about being resurrected while your atoms are there, think about the first creation that was out of nothing. Thus, the One Who created you out of nothing is fully Able to resurrect you out of something.

The disbelievers mocked at the reality of Resurrection, Accountability, and Punishment that await them. In this regard, the Quran tells us that they said: 'What! When we are dead and have become dust and bones, shall we then certainly be raised, Or our fathers of yore?' (as-Saffat: 16-17) Their mocking intensified to the extent that they asked for the punishment to come soon; they said: 'So bring us what you threaten us, if you should be of the truthful?' (Hud: 32) They also said: 'Or you make the heaven fall upon us in fragments as you have claimed.' (al-Isra': 92) Does anyone ask his/her enemy to bring him/her the punishment except in ridicule? They laugh at the idea of being resurrected after being decayed and dissolved in the earth. Their denial of Resurrection is not meant in itself; rather, it is a disbelief in meeting with Allah the Almighty and being held accountable. As they hate to meet with Him the Almighty they deny the whole process, starting with Resurrection, from the very beginning.

In fact, they were liars when they said: ‘And they say: What! When we have become lost in the earth, shall we then certainly be in a new creation?’ (as-Sajda: 10) They were not truthful in their denial of Resurrection, a fact which is clearly stated by the Quran: ‘Nay! They are disbelievers in the meeting of their Lord.’ (as-Sajda: 10) The word ‘nay’ refutes their words, and establishes the fact that they deny Resurrection out of fear and terror of facing their Lord.

Furthermore, Allah the Almighty relates that they said: ‘And they say: What! When we shall have become bones and decayed particles, shall we then certainly be raised up, being a new creation?’ (al-Isra’: 49) They mentioned bones then crumbled particles because the human body decays and nothing is left of it except the bones. By time, the bones turn to crumbled particles. So, they do not accept the idea of being resurrected after they turn to bones and crumbled particles.

As for their saying: ‘…shall we then certainly be raised up, being a new creation?’ (al-Isra’: 49) It is a rhetorical question that carries the meaning of denial. But why do they deny Resurrection? The disbeliever is confused and denying Resurrection because this is better for his/her desires. S/he thinks that even if the Resurrection occurred, s/he would be a master there as s/he was in this worldly life.

In the same vein, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘And he strikes out a likeness for Us and forgets his own creation. Says he: Who will give life to the bones when they are rotten? Say: He will give life to them Who brought them into existence at first, and He is cognisant of all creation.’ (Ya Sin: 78-79)

Some disbelievers said, ‘After we die we turn to dust and mix with the soil. This soil may be planted, thus our elements will mix with the trees, vegetables and fruits that are planted. Then a child may eat from these fruits that are nurtured by our elements. This means that we will be part of this child. How will Allah then collect our bodies and resurrect us?’

Allah the Almighty replies on this question decisively, saying: ‘Say: He will give life to them Who brought them into existence at first.’ (Ya Sin: 79) If the human being remembered his/her first creation, s/he would not give such example. The One Who created them the first time out of nothing will give them life again. That is why He the Almighty says: ‘And He it is Who originates the creation, then reproduces it, and it is easy to Him; and His are the most exalted attributes in the heavens and the earth, and He is the Mighty, the Wise.’ (ar-Rum: 27)

He Glorified is He is fully Able to start creation without a previous example, and to resurrect it after death. As a matter of fact, recreation is easier than creating according to human understanding. He the Almighty is Omnipotent over His creation, Predominant in His Dominion, and Wise in His Actions and Determination. Creating is out of nothing, while recreating is out of something, and that is why the latter is easier than the former.

Back to the verse in question: Allah Glorified is He orders Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to say: ‘Yes indeed! I swear by my Lord! You will be raised…’ (al-Mulk: 7). He the Almighty commands him to assure the disbelievers that they will, for certain, be resurrected. Not only does He the Almighty affirm the fact of Resurrection by using the expression, ‘Yes indeed,’ but also by ordering him peace and blessings be upon him to swear by His Lord Glorified is He. He the Almighty is Truthful for sure; He does not need to swear, so what if He swears? This further emphasises that fact.

The Arabic word Bala (Yes indeed!) has the same meaning of ‘yes,’ but the difference is that it comes after the sentence to negate it. Let us offer some Quranic examples to illustrate this point. The people of the Book said: ‘Never will the Fire touch us, except for a few days.’ (al-Baqara: 80) The answer then was: ‘Yes indeed, whoever earns evil and his sin has encompassed him- those are the companions of the fire; they will abide therein eternally.’ (al-Baqara: 81) The expression, ‘Yes indeed,’ here negates their belief of not being touched by fire except for a few days; it then affirms that the hellfire is the destiny of those who were encompassed by their sins and disobeyed Allah the Almighty.

Another example is what Allah the Almighty says in this verse: ‘And they say, “None will enter Paradise except one who is a Jew or a Christian.”’

(al-Baqara: 111) Then He the Almighty refutes their claim, saying: ‘Yes Indeed, [on the contrary], whoever submits his face in Islam to Allah while being a doer of good will have his reward with his Lord. And no fear there will be concerning them, nor will they grieve.’ (al-Baqara: 112) The expression, ‘Yes indeed,’ here refutes their saying, and affirms that another people will enter paradise. So, when the Arabic word ‘Bala’ (Yes indeed) comes after a negated issue, it negates it and affirms its opposite.

Strangely enough, disbelievers assure that there is no Resurrection, Gathering, or Account, as if they were given a pledge by this, but who gave it to them? Nobody knows! So, Allah the Almighty says that these are mere wishes that will never be fulfilled because they have no relation with reality.

In the same connection, Allah Glorified is He says about them: ‘And they swear by Allah with the most energetic of their oaths: Allah will not raise up him who dies.’ (an-Nahl: 38) They assured their claim with their strongest oaths, so He the Almighty replied to them, saying: ‘Yea! It is a promise binding on Him, quite true, but most people do not know.’ (an-Nahl: 38)

So, Allah the Almighty says in the verse in question: ‘Say [Prophet], “Yes indeed! I swear by my Lord! You will be raised.”’ (at-Taghabun: 7) Although the issue of Resurrection does not need any emphasis, He the Almighty emphasises, through many styles of emphasis, that the people will be resurrected on a Day that nobody knows its timing but Him the Almighty.

Then He the Almighty says in the verse in question: ‘…and then you will be informed about everything you have done…’ (at-Taghabun: 7). Not only will you be resurrected, but you will also be informed of what you did in this worldly life, be it good or bad.

The Arabic word Naba’ (announcement) describes the important, strange, and great events. Being informed of what they did will be a very strange and important event for them, as they did not expect that this Day will be a reality, or that what their Messengers told them will really occur. But all of a sudden, they find themselves being resurrected. Not only that, but they will also be informed of what they have done in a way that inwardly shakes them. Allah the Almighty says about them: ‘And (as for) those who disbelieve, their deeds are like the mirage in a desert which the thirsty man deems to be water until when he comes to it he finds it to be naught, and there he finds Allah, so He pays back to him his reckoning in full; and Allah is quick in reckoning.' (an-Nur: 39)

The disbeliever will be surprised in the Hereafter when s/he meets Allah the Almighty. When s/he committed misdeeds, s/he was not thinking that He the Almighty will hold him/her accountable for them. They knew that if they are resurrected, they will be punished for what they did, which is difficult for them. It is better for them, therefore, that the Hereafter is not true. The poet Abu-Al-'Ala' Al-Ma'arri speaks the truth when he says:

Both the doctor and the astrologer claimed that the bodies will not be resurrected.
I said to them:
If you are right, I am not loser,
but if I am right, you will be losers'.

This means that if the one who believes in Resurrection does not win for holding this belief, s/he will not lose. As for the one who denies it, s/he will be the loser. The human being should realise that s/he will be resurrected, and thus should prepare him/herself for it. Suppose that one person believed in Resurrection, whilst another did not believe in it; if there is no Resurrection, the believer will lose nothing, but if there is Resurrection, who will lose? Of course, it is the disbeliever. If the disbelievers were saying the truth (this is not true for sure), the believer would not lose anything, because s/he does good deeds. However, if there is Resurrection (and there will be for sure), the believer will be rewarded in paradise. In this sense, the believer is a winner and not a loser anyway. As for the disbelievers, they will be losers because they committed misdeeds. The philosophic rule here says, 'If I do not win, I will not lose, and if you do not lose, you will not win'.

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…everything you have done…' (at-Taghabun: 7), it means that He the Almighty has recorded every single action. This is another surprise for the disbelievers. In another verse, He the Almighty says: 'Allah has recorded it while they have forgotten it…' (al-Mujadala: 6).

Then, Allah Glorified is He says: '…an easy matter for Allah.' (at-Taghabun: 7) Every action is easy for Him the Almighty a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'What! Do they not consider how Allah originates the creation, then reproduces it? Surely that is easy to Allah.' (al-'Ankabut: 19) Which one is easier: creation out of nothing or Resurrection from something?! Which is easier according to the human standards?! That is why Allah the Almighty says: 'And He it is Who originates the creation, then reproduces it, and it is easy to Him...' (ar-Rum: 27). Although it is not accepted to say this thing is 'easier than' with regard to Allah Glorified is He He addresses us according to our understanding. Evidently, resurrecting what was previously existent is easier than creating out of nothing. Thus, Resurrection, according to our understanding, is easier for Allah the Almighty than creation. However, with regard to Him the Almighty there is nothing easy and another easier because He the Almighty just says for what He wills 'Be' and it is. The word 'Be' is the shortest formula for order, but our minds cannot grasp the reality of His Order.

Allah Glorified is He subsequently says:

فَـَٔامِنُوا۟ بِٱللَّهِ وَرَسُولِهِۦ وَٱلنُّورِ ٱلَّذِىٓ أَنزَلْنَا ۚ وَٱللَّهُ بِمَا تَعْمَلُونَ خَبِيرٌ ﴿٨﴾

So believe in God, in His Messenger, and in the light
We have sent down: God is fully aware of what you do [8]
(The Quran, at-Taghabun: 8)

Belief is a practical way of life that combines the mind and the heart, the sayings of the tongue and the deeds of the limbs. Thus, belief is not just a reasonable theory that mind and heart believe in; rather, it must be consistent with one's sayings and deeds. That is why Allah the Almighty does not conclude the previous verse with saying: 'Allah is fully aware of what you believe'; rather, He the Almighty says: 'Allah is fully Aware of what you do.' (at-Taghabun: 8)

In this way, He the Almighty turns our attention from the theoretical belief to the practical one. The believer should adhere to the good morals that are consistent with his/her belief in Allah the Almighty; Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and the Quran. S/He should not do what contradicts this belief. Such a believer should apply what the Quran and Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him came with. S/He is not allowed to work on or call for ignoring the Law of Allah the Almighty deviating from it or even following another law.

Allah Glorified is He reproaches them for following the steps of the previous disbelievers. That is to say that they did not accept a human Messenger. In this regard, He the Almighty relates that they said: 'Should we take guidance from mere mortals?' (at-Taghabun: 6) Moreover, they disbelieved in Resurrection, a fact which is clear in His saying: 'The disbelievers claim they will not be raised from the dead…' (at-Taghabun: 8). They did not want to believe, so they tried to find excuses and justifications and put many obstacles in the way of belief. Disbelieving in the Messengers is in fact tantamount to disbelieving in Allah the Almighty as disbelieving in them means disbelieving in the One Who sent them.

They should have believed in those whom Allah the Almighty sent, be they humans or non-humans. He the Almighty according to His Wisdom chose the Messengers from among the humans to be able to make contact easily with people, and to be good examples for them. If they were angels, disbelievers would argue that they cannot do what angels could.

Others accepted the Messengers to be humans, but they wanted to choose the Messenger themselves! In this regard, Allah the Almighty tells us that they said: 'And they say: Why was not this Quran revealed to a man of importance in the two towns?' (az-Zukhruf: 31) They wanted the Messenger to be one of the masters of Quraysh. Their problem was not with the Quran; it was rather, with the fact that it was revealed to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Those ignorant people said, 'Why was the Quran not revealed to one of the masters of Mecca or At-Ta'if?' So, they were trying to degrade and look down on Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. They wanted the Quran to descend on a rich man from one of the two cities, in order to keep the mastership and to keep humiliating others, while the Quran came to make all humans equal before Allah the Almighty. They saw that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was unworthy of receiving the Glorious Quran. This was a test for him, and he passed it and persevered, delivering the Message with no consideration of what they said. Moreover, he took this as evidence for the strength of the miracle of the Quran that proves the veracity of his Message.

Allah Glorified is He calls them to believe in Him first, saying: ‘So believe in Allah…’ (at-Taghabun: 8). As a matter of fact, believing in Allah the Almighty is the core of our belief, and the top of it. It is not confined to acknowledging His Existence, as we should also believe that He the Almighty is the only One Who deserves to be worshipped, given the fact that it is He the Almighty Who created the whole universe: the sky, the land, humans, animals, plants, etc.

So, believing in Allah the Almighty does not only mean to reject atheism and believe in His Existence because the disbelievers of Quraysh to whom Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was sent believed in this as well, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘And if you ask them, Who created the heavens and the earth and made the sun and the moon subservient, they will certainly say, Allah. Whence are they then turned away?’ (al-’Ankabut: 61); ‘And if you ask them Who is it that sends down water from the clouds, then gives life to the earth with it after its death, they will certainly say, Allah. Say: All praise is due to Allah. Nay, most of them do not understand.’ (al-’Ankabut: 63) They even admitted that He the Almighty created them as well: ‘And if you should ask them who created them, they would certainly say: Allah. Whence are they then turned back?’ (az-Zukhruf: 87)

The essence of their disbelief was that they were worshiping idols and images along with Allah the Almighty and taking them as mediators between them and Allah Glorified is He. In this regard, they said as mentioned in the Quran: ‘We only worship them that they may bring us nearer to Allah in position.’ (az-Zumar: 3) They affirmed that they do worship the idols and, thus, there is no outlet for them. They admitted that they want to be nearer to Allah the Almighty but, He the Almighty clearly says to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him: ‘Say: I do not bear witness. Say: He is only one God, and surely I am clear of that which you set up (with Him).’ (al-An‘am: 19) He peace and blessings be upon him does not testify that there is a god other than Allah the Almighty.

Moreover, all the people testified that Allah the Almighty is their Lord when they were first created. In this regard, He Glorified is He says: ‘And when your Lord brought forth from the children of Adam, from their backs, their descendants, and made them bear witness against their own souls: Am I not your Lord? They said: Yes! We bear witness.’ (al-A‘raf: 172) Thus, they admitted that He the Almighty is their Lord at the first moment of their creation and gave the oath on this, but later on, they rejected this admission and associated partners with Him. They put idols around the Ka‘ba, and claimed: ‘We only worship them that they may bring us nearer to Allah in position.’ (az-Zumar: 3)

Belief in Allah the Almighty entails believing in both His Divinity and Lordship. This means that He the Almighty is the Lawgiver Who prescribes the Divine Way of Guidance revealed to the Messengers to convey it to the people. The creature is not allowed to disobey the Creator or to seek a way of reformation other than His Glorified is He or to try to reform him/herself apart from this Divine Way.

Allah Glorified is He did not send Messengers and reveal Books uselessly; rather, He the Almighty sent them with the True Message, and revealed the Books to guide people to the true way of life. In this vein, Allah the Almighty says: ‘Does He not know, Who created? And He is the Knower of the subtleties, the Aware.’ (al-Mulk: 14) This universe will not be reformed except by Allah’s Way of Guidance because He the Almighty is the Creator Who knows best what is good and what is bad for His creation, given the fact that the one who makes something knows best its secrets.

Some people have great hatred towards belief; Allah the Almighty says about them: ‘And when it is said to them: Believe as the people believe they say: Shall we believe as the fools believe? Now surely they themselves are the fools, but they do not know.’ (al-Baqara: 13) Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and the believers call such people to believe, but they accused them of being fools, that is, they were poor and in low positions. The masters of Quraysh saw themselves as wise and rich, and thus ought not to believe!

Out of their excessive hatred to Allah’s Oneness and Divinity, Allah the Almighty says about them: ‘And when Allah Alone is mentioned, the hearts of those who do not believe in the hereafter shrink, and when those besides Him are mentioned, lo! They are joyful.' (az-Zumar: 45) When a person hears something s/he does not like, his/her heart shrinks with aversion, and this appears on his/her face, then s/he gets away from it. That is what happened to those disbelievers; when Allah the Almighty is mentioned Alone, their souls get away from believing in His Oneness. So, what is the reason for this? This is because belief entails believing in Resurrection, Gathering, Facing their Lord and being punished for what they did. This is what is mentioned here in the chapter of at-Taghabun: 'The disbelievers claim they will not be raised from the dead. Say [Prophet], "Yes indeed! I swear by my Lord! You will be raised and then you will be informed about everything you have done: an easy matter for Allah."' (at-Taghabun: 7)

Their idols issue no commandments or prohibitions. They do not promise them with Resurrection or Account, and that is why they feel happy when the idols are mentioned, thinking that the idols will intercede for them. In fact, they will not, for they will be thrown in the fire before them, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Surely, you and what you worship besides Allah are the firewood of hell; to it you shall come.' (al-Anbiya': 98) Those idols and stones that they worshipped with Allah the Almighty will be the firewood of hell. Thus, all the wishes of disbelievers to be saved by their idols will vanish.

In this verse, the Arabic word Hasab (firewood) refers to anything that the fire is kindled with, be it wood, straw, petrol, or electricity. The fuel of the hellfire will be those worshippers and their objects of worship that will not be able to protect them from hellfire.

In this chapter of at-Taghabun, Allah the Almighty orders the disbelievers to believe in Him as the Creator of the heavens, the earth, and the human beings in the best form. They should believe that the Dominion belongs to Him, and He the Almighty: '…has power over everything.' (at-Taghabun: 1) He knows everything in the heavens and the earth, and knows what we conceal and what we reveal. He the Almighty is free of need of any of His creation, a fact which is clear in the following Sacred Hadith: 'O My servants, even if the first amongst you and the last amongst you and even the whole of human race of yours, and that of Jinn even, become (equal in) conscious of Allah like the heart of a single person amongst you, nothing would add to My Power. O My servants, even if the first amongst you and the last amongst you and the whole human race of yours and that of the Jinn too in unison become the most wicked (all beating) like the heart of a single person, it would cause no loss to My Power.'(1)

The problem with these disbelievers is that they did not estimate Allah the Almighty His Measure; they mistakenly thought that He the Almighty just wants to punish them. But this is not true because He the Almighty clearly states: 'Why should Allah chastise you if you are grateful and believe? And Allah is the Multiplier of rewards, Knowing.' (an-Nisa': 147) One of the manifestations of the Greatness of Allah the Almighty is that no good deed benefits Him, nor does any bad deed harm Him the Almighty.

Then, He the Almighty gathers between believing in Him and believing in Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying: 'So believe in Allah, in His Messenger…' (at-Taghabun: 8). Imam Ash-Shafi'i says, 'Allah the Almighty ranked Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in a high position; He made him a leader to His Religion by giving him the right to be obeyed and not to be disobeyed. He the Almighty gathered between obeying Him and obeying His Prophet, and this is one of his merits. In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'So believe in Allah, in His Messenger…' (at-Taghabun: 8).

After ordering disbelievers to believe in Him, Allah Glorified is He orders them to believe in Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him because believing in Him the Almighty requires believing in Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him who was sent to deliver His Message represented in His Orders and Prohibitions. Or do they think that they were created uselessly?!

In many verses of the Quran, Allah the Almighty connects between believing in Him Glorified is He and believing in Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. In this connection, He Glorified is He says: 'Say: O people! Surely I am the Messenger of Allah to you all, of Him Whose is the kingdom of the heavens and the earth there is no god but He; He brings to life and causes to die therefore believe in Allah and His Messenger, the unlettered Prophet who believes in Allah and His words, and follow him so that you may walk in the right way.' (al-A'raf: 158)

(1) This Hadith is narrated by Muslim, Ahmad, Al-Bazzar, Al-Bayhaqi and Al-Bukhari on the authority of Abu Dharr Al-Ghifari Allah be pleased with him. See Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 6737; Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 21458; Al-Bazzar, Musnad, Hadith no. 4053; Al-Bayhaqi, As-Sunnan Al-Kubra; and Al-Bukhari, Al-Adab Al-Mufrad, Hadith no. 490

This verse shows the nature of believing in Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him he is a Prophet to all mankind, and his Message is universal, that is, it is not confined only for Arabs, but for all men and jinn, Arabs and non-Arabs.

All the previous Messages before Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him were revealed to specified people in a specified time to cure the spiritual diseases of those particular people, whereas he peace and blessings be upon him was sent to the whole world; that is why he was given all merits and light.

As a matter of fact, the Message of Islam is the last Message, and believing in Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him entails believing that he is the last Prophet. In this vein, he peace and blessings be upon him said, 'The similitude of mine and that of the Messengers before me is that of a person who built a house quite imposing and beautiful, but for one brick in one of its corners. People would go round it, appreciating the building, but saying, 'Why has the brick not been fixed here?' He said, 'I am that brick and I am the last of the Prophets.'(1) Thus, he peace and blessings be upon him is the last Prophet and Messenger, a fact which is clear in the saying of Allah Glorified is He: 'Muhammad is not the father of any of your men, but he is the Messenger of Allah and the Last of the Prophets; and Allah is cognisant of all things.' (al-Ahzab: 40)

Some of the misled people believe in Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him but in a way that differs from what Allah the Almighty prescribed. They believe that he is the last Prophet, but not the last Messenger. They believe that there is a Messenger after him and there is a Book after the Glorious Quran. Such false creeds exist among the Bahais and the Qadianis. They tend to forget that every Messenger is a Prophet, but not every Prophet is a Messenger. The difference is that the Messenger, unlike the Prophet, comes with a new Legislation.

(1) This Hadith is narrated by Al-Bukhari, Al-Bazzar and At-Tabarani on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him. See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 3535; Al-Bazzar, Musnad, Hadith no. 8233; and At-Tabarani, Musnad, Hadith no. 130.

In the same connection, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘And We did not send before you any Messenger or Prophet except that…’ (al-Hajj: 52). Thus, both the Prophets and Messengers are sent by Allah the Almighty but the difference is that the Messenger comes with a new Legislation and rules that did not exist in the previous Message, while the Prophet is chosen by Him the Almighty just to call people to apply the Legislation of the previous Messages. Therefore, the Prophets were sent to be examples in applying the previous Divine Legislation, without bringing a new one. On the other hand, the Messenger was sent with a new Legislation, and was ordered to apply and work according to it.

Believing in Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him entails believing that he was unlettered, which is an honour for him, for it proves the veracity of the Quran about which Allah the Almighty says: ‘So believe…in the light…’ (at-Taghabun: 8). In fact, the Quran is a revelation from Allah the Almighty and Prophet Muhammad’s role is confined to conveying it. That is why he peace and blessings be upon him must be unlettered. This is a clear fact, but the disbelievers in the past and the present claimed that he peace and blessings be upon him contrived the Quran and that it is not a revelation but rather taken from the previous Books. How could that be possible while he peace and blessings be upon him is unlettered? He could not read or write! He was not known as a poet or an orator amongst his people. How can he say such miraculous words that great eloquent Arabic poets could not say even one verse like it?! That is why Allah the Almighty says: ‘And if you are in doubt about what We have sent down upon Our servant [Muhammad], then produce a chapter like thereof and call upon your witnesses other than Allah, if you should be truthful.’ (al-Baqara: 23)

The third point that Allah the Almighty calls the disbelievers to believe in is the Light that He revealed to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him that is, the Quran. But here He the Almighty uses the word ‘Light’ to refer to the Quran. This indicates that they are in complete darkness and that the belief will take them out of that darkness into the Light that was revealed to him peace and blessings be upon him. He Glorified is He identifies the role of this Book, saying: 'Alif Lam Ra. (This is) a Book which We have revealed to you that you may bring forth men, by their Lord's permission from utter darkness into light— to the way of the Mighty, the Praised One.' (Ibrahim: 1) This Book shows the peak of our creed, that is, believing that there is no god but Allah and that Muhammad is His Messenger. By following this creed, He the Almighty brings them out of the darkness of Polytheism and disbelief into the Light of His Oneness and Belief.

The Holy Quran also draws their attention to the signs of the universe, and tells them that there is a Hereafter wherein there is either eternal bliss or suffering. It sets the proofs in front of them and discusses their arguments with regard to the One Who revealed and the one who received the Revelation. This Book proves its authenticity and replies to those who doubt it.

After this Light was revealed, the disbelievers ran away from it rather than running towards it. They deviated from everything that may guide them to the Way of Allah the Almighty. If they had believed, the light of belief and Islam would have illuminated their way. However, their hearts are actually full of the darkness of disbelief, so they could not see the Way of Light.

The Quran shows the believers the Way of Guidance and the Obligations with which He the Almighty assigned them. It also guides those who choose to be guided. By this Book, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him called them to the Straight Path.

Thus, belief in Islam is a gradual process that starts with belief in Allah the Almighty which is the summit of belief, and then in Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him who delivered the Message. He peace and blessings be upon him came with the Light, that is, the Quran. In another verse, He Glorified is He says: 'So they who have believed in him, honoured him, supported him and followed the light which was sent down with him - it is those who will be the successful.' (al-A'raf: 157) The Light is attached to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. So, you should not think that you can separate between believing in Allah the Almighty; believing in Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and the Light revealed to him.

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Allah is Fully Aware of what you do,' (at-Taghabun: 8) it draws our attention to an important issue; the beginning of the verse speaks about the topic of faith which is internal and abstract, whereas its end speaks about the practical side of faith: ‘Allah is fully Aware of what you do.’ (at-Taghabun: 8) Al-Hasan Al-Basri said, ‘Belief is not achieved by looking like believers or wishing to be like them; rather, it is something that is established inside the heart and followed by good deeds that prove its existence.’

So, the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Allah is Fully Aware of what you do,’ (at-Taghabun: 8) includes the deeds and sayings because speaking is the action of the tongue, while the deeds are the actions of the hand, leg, eye, etc. All of that is known by Allah the Almighty. He Glorified is He is fully Aware of one’s belief in Him, in Messenger Muhammad, in His Book, and how strong his/her belief is. He the Almighty knows your intentions behind your actions or sayings, even if nobody sees you. Moreover, He the Almighty knows the intention of the one who gives charity or strove in His cause, and will reward him/her according to his/her intention.

Allah says:

يَوۡمَ يَجۡمَعُكُمۡ لِيَوۡمِ ٱلۡجَمۡعِۖ ذَٰلِكَ يَوۡمُ ٱلتَّغَابُنِۗ وَمَن يُؤۡمِنۢ بِٱللَّهِ وَيَعۡمَلۡ
صَٰلِحٗا يُكَفِّرۡ عَنۡهُ سَيِّـَٔاتِهِۦ وَيُدۡخِلۡهُ جَنَّٰتٖ تَجۡرِي مِن تَحۡتِهَا ٱلۡأَنۡهَٰرُ
خَٰلِدِينَ فِيهَآ أَبَدٗاۚ ذَٰلِكَ ٱلۡفَوۡزُ ٱلۡعَظِيمُ ٩

When He gathers you for the Day of Gathering, the Day of mutual neglect, He will cancel the sins of those who believed in Him and acted righteously: He will admit them into Gardens graced with flowing streams, there to remain for ever – the supreme triumph [9] (The Quran, at-Taghabun: 9)

In this verse, Allah the Almighty tells those who deny Resurrection and Account that they will have no way out; they will not be able to run away from facing that Day when they will be gathered. He the Almighty nullifies their previous claim of not being resurrected, which is clearly stated in His saying: ‘The disbelievers claim they will not be raised from the dead. Say [Prophet], “Yes indeed! I swear by my Lord! You will be raised and then you will be informed about everything you have done”…’ (at-Taghabun: 7).

In the verse in question, Allah the Almighty says: ‘When He gathers you…’ (at-Taghabun: 9). On that Day, they will be informed about what they have done in this worldly life. It is as if He the Almighty is saying: ‘Allah will inform you about what you have done and punish you for that on the Day of Resurrection.’ Another possible meaning is that they will be surprised on that Day to find out that Allah the Almighty knows all what they have done. They were thinking that nothing of their deeds will be recorded, but they will find themselves being held accountable and punished for them.

In another verse, Allah the Almighty says: ‘On the Day that every soul shall find present what it has done of good and what it has done of evil, it shall wish that between it and that (evil) there were a long duration of time; and Allah makes you to be cautious of (retribution from) Himself; and Allah is Compassionate to the servants.’ (Al-‘Imran: 30) Thus, everyone will find the result of his/her deeds, be they good or bad. The one with good deeds will be rewarded for them, but everyone will wish that there was a great distance between him/herself and his/her bad deeds.

The meaning of the verse in question may also be as follows: ‘You will be distinguished and divided in the Day on which He will assemble you’, or it may also be: ‘Remember the Day when He will assemble you’. All these meanings are accepted and possible.

Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was sent to warn the people against that Day, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘And thus have We revealed to you an Arabic Quran, that you may warn the mother city and those around it, and that you may give warning of the day of gathering together wherein is no doubt; a party shall be in the garden and (another) party in the burning fire.’ (ash-Shura: 7) He calls them to pay attention to the Day on which the earliest and latest people will all be gathered. In this regard, He the Almighty says: ‘This is the Day of Decision: We have gathered you and those of yore.’ (al-Mursalat: 38) This is the Day on which all the people will be gathered. Allah the Almighty then says: ‘So if you have a plan, plan against Me (now).’ (al-Mursalat: 39) So, He the Almighty will fulfil His Promise; on that Day, He the Almighty will punish whoever disbelieved in Him, and if they have any means to save them from His Punishment, let them do their best.

On that Day, the disbelievers' lies will be disclosed; it will be the Day of Disclosure. Every liar, cheater, and caller to anything other than the Truth will be disclosed. In this regard, Allah Glorified is He says: 'Then how will it be when We shall gather them together on a Day about which there is no doubt, and every soul shall be fully paid what it has earned, and they shall not be dealt with unjustly?' (Al-'Imran: 25) How will their condition be when He the Almighty gathers them for Account on a Day about which there is no doubt? This Day is coming for sure, for there are many proofs that substantiate this fact. Despite their antagonism, He the Almighty will not wrong them; rather, He Glorified is He will treat them according to His Justice. In the same connection, He Glorified is He says: 'Allah, there is no god but He— He will most certainly gather you together on the Resurrection Day, there is no doubt in it; and who is more true in word than Allah?' (an-Nisa': 87)

Allah the Almighty is fully Able to gather and resurrect people on the Day of Resurrection; He the Almighty emphasised this by two Arabic letters of emphasis: 'Lam' and 'Nun'. No one is more Truthful than Allah the Almighty. He the Almighty puts it in the form of a question, saying: '…and who is more true in word than Allah?' (an-Nisa': 87) When a piece of information comes in a form of a question and the answer is left to you, this means that He Glorified is He knows that you can say nothing but agree with what He said. He the Almighty gives you a chance to search and be convinced that no one is more Truthful than Him Glorified is He. So, you should not deceive yourself, for you will surely find what Allah the Almighty has promised you. In this vein, He Glorified is He says: 'And the dwellers of the garden will call out to the inmates of the fire: Surely we have found what our Lord promised us to be true; have you too found what your Lord promised to be true? They will say: Yes. Then a crier will cry out among them that the curse of Allah is on the unjust.' (al-A'raf: 44)

In the same connection, Anas ibn Malik Allah be pleased with him narrated that the Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him called the disbelievers who were killed in the battle of Badr saying, 'O Abu Jahli ibn Hisham, O 'Utba ibn Rabi'a, O Umayya ibn Khalaf, have you found that what your Lord has promised you is true? I found it true.' The Companions said to him, 'Are you calling dead people, O Messenger of Allah?' He said, 'They hear me better than you, but they could not reply.'(1)

In addition to gathering the earlier and the latest people, Allah the Almighty will also gather the leaders and their followers, a fact which is clear in His saying: 'When those who were followed shall renounce those who followed (them), and they see the chastisement and their ties are cut asunder. And those who followed shall say: Had there been for us a return, then we would renounce them as they have renounced us. Thus will Allah show them their deeds to be intense regret to them, and they shall not come forth from the fire.' (al-Baqara: 166-167)

In the same connection, Allah the Almighty orders Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in the Quran to address his people, saying: 'Say: Who gives you the sustenance from the heavens and the earth? Say: Allah. And most surely we or you are on a right way or in manifest error. Say: You will not be questioned as to what we are guilty of, nor shall we be questioned as to what you do.' (Saba': 24-25) Then, He the Almighty says: 'Say: Our Lord will gather us together, then will He judge between us with the truth; and He is the greatest Judge, the All Knowing.' (Saba': 26) It is as if Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said to them, 'We will not argue with you anymore because we are telling you the truth and you just argue with falsehood. At the end, Allah the Almighty will judge between us in His Divine Court on the Last Day.'

In the same connection, Allah the Almighty says: 'So to that [religion of Allah] invite, [O Muhammad], and remain on a right course as you are commanded and do not follow their inclinations but say, "I have believed in what Allah, has revealed of the Quran, and I have been commanded to do justice among you. Allah is our Lord and your Lord. For us, are our deeds, and for you, your deeds. There is no [need for] argument between us and you. Allah will bring us together, and to Him is the [final] destination."' (ash-Shura: 15)

(1) This Hadith is narrated by An-Nasa'i, Ahmad, Abu Ya'la and Ibn Abu 'Asim on the authority of Anas ibn Malik Allah be pleased with him. It was authenticated by Al-Albani. See An-Nasa'i, Sunnan, Hadith no. 2075; Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 182, 12039 and 12896; Abu Ya'la, Musnad, Hadith no. 2808; and Ibn Abu 'Asim, As-Sunna, Hadith no. 2878

As we disagreed in this worldly life over the Truth, Allah the Almighty will gather us in the Last Day, and every one of us will be asked about his/her deeds and will take his/her full right. So, the believer submits his/her case to the Decree of the All-Just Judge Glorified is He because s/he is sure that s/he is right, and He the Almighty is All-Sufficient as Judge.

As a matter of fact, humans leave this life gradually; death is collecting the souls from the time of Adam peace be upon him. One day, all people will be gathered, even though they left the world in different successive times. No one will be away from the scene, a fact which is clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'We will gather them and not leave behind from them anyone…' (al-Kahf: 47); '…and the trumpet will be blown, so We will gather them all together.' (al-Kahf: 99) The Blow in the last verse refers to the second one, which is the Blow of resurrecting and gathering people from their graves. In this regard, He Glorified is He says: 'And the trumpet shall be blown, when lo! From their graves they shall hasten on to their Lord.' (Ya Sin: 51) They will come out from their graves like yarn coming out of the cloth.

When they come out of the graves and see the truth that they denied, they will say: 'Oh woe to us! Who has made us rise again from our sleeping-place?' (Ya Sin: 52) It is strange to say this, for they forgot that Allah the Almighty says: 'Our Lord! Surely You are the Gatherer of men on a Day about which there is no doubt; surely Allah will not fail (His) Promise.' (Al-'Imran: 9) The human being may break his/her promise because something stronger than him/her might have prevented him/her from fulfilling it. By contrast, with regard to Allah the Almighty there is no power over Him; He will never change His Words or change in Himself because changing is not One of His Eternal Attributes. So, the disbeliever and the hypocrite must be sure that nothing will save him/her on that Day.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says: '…the Day of mutual neglect…' (at-Taghabun: 9). At-Taghabun which means 'mutual neglect' is one of the names of the Last Day. It is the Day when the people of paradise will win over those of hell, as the people of hell will exchange hell with paradise, and that is why they will be losers.

We see this in our daily life when we buy and sell. We say in some cases that the one who sells his/her property is a loser, whereas the one who buys is a winner. Although the one who sells takes money in exchange for his/her property, the value of this money is likely to decrease. As for the buyer, s/he bought something that will increase in value by time, even if s/he pays a lot of money for it.

Similarly, those disbelievers sell their houses, homes and places in paradise that Allah the Almighty prepared for them at the beginning of their creation, and buy instead of that the enjoyment of this worldly life. Thus, their property in paradise went to the people of paradise that would have much enjoyment therein. Conversely, the people of paradise left their places in hellfire for those who deserve them. That is the meaning of the saying of Allah the Almighty regarding the believers: ‘Those are the inheritors.’ (al-Mu’minun: 10)

When Allah Glorified is He created mankind, He gave them the freedom of choice, either to believe or disbelieve, or to obey or disobey. Accordingly, He the Almighty made for every one of them a place in paradise in case they all believe and a place in hellfire in case they all disbelieve. Consequently, when the people of paradise enter it, they leave their places in hellfire empty, and thus the people of hell inherit them; and, conversely, the people of paradise inherit the empty places of paradise.

In fact, the loss on that Day will be endless. There is also a loss in this worldly life, as Al-Hasan and Qatada said that there are three forms of loss in this worldly life, which are:

- A person learned useful branches of knowledge and taught them to others, but s/he did not adhere to what s/he said and, consequently, s/he lost, while others who learned from him/her adhered to what they learned from him/her and thus became winners.
- A person who is keen on earning money from everywhere, but this money made him/her turn away from obeying Allah the Almighty and s/he did nothing good with his/her money. Then, s/he died and left the money to the inheritor, who used that money in charity work.

- A master and his slave; the master disobeyed Allah the Almighty and thus became a loser, whilst the slave obeyed Him the Almighty and became a winner.

It was narrated that Allah the Almighty will make a husband and his wife stand in front of Him on the Last Day and ask them about their money. The man says, ‘O my Lord, you ordered me to spend upon her, so I collected money from different sources, both legal and illegal. Now those people whom I wronged are asking for their rights, and I have nothing to give them!’ The wife, on her part, will say, ‘O my Lord, he earned money from illegal sources. It was unlawful for him, but lawful for me; he disobeyed you to satisfy me, but I did not accept that, so let him be far away from me!’ Whereupon, Allah the Almighty says: ‘You said the truth,’ and then orders the angels to take him to Hell, and to take her to Paradise. She then looks at him and says, ‘What a loser you are; we enjoyed with what made you wretched.’(1)

Thus, the loser on that Day is the one who loses his/her family and houses in paradise. The disbeliever will be a loser because of his/her disbelief, and even the believer will be partly a loser because of what s/he missed of good deeds.

On the Day of Judgment, the people will be divided into two parties: one in paradise, and the other one in the hell. With regard to the people of paradise, Allah the Almighty says: ‘He will cancel the sins of those who believed in Him and acted righteously: He will admit them into gardens graced with flowing streams, there to remain forever –the supreme triumph.’ (at-Taghabun: 9)

The saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…those who believed in Him...’ (at-Taghabun: 9) refers to those who sincerely believe in Him Glorified is He as a Creator, Provider and Owner of the heavens and earth, and that He created man in the best form and will resurrect and gather all people and recompense them according to their deeds, be they good or bad. In addition to this, such a believer should work according to the Way that He the Almighty revealed in

(1) In his Tafsir, Al-Qurtubi narrates this Hadith with a formula indicating its weakness. He does not ascribe it to anyone or name its narrator. That is why Ibn ‘Adil ascribed it to Al-Qurtubi. See Al-Qurtubi, Jame‘ Ahkam Al-Quran, 18/137; and Ibn ‘Adil, Al-Lubab, 1/4942.

His Book. That is to say that his/her internal belief should be accompanied with deeds that prove it.

In fact, when someone does good deeds, this benefit will return to him/her. You should not think that the benefit of your good deed will not return to you, for, indeed, it will.

The good deeds are the outcome of our belief which is meant to straighten our life. Man will not do good deeds unless s/he is a believer, and that is why Allah the Almighty says: '…and whoever does good, they prepare (good) for their own souls.' (ar-Rum: 44) This verse is expressed in the plural form, because the one who does good deeds in this worldly life does not only benefit him/herself, but rather, the whole community. If every one of us does good deeds and avoids causing mischief, good will prevail, and Muslims will save their energy from being wasted in committing misdeeds.

So, the good doer will find good fruits, and the bad doer will find bad results. That is why the good doer feels happy to return to Allah the Almighty whereas the disobedient disbeliever feels sad and afraid of returning to Him Glorified is He and tries to avoid returning, but s/he cannot.

The believer, however, may commit some sins, and the Creator Glorified is He knows His creation best; that is why He the Almighty says directly after this: 'He will cancel the sins of those who believed…' (at-Taghabun: 9) Here, He Glorified is He mentions the reward of belief and good deeds. In the same connection, He the Almighty says: 'And (as for) those who believe and do good, We will most certainly do away with their evil deeds and We will most certainly reward them the best of what they did.' (al-'Ankabut: 7) How Great our Lord is! He mentions removing sins before giving merits — 'cleanness before decorating'. He the Almighty wipes out the sins of the believer first and then gives him/her the reward and admits him/her to paradise. It is as if He the Almighty says to his/her servant, 'Do not be afraid, I will omit your sins before I give you merits because the human being naturally inclines to do misdeeds more than doing good ones.'

Furthermore, Allah the Almighty will give them what is even greater. In another verse, He Glorified is He says: 'Except him who repents and believes and does a good deed; so these are they of whom Allah changes the evil deeds to good ones; and Allah is Forgiving, Merciful.' (al-Furqan: 70) Not only will He the Almighty omit the sins and purify the believer, but He may also change their sins into good deeds! Further, in another verse He the Almighty says: 'Indeed, good deeds do away with misdeeds.' (Hud: 114) In the same connection, the Hadith reads: 'Do good deeds if you committed bad ones; the former will wipe out the latter.'(1)

Allah the Almighty bestows His endless Favours on you as long as you have believed in Him, in Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and in the Book revealed to him. He the Almighty will forgive your sins, purify you from them, turn them into good deeds, and then reward you for your good deeds. It is as if He Glorified is He is purifying you from sins, to make you ready for receiving the reward and being admitted into paradise. In this way, you will enter paradise honourably with His Grace.

Allah Glorified is He will also purify the believers' hearts from any ill feelings or any diseases of the heart. In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'And We will remove whatever of ill-feeling is in their breasts; the rivers shall flow beneath them and they shall say: All praise is due to Allah...' (al-A'raf: 43). Believers in the Hereafter will be purified from all the defects and hardships of this worldly life, including resentment or ill feelings.

The reward of those believers who did good deeds and were purified from bad deeds and sins will be great. Allah the Almighty says: 'He will admit them into Gardens graced with flowing streams, there to remain forever...' (at-Taghabun: 9). He the Almighty says 'To admit' not 'to live' which indicates that mere entering paradise is in itself a great triumph, nothing is compared to it. He the Almighty also says: 'And whoever is removed away from the Fire and admitted to Paradise, he indeed is successful.' (Al-'Imran: 185) Being removed away from the fire even to a place between Hell and Paradise is a great triumph; this is the first degree of triumph. Imagine that a person is standing in terror looking at the fire blazing and burning people. For him/her, being removed away from the fire is a great triumph, but Allah the Almighty will also admit him/her to paradise. He the Almighty says: 'He will admit them into Gardens...' (at-Taghabun: 9). This shows that there is not only one garden, but many gardens; some are special for the believer, while others are shared by all the people of paradise. In the same connection, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'A place in Paradise equal to the size of a lash is better than the whole worldly life and whatever is in it.'(1)

(1) Abu Dharr Allah be pleased with him narrated that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Fear Allah wherever you are, do good deeds after doing bad ones, the former will wipe out the latter, and behave decently towards people.' This Hadith is narrated by At-Tirmidhi, Ahmad and Al-Hakim who said, 'This is an authentic Hadith according to the conditions stipulated by Al-Bukhari and Muslim, but they did not narrate it in their books.' Adh-Dhahabi agreed with him. See At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 1987; Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 21392 and 21441; and Al-Hakim, Mustadrak, Hadith no. 178

Then, Allah Glorified is He says: 'Gardens graced with flowing streams…' (at-Taghabun: 9). Not only one stream, but rather so many streams run beneath these gardens. In another verse, He the Almighty tells us more details about these rivers, saying: 'A parable of the garden which those guarding (against evil) are promised: Therein are rivers of water that does not alter, and rivers of milk the taste whereof does not change, and rivers of drink delicious to those who drink, and rivers of honey clarified…' (Muhammad: 15). The believers will be graced with rivers of water, milk, wine, and honey. Not only that, but also '…they will have from all kinds of fruits…' (Muhammad: 15). They will stay in these gardens forever; no one will ever drive them out. Besides, the enjoyment will be everlasting; it will neither change, nor decrease, nor vanish.

Then Allah the Almighty says: 'That is the supreme triumph.' (at-Taghabun: 9) The success that you gain in this worldly life out of your belief and good deeds is not the greatest one; what is greater than that is Allah's Reward for you on the Day of Judgment. Every enjoyment in this life is fleeting, and any reward or success here will vanish, whereas the achievement on the Day of Judgment will be the greatest, as it will never be followed by any kind of loss.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

(1) See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 3250 and 6415.

وَٱلَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا۟ وَكَذَّبُوا۟ بِـَٔايَٰتِنَآ أُو۟لَٰٓئِكَ أَصْحَٰبُ
ٱلنَّارِ خَٰلِدِينَ فِيهَا ۖ وَبِئْسَ ٱلْمَصِيرُ ﴿١٠﴾

But those who disbelieved and rejected Our signs will be the inhabitants of the Fire, there to remain – a miserable destination [10] (The Quran, at-Taghabun: 10)

In the previous verse, Allah the Almighty tells us about the reward of the one who believes and does righteous deeds, saying: ‘He will cancel the sins of those who believed in Him and acted righteously: He will admit them into Gardens graced with flowing streams, there to remain forever – the supreme triumph!’ (at-Taghabun: 9) Conversely, He the Almighty says in the verse in question: ‘But those who disbelieved and rejected Our signs will be the inhabitants of the Fire, there to remain – a miserable destination.’ (at-Taghabun: 10) Here, He Glorified is He speaks about the destiny of the disbelievers, affirming that they will be the people of the hell wherein they will accompany each other.

The people are either believers or disbelievers. This is how Allah the Almighty created them, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘It is He who created you, yet some of you disbelieve, and some believe.’ (at-Taghabun: 2) That is why the Quran always speaks about the two parties, saying: ‘…a party shall be in the garden and (another) party in the burning fire.’ (ash-Shura: 7)

We have spoken about the reward of those who have believed and done righteous deeds. Then, Allah the Almighty speaks about the disbelievers, saying: ‘But those who disbelieved and rejected Our Signs...’ (at-Taghabun: 10). Disbelief means to try to hide the fact of the Existence of Allah the Almighty. This trial is in itself a confession of His Existence because you do not try to hide something that does not exist. Thus, disbelief in itself proves the reality of belief. Thus, how do you disbelieve in Allah the Almighty while everything in this world and inside yourself proves His Existence?!

There are two kinds of disbelievers: the first kind disbelieved in the Existence of Allah Glorified is He but when they received the guidance and employed their minds, they arrived at the truth and belief. The other kind includes those people who benefit from their disbelief, and that is why they adhere to it, regardless of any proofs or signs that come to them. They want to keep their worldly power that is based on injustice and tyranny. They do not accept to be deprived of it by any means. This kind is what Allah the Almighty refers to by saying: ‘Indeed, those who disbelieve - it is all the same for them whether you warn them or do not warn them - they will not believe.’ (al-Baqara: 6) They did not believe because no revelation, Messenger or Prophet came to guide them to Allah’s Way of Guidance, but rather because they consider disbelief, which makes them masters and falsely distinguished, their way of life. Furthermore, belief makes all people equal and prohibits injustice, thus this will not make them distinguished over others. They are not punished only because of their disbelief, but also because of their rejection of Allah's signs. He the Almighty describes those who disbelieve, saying: ‘…deaf and dumb within darkness…’ (al-An‘am: 39). They cannot see the guidance, nor can they hear or say the truth. Moreover, they live in darkness that prevents them from attaining belief.

They rejected the signs (miracles) that prove the veracity of the Prophet, or the signs of Allah the Almighty in the Quran. Those who reject Allah's signs arrogantly refuse to follow Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. For such people, the doors of the heavens will not be open, a fact which is clear in His saying: ‘Surely (as for) those who reject Our communications and turn away from them haughtily, the doors of heaven shall not be opened for them, nor shall they enter the garden until the camel can pass through the eye of the needle; and thus do We reward the guilty.’ (al-A‘raf: 40) This verse shows the kind of people for whom the door of the heavens will not be opened and thus shows that the opposite kind of people, the believers, are the ones for whom the doors of the Heavens will be opened. When their souls ascend to Allah the Almighty their good deeds will raise them up; yet, the deniers of the Truth do not rise, instead, they descend and do not enter paradise.

Further, Allah the Almighty stipulates a logically, normally, and naturally impossible condition for allowing them to enter the paradise which is: ‘…until the camel can pass through the eye of the needle; and thus do We reward the guilty.’ (al-A‘raf: 40) The eye of the needle is the place where the thread enters. The thread never enters unless the diameter of the thread is smaller than the diameter of the eye of the needle and unless the thread is so firm and uncut since it does not enter if it was cut and its parts are straight. So, the tailor sharpens the thread in order to enter it into the eye of the needle. Thus, if you bring a camel and order it to enter in the eye of the needle, can it enter? Of course not; so it is clear that He the Almighty stipulates an impossible condition for having them enter paradise.

Those who denied and disregarded the universal signs of Allah the Almighty did not deduce from them the Existence of a Mighty, Omnipotent and All-Wise God. They also denied the miraculous signs of the truthfulness of the Prophethood and denied the verses of the Quran, refraining from adhering to their decrees. Allah the Almighty will punish such people and deprive them of paradise. If the disbelievers of Quraysh rejected Allah's Verses and Signs, why do the people of the Book also disbelieve? He the Almighty commands Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to say: 'Say, O People of the Book, why do you disbelieve in the verses of Allah, while Allah is Witness over what you do?' (Al-'Imran: 98) Their disbelief in Allah's Verses is not due to their premier concealing of them; instead, they believed in Allah and in His Verses which carry good news about the advent of Islam and Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him – such verses were inscribed in the Torah and the Bible – yet, when Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him did come, they disbelieved in him, which is tantamount to disbelieving in such verses. In this regard, Allah the Almighty revealed His saying: 'And when there came to them a Book from Allah, confirming that which was with them – although before they used to pray for victory (1) against those who disbelieved – but [then] when there came to them that which they recognised, they disbelieved in it; so the Curse of Allah will be upon the disbelievers.' (al-Baqara: 89) In another verse, He the Almighty says: ‘O People of the Book, why do you disbelieve in the Verses of Allah while you witness [to their truth]?’ (Al-‘Imran: 70) It is as if Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was asking them on behalf of Allah the Almighty ‘Why do you disbelieve in the verses while you testify to their truth? You used to pray for the coming of the new Messenger to defeat your enemies.’ They used to pray, saying, ‘We ask you, by the unlettered Messenger whom You promised to send by the end of time, to grant us victory’; thus, they defeated their enemies. However, when Allah the Almighty sent Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him they disbelieved in him out of their rebellion and envy. They disbelieved because they wanted to keep the temporal authority they had. In fact, they did not only resort to mere falsification, but they also distorted all their available Books that prove the truthfulness of Messenger Muhammad’s Prophethood.

(1) In his Tafsir, As-Suyuti says that Ibn Ishaq, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundir, Abu Na'yim and Al-Bayhaqi narrated on the authority of 'Asim ibn 'Amr ibn Qatada Al-Ansari that he said, 'Some elderly people among us told us that no one among the Arabs knew about Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him more than we did. There were Jews, people of the Book, among us, and we worshiped idols; when we attacked them, they used to say: "A Messenger will be sent soon whom we will follow and will kill you with him like the people of 'Ad and Iram." However, when Allah sent Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him we followed him and they disbelieved in him; thus, Allah the Almighty revealed about them and us: '...although before they used to pray for victory against those who disbelieved – but [then] when there came to them that which they recognised, they disbelieved in it; so the Curse of Allah will be upon the disbelievers.' (al-Baqara: 89) See As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur, 1/ 456.

Another kind of people denied the Resurrection, the Gathering, the Account, and the Recompense of the Day of Judgment and denied the universal signs of Allah the Almighty which are proof in and of themselves for Allah’s Power to resurrect the people. Such kind of people are mentioned in the chapter in question. He the Almighty says: ‘The disbelievers claim they will not be raised from the dead…’ (at-Taghabun: 7) yet, He the Almighty emphatically states: ‘Say: [Prophet], “Yes indeed! I swear by my Lord! You will be raised and then you will be informed about everything you have done…’ (at-Taghabun: 7) These will not only enter the fire, but will also be its dwellers. It is a home of fire, blaze, zaqqum, lamenting, crying, purulence, chains, restrictions and burning bodies. In this connection, He the Almighty says: ‘(As for) those who disbelieve in Our communications, We shall make them enter fire; so oft as their skins are thoroughly burned, We will change them for other skins, that they may taste the chastisement; surely Allah is Mighty, Wise.’ (an-Nisa’: 56)

Allah the Almighty will eternalise their lives so that their punishment continues endlessly; they will taste an everlasting punishment by a Decree of Allah the Almighty. Science proved that the human being’s sensitivity to pain resulting from beating by the lash decreases after the first twenty lashes; yet, man forgets that the punishment of the Hereafter is completely different. He the Almighty creates for the punished ones new sensors in order to feel the punishment constantly, a fact which is clear in His saying: ‘Abiding eternally therein. The punishment will not be lightened for them, nor will they be reprieved.’ (Al-‘Imran: 88) Thus, the punishment continues by maintaining their skins and replacing them with others. It is known that the normal fire eats what is in it, and then it ends. Yet, the fire in the Hereafter has no end; whenever they are roasted in it, they are replaced with other skins and thus the fire remains blazing and does not get quenched.

In the verse in question, Allah the Almighty says that those who disbelieved and denied His verses and signs: ‘…are the companions of the Fire…’ (at-Taghabun: 10). The companion is the one who is pleased with his/her companion and likes to sit with him/her and spend his/her best time with him/her. Thus, the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…the companions of the Fire…’ (at-Taghabun: 10) implies that fire loves them; it rejoices when they enter it, like when a Companion rejoices at his/her friend and does not want to leave them ever. In the same connection, He the Almighty says: ‘On the Day We will say to Hell, “Have you been filled?” and it will say, “Are there some more?”’ (Qaf: 30) Thus, the love of the fire for the disbelievers is clear; it will accompany them everywhere. It is not a noble company for the fire, but it loves it, for when it burns every disbeliever, sinner, and hypocrite, it becomes happy as it punishes those who disbelieved in Allah’s Way of Guidance and denied His signs in the worldly life.

Similarly, paradise loves the company of those who believed in Allah the Almighty those who dedicated themselves to worship Him and who applied His Way of Guidance. In this regard, He Glorified is He says: ‘Indeed, they who have believed and done righteous deeds and humbled themselves (1) to their Lord – those are the companions of paradise; they will abide therein.’ (Hud: 23) This means that paradise befriends, loves and accompanies the believers, just as the fire accompanies the disbelievers and the deniers of Allah’s signs. Like the fire when it rejoices while burning the disbeliever, paradise rejoices when it pleases the believer. So, the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘the companions of the Fire…’ (at-Taghabun: 10) means that the sinner befriends and accompanies the fire, exactly like a person who befriends and accompanies his/her friend because the fire communicates with the disobedient people, wondering: ‘Are there some more?’ (Qaf: 30) Companionship requires a kind of association and attraction between the companions; thus, there will be attraction between the disbelievers and the fire. Further, the word ‘companion’ is attributed to someone who you know very closely. There is a distinction between someone whom you accompany, someone whom you befriend, another whom you establish brotherhood relations with and others whom you are acquainted with yet do not have a close relationship with them. Acquaintance has degrees, while companionship means connection and attraction between two people.

(1) In his Tafsir, Ibn Al-Jawzi mentions that there are seven meanings for ‘Humbled themselves’, as follows: they feared their Lord; repented and turned back to Him; are content with and faithful to Him; and yield and submit to Him. See Ibn Al-Jawzi, Zad Al-Masir, 3/333.

There are also the companions of hellfire, a fact which is clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘But those who disbelieve and deny Our Signs – those are the companions of Hellfire.’ (al-Ma‘ida: 10) When we hear Allah’s saying: ‘companions of Hellfire,’ (al-Ma‘ida: 10) our souls are shaken by such undesired companionship. As mentioned previously, companionship implies accompaniment and association – as if the hellfire does not leave them and they do not either. Even though, the hellfire longs for them. On the Day of Judgment, it has two missions: the first one is the companionship which the disbeliever cannot avoid; and the second is restricting the disbeliever in order not to have an opportunity to leave it. As the fire loves and longs for these disbelievers, Allah the Almighty says: ‘And those who disbelieved will be driven to hell in groups until when they reach it, its gates have been opened…’ (az-Zumar: 71). On the contrary, He the Almighty says about the people and companions of the paradise: ‘But those who feared their Lord will be driven to Paradise in groups until when they reach it, its gates are being opened…’ (az-Zumar: 73). The fire opens its gates as soon as the disbelievers are driven to it in groups; meanwhile, the people of paradise receive a welcome party, honouring them at the gates of paradise. It is worth noting that Allah’s saying: ‘are being opened’ (az-Zumar: 73) suggests that the gates of paradise are being opened slowly and leisurely in order to celebrate the newcomers of the obedient people who are received by the angels at the gates of paradise. On the other hand, those who disbelieve and deny Allah’s Verses and Signs and who are the companions of the fire are taken out of the mighty woeful situation into immediate execution of the punishment – they are pushed and driven to such punishment.

In this vein, Allah the Almighty says: ‘The Day they are thrust toward the Fire of Hell with [violent] thrust…’ (at-Tur: 13) This means that the disbelievers on that Day will be pushed violently, shoved roughly, and pulled, while on their faces into the fire of hell. In addition, they will be rebuked by the angels who will say: ‘This is the Fire which you used to deny.’ (at-Tur: 14) Thus, on the Day of Judgment, they will taste the eternal punishment which is unmatchable and ineffable. ‘Thrust’ means to push suddenly and violently, namely, they are pushed violently, forcibly and powerfully into the fire. In this regard, Muqatil said, ‘Their hands are chained to their necks and their foreheads are tied to their feet, then they are pushed violently and dragged into the fire on their faces.’

Further, Allah the Almighty says in the verse in question: ‘…there to remain…’ (at-Taghabun: 10). This indicates that it is impossible for those who disbelieved and denied the Verses of Allah the Almighty to escape from this punishment, for it is eternal; the punished one does not leave it, nor does it leave him/her. They are the companions of the fire. It accompanies them and they connect with it, so it does not leave them and they do not move away from it. Yet, does ‘remaining’ mean staying for a long time or eternally? If the meaning of ‘remaining’ signifies eternity, Allah the Almighty would not have described staying in the fire as: ‘…there will abide therein…’ (Al-‘Imran: 88) and in another instance: ‘they will abide therein forever.’ (an-Nisa’: 169) This indicates that ‘forever’ implies magnifying the meaning of ‘abide’ without the adverb ‘forever’. Thus, if both verses showed that ‘abide’ suggests perpetuation, then the adverb ‘forever’ would not add extra meaning. However, the Quran is the Speech of Allah the Almighty which is free of redundancy and repetition. So, it is necessary to note that ‘abiding’ here indicates staying for long; yet, ‘abiding forever’ means staying for so long that staying has no end since each word in the Quran is clear and meaningful. Allah the Almighty says about the eternality of the disbelievers’ dwelling in the fire: ‘The Day it comes no soul will speak except by His Permission. And among them will be the wretched and the prosperous. As for those who were [destined to be] wretched, they will be in the fire. For them therein is [violent] exhaling and inhaling. [They will be] abiding therein as long as the heavens and the earth endure, except what your Lord should will. Indeed, your Lord is an effecter of what He intends.' (Hud: 105-107) Allah the Almighty mentions abiding forever in the fire in only three verses of the Quran: 'Except the path of Hell; they will abide therein forever. And that, for Allah, is [always] easy.' (an-Nisa': 169); 'Indeed, Allah has cursed the disbelievers and prepared for them a Blaze. Abiding therein forever, they will not find a protector or a helper.' (al-Ahzab: 64-65); 'And whoever disobeys Allah and His Messenger – then indeed, for him is the fire of Hell; they will abide therein forever.' (al-Jinn: 23)

In the same vein, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: 'Death will be brought forward in the shape of a black and white ram. Then a call-maker will call: "O people of Paradise!"' Thereupon, they will stretch their necks and look carefully. The caller will say, "Do you know this?" They will say, "Yes, this is death." By then all of them will have seen it. Then it will be announced again, "O people of Hell!" They will stretch their necks and look carefully. The caller will say: "Do you know this?" They will say, "Yes, this is death." By then all of them will have seen it. Then it (that ram) will be slaughtered and the caller will say, "O people of Paradise! Eternity for you and no death! O people of the Fire! Eternity for you and no death!"(1) Then, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him recited: "And warn them [O Muhammad] of the Day of Regret when the matter has been concluded, and [yet] they are in [a state of] heedlessness and they do not believe."' (Maryam: 39)

Depicting death as a white and black ram suggests that death has an entity. Allah the Almighty teaches us that He slaughters death so that we live eternally without death. The people of paradise and also the people of the pire will recognise death and stretch their necks and look carefully. Slaughtering death before them is meant to disappoint the disbelievers because there will be no hope for ending their punishment since death would cease to exist.

As Allah the Almighty emphasises eternity in the fire for the disbelievers who denied His Verses and Signs, He Glorified is He makes them lose hope in the mitigation of their punishment or reconsideration of their case in hope for mercy. In this regard, He the Almighty says: ‘Abiding eternally therein. The punishment will not be lightened for them, nor will they be reprieved.’ (al-Baqara: 162) They should not think that punishment in the Hereafter will be mitigated, decreased in degree or period, or that it will be discontinuous. When punishment is repeated, the human being may get adapted to it. Yet, in reality, the punishment of the Hereafter becomes more severe as its mitigation is not possible. It remains perpetually painful. People might mistakenly think that as long as the disbeliever enters the fire and is burned, s/he will perish and come to an end. Yet, they forget an issue while remembering another. The disbeliever pretends to have forgotten the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Indeed, those who disbelieve in Our Verses – We will drive them into a Fire. Every time their skins are roasted through We will replace them with other skins so they may taste the punishment. Indeed, Allah is ever Exalted in Might and Wise.’ (an-Nisa’: 56) The punishment of the disbelievers is inevitable and He the Almighty does not relieve them for a break; He the Almighty says: ‘And those in the Fire will say to the keepers of Hell, “Supplicate your Lord to lighten for us a day from the punishment, ”’ (Ghafir: 49) and ‘Those are the ones who have bought the life of this world [in exchange] for the Hereafter, so the punishment will not be lightened for them, nor will they be aided.’ (al-Baqara: 86) Further, no one can lighten the punishment for them.

In the same connection, Allah the Almighty says: ‘And they will call, “O Malik, let your Lord put an end to us!” He will say, “Indeed, you will remain.”’ (az-Zukhruf: 77) They wish to perish by death in order to rest from the permanent punishment which has no end.

Afterwards, Malik says to them: ‘Indeed, you will remain.’ (az-Zukhruf: 77) Thus, the disbelievers will remain in the Fire forever because they have no excuse for their disbelief. Thus, Allah the Almighty has decreed the matter in order to disappoint the disbelievers who might mistakenly think that death will end their punishment and thus relieve them. This is impossible since He the Almighty brings death and slaughters it before their eyes. Hence, there will be no death, since death is dead. That is why He the Almighty describes their fate as: ‘a miserable destination.’ (at-Taghabun: 10) This shows the evil fate of the disbelievers. The word ‘miserable’ suggests condemnation and disapproval. So, when the fire becomes the last and permanent dwelling, is not this the wretched destination? They did not find resort except in hell which is naturally a miserable destination.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says:

مَآ أَصَابَ مِن مُّصِيبَةٍ إِلَّا بِإِذۡنِ ٱللَّهِۗ وَمَن يُؤۡمِنۢ
بِٱللَّهِ يَهۡدِ قَلۡبَهُۥۚ وَٱللَّهُ بِكُلِّ شَيۡءٍ عَلِيمٞ ﴿١١﴾

Misfortunes can only happen with God’s permission — He will guide the heart of anyone who believes in Him:
God knows all things [11] (The Quran, at-Taghabun: 11)

Nothing runs counter to Allah’s Predestination for it is inevitable; no one can oppose Him Glorified is He if He wills to make him/her sick, poor, or dead. So, nothing in the universe can avert His Will. As long as you cannot, you should yield pleasantly and be patient regarding His Predestination for you in order to taste and enjoy the belief in His Comprehensive Knowledge, Wisdom and Omnipotence. In this connection, ‘Ubada ibn As-Samit said to his son, ‘O son! You will not get the taste of reality in faith until you know that what has come to you could not miss you and that what has missed you could not come to you. I heard Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him say, “The first thing Allah created is the pen. He said to it: ‘Write.’ It asked: ‘What should I write, my Lord?’ He said: ‘Write what was decreed about everything till the last Hour comes.’ Son, I heard Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him say, ‘He who dies on something other than this does not belong to me.’”’(1)

Here, Allah the Almighty says: ‘Misfortunes can only happen with Allah’s permission—He will guide the heart of anyone who believes in Him: Allah knows all things.' (at-Taghabun: 11) He the Almighty mentions the reward of the believers, saying: 'He will cancel the sins of those who believed in Him and acted righteously: He will admit them into Gardens graced with flowing streams, there to remain forever – the supreme triumph.' (at-Taghabun: 9) Then, He the Almighty mentions the punishment of the disbelievers, saying: 'But those who disbelieved and rejected Our Signs will be the inhabitants of the Fire there to remain–a miserable destination.' (at-Taghabun: 10) In the chapter in question, He the Almighty states the elements of faith required from people, saying: 'So believe in Allah, in His Messenger, and in the light We have sent down…' (at-Taghabun: 8). Thus, the elements of faith are as follows: Belief in Allah, in His Messenger, in the Quran and in the Divine Predestination. So, He the Almighty says here: 'Misfortunes can only happen with Allah's permission...' (at-Taghabun: 11).

'Umar ibn Al-Khattab Allah be pleased with him said: 'Once we were sitting in the company of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him when there appeared a man dressed in very white clothes with extraordinary black hair. No signs of fatigue of journey appeared on him and he was known to none of us. He sat down facing Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him leaning his knees against the knees of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and placing both his palms over his two thighs and said, "O Muhammad, tell about faith." Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: "It is to believe in Allah, His angels, His Books, His Messengers and the Last Day and that you believe in preordainment, its bad and good consequences." He said: "You have spoken the Truth."'(1)

There are times when the human being does not have choices, such as sickness and death, so s/he cannot say, 'I will not get sick,' or 'I will not die.' S/he may lose his/her wealth or have his/her home burned, so s/he cannot prevent the Predestination. The calamities are destined by Allah the Almighty in order to benefit the believer for when s/he faces a calamity, it either removes a misdeed for him/her or raises him/her one degree. If the believer receives the calamity with satisfaction and recognises that Allah the Almighty Who decreed it, is All-Wise and only destines for him/her what He knows for sure to be good, even if it is unknown by him/her, then s/he is rewarded for his/her patience and satisfaction. Thus, s/he quits the circle of severe pain.

(1) This Hadith is narrated by Ahmad, An-Nasa'i, At-Tayalisi, and Al-Bayhaqi on the authority of 'Umar ibn Al-Khattab Allah be pleased with him. It is the Hadith of Gabriel who was asking about Islam, Iman and Perfection while in the shape of a man. See Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 367; An-Nasa'i, Sunnan, Hadith no. 4990; At-Tayalisi, Musnad, Hadith no. 21; and Al-Bayhaqi, As-Sunnan Al-Kubra, Hadith no. 21393

So, the true believer receives all Allah's Predestinations with satisfaction. Allah's Predestinations, as long as unchosen, have wisdom behind them since He the Almighty only destines what is good for the believer. After the soul is satisfied with its destiny, the person will ultimately know the wisdom behind it. If you receive your various destines well, you will find out that your failure in any incident destined for you is a result of your deeds. As for the destinies which you have no control over, they are destinies for a good reason which might be unknown to you.

Thus, if receiving the destiny has been out of your control, it is in your interest; if it has been resulting from you, it is against you. Besides, if you count the destinies which benefit you, you will find them much more than the bad ones. So, the believer needs to be connected with Allah the Almighty and put his/her trust in Him, taking into consideration that putting trust in Him Glorified is He means that the limbs act while the hearts trust Him, since trust in Allah the Almighty is the mission of the hearts, not the limbs. Each one of us should beware that Allah the Almighty may constrain our means of sustenance in order not to tempt us. In this way, your faith in Him as well as that of the people will be straightened. Hence, you should thank Allah the Almighty and submit to His Preordainment and Destiny. In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'But perhaps you hate a thing and it is good for you; and perhaps you love a thing and it is bad for you. And Allah knows, while you know not.' (al-Baqara: 216) Whoever accepts His Predestination and remembers that s/he has a Lord Who bestows beyond all reasons, s/he will be endowed with a heart filled with reassurance before any incident. When the Muslim accepts and submits to Allah's Predestination, s/he will reap the fruits of this submission. The period of tribulation lingers for people because they do not accept it as Allah's Predestination; however, He the Almighty cannot be forced by anyone, and His Predestination is inevitable whether you accept it or not.

When you submit to Allah the Almighty and accept His Predestination, He removes your tribulations or shows you the goodness embodied in them. So, you have to respect and accept His Predestination because it is decided by your Lord, the Creator, and the All-Wise. His Predestination is not removed until people accept it. More often than not, we see people rejecting the Predestination, especially when a young child dies. You see his/her family crying and wailing so much over him/her to the extent that we might hear someone saying, ‘S/he did not enjoy his/her youth.’ These acts of ignorance are absurd; what youth?! What pleasure is this? S/he left a futile and mortal worldly life and a temporary pleasure, moving into the everlasting dwelling and permanent pleasure. How is this? S/he stopped living with the creatures and went to the Creator Glorified is He.

When you face a painful destiny, you should be patient because you should know it is decreed with the Wisdom of Allah the Almighty. The person afflicted with such destiny should believe that: ‘Misfortunes can only happen with Allah’s Permission...’ (at-Taghabun: 11). S/he must return to Allah the Almighty and recall His saying: ‘Who, when disaster strikes them, say, ‘Indeed we belong to Allah, and indeed to Him we will return.’ (al-Baqara: 156)

The disaster is the thing which causes hardship and pain to the human being. The believer shall receive the disaster trusting that s/he will be rewarded proportional to the inflection. When the believer says: ‘Indeed we belong to Allah, and indeed to Him we will return,’ (al-Baqara: 156) it means that even if s/he is afflicted by the calamities of the worldly life, including oppression by a human being, s/he will be rewarded for it when we return to Allah the Almighty.

We belong to Allah the Almighty in the first place, and we are His Possession in the final destination as well; He the Almighty is the Owner of our beginning and end. So, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him taught us to say when we suffer from a calamity: ‘Indeed we belong to Allah, and indeed to Him we will return.’ (al-Baqara: 156); and: ‘O Allah, reward me for my affliction and give me something better than it in exchange for it.’(1) If you say so when you suffer from any calamity, then Allah the Almighty will compensate you with something better in exchange. The believer may suffer the calamity of the death of someone dear to him/her, yet, s/he receives the calamity with faith and says, ‘My grieving will not get him/her back; it is better to win paradise by being patient and accepting this predestination. The reward I gain out of this is a sufficient condolence for me; I would not gain from him/her the reward I have gained when I endure the calamity of losing him/her.’ When the human being suffers a calamity, s/he should be satisfied and say, ‘As long as I have no interference in the calamity which Allah the Almighty destined for me, then it is a test and He the Almighty will reward me for it.’

(1) In his book, Imam Muslim mentions that Um Salama Allah be pleased with her said, ‘I heard Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him say, “There is no Muslim who is stricken with a calamity and reacts by saying as Allah has commanded: Indeed=

When a father is inflicted by the death of a son, he may grieve for a long time and the deceased’s mother may wail whenever she sees a child at his age. However, if they want Allah the Almighty to remove their calamity, then they need to close the door of grieving by acceptance and submission to His Predestination. Each believer should know that s/he will be compensated for the death of someone dear to him/her by a reward better than what s/he lost, and that the dead one will be compensated with a reward better than the worldly life. As a result, it is said, ‘The inflicted one is not one who is stricken with a calamity of losing his/her dear ones, but it is s/he who loses the reward of bearing this calamity and accepting Allah’s Predestination.’(1) It is as if the inflicted one, who was deprived of the reward, had sold his/her calamity with a cheap value. When people stricken with the calamity recall its reward, this helps them live in pleasure. No wonder some people praise and thank Allah the Almighty for the calamities since they may be provided with a greater reward than what they lost. So, you have to receive the calamity with satisfaction and beware of separating the calamity from the One Who decreed it; rather, you should examine the goodness that follows it and should never despair. Despair upon the calamity is futile. If you associate the calamity with the One Who decreed it, you will know that He is All-Wise and decreed it for an unseen wisdom. So, if you deeply thought about it, you will reach the same conclusion.

The calamity does not strike anyone except by the permission of Allah the Almighty since nothing occurs in His Dominion without His Will. In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'Say, "Never will we be struck except by what Allah has decreed for us…' (at-Tawba: 51) Thus, nothing will happen to us except what He the Almighty has decreed for us. It is worth noting that He the Almighty says: '…what Allah the Almighty has decreed for us…' (at-Tawba: 51) and does not say 'what was decreed against us.' When we examine the matter of being stricken by a calamity, we will find it in our interest, as He the Almighty will reward us for it. He the Almighty does not say: 'what was decreed against us' because it will suggest that it is a punishment by Him. So, the true believer receives each calamity while expecting goodness out of it. Besides, as long as we cannot prevent calamities and incidents, then we should accept them as what the true believer should do. As it is Allah's Decree for us, this makes us feel that the calamity is in the interest of whoever is stricken by it. So, if you saw a calamity striking us and thought it would harm us, you need to know that we trust the One Who decreed it; it bears a piece of wisdom as everything is decreed in our interest, not against it. Thus, all what Allah the Almighty has decreed for the believer is in his/her interest in order to rectify or reward him/her or improve his/her position in life; that is why it is in our interest.

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…only happen with Allah's Permission...' (at-Taghabun: 11) it emphasises that the calamities do not befall except by His permission. This is one of His favours because it saves the human being from humbling him/herself before others as those people cannot cause him/her harm unless it has been decreed by Allah the Almighty. This proves what Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said in a Hadith: 'If you ask, ask from Him [alone]; if you seek help, then seek help from Allah. And remember that if all people gather to benefit you, they will not be able to benefit you except that which Allah the Almighty had decreed for you; and if all of them gather to do harm to you, they will not be able to afflict you with anything other than which Allah the Almighty had pre-destined against you. The pens had been lifted and the ink had dried up.'(1)

Then, Allah the Almighty says: 'He will guide the heart of anyone who believes in Him...' (at-Taghabun: 11) The greatness of faith is manifested when the sincere believer is stricken by an undesirable destiny. His/her sincere faith guides his/her heart. 'Guide' here means to show, indicate, clarify, and manifest; this is the Guidance of natural disposition. The other kind of Guidance is that of guiding to the Straight Path and Support. Guidance of Natural Disposition is the closest meaning for the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'He will guide the heart of anyone who believes in Him...' (at-Taghabun: 11) It means to direct his/her heart and help it accept Allah's Predestination and Decree when s/he is stricken with calamities. It is Allah the Almighty Who guide us to the Straight Path. Guidance is realised only through adhering to Allah's Way of Guidance and His Straight Path, which makes people patient, content and satisfied when they are inflicted with a calamity.

'Abdullah ibn 'Abbas, one of the greatest scholar of the ummah and the Interpreter of the Quran, explained the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'He will guide the heart of anyone who believes in Him...' (at-Taghabun: 11) saying, 'Guide his/her heart to certainty in order to recognise that what has stricken you could not miss you and that what has missed you could not inflict you.' Abu Al-'Aliya(2) says, 'Allah the Almighty has committed that He guides whoever believes in Him; He suffices whoever puts his/her trust in Him; He rewards whoever gives charity for His sake; He saves whoever trusts Him; He responds to whoever prays to Him.’(1)

(1) This Hadith is narrated by At-Tirmidhi, Ahmad and Abu Ya'la on the authority of Ibn 'Abass Allah be pleased with him. It was authenticated by Husayn Salim Asad. See At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 2516; Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 2763; Abu Ya'la, Musnad, Hadith no. 2556

(2) Abu Al-'Aliya Rafi' ibn Mahran, an Imam, reciter, memoriser and interpreter of Quran, is a figure from Bani Rayyah, Al-Basra. He was a slave for a woman from Bani Rayyah ibn yarbu' then Bani Tamim. He witnessed the era of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him when he was a young man. He declared his Islam when Abu Bakr As-Sidiq was Caliph. He used to listen to 'Umar, 'Ali and Abu-Dharr among other Companions before he died in 93 A.H.

In the same vein, Muqatil ibn Sulaiman(2) said, ‘Whoever believes in Allah in the event of a calamity and recognises that the calamity is the Destiny of Allah, and submits to Him, Allah the Almighty guides him/her to say: ‘Indeed we belong to Allah, and indeed to Him we will return.’ (al-Baqara: 156) So, Allah’s saying: ‘He will guide his heart...’ (at-Taghabun: 11) means that He the Almighty guides his/her heart to submission to His Decree and contentment with His Predestination, as s/he recognises it is a decree by Allah the Almighty. At that time, He the Almighty guides his/her heart, which makes him/her reassured, content, enduring patiently the calamities; and thus s/he gains an immediate reward along with the reward saved for him/her on the Day of Judgment. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: ‘Indeed, the patient will be given their reward without account [i.e. limit]’ (az-Zumar: 10). On the contrary, those who despair and panic do not settle down before calamities related to the self, wealth, children or dear ones. When Allah the Almighty guides one’s heart, s/he does not panic; instead, s/he endures the calamity pleasantly and does not complain, despair or fear. When the human being is stricken with a calamity beyond his/her endurance and has no way out, s/he has two options: first, to receive the calamity with despair and complaint; secondly, to receive it with endurance and patience. Allah the Almighty frequently inflicts the believers with hardships. However, these hardships are favours from Him the Almighty since the mere hardship is not evil in itself; instead, the real evil is to fall in the event of hardships by not enduring them and accepting His Predestination. So, each hardship is a test and a trial.

(1) Abu Al-‘Aliya said, ‘Allah has committed Himself that He guides whoever believes in Him; the proof is: ‘And whoever believes in Allah – He will guide his heart...’ (at-Taghabun: 11); He suffices whoever puts his trust in Him; He rewards whoever lends Him; the proof is the saying of Allah: ‘Whoever that would loan Allah a goodly loan so He may multiply it for him many times over.’ (al-Baqara: 245); He saves whoever trusts Him; the proof is His saying: ‘And hold firmly to the rope of Allah all-together.’ (Al-‘Imran: 103) Holding to Allah is Trust. He responds to whoever prays for Him; the proof is His saying: ‘And when My servants ask you, [O Muhammad], concerning Me – Indeed I am near. I respond to the invocation of the supplicant when he calls upon Me…’ (al-Baqara: 186). See Adh-Dhahabi, Siyar A‘lam Al-Nubala’, 4/211; and Abu Na‘yam, Hilyat Al-Awliya’, 2/ 221

(2) Muqatil ibn Sulayman ibn Bashir Al-Uzdi Al-Balkhi, Abu Al-Hasan, a figure among the interpreters of Quran, originated from Balkh, moved to Basra and entered Baghdad. He died in 150 AH. His narrations of Hadiths were avoided. His books include At-Tafsir Al-Kabir, Nawadir At-Tafsir, Ar-Radd ‘Ala Al-Qadariyya, and Mutashabih Al-Quran. See, Az-Zirikli, Al-‘Alam, 7/ 281.

In this connection, Allah the Almighty says: ‘And He will surely test you with something of fear and hunger and a loss of wealth, lives and fruits, but give good tidings to the patient.’ (al-Baqara: 155) The first hardship of these is fear, since your fear helps its source to overwhelm you. So, do not live in fear and panic before their actual time comes. The plight of people is that they live in calamities before they strike them; thus, they extend the period of the calamities. The calamity might come after a month, for instance, so why do you extend the period of the calamity by fearing and worrying about facing it? You need to know that when the calamity befalls you, Allah, the Most Merciful, accompanies it with relief. So, if you lived in the calamity before it struck you, you would undergo it without the relief accompanying it; yet, if you remained patient, content and able to face any hardship, then you would not experience the calamity without relief. The second hardship is hunger, the third is the decrease of wealth, the fourth is the loss of lives, and the fifth is the loss of fruits.

Most importantly, the human being should manage these hardships in order to face life with endurance and strength. The hardship is not evil in itself; it is a test which the person might pass while another one might fail in it. So, Allah the Almighty says: ‘He will guide the heart of anyone who believes in Him...’ (at-Taghabun: 11). The one who succeeds is the one who believes in Allah the Almighty truly, tastes the sweetness of Faith that all the destinies are decreed by Allah. Such a believer has his/her heart guided by Him Glorified is He.

Then, Allah the Almighty says: ‘Allah knows all things.’ (at-Taghabun: 11) Allah the Almighty has All Encompassing Knowledge about everything whether in the past, the present, or the future. He Glorified is He knows the events before they come to pass. Moreover, He knows the submission of those who yielded and accepted His Predestination and rewards them, and He knows the rejection of those who rejected it. He the Almighty is All Knowing; no secret can be concealed from Him and nothing may occur in the universe without His Knowledge and Permission. He the Almighty knows what we conceal and what we declare. No atom of His universe is hidden from Him. Further, He knows people's conditions, speeches, acts, and secrets. Thus, His Knowledge is comprehensive; He knows your intent, the extent of your patience over what has stricken you, as well as your degree of certainty and submission to Him.

In this regard, a father advises his son before his death; he is about to leave the worldly life and meet Allah the Almighty. Al-Walid ibn 'Ubada As-Samit entered upon his father, 'Ubada, while he was sick and dying. Al-Walid says, 'I said, "O Father, advise me to the best of your ability." He said, "Help me sit down," and added, "O son you will not taste faith and will not realise the true reality of knowledge about Allah until you believe in predestination; whether good or evil." I said, "O father, how do I know the good predestination and the evil one?" He said, "What has struck you could not miss you and that what has missed you could not come to you. O son, I heard Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying, 'The first thing created is the pen. Then, he said: Write. By this hour, everything until the Day of Judgement was decreed' O son, if I died while not on this, I would enter the fire (1).

On the other hand, sometimes the calamities are destined because of the people themselves, a fact which is clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And when We let the people taste mercy, they rejoice therein, but if evil afflicts them for what their hands have put forth, immediately they despair.' (ar-Rum: 36) If you associate the mercy or calamity with the One Who decreed them, you will know that He the Almighty is Wise in both conditions. Yet, if you look at the calamity only, you will grieve and despair. However, if you consider the Mercy of the One Who decreed such calamity, you will be content and reassured.

The calamity is meant to be the thing which strikes you and it does not miss you because it is decreed by your Lord, the Wise. If He the Almighty decreed something good for you, it will come so do not worry about it or compete with people for it. If it was bad, you should never say, 'I will be cautious in order to avoid it,’ because there is no escape for you from it. Further, why do you despair and become disappointed if you are stricken with a calamity? Why do you not wait and see; it should have wisdom behind it. Maybe there is unseen goodness out of it and perhaps it is a hardship which will be relieved soon. Allah the Almighty then says:

(1) See Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 22757; and At-Tabarani, Musnad, Hadith no. 949.

وَأَطِيعُوا۟ ٱللَّهَ وَأَطِيعُوا۟ ٱلرَّسُولَ ۚ فَإِن تَوَلَّيْتُمْ فَإِنَّمَا عَلَىٰ رَسُولِنَا ٱلْبَلَٰغُ ٱلْمُبِينُ ﴿١٢﴾

So obey God and the Messenger. If you turn away, remember that Our Messenger’s duty is only to make plain his message [12] (The Quran, at-Taghabun: 12)

Here, Allah the Almighty commands the Muslims to obey Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him because it is part of their obedience to Him Glorified is He. In this regard, He the Almighty says: ‘He who obeys the Messenger has obeyed Allah; but those who turn away – We have not sent you over them as a guardian.’ (an-Nisa’: 80) So, whoever refrains from obeying him peace and blessings be upon him will be punished in the Hereafter. Furthermore, Allah the Almighty says about those who rebel against his obedience: ‘Say, “Obey Allah, and the Messenger.” But if they turn away – then indeed, Allah does not like the disbelievers.’ (Al-‘Imran: 32)

In the same vein, it is narrated that ‘Abdullah ibn ‘Umar Allah be pleased with him said, ‘I was sitting with Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and some of his Companions when he peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘Do you not know that I am the Messenger of Allah who has been sent for you?’ They said, ‘We testify that you are the Messenger of Allah.’ He said, ‘Do you not know that Allah the Almighty has revealed in His Book that whoever obeys me has obeyed Allah?’ They said, ‘We testify that whoever obeys you obeys Allah. Allah orders us to obey you.’ He said, ‘Obey Allah and the Messenger; the obedience of Allah is my obedience. My obedience requires obedience of your Imams; if the Imam performed the prayers while sitting down; perform your prayers while sitting. (1)’

(1) See Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 5679; Al-Bazzar, Musnad, Hadith no. 6093; At-Tabarani, Mu‘jam, Hadith no.13060; Abu Ja‘far At-Tahawi, Sharh Mushkil Al-Athar, Hadith no. 5644, and Ibn ‘Asakir, Mu‘jam Sheikh, Ibn ‘Asakir, Hadith no. 732.

Obedience involves complying with the commands and avoiding the prohibition; this is the obedience in the religion. If you examined the Quran, you will find that the verses regarding the matter of obedience required from those who believe in Allah's Way of Guidance and testify that there is no god but Allah and that Muhammad is the Messenger of Allah, is represented in orders and prohibitions. If you read the Quran, you will find He the Almighty says regarding obedience: 'Say, "Obey Allah, and the Messenger."' (Al-'Imran: 32) Here, He the Almighty does not repeat 'obey' and only repeats the ones to be obeyed: Allah the Almighty and His Messenger. However, He Glorified is He repeats the verb 'obey' saying in another verse: 'Obey Allah, and obey the Messenger…' (an-Nisa': 59). In a third instance, He the Almighty says: 'And obey the Messenger that you may receive mercy.' (an-Nur: 56); and in a fourth instance: 'Obey Allah, and obey the Messenger and those in authority among you.' (an-Nisa': 59) Here, those in authority are added. So, when Allah the Almighty says: 'Obey Allah, and the Messenger,' (Al-'Imran: 32) it includes the rulings ordained by Allah the Almighty and Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Therefore, you must obey both of them with regard to these rulings. If He the Almighty has provided a general ruling, while Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him has provided a detailed one, such as prayers, zakat and pilgrimage, then, you must also obey both of them.

In addition, if there is a ruling not decreed by Allah the Almighty but by Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him we must obey him according to the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And whatever the Messenger has given you – take; and what he has forbidden you – refrain from.' (al-Hashr: 7) We obey him in such a ruling since Allah the Almighty also says in another verse: 'He who obeys the Messenger has obeyed Allah...' (an-Nisa': 80). This is because Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him has acted by the authority that Allah Glorified is He granted to him: 'And whatever the Messenger has given you – take; and what he has forbidden you – refrain from.' (al-Hashr: 7)

Thus, obeying Allah the Almighty requires obedience to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. There are kinds of rulings decreed by Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him: First, he decrees what Allah the Almighty has decreed in order to emphasise it; secondly, he elaborates on what Allah the Almighty has decreed generally. For example, He the Almighty has decreed prayer and zakat. These are general obligations which were elaborated on by Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. For instance, he peace and blessings be upon him has clarified the prescribed minimum amount liable to zakat. Therefore, we obey Allah the Almighty in His general Decree and obey Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him regarding its details.

Sometimes Allah the Almighty does not issue a ruling regarding a matter; yet Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him issues one by the authority granted to him. So, if anyone argued about any ruling and needed a proof from the Quran, yet you cannot find one, and can only provide a proof from what Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, then you should quote Allah's saying: 'And whatever the Messenger has given you – take; and what he has forbidden you – refrain from.' (al-Hashr: 7) So, Allah the Almighty commands the Muslims to obey Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him since his obedience is derived from obedience to Allah Glorified is He Who says: 'He who obeys the Messenger has obeyed Allah; but those who turn away – We have not sent you over them as a guardian.' (an-Nisa': 80) Thus, obedience to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is obedience to Allah, and whoever refrains from his obedience is punished in the Hereafter. So, He the Almighty stresses the importance of obeying both Him and His Messenger, for the former entails the latter.

Obedience to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is related to all kinds of rulings and obligations. Sometimes Allah the Almighty decrees a ruling that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him confirms it by his Hadith or a practice; so when the believer obeys this decree, s/he obeys both Allah the Almighty and His Messenger. Other times, the decree is revealed by Allah the Almighty generally; then, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him elaborates on it. For instance, He the Almighty says: 'And establish prayer and give zakat and obey the Messenger – that you may receive mercy.' (an-Nur: 56) One would not have been able to know the number of daily prayers or the number of their units or the way of praying if Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him had not explained them.

So, the believer obeys Allah the Almighty with regard to the general commandments and obeys Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him with regard to their details. In fact, we should take into consideration that obedience here is divided into two types: obedience to Allah the Almighty and obedience to His Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. As for the commandments issued by both of them, they must all be obeyed. This is because they all are of the same nature.

Concerning Allah's Commandments that carry general religious obligations, He the Almighty leaves the task of their explanation to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Thus, the true believer obeys Allah the Almighty regarding general commandments, such as the establishment of obligatory prayers, and obeys Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him with respect to the detailed rules and procedures of prayers. Sometimes, the religious injunctions are issued by Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him on account of the authority that Allah the Almighty granted to him.

He the Almighty entrusts him peace and blessings be upon him with making legislations that ensure the sound and correct life of believers. Further, He grants him Allah's peace and blessings be upon him the general authority to make legislations. As long as it is so, a believer's obedience to Messenger Muhammad includes what he commanded independently, even if it is not issued by Allah Glorified is He.

Let us offer an example to illustrate this point; we find no textual evidence in the Quran that indicates that the Dawn Prayer consists of two units. But it is Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him who provided the details of prayer for us and taught us that the Dawn Prayer comprises two units; the Noon Prayer is composed of four units; the Afternoon Prayer consists of four units; the Sunset Prayer consists of three units, whilst the Evening Prayer is made up of four units. (1)

---

(1) Ibn Mas'ud Allah be pleased with him narrated that Jibril (Gabriel) came to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and said to him, 'Rise and perform prayer.' This was at the time when the sun reached the meridian. He indeed observed the Noon Prayer as four units. Then Jibril (Gabriel) came to him again at the moment when his shadow was double its size and said, 'Rise and perform the Afternoon Prayer as four units.' When the sun set, Jibril (Gabriel) came to him peace and blessings be upon him=

Obedience is obligatory on all the believers, a fact which is clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'O you, who have believed, obey Allah and obey the Messenger…' (an-Nisa': 59).

Once you have believed in Allah the Almighty as the Wise Creator Who charges you with certain obligations, then you must obey and listen eagerly to what He the Almighty says to you. He the Almighty does not order all people to obey Him from the beginning; rather, He orders them first to believe in Him. As soon as one believes in Him the Almighty He thus commands him to obey His Commands.

Obedience to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is based on belief in Allah the Almighty and His Messenger. This is entirely fair because Allah the Almighty only commands those who believe in Him to fulfil the obligations. As for those who disbelieve, He the Almighty commands them to believe in Him first before charging them with any obligations. So, after the person believes in Allah the Almighty He says to him, 'Obey me'. That is why we note that His Commands always begin with His Saying: 'O you who have believed….' (an-Nisa': 59).

You should beware of delving into or arguing over the Injunctions of Allah the Almighty mistakenly thinking that if you are convinced of them, you will adopt them; but if not, you will neglect them! This is unacceptable altogether, since it indicates that you have doubted these injunctions. What you are bound to do is to hasten to implement these injunctions as long as you believe that they are issued by Allah the Almighty.

He the Almighty warns us against not obeying Him and His Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying: 'And obey Allah and obey the Messenger and beware…' (al-Ma'ida: 92). So, why does He the Almighty give this warning? It is meant to teach us that Satan will attempt to prevent us

= and said to him, 'Rise and perform the Sunset Prayer as three units.' When the twilight disappeared, Jibril (Gabriel) came to him peace and blessings be upon him and said, 'Rise and observe Evening Prayer as four units.' When the dawn broke, Jibril (Gabriel) came to him and said, 'Rise and observe the Dawn Prayer as two units.' Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him rose and performed the Dawn Prayer as two units. See At-Tabarani, Al-Mu'jam Al-Kabir, Hadith no. 14143 from obeying Him Glorified is He and Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and that he will also try his best to plunge us into confusion.

The moment Satan knows that a person has an inclination towards any kind of physical pleasure; he tries to attract him to disobedience through this door. However, if a person closes all doors to Satan, he cannot beguile him into stealing or drinking alcohol, for example. So, Satan does not leave the human being alone, for he attacks him through acts of obedience. He, for example, comes to a person when he performs ablution and makes him forget to wash of his hands or makes him wonder if he has performed ablution properly or not. Satan can also come to a believer when he prays and makes him forget how many units he prayed or how many prostrations he made. Thus, Satan can attack a believer through obedience. That is why Allah the Almighty says: '…and beware…' (al-Ma'ida: 92).

Allah the Almighty informs us that Satan said threateningly: 'I will certainly lie in wait for them in Your Straight Path' (al-A'raf: 16). He swears to lie in wait for Allah's servants in the Straight Path, not the crooked one, and to sit in wait for them in the way of obedience to discourage them from it.

In fact, Allah the Almighty does not force the believer to obey Him. He gives him freedom of choice so that the final Reckoning in the Hereafter will be on a fair basis. Likewise, if one opts for disbelief, He the Almighty does not coerce one to believe. Similarly, if one opts for transgression, He the Almighty does not force one into obeying Him. Thus, He the Almighty respects one's own choice because it is He Who grants one this choice in order to hold one accountable on the Day of Judgement.

Allah the Almighty gives us the choice to believe, obey, or disobey, to know who obeys Him out of love and who does so compulsorily. Then, He the Almighty says: '…If you turn away…' (at-Taghabun: 12). Turning away here means diverting from Allah's Way of Guidance and refusing to obey Him the Almighty and Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. He the Almighty forbids the believers from turning away from His Obedience, saying: 'O you who believe! Obey Allah and His Messenger and do not turn back from Him while you hear' (al-Anfal: 20). As long as you have believed, you are not allowed to give up what you have believed in. It is worth noting that He the Almighty does not say: 'and do not turn back from them,' according to the human style. But He the Almighty rather says: '…and do not turn back from Him...' (al-Anfal: 20). This signifies that He the Almighty regards obedience to Him and to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him as one thing. As he peace and blessings be upon him communicates Allah's Commands, there is thus no difference between the two types of obedience. Another possible interpretation is that turning away from Allah the Almighty is unimaginable, for He the Almighty seizes anyone who tries to turn away at any time.

So, with regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'If you turn away remember that Our Messenger's duty is only to make plain his Message' (at-Taghabun: 12), it means that if they shun the religious obligations, this will not do any harm to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him because he is only required to communicate the Message of Islam clearly. As a matter of fact, they cause harm to themselves when they turn away from the religious duties. Allah the Almighty has known since time immemorial that some people will argue, 'This ruling does not exist in the Quran.' So, obedience to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is mentioned together with that of Allah the Almighty.

Thus, obedience to Messenger Muhammad is independent, and He the Almighty wills it to be so, to respond in advance to those who look for all the religious details. So, it is as if He the Almighty was saying to them, 'What you will search is found in the Sunnah of Prophet Muhammad.' He the Almighty has known since time immemorial that some people will say that they will obey Allah the Almighty according to the Quranic texts only. In this respect, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him says, 'The time will come when a man sits on a couch and relates my Hadiths and says, "What adjudicates between me and you is the Scripture of Allah. If we find in it something unlawful, we will regard it as such, and if we find therein something unlawful, we will deem it so." [He peace and blessings be upon him continues,] Indeed, what Allah's Messenger declares unlawful is the same as what Allah forbids.'(1)

---

(1) This Hadith is narrated by Abu Dawud, Ibn Maja, Ahmad and Ad-Daraqutni on the authority of Al-Miqdam ibn Ma'di Yakrib. See Abu Dawud, Sunnan, Hadith no. 1406; At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 2664; Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 12; Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 17213 and 17233; and Ad-Daraqutni, Sunnan, Hadith no. 4767.

Needless to say, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him communicates the Message of Islam on behalf of Allah the Almighty.

So, we should beware of Satan when he tempts us through obedience. But why does Allah the Almighty say: 'If you turn away...' (at-Taghabun: 12)? What are the things from which are turned away? He the Almighty explains to us that the human being has a choice between obedience and disobedience. Even if a person inclines towards disobedience and turns away from belief which Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him conveyed from Allah the Almighty and persists in disbelief, such a person must know that he peace and blessings be upon him has actually fulfilled his mission in the most optimal way.

It is only required of him peace and blessings be upon him to communicate the Islamic Way of Guidance, and he indeed clarified everything connected with all the aspects of life. He peace and blessings be upon him informed us about what Allah the Almighty wants from us. For example, he taught us to believe in One Omnipotent and Wise God Who has all the Perfect Attributes, and to avoid all the practices of Pre-Islamic Arabs, such as slaughtering animals on stone altars and idolatry.

The communication of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him obliges us to believe and to do certain actions. The actions are divided into two types: positive actions and negative ones. The first type revolves around firmly committing to doing the commands if you do not already do them, whereas the second is pertinent to refraining from what Allah the Almighty and Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him forbid.

We must keep in mind that Allah the Almighty does not want Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to be overburdened with guiding people into belief. His mission is only to convey Allah's Message so that the final Reckoning will be based on sound and fair foundations. As for Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him he is not responsible for those who throw themselves into hell and torment, nor is he accountable for their being rightly guided; rather, he is only responsible for conveying the Message of his Lord. Therefore, Allah the Almighty says: 'Surely We have sent you with the truth as a bearer of good news and as a warner, and you shall not be called upon to answer for the companions of the flaming fire' (al-Baqara: 119).

Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him hopes that each member of his ummah is rightly guided. However, He the Almighty says: ‘You have no concern in the affair whether He turns to them (mercifully) or chastises them, for surely they are unjust’ (Al-‘Imran: 128). This verse means that he peace and blessings be upon him has nothing to do with the matter of Allah’s pardoning or punishing of those who disobey. Their punishment should not grieve him, for they are unfair people. In other words, he peace and blessings be upon him is commissioned to convey the Message only. As far as those who disbelieve are concerned, it is they who have wronged themselves with their disbelief. It is as if Allah the Almighty was saying to him, ‘Do not upset yourself, Muhammad! Only the communication of the Message is incumbent upon you.’ Thus, He the Almighty facilitates Messenger Muhammad’s mission.

That is why He the Almighty says: ‘Whoever obeys the Messenger, he indeed obeys Allah, and whoever turns back, so We have not sent you as a guardian over them’ (an-Nisa’: 8). The word ‘guardian’ here refers to the one who guards those to whom he conveys the Commands of Allah the Almighty and sets them straight when they deviate from the Right Path. But Allah the Almighty makes it clear, ‘I have not sent you, Muhammad, as a guardian over them. I just sent you to communicate the Message to them. They have the choice to follow the religious duties or to neglect them.’

When Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him declares a ruling, the believers must receive it on the basis that it primarily comes from Allah the Almighty Who knows best that he peace and blessings be upon him would never conceal the Message, and so he is not to be blamed by anyone.

Thus, the main duty of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is to convey the Message, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Nothing is (incumbent) on the Apostle but to deliver (the Message)…’ (al-Ma‘ida: 99). Concerning the implementation of the Message, it falls on the shoulders of those who believe in it. If they carry it out, their reward will be paradise, but if they do not, they will deserve punishment.

In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: ‘Indeed there have come to you clear proofs from your Lord; whoever will therefore see, it is for his own soul and whoever will be blind, it shall be against himself and I am not a keeper over you' (al-An'am: 04). Here, He the Almighty states that the enlightening proofs have reached us, and that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him has communicated the Message clearly. Thus, He the Almighty revealed His Laws and Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him imparted them to us. What remains is that we put them into practice. So, we will not be excused by the Supreme Lawgiver, Allah the Almighty the Creator, or by the infallible communicator, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him.

Delivering the Message must be carried out in a gentle, tender manner. In this regard, Allah the Almighty relates that Prophet Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him said: 'I deliver to you the Messages of my Lord, and I offer you good advice and I know from Allah what you do not know' (al-A'raf: 62). So, delivering the Message requires Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him to inform his people about the Way of Allah the Almighty first and then to call them to follow that Way by winning over their hearts by means of addressing and counselling them in a gentle manner. The Quranic wording is miraculous; he peace be upon him says: '…I offer you good advice…' (al-A'raf: 62). This indicates that he seeks no benefit from them for giving the advice; rather, it is for the good of the one who receives it.

Thus, the disbelievers should not think that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him gets any benefit from them if they believe. In fact, their disbelief will not scale down his reward, for he peace and blessings be upon him will obtain no advantage from them whether they believe or disbelieve. Their turning away from what he communicates to them, neither benefits and nor harms him, as he does not receive any reward from them, but rather from Allah the Almighty.

With respect to the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…Our Messenger's duty...' (at-Taghabun: 12), it refers to the obligation which Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is required to fulfil. This obligation is confined to conveying the Message as he received it without adding or omitting anything.

In this vein, he peace and blessings be upon him is not permitted to make additions to the Quranic verses which he receives from Allah the Almighty. That is why, He the Almighty says: 'Nor does he speak out of desire [3] It is naught but revelation that is revealed [4]' (an-Najm: 3-4) so, we should have confidence in his peace and blessings be upon him judgements since he does not speak according to his own desires; rather, he only delivers the Call to mankind and teaches them the Quran. Allah the Almighty also tells us that he peace and blessings be upon him said: 'I only follow what is revealed to me…' (al-An'am: 50). Thus, Messenger Muhammad's statements are not based on his personal inclinations; rather, he imparts the Divine Revelation exactly as it was revealed to him.

He peace and blessings be upon him is but a human who conveys Allah's Message to the people and obeys His commands. To this effect Allah the Almighty says: 'Say, [O Muhammad], "It is not for me to change it on my own accord. I only follow what is revealed to me. Indeed I fear, if I should disobey my Lord, the punishment of a tremendous Day"' (Yunus: 15).

In a related context, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him adds for us another aspect of obedience to him, saying: 'Obedience to me also includes obeying your Imams. If an Imam performs prayer while sitting, observe prayer while you are sitting as well.' He peace and blessings be upon him talks to us about leading others in prayer and tells us that Imams must be imitated regarding some procedures and body positions linked with prayer. If the Imam performs prayer while sitting, we should do the same.

In this connection, Jabir ibn 'Abdullah Allah be pleased with him said, 'Allah's Messenger peace and blessings be upon him got ill. So we performed prayer standing while he was sitting. Abu Bakr uttered the Takbirs aloud so that people [praying behind] could hear. Then the Messenger turned towards us and saw us standing. He signalled to us, and we sat down [while we were performing prayer]. After uttering salutation he said, "You were at this time about to do an act like that of the Persians and the Romans. They stand before their kings while they sit, so do not do that; follow your Imams. If they perform prayer standing, you should also do so, and if they perform prayer sitting, you should also do prayer sitting."'(1)

Conveying the Message from Allah the Almighty must be clearly and unequivocally done, and that is why He the Almighty says: ‘Our Messenger’s duty is only to make plain his Message’ (at-Taghabun: 12). This entails explaining everything needed for the life of the human being who is a vicegerent on earth. It must embrace all the features and fields of life. Thus, the Divine Way of Guidance encompasses all the aspects of life, starting from the declaration that there is no god but Allah and ending with removing harmful objects from roads.(1) This clear impartment of the Message should include all the interests of people. One should not contend, ‘Allah left such-and-such a thing unsettled.’ On the contrary, Allah’s Way of Guidance is perfect and comprehensive.

The conveyance of the Message should clarify Allah’s Way of Guidance. Here, we should take into account that Allah the Almighty facilitates the impartment of His Message to all people, including those with limited understanding and those who are cultured, intellectual, and meditative. Thus, no one is deprived of the goodness of the Message on the grounds of his lack of ability to understand the Quran. Quite the opposite, everyone can comprehend the Quran, a fact which is clear in His saying: ‘So, [O Muhammad], We have only made Quran easy in the Arabic language that you may give good tidings thereby to the righteous and warn thereby a hostile people’ (Maryam: 97). Therefore, He the Almighty facilitated the Quran and made it easy for Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to learn by heart and to comprehensively understand its meanings. He employed it in the task for which it is revealed, that is to say, delivering the Message of Allah the Almighty.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says:

---

(1) This Hadith is narrated by Muslim, At-Tirmidhi, An-Nasa’i, Ibn Maja and Ahmad on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him. The version of Muslim reads, ‘Belief consists of about seventy-two or sixty-two branches. The uppermost branch is to declare that there is no god but Allah, and the least branch is to remove harmful objects from roads. And modesty is a branch of belief.’ See Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 162; see also At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 26614; An-Nasa’i, Sunnan, Hadith no. 5005; Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 57; and Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 8913

ٱللَّهُ لَآ إِلَٰهَ إِلَّا هُوَۚ وَعَلَى ٱللَّهِ فَلۡيَتَوَكَّلِ ٱلۡمُؤۡمِنُونَ ﴿١٣﴾

God! There is no god but Him, so let the faithful put their trust in Him [13] (The Quran, at-Taghabun: 13)

When we say ‘Allah’, we refer to the Creator of everything. Allah the Almighty acquaints us with His Name ‘Allah,’ and informs us that He challenges anyone to give the same name to someone other than Him. Though there are atheists and disbelievers, none of them ever dares to call himself ‘Allah’. No one of them had the nerve to do this. They could have said, ‘We will call someone by this name and see what will happen as a result.’ But this did not occur. The word ‘Allah’ is the Name that Allah the Almighty selected for Himself and about which He informed us. It encompasses all His Perfect Attributes. As for His Attributes, we call them ‘the Lofty Names’, like the Omnipotent, the All-Hearing, the All-Seeing, the Ever-Living, the Sustainer of existence and the Almighty; even though these are all Attributes, they are regarded as Names. This is due to the fact that these Attributes in their absolute sense refer only to Allah the Almighty.

When these attributes are referred to in their absolute senses, they belong to Allah the Almighty. It is allowed to describe anyone other than Him with any of these Attributes in their limited sense. By contrast, the Name ‘Allah’ refers to Allah the Almighty alone.

The moment you hear the word ‘Allah,’ you must take it together with the grandest and best Attributes it implies, regardless of what you know thereof and what you do not. This is because Allah the Almighty created the whole universe and He is its Lord. Creation and sustaining entail numerous Attributes, such as Omnipotence, Wisdom, Omniscience, Mercy and so on. To combine His Lofty Attributes into a single word, Allah the Almighty calls Himself ‘Allah’ to refer to all of His Attributes.

When you commence any action, you say: ‘In the Name of Allah.’ This sums up what this action needs. That is to say that any action requires an ability, knowledge, wisdom, or might; so you should say, ‘In the Name of the Omnipotent,’ ‘In the Name of the Omniscient,’ ‘In the Name of the Wise,’ and ‘In the Name of the Almighty.’ Sometimes you need to defeat your enemies when you go to war against them, and thus you say, 'In the Name of the Almighty.' It is thus clear that any action needs a set of perfect and grand attributes to serve it. So, instead of saying 'In the Name of the Omnipotent, the Omniscient, or the Withholder,' Allah spares you the saying of all these words as you can say only, 'In the Name of Allah' as this very Name embodies all His Perfect Attributes.

Thus, when you say, 'In the Name of Allah,' this is sufficient for you. If you are in need of power or richness, you will obtain it. The moment you utter 'Allah,' it is as if you said, 'The Omnipotent, the Harmer, the Bringer of benefit, the All-Hearing, the All-Seeing, the Benefactor and so on.' Hence, the word 'Allah' is a proper noun that connotes all His Perfect Attributes, not a specific one.

Allah the Almighty confirms for Himself all the Perfect Attributes in His Name 'Allah'. Then, He declares the fundamental fact that there is no god but Him. It means there is no god worthy of being worshipped but Him the Almighty. He the Almighty made this clause a slogan for the believers. The slogan is a mark that distinguishes a group of people or a specific religious ritual. For example, the slogan of the calling for prayer is 'Allah is the Greatest,' whilst the slogan of every believer who is going through a misfortune should be 'there is no misfortune greater than You, Allah, while You are the Lord.' The purport of this slogan is that as long as you have a Lord, you should not worry or despair, for all problems are surmounted through Allah the Almighty. But the real problem is when a person has no Lord to turn to for help.

In the same connection, when the confederates gathered and besieged Medina, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him uttered this spiritual statement, 'There is no god but Allah, the Only God. He fulfilled His Promise; He supported His servant; He conferred might upon His soldiers; and He alone vanquished the confederates.'(1)

Also, when the believers are resurrected from their graves, their motto will be, 'There is no god but Allah. And upon Allah let the believers rely.'

(1) This Hadith is narrated by Al-Bazzar on the authority of Abu Hurayra who said that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'There is no god but Allah, the Only One who supported His servant and defeated the confederates. There is nothing like Him.' See Al-Bazzar, Musnad, Hadith no. 8438.

The believers' slogan is monotheism, and He the Almighty will resurrect them while they are monotheists and reliant upon Him. In this respect 'A'isha Allah be pleased with her related that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'The moment when believers are resurrected from their graves, their motto will be, "There is no god but Allah. And upon Allah let the believers rely."' The believers live in this worldly life adopting monotheism and relying upon Allah the Almighty and, therefore, when they get out of their graves, they will do the same and hope for Allah's Mercy.

The clause 'there is no god but Allah' contains a negative part and an affirmative one. The negative part is the words 'there is no god' and the affirmative part is the words 'but Allah'. What is more, the clause 'there is no god but Allah' contains the evidence of veracity. Suppose that this is untrue; have we ever heard of any person who claimed to be a god?

Allah the Almighty casts more light on this issue in His saying: ' Say: If there were with Him gods as they say, then certainly they would have been able to seek a way to the Lord of power [42] Glory be to Him and exalted be He in high exaltation above what they say [43]' (al-Isra': 42-43). If those alleged gods had any manifestations of power, they would go to Allah the Almighty and deny His Divinity. Moreover, if there was a god besides Him, a conflict would arise between them. But all of this did not happen. Thus, the clause 'there is no god but Allah' is veracious in itself even from the viewpoint of those who refute it. This is corroborated by the fact that none disputed this truth. As there is no one to dispute this truth, it is proven that there is no god but Him the Almighty. Suppose that there is a disputing god; where is he?

Allah the Almighty is the only God to whom worship and obedience are to be dedicated. Worship connotes obedience which in turn implies obeying the commands and refraining from the prohibitions. He the Almighty testifies for Himself that there is no god but Him, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'Allah bears witness that there is no god but He, and (so do) the angels and those possessed of knowledge, maintaining His creation with justice; there is no god but He, the Mighty, the Wise' (Al-'Imran: 18).

He the Almighty bears witness for Himself that there is no god but Him, and Messenger Muhammad also testifies that there is no god but Allah, and so do the angels. In addition to the angels, scientists can easily derive conclusive proofs of Allah's Oneness and Divinity from this vast universe.

Allah the Almighty bore witness that there is no god but Him even before the existence of any creature that could attest to His Oneness. He did so even before the creation of the angels who would be eyewitnesses for His Oneness.

He the Almighty declares: '…there is no god but He…' (Al-'Imran: 18). He made these Words 'the declaration of Monotheism' and thus made it as easy as possible for the people. He the Almighty did not wish the evidence of belief in the Supreme Power to be complicated, philosophic, or only accessible to those highly cultured ones. Religion is required for all – from the shepherd to the philosopher and from the street sweeper to the professor. So, this matter should be extremely simple and intelligible to everyone.

Allah the Almighty attests to His Oneness from the very beginning. Among His Lofty Names is the Believer. We also believe in His Oneness, but He the Almighty attested to His Oneness before He ordered us to do so. If someone argues, 'How does Allah testify for Himself?' We will reply to him, saying, 'Yes, He bears witness for Himself because there is no other god but Him. Allah's Testifying for Himself is normal. It seems as if He the Almighty says, "there is no deity but Me, and if there should be another deity, let him show himself and disclose his whereabouts."'

If the alleged deities knew about this testimony, their silence about it and the absence of their objection to it is certainly a token of powerlessness. If they did not know about it, they would be heedless and unaware. In both cases, they cannot be true deities. What are these deities that are unfamiliar with what is happening around them or that lack the courage to confront their adversaries?

As there is no god but Allah the Almighty let your reliance be upon Him alone. You should know well that when you depend upon Him, alone, you count on the All-Powerful, Almighty God. In this vein, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him says, 'If you beg, beg of Him alone; and if you need assistance, supplicate to Allah alone for help. And remember that if all the people gather to benefit you, they will not be able to benefit you except that which Allah had foreordained (for you); and if all of them gather to do harm to you, they will not be able to afflict you with anything other than that which Allah had predestined against you. The pens have been lifted and the ink has dried up.'(1)

You take refuge with the Greatest Creator Who has Power and Control over everything. The statement 'there is no god but Allah' makes you dispense with others' service. You should thus rely on and worship the only God whom nothing can overwhelm or subdue. As a matter of fact, when you turn to Allah the Almighty alone for help and take refuge with Him, you free yourself from the humiliation of this worldly life through the Ever-Living, the All-Powerful and the Almighty Lord. Once you appeal for Allah's Help, He will give you His Support and Care. He alone is fully able to turn your powerlessness into power and your humbleness into honour. Therefore, the motto of those who believe in Allah the Almighty as only One God is: 'there is no god but Allah.' This short clause is one of the distinguishing features of Islam.

Religious rituals are also among the distinguishing features of Islam. They are all included in the order 'do' and the prohibition 'do not do'. They also include matters relating to creed and religious injunctions. Here, we should pay attention to the point that 'the religious rituals' is predominantly used today to refer to the rites of Pilgrimage. Among the slogans of believers is reliance on Allah the Almighty alone. As long as we believe that there is no god but Allah, why do some of us count on anyone other than Him? Why do we place our hopes, wishes and trust in anyone other than Him?

Then Allah the Almighty says: '…so let the faithful put their trust in Him' (at-Taghabun: 13). Those who truly and duly believe in Allah the Almighty should rely on Him. The value of belief is that our body parts work while our hearts have confidence in Allah the Almighty. The role of our body parts, for example, is to plant, plough, bring good seeds, irrigate the soil, and spread fertilisers. Suppose that frost might come and we fear that it would damage the plants, so we bring straw and cover the plants to protect them. All of this falls into the work of the body parts. As regards our hearts, they should have confidence in Allah the Almighty. So, you should beware of saying, ‘The crop will surely be good because I have exerted all my efforts very well.’ Instead you should not depend wholly on the physical causes because Allah’s Power transcends them.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of 'Abdullah ibn 'Abbas Allah be pleased with him. See Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith 2763; see also At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 2516; Abu Ya'ala, Musnad, Hadith no. 2556; and Al-Bayhaqi, Shu'ab Al-Iman, Hadith no. 1043.

The value of belief is that the believer is fully convinced of the Omnipotent God. Allah the Almighty has the full ability to create things both with and without causes. So, it is up to you to adopt the physical causes, but as for what is beyond these causes, it is controlled by Allah the Almighty. So when you work, you act according to the physical causes, and when you rely on Allah the Almighty you ensure His Help as He is the Establisher of causes.

You should beware of assuming that ‘reliance’ means stopping your body parts from working or keeping them idle, for this in fact amounts to indolence or false reliance. This is proved by the fact that those people (who do this) like to rely on Allah regarding what is difficult, yet carry out what is easy without relying on Him the Almighty.

One who does not rely on Allah the Almighty must check his faith. So, each body part has a particular function to do; the heart is to believe and place trust in Allah the Almighty. We should also remember that walking is the function of the feet while doing things is the function of the hands. So do not replace the function of the heart with that of the feet or hands. True reliance is to let your body parts work and let your heart trust Allah the Almighty. Sometimes a person works without reliance on Allah the Almighty and so the final outcome is loss and disappointment. So, you should beware of neglecting the physical causes or being infatuated with them since when you abandon physical causes, you are indolent, not truly reliant on Allah the Almighty and you thus exchange the function of the heart for those of the body parts.

If a person says to you, ‘I do not work, but I rely on Allah the Almighty’ you can say to him, ‘Let us learn how you consider reliance!’ Then, bring him a dish full of food s/he likes most, and when he stretches out his hands towards the food, say to him, ‘Leave the food and allow it to jump into your mouth.’ Those who do not employ their body parts and announce that they depend upon Allah the Almighty are liars, as reliance is not the function of the body parts responsible for the physical work; it is rather the function of the heart. Therefore, the body parts should work while the hearts have full confidence in Allah the Almighty.

Here arises the question, 'Upon whom should we rely?' The answer is offered in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'So let the faithful put their trust in Allah' (at-Taghabun: 13). When you rely upon Allah the Almighty you put your trust in the Ever-Living God Who never lets your effort go in vain. But if you count upon a person like you – even if he is more powerful – his power may vanish; he may hate or humiliate you; or a calamity may befall him and claim his life. The believers must rely upon Allah the Almighty alone and submit themselves to His Will. In this connection, He the Almighty tells us that the true believers say: 'And why should we not rely upon Allah while He has guided us to our [good] ways. And we will surely be patient against whatever harm you should cause us. And upon Allah let those who would rely [indeed] rely' (Ibrahim: 12). He the Almighty orders us to count upon Him as He is the Ever-Living. So, you should not depend upon anybody else, for this person may forsake you overnight. By contrast, if He the Almighty is your Patron, He will never abandon you. If you take anybody else as a patron besides Him, such a person who is currently strong and influential enough to depend upon him may die at any time. So, he cannot really be a patron as he might lose his influence and authority, or become helpless and weak, thus unable to help others.

The true Patron whom we must rely upon and hold fast to is Allah the Almighty Who is Unchangeable since He is Ever-Existent, Ever-Living and Ever-Powerful. He the Almighty is the true Patron in whom you must place your trust. Therefore, He clarifies for us why we must place our faith and hopes in Him alone, saying: 'And rely upon the Ever-Living Who does not die…' (al-Furqan: 58). Never ever rely upon anyone other than Him the Almighty as He is unchangeable; He is the Ever-Powerful, the Ever-Subduing, the Ever-Living, the Ever-Supporting, and the Ever-Lasting. You should not count upon anybody who suddenly dies; rather, rely upon the Ever-Living, the Ever-Existent the Almighty and the Powerful One. A poet once put it as follows:

Do receive your esteem from your Lord so that it will remain and last.

If you seek honour from a person who eventually dies, your honour will surely die.

A truly wise person should rely only upon the One Who is Trustworthy and Helpful. So, what is the point of depending on a person to serve your temporary interest and suddenly you hear about his death? In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: ‘And rely upon the Ever-Living who does not die…’ (al-Furqan: 58). This means that He the Almighty instructs His servants, ‘If you really want to be reliant, rely upon the One Who benefits and supports you; the One Who always fulfils His Promise, and Who is All-Powerful over anything on earth and in the heavens.’ This is the climax of wisdom; what is the point of relying upon the one who eventually dies? Even if such a person should live forever, do you ensure that he will not hate you one day?

Similarly, Allah the Almighty says: ‘So rely upon Allah; indeed, you are upon the clear truth’ (an-Naml: 79). So, the believer should rely upon Allah the Almighty follow the truth, and obey Him tenaciously. As you count upon and obey Him, He Glorified is He must be your Supporter and Helper.

Further, you should be satisfied with your reliance on Allah the Almighty alone, for He the Almighty says: ‘…and sufficient is Allah as Disposer of affairs’ (al-Ahzab: 3). In this vein, He the Almighty reassures His servants that He is the Disposer of affairs, saying: ‘And He is Disposer of all things’ (al-An‘am: 102). You should know that Allah the Almighty is your Guardian Who manages your affairs. This is like a person who takes care of a minor and orders him to do such-and-such. So, Allah the Almighty is our Guardian.

The believers depend only on Allah as their Disposer of affairs. Reliance means to believe that you have a manager who disposes all your matters. For example, when you face something you cannot accomplish, you say, ‘I authorise so-and-so to do that thing to the full.’ Hence, the believers count on their Lord and submit themselves to Him.

Thus, Allah the Almighty says: ‘And We gave Moses the Scripture and made it a guidance for the Children of Israel that you not take other than Me as Disposer of affairs’ (al-Isra’: 2). This means that we must not take anyone other than Allah the Almighty as a manager and disposer of our affairs. Even if there is someone in whom you trust and to whom you can entrust your interests, what do you think if your Disposer is Allah the Almighty? Undoubtedly, if He the Almighty is your Disposer of affairs, He will support you and never let you be in dire need of anyone other than Him. It suffices that He the Almighty is your Disposer of affairs, given the fact that nothing is difficult or impossible for Him. He the Almighty is not in need of physical means and nothing can challenge His Will.

In the verse in question, Allah the Almighty says: ‘So let the faithful put their trust in Him’ (at-Taghabun: 13). In other verses, He says: ‘And upon Allah should the reliant rely’ (Ibrahim: 12); and also: ‘The decision is only for Allah; upon Him I have relied, and upon Him should the reliant rely’ (Yusuf: 67).

Thus, if you are a true believer, you should rely on Allah the Almighty. As belief is highlighted in the verse in question, ‘So let the faithful put their trust in Him’ (at-Taghabun: 13). We note here that your reliance must be true, not a claim. The true reliance of your body parts is to let them work. So, you should work and adopt the physical means while simultaneously relying on Allah the Almighty with your heart. As for idleness, it is to neglect the physical means which He the Almighty creates for you and to stop adopting them, claiming that you are depending on Him the Almighty which is not true. You should first exhaust your available physical means. If they are inaccessible, do not despair because your Lord’s Power transcends these physical potentials which He creates for you.

Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him gives us an illustrative example by the birds. He says, ‘If you rely upon Allah as duly as required, He will provide for you as He does for the birds: they go early in the morning hungry and return in the evening full.’(1)

Allah the Almighty then says:

---

(1) ‘Umar ibn Al-Khattab narrated that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘If you actually count on Allah in the most optimal way, He will provide you with sustenance as He does for the birds; they go in the morning hungry and return at the end of the day full.’ At-Tirmidhi said that it is a good, authentic Hadith. See At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 2344; see also Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 4164; and Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 205, 370 and 373.

يَـٰٓأَيُّهَا ٱلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُوٓا۟ إِنَّ مِنْ أَزْوَٰجِكُمْ وَأَوْلَـٰدِكُمْ عَدُوًّا لَّكُمْ
فَٱحْذَرُوهُمْ ۚ وَإِن تَعْفُوا۟ وَتَصْفَحُوا۟ وَتَغْفِرُوا۟ فَإِنَّ ٱللَّهَ غَفُورٌ رَّحِيمٌ ١٤

Believers, even among your spouses and your children you have some enemies – beware of them – but if you overlook their offences, forgive them, pardon them, then God is all forgiving, all merciful [14] (The Quran, at-Taghabun: 14)

Here, Allah the Almighty addresses the believers who are firmly convinced that there is no god but Him and who put their trust in Him. He the Almighty addresses those who obey Him and His Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in order to pave the way for their accepting the warning against their wives and children.

The disbelievers are antagonistic towards themselves, so Allah the Almighty does not warn them against their wives and children, for they must be warned against their souls in the first place. With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Believers…' (at-Taghabun: 14), it means that the address is limited to those who have believed in Allah the Almighty as the true God, Creator and Lord; those who entered into a Contract of Faith with Him. They are commanded to fulfil these subsequent commands which come from Him on the grounds of their belief in Him. In fact, faith here is the cause of the imposition of the religious obligations; He the Almighty does not enjoin religious obligations on the disbelievers, for this is only confined to the believers. Hence the responsibility of their daily lives resides in Allah the Almighty. He, as a result, provides them with a Divine Way of life. As regards the disbelievers, He Glorified is He does not impose upon them any religious obligations.

The verse in question begins with calling the believers to listen and obey Allah's Commands. Thus, He the Almighty does not impose any religious obligations on those who do not believe in Him; He addresses only those who love and believe in Him. As long as they love Him, every believer must turn his attention to the One Whom he loves. By so doing, He the Almighty grants the believer what brings and achieves his happiness.

Here, Allah the Almighty draws the attention of those who believe in Him to an important matter, namely; a man's relationship with his wife and children and their influence on him regarding diverting his attention away from the religious requirements and obligations. So He the Almighty says: '…even among your spouses and your children you have some enemies…' (at-Taghabun: 14). He the Almighty specifies two kinds of people who are around us all the time, that is, the wives and the children. This is because they are in direct and close contact with the men. We should take into account that Allah the Almighty says: '…among your spouses…' (at-Taghabun: 14). This, in turn, means that only some wives and children are enemies to men, not all of them. This is what the Arabic preposition min (among) signifies here. A similar example is the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'But he who does of righteous deeds…' (Ta Ha: 112). The particle min (of) implies that it is sufficient to do some good deeds, for a person is unable to perform all righteous actions. You do the good deeds to the best of your ability; another person does the same, and so on and so forth. Ultimately, all these good deeds combine together to form a state of perfect righteousness in the society.

Another similar example is found in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Are there any of your "partners" who does anything of that?' (ar-Rum: 40) In this verse, the words 'anything of' denote that none of their alleged gods can do anything, be it related to creation, providing means of sustenance, Resurrection or causing death.

Allah the Almighty says: '…among your spouses…' (at-Taghabun: 14) since it is the spouses who take the lead in seduction and enticement. Furthermore, one of them, that is, the husband or the wife may be the wicked partner who paves the way for moral deviations. The Arabic word azwaj (spouses) refers to both the husband and the wife. It does not mean two things that exist together, as some people mistakenly think. Conversely, it means a thing or an individual that exists along with another of the same type. The word 'twin' is another example for this case, and it means one of two identical things. This is corroborated by the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And of all things We created two mates…' (adh-Dhariyat: 49). The word 'mates' means males and females. The male alone is a mate, and the female alone is a mate. This division applies to creatures.

We note that the word ‘spouses’ comes in the masculine plural form to refer to the wives of Prophet Muhammad in Allah’s saying: ‘O Prophet, indeed We have made lawful to you your wives…’ (al-Ahzab: 50). This is because the word ‘spouse’ is linguistically used to refer to either the female or the male. Accordingly, we understand from the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Believers….’ (at-Taghabun: 14) that it refers to male and female believers. A man can be faithful and righteous, while his wife turns him away from the Path of Belief. Likewise, the wife can be faithful and righteous, while the husband turns her away from that Path of Belief.

In this regard, we find that the Quran talks about some wives who were disbelievers though their husbands were Prophets and Messengers. There are also examples of husbands who were disbelievers although their wives were faithful. This point is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Allah presents an example of those who disbelieved: the wife of Nuh (Noah) and the wife of Lut (Lot). They were under two of Our righteous servants but betrayed them, so those prophets did not avail them from Allah at all, and it was said, “Enter the Fire with those who enter”’ (at-Tahrim: 10).

Prophet Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him could not prevent the disbelief of his own wife, nor could Prophet Lut (Lot) peace be upon him do the same to his wife. Both the wives conspired against their husbands – who were Prophets – with their peoples. So, their fate was the hell. The wife of Lut (Lot) used to inform her people of the men who visited Lut (Lot) peace be upon him so that they would come and sodomise them. This happened to the delegation of the angels who visited Lut (Lot) peace be upon him in the form of smart and attractive young men. In this respect, Allah the Almighty says: ‘And when Our messengers, [the angels], came to Lut (Lot), he was anguished for them and felt for them great discomfort and said, “This is a trying day”; And his people came hastening to him, and before [this] they had been doing evil deeds. He said, “O my people, these are my daughters; they are purer for you. So fear Allah and do not disgrace me concerning my guests. Is there not among you a man of reason?”’ (Hud: 77-78)

Prophet Lut (Lot) peace be upon him knows that the crime of his people is sodomy, and so does his wife. But their stands on it differ greatly. She welcomes it, while Lut (Lot) peace be upon him does not. The following is related, ‘As soon as the wife of Prophet Lut (Lot) saw some handsome young men (who were in fact the angels of punishment), she climbed the roof of her house and clapped her hands to attract the attention of her fellow tribesmen. But none noticed her. She then made a fire, and the people saw her. She gestured for them that some good-looking guests came to Lut’s (Lot’s) house.’

In our daily life, we find that if the wife is not righteous, she can be an enemy of her own husband by causing problems to embitter her husband’s life. The wife may even be sharp-tongued, quarrelsome, and heedless of her husband. She may even provoke his anger by making him doubt her chastity.

The husband can be modest, while the wife has a limitless craving for getting money in any way. Likewise, the wife can be virtuous and rejects the fact that her husband earns illegal property.

Relying on the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Believers, even among your spouses and your children you have some enemies – beware of them …’ (at-Taghabun: 14), we conclude that enmity comes from wives first. We also find that it is the wife who sometimes hates her husband and the children are consequently affected by this to the extent that they start imitating her. Very often, children become a great ordeal for their fathers. Their trial stems from the fact that fathers do everything they can to make their children lead a comfortable life. The financial capabilities can be limited, so the father may resort to ill-gotten money. So, a man’s trial often comes from his wife or his children. This is because the wife and children may prompt the husband to overwork, steal, or take bribes to satisfy their needs.

In this respect, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him says, ‘Your foe is not the person whom if you kill, you will be rewarded for, and if he kills you, you will be admitted into paradise, but rather, your mortal enemies can be your own children and your wealth which you possess.’(1)

(1) This Hadith is narrated by At-Tabarani. In his As-Silsila Ad-Da‘ifa, Al-Albani grades this Hadith as weak. In his book, Ibn Hajar Al-Haythami writes, ‘Mohamad ibn Isma‘il ibn ‘Ayyash is part of the chain of narrators, and he is weak.’ See At-Tabarani, Al-Mu‘ajam Al-Kabir, Hadith no. 3367 and Musnad Ash-Shamiyyin, Hadith no. 332; Al-Albani, As-Silsila Ad-Da‘ifa, Hadith no. 4375; and Al-Haythami, Majma‘a Az-Zawa’id, Hadith no. 17799.

When one of us has a son or daughter, he becomes overjoyed, to the extent that he favours him or her over himself, does his best to make him or her lead a decent life and tries to secure a bright future for him or her. In this regard, a poet once said (1):

Our children are like our hearts that walk on earth
If wind blows over some of them, we do not sleep a wink. (2)

In many cases, a man's children can be the source of his hardship and enmity towards his relatives. The children can distract their fathers from acts of obedience or force them to earn unlawful money to meet their daily needs. Not only can children be a source of trouble for their fathers, but wives can also be so for their husbands. In this vein, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him says, 'But the bitterest enemies of you are your own self, your wife whom you have intimate relations with her and your own children.'(3)

In the Glorious Quran, we find the story of the righteous servant who killed a young boy whose parents were believers. The righteous servant feared that this young boy would grow up and overburden his parents by transgression and disbelief. So, the boy was an ordeal for his parents and he would drive them towards unlawful things and cause them troubles. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: 'And as for the boy, his parents were believers, and we feared that he would overburden them by transgression and disbelief' (al-Kahf: 80). Very often, the children are a source of trials and hardship for their fathers. The essence of their trials arises from the fact that fathers strain every nerve to make their children lead a life of ease. But if the means are insufficient, they, that is fathers, may resort to ill-gotten gains. Allah the Almighty knew best that the young boy would be a source of hardship for his faithful parents. So, He the Almighty did not want the parents of the boy to suffer, for He the Almighty decreed that they would die as believers. That is why He the Almighty says: '…and we feared that he would overburden them by transgression and disbelief' (al-Kahf: 80).

(2) These two verses are mentioned by Ibn Abu 'Awn and Al-Basri who attribute them to Hattan ibn Al-Mu'alla. The poetical verse reads, 'Our children are but our hearts that walk on earth.' On the other hand, Ibn Al-'Adim narrates the two verses and ascribes them to Abu Tammam Habib ibn Aws at Ta'i. See Ibn 'Awn, At-Tashbihat; see also Al-Basri, Al-Hamasah Al-Basriyya; and Ibn Al-'Adim, Ad-Darari Fi Dhikr Adh-Dharari

(3) See Ad-Dailimi, Al-Firdaws Bi Ma'thur Al-Khitab, Hadith no. 5248; see also Al-Muttaqi Al-Hindi, Kanz Al-'Umal, Hadith no. 11264.

Anyone of us can have a son who is the apple of his eye. Yet the son may be the cause of his father's corruption, lying, taking bribes or stealing. So such a son can lead his father to hell. The son of Prophet Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him is a clear example of the son who disobeyed his father and opposed his Call. In this respect, Allah the Almighty says: '…and Nuh (Noah) called to his son who was apart [from them], "O my son, come aboard with us and be not with the disbelievers"' (Hud: 42); the son refused to answer the demand of his father and said that he would resort to the mountain for protection, whereupon Nuh (Noah) replied, 'There is no protector today from the Decree of Allah, except for whom He gives Mercy' (Hud: 43).

When Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him ordered his son to come aboard with him, the son disobeyed his father, rejected belief and preferred to remain a disbeliever. This happened at the time when the disbelievers were surrounded by a devastating flood. The son of Nuh (Noah) thought that he would be able to take shelter on a mountain to protect him from the flood by its height. Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him, however, knew for certain that no disbeliever would survive, for survival was only for the believers. So, he peace be upon him warned his son, saying: 'There is no protector today from the Decree of Allah except for whom He gives Mercy' (Hud: 43).

Thus, the son of Nuh (Noah) was an enemy of his father and of himself because he destroyed his own self. It is known that a person does injustice to someone else for his own good or for a certain reason. But how can one mistreat himself? Doing injustice to oneself is idiotic. How is it idiotic? As we know, if the enemy is from the outside, it is easy to withstand him/her, whereas if your enemy is your own self, it is more dangerous and difficult to resist and get rid of.

Your child, your soul and your wife, who are closer to your heart, may become your bitterest enemies. They have a strong grip on your heart and mind and thus may direct you into what may cause your destruction and keep you away from the Path of Belief.

It is narrated that the verse in question was revealed concerning ‘Awf ibn Malik Al-Ashga‘i (1) who had a large family. Whenever he intended to strive in the Way of Allah the Almighty his family cried over him and entreated him to stay. So, he yielded to their wish and stayed with them.(2) In this respect, Mujahid says, ‘A person’s intense love for his children and wife may lead him to sever good ties with his relatives and disobey Allah. So Allah forbids obeying them in this regard.’

The family’s temptations resemble the very words of Satan, the first enemy of the humans. Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him narrated that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: ‘Satan sits in the paths of the son of Adam. He sits waiting for him, in the path to Islam, and he says: “Will you accept Islam, and leave your religion, and the religion of your forefathers?” But he disobeys him and accepts Islam. Then he sits, waiting for him, on the path to Jihad, and he says: “Will you fight in Jihad when it will cost you your life and your wealth? You will fight and be killed, and your wife will remarry, and your wealth will be divided.” But he disobeys him and fights in Jihad.’ The Messenger of Allah said: ‘Whoever does that, then he has a right from Allah that He will admit him to Paradise.’(3)

Satan’s enmity towards humans is so ancient. He swore to mislead all humans, saying: ‘I will certainly lie in wait for them in Your Straight Path’ (al-A‘raf: 16); ‘Then by Your Might I will surely make them live an evil life, all, [82] Except Thy servants from among them, the purified ones [83]’

(Sad: 82-83); and: ‘I will most certainly cause his progeny to perish except a few’ (al-Isra’: 62). Satan swore by the Might of Allah the Almighty to lead humankind astray. So he is the primary enemy of the human being and lies in wait for him/her on the Straight Path.

In this regard, Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him succeeded in the test that Allah the Almighty put him to regarding his son Ismail (Ishmael). The son helped his father to obey Allah the Almighty. Regarding this, He the Almighty relates that Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him said: ‘O my son! Surely I have seen in a dream that I should sacrifice you; consider then what you see’ (as-Saffat: 102). Ismail (Ishmael) peace be upon him replied to his father, saying: ‘O my father! Do what you are commanded; if Allah please, you will find me of the patient ones’ (as-Saffat: 102). So, Ismail (Ishmael) was very sure that this was a Divine Command, and thus he complied with it.

In the verse under discussion, Allah the Almighty says: ‘…but if you overlook their offences, forgive them, pardon them, then Allah is All Forgiving, All Merciful’ (at-Taghabun: 14). Someone may argue, ‘What is the relationship between pardoning and forgiving on the one hand, and the enmity of some wives and children on the other?’ To know the answer to this question, we should learn the reason behind the revelation of this verse. This verse was revealed concerning the children of those who emigrated from Mecca to Medina. Their families, wives and children tried to dissuade them from emigration by saying entreatingly, ‘To whom do you leave us?’ Some responded by desisting from emigration and thus stayed with them instead. However, some others did not yield to their wishes and even stopped supporting them for their rejection to migrate in the Cause of Allah. They also said to them, ‘If Allah brought us together, we would not do any good to you and we would do such-and-such.’ Thus, Allah the Almighty revealed this verse.(1)

For this reason, Allah’s saying: ‘…but if you overlook their offences, pardon them, forgive them, then Allah is all forgiving, all merciful’ (at-Taghabun: 14) comes after His saying: ‘…beware of them...’ (at-Taghabun: 14). So the verse in question calls for handling the troubles caused by a believer’s wife or children gently and carefully. If the believer is to beware of the enemy who is closer to him, this enemy should be viewed from another perspective as a friend and that enmity, in this case, is accidental and can be addressed with wisdom and gentleness, but not at the expense of the religion. The act of pardoning, overlooking, and forgiving which a believer shows towards his wife or children, who are his enemy in terms of diverting him from the religion, is a kind of patience and forbearance meant to maintain the friendly family relations. At that point, we note that Allah the Almighty mentions three stages, which are: pardoning, overlooking and forgiving. In the verse in question, the coordinating particle ‘and’ denotes dissimilarity. This means that ‘pardoning’ is a stage unlike ‘overlooking’ and ‘forgiving’. You can excuse a person who offends you in a specific situation, but you do not pardon him because pardoning makes you overlook his subsequent mistakes, a matter that did not actually take place. Likewise, forgiving differs from pardoning. You can pardon a person, overlook his mistake, decide not to punish him and intend to pardon him in other situations.

(1) See Muqatil, Tafsir, 369; and Abu Ishaq Ath-Tha‘alabi, Al-Kashf Wa Al-Bayan Fi Tafsir Al-Quran, 9/329.

As regards forgiving, it is a high-level act that is attainable by those who are distinguished by pardoning others. So, they attain the manners of forgiveness and adopt them in their daily lives. They overlook others’ offences even if they repeat them. They do not revenge against their offenders or wait for anyone to ask for pardon. They are lenient and gentle and have no desire to retaliate even by giving their offenders dirty looks. We find these gradual levels in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…and those who restrain (their) anger and pardon men; and Allah loves the doers of good (to others)’ (Al-‘Imran: 134). You suppress your anger in the first stage, pardon in the second and remove anger from your heart in the third which represents the apex of faith and benevolence.

If it is required to restrain your anger, it is better for you to pardon others. Pardon requires you to eliminate what makes you angry from your heart. What outclasses the two acts of suppressing anger and pardoning is to be kind towards your offender by speaking to him in a gentle way or even by giving him a gift.

Someone may argue that the verse we are discussing here begins with pardoning, not the suppressing of anger as Allah the Almighty says: ‘…but if you overlook their offences, pardon them, forgive them, then Allah is All-Forgiving, All-Merciful' (at-Taghabun: 14). Yes, pardoning here is the first stage, while it is the second stage in the chapter of Al-'Imran, after suppressing anger. This is because the verse of Al-'Imran talks about the harm done to one's self or his repute. So, suppressing anger is to be the first stage in that case. As for the verse in question, it is relating to disobeying the father regarding any of Allah's Commands. So, it needs gentle treatment to handle the errors of one's wife and children. The difference between pardoning and overlooking is that the former is to remove from yourself any trace of offence. As for overlooking, it means to let bygones be bygones and not to let what happened worry you anymore, which is different from overlooking the mistake even though its negative impact on you remains, to the extent that you continue to be infuriated and revengeful. So, Allah the Almighty instructs us to eliminate the trace of offence from our minds and hearts. After overlooking a mistake, its impact vanishes, as overlooking keeps you away from being worried by something you have pardoned. The third stage is an open chance for a believer who desires to reach the level of benevolence and the highest degree of belief. This is by being kind towards the person who insulted you, which is the rank of forgiveness. Ubay ibn Ka'b narrated, 'When Allah sent down the verse: 'Take to forgiveness and enjoin good and turn aside from the ignorant' (al-A'raf: 199), Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'What is this, Jibril (Gabriel)?' Jibril (Gabriel) said, 'Allah orders you to forgive those who wronged you, give [charity] to those who withhold [things] from you and maintain friendly ties with those who severed good relations with you.'(1)

Your forgiveness makes you overlook any offences you suffer, be generous to those who deprive you and keep good relations with those who break off friendly ties with you.

Allah the Almighty concludes the verse With His saying: 'Allah is All Forgiving, All Merciful' (at-Taghabun: 14). 'All-Forgiving' is an exaggerated form as Allah the Almighty is Ever-Forgiving and He is the Lord Who forgives and pardons all the time. So, one should have these great qualities as well. In this connection, He the Almighty says: ‘And they should pardon and turn away. Do you not love that Allah should forgive you? And Allah is Forgiving, Merciful’ (an-Nur: 22). If you want Allah the Almighty to forgive you, you should pardon a person who has offended you. He the Almighty is All-Forgiving regarding the sins you have committed and for which you asked Him for forgiveness; and He Glorified is He is also All-Merciful towards you as He does not rush to punish you; of course this is out of His Compassion for you so that you may turn to Him in repentance.

(1) In his Tafsir, As-Suyuti narrates this Hadith on the authority of Ash-Sha'abi. He ascribes it to Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir, Ibn Abu Hatim and Abu Ash-Sheikh Al-Asbahani. It is also narrated by Abu Nu'aym Al-Asbahani on the authority of Qays ibn Sa'd ibn 'Ubada. See As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur, 6/708; see also Abu Nu'aym Al-Asbahani, Ma'rifat As-Sahaba, Hadith no. 5134.

Allah the Almighty then says:

إِنَّمَآ أَمۡوَٰلُكُمۡ وَأَوۡلَٰدُكُمۡ فِتۡنَةٞۚ وَٱللَّهُ عِندَهُۥٓ أَجۡرٌ عَظِيمٞ ﴿١٥﴾

Your wealth and your children are only a test for you. There is great reward with God [15]
(The Quran, at-Taghabun: 15)

In our life, some people enjoy wealth and children. But one does not bear in mind that wealth and children may be an instrument for punishment. Someone else may argue that Allah the Almighty says: ‘Wealth and children are an adornment of the life of this world…’ (al-Kahf: 46). We respond to this argument by saying, ‘Complete the same verse you quote to its very end: ‘…and the ever-abiding, the good works, are better with your Lord in reward and better in expectation’ (al-Kahf: 46). No one should be beguiled by wealth or children, as Allah the Almighty says, ‘Let not then their property and their children excite your admiration; Allah only wishes to chastise them with these in this world's life and (that) their souls may depart, while they are unbelievers’ (at-Tawba: 55). So when you see someone provided with wealth and children, you should not say, ‘How can they be punished in this worldly life, while they have wealth and children?’ Dazzled by wealth and children means ‘admiring them very greatly and thinking of them as absolutely propitious’. If one profoundly reflects on wealth, children, and other worldly possessions, he will discover that none of them deserves admiration. So, you should beware of being beguiled by something that will surely leave or may cause you hardship. Wealth and children may make a person entirely occupied with the blessings, and thus distracts him from the Benefactor. Unless a person pays attention to the Benefactor Glorified is He he will not praise Him and will thus neglect His Way of Guidance. Wealth and children may lead you to fear to leave the worldly life. If a person is not firmly convinced of the pleasure prepared for him by Allah in the Hereafter, he will dread leaving wealth or children.

A person who does not believe in the Last Day is wholly engrossed in and enslaved by the worldly life. If he loses it, this will be distressing and catastrophic for him; and if he misses it, this will be grievous for him as well. But when one believes fully and firmly in Allah the Almighty and in the Day of Judgement, he will say, ‘Even if I lose this worldly life, I will obtain what is better from Allah the Almighty in the Hereafter.’ Allah the Almighty wants to protect the believers from being enslaved and captivated by the material possessions that distract their attention from the Way of Guidance. So He says: ‘Let not then their property and their children excite your admiration...’ (at-Tawba: 55). This indicates that wealth alone can be impressive and children alone can be so as well. One who has wealth or children gets impressed by either of them. He becomes more impressed if he has both of them. Thus, Allah the Almighty teaches us that wealth and children together should not impress us. Moreover, the context of the verse warns us against being impressed by either of them.

He the Almighty also teaches us that providing disbelievers and hypocrites with wealth and children does not mean that they are of high ranks in the sight of Allah, for He the Almighty does so to punish them through this worldly life and in the Hereafter. So, Allah the Almighty says: ‘Allah only wishes to chastise them with these...’ (at-Tawba: 55). He Glorified is He gave them wealth and children in this worldly life, but ultimately they will be punished in the Hereafter.

Wealth and children do not avail anyone against the Punishment of Allah the Almighty a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘(As for) those who disbelieve, surely neither their wealth nor their children shall avail them in the least against Allah…’ (Al-‘Imran: 116). The disbelievers think that wealth and children can protect them against the Punishment of Allah the Almighty but they are actually wrong, for wealth and children can be a source of trials and troubles. This is confirmed by the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘And know that your property and your children are a temptation, and that Allah is He with Whom there is a mighty reward’ (al-Anfal: 28). As long as wealth and children are a trial, we should understand the matter properly. The trial is not bad in itself because it is a test that a person can go through and in which he can eventually succeed. So, for example, if a person has wealth and children, he should not be beguiled by wealth but should use it in a good way. As for his children, they should not make him conceited. Besides, he should teach them to follow Allah’s Way of Guidance and the religious moral standards. So, the trial is not bad in itself; we should bear in mind that this trial is a test which we should pass. It actually does harm to the person who fails in it and who weakens when facing it.

The disbelievers fail in the trial of wealth and children, and the Day, that is, the Day of Resurrection when they do not have wealth or children will come. Even if they possess wealth in this worldly life, they will not buy with it anything in the Hereafter and each of their children will be preoccupied with his own affairs.

In fact, the disbeliever deceives himself, for he gets enticed by wealth and children and forgets that life is run by the Command of the One Who owns and controls the whole universe. He deals with life improperly. As a matter of fact, being impressed by wealth and children in this worldly life is delusive. After all, the human being can live without wealth or children. Whoever gets deceived by his wealth or children in this worldly life will be sorrowful and depressed on the Day of Judgement. What is the reason for this? This is because whenever a person remembers that wealth and children kept him away from being prepared for the Hereafter, he bitterly regrets his misdeeds.

As for those disbelievers who are lured by wealth and children, Allah the Almighty says: ‘…and those are the companions of the Fire; they will abide therein eternally’ (Al-‘Imran: 116). This is the fate of the one who deceives himself by wealth or children. Allah the Almighty says: ‘And know that your property and your children are a temptation, and that Allah is He with Whom there is a mighty reward’ (al-Anfal: 28). In this respect, it is related that once

Hudhayfa Allah be pleased with him visited Caliph ‘Umar Allah be pleased with him; the latter asked, ‘How are you, O Hudhayfa?’ He replied, ‘I like the “test” but dislike the “truth.” I do pray without ablution and I have on earth what Allah does not in heaven.’ ‘Umar raged and if ‘Ali ibn Abu Taleb Allah be pleased with him had not entered at this moment, he, that is ‘Umar*,* would have punished Hudhayfa. ‘Ali asked ‘Umar, ‘What has angered you, Commander of the Believers?’ He said, ‘I asked Hudhayfa how he was and he said such-and-such,’ whereupon ‘Ali said, ‘Yes, Commander of the Believers. He likes the test, that is to say his wealth and children, as Allah the Almighty says: ‘Your wealth and children are only a test for you…’ (at-Taghabun: 15). He hates death which is the truth. And who loves death, Commander of the Believers? In addition, he asks Allah the Almighty to confer His Blessings upon Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him without performing ablution. Furthermore, he has a wife and children on earth but Allah the Almighty has neither a wife nor a child in the heaven.’ Thereupon ‘‘Umar said, ‘It is intolerable to stay at a place where Abu Al-Hasan, that is ‘Ali is not present.’(1)

In the chapter of al-Anfal, Allah the Almighty says: ‘And know that your property and your children are a temptation...’ (al-Anfal: 28); and in the chapter of at-Taghabun, He says: ‘Your wealth and children are only a test for you…’ (at-Taghabun: 15). Both of the two verses indicate that He the Almighty tells us about a natural fact, that is to say wealth and children are a test and trial. In the second verse, He the Almighty emphasises this fact by the restrictive particle innama (only).

Someone may ask, ‘Why do these verses begin with wealth first and mention children second?’ We reply by saying that when one looks at the Quranic verses, he discovers that they always mention wealth before children. For example, Allah the Almighty says: ‘Wealth and children are an adornment of the life of this world…’ (al-Kahf: 46). Here, He the Almighty also mentions wealth before children. He also says to Satan: ‘And incite [to senselessness] whoever you can among them with your voice and assault them with your horses and foot soldiers and become a partner in their wealth and their children…' (al-Isra': 64). He further says: 'Know that this world's life is only sport and play and gaiety and boasting among yourselves, and a vying in the multiplication of wealth and children…' (al-Hadid: 20). Thus, the Glorious Quran always mentions wealth before children. Here arises a question which is, 'Why does the Quran mention wealth first? Is wealth better for people than children?' Allah the Almighty mentions wealth first because it is common among the addressees in contrast with children. Everyone has a property even if it is little. As for having children, it is not common among all people, for there are some who have no children. Also, having children needs money for marriage and expenses. So, everyone can have money but may not have children.

(1) This Hadith is narrated by Ibn Sa‘d on the authority of Sa‘id ibn Al-Musayyib who also said, ’Umar used to take refuge with Allah from a problematic issue in which Abu Al-Hasan is not involved.’ See Ibn Sa‘d, At-Tabaqat Al-Kubra, 2/239; see also As-Suyuti, Jame‘ Al-Hadith, Hadith no. 30829.

Allah the Almighty says: 'Your wealth and children are only a test for you…' (at-Taghabun: 15). The Arabic word fitna (test) is the trial and the test by which Allah the Almighty examines people's belief. Some people mistakenly think that tribulation is evil in itself. In fact, tribulation is a mere test. So you may succeed or fail in it. The test is not something disagreeable or a calamity that befalls the person, but it is catastrophic for anyone who fails in it.

The Arabic term fitna is derived from a concrete meaning of 'refining gold and iron with the use of fire.' Refining gold means fusing it in a crucible so that impurities mixed with it will float and be removed. Iron is also melted so that the sticking atoms will separate and the dross will float. We know that the types of iron include cast iron and steel. The impurities of cast iron are visible and so it is fragile. As regards steel, it contains no dross. It is thus clear that refining gold and iron removes the strange metals mixed with them.

The word fitna (test) then transitioned from a concrete meaning to an abstract one. It here denotes a test in which a person passes or fails. Thus, the test is not harmful per se; rather, it is bad for the person who fails in it. The trials experienced by a person are tests; they are good for the one who passes them and bad for the one who does not.

In this connection, once Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him quoted the verse reading: 'Your wealth and your children are only a test…' (at-Taghabun: 15) 'Abdullah ibn Burayda narrated that his father Burayda

Al-Aslami(1) had said, ‘I saw Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him delivering the sermon, whereupon Al-Hasan and Al-Husayn came, wearing red shirts, walking and tripping up. Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him descended from the pulpit and carried them. Then he said, “Allah says: ‘Your wealth and your children are only a test…’ (at-Taghabun: 15), but I found these two boys walking and stumbling, which I could not stand. So, I stopped my speech and steadied them.”(2) At last he resumed his sermon.’

In this Hadith, he peace and blessings be upon him explains the fitna of the children as ‘being preoccupied with his two grandchildren’. It does not mean that the two grandsons would lead him peace and blessings be upon him towards a path other than that of belief. Rather, it means they Allah be pleased with them both diverted his attention away from his sermon for a short while.

Another Hadith narrated by Ibn Malik Allah be pleased with him reads, ‘Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him once shortened the Dawn Prayer. When he was asked why he did so, he said, “I heard a little boy crying and thought that his mother was praying with us. So I desired to free up his mother for him.”’(3) He peace and blessings be upon him was preoccupied with the crying of the little boy. So, what about the little boy’s mother’s heart? Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him wanted to have mercy on the mother and the little boy who cried in need of his mother. As we said before, his peace and blessings be upon him being preoccupied with the boy does not apply to the test meant by the verse in question.

(1) Burayda Al-Aslami ibn Al-Khasib was the chieftain of Aslam tribe. During his Hijra, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him passed by Kira‘ Al-Ghamim where Burayda lived and he peace and blessings be upon him called him and his fellow tribesmen to embrace Islam. They indeed adopted Islam and then Burayda left for Medina, while Messenger Muhammad was building the mosque. He died in Marw during the caliphate of Yazid ibn Mu‘awiya.

(2) See Abu Dawud, Sunnan, Hadith no. 111; see also At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 3774; An-Nasa’i, Sunnan, Hadith no. 1413; Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 3600; and Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 23045.

(3) This is narrated by Imam Ahmad on the authority of Anas ibn Malik; Ibn Abu Dawud narrated that Abu Sa‘id Al-Khudri said that Messenger Muhammad used to recite the long chapters of Al-Mufassal during the Dawn Prayer. One day he recited some of the short chapters. When he was asked, he said, ‘I heard a little boy crying, so I wanted to free up his mother for him.’ See Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 13726; and Ibn Abu Dawud, Sunnan, Hadith no. 424.

It is thus crystal clear that his peace and blessings be upon him kindness and affection for his daughter Fatima and her two sons was great. Fatima was dearer to his heart, and so were Al-Hasan and Al-Husayn whose father ‘Ali risked his life for Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him on the night of Hijra to Medina.

It was hard for him peace and blessings be upon him to see his two grandsons tripping up while they were walking. So he decided to steady them. He stopped delivering his sermon, descended from the pulpit, and lifted them from the ground. He said, ‘Allah is All-Truthful as He says: “Your wealth and children are only a test…” (at-Taghabun: 15).’ So, children can be a source of trial and a test. But what matters most is the result of this trial: will it be good or bad? The trial can be either good or bad, but in both cases it is necessary. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: ‘Do men think that they will be left alone on saying, we believe, and not be tried?’(1) (al-’Ankabut: 2) The trial of wealth drives people into miserliness and hoarding money. As a matter of fact, it causes all the forms of corruption and immorality. As regards the trial of children, it leads to neglecting the primary duties a person is required to fulfil. It also drives him into cowardliness, niggardliness, and avarice. The believer is to rise above the trial of wealth; he should devalue wealth and prevent it from preoccupying him.

Even though one gets benefit from wealth or children, this is a temporary benefit which will come to an end, which is why one should not be attracted by it, irrespective of their extent and number. Instead, a person should pay attention to the great future benefit which he will receive from Allah the Almighty alone when he adheres to the Right Path. He the Almighty then says: ‘There is a great reward with Allah…’ (at-Taghabun: 15). Allah Glorified is He wants His servants to pass the tests they go through. If a person seeks to get money by all means or succumbs to the trial of his children, they may keep him away from showing obedience to Allah, or even make him earn illegal money. So, He the Almighty wills one's children to be brought up through lawful gains.

(1) Al Miswar ibn Makhrama narrated that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘Fatima is my own flesh and blood. What harms her hurts me as well.’ See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 6461; see also Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 3714 and 3767.

Your compliance with Allah's Way of Guidance will not go in vain, for He the Almighty will reward you for your obedience and your passing of the test, and that is why He concludes the verse in question by saying: 'There is a great reward with Allah…' (at-Taghabun: 15).

The human soul, by virtue of its natural constitution, likes what benefits it. But what really matters is the extent of the benefit. For example, the person who steals wants to benefit himself through the effort of someone else. The person who does not steal, on the other hand, wants to benefit himself so that Allah the Almighty blesses his money and grants him lawful sustenance.

Achieving benefit is behind any action, be it positive or negative. If you think that your breach of moral responsibility will benefit your children or increase your wealth, you should remember the reward Allah the Almighty gives you for your fulfilment of responsibility. Put the breach of moral responsibility in one pan of the scale and the fulfilment of responsibility in the other and see which of the two will tilt. Indeed, the one of Allah's Reward will tilt.

We should reflect on the greatness of Allah's Reward and the usefulness of the Path of Belief for those who follow it. That is why Allah the Almighty says: 'Whoever does righteousness, whether male or female, while he is a believer – We will surely cause him to live a good life, and We will surely give them their reward [in the Hereafter] according to the best of what they used to do' (an-Nahl: 97).

In fact, good life is the natural result of good deeds which one performs for the sake of Allah the Almighty and His Reward in the Hereafter. So, He the Almighty grants the believer two portions of reward: the portion of a happy, good life in this worldly life and the portion of the Hereafter about which He the Almighty says: 'And We will surely give them their reward [in the Hereafter] according to the best of what they used to do' (an-Nahl: 97).

One of the benefits the believer derives from following Allah's Way of Guidance is to live a good, tranquil, and happy life; he lives in the guidance, blessing, and sustenance of Allah the Almighty. He the Almighty rewards him in the Hereafter for his obedience and righteousness though he already benefited from righteousness in this worldly life.

For people, recompense is equal to the value of the action. But the Reward of Allah the Almighty does not equal the worth of the action, for it is proportional to Allah's Omnipotence. So, there is a difference between the reward people give to one another and that of Allah the Almighty in the Hereafter. People regard reward as an emolument for a job. According to the extent of your job, you receive your wage, recompense, or emolument. If you do not work, you will not receive any recompense.

On the other hand, the reward which Allah the Almighty grants to His servants in the Hereafter is great and endless. If people reward you unfairly in this worldly life, Allah the Almighty is the All-Just and rewards you generously, for He is the All-Just and the Granter of bestowals. Unlike the reward of this worldly life, the reward in the Hereafter continues forever. In fact, the ease of this worldly life is evanescent because you will lose it one day or it will vanish. Allah's Reward is described as great, and this indicates that it is considerable in terms of size, characteristics, and continuity which are the elements of the greatness of His Reward. Is there a reward greater than this? What makes it greater than any other reward is that it comes from Allah the Almighty not from the humans. In the verse in question, Allah the Almighty says: 'There is a great reward with Allah…' (at-Taghabun: 15). In another verse, He Glorified is He also says: '…will have his reward with his Lord' (al-Baqara: 122).

It is Allah the Almighty Who imposes religious obligations, so it is logical that the reward shall come from Him. Therefore, the true believers do not fear or feel sorry, for they are certain that Allah the Almighty will reward them with what He promises them. Fear is to dread something that will happen. As for sorrow, it is to grieve for something that has already happened. The believers will neither fear nor grieve when the reward comes from Allah the Almighty. We should not be apprehensive about what is with Allah the Almighty for it multiplies and increases. The person feels sad when he loses something good, but the Reward of Allah the Almighty is permanent; you never lose it and it will never pass you by.

Fatima, the daughter of Messenger Muhammad, used to burnish and perfume the dirhams when she donated them to charity. When she was asked about this, she said, ‘I polish and perfume dirhams because I have intended to donate them to charity.’ She was asked, ‘Why do you burnish and perfume them then?’ She replied, ‘This is because I know that they fall into Allah’s Hands before they do into the hands of the poor.’(1)

When one reflects over the Quranic verses, one concludes that the great reward has a significant meaning. Sometimes reward is not equivalent to good deeds. Rather, it is purely surplus. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: ‘While if there is a good deed, He multiplies it and gives from Himself a great reward’ (Al-‘Imran: 40). He the Almighty calls it ‘reward’ though it is surplus and excessive. This is because this surplus is resultant from the reward. If a person does not perform the good deed, he is not entitled to any reward, and in turn he does deserve any surplus.

As the reward comes from Allah the Almighty it is the greatest ever because the Granter is Allah Glorified is He Who says: ‘But Allah has preferred those who strive hard in Allah’s Way over those who remain [behind] with a great reward’ (an-Nisa’: 95). What is this great reward? It is explained by the following verse that reads: ‘Degrees [of high position] from Him and forgiveness and mercy. And Allah is Ever-Forgiving and Merciful’ (an-Nisa’: 96). The degree here means the high position or rank which the person attains. Besides, Allah the Almighty adds two privileges: forgiveness and mercy.

In the verse in question, the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…With Allah…’ (at-Taghabun: 15) gives two indications, as follows: the first is making those who do not believe in Allah the Almighty lose hope that they can find reward in the Hereafter for any good deeds, for they have not done these deeds to gain the pleasure of Allah the Almighty. Rather, they have done them for the sake of alleged deities who cannot reward them in any way, given the fact that there is no god but Allah both in this worldly life and in the Hereafter. On the Day of Judgement, Allah the Almighty will say: ‘To whom belongs [all] sovereignty this Day? To Allah, the One, the Prevailing’ (Ghafir: 95). None but Allah the Almighty has all dominion over the Day of Judgement. How do the disbelievers expect a reward for deeds they do not perform for His Glorified is He sake? They have done them to find favour with other people in this world which they already achieved.

(1) In his Tafsir, As-Sam‘ani narrates that Ibn Masu‘d said, ‘Charity falls into the Hand of Allah before it falls into the hand of the poor person.’ See As-Sam‘ani, Tafsir Al-Quran, 2/346

The second indication is that the reward will be in this worldly life along with the Hereafter because Allah the Almighty possesses both. Concerning the reward in the Hereafter, Allah the Almighty says: ‘We will bestow upon him a great reward’ (an-Nisa’: 74). We have three stages of receiving the reward for deeds: a reward that comes immediately upon the occurrence of the deed; a reward that comes after a short time; and a reward that comes true after a longer time. In the above-mentioned verse, Allah the Almighty uses a particle that refers to the realisation of the reward in the distant future, that is, in the Hereafter since the great reward can only be fully granted there. So, the believers should beware of saying, ‘Why does not Allah the Almighty reward us immediately for the good deeds in this worldly life?’ This is because He the Almighty says: ‘We will bestow upon him a great reward’ (an-Nisa’: 74). This indicates that even though Allah provides those who do good deeds with great reward in this worldly life, His Reward for them in the Hereafter will be even greater.

فَٱتَّقُوا۟ ٱللَّهَ مَا ٱسْتَطَعْتُمْ وَٱسْمَعُوا۟ وَأَطِيعُوا۟ وَأَنفِقُوا۟ خَيْرًا
لِّأَنفُسِكُمْ ۗ وَمَن يُوقَ شُحَّ نَفْسِهِۦ فَأُو۟لَـٰٓئِكَ هُمُ ٱلْمُفْلِحُونَ ﴿١٦﴾

Be mindful of God as much as you can; hear and obey; be charitable – it is for your own good. Those who are saved from their own meanness will be the prosperous ones [16]
(The Quran, at-Taghabun: 16)

The Arabic word At-Taqwa (mindfulness/fearing) means guarding one’s self against something; it is derived from the word Wiqaya, which gives the meanings of protection, guarding, shielding and so on. It means avoiding and being cautious about something evil. So, with regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Be mindful of Allah…’ (at-Taghabun: 16), it means to beware of His Wrath in order to protect ourselves against all of His Attributes of Majesty. Whoever guards himself against these Attributes will take advantage of Allah’s Attributes of Beauty. The Attributes of Majesty include the Ever-Subduing, the Powerful, the One Who Humiliates, the giver of Bestowals and the Harmer. When one protects himself against the Subdual, Might and Avengement of Allah the Almighty he takes advantage of His Attributes of Beauty, namely; the Ever-Forgiving, the All-Merciful, the Ever-Relenting and the Pardoner.

So, the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Be mindful of Allah…' (at-Taghabun: 16) means to guard yourselves against Allah's Attributes of Majesty so that you will not bring down His grievous punishment upon you. Hence, the believer should perform his deeds in this worldly life according to Allah's Way of Guidance. Fearing Allah the Almighty and guarding one's self against His punishment are direly required in the worldly life. You cannot endure the resultant implications of His Attributes of Majesty, His Wrath, Might or Revenge.

You should beware of provoking Allah's Wrath through any actions you perform. The Muslim must be firmly convinced that he will meet Allah the Almighty. After all, what remains for him, if he adheres to this Divine Way of Guidance, is to be promised paradise. In this connection, He the Almighty says: 'And fear Allah and know that you will meet Him. And give good tidings to the believers' (al-Baqara: 223). Fearing Allah the Almighty means to implement His commands and to refrain from His Prohibitions. In this way, we can adapt our choices and actions to His Way of Guidance. If we do so, we, like other creatures in the universe, will do what is good and beneficial.

Some superficial people look at some Quranic verses and claim that they are inconsistent. They argue that some verses say: 'then fear the Fire…' (al-Baqara: 24), while other verses read: 'and fear Allah…' (al-Baqara: 278). Does the believer fear the fire as he fears Allah the Almighty!

Such people do not understand that the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'and fear Allah…' (al-Baqara: 278) means to protect yourself against what may cause you harm and trouble. This also means to guard yourself against His punishment. This protection is the shield of a person who is to abide by Allah's Commands and Prohibitions. When you guard yourself against Allah's Wrath, you protect yourself against His punishment. Thus fearing Allah the Almighty is equivalent to protecting one's self against hell. Devout people are those who guard themselves against anything that provokes Allah's Anger. The only way is to follow His Way of Guidance so that we will not enter hell which is one of His punitive means. Protecting one's self against hell entails obeying Allah's Commands and avoiding His Prohibitions. To say 'fear Allah' means to protect yourself against His punishment and Wrath. The same meaning goes for saying 'fear hell,' that is to say, shun what causes you to enter it.

Here, Allah the Almighty says: 'Be mindful of Allah as much as you can…' (at-Taghabun: 16). This verse is connected to the previous two verses in which Allah the Almighty says: 'Believers, even among your spouses and your children you have some enemies – beware of them – but if you overlook their offences, forgive them, pardon them, then Allah is All Forgiving, All Merciful. [14] Your wealth and your children are only a test for you. There is great reward with Allah [15]' (at-Taghabun: 14-15). You should not let your wealth or children keep you away from your obedience to Allah the Almighty and from following His Way of Guidance. Otherwise, you will fail in your test and the result of your trial will be bad for you. Therefore, Allah's saying: 'Be mindful of Allah…' (at-Taghabun: 16) follows these two verses. This means to be careful and to make your fear of Allah the Almighty control you, not your own inclination towards hoarding wealth and stinginess.

If we ponder over the Quran, we find that it says: 'Be mindful of Allah as much as you can…' (at-Taghabun: 16), that is, it makes the command contingent on the person's ability. On the other hand, Allah the Almighty says in another verse: 'O you who have believed, fear Allah as He should be feared…' (Al-'Imran: 102). So, the question to be asked here is 'Who is able to fear Allah the Almighty as duly as required?' In fact, this is hard for Muslims. That is why when the verse of Al-'Imran was revealed, Muslims said, 'No one of us is able to fear Allah as He should be feared.' Thereupon, Allah the Almighty revealed His saying: 'Be mindful of Allah as much as you can; hear and obey; be charitable – it is for your own good. Those who are saved from their own meanness will be the prosperous ones' (at-Taghabun: 16).

One who puts Allah's saying: '…fear Allah as He should be feared…' (Al-'Imran: 102) into practice will make remarkable achievements. However, one can fear Allah the Almighty as duly as required concerning limited actions. The reward is surely great, but the deeds that apply to this verse are limited. As regards His saying: ‘Be mindful of Allah as much as you can…’ (at-Taghabun: 16), He the Almighty enjoins us to fear Him as far as we can. As a result, the deeds that are accepted by Him become numerous even if the reward for them is not great. The final result is that there are some limited good deeds that require high reward, while there are a lot of good deeds which call for low reward. Which of the two types is better? Of course the numerous good deeds that require low reward surpass in general the few good deeds that call for high reward.

So, what is the due and optimal fearing of Allah the Almighty? The due, optimal fearing of Him (the Almighty) is that a believer’s belief must be firm and unshaken and that His Way of Guidance must be adopted as compliantly as possible. Furthermore, He the Almighty must be remembered and thanked instead of being forgotten and shown ingratitude.

It is said that the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…fear Allah as He should be feared…’ (Al-‘Imran: 102) means that you should not be dissuaded or affected by those who blame you as long as you are pleasing Allah the Almighty or that you must tell the truth even if it is against yourself. Such a person is the true pious one who fears Allah as He should be feared. Some Islamic exegetes state that when the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…fear Allah as He should be feared…’ (Al-‘Imran: 102) was revealed and Messenger Muhammad’s Companions heard it, they found themselves unable to put it into effect. Some of them wondered, ‘Who can fear Allah as He should be feared?’ In the same respect, it is said that at this time Allah the Almighty revealed the verse reading: ‘Be mindful of Allah as much as you can…’ (at-Taghabun: 16). But does this mean that He the Almighty first imposed upon Muslims religious obligations that are beyond their capacity and then He said: ‘…fear Allah as He should be feared…’ (Al-‘Imran: 102)? No, Allah the Almighty charges humans with the obligations which are within their capacity. People misunderstand the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Be mindful of Allah as much as you can…’ (at-Taghabun: 16). One can say, ‘I cannot perform such-and-such religious obligation.’ Accordingly, such a person mistakenly thinks that he is absolved from that religious obligation. However, this is a misunderstanding.

The saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…fear Allah as He should be feared…’ (Al-‘Imran: 102) means that you must fear Him as far as you can. What you are able to do, you should do. One should not hold the opposite meaning and say, ‘I am not able,’ for Allah the Almighty knows best the bounds of his capability. Once you are unable, Allah the Almighty pardons you and alleviates your difficulty. He knows best whether a certain obligation is beyond your capacity or not.

So, the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…fear Allah as He should be feared…’ (Al-‘Imran: 102) denotes a high level of piety attainable by distinct people. When this verse seemed hard on the Companions and they asked(1) Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him ‘Who can fear Allah as duly as He should be feared?’ Allah the Almighty revealed His saying: ‘Be mindful of Allah as much as you can…’ (at-Taghabun: 16) and imposed piety according to one’s capacity. So the verse in question abrogates the most optimal mandatory fearing of Allah the Almighty. But the verse of Al-‘Imran remains as an opportunity for anyone to attain the highest level of piety. If one desires to reach this level, it is much better for him. If one is not able, he can adopt the verse in question.

If we look at the two verses mentioned above from another angle, we will discover another meaningful point that refutes the allegation that there is a contradiction between them. The verse of the chapter of Al-‘Imran comes in a context different from that of at-Taghabun. The verse of Al-‘Imran comes in the context of verses that talk about disbelief and belief. Allah the Almighty says: ‘O you who have believed, if you obey a party of those who were given the Scripture, they would turn you back, after your belief, [to being] unbelievers; [100] And how could you disbelieve while to you are being recited the verses of Allah and among you is His Messenger? And whoever holds firmly to Allah has [indeed] been guided to a straight path [101]’ (Al-‘Imran: 100-101). The two verses here are about belief and disbelief, and thus what is suitable here is the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…fear Allah as He should be feared…' (Al-'Imran: 102). A person is obliged to believe in Allah the Almighty and what He ordains and to avoid all forms of disbelief and polytheism. Accordingly, belief in Allah the Almighty Messenger Muhammad, the Scriptures, the Last Day and Predestination is not based on one's capacity; rather, a person is required to believe in all of this as duly as possible.

(1) In his Tafsir, Ibn Kathir relates that Sa‘id ibn Jubayr (one of the greatest Followers) said, ‘When Allah revealed the verse reading: “O you who have believed, fear Allah as He should be feared…” (Al-‘Imran: 102), Muslims intensified their acts of worship to the point that their Achilles tendons got swollen and their foreheads became sore. Thereupon, Allah alleviated the hardships of Muslims and revealed the verse saying: “Be mindful of Allah as much as you can…” (at-Taghabun: 16). Thus the first verse was abrogated by this verse.’ See Ibn Kathir, Tafsir Al-Quran Al-‘Azhim, 8/140.

Capacity is related to the matters on which it is applicable, as in the context of the chapter of at-Taghabun. A person can be faithful, but his personal inclinations or love for wealth might control him, or his affection for his children might lead him to yield to their wishes. Excluding the matters that are related to disbelief or polytheism, Allah the Almighty says: 'Be mindful of Allah as much as you can…' (at-Taghabun: 16), which perfectly fits the context of this chapter.

Allah the Almighty knows that a person is weak and the circumstances can affect him greatly. Belief is not among the matters that depend upon one's capacity. It can be beyond your capacity only in the case of coercion, a fact which is clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Except for one who is forced [to renounce his religion] while his heart is secure in faith' (an-Nahl: 106).

Then, Allah the Almighty says: '…hear and obey…' (at-Taghabun: 15). The believers are to listen to and to obey what is ordained by Allah the Almighty. Not only is listening with ears needed, but what is also necessary is obedience and implementation.

You can hear what is said but may not pay heed to it. So, Allah the Almighty says: '…and [that] a conscious ear would be conscious of it' (al-Haqqa: 12). The consciousness of the ear enables it to attain benefit and understand what it hears so that it will not hear mere sounds and voices as in the case of those about whom Allah the Almighty says: 'And there are those of them who seek to listen to you until when they go forth from you, they say to those who have been given the knowledge: What was it that he said just now?' (Muhammad: 16) Those people listened to Messenger Muhammad's words, yet they left him and asked, 'What has he said just now?' They listened to him peace and blessings be upon him, but they did not understand, nor did the spiritual light penetrate into their hearts. They looked as if they were deaf to the verses of Allah the Almighty. The believer, on the contrary, listens and is affected by what he hears which increases his belief. As regards the disbeliever, he cannot comprehend what he hears. The tears of the believers are shed when they listen to the saying of Allah the Almighty in the Quran. As for those whose hearts are immune to the light of the Quran, they are reluctant to listen to the truth even if they hear it with their ears.

That is why Allah the Almighty says: ‘And those who do not believe – in their ears is deafness…’ (Fussilat: 44). This deafness hinders their hearing. As the ears are deaf, they cannot listen to the truth. Even if they hear something, the heart will impugn it. This is due to the fact that one’s body parts get influenced by the beliefs one holds within one’s heart. As for those who are rightly guided, they listen to the truth; their hearts receive it with satisfaction and their body parts comply with it. You listen with your ears, accept the truth with your heart and your body parts put into practice what you are ordered to do. This is the intended meaning of the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…hear and obey…’ (at-Taghabun: 16). The close correlation between hearing, obedience and fearing Allah the Almighty is also highlighted by Prophet Muhammad’s Hadith.

Concerning the believers, Allah the Almighty says: ‘The Messenger believes in what has been revealed to him from his Lord, and (so do) the believers; they all believe in Allah and His angels and His Books and His Messengers; We make no difference between any of His Messengers; and they say: We hear and obey…’ (al-Baqara: 285). He the Almighty also says: ‘The only statement of the [true] believers when they are called to Allah and His Messenger to judge between them is that they say, “We hear and we obey”’ (an-Nur: 51).

‘Listening’ signifies the communication of the Islamic Calling, while obedience represents undertaking the obligations and compliance with Allah’s Commands and Prohibitions.

So, the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…hear and obey…’ (at-Taghabun: 16) means to listen in a conscious and careful way that converts into obedience. You listen to comply and obey, not just to receive words with your ears without being influenced by them. So, the hearing’s function is to deliver the sayings of Allah the Almighty to one’s heart and mind to be finally put into practice. Allah the Almighty wants us to be among those who listen and obey, not among those who said, ‘We listen and disobey.’

In this regard, He the Almighty says about the Jews: ‘And when We made a covenant with you and raised the mountain over you: Take hold of what We have given you with firmness and be obedient. They said: We hear and disobey’ (al-Baqara: 93). The Jews heard what Allah the Almighty said to them, but they disobeyed. They listened to the commands but yet defied them. They said, ‘we hear,’ but they did not implement what they heard. Allah the Almighty wants them to listen and obey, not just to receive His Words with their ears.

Thus, it is incumbent on the believers to listen, obey, and comply with Allah’s sayings. Then He the Almighty draws our attention to charitable spending as an aspect of obedience to Him; He says: ‘be charitable – it is for your own good…’ (at-Taghabun: 16). We should note that He the Almighty says: ‘…it is for your own good…’ (at-Taghabun: 16). This means that He the Almighty draws a comparison between two things: charitable spending, which is better and more advantageous, and avarice. A person’s avarice occurs when he fears that he would be powerless and poor. So, he tries hard to keep and maintain what he owns for fear of poverty. A person thinks that his niggardliness and retaining of material possessions are better for him. Therefore, Allah the Almighty draws our attention to an important fact, saying: ‘be charitable – it is for your own good…’ (at-Taghabun: 16). He the Almighty reassures those who spend charitably, saying: ‘The parable of those who spend their property in the way of Allah is as the parable of a grain growing seven ears (with) a hundred grains in every ear; and Allah multiplies for whom He pleases; and Allah is Ample-Giving, Knowing.’ (al-Baqara: 261) Through charitable spending Allah the Almighty blesses and increases your property. So do not grieve over or fear for your wealth, for you donate your money for the sake of the Almighty and the Bountiful Who will surely increase your property.

One day Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him entered upon Bilal while the latter had a pile of foodstuff. He peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘Bilal, spend charitably and do not fear impoverishment by the Owner of the Throne.’(1) According to another narration, the pile consisted of dried dates. Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him asked Bilal, ‘What is this foodstuff?’ He replied, ‘Some dried dates. I want to save them,’ whereupon he peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘Woe betide you, Bilal! Do not you fear that they produce smoke in hell? Make charitable donations, Bilal, and do not fear impoverishment by the Owner of the Throne.’(1) Bilal Allah be pleased with him was poor and wanted to save some dried dates to entertain Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in case he visited him. However, he peace and blessings be upon him instructed him to donate the dried dates charitably and said to him, ‘Make charitable donations, Bilal and do not fear impoverishment by the Owner of the Throne.’ This does not mean that he peace and blessings be upon him discourages us from saving a portion of our money or foodstuff to use it later in the future. Rather, he peace and blessings be upon him thought that Bilal Allah be pleased with him had saved the dried dates for his fear that Allah the Almighty would not provide him with anything other than them. He wanted his Companions to keep their hearts pure from the worldly pleasures.

(1) See Al-Bazzar, Musnad, Hadith no. 1366.

As a matter of fact, this matter has to do with the believer’s piety and his fear that he might disobey Him by being unable to implement the command in His saying: ‘be charitable – it is for your own good…’ (at-Taghabun: 16). This is also connected to the fear of being captivated by the love of the worldly life and indulging in miserliness or avarice. That is why Allah the Almighty says: ‘Those who are saved from their own meanness will be the prosperous ones’ (at-Taghabun: 16). So, His saying: ‘…be charitable – it is for your own good…’ (at-Taghabun: 16) serves as a rule that He the Almighty intends to use to combat the avarice within the people’s selves. He the Almighty says to all of us, ‘Be far-sighted, for alms and charitable spending do not decrease a person’s property.’ Using a small measurement of wheat grains as planting seeds for your land will not decrease your depository a great degree when you grow your land. This is because you expect that the land will produce many times the amount of this measure. As Allah the Almighty clarifies for us the roots of avarice within the human soul, He teaches us that the first thing that the human soul encounters is a person’s apprehension that charitable expenses would cut down his property. On the other hand, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him warns us against niggardliness and avarice by saying, ‘Beware of injustice, for it will be darkness on the Day of Resurrection. Avoid avarice, for it brought destruction down upon those who were before you and prompted them to shed the blood of one another and violate their prohibitions.’(1) Therefore, Allah the Almighty says: ‘Those who are saved from their own meanness will be the prosperous ones’ (at-Taghabun: 16). The human soul inclines towards avarice, and that is why Allah the Almighty says: ‘Those who are saved from their own meanness...’ (at-Taghabun: 16). So, one of the Blessings Allah the Almighty conferred upon the person and one of the tokens of His Mercy towards him is that He Glorified is He protects the person from avarice and miserliness. A person who stints on his money, knowledge, or wisdom will inevitably suffer loss and forfeiture. As regards those who: ‘…are saved from their own meanness...’ (at-Taghabun: 16), they will succeed and escape loss, for they have spent charitably and Allah the Almighty has granted them many times as much as what they spent. They have struck a deal with Allah the Almighty Who says: ‘And Allah multiplies [His reward] for whom He wills…’ (al-Baqara: 261).

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Ibn Mas‘ud Allah be pleased with him. See Al-Bazzar, Musnad, Hadith no. 1978; Abu Ya‘ala, Musnad, Hadith no. 6040; and At-Tabarani, Al-Mu‘jam Al-Kabir, Hadith no. 1017.

One who communicates his knowledge to others will be rewarded in return for any person who receives this knowledge, be it religious or mundane. Likewise, a person who has great experience in some field and is known for wisdom is rewarded for providing others with them because he protects the inexperienced from committing what provokes Allah’s Anger. So He the Almighty says: ‘Those…will be the prosperous ones’ (at-Taghabun: 16). The Arabic word al-falah means success, winning, and prosperity, while the word al-muflih means a winner, a successful and prosperous person. The word falah (success) contains its evidence; it is derived from a clause meaning ‘to till the land’. The farmer who cultivates his land and grows it will reap the fruit in the end. Likewise, the successful person benefits from his deeds.

The success of the believers is not confined to the Hereafter, but it can also come in this worldly life as a result of charitable expenditure. So, Allah the Almighty says: '…and (as for) those who hoard up gold and silver and do not spend it in Allah's way, announce to them a painful chastisement' (at-Tawba: 34). Charitable spending includes numerous fields. It creates activity and circulation in society, which are beneficial for all people. People benefit from zakat (obligatory alms) when you pay it, exactly as when you pay to equip the Muslim army. Once you spend charitably and stop hoarding your wealth, markets will be brisk. This means the creation of a lot of job opportunities, means of living and the incentive for humanity to progress. For example, when you buy yourself a washing machine, fridge or build a small house, you cause an economic boom in society. At the same time, you develop your material comforts. Prosperity leads to the best discoveries that benefit humanity. However, if you hoard up all your money, economic recession will prevail. This does not mean that one should spend all of one's money, for Allah the Almighty likes moderation in all aspects of life, a fact which is clear in His saying: 'And they who when they spend, are neither extravagant nor parsimonious, and (keep) between these the just mean' (al-Furqan: 67). Here, Allah the Almighty warns us against extravagance and not keeping a portion of our money for contingencies. But penny-pinching brings about stagnancy, the cessation of production and unemployment. Islam encourages thriftiness and moderate spending that creates marketability and simultaneously allows the saving of money to improve your everyday life and help you in any potential problems you encounter. In this case, you will succeed in this worldly life and in the Hereafter.

Allah the Almighty then says:

إِن تُقۡرِضُواْ ٱللَّهَ قَرۡضًا حَسَنٗا يُضَٰعِفۡهُ لَكُمۡ وَيَغۡفِرۡ لَكُمۡۚ وَٱللَّهُ شَكُورٌ حَلِيمٌ ﴿١٧﴾

If you make a generous loan to God He will multiply it for you and forgive you. God is ever thankful and forbearing [17] (The Quran, at-Taghabun: 17)

Allah the Almighty talks to us in the preceding verse about charitable spending, saying: '…be charitable – it is for your own good. Those who are saved from their own meanness will be the prosperous ones' (at-Taghabun: 16). You should not make the worldly life capture your heart. Be thrifty and spend your money on your families and on the interests of your society. If the worldly life captivates you, you will not rid yourself of stinginess in your knowledge, views, or advice. So, Allah the Almighty says: 'Those who are saved from their own meanness will be the prosperous ones' (at-Taghabun: 16). The problem lies in the niggardly soul whose owner even begrudges smiling at his coreligionist. This is despite the fact that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'To smile at your brother is an act of charity.'(1) Therefore, you should cleanse your heart of niggardliness to be successful.

A parsimonious person stints on and thus harms only himself. As for the generous person, he, unlike misers, receives more blessings from Allah the Almighty. Thus, He the Almighty says: 'Behold! You are those who are called upon to spend in Allah's way, but among you are those who are niggardly, and whoever is niggardly is niggardly against his own soul…' (Muhammad: 38). If your Lord sees you give charity out of your property, He will increase it for you. In this regard, one of the righteous people says, 'O Allah! You habitually bestowed blessings on me and I got used to give out of them to the people. So, I invoke You to keep bestowing on me what I got accustomed to so that I do not stop giving the people what they used to take.'

As a matter of fact, charitable expenditure generates and multiplies the blessings of Allah the Almighty. Suppose that you have several children and you give one of them one pound. Then this child of yours goes to a shop, buys sweets, and divides them among his brothers. You will certainly give him more money because he is kind towards his brothers.

Know, O you rich person, that when you withhold charity from the poor, you deprive yourself. Allah, the Omnipotent, is not in need of you; He is fully

(1) This Hadith is narrated by At-Tirmidhi and Ibn Hibban on the authority of Abu Dharr Allah be pleased with him. Al-Bazzar narrated it with the following wording: 'Your smiling at the face of your coreligionist is a kindness; to pour [water] from your bucket and fill that of your coreligionist is a kindness; to promote virtue and combat vice is a kindness; to remove thorns and stones from the road is a kindness, and to show the way to a lost person is a kindness.' See At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 1956; see also Ibn Hibban, Sahih, Hadith no. 474; and Al-Bazzar, Musnad, Hadith no. 4070.

Able to replace stingy people with others who openhandedly donate some of their property to charity. A person who scrimps denies himself the avenues of the Mercy of Allah. Spending in the form of charity, zakat (obligatory alms) or household expenditure leads to an economic boom and youth employment. This also safeguards societies from moral deviations and the loss of generations.

In this vein, lending money to a needy person is a form of spending as well. It is possible that there will be no needy person in the society if each rich person gives financial aid at least to his poor relatives. If every wealthy person provides for his needy relatives, there will be no poverty-stricken people in the Muslim societies.

If you want to broaden the scope of good deeds, you should widen the range of charitable spending. When you give charity to the needy whom Allah the Almighty brought into being, you endear yourself to Him by helping them, even though this is not obligatory on you.

The one who withholds charity from the needy invokes their spite and hatred. If spite and grudge spread in a society, all immoralities and abominations will be rampant. Allah the Almighty orders us to purify our property by spending charitably, so that it will increase and grow and spite will be eliminated from society. If grudges prevail in a society, such a society will be at stake. It is as if Allah the Almighty says to humans, ‘Go about in this life and it is Me Who will ensure the result of your effort. But I have an entitlement to your wealth which I have entrusted you with: you have to give the needy a portion of it.’ If the rich do not assist the needy, the needy may take what they need by stealing, robbing, or even resort to killing or complicity in murder.

By giving charity to the needy, you actually give them on behalf of Allah the Almighty Who bestows all the means of sustenance. He the Almighty commands the believers, saying: ‘O you who have believed, spend from that which We have provided for you…’ (al-Baqara: 254). In fact, you spend out of the favours that Allah the Almighty confers upon you. He the Almighty regards charitable spending as a loan which a servant gives to Him, the Lord, the Creator, and the Bestower of sustenance. Wealth, in fact, is Allah’s. If He puts you in possession of wealth and orders you to give charity to your poor coreligionist, He respects your ownership and does not take back His Grant.

So He the Almighty orders you to give charity to the poor as a loan and He will repay it on behalf of them. In this regard, He the Almighty says: ‘Who is it that would loan Allah a goodly loan…’ (al-Baqara: 245). In this verse, He Glorified is He does not say, ‘would loan so-and-so’. Rather, He says: ‘would loan Allah’. In the verse in question, He the Almighty also says: ‘If you make a generous loan to Allah…’ (at-Taghabun: 17). That is, when you give someone a loan, it seems as if you have given it to Allah the Almighty Himself.

The Arabic word al-qard (loan), linguistically, means nibbling an object with canine teeth. Allah the Almighty knows best that loaning is difficult. To show that it is so, He says: ‘…would loan Allah’ (al-Baqara: 245). Thus, He the Almighty gives the reward according to its difficulty.

Loaning is harder than almsgiving. The moment you give charity, you are not worried about what you donate out of your money because you initially exclude your charitable donation from your calculations; you do not expect any recompense from the person you give charity. By contrast, when you give a loan to someone, you think about a lot of things and even ask many questions: ‘Will he pay off the loan? Will I give him a loan less than he wants? How can I take back my money if he fails to repay it?’
